

Consumer Prices Rise .9% In May

WASHINGTON (AP)—Consumer prices rose 0.9 percent in May, the same as in April and far less than the rampant pace set during the first three months of 1980, the government said today.

If May's price rise continues for an entire year, the annual inflation rate would be a compound 10.9 percent, the Labor Department said. From January through March, that rate exceeded 18 percent.

Some economists predict that the annual inflation rate could fall to 8 percent or less by the end of the year, as interest rates continue to fall and the recession continues.

In a companion report, the Labor Department reported that Americans' take-home pay in May fell 0.9 percent. In the past year, earnings adjusted for inflation have dropped 7.7 percent.

The moderating inflation trend in May was led by gasoline, which declined in price by 0.6 percent, and food, which increased a slight 0.3 percent, two-tenths of a percentage point less than the month before. These figures are seasonally adjusted.

The drop in gasoline prices was the first since August 1977, the department said.

Only housing costs jumped sharply—1.5 percent—as recent drops in mortgage rates have yet to show up in the Consumer Price Index, the department reported. Housing expenses accounted for three-quarters of May's increase in the Consumer Price Index, it said.

The report also showed: Substantial declines in the price of beef, pork, and eggs, which offset increases for fruits, vegetables, dairy products, cereal, bakery products and sugar. Restaurant meals and alcoholic beverages rose 0.5 percent and 0.7 percent, respectively, in May.

Home financing costs shot up 3 percent, while the price of homes rose 1.3 percent. Although government-backed FHA and VA mortgage rates dropped substantially, conventional rates continued to rise.

Natural gas and electricity charges increased 4.8 percent and 2.5 percent, respectively, while oil prices were down. Rents rose 1 percent.

Despite rebate programs to stimulate an ailing auto industry, new car prices were up 1 percent. Automobile financing charges also continued to increase substantially, up 4.3 percent.

Taking public transportation cost 1.5 percent more last month. This increase was particularly evident for airline and intercity train travelers, as well as taxi riders.

Apparel prices and upkeep costs declined 0.2 percent, reflecting early summer sales.

Medical care rose 0.5 percent, the smallest increase in the last 12 months.

The drop in real spendable earnings—what is left after deductions for Social Security and federal income taxes—was slightly less in May than in April, when it fell 1.1 percent.

Action Delayed On Bids For Courts

Western Texas College trustees postponed action on bids to build a racquetball facility on the campus.

At a special breakfast meeting Tuesday, the board opened bids from four contractors and then tabled action pending the return of three board members who are out of the city.

The bids ran about $50,000 over the estimates for the construction of four handball courts, dressing rooms, an office and viewing area. Low bid was submitted by Wadleigh Construction Co. of Snyder in the amount of $251,880. The highest bid was submitted by Tusha Builders of Odessa in the amount of $277,299. Other bidders were Rose Construction of Abilene, $261,900, and Tilley and George Construction of Big Spring, $253,200.

The board discussed possible alternatives to reduce the cost closer to the estimate and areas to be considered are deletion of the viewing area, carpet, and the college maintenance staff doing some of the finish work.

It was estimated that perhaps $25,000 could be deleted from the bid by considering some alternatives. However, the board concluded that all trustees should take part in the decision.

In the only other item on the agenda, the board authorized the administration to advertise for bids to replace 12 golf carts at the WTC golf shop.

Anticipated cost of the golf carts, with trade-ins, will be approximately $13,000. WTC President Bob Clinton said the carts are starting the fourth season and that it is becoming uneconomical to repair the carts.

Board members attending the special meeting were Edwin Parks, president; Wacil McNair, R.C. Patton and Dr. Robert Hargrove.

'80 United Way Goal Same As Last Year's

Scurry County United Way directors unanimously approved a campaign goal of $56,969 for this fall at a meeting Monday afternoon at city hall.

This is the same as the goal last fall and is the goal recommended this year by the United Way's budget committee which completed its work last week.

The proposed budget was adopted by the board after it was presented by Dr. Edward Barkowsky, chairman of the budget committee.

Barkowsky told the board that the committee felt that with continued backing of the community, the goal is feasible and with the current economic situation, the agencies and board should economize as much as possible. He said the committee spent many hours working on the new budget proposal and he expressed appreciation to all committee members.

Thirteen agencies will remain as participants. Frances Wiman and Margaret Drum, campaign co-chairmen, announced division chairmen for the fall campaign. They are: Martin Brooks and Joe Jaekson, advance division; Lyle Deffebach, royalty owners; Joe Flack, oil and industry; Ed Barkowsky, educational; Joe Williamson and Larry Genuchi, professional; Roger Sullenger, utilities; Earl "Hassie" Sneed, public employees; and Fred Davis, rural. A chairman for the commercial division will be named later.

Some adjustments also were announced for division goals. The advance division's goal this year will be $17,500 down $500; the out-of-town royalty owners goal will be $1,100 down $500; and the oil and industry goal will be $14,000 up $1,000. These figures reflect actual participation in recent campaigns.

Pat Rice and Fred Castillo was named new directors to fill vacancies resulting from the resignation of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Chorn, who have moved from the county.

Brenda Hedges, United Way president, announced that the next meeting will be held July 21.

Third Candidate In Queen's Race

Another candidate for Independence Day Queen has been named, the chamber of commerce reported this morning.

Melanie Jarrell is the candidate of the Snyder Lions Club. She is the third candidate to be nominated for the honor. Earlier, the Scurry County Senior Center and Retired Senior Volunteer Program had named June Deen as a candidate, and the 20th Century Club nominated Stephanie Weaver.

Local clubs and organizations have been invited to nominate queen candidates. The winner will be determined by ticket sales, and clubs sponsoring candidates may register their entries at the same time their representatives pick up their supplies of tickets.

States' Checks May Be Cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—Federal revenue sharing checks going to the states next month may be cut in half under a $15.9 billion emergency spending bill before the Senate.

The legislation, approved by the Senate Appropriations Committee Monday, would cut $572 million from the revenue sharing program for the fourth quarter of the fiscal year—July through September.

More Tests For Cloak

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP)—Scientists have suggested another series of complex scientific tests be run on a cloak with the image of the Virgin Mary.

The tests were suggested after scientists concluded five dozen infra-red photos on the image of Our Lady of Guadalupe taken last year failed to explain how the image of the Virgin Mary was applied to the cactus fiber cloak and why both have lasted 450 years.

Monsignor Enrique Salazar, representing the abbot of the Basilica of Guadalupe in Mexico City where the image is enshrined, agreed Sunday to allow scientists to conduct a second battery of tests.

The SDN Column

Do you ever wonder how the federal government manages to spread its tentacles gradually and without fanfare until suddenly the public awakens to learn that another set of regulations has been imposed?

A good example may be reflected in a current situation concerning the playa lakes on the High Plains. These little lakes are natural bodies of water, most of them small, but virtually all on private property. They are mostly as small, or smaller than man-made stock tanks. But they are considered valuable assets on farms and ranches for obvious reasons.

Indeed, historians tell us that if there had been no playas and no buffalo wallows to catch rainwater back in the early days, it would have been almost impossible for man and animal to have survived.

But, getting back to the subject of federal regulations, federal agencies have their eyes on them. They have decided that playa lakes may be subject to federal control. At least three agencies are involved—the Environmental Protection Agency, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers and the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

At first glance, it appears they would have difficulty in establishing such claims, but where federal agencies are concerned, not only is it a case of "where there's a will there's a way," but also "where there's opportunity to build up our power structure, there is a demand for action."

So, we are told, the federals have decided that there is a strong possibility that playa lakes are involved in interstate commerce.

Don't laugh. They are dead serious. Someone told them that migratory wild fowl regularly stop over on playa lakes when they are going south in the fall and north in the spring. Since these ducks and geese fly over several states, they are engaged in interstate commerce, and where they touch down is tainted with the interstate label, automatically making it a subject for federal intervention.

As you may have surmised by now, High Plains farmers are fighting this encroachment. It will be interesting to see the final chapter.

Clements Heads

Ernest Angelo of Midland also was selected deputy chairman and campaign manager for the Texas campaign to handle the day-to-day operations for the former California governor.

Panel Puts Okay On Chrysler Loan

WASHINGTON (AP)—A government board, today approved a $500 million-federally guaranteed loan to the ailing Chrysler Corp., a loan delayed repeatedly by balking banks worried about the automaker's ability to survive.

The final approval was postponed for 90 minutes this morning because of a fire Monday night in a New York City office building where some of the crucial loan documents were located.

The Chrysler Loan Guarantee Board approved issuance of $500 million in guaranteed notes and affirmed its commitment to back another $1-billion in future loans.

The actions come despite continued deterioration in the auto industry, with sales declining amid a fast-deepening recession.

Frederick Schultz, vice chairman of the Federal Reserve Board and a member of the loan guarantee panel, called the decision a "close call," but he and other members voiced optimism that actions by Chrysler will prove successful.

The major action is imminent introduction of Chrysler's K-car, a front-wheel drive, lightweight intended to compete with imports.

Crucial papers relating to the Chrysler loan were in offices in the damaged Westvaco Corp. building on Manhattan's Park Avenue. The documents were not destroyed, but they had to be transferred to other buildings before the meeting in Washington could proceed.

The board's completion of its part in the legal proceedings to authorize the loan guarantee had been postponed repeatedly last week as Treasury Department and company officials worked feverishly to persuade a handful of reluctant banks to participate in the intricate bailout package.

More Bizarre Information About Gunman's Past Comes To Light

DAINGERFIELD, Texas (AP)—Residents here still were reeling from the bloody attack on a church congregation that left five dead as unexpected elements of the accused gunman's past continued to surface today.

A reclusive former schoolteacher, Alvin Lee King III, has been charged with five counts of murder and 10 counts of assault with intent to murder.

A heavily armed man burst through the doors of the first Baptist Church Sunday and began blasting at Sunday worshippers with a rapid-fire rifle. Fifteen persons were hit before the flak-jacketed gunman shot himself in the head, police said.

King, 45, was in critical condition with "unstable vital signs" at John Sealy Hospital in Galveston, a spokesman there said.

Known to Daingerfield residents as an intelligent, but often un sociable person, King also was involved in the 1966 fatal shooting of his 49-year-old father.

Records discovered by the Corpus Christi Caller-Times show King's father, Alvin Lee King Jr., died instantly when he was struck in the head by a blast from a .12-gauge shotgun.

On a Sunday morning, Feb. 6, 1966, King was visiting from Longview and the family was looking over a gun collection, the records show. King was holding a .12-gauge shotgun moments before the fatal blast, said Justice of the Peace Armando Flores, who ruled the death accidental.

"At that time I was coroner," Flores said Monday night. The gun was supposed to have fallen to the floor. They (King, his father and mother, Hazel) were looking at the gun and it had fallen from the son's grasp and discharged, hitting the old man in the face and neck."

Lillian Leathers, 73, whose drugstore is near the King family home in Corpus Christi, said the Feb. 6, 1966 shooting was very hard on Mrs. King, who still runs a liquor store there.

"She's been through so much," Mrs. Leathers said. "Her husband was killed right in front of her and now this. It (the 1966 shooting) was ruled an accident, but a lot of people didn't think so."

"It was pretty hard on her, but she seemed to be in control."

King's mother, Hazel, said she had "nothing to say at all" about Sunday's shooting spree.

Mrs. Leathers said the Kings were "well respected" but talked little of their children.

"I heard the son used to travel a lot and trap animals," she said.

"His parents had a couple—a lion and a monkey."

"I remember, yes," Flores said. "They had a weird collection of animals. A mountain lion in the city and a chimpanzee or a baboon in a cage that scared the heck out of me."

Daingerfield authorities say they still have no motive for the mid-winter shooting, although several residents have speculated it was tied to King's impending trial on incest charges.

He was slated for trial Monday in nearby Sulphur Springs on incest charges brought on behalf of his 21-year-old daughter, Cynthia.

The Rev. Donald Sinclair, a Methodist minister who recently moved from a Daingerfield church to Houston where he is also pastor, who with his son had encouraged the daughter to bring the charges, said he was to appear in court to "support Cynthia."

"King had tried to go to court with witnesses in his behalf from the First Baptist Church, but the witnesses would not go," Sinclair said. "If I had been in town, it (the shooting) probably would have been at me."

Sinclair believes his family was punished for encouraging the charges.

problems of venus

If you'd like to get away from the problems of this world for a bit, consider those of another - Venus.

Although it is not because of a problem that Earth's sister planet is currently news, but as a consequence of the resolution of one - the mystery of what lies beneath its thick cover of clouds.

Thanks to the electronic probing of the Pioneer spacecraft that has been orbiting Venus since December 1978, we now have a good idea.

Topographically, Venus bears striking similarities to Earth. It has uplands and lowlands and mountain ranges, some of these configurations approaching the extent of Earth's smaller continents. The super-hot surface has no water, however, and what corresponds to the oceans on Earth - the "sea level" of Venus - are vast, relatively flat plains covering some 60 percent of the planet.

And there also are indications that Venus - like Earth, as Mount St. Helens is so vividly demonstrating, and Io, the volcanic moon of Jupiter - may be geologically active. It may be just beginning a process similar to that caused on Earth by tectonic plates. Rising out of the interior and interacting with each other, the plates shape the continents and are responsible for most earthquake and volcanic activity.

All of this information, and much more, has recently been made public by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. It is the unexpected bonus from the Pioneer mission, originally programmed primarily to study the Venusian atmosphere. One of the spacecraft's instruments - a radar altimeter - was adapted for surface scanning and proved amazingly precise in revealing to the computers what the clouds obscure from the eye.

Getting back to Earth, there might be a useful spinoff application for the device down here - trained on the political situation.

hotdog, or burger?

And now for a message on hamburgers and hotdogs. More to the point, those who prefer one over the other. Psychiatrist Dr. Leo Wollman finds two very different psychologies at work.

Your average hotdog eater, Wollman observes in the July Orni magazine, tends to be an outgoing, aggressive, ambitious extrovert given to lunching "grab it and go" style.

The hamburger eaters, on the other hand, are quieter, more conservative and better-dressed executive types who are "used to making decisions - well done, rare, ketchup or mustard."

There's probably one decision, for those who don't deviate from their menu preferences, that comes often and quite naturally to both types. Pass the bicarb, please.

my turn

by john dunnam

After seeing the "Urban Cowboy" I feel like the guy in the light beer commercial who says, "I am surprised."

I, too, had not expected much from the John Travolta flick despite or perhaps because of the hype its been given in the media.

The thing that impressed me about the movie, besides it being a good, simple boy-meets-girl story, was the accuracy of the lifestyle it portrayed. Ten, 20 or a 100 years from now it can be shown as a history lesson depicting the way a certain segment of the population once lived in Houston and probably other big cities in the Southwest. I lived in Houston a few years myself and can vouch for the accuracy of the movie right down to the shiny pickup trucks that never left the pavements or hauled anything with more than two legs.

WARNING: Some may be offended by a couple of scenes and more than a few of the words in the PG rated movie. But taking them out would be like taking an air brush to a photograph. It just wouldn't be honest.

The story revolves around Bud Davis (John Travolta) who leaves his home in Spur to go to Houston and find a job hoping eventually, he says, to save enough money to return to the country and buy a spread. His uncle gets him on at the chemical plant where he has worked for years. You get the idea that his uncle - middle-aged, married, easy going and fat - was once just like Bud - trim, proud, arrogant, fiercely competitive and terribly chauvinistic.

There are thousands of young bucks who fit Bud's description working in the petro-chemical industry that dominates Pasadena and the ship channel area of Houston. When they get older they probably all turn into somebody's uncle.

But getting back to our story, Bud meets Sissy, a sexy little number who is also too high-spirited for her own good. They fall in love and get married. Marriage goes sour after she insists on doing things that girls are not supposed to be able to do, like riding the mechanical bull in Gilly's nightclub where most of the action takes place. It is also in Gilly's (billed as the world's largest honky tonk) that the villain works his evil.

Wes Hightower is a convict out on parole from Huntsville. He is a bit older than Bud, much more rugged and most important to Sissy, a "real" cowboy. He is also rotten to the core.

In an effort to make Sissy jealous, Bud takes up with a rich girl from downtown Houston who finds cowboys a dumb but fascinating lot.

Bud and Sissy's problem is really just a lack of communication and the show winds up to a predictable finish but as far as entertainment goes - I was surprised.

Vice Presidents for generations have been the butt of jokes which imply uselessness, superfluosity, political impotence.

Vice Presidents have been used as campaign hatchet men, as window dressing and, most always, to "balance the ticket."

If the presidential nominee is identified with Northern liberals, he wants on his ticket a Southern conservative - and vice versa.

Gov. Reagan says that when he is nominated it's not going to be like that.

Gov. Reagan - essentially conservative - says he is going to select a running mate who is essentially conservative.

He believes that "if voters select a President because of his political philosophy, he has a moral obligation to provide them a Vice President and a Cabinet with the same objectives, the same philosophy."

Interesting.

And significant - because Gov. Reagan's age is an acknowledged political liability and for a running mate he will want somebody younger and healthy.

Inevitably, searching the horizon for somebody young and healthy whose political persuasion is identical to Reagan's - the individuals looming largest are former football star, handsome young Congressman Jack Kemp, George Bush, and Sen. Richard Lugar.

This next presidential election is going to have a profound effect on our nation's future.

The American electorate sometimes seeks to justify staying at home on Election Day by expressing a lack of enthusiasm for any of the candidates, insisting it doesn't really matter who wins.

It matters this time. The appointive prerogatives of that highest office have more impact on our lives than any act of Congress could.

The average age of the five senior justices now on the Supreme Court will be 73 by election time; older than Reagan by three years.

The next President will probably have to replace at least two - and perhaps four.

The highest court is presently precariously balanced, left and right - listing slightly to the left.

This is the court which, ever since the leadership of Earl Warren, has been preoccupied with the rights of wrongdoers - curtailing the prerogatives of police.

This is the court which has mandated cross-town busing and outlawed school prayer; which "legislated" abortion; was responsible for the Well decision, the Miranda decision; discrimination in reverse, public pornography.

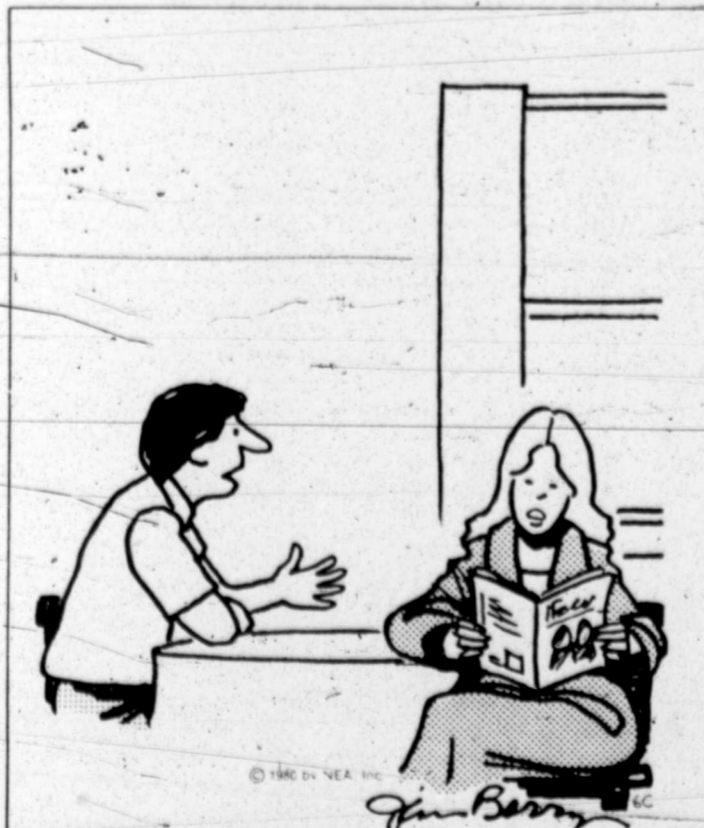

So American voters next November may refuse to vote by pleading laziness or penitence or preoccupation.

But let none say it doesn't matter.

It will matter.

INCLINE VILLAGE

Nev. (NEA) only stone's throw away from the site of the annual meeting of the Western Governors' Association was the breathtaking panorama of a sparkling Lake Tahoe ringed by the snow-capped Sierra Nevada.

But inside the hotel where the state executives recently gathered for three days, a thinly disguised mood of frustration and bitterness was embodied in the frequent references to "resentment," "hostility" and "acrimony."

The explanation for the incongruity of those angry remarks juxtaposed against the vista of a glistening lake lies in the growing alienation of a region that increasingly perceives itself as ignored, misunderstood, abused and plundered by the rest of the nation.

Among the West's problems and grievances:

Water: No other issues can even vie for parity with the fundamental yet seemingly insoluble problem of conserving, allocating and distributing the West's scarce supply of an indispensable resource.

Residents of other regions often are incapable of comprehending the scope of the problem because water generally is plentiful in the East, South and Midwest.

But to meet the residential, commercial and industrial needs of the Los Angeles area alone, uncounted millions of dollars have been spent to draw and transport water from lakes, rivers and streams far north of Sacramento and San Francisco, and from the Colorado River on the Arizona border 200 miles to the east.

But even that task pales in contrast with the magnitude of the effort necessary to irrigate California's agricultural land, which soaks up approximately 85 percent of all water consumed in the state, or to satisfy the water demand of Arizona, New Mexico and other states in the arid Southwest.

Land: Various components of the federal government - principally the Departments of Interior, Agriculture and Defense - own and manage 64 percent of all land in Idaho, 66 percent in Utah and 87 percent in Nevada.

In a regional protest that has come to be known as the "Sagebrush Rebellion," legislative and legal initiatives are under way in Utah, Wyoming, New Mexico, Nevada, Washington and Arizona to reclaim those lands by transferring them to state ownership and control.

Energy: Now under way throughout the Rockies are energy development projects of unprecedented scope, including $20-billion worth of synthetic fuel extraction centered in Colorado and $35 billion worth of coal mining in Montana, Wyoming and North Dakota.

Massive new power plants to generate electricity include the $6 billion Intermountain Power Project in Utah (with most of the electricity destined for Los Angeles) and the $1 billion White Pine Power Project in Nevada.

Nevada Gov. Robert List questions whether "our region can really absorb" the economic and social dislocation as well as the drain on the West's resources produced by those projects.

Military bases: For decades, the West has been an unquestioning host to many of the nation's biggest military test facilities, including two that may have seriously affected the health of the region's residents.

They are the Nevada Test Site, where hundreds of nuclear weapons have been detonated, and the Dugway Proving Ground in Utah, where experi-

Bottled Water Sells Quickly In Georgetown

GEORGETOWN (AP) - Health officials have warned local residents to avoid drinking non-boiled water, but preliminary tests provided no evidence the water has caused a flu-like epidemic.

Bottled water sold quickly in this Central Texas community Friday as health officials tried to pinpoint the common denominator of diarrhea and nausea that has stricken many residents.

The water became an even stronger suspect Thursday as some residents reported relapses. Williamson County Health Director Clarence Skrovan said the relapses provide "more evidence that the city water supply is suspect."

However, City Manager Leo Woods said Friday there was "nothing wrong with our water. All of us here at the city hall are drinking it, and there's nothing wrong with us."

Health investigators from the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta have arrived to study the mystery malaise, and the federal Environmental Protection Agency may also get involved, Skrovan said.

The recommendation to avoid drinking non-boiled water came a few days before Georgetown's Frontier Days, an annual week-long celebration scheduled to begin Monday. Chamber of Commerce officials were not sure how the water problem would affect the celebration.

ments have been conducted with chemical and biological warfare agents.

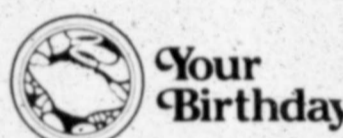

But intense local opposition now has forced the Defense Department to scale down - and possibly abandon - its plans to construct in those two states a massive facility to serve as the base for the mobile intercontinental missile.

"Although much of the estimated $33 billion to $60 billion to be spent on the project presumably would have been a bonanza for the economy of the Western states the region is notably inhospitable to a scheme List warns would have "a major long-term effect" and "a severe economic impact" throughout the West.

After decades of uncomplaining acquiescence to the rest of the nation, the West is dramatically changing. "We're reawakening," says Utah Gov. Scott Matheson. "I don't think we'll see the end of the Sagebrush Rebellion for a long time.

Add Personal Touch With Crocheted Cloth

By Judy Love

Anytime is the right time to add a decorative touch to your home. Even after redecorating, I've found there is always one more item I need.

Often, I find great buys in antique stores or while I'm vacationing and will pack them away for future use. Recently, on one of my treasure hunts, I spotted a beautiful old lace tablecloth. Unfortunately, it wasn't for sale, so I decided to work one of my own.

In my lengthy search for just the right pattern, I came across this crocheted beauty. It's absolutely perfect for a lovely antique table I had refinished while redecorating. It's over a tablecloth for now (as shown), but it can also go over the table by itself to reveal the beauty of the antique wood.

OPEN-WEAVE crocheted tablecloth adds your own personal touch to any decor.

After you've worked this, you'll love the versatile looks you can achieve in any decor. Seasonally, change the look of the room with different arrangements on top of the table. For summer, try an arrangement of fresh flowers to spruce up the room. In the fall, arrange a horn of plenty, and by the time Christmas rolls around, be creative with a winter scene or ornaments you won't be putting up on the tree.

To make the crocheted piece, you will need 11 two-ounce skeins of Bucilla Tempo and a size E crochet hook. Each motif is approximately 12 inches in diameter and the finished cloth is about 56 inches round. The yarn is available in off white, black and pastels.

Instructions may be ordered from Stitches 'n Time, P.O. Box 503, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Ask for leaflet S555 and don't forget to include 50 cents along with your name, address and zip code.

Knit Knacks

Dear Judy Love: I have just finished working a beautiful sweater and the pattern calls for a row of buttons from the same yarn, which I have seen done on other sweaters. However, I have no idea how to do it. Do you have any suggestions? — B.P., Tennessee

Dear B.P.: What a nice idea. I think it makes the sweater look more professional if you've added buttons you've made yourself. One of my favorites is crocheted ball button. Just follow these simple instructions: Ch3, join with a sl st to form a ring. Rnd 1: 6 sc in ring. Rnd 2: 2 sc in each sc — 12 sc. Rnd 3 and 4: 1 sc in each sc. Fill cup with yarn. Dec rnd: *Skip 1 sc, sc in next sc, repeat from * until all closed. Fasten off.

For a flat button you can use plastic rings. The size depends upon whatever size button you want. Work sc around plastic ring; join with sl st in first sc. *Skip next sc, sc in next sc; repeat from * around. Join, end off leaving 10 for sewing. Turn sc to center of ring, thread needle with end. Gather sts tog at center, fasten off. On larger rings, make a "spider-web" in center. Sew onto garment with cross stitch. Best, Judy Love.

Chilled Soup

For Hot Day Mealtimes

By Aileen Claire
NEA Food Editor

Chilled soups are a refreshing way to use many fruits and vegetables. They can prove filling and satisfying as appetizers or complete meals on hot days.

Serve this easy-to-prepare chilled cucumber soup with a salad and your favorite rolls and beverage as a switch from your regular lunch.

You can prepare the soup ahead and leave it in the refrigerator for family or guests to serve themselves at leisure during a busy weekend.

- CHILLED CUCUMBER SOUP
- 1 cup condensed chicken broth
 - 2 tablespoons lemon juice
 - 1/4 cup finely chopped onion
 - 1 teaspoon salt
 - 1/2 teaspoon dried dillweed, crushed
 - Dash garlic powder
 - 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
 - 1 cup sour cream
 - 1 cup yogurt
 - 2 medium cucumbers, peeled and chopped
 - Cucumber slices
 - Lemon slices

In blender, combine broth, lemon juice, onion, salt, dill, garlic and rind. Blend until smooth.

Add sour cream and yogurt. Mix until just blended.

Stir in chopped cucumber. Chill.

Garnish with cucumber and lemon slices. This kitchen-tested recipe makes about 4 1-cup servings.

Here is a hand that helped Eric Robinson and Arthur Moore in this year's Grand National.

South's third-hand opening is one of those horrible bids that is likely to prove costly. It seldom pays to take aggressive action with 4-3-3-3 distribution.

Eric threw in a monkey wrench with his weak three-club jump.

North got into the giveaway spirit by jumping to four hearts with 4-3-3-3 distribution of his own and the defender proceeded to pick his bones down to the bare skeleton.

The spade lead was won in dummy and a heart led. Moore hopped right up with his ace and led the king of clubs. Eric failed to overtake so Arthur led a spade which Eric ruffed.

That made three tricks for the defense. Now Robinson took his ace and queen of clubs while Moore discarded the seven and deuce of diamonds. So Eric gave him a diamond ruff for the sixth defensive trick.

They weren't through. Arthur led a spade. South had to win in his own hand, and couldn't get to dummy to finesse against the queen of hearts.

Plus 400 on a hand where they could make one of something against good defense.

Know What To Do When Accidents Occur At Pools

Eight-year-old Tracy and her mom had arrived early at the community pool. Tracy was busily digging in the sandbox, when she suddenly cut her thumb on a broken soda pop bottle buried in the sand. Tracy's mother grabbed some paper napkins to try and stop the flow of blood, and they both went off in search of a lifeguard to bandage the wound properly. Unfortunately, the lifeguard was late for work that morning. So Tracy and her mother cut short their day in the sun, and wound up at the nearest emergency room instead.

Tracy's accident might not have been avoidable, but the consequences could have been much less serious if Tracy's mom had been better prepared to cope with the situation. Before you head out to the pool or lake this summer, be sure you're ready to deal with cuts, scrapes and scratches by following the guidelines below. After all, who wants to spend a beautiful summer day in a hospital waiting room?

The first aid kit from your glove compartment should be tucked into your beach bag. If you don't have a travel-size first aid kit, you can make up your own with items taken from your at-home stock of wound care supplies. Take along some first aid cleansing wipes, first aid cream, adhesive bandages, sterile gauze pads, adhesive pads or non-stick sterile pads and a roll of first aid tape. Only a few of each item is needed, and you can fit all the items into a small plastic cosmetics bag zippered to keep out dirt or sand.

Use this simple four-step wound care method, developed by medical professionals, to care for most superficial wounds.

- Cleanse the wound to help get rid of dirt and foreign particles. This will help you to evaluate the seriousness of the wound and decide whether it requires professional attention. Check carefully to see that the wound has been washed out thoroughly before going on to the next step.

- Treat superficial wounds with a film of antibiotic ointment or a first aid cream applied gently with a sterile pad to help form a protective shield.

- Cover the wound with a dressing. This will help draw blood and fluids away from the healing wound, protect it from additional injury and lessen the chance of infection.

- Tape should be applied firmly to all four sides of the dressing to help seal out dirt and germs, but not so tightly that it interferes with circulation.

Seek professional attention in these circumstances:

- If the wound is deep, or a puncture wound.
- If there are any foreign particles embedded in the wound.
- If it doesn't stop bleeding after you have applied direct pressure for five minutes with sterile pads.

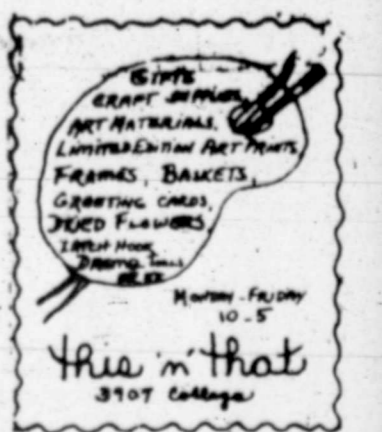

- If the wound is made with a dirty or rusty object, or is an animal bite. (Remember to have every family member's tetanus shot boosted every five years.)

- If the edges of the wound refuse to stay together (a common occurrence when the wound is over a joint) or if the wound is on the face, because stitches may be needed to help minimize scarring.

Be aware of potential sources of injury on the beach. These may include:

- Broken glass, especially around the refreshment stand.
- Wood splinters that could lodge in bare feet.
- Toys left abandoned at poolside that active children could trip over.
- Broken beach toys that may have developed sharp edges.

Natural cheese, up to one-pound size, (except Neufchatel) can be frozen for six weeks to two months if kept unopened in the original wrapper.

Beautify Texas Title Awarded To Longview

KERRVILLE, (AP) — Longview won the Beautify Texas Council's award of excellence Friday during the council's 13th annual convention here.

Mrs. Rita Clements, the governor's wife, explained at a noon luncheon that the award was given for the "most outstanding and most efficient campaign locally" during the past year.

The Northeast Texas town of 55,000 population, formed the Longview Beautification Association in 1979 to involve more people in a campaign previously directed by a 19-member committee created through the chamber of commerce.

The new committee landscaped school sites; has a $200,000 cleanup campaign in the downtown area, and worked with the Men's Garden Club to create a perpetual rose garden.

Longview was one of six Texas cities to win the council's achievement awards. The others were Caddo Mills, under 2,500 population; Elgin, 2,500 to 5,000; Fort Stockton, 5,000 to 10,000; Lake Jackson, 10,000 to 20,000; and San Antonio, more than 60,000.

Dear Abby

Handicapped? No, Just Inconvenienced

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I read you regularly, but I've never written before because I haven't had any problems. However, I must comment about the letter from the woman with multiple sclerosis.

She asked if she should tell her 13-year-old daughter about her condition. I speak from experience as a woman who has had MS for about 23 years. (The first 10 years I didn't even know I had it, as I had no visible symptoms — just fatigue.) I have been in a wheelchair for nine years, but it hasn't curtailed my activities. It's electric, and I zip around everywhere. I drive a van with a wheelchair lift, so I'm fairly mobile.

First, that woman should tell all her children that she has MS without making a big deal out of it. When I was finally diagnosed, our three boys were 2, 5 and 6. I can't recall actually telling them — they just grew up knowing.

The easiest way to explain MS to children, and adults as well, is to explain that the messages from the brain are carried through the spinal cord to the other parts of the body much like the electricity for a lamp is carried from the plug in the wall outlet to the switch and light bulb. The electrical cord has insulation around it, as the spinal cord has myelin.

Multiple sclerosis means "many scars." The insulation on an electric cord should not be cut into at various places, or a short circuit might result. (What child has not been told not to play with electrical plugs and cords?) Multiple sclerosis simply means that there are many scars in the myelin, or insulation, so that the messages from the brain are unable to get through properly to make the body work. A person's particular disabilities depend upon where the scars are, which is why everyone who has MS has different problems. Kids readily grasp this idea, certainly a 13-year-old will!

My husband said from the very onset that I should do only what I WANTED to do and save my energy for family fun. Whatever I want to do, he says, "No problem, honey," and we do it.

He's picked me up five flights in triples in Japan and carried me on and off Mexican airplanes, without once hinting that being married to me was at times inconvenient. Our boys grew up sharing this attitude, and their children will, too. In return she'd better try to keep her weight down. She should also thank God it is she, not her husband, who has MS, because it would be harder for HER to get HIM up and "down" stairs.

As for it being a "heavy burden" for her 13-year-old to help at home, it won't be. By the time my eldest was 8, he could go to the bank, cash a check for $100, do the grocery shopping from my list and come home with the correct change. All my sons can cook, sew, do the laundry, make beds and manage money.

At first I used to lament to myself, "Poor boys, their mother can't play baseball with them," but I soon stopped after seeing how much more self-sufficient they were than other boys. My eldest is now in his second year of college — 2000 miles from home. We all had hysterics when we read his letter describing how the other boys threw their red T-shirts into the washing machine along with their white pants, and they were running around with pink clothes after doing their first laundry at college — away from Mom. Not my Kurt, he'd been doing the family laundry for five years!

Our middle son, Dirk, is a super cook and baker, and the youngest (Clark) does the home repairs — including servicing my wheelchair. If I've made them sound like angels, they aren't. They're just ordinary boys, now 19, 18 and 15. But they're very special to me.

MS has brought our family closer together. We tend to do things NOW rather than postponing them, because things may get worse, we're having our fun while we can. If everyone lived that way, the world would be a happier place.

MS is no fun, but there are worse things. I consider myself very lucky. I am only inconvenienced — not handicapped. BECKY ZELLER IN PORTLAND

DEAR BECKY: Yours is one of the longest — but one of the most heart-warming — letters I've ever printed. Thanks for a real "upper." And God bless.

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Property Is Discussed By Foundation

Directors of the Scurry County Industrial Foundation met briefly this morning to discuss the Lincoln School property which was given to the foundation several years ago.

Lanny Wadleigh reported to the board members attending that there had been some inquiries about the property. However, the foundation had discussed the possibility earlier of the West Texas Rehabilitation Center using facilities there. Bill Warner was asked to contact the officials of the WTRC to determine the status of any plans that organization may be considering.

A report will be made to the board in July.

Search Continues For Lubbock Man

TAOS (AP) The search for a Lubbock, Texas man who was swept into the high waters of the Rio Grande while on a rafting trip with five companions will go on for at least one more day.

Four days of searching has failed to turn up any sign of the man, Michael Mulkey, 28.

But No Specific Targets...

Goals Set At Summit

By R. Gregory Nokes Associated Press Writer VENICE, Italy (AP) The leaders of the seven major industrial democracies who gathered here over the weekend are going home under the mantle of unity, but their accord was reached by a common understanding that no one will be called to account later if their goals go unfulfilled.

The seven nations ostensibly committed themselves to a dramatic increase in the production of non-oil energy by 1990 and a concurrent substantial reduction in their dependence on imported oil.

But unlike the agreements that have resulted from earlier economic summit conferences, the communique published on Monday lacks specific targets for each participating nation.

Without such specifics, such documents provide little guidance for future conduct, as shown this week by the separate summit communique condemning the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan and declaring that the seven nations would never accept such aggression. That statement also lacked specifics on what the participants were prepared to do to back up their agreement, and before the leaders could leave town two of them already were at odds in public about the latest development in Afghanistan.

President Carter told a news conference the withdrawal of some Soviet military units from Afghanistan appeared to affect fewer than 10 percent of the estimated 85,000 Soviet troops there and dismissed it as meaningless. French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, on the other hand, called the Soviet move an important gesture involving significant numbers of troops.

Today about 1/2 half your electricity is made from lignite coal.

And a good thing, too, because our biggest contract for low-cost natural gas (which we also use to make your electricity) expires this year.

This contract has been in effect for almost 20 years. It's helped us keep the cost of electricity lower here than in many other parts of the country.

Next year when we have to start paying much more for natural gas, electricity is going to cost more. There's no way around it.

But your bill won't be as high as it would be if we weren't making about half your electricity with economical, abundant lignite coal from Texas.

Class Aimed At Cutting DWI Offenses

A three-night school aimed at eliminating drunken driving arrests will start Wednesday night in the lobby of the Scurry County

Coliseum annex. The project is administered through the Snyder Council on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse, said council director L.D. Womble. Womble is also project director.

In the class will be about 32 persons, most arrested on misdemeanor drunken driving charges. Attendance for them is mandatory through court order, but Womble added the class is open to the public.

The purpose of the program, said Womble, is to prevent DWIs, to prevent further accidents.

Jury Deciding Punishment

A seven-man, five-woman jury was deliberating punishment late this morning in the drunken driving trial of Henry Delton Chastain.

Chastain, a Lubbock man, was arrested here last March on a driving while intoxicated charge, and went on trial Monday morning in 132nd District Court. A guilty verdict was returned in the case about 10:30 a.m. today.

Serving on the jury are Laylan Musick, Mayden Chapman, Larry Anderson, Earl Clinkenbeard, Mary Lou Farris, Mrs. Winifred McCartney, Mrs. Tommy Guynes, Charlene Merritt, J.M. Davis, Roy Lee Beasley, Sam Floyd, and Ben Warton.

Kennedy Camp Wins On Nuclear-Ban Issue

By LEE BYRD
Associated Press Writer
Sen. Edward M. Kennedy finally has won his own corner of the 1980 Democratic platform, but President Carter quickly made it clear that his rival's plank on nuclear energy may be worth no more than the heat at would throw from a wood-burning stove.

Interrupting its drumroll for Carter on issue after issue, the Democratic Platform Committee meeting in Washington threw one Kennedy's way on Monday by unanimously calling for the virtual elimination of nuclear power plants.

Though that represented a clear, if solitary, victory for the Massachusetts senator, the Carter camp got behind the plank after the Kennedy minority agreed to softer language which set no timetable for a nuclear energy phaseout. But the proposal, for which the panel broke into long applause upon the final vote, did in fact declare that "as alternate fuels become available, we will retire nuclear power plants in an orderly manner."

Given the lack of a deadline, the president's delegates might just as comfortably have agreed to windmills on the moon when practicable. For while Kennedy spokesman Jim Flug was insisting that "We got what we wanted," the reality of the matter had the president himself signing off on a call for more, not less, nuclear energy.

Possibilities with a polyp

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB: Recently at a clinic I had a colon X-ray. They found two small polyps. I looked polyp up in the dictionary and it said a tumor. The doctor wants to see me again in two months. I detest colon X-rays as I was sore for a week afterward, not to mention all the procedures during and after the X-rays. Is a polyp likely to become cancer?

I'm a 72-year-old woman and I do not want to go through all this again but neither do I want to neglect something that could turn into cancer. DEAR READER: Yes, a polyp is a tumor or lump that grows in the lining of the digestive system or other cavities—in this case, the lining of the colon or rectal area. Many of these are found on a routine examination such as an X-ray of the colon as you had. They may cause no symptoms at all. Others, located in the rectal area, may be large enough to interfere with elimination. Sometimes a polyp will cause bleeding.

Without being able to see the polyp directly or being able to take it out and look at sections under the microscope, it's sometimes very difficult to know exactly what the nature of that polyp is. There is considerable professional disagreement about polyps. But, in general, some are benign and do not become malignant while other types have a much greater likelihood of becoming cancer.

If a polyp is low enough in the colon or rectum where it can be visualized and approached through a proctosigmoidoscope, it can simply be removed. That, of course, affords the opportunity to examine the tissue under the microscope so it can be established clearly what one is dealing with.

If the polyp is beyond the reach of the proctosigmoidoscope and small, the doctor may choose to observe it for a while to see if there is any change. If it shows changes, he would probably want to remove it.

There is enough possibility for some polyps to become cancerous that I think it is very important for you to do exactly as your doctor asks you to do. I realize you don't like the examination but it's far preferable to the procedure you'd have to undergo if you developed invasive cancer of the colon. After all, cancer of the colon is one of the most common causes of cancer deaths in the American population. A lot of these can be completely cured if they are detected early enough.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 14-6, Cancer: A Fact of Life. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. This issue will give you some basic information about cancers, including the terms that doctors often use and what to expect about spread.

Now I don't wish to alarm you. There are many people who have a polyp in the colon or rectum and the polyp never becomes malignant. I hope that will be true in your case. But at the same time, you don't want to overlook the opportunity to take early action if needed, because that can save your life and help you avoid a lot of uncomfortable situations.

McEnroe Taking It Easy

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) - John McEnroe conquered Butch Walts on a slippery surface to move into the second round of the Wimbledon men's singles and then talked of his new attitude. "I've decided to come here and try to look relaxed no matter what," the 21-year-old New Yorker said after carving out a straightforward 6-3, 6-3, 6-0 victory Monday.

"It'll have to be a really bad call before I complain," added McEnroe, who is trying to play down his image as the bad boy of tennis. "I'm determined that I'm not going to worry about a few calls. I'm feeling good, better than I've done recently and maybe I can go pretty far."

McEnroe is seeded No. 2, behind defending champion Bjorn Borg of Sweden, who is bidding for his fifth straight Wimbledon title.

Rain wrecked the opening day's program, with only a handful of the men's singles first round matches completed.

Borg was one of the early winners, downing 32-year-old Egyptian Ismail El Shafei 6-3, 6-4, 6-4 in a match interrupted for 2½ hours.

Among the men who beat the weather to win through to the second round were third-seeded Jimmy Connors, a 6-0, 6-3, 6-1 winner over Britain's Richard Lewis, and fourth-seeded Vitas Gerulaitis who downed Stefan Simonsson of Sweden 6-0, 6-4, 6-2.

Brian Gottfried, who is unseeded for the first time in his years, beat Australian Chris Kachel 7-5, 6-3, 6-1.

McEnroe was never expected by his compatriot, Walts, and said afterwards: "That wasn't one of his better matches. I expected more, but it's not really his sort of service."

McEnroe, who is seeded to go against Connors in the semifinal of the world's leading grass court tournament, played with his ankle taped, but denied the long-standing injury was still troubling him.

"It's getting better," he disclosed. "I'm just wearing tape so I don't turn it over."

Borg admitted he was a little scared by the slippery conditions at the start of his match with the Egyptian.

"When you're running you felt you could slip," he added. "But it wasn't really the major problem."

The normally reserved champion was in a relaxed mood and he joked with reporters. He said he felt under less pressure this year than last year, when he was shooting for his fourth Wimbledon title.

"There was pressure on me then because no one had achieved that in modern tennis. I don't feel it now," he explained.

Jr. Tour Here For Two Days

West Texas Chapter of the PGA Junior Tour comes to Snyder Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

Boys and girls ages 12-18 who have not graduated from high school are eligible to compete in the 18-hole tournaments.

Wednesday, the tour will be at Western Texas College course. Thursday, it moves to Snyder Country Club.

Registration for the tournaments - an individual may participate in both - will be at 8 o'clock each morning at the respective tourney site. Tee off times will be at 9. Registration fee is $4 per golfer per tournament.

There will be three age brackets: 12-13, 14-15 and 16-18. Girls will compete with the boys, but will be allowed to use the ladies markers.

Trophies will be awarded to the first three places in each age group.

Bracket winners in the tour are eligible to advance to the Tournament of Champions, to be held Aug. 13-14 at Ranchland Hills Country Club.

The tour leaves Snyder after Thursday and moves to the San Angelo Country Club for the Masters Tournament. Friday's tournament there, under the direction of former Snyder pro Don Bryant, is also open to all area youth between the ages of 12-18.

In conjunction with Thursday's tour at Snyder Country Club course, will be qualifying for the North

Sutcliffe Jumps Back; Astros Feel The Punch

HOUSTON (AP) - When Los Angeles pitcher Rick Sutcliffe fizzled early this season after earning National League Rookie of the Year honors in 1979, two people didn't give up.

Sutcliffe and LA Manager Tommy Lasorda.

The confidence of both player and manager showed Monday night when Lasorda kept Sutcliffe on the mound in the ninth inning to complete his first game since Sept. 30, 1979, a three-hit 3-0 shutout of the Houston

Astros.

"It was a big boost to my confidence for Tommy to give the ball to me in a big game like this," said Sutcliffe, who went into the game with a 1-4 record and 7.04 earned run average. "It showed he hasn't given up on me and I certainly haven't given up on myself."

Challenging batters as he did a year ago, Sutcliffe dispensed a triple and single to Joe Morgan and a double to Cesar Cedeno in blanking the Astros, who lost their second straight game after winning 14 in a row at home.

Sutcliffe also was aggressive with the bat, clubbing a two-run single in the Dodgers' three-run fifth inning that iced the first game in an important three-game series.

Los Angeles' big fifth inning offensive ended a rare starting assignment for Houston's Joaquin Andujar, who pitched four perfect innings before yielding a lead off single to Steve Garvey in the fifth.

Andujar, 0-3, then walked ed Ron Cey and Bill Russell drove him home with his 12th double of the season. Andujar continued to lose control; walking Steve Yeager, who trotted home along with Russell on Sutcliffe's single up the middle.

The Astros, who came out of the game with a two-game lead over the Dodgers in the National League Western Division, credited Sutcliffe with an outstanding performance but failed to panic.

"This series is critical to Los Angeles, not us," Morgan said.

"We are in first place. It is the Dodgers who have to catch us."

Oglesby Takes UTSA Position

LUBBOCK (AP) - Gerald "Corky" Oglesby resigned Monday as track coach at Texas Tech University to accept a position at the University of Texas at San Antonio.

Tech Athletic Director Dick Tamburo said Oglesby's resignation becomes effective July 31.

Oglesby served as assistant basketball coach from 1969 until 1973, when he was named assistant track coach in 1975.

At UT-San Antonio, he will coordinate recruiting in all sports and coach the cross country and outdoor track teams.

The four-point, no-add scoring system will be used in all brackets, and the nine-point tie breaker will be used in all matches. The 15-minute default will be strictly enforced.

Dodgers Won't See Richard

HOUSTON (AP) - J.R. Richard holds 14 consecutive victories over the Los Angeles Dodgers, but the California club won't have to worry about him during its National League baseball series with the Houston Astros that extends through Wednesday.

Richard, owner of five straight victories and a 9-3 record with a 1.51 earned run average, missed a rotation start the first time in several years over the weekend because of a sore arm.

McCloskey Marks 25th Year As State Farm Insurance Agent

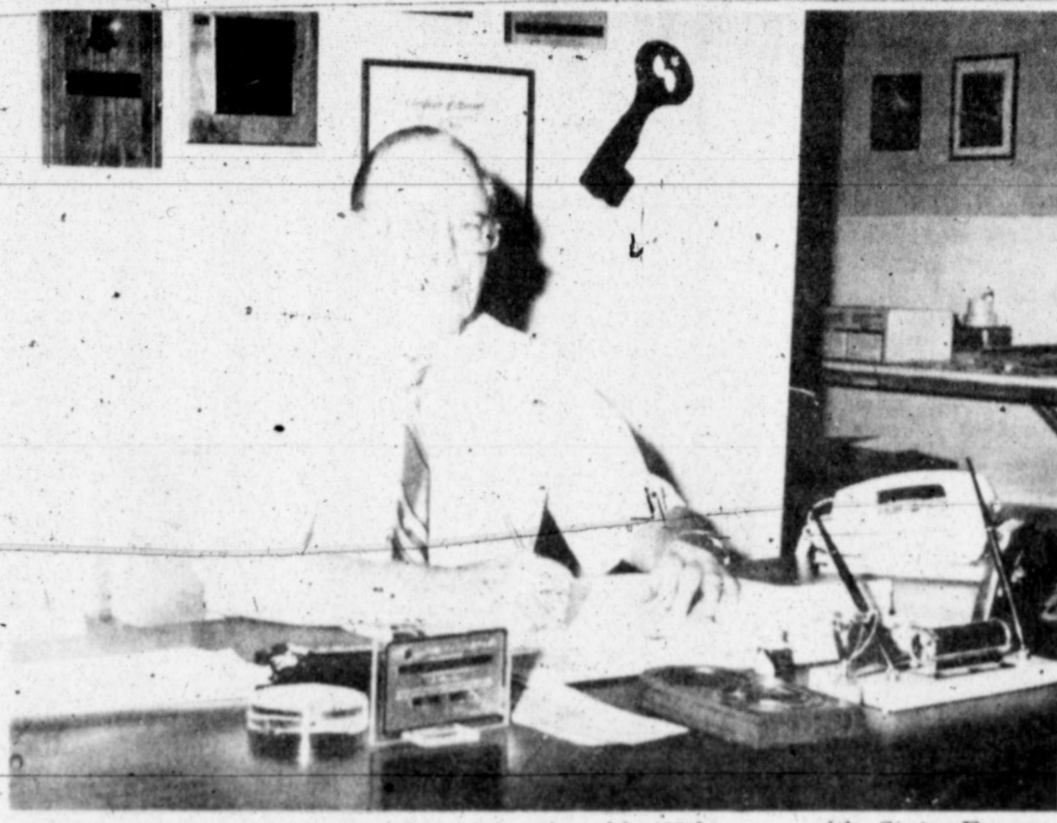

Roy J. McCloskey, local State Farm Agent, is completing 25 years with the State Farm Insurance Companies this month, 24 of them here in Snyder.

During these 24 years in Snyder he has developed one of the most successful State Farm Agencies in the West Texas Area. From the beginning he has strived to give the best possible service to his clients, providing dependable and friendly service for their insurance needs.

Prior to entering the field of insurance 25 years ago, Roy had developed a varied background of training and experience. He is a graduate of Arkansas State University, in Jonesboro, with a B.S. degree in education. Later he completed graduate courses in business and economics at Lake Forest University in Illinois.

During World War II, Roy served with the Navy in the Mediterranean Theatre. He was recalled in 1950 to serve as Military Training Officer of the 9th Naval District, where he supervised the training for 140 surface units in the 9-state area. After coming to Snyder, he continued to be active with the Naval Reserve Program in Abilene and served several years as commanding officer of the Mobilization Unit there.

McCloskey has been active during his years in Snyder in a number of community activities. Some of these include the Heart Association, Goodfellows, Community Concert Association and the Kiwanis. He has served as president of the Noon Kiwanis Club and as secretary-treasurer for 13

He has been elected to serve as LL Governor of Division 22 for the year 1980-81. He is also a member of the First Baptist Church.

McCloskey and his wife, Elizabeth, who is a teacher in the Snyder Public Schools, have three children, Rozanne of Atlanta, Ga., Beth of Independence, Mo., and John of Memphis, Tex.

Come by and visit with Roy and let him help you with your insurance needs for your car, home, health, life and retirement annuities, disability income, mortgage cancellation and bonds. Remember "Like a good neighbor—State Farm is there." Let Roy be your good neighbor. Go by 3904 College or call 573-7266.

Bud's Office Supply Can Even Help With Your Wedding Needs

June is the traditional wedding month and Bud's Office Supply, located in the Snyder Shopping Center, can help with many of your wedding needs.

Just a few of the many wedding accessories that can be found at Bud's are: table covers, napkins, plates, thank you notes, invitations, announcements, pens, wedding book, and centerpieces. They also have 25th and 50th anniversary books as well as many styles of photo albums.

For those of us who don't have a wedding in sight this month, Bud's has office supplies for every need.

For example, they stock paper for 3M dry copying machines and paper for Xerox and other plain paper copiers. They also stock paper and toner for several other brands of copiers. And Bud says, "If we don't have your particular brand's supplies, we can order them."

A new item now in stock is blank cassette tapes, including the mini cassette tapes. Remember that Bud's stocks the revolutionary Eraser-mate pens and refills that let you erase your ball point writing.

Of course keep in mind that Bud's is the place to go for desks, chairs, files, calculators and typewriters, as well as all types of office supplies.

Go by and view the selection of wall clocks and travel alarm clocks that make perfect gifts. And to make the long summer days shorter for your youngster, Bud's has chalk boards, erasable marker boards, Q-Boards, and regular bulletin boards.

Bud's Office Supply is the complete office supply store - and they are much more. Drop in and browse. You'll be glad you did.
