Draft Plan Opponents Shifting Fight From Congress To Court

WASHINGTON (AP)—Opponents of President Carter's plan to renew draft registration, possibly as early as July 21, shifted their fight today from Congress to the courts.

The American Civil Liberties Union filed suit in U.S. District Court seeking to have the registration plan declared unconstitutional sex discrimination against men.

The suit contends that putting the burden only on men violates the Constitution's Fifth Amendment guarantee of due process under the law.

"We think this lawsuit is the best way to stop draft registration entirely," ACLU Executive Director

Ira Glasser told reporters. "We believe that under current rulings on sex discrimination by the U.S. Supreme Court, draft registration for men only is unconstitutional."

Isabelle Katz Pinzler, director of ACLU's Women's Rights Project, said: "I assume they're (the issues) are going to be in the Supreme Court before very long."

local post offices that week and all men born in 1961 would be required to register the following week. The maximum penalty for failing to register is five years in prison and a $10,000 fine, but no judge has ever imposed the maximum.

Further congressional action would be needed to actually draft those being registered.

Snyderite Drowns In Big Bend Park

David Wayne Hill, 18, of Snyder drowned Wednesday afternoon while swimming in the Rio Grande near Hot Springs in Big Bend National Park.

He was a member of a group of young people from Calvary Baptist Church on an outing in the park. The group had left Snyder on Monday.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Hill, 2810 Ave. L.

The group was swimming near Hot Springs at the Southeast corner of the sprawling park when young Hill disappeared shortly before 4 p.m., said Russell Berry, park ranger.

"The body was recovered at 5:13 by park rangers who used drag lines to search the river. Members of the group had been swimming near a deep hole that the victim went into. The body was found at that location," Berry said.

"He wasn't exploring it (the hole). They didn't know it was there. He got into trouble when he hit the hole."

Berry said the river was muddy and was running between 1 1/2 and 2 feet, a foot or more below normal June levels.

Church. The Rev. Larry McAden, pastor, who accompanied the group on the outing, will officiate. Assisting will be the Rev. Glenn Border, a former pastor. Bell-Seale Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

In addition to the parents, survivors include three sisters, Deanna Dunn of Midland, Doris Mitchell of Arlington and Gracie Aye of Springfield, Mo.; three brothers, Phillip Hill of Midland, Travis and Levi Hill, both of Snyder; the maternal grandmother, Mrs. Mary Lee McInnis of Eunice, N.M., and the paternal grandmother, Mrs. Levi Hill of San Angelo.

Heat Wave Sears State

Temperatures well above the 100-degree mark kept Texans mopping their brows Wednesday, and Snyder was no exception.

For the second day in a row, the official reading here reached 103 degrees.

Forecasts indicated little hope for a respite within the next few days, as the state recorded its first death directly attributed to the heat.

An elderly Dallas man, Clyde Millican, 78, died of heatstroke, the Dallas County medical examiner reported.

Meanwhile, medical examiners in Fort Worth were running tests to determine if heat killed Odell Lang, who collapsed while doing remodeling Wednesday afternoon. Lang, 41, died at about 5 p.m. and it was reported that his body temperature was 106 degrees when he was admitted to a hospital.

Dallas had a high reading of 109 degrees Wednesday. However, the high mark was reported at Wichita Falls, where a reading of 114 degrees set a new record. It was the eighth day in a row for the temperature to go above the 100-degree mark in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

Snyder had a reading of 100 degrees Monday and 103 degrees Tuesday preceding Wednesday's 103.

The hot weather kept city water demands high. The Snyder treatment plant was operating at capacity on a 24-hour per day basis. Supplies are adequate, but the heavy demand is taxing treatment and distribution facilities as lawn irrigation

Kremlin Rejects Carter Proposal

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union rejected President Carter's renewed proposal for a "transitional arrangement" to end the fighting in Afghanistan, calling it an attempt at "selfish" American interference in another country's affairs.

The commentary Wednesday by the official Tass news agency was the first Kremlin response to Carter's proposal, made Tuesday during a stop in Belgrade, Yugoslavia.

Carter called for a "transitional arrangement" in Afghanistan which might include the deployment of a neutral, international peacekeeping force - if the Soviet Union withdrew its troops.

The sharply negative Soviet response apparently signaled that the Kremlin wants to maintain its grip on the Afghan regime of Babrak Karmal, installed after Moscow began pouring troops into Afghanistan in December to crush opposition from anti-government Moslem rebels.

One American official, who declined to be identified, said the United States has learned that Moscow increased the number of Soviet troops in Afghanistan from 85,000 to more than 100,000 before its surprise announcement last Sunday of a troop withdrawal.

Tass charged that Carter's proposal, a reiteration of a suggestion he made in February, was "deliberately vague" and designed to "avoid giving an answer to the very precise and constructive proposals" offered by Afghanistan on May 14.

Ask Us

Q—What can be done about my neighbor throwing trash over his backyard fence into the alleyway? Is it against the law?

A—Although it is against a city ordinance, the person committing the offense almost has to be spotted doing it. Proof of ownership in regard to trash is difficult to prove, said City Manager John Gayle. However, charges can be filed. Charges are handled and processed through the police station and corporation court. In such cases, persons are generally given a specified time in which to clean up the trash, and the fine is $200 per day for each day the trash is not cleaned up.

The SDN Column

We all should know by now that we learn from experience, that is, if we listen, and perhaps the television networks have been listening.

When the past TV season ended, two major characters in controversial shows were left in suspense. There's old J.R. of Dallas (Larry Hagman), who was shot and then there is Jessica Tate (Katherine Helmond) of Soap, who appeared to be on her death bed.

Everybody expects to see J.R. back in his same despicable role when the new season begins.

And we are told for a certainty that modern medicine triumphed at the last minute—after the cameras were silenced—and that Jessica did survive a seemingly hopeless situation in the hospital.

So, how did the TV people learn this method of creating suspense? We know. They got it from the old-time western serials that you could see for a dime every Saturday in motion picture theaters throughout the country.

Each chapter ended in crisis. Either the hero, heroine or some other "good guy" was always in the grips of tragedy when a week's episode reached its conclusion. The stage coach was headed over the cliff, the bad guys had the good guys hopelessly pinned down in a gunfight, or some other alarming situation prevailed.

Then, the following weekend, the first scenes would show how the seemingly unavoidable tragedy of the previous week was averted at the last minute, usually as the result of a spectacular move by the hero.

That's the history the TV people draw upon to whet the appetites of viewers these days, and it seems to be working.

But it is refreshing to learn that some of the TV people may be learning from their very own experiences. It was good news to us when we heard that Roger Staubach and John Madden would become regular commentators for professional football games on CBS this year. Madden, whose personality as an analyst on the air is far superior to the image he projected as a coach, reportedly will replace Paul Hornung. In our opinion, it is a good move. Somehow we never could put much stock in the analysis presented by a man who couldn't pronounce Charlie Waters' name.

Extraordinary Efforts To Kill Shah Reported

By The Associated Press

Iran and Libya are making "extraordinary efforts, fit only for fiction movies" in attempts to assassinate the deposed shah, an Egyptian official said today. Meanwhile, Iranian firing squads executed five more people, including a Jewish man, convicted of having sexual affairs with Moslem and Christian women.

Writing in Egypt's semi-official Al Ahram newspaper, Rashad Roushdy, an assistant to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, said "The Libyan and Iranian revolutionary regimes are in agreement.

Three More In Race For July 4th Queen

Three more candidates for Independence Day Queen have been nominated, making a total of six in the race.

Crowning of the queen will be one of the features on the program for the annual July 4th Celebration in Towle Memorial Park. It will take place on the evening of Independence day, just prior to the fireworks display, the closing feature on the program.

Latest nominees for queen are Virginia Whitson, sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Snyder; Martha Jane Beavers, sponsored by the Business and Professional Women's Club; and Cathey Cybert, sponsored by the Lucky 13 Club.

The winner in the queen's race will be determined by the number of July 4th tickets sold by sponsoring organizations. The tickets, which actually are receipts for donations, are sold each year to help pay for the fireworks display, which is one of the biggest in the region each year.

Other candidates for queen announced earlier are June Deen, sponsored by the Scurry County Senior Center and RSVP; Stephanie Weaver, sponsored by the 20th Century Club, and Melanie Jarrell, sponsored by the Lions Club.

Any organization can sponsor a queen by contacting the chamber of commerce and listing a nominee and accepting a supply of July 4th tickets. Although Friday, July 4th, will be the big day for the celebration, planned activities will spread over a three-day period, beginning on the evening of Thursday, July 3, when the arts and crafts show will be open. The tennis tournament and tractor pull will continue through Saturday, July 5.

Conservation Said Crucial

AUSTIN (AP)—Energy conservation can free America from its dependence on foreign oil and help families caught in "heat-or-eat" financial squeezes, says a legislative researcher.

Eugene Barfield of the National Conference of State Legislatures told a Senate committee Wednesday middle-income families are spending 13 cents of every $1 on energy and the tab for imported oil is expected to exceed $60 billion this year.

Win New Right To Sue

WASHINGTON (AP)—People who believe they've been wronged by state or local governments have won a broad, new right to sue.

The Supreme Court says those people can use an 1871 civil rights law to try to collect damages for some governmental act they contend violated a legal right—any right—protected by federal law.

The 6-3 decision announced Wednesday represents the first time the court has interpreted the much-used 1871 law to allow suits other than those charging a denial of constitutionally or legally guaranteed "equal protection."

fund for mars calls

Suppose there was a message from space that nobody on Earth bothered to answer? Something like that is a distinct possibility, although it involves not communication from little green aliens out Orion way but man's own automated emissary to neighboring Mars, Viking I. There is no problem with the operation of the spacecraft. Viking has been radioing back information from the Martian surface for four years and, by the best current estimates, could continue to do so for another decade. There is, however, with the receipt of the information streaming back. Most of it is being stored raw, unstudied and unevaluated for what it may reveal about one of the closest worlds to our own. It is not due to lack of interest but of funds. The National Aeronautics and Space Administration, which spent a billion public dollars getting Viking to Mars, doesn't have enough left in the teapot to process the craft's reports. So most of them are going straight into storage in the computer banks. The situation is somewhat like having invited calls at any time, and then being unable to take them because the phone bill can't be paid. An appalling situation in the view of some members of the public, who have decided that if public funds can't be found to pay the bill, they'll raise them privately. For this purpose, a Viking Fund has been set up to receive contributions, receipts to be forwarded to NASA for continuing analysis of the messages from Mars. The project is under the direction of the San Francisco branch of the American Astronautical Society and contributions may be addressed to the society at P.O. Box 7205, Menlo Park, Calif. 94025. Checks should be made out to the Viking Fund. By mid-June, some $40,000 had been received, a long way from the initial goal of $1 million (to place that in perspective, it is one-tenth of one percent of what was spent in putting Viking on Mars) but that doesn't discourage the sponsors, who say they are in this for the long run. After an initially cool response to the project, NASA, whose charter makes provision for private as well as government funding, is warming up to the prospects. There are hopes for a ceremony later this summer, possibly at the Smithsonian Institution's Air and Space Museum in Washington, formalizing the relationship. It could be only the start of greater things, according to one articulate backer of the drive, science fiction writer-editor Ben Bova. Bova, who has observed that Americans annually spend more on pizza—$7.5 billion—than on the entire space program, sees the Viking Fund as potentially launching a new phase of collaborative projects leading to private operations in space. Well, possibly. We'll see what the future holds—in addition to pizza. Meanwhile, right here and now the relatively modest Viking campaign holds promise that at least the phone will be answered for the messages coming from Mars.

no time to sulk

Maybe it's time for some top sergeant talk about "recession." With a dozen daily reminders of how our "economy is back-sliding" a lot of Americans are sulking when they should be job hunting. Unemployment 7.8 percent; 8.2 million American workers not working. Labor leaders and others demand that "the government must be something to create jobs." The government has done something. The CETA program was created specifically to train the jobless and to create public service jobs for them. There are 69,000 of those jobs going begging. Big city cab companies are going out of business because they can't hire enough drivers with a guarantee of $200 a week. Metropolitan newspapers bulge with job opportunities; page after page of "help wanted" ads. For graduates in technical subjects—petroleum, public utilities, transportation and electrical—there are eight percent more job openings this year than last. Meanwhile our government's department of labor whines that the recession is becoming a depression. Horsefeathers! With proper deference to those workers who have been displaced, let's face it: The recession is mostly if, cars and houses and related industries. They're having it bad because they've had it too good. Car dealers have been spoiled rotten by an era when they could forget demonstration rides, neglect salesmanship, keep customers waiting in line for months for new cars at inflated prices. House builders and sellers also. They've been turning every available pasture into a sub-division. Sub-contractors have been so busy they have arrogantly refused competitive bidding. Poor quality workmanship has gone unchallenged by contractors who don't dare offend the limited labor pool. And, Americans, there is no way that our country can go on building 2 million houses every year—building 11, 12, 13 million new cars every year—without eventually glutting the market and having to take time out so that demand can catch up with this over-supply. Yet the headlines make it sound like doomsday. "Housing construction down fourth consecutive month." "Car sales slowest in five years."

Headlines, like that tend to depress the rest of our economy, tend to discourage business investment... tend to spread the impression that Uncle Sam is sick, when in fact he is just over-fat. He's lost his appetite for more cars and more houses—momentarily. (C) 1980, Los Angeles Times Syndicate million economic aid package for the government of Nicaragua. The House had, earlier, rejected military aid for that country. While opposing United States military aid to this Central American Country, I supported economic aid to Nicaragua because I feel that this aid, in the long run, in the best interest of our nation. Opponents of the Nicaraguan aid bill argued that the United States should not supply aid to the alleged "communist regime" in that country. In my opinion, there are definite leftist leanings in the Nicaraguan government; however, there is still a chance that a democratic society will form in that nation, the largest country in Central America. Though this chance may be a slim one, I feel that it is vitally important that the United States take this risk because the potential benefits of preventing the spread of Marxism to Nicaragua are much more important than the possible "loss" of the aid funds. Others are also helping. Mexico and Venezuela are giving more monetary aid to Nicaragua than we are. In light of the increasingly expansionist attitudes of Cuba's Fidel Castro, it is extremely crucial that we take every opportunity to prevent the spread of communism to other areas. If we do not take a chance on Nicaragua by giving them this aid, we stand the entirely realistic threat of allowing communism to develop throughout Central America—and very possibly—into Mexico. This aid could very well be just what is needed to stem the tide. Spokesmen in Nicaragua, for the church, the press, businessmen, and opposition parties to the Sandinistas have told the Congress that the $75 million aid loan from the United States is the single most important contribution in the effort toward the establishment of political liberty in Nicaragua, as well as to improving relations between our two countries. Our policy of friendly diplomacy stands to enhance the image of the United States in the eyes of all Latin America nations at a time when American prestige in foreign capitals is in dire need of this improvement. In the future, Latin America will probably be the most important area of the world to the United States. This region has the faster-growing population in the world, and they buy more American products than any other area. They also sell more of their products to us than any other segment of nations. Admittedly, the chances of a free society in Nicaragua are not as good as we would like, but, at present, opposition parties in that nation still speak out. Also, the press still enjoys a measure of freedom, and the strong middle class remains an important factor in maintaining internal stability and democratic sentiments. The general conclusion of Congress is that most of the people in Nicaragua do not want to be dominated by Cuba or the Soviet Union. They want to live in a free society, and I am convinced that this gesture of aid from the United States is the proper move in order to assist the people of Nicaragua at this critical time of decision and to assure a more favorable position for the United States in our relations with Central America.

Food that is basic to health, basic to nonsense, and dietary agnosticism are the topics of two columns in the latest issue of Runner's World. Runners are, if anything, a little more keenly interested in the subject of food than the average person. They wonder what they should eat, what they should not eat, and they often speak of the mystical experience of "listening to their bodies" and having their bodies tell them what they should eat. Derek Clayton, however, thinks too much emphasis has been placed on the subject of food. Clayton, by the way has held for the past 13 years, or so the world's record time in the marathon run. Clayton writes, "Much of the literature I have read about diet reminds me of stories I have read about primitive African tribes. Members of some of these tribes believe that eating the heart of a lion will make them braver, or that by eating the legs of a lion, This, of course, is basic nonsense. Basic nonsense, huh? That sounds find until Clayton notes later on in his column that during his peak training he took pills of vitamins C and E. I wonder how necessary that was. Then there is Dr. George Sheehan, a kind of guru doctor among runners, and a good runner himself. In his column he embraces what he calls dietary agnosticism. "I am a dietary agnostic," he writes. "I am not ready to join in any of the holy wars being fought by the followers of the new religions on food intake. I have a continuing doubt about the existence of a perfect diet. I am unwilling, on the available evidence, to commit myself to any single doctrine on nutrition. Weaving his way through the Pritikin diet, the Atkins diet, and the Stillman diet, Sheehan notes there is something that can be said both for and against them. Sheehan said an official in the Department of Agriculture told him more is known about the proper feeding of animals than of humans. He said it is likely to take another 20 to 30 years to fill in the gaps concerning human nutrition. So the debates rage on, the holy wars continue, and still runners wonder what to eat.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Long after the volcanic ash from the Mount St. Helens eruptions is cleaned up, fallout will likely remain in the form of hundreds of millions—if not billions—of dollars in insurance claims. State and federal officials are just starting to assess the extent of the damage and insurance companies are just starting to process what is sure to become a flood of claims. While state officials are hopeful that all claims will be settled quickly, they concede that thousands of lawsuits may eventually be filed against insurers. The man in the middle is Richard Marquardt, insurance commissioner for the state of Washington. In a recent telephone interview from his Olympic office, Marquardt was optimistic that the insurers will settle claims quickly and fairly. "We have been meeting almost daily with the big insurers," he said. "The feeling I get is that in probably 80 percent of the incident, the insurance companies will promptly pay. The other 20 percent will be those cases where the claimant will have to prove that the damage was caused by Mount St. Helens. At a time like this, insurance companies are plagued by phony claims. Many more problems would arise had not the state's standard homeowner policy been rewritten four years ago; among the changes was the inclusion of coverage for volcanic activity. Since homeowner policies are usually renewed every year or two, most of them now cover volcano damage. "The real problem,"

Marquardt continued, "is going to be caused by the fact that this volcanic activity is continuing. The first major blow-up was clearly an 'explosion' within the meaning of insurance policies. But in these later and continuing incidents, which are technically further explosions and which are 'venting'? It will be that an auto damaged by dust from the continued venting is not covered under most standard policies. There are a lot of gray areas that will end up as court tests. There is more potential for conflict over types of insurance other than homeowner and auto. For instance, farmers in eastern Washington have suffered extensive crop damage. Their crops are insured against loss from frost and flood. But what about crop loss from volcanic ash? Many Washington companies have business-interruption insurance. But often these policies have narrow restrictions on the extent of coverage. Most say nothing about volcanoes. Will insurers pay on these policies? The insurance industry's side is voiced by Donald Yocom, a claims vice president for Safco, a major underwriter in the Northwest. In a recent interview, he asked, "How far does liability extend? There were no shock waves in Spokane, and the eastern part of the state is normally windy and dusty. So at what point does the ash become normal dust?" He also raised the question of assumption of risk: "If drivers recognize they shouldn't drive because the ash could harm engines, is it then an accident if they drive and harm their engines?" But Marquardt thinks most insurance companies will be generous in granting benefits—if for no other reason than competitive pressure within the industry. "Insurance is a most competitive business," he points out. "If one company pays off Mount St. Helens claims and another doesn't, what do you think is going to happen to that company when it comes time to renew its policy holders? For all intents and purposes, if one pays they all will. Another eruption-caused problem facing Washington state officials is redrawing property lines, which are usually defined in terms of geographical landmarks. In an area of several hundred square miles, many landmarks have simply ceased to exist. Aztec tribesmen first found gold when they were digging the foundations for a pyramid that glorified Montezuma.

In-Laws Factor In Successful Marriages

COLLEGE STATION. People don't just marry each other - they marry into a family and all its influences, says Diane Welch, a family life education specialist.

A critical factor to the success of the new couples' relationships is how well each gets along with the others' family, she points out.

Mrs. Welch is with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System. There are some factors which can cause problems, and newly married couples should know what to expect, she explains.

First, parents may still want to "parent." They have put a large amount of time, money, energy and self into child-rearing, and they aren't always ready to give up the role.

Expectations of what the newlyweds "should do" can bring confusion and conflict.

In addition, one or both persons in the new marriage may still depend on their parents for emotional and/or financial support or for decision-making help, the specialist continues.

A mate can resent this, and trouble may result.

In other cases, individuals may have had poor relationships with their own parents and may transfer these feelings and/or hostilities to their in-laws.

When this occurs, self-examination and re-orientation of attitudes may help.

Finally, each family over the years has developed its own styles of thinking, believing, and behaving, she adds.

It may take time for each family and each of the newly married partners to get used to the others' habits and ways.

On the other hand, this "in-law" thing can be positive and rewarding with happy and meaningful in-law relationships, Mrs. Welch suggests.

Here are some ideas for a positive approach:

Remember parents are still parents and probably have a strong emotional tie to their children. They love your spouse and your spouse loves them.

There is always a fear of rejection in a new relationship. Enter it with the attitude of acceptance.

Forget the negative connotation of "in-laws" and expect to see positive qualities.

Share the responsibility of maintaining contacts with both sides of the family with your mate. Try to equalize involvement.

Take an adult attitude towards problem-solving. Listen to advice and recommendations but make decisions and work out

Common Sense Cooking

By RUTH McDANIEL

Dear Mrs. McDaniel: Just finished making sweetened condensed milk from your recipe column in the Columbus Telegram. At 79c a can I'm sure glad I got it. I can make it myself so cheap. It turned out perfect. I used to have a Key Lime Pie recipe using it, but mislaid it. I enjoy all your recipes so much. I'm hoping you have a good recipe for Key Lime Pie. Thanks.

Lois T. Thanks, Lois. I've had so many responses from this recipe. I'm going to repeat it for those who missed it.

HOME MADE SWEETENED CONDENSED MILK

You can make sweetened condensed milk in your kitchen using powdered milk. It's so easy and inexpensive! The "store bought" kind is made by evaporating whole milk and sugar till it's thick and creamy. It's used in many tasty desserts. It makes about the same amount as the "tinned and" can be used in any recipe calling for Sweetened Condensed Milk. It costs just a fraction of what it costs to buy in the store. Keeps several weeks in the refrigerator.

1 cup Instant Nonfat Milk
1 1/3 cup boiling water
3 Tbsp. melted butter or margarine
1/4 cup sugar
pinch of salt
Put in blender and process till smooth.

KEY LIME PIE

1 1/2 c. sweetened condensed milk
1/2 c. lime juice
2 eggs, separated
1 Tbsp. grated lime rind
Blend condensed milk, juice and rind. Add egg yolks. Mix well. Pour into baked pie shell. Beat egg whites stiff. Gradually add 1/4 Tbsp. sugar, beating constantly. Swirl meringue on top of filling. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 minutes.

If you'd like more delicious recipes using Sweet Condensed Milk, send stamped, self-addressed envelope and $1 to Ruth McDaniel, c/o this paper, 11409-116 Ave. N. Largo, Fla. 33540. I'll be glad to answer any questions you have on "cooking" if you'll send a stamped self-addressed envelope. If you have a recipe you'd think readers would enjoy, send that along too.

Probably the most famous meatloaf in the world is Ann Lauder's Meatloaf. She claims it's the best there is. It's been printed over and over again. I've made it and it is very good. But, naturally I have a recipe I think is even better. I'd bet you have one you are sure beats both of ours! I'd love to have you send me yours.

In case you've missed Ann's Meatloaf, here it is, sent to me from a reader in Green Bay, Wis.

ANN'S MEATLOAF
2 lbs. ground round steak
1 1/2 cups bread crumbs
1 tsp. Accent
1 pkg. Dry Onion Soup Mix
1 8 oz. can Tomato Sauce
2 eggs
1 cup catsup
1/2 cup warm water
2 strips bacon, if desired
Mix thoroughly all ingredients except tomato sauce and bacon. Put in loaf pan and cover with bacon if you enjoy the flavor. Pour the tomato sauce all over. Bake 1 hour at 350.

1/2 can tomato sauce
salt and pepper to taste
1 egg, beaten
1 cup fresh bread crumbs

Host Families Needed By Exchange Service

Rev. and Mrs. Don Jeffreys, pastor and wife of First Baptist Church, Roby, have recently been authorized by the youth Exchange Service (YES) Board of Directors to serve as representatives in this area to handle all Federal Jury Finds Snyder Couple Guilty

LUBBOCK—A Snyder couple, Sherman H. and Lupe Merritt could face prison terms of three years and a $30,000 fine each following their conviction in federal court here Wednesday on three counts of failing to file federal income tax returns.

U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward will pass sentence later. A 12 member federal court jury found the couple guilty after Assistant U.S. Attorney Pauline Jacoba presented evidence showing that the Merritts filed no tax returns in 1973, 1974 and 1975. Internal Revenue Service special agents testified that the Merritts made a total gross income of $298,000 during those three years.

related business of the YES organization, based on the incorporation records, bylaws, and philosophy of YES. This exchange service, with international headquarters in San Clemente, California, has been designated by the United States Government to increase international understanding through the exchange student program.

The exchange service is currently in need of families all over America to provide a temporary home for students wanting to come to the United States on short cultural VISA's. Host families receive a high school exchange student for three to nine months starting in mid August. They are to be enrolled in local high schools.

Likes, dislikes, hobbies, and personalities of the students will be fit as nearly as possible to the same qualities of the host families. The students bring their own spending money and are fully covered with medical insurance. "We do not want them to be guests in your home," the Jeffreys said, "but want them to become a part of your family. We want them to learn about middle income American family life.

"If you would consider becoming good-will ambassadors of the United States and missionaries of your faith, please call (915) 776-2159," said Rev. Jeffreys.

There are students waiting for placement now and unless we have a home by mid July, they must be told they'll have to wait. For some of them, this will be their last opportunity to be an exchange student in the U.S.A., he said.

Less Turbulence In 'Fast' Pool

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Why is one swimming pool "faster" than another? "One reason is that the faster pool will create less turbulence from the water splashed and pushed against the walls," says Ray Essick, administrator for U.S. Swimming, which is supported by Phillips Petroleum.

Script-Snatcher Couldn't Wait...

3 Versions Revealing Who Shot J.R. Stolen

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer
CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP)—Television's most notorious crime, the shooting of oil-rich villain J. R. Ewing of CBS's "Dallas," apparently has prompted someone "who knew exactly what he wanted" to steal the script that may reveal the solution to the case.

Lorimar Productions, which makes the weekly prime-time soap opera, reported Wednesday that someone had broken into a "Dallas" story editor's office. The thief took three versions of a script "dealing with the revelation of whoshot J. R.," according to Phillip Capice, executive producer of the show.

The script was entitled, "Whodunnit?" "Dallas" is one of television's most popular shows, and speculation about who shot J. R., played by Larry Hagman, in last season's final episode has become something of an international obsession.

Ladbroke's booking house in England has taken thousands of wagers on the caper and Lorimar has taken precautions to keep the culprit's identity secret.

Until this week, while "Dallas" is one of television's most popular shows, and speculation about who shot J. R., played by Larry Hagman, in last season's final episode has become something of an international obsession.

Hagman and the producers wrangled over a contract, no one was certain that J. R. would even survive. Hagman arrived on the set Tuesday.

Lorimar has been scripting and filming several different outcomes involving different suspects. Capice said the show's producers have decided on one of the suspects, but added, "It would be counterproductive to say whether this (the stolen script) is the correct one."

Even if it is the right script, Capice said the revealing episode would not be changed.

In filming Wednesday in Dallas, J.R.'s wife, Sue Ellen, was taken into custody for the shooting, the third arrest so far.

Meanwhile, a police officer in Culver City where the theft of the script was reported - said she thought the script had been recovered, adding, however, that she wasn't sure.

Lorimar denied that report as well as suggestions that a publicity hoax was being perpetrated. "Look, we couldn't afford to pull a stunt like that," said a Lorimar publicist. "We've got sponsors and stations that would come down on us."

According to a report filed by security officers at MGM Studios, where "Dallas" is filmed, the theft occurred sometime between June 3 and June 24, while story editor Andrew Lewis was on vacation.

The script was taken from a loose-ring binder, and the binder was put back in place on Lewis' bookshelf.

Church Offers Money For 'False Witnesses'

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The founder of the World Church of God hopes to "buy the truth" by offering a $100,000 finder's fee to anyone identifying "false witnesses" whom he blames for the church's legal problems.

In a series of full-page advertisements in California newspapers this week, Herbert W. Armstrong, 87, compares the church's attackers to those who bore false witness "to put Jesus Christ to death."

The ad, due to appear in East Coast papers next week, says the $100,000 offer "is for a limited time only and will terminate on Sept. 20, 1980."

The paid message says the "very word of God the Holy Bible commands us to buy the truth, and 'sell it not.' So we have set aside the sum of $100,000 to buy the truth and publicly clear our good name from this evil persecution."

The Pasadena, Calif., based church currently is fighting to keep the state attorney general from investigating its documents and internal records. The attorney general had asked a court to place the 80,000 member church in receivership last year in order to audit its records and examine its expenses.

The state action stemmed from charges by six dissident members that Armstrong and church treasurer Stanley Rader were squandering millions of dollars on themselves.

Rader said the advertisement was designed to bring out people who know "where these false allegations came from."

The ad says, "We believe false witnesses may have been coached by deputized government representatives in the wording of their false allegations."

One of nine conditions for qualifying for the $100,000 reward is that the claimant sign a statement under oath.

Court orders have so far prevented church lawyers from taking statements from the six dissident members.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Help for angina

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB - Is there any value for a person with angina to give blood three times a year? If so, how much? If I would have less pain with new red blood cells going through my circulatory system, I would give blood. Please explain why exertion and solid meals both increase the pain of angina and the part heredity plays in this disease. Also tell us how stress provokes or causes angina.

DEAR READER - For the benefit of any of those who do not know, the term angina as you use it is angina pectoris, which refers to chest pain associated with heart disease.

The pain typically is caused from an inability to provide enough oxygen to the heart muscle. That's usually caused by obstruction of the coronary arteries to the heart muscles with fatty-cholesterol deposits, although it can be caused in some other less common heart conditions.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-10, Heart Attack, Myocardial Infarction, Angina Pectoris, to give you a better appreciation of this problem. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Giving blood will not help your angina and could even make it worse. When you give blood you lose some red blood cells. These provide the main mechanism for carrying oxygen and are important to deliver oxygen to your heart muscle. The age of the red cells isn't that important. Most of them only live an average of 120 days and you manufacture an enormous amount of new ones every minute anyway. Your body actually manufactures three million new red blood cells every second.

When you exercise your heart has to work harder and that means it needs more oxygen. If your arteries to your heart muscle can't increase the oxygenated blood flow to the heart, then you will develop heart pain or angina. After a heavy meal, the heart works harder to provide blood to the digestive organs and to complete the process of digestion. In addition, some meals that contain fat in them affect the clotting of the blood and may additionally increase the work of the heart and cause angina. Obviously, a person who has angina should avoid exercise immediately after a heavy meal.

Stress, if you mean emotional stress or excitement, can increase the work of the heart and again increase its need for oxygen. If these needs can't be met because of poor circulation to the heart muscle, angina occurs. In addition, various forms of stress can cause an outpouring of adrenaline which decreases the efficiency of the heart muscle and increases its need for oxygen.

Your letter suggests that your angina is not adequately controlled. There are medicines which will greatly help in relieving and preventing anginal attacks. In addition, it's very important for everyone who has angina to do everything they can to eliminate any excess body fat they have. The decrease in body weight and the effect of eliminating fat on blood pressure and cholesterol levels is often very beneficial.

Dear Abby

Speaking Up Not Only Aid for Hearing

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My older sister has a hearing problem, and she's driving us all crazy because she won't admit it. Several years ago you had a letter in your column from Nanette Fabray, who pointed out the selfishness of such people. If you can find it, please run it again.

FLORIDA FAN

DEAR FAN: I had to go back into my 1971 files, but here it is:

"DEAR ABBY: There are some 20 million people in this country with hearing problems. Most of them could and should wear aids.

Some say, "I'll wait until I need one." But if you have even a slight problem, you need one now! It is important first to have your hearing checked by a doctor to see if your loss is one that can be corrected. Many people wait until it is too late to correct what might have been a simple medical problem in the beginning. If nothing can be done to restore your loss and if the tests show an aid can help you, then by all means get one.

The woman who feels that wearing a hearing aid will attract attention to her hearing loss fools only herself, and she's usually a pain in the neck to everyone she comes in contact with.

There are many ways of letting others know one can't hear: cupping a hand behind the ear, asking people repeatedly to speak up or repeat things, etc. Everyone knows you have a problem, and everyone wonders why you aren't doing something about it.

I have worn hearing aids for years, so I know the problems of vanity, despair, adjustment, irritation... the list goes on and on. But I do not try to hide my aids, and interestingly enough, most people do not notice I wear one and sometimes two... even on television.

A dear friend opened my eyes about wearing an aid. Many years ago she told me I was being very selfish by making others cope with what was my problem alone. She was right. I had to do something about my hearing and not expect my family and friends to speak louder than was comfortable for them, or repeat things I had missed, turn up the volume on the TV, etc.

If you suspect you have a problem, see an audiologist or a doctor, or even a reputable hearing aid dealer. Take all the necessary tests. No reputable dealer will try to sell you an aid without first making sure there is no way to correct your loss and that an aid will really help you. And if he is honest, he'll put it in writing.

Thank you, Abby. Please print this as a favor to those with a hearing loss as well as those who have to live with them.

NANETTE FABRAY

DEAR NANETTE: Hear, hear!

CONFIDENTIAL TO YOU: So yesterday you fell off the wagon? Or maybe you blew your diet? Or lost your temper and shot off your mouth? Well, that was yesterday. Today is a brand-new day with a clean slate, so forget yesterday. Today you can get back on the wagon, resume your diet and take control of your life — just for today. Don't make any long-range promises. Take it one day at a time.

Prison Term Levied Here

A three-year prison sentence was levied against O.R. Pharris Jr. yesterday in a probation revocation held in 132nd District Court.

Pharris, who had been placed on probation because of a theft of $451 from C. J. Henry on April 5, 1978, had his probation revoked because of a drunken driving arrest and for failure to pay his fees and restitution costs, court records show. Pharris resides in Ft. Worth.

HOME DESIGN
By Larry Farnsworth

When you and your family need four bedrooms and want a home of moderate, comfortable, but not extravagant size, this charming 1,446 square foot model can provide the perfect choice. Just picture you and yours comfortably enjoying the good life in a setting like this one.

The delightful exterior uses the wing effect of the attached garage and the living room to provide a sheltered approach to the pleasantly recessed front door.

Walk inside and step into a delightful formal entry, complete with a well placed coat closet and leading directly back to the central hall. Now, study that living room, at the left. It is out of the stream of traffic, for total privacy and comfort, and its big fireplace provides a most attractive focal point. Just behind it a warmly welcoming country kitchen includes a pleasant dinette and a large family room area; just perfect for day-in, day-out good living. Note, too, the convenient counter bar section of the kitchen's modified U-shaped work area, located just beside those sliding glass doors for pleasant, informal meal times.

The four bedrooms of this plan provide truly comfortable quarters for every family member. See their ample closets, too, and the two attractive baths — one privately serving the lovely corner master bedroom located at the back of the house for maximum privacy.

Of special interest, too, is the efficiently placed hall laundry alcove, located so conveniently close to bedroom and baths.

An optional basement staircase plan enters at the entry and parallels the living room and family area.

This is an attractive four bedroom plan which provides you with total livability in an amazingly inexpensive amount of good living space. Study its many advantages, picture you and your whole family enjoying its comfort, and then select this well designed house to be yours for many happy years to come.

You can purchase complete working plans or a 500 plan catalog from Larry Farnsworth, P.O. Box 1841, Las Vegas, Nevada 89101.

Charged With Plotting To Kill Sheriff

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — A man who allegedly tried to hire a truck driver to kill Walker County Sheriff Darrell White is in jail after being charged with criminal solicitation of capital murder.

"Luckyly, he (the truck driver) was a policeman's friend and he contacted us about the contract," White said, declining to identify the informant.

White said he found out about the alleged plot three weeks ago when the trucker reportedly contacted by Bengé called him.

White said Bengé reportedly approached the driver about a "hit" on the sheriff. He said Bengé first offered to pay the man $20,000, but later lowered the price to $15,000.

He said the truck driver had been paid $850 as a "down payment" and that the informant was to have shot the sheriff at 3 p.m. Monday.

Republicans Push For Cut In Taxes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ronald Reagan and congressional Republicans, in a coordinated nationwide maneuver, have called for a major tax cut as an economic counterattack on the recession they blame on the Carter administration.

Reagan, who has clinched the GOP presidential nomination, told a West Coast news conference the situation is "desperate. Now, I am saying to Congress, don't wait. Do it now."

The echo came from

Capitol Hill an hour later, in a Washington news conference.

"This is the time for action," said Sen. William Roth, R-Del., a leading congressional sponsor of tax cut legislation.

"We Republicans are throwing down the gauntlet," said Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan. "We're saying to the Carter administration and the Democrats in Congress, put up or shut up."

The double-barreled blast was denounced by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill, D-Mass., as "a political thing I wish they'd start thinking about the country instead of the next election."

The GOP congressmen said they would offer the Reagan plan as an amendment to pending legislation to raise the federal debt ceiling, and if that fails, will attempt to attach it to every money bill scheduled for congressional action until it passes.

The proposal would cut income tax rates by 10 percent effective Jan. 1, a reduction of about $20 billion, Reagan estimated.

Striking Farmworkers Raise The Stakes

HEREFORD (AP)—Striking farmworkers raised the ante in negotiations with Panhandle vegetable growers, increasing wage demands and spreading the walkout to other High Plains onion fields.

Texas Farm Workers Union spokesman Jesus Moya said Wednesday workers are demanding a wage increase from 45 cents to $1.00 per 50-pound bag of onions, a union contract, portable restroom facilities and drinking water in the fields.

"It's not like we're asking for anything illegal. We are just asking for

The course will be concluded with a luncheon and style show, with the students serving as models and their mothers and grandmothers invited to attend.

Frances Wiman will be instructor for the class, and students will pay fees of $20 each.

"The Emerging You" is offered through the "Kollege for Kids" sponsored by the Scurry County Museum and WTC. Students are to register in the museum office.

Scuba Course Set July 7-11

Swimmers who would like to learn scuba diving will be interested in a scuba course scheduled July 7-11 at Western Texas College.

Jerry Bell of Arlington, who has taught other scuba courses at WTC and throughout West Texas, will be the instructor. An open water checkout will be planned at the conclusion of the course.

Fees are $85 per person and students will be required to furnish their own fins, snorkel and mask.

Reservations for the class are to be made by calling the Continuing Education office at 573-8511, extension 240.

Archery Class For Children

Instruction in archery for children from 10-14 years of age will be offered at Western Texas College in classes starting on July 14 and July 28.

Class will meet from 10-11 a.m. on July 14-17 and July 28-31. Joe Cushing, WTC women's basketball coach, will be the instructor. Fees are $20 per person for each 4-hour course.

Archery is a part of the "Kollege for Kids" sponsored by WTC and the Scurry County Museum. Students are to register in the museum office.

Arizona has a law against killing gila monsters, the only poisonous lizards in the United States.

what these people are entitled to," Moya said Wednesday night at a meeting in Earth. "But mainly we are asking for dignity and respect for the farm worker."

Growers and packers contend the strike comes at a critical time because the High Plains harvest begins four weeks earlier than in fields elsewhere and offers a chance for them to sell their crop at the best price.

Farm machinery already has turned the onions up, leaving them wilting in the fields in the 100-degree heat. The onions must be bagged in the next six days, growers said.

Grower Cameon Gault said that at $650 per acre in production costs, a deserted onion crop could cost the farmers and shippers in this area $2 million.

About 200 workers began the strike Tuesday at a field owned and produced by Howard Gault Co., the oldest vegetable shipper in the Panhandle vegetable region.

The strike spread Wednesday to the Griffin and Brand fields and sheds.

Organizers, who estimate 400 farmworkers have joined the strike, predict it will also spread into Castro County soon.

Moya said the Gault Co. offered Wednesday to increase the piece work wage to 50 cents a bag, but farmworkers, who originally had asked for 80 cents per bag, and decided to increase their demands by 20 cents a bag. Shippers insist they can not afford to pay the higher wages. "At that price, on today's market, we would probably have a lot of onions left in the field," said Gault.

Texas Legal Rural Aid, a government-sponsored organization involved in the strike, claims workers under the 45-cent rate are not paid the $3.10 per hour minimum wage required by law. Wes Fisher of Barrett-

Fisher Co., who fears workers will boycott his fields ready for harvest Thursday, said he has had crews easily make more than $5 per hour at the 45-cent rate.

He claimed most workers are willing to bag onions at the 45-cent rate and stressed that packers and farmers are eager to pay minimum wage.

"If there is a problem and they are not making minimum wage, we'll adjust it," he said.

"But with the TRLA leading this whole thing, no. It's illegal for the TRLA to lead or encourage strikes."

Moya said workers would not vote to return to the fields until the higher wage is guaranteed.

But he added, "Let's bargain. We don't want to ruin any farmers."

Carter Presents Toast In Praise Of Portugal

By R. Gregory Nokes
Associated Press Writer
LISBON, Portugal (AP)—President Carter arrived in Lisbon today to offer encouragement to Portugal's six-year-old democracy and thank the government for being "among the first of the world's nations to recognize and respond to the threat posed by democratic societies everywhere by aggression in Afghanistan and official terrorism in Iran."

In a toast prepared for a state luncheon given in his honor, Carter said,

"People who value freedom cannot stand idly by while others' rights are ruthlessly suppressed and while a system of international order, so dearly won and delicately maintained, is so callously attacked."

nationals opposed to the regime of Libyan leader Col. Moammar Khadafi.
The executions in Iran were ordered by Ayatollah Sadegh Khalkhali, who has sent scores before firing squads since the revolution ousted the shah in January 1979.

The Jewish man executed, Jalal Massarat, was convicted of producing and distributing heroin, having sexual affairs with Moslem and Christian girls and becoming wealthy by selling the deceived girls to brothels.

The radio said two other men and a woman were executed with Massarat in Tehran for crimes ranging from narcotics trafficking to "sending call-girls to the deposed shah's court." It said another man was executed in the city of Kerman southeast of Tehran but did not say why.

In May Albert Danielpour, a leader of Iran's 40,000-member Jewish community, was executed. Earlier this month the head of Iran's Pepsi-Cola subsidiary was executed for "aiding Zionism." Iranian exiles have expressed fears the regime may be mounting a purge of the Jewish community in Iran.

County Barn Burglarized

Deputy sheriffs are investigating a break-in at the Precinct 2 county barn in Dermott.

The break-in, reported this morning, apparently occurred sometime during the night. Taken, deputies said, were a few hand tools and a tool box.

City Firemen Called Twice

Snyder firefighters doused two grass fires yesterday.

The first, reported at 11:40 a.m., occurred on West 30th St. The second, reported at 2:10 p.m., occurred about nine miles north of town on Highway 84.

Florida Pilots Testing Gliding Situation Here

By JOHN LONG

The lure of an open sky and a good tail wind have prompted a group of flying enthusiasts from Florida to come to West Texas to try sail planing.

West Texas soaring in the summer, when it's right, is some of the best in the world," said one. But so far, the conditions for perfect gliding just haven't materialized.

Here from Florida are Frank Conner, his son Mark Conner, Henry Mangels, and Bill Dehon. They were lured here, in part, by fellow flying enthusiasts Charles Shaw of Snyder. Also out at Winston Field yesterday was another local man, Darrell Mize, trying his hand at sail planing.

Shaw holds the record for distance sail planing. Leaving Winston Field one day about four years ago, he soared to an area just north of Scott City, Kan., a distance of 429 miles. His wife, Jo, holds the distance record for women, 350 miles. They are experts, but hardly less expert than Mark Conner who, at the age of 22, has been sail planing half his life.

Conner, who is also a Sgt. E-5 in the Air Force, is accustomed to flying everything from airplanes to sail planes, but he prefers the sail planes.

"An airplane is transportation, but a sail plane is fun," he said. "Once you learn it, it keeps getting more addictive," Conner added. "You keep setting your personal goals."
One of the men described sail planing enthusiasm as a "fever very similar to malaria."
Dehon claimed that sail planing, because it is done without noisy motors, captures the essence of true flight.

Shaw noted that sail planing is "a whole lot quieter and a whole lot smoother," than conventional airplane flights.

Conner, who also tried his hand at sail planing Snyder skies back in 1973, went up briefly Wednesday afternoon. He stayed aloft about 20 minutes, stayed under 3,000 feet in altitude, and got up to 85 miles an hour, but generally averaged about 50 mph. It was not a particularly good flight, he said.

Conner's father, Frank, is president of The 126 Association, named after the Schweizer 126 sail plane, one of the more popular models. Shaw is an ex-president of the association.

Not only is sail planing fun, but Conner maintained it also safer than conventional airplane flying.

"If you handle it properly, there's no reason you can't fly forever and not have an accident," he said.

Daytime Soaps Draw Workers To Stores

DALLAS (AP)—The noon hour. Women scurry from downtown office buildings to a nearby department store, giving up their mid-day meals for a daytime addiction.

Not sales. Soaps. "There's just no cure for this," said one woman who has been skipping lunch for heartbreak since she took a full-time job eight months ago. She's too embarrassed to tell her name.

They stand sometimes three-deep in front of a row of color television sets, snacking and exchanging gossip, but only during commercials.

Most stay from noon until 1 p.m., although one woman sticks around for the noon-to-3 p.m. block.

"It's a good relaxer and takes my mind off work," said Vera, a "club" member for almost two years. "When I go back to the office, I'm ready to work."

Regular viewers have even formed an informal club, analyzing plot twists and catching up regular viewers who have been on vacation. Their eyes are riveted to the set during the dramas, but they turn down the sound for chit-chat during commercials.

"They adjust the color—as far as they're concerned, that's their TV," said Rod Bailey, a salesman at Sanger-Harris. "A lot of times I have to step in front of the viewers to show a television that they're watching to a customer and they don't like that, depending on what's going on."

But, Bailey admits, he won't discourage the ladies. He hopes they will buy from him when they're ready to purchase a new set for the house.

The scene is similar at Neiman-Marcus.

"When there's a real good plot-like Anne breaking out of the loony house or Devon's affair with Sean, 20 people will be watching," said salesman Joe McMahon.

"And I know I'd better not change the channel." McMahon goes so far as to record "big" episodes—weddings and funerals—on video tape cassettes to show to regulars and fellow employees.

And, he said, he keeps up with the plots so he can brief folks who stop by his department for a soap opera update.

SHS Class Of '65 Seeking Addresses

The Snyder High School class of 1965 is planning its 15-year reunion for July 18-19, and addresses of several class members are being sought.

Fisher County Schools May Consolidate

The possibility of establishing one high school to serve Fisher County is being explored. Representatives of three of the four school boards in the county met June 17 to discuss that issue and another meeting has been scheduled for July 15.

County school officials there feel that such an arrangement might be forced in the future by the state education agency. Members of the Roby, Rotan, and Hobbs school boards attended the first meeting. McCaulley did not attend.

Also, Alfred Zamora, Blake Roberts, Charles Ashley, Leroy Guillen, Robert Martin, Jerry Jackson, Danny Kelly, Carolyn Ellis, Kenney Gat, Carolyn Morgan, James Goll, Jimmy Simpson, Bob Melcalo and Anne Pitts.

King Wins; Others Upset...

Wimbledon Hoping To Get Tracked

By GEOFFREY MILLER
AP Sports Writer

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Billie Jean King showed all her old fighting spirit today in defeating Anne Smith 6-3, 7-6 to reach the third round of the Wimbledon tennis championships.

King, 36, six times Wimbledon singles champion and a winner of a record 20 titles overall here, had a bye in the first round and was playing her first match of the tournament. She saved two set points and Smith, 21 next week of Dallas, hit some fine shots and battled to the tiebreaker.

center court and for longer elsewhere.

Greer Stevens of South Africa, the No. 11 seed, comfortably defeated Paula Smith of the United States 6-1, 6-4, in the first round. The pair had waited in the locker room most of Wednesday but never got on court.

Bjorn Borg, the world's No. 1 tennis star.

"It's a great opportunity for me," said Glickstein after he had upset Raul Ramirez of Mexico in the first round. "I am sure I will learn a lot from the match and gain a lot of experience, and I hope to do my best."

But when he was asked about his chances of winning, Glickstein just rhapsodized about Borg, who is bidding to win

Wimbledon for the fifth straight year.

"Borg is just a great player," said this virtually unknown Israeli, who is one of the few men from his country who have played at Wimbledon. "He's out there on the court to win. His concentration is unbelievable. Psychologically none of the top players can beat him."

Dodgers Dash Past Houston

HOUSTON (AP)—Steve Yeager walked into the Los Angeles dressing room to a hero's welcome Wednesday night after clubbing a three-run home run that dealt the killing blow in the Dodgers' 9-2 route of the Houston Astros.

Yeager's 375-foot blast over the left field fence fell well out of the reach of the Astros Wednesday night, breaking up a 2-2 deadlock that boosted Yeager's confidence and cut Houston's National League Western Division led to two games.

After accepting congratulations from several players, Yeager was asked what the Dodgers' reaction had been in the dugout following his first home run since Sept. 28, 1979.

The Dodgers battered Houston starter Ken Forsch for four straight hits and two runs in the first innings. A double by Jay Johnstone and single by Steve Garvey produced the runs.

Ira Boosters Hold Meeting

IRA—Ira Booster Club met June 24 to discuss a July 4 concession and the upcoming men's slow pitch softball tournament.

Houston retaliated against LA starter Bob Welch in the second inning with five straight hits and two runs on Alan Ashby's single and Forsch's double.

Plans were also discussed for the class B invitational slow pitch tournament to be held in July 11-13.

The Astros committed four errors for the second straight game and were victims of questionable baserunning in the early innings that possibly kept them from taking the lead.

Ira Schedules Ball Tourney

IRA—Ira Booster Club will sponsor a men's slow pitch softball tournament, class B, July 11-13 at the Ira Ball Park, west of the community.

Texas Coming Back? Knock Off Mariners

ARLINGTON (AP)—The Texas Rangers have won two games in a row for the second time in a week, and manager Pat Corrales says he hopes the team is finally out of its month-long slump.

Jenkins needed only an hour and 59 minutes to wrap up a 6-1 victory over the Seattle Mariners.

Yeager's 375-foot blast over the left field fence fell well out of the reach of the Astros Wednesday night, breaking up a 2-2 deadlock that boosted Yeager's confidence and cut Houston's National League Western Division led to two games.

"A couple of them fainted and some others were speechless," said Yeager, who went into the series finale batting .193. "I've been hitting the ball this year, it just hasn't been

The score remided deadlocked until the seventh when Forsch walked Garvey and Ron Cey reached base on Enos Cabell's second error of the game. Yeager cleared the bases with his homer.

Junior Tour Continues; Abilenians Show Force

Abilenians dominated the West Texas PGA Junior Tour event held at Western Texas College yesterday. The annual tour was to move to Snyder Country Club today.

Ten youngsters from Abilene competed in yesterday's 18-hole tournament and six went home with awards. Sweetwater entries totalled eight, while Brownwood, Andrews and San Angelo had three each.

Wilkins Tired Now; Oerter Keeps Going, Eying LA Olympics

EUGENE, Ore. (AP)—Mac Wilkins, America's discus champion, may be retiring at 29 and 43-year-old Al Oerter incredibly has his sights set on 1984.

Abilene's Ron English, carding a 75, took first place in the 16-18 age bracket. He was followed closely by Bubba Stobaugh of San Angelo and Grant Maples of Abilene who tied at 76 each. Stobaugh won a playoff for second place by edging his competitor on the first green.

At the U.S. Olympic Track and Field Trials Wednesday night, Wilkins was the best at 225 feet, 4 inches and Oerter was the fourth best at 215-1. But afterward, it was Oerter who talked optimistically about the Los Angeles Olympics and Wilkins who brought up the subject of retirement.

Abilenians also led the 12-13 age bracket. Todd Moore and Jeff Foster, both of the key city, came in first and second respectively, with scores of 79 and 80. Michael Campbell, of Andrews, was third with an 87.

"I'm not sure about 1984. I just don't know. But this could be my last year. I'm physically and mentally tired. Look, I've been competing intensely for eight straight years and I need a rest. I have a family and I'd like to do something else with my life."

Today's event was to have teed off at 9 a.m. and was open to all area youth, boys and girls, from ages 12-18 who have not graduated from high school. Club pro Mike Yantis was expecting a large group of golfers.

In conjunction with the Junior Tour will be the North Texas PGA Junior Qualifying. Many individuals will be competing in both events over the same 18-hole round today. Winners in the Junior Tour qualify for the Tournament of Champions.

In West Germany...

Consumer Groups Take Aim On Advertising

By DAVID MINTHORN
Associated Press Writer
BONN, West Germany (AP)—In West Germany, when the results of tough tests on new products are published each month, manufacturers and retailers brace for consumer reaction.

After one poor rating, the maker of a German sparkling wine was flooded with 250,000 bottles sent back by dealers.

Such is the power of the highly regarded Foundation for Product Testing, which runs the tests.

"Products that test 'good' or 'very good' are practically assured of heavy sales. Those that get a 'defective' rating quickly disappear from the market," said the Foundation's Juergen Teves.

The tests, some say, have made West German consumers perhaps the world's most knowledgeable people on household gadgets and services such as insurance and banking.

Rising consumer awareness in West Germany has paralleled the country's soaring prosperity, and consumer groups have flourished in the last decade as the variety of products mushroomed.

Now, with German products trusted around the world for their high technical quality and reliability, the consumer organizations are battling misleading advertising to make sure the "Made in Germany" label will continue to guarantee top quality goods.

High standards in West German industry have largely eliminated unsound or unsafe products from the market, but "the biggest loophole is misleading advertising," said Thomas Schlier of the national Consumers'

Cooperative headquartered in Bonn.

"Unlike in the United States, a consumer here can't demand his money back if the product fails to meet exaggerated advertising claims. That's only possible if it's defective," Schlier said.

A West German retailer or manufacturer cannot be fined for making false claims about his product.

Schlier said. A retailer may offer television sets at vast savings as a come-on, but have only three in stock, or advertise "full-sized" stoves that have only two burners and lack an oven.

Consumer groups are fighting back with class action suits, but even where abuses are proven, court fines are usually so nominal that the risk is worth it for manufacturers.

Schlier's organization, which operates 150 consumer counseling centers around the country with government subsidies, is lobbying for a change.

"We believe every consumer should have a money-back guarantee and the right to sue for compensation if the product is sold by misleading advertising," he said.

On paper, West Germany has among the world's toughest safety standards for consumer goods, especially electronic and household appliances, which must meet tough industry standards before going on the market.

But in direct comparison with foreign competition, the products sometimes rate lower in practicality, design or level of advancement, said Teves of the testing foundation.

"Our tests emphasize appliances, hi-fi and optical goods. We test some food and household products and compare prices and services of banks, insurance and other services.

"You can't say German goods in general are better or worse than those of other Western countries," said Teves. "It depends on the article... But Germans dominate the household appliances, partly because there aren't as many foreign products offered on the domestic market."

In 1939, daily transcontinental air mail in Canada was inaugurated.

Help for overweight kids

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — Our teen-age daughter weighs more than 200 pounds. We have tried everything to help her diet.

This year we decided to spend our savings to send her to a camp for overweight children.

She has been there for two weeks and is very unhappy. She says it is like a prison and that it makes her feel like she is a bad person because she is fat. She wants to come home.

She has two more weeks to go. It is important to us that she at least try to make it work. But we will go and pick her up if you say we should.

DEAR READER — By the time you read this, your question will be irrelevant because her stay at camp will be over. But your letter raises the important question of whether these camps really help children with their weight problems.

In her new book, "Such a Pretty Face," sociologist Marcia Millman says that while these camps provide a haven for some overweight youngsters, most experience them as further exclusion from the normal social life they so desperately crave.

She adds that although children may lose weight at least temporarily, they are often not helped to change their attitudes about dieting. Eating thus remains a means of rebellion by which they assert their growing independence.

Suggest that your daughter try Francie Berg's new handbook "How to Lose Weight the ACTION Way," which is designed especially for overweight teen-agers. (ACTION, incidentally, stands for Active, Creative, Touch, Identity and Omit No meals.)

You can order a soft-cover edition by sending $8.95 to Flying Diamond Books, R-2, Box D-301, Hettinger, N.D. 58639.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — I usually enjoy your column, but I was very disappointed in your reply to the young woman who felt her breasts were too large.

My daughter had the same condition. It caused lots of physical as well as psychological problems.

A wonderful plastic surgeon reduced her breasts to normal size. It made a world of difference. The surgery was neither extremely serious nor, at least at that time, terribly expensive.

Please check with your colleagues and some plastic surgeons. I'm sure all would agree the operation is more than worthwhile.

DEAR READER — As noted in an earlier column, yours was only one of the many letters I received about my advice to the 16-year-old with the 36-C bust who wanted to drop out of school. It's clear from the mail that I did not get my message across.

I do believe in breast-reduction surgery. Psychology aside, breast pain, grooving and sagging of the shoulders from tight supportive bras, stress on the spine, aching muscles of the lower neck, upper back and shoulders and irritation of the skin around the breasts are enough reasons for this procedure.

I only wanted that girl to stay in school while she planned and saved up for the surgery.

Help your youngster or teen-ager through a hospital stay with Dr. Blaker's hotline "When Your Child Goes to the Hospital." Send 50 cents plus a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 475, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Write to Dr. Blaker at the above address. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies, but questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns.

Sanctioned Marijuana Smoker Boos Pot Pills

WASHINGTON (AP)—A man who gets marijuana cigarettes from the government for his glaucoma contends a federal plan to make synthetic marijuana pills available to cancer patients during chemotherapy is "medically reckless."

"It promises people relief that isn't there," charges Robert Randall, who says cancer patients should be able to get marijuana cigarettes instead, just as he does.

A Food and Drug Administration advisory committee was meeting today to hear a proposal from the National Cancer Institute to make up to 1 million pills containing a derivative of marijuana available on prescription to help cancer patients avoid nausea and vomiting during chemotherapy. The FDA has acknowledged that tests show the marijuana ingredient, tetrahydrocannabinol (THC), appears to help cancer patients endure chemotherapy treatment. The National Institute on Drug Abuse is planning to have 500,000 pills ready by Tuesday; and 500,000 more by the end of the year.

Randall contends federal bureaucrats are pushing the idea of issuing marijuana pills because they can't meet states' demand for marijuana cigarettes.

New Mexico became the first state to legalize the medical use of marijuana in 1978 and 23 other states have followed suit. However, all 24 still must get their supplies through the federal government. Marijuana is still classified under the strictest federal drug controls, along with heroin and LSD.

The cancer institute's plan would not change that, but it would allow thousands of doctors to write prescriptions for THC pills that could be filled at pharmacies in 400 to 500 comprehensive cancer care centers and medical school hospitals around the country. It would make THC available on the same basis that doctors can prescribe experimental drugs for cancer patients.

Randall, 32, has been getting a free supply of 70 marijuana cigarettes weekly since November 1976 for his glaucoma. He contends smoking the marijuana reduces eye pressure and has kept his vision from deteriorating.

Randall said it does not make sense to give someone suffering from nausea a pill he or she may not be able to keep down. Also, he said, "The cigarette works in 10 minutes as opposed to the one-to-three hours that it takes for the pill to break down."

Randall charged that the THC pills are "a major hallucinogenic, not a mild euphoriant," and could create a new black market.
