

July 4th Celebration Underway

Snyder's annual patriotic observance and July 4th celebration is underway, with all activities getting into full swing tomorrow.

Tonight's activities include the arts and crafts show in the National Guard Armory. In addition, the carnival, already is set up and residents have started camping out in Towle Park to reserve space for their friends and families.

Friday's activities start with a flag-raising ceremony at 9 a.m. at the National Guard Armory. A color guard from the National Guard will hoist a flag which has flown over the nation's capitol. Following the ceremony, the traditional parade will be held in the park and children are invited to compete for trophies and ribbons for the best decorated bike.

The arts and crafts exhibit opens on Friday at 10 a.m. Other park activities include a variety of game and food booths all day, a fishing rodeo sponsored by the Jaycees, an art show in the Towle Park Barn, bingo, and a fiddlers contest.

A tennis tournament, directed by Margaret Sherrod, is open to both youths and adults. Junior play begins at 9 a.m. and adults start play at 5:30 p.m.

For golfers, a low ball tournament will be held at the WTC golf course.

At 8:30 p.m., the First Baptist Church will present its patriotic concert. At that concert, the July 4th Queen will be crowned.

Contestants are Stephanie Weaver, Cathie Cypert, Melanie Jarrell, Virginia Whitson, Martha Beavers, Kathy Northcott, Diane Sentell, Trudy Hat-away and June Deen. The winner will be the candidate with the most tickets sold in her behalf.

The highlight of the day will be the fireworks display about 9 p.m. Some 20,000 persons are expected to view the display.

Another activity is the tractor pull to be held at the rodeo arena on West 30th Street. One session is set for 5:30 p.m. Friday and another is set for 7 p.m. Saturday.

Some 35 tractors are expected to pull for a total purse of $5,000. Admission is $3 for adults and $1 for children under 12.

At each tractor pull session there will be drawing for door prizes donated by Snyder area merchants.

Feds Ditching Credit-Controls

WASHINGTON (AP) - The Federal Reserve Board today announced plans to phase out all the special credit-control measures it took in March, as inflation has eased and the recession has deepened.

In late May, the board cut the credit restraints in half, and today it scheduled a series of moves to dismantle the remainder.

"In recent months, there has been apparent contraction in consumer borrowing," the board said in explaining its move. "Indications are that anticipatory and speculative demands for credit have subsided and funds have been in more ample supply."

In a written statement, the White House said President Carter was "heartened by the success of the selective credit restraints in rapidly bringing about conditions in financial markets helping to reduce inflationary pressures and lower interest rates."

The statement said the speculation in financial and commodity markets had "moderated substantially, signaling an easing of credit demands and a reversal of inflationary expectations."

The statement said Carter was removing from the Federal Reserve the authority he granted under the Credit Control Act last March.

"Consumer and other forms of credit are no longer being used excessively," the statement said. But it said "the removal of the controls should not be taken as a signal for the resumption of a profligate use of credit by consumers or by business."

Jobless Rate Dips In June

WASHINGTON (AP) - The nation's unemployment rate slipped slightly in June to 7.7 percent, the government reported today, but many economists cautioned that joblessness will continue to rise in coming months and exceed 8.5 percent by year's end.

The 0.1 percent dip from May's 7.8 percent jobless level followed unusually sharp increases of 0.8 percent in both April and May, bringing the unemployment rate to the highest level since President Carter took office. Labor Department analysts said the 0.1 percent decline was too small to be statistically significant.

The Federal Reserve Board announced plans today to complete its phaseout of the credit-control measures it took in March now that inflation has eased and the recession has deepened. The board had cut the credit restraints in half in late May, as the anti-inflationary measures began to accomplish their objective.

WTC Awards Bid On Racquetball Facility

After months of discussion and planning, Western Texas College trustees Thursday morning let a bid for construction of a racquetball facility on the campus.

Bids on the project were opened last week and Wadleigh Construction Co. was the low bidder. The board, however, postponed action on the bid of $251,980 to see if certain changes could be made in the plan to reduce the cost. At Thursday's meeting, deletions brought the bid price down to $236,178. Construction is expected to begin soon and estimated completion is about Jan. 1.

The project will be paid from local surplus funds, said Dr. Robert Clinton, president. Dues and other fees from use of the facility, anticipated to amount to $30,000 per year, will be used to pay back the college's operating funds.

Memberships are now being sold for use of the racquetball courts and golf course. The additional four courts will also allow 16 more students per physical education class. In other business the board approved the low bid of $133,140 for the purchase of 12 new Melex golf carts from West Texas Golf Cars. The bid price was less than other bids were received from Tom's Marine and from E-Z Go Car.

Board members present at the meeting were Edwin Parks, R.C. Patton, Howard Sterling and Dr. Robert Hargrove.

'Hot' On July 4th Forecast

It will be hotter than a firecracker here July 4th, but that is nothing new. Wednesday marked the tenth day in a row for the temperature to soar to 100 degrees or above in Snyder in the heat wave that has scorched the Southwest and taken the rap for as many as 60 deaths in Texas.

Snyder has had not had any heat related deaths thus far but never the less, Palmer EMS will have an ambulance in Towle Park tomorrow available for those who feel faint, weak or just tired out by the sun.

Kerrie Palmer, operator of the city county ambulance service, said at least one and possibly two ambulances will be stationed at the pavilion.

"We're going to have them there to get right to the people," she said.

Demonstrations featuring first aid techniques may also be given if enough interest is expressed, Ms. Palmer added.

Texans who already have endured weeks of blistering temperatures will find little solace in the latest bleak prediction from the National Weather Service. "It doesn't look good," a weather service spokesman said. "Our 30-day prognosis calls for above-normal temperatures and below-normal precipitation. See Hot, Page 10

Ask Us

Q-What are the symptoms of heat exhaustion or heat stroke, and what can be done to treat them?

A-In heat exhaustion, a person loses fluids and salt through sweating and may become weak. Basically, what he needs is salt and fluid replacement, said Dr. Robert B. Pierce, county health officer. Heat exhaustion is not as severe as heat stroke, but it can develop into heat stroke if the salt and fluid loss continues. In a heat stroke, the body is dry and won't sweat and body temperature shoots up dangerously high. In treating a heat stroke victim, try to keep the victim cool, wet him down if possible and, if you can, put him in ice. The object is to reduce body temperature. Get the heat stroke victim to a hospital or doctor as soon as possible, advised Dr. Pierce.

Storms Make Killer Sweep

By The Associated Press - Violent thunderstorms and twisters tore through a half-dozen states, causing flash floods that swept several children to their deaths, while the heat wave baked the Southwest and a drought continued in the northern Plains.

Wet weather extended over the Ohio and mid-Mississippi Valleys and also reached from northern Oklahoma through eastern Colorado.

In Kentucky, one man died when a tree fell onto his mobile home, and a 7-year-old boy drowned when the car he was in was swept away at a creek crossing.

Authorities were searching for the body of a 4-year-old Evansville, Ind., girl who was swept into a street sewer during a heavy thunderstorm. And a 7-year-old Illinois girl died after her boat capsized on Lake Kincaid during a sudden storm. Illinois thunderstorms and twisters caused an estimated $15 to $20 million in damage, officials said.

While heat and dry weather have taken a terrible toll on livestock and crops in the Southwest and the Plains, farmers and agriculture officials in northern California were worried that unseasonably high rainfall and warm weather could threaten millions of dollars of crops.

Rain-soaked fruits and vegetables, including strawberries, garlic, apricots and cabbage, could begin to rot if rain continues, and prices could soar, officials said.

Most Will Close 4th

Most offices will be closed and a few stores will be open Friday as Snyder joins the rest of the nation in observance of Independence Day.

The post office, courthouse, city hall, school administrative offices, financial institutions and many businesses will be closed Friday. Also the Drivers License office will be closed.

However, some firms have indicated that they will be open for business as usual.

congressional comment

another ss crisis

Trustees of the Social Security system have warned that yet another financial crisis is looming. Witnesses before a congressional committee helped explain why.

It turns out that millions of dollars in Social Security disability benefits are being paid to persons whose disability causes them no immediate financial problem. They are already being supported by the government - as inmates of prisons and jails.

The flow of disability checks into prisons is contributing to drug traffic, prostitution and gambling within the walls. That's a problem for the warden. The problem for the American people is that their government is wearing a blindfold as it passes out money under various "entitlement" programs. That's where the warden's problem begins.

Common sense tells us that the working taxpayer should not have to pay twice - once with taxes supporting the prison system, and again through Social Security taxes - to support a convicted felon who happens to be disabled. Yet there is a chance that Rep. William Whitehurst, a Virginia Republican, will get nowhere with his bill to cut off disability payments to prisoners. It may be unconstitutional to deny benefits to a prisoner who otherwise is entitled rules of Social Security.

The $60 million which Whitehurst estimates is going to prison inmates is a drop in the bucket for a Social Security system that will pay out $140 billion during the coming year. But this sort of double-dipping by prisoners reflects the mandated entitlements that run through the Social Security structure and keep getting it into trouble.

Now, a shortfall in the retirement trust fund is looming for late 1981 or early 1982 because the government blindfold prevents Social Security from basing its benefits on what the system can afford. It cannot afford to keep its benefits rising with the consumer price index, as the law now requires when the wages being taxed to replenish the trust fund are not rising at the same rate as the CPI.

People drawing Social Security received a mandated 14.3 percent increase in benefits July 1 based on the past year's rise in the CPI. Because wages have not risen as much, and because of the severity of the recession now gripping the economy, receipts from the Social Security payroll tax earmarked for the retirement fund will not be sufficient to cover the higher benefits.

The easy way out is for Congress to authorize the retirement fund to "borrow" from the separate funds used to pay disability and Medicare benefits, which currently have a surplus great enough to cover such a bailout. But that would not address the broader question of why Social Security seems to move from one crisis to another, defying efforts to keep income and payouts in balance.

Congress enacted a series of stiff tax increases in 1977 that were supposed to keep Social Security running smoothly until the end of the century. This year, the 6.13 percent tax amounts to $1,587 deducted from the pay of workers earning up to $25,900. Next year the rate goes to 6.65 percent on earnings up to $29,700, for a $1,975 deduction. By 1987, workers earning the maximum will be paying $3,000 a year into the system.

Working people shouldering that kind of payroll tax deserve something better than recurring headlines about the imminent bankruptcy of a Social Security system they are relying on as insurance for their own future. Certainly they deserve to hear that their money will no longer be used to bankroll crap games in San Quentin or Sing Sing.

Is it possible the stubborn Africcanners of South Africa are looking for a dramatic, fiery end? It would seem unlikely that these stolid, hardworking types are hoping for Gotterdammerung, but their actions suggest the possibility.

What more could the South Africans do to bring about bloodshed than what they are doing already? It is amazing that they have been able to perpetuate the unjust and illogical system of apartheid for so long. Now, with pressure mounting, and when reform could easily prevent wider violence, the government stands firm.

Perhaps we will watch televised views of South Africa burning and someone will play Wagner in the background. It is all too ridiculous, too-stupid and to tragic.

old glory still waves

The American Flag was the year baseball's Rick Monday rescued our Flag from the fire at Dodger Stadium.

Recently, the star player of the United States Olympic team skated past the eyes of the world proudly draping himself in The American Flag.

Today millions of American Flags in thousands of cities fly half-staff in recognition of 53 of our citizens held hostage.

Flag Day, officially June 14, is the most important of all holidays on American Sargoa.

The Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks was the first fraternal organization to mandate membership observance of Flag Day - in 1907.

President Woodrow Wilson made it official nine years later.

President Harry Truman made it law in 1949.

But Old Glory has had to endure a lot of disrespect between then and now.

Why are Americans again respectfully closing ranks behind their Star-Spangled Banner?

Two reasons: The spoiled brats of the sixties are growing up.

And the national disillusion of the seventies has spent itself.

Now the world is televised for us in focus and Americans are reminded every day that there is no place like home.

Our United States of America is yet imperfect. Our homeland, even as each homestead, requires constant, year in and year out renovation, renewal and repair.

But for all that, ours remains the only land in the world where people are standing in line to get in - instead of braving stormy seas in small boats dying trying to get out.

"Oh, say, does that Star-Spangled Banner yet wave..."

It does. (c) 1980, Los Angeles Times Syndicate

new problems from old

NEW YORK (AP) - Under pressure from some who claimed discrimination and from others who said industry was being deprived of experienced workers, the federal mandatory retirement age was raised to 70.

But the resolution of those problems may have created others, says Felix Lopez, a human resources and behavioral sciences consultant to industry. And, in light of lagging productivity, they could be serious.

Lopez, who holds a doctorate in psychology and is the author of five volumes of research and observations, doesn't attempt to belittle the benefits of moving the mandatory retirement age to 70 from 65.

He does, however, ask that Americans consider also the less beneficial consequences, based on his personal observations and studies, which he compiled in response to a request. It poses a typical, modern dilemma.

His analysis begins with the observation that "The ablest and most productive people at all levels in an organization tend to retire earliest and, in fact, generally retire at the first opportunity."

"Retire" is perhaps not the correct word because, as Lopez explains, "The principal reason for leaving is to launch a second career to enable them to achieve the autonomy and the maximum self-expression that most people desire."

In addition to this, he says, the most productive and able people are also the healthiest, the most vigorous mentally and physically, and have the longest life expectancies.

On the other hand: "The least able and productive workers, at all levels up through the executive suite, tend to stay on in an organization to the last possible date for retirement."

"They are the ones who have pushed for and most likely will take advantage of the extension of the mandatory age to 70. Accordingly, too, they have by far the most physical, mental and emotional problems."

Lopez maintains that objective evaluation of performance has been badly neglected by most companies.

"When the signs of obsolescence and incapacity become overt, companies have contented themselves with carrying that person until they could be humanely removed by early retirement," he includes meaningful changes in the farm disaster loan programs administered by both the Small Business Administration (SBA) and the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA).

I supported this measure because, in effect, it places the disaster loan programs for farm businesses under the jurisdiction of the more qualified FmHA.

A major provision of this bill is the "credit elsewhere test," which requires loan applicants to seek assistance from other sources before approaching the SBA. Accordingly, the FmHA disaster loan program has been modified to provide the same benefits now provided to victims under the SBA program, thus changing the FmHA law to coincide with the eligibility requirements of the SBA program.

Because farm businesses will now be eligible for loans under FmHA, those eligible will be required to first apply to FmHA for a loan where terms and rates are as favorable as SBA-administered business disaster loans. However, if FmHA denies to grant a loan or if FmHA changes their program so that the same benefits will not be available from FmHA as from SBA, the eligible applicants may seek assistance from the SBA-administered program. The FmHA disaster assistance will now be limited to $500,000 per disaster for net nonreimbursed loss, as in the SBA procedure.

The FmHA has the expertise necessary to effectively handle the disaster claims of farm businesses, and that agency has a sufficient staff to process the accompanying paperwork, unlike the SBA which has neither. Also, the Administration has agreed to hire 200 additional personnel to assist in administering the expanded load through the FmHA program, thereby allowing SBA to concentrate on non-agricultural disasters and other small business loans.

Disaster loans are designed to aid businesses unable to obtain adequate credit elsewhere in emergency situations. Under the provisions of this legislation, these businesses will be able to borrow up to $500,000 at 5 percent, whether qualified by SBA or FmHA. Businesses with a good credit rating will have the right to receive a loan from FmHA or SBA at a rate not exceeding 1 percent above the current cost of money to the government for amounts up to $500,000 (currently 10 percent).

These will be subject to review after the first three years and every two years after that to determine whether the borrower can obtain a loan from non-federal sources at a similar rate and term. In the event that this is possible, the borrower will be required to accept such a loan.

By placing disaster loan programs for farm businesses under the auspices of the FmHA, I feel that the procedure will be in more logical hands. The FmHA's experience and knowledge in these matters makes them the best choice to handle the large volume of disaster loan applications received. Because the FmHA is much better staffed, this bill will eliminate many of the problems that farm businesses have had in their dealings with the federal government through the SBA-administered disaster loan program.

I am confident that this measure will increase the efficiency of our government in regard to disaster relief loans for all types of small business and eliminate much of the opposition and controversy surrounding the SBA.

Add typewriters to that list of collectable items. I never thought of typewriters as being among the items people might collect, but apparently they are. I now have four typewriters, and that may well be the start of my typewriter collection.

What does one man do with four typewriters, one may wonder. Well, I use them, that's what I do with them. All of them, except for an ancient Remington, are in perfect working order, and even the ancient Remington is in pretty good shape.

In the beginning, I had no typewriters. Then I bought a small portable electric what I really wanted was an old-fashioned, heavy, honest to goodness manual. When I bought one of them, that was my second typewriter.

My third typewriter was a 1932 Underwood. The man I bought it from couldn't type, so he was glad to get rid of it and I was glad to have it. That typewriter, nearly 50 years old though it is, works perfectly.

My fourth typewriter, and in some ways my favorite, is a Remington Model 10, made in the era between 1910 and 1920. I am told. With just a little fix-it skill from me, it too will be in perfect working order.

In my association with typewriters, typists, and non-typists, I have found that those people who cannot type place a relatively low regard on typewriters. Those are the people I like to buy from. Typewriters to them are just so much junk they like to get rid of as quickly as they can.

In regard to typewriters, I prefer manuals. Manual typewriters type as quickly as the typist does, if that makes any sense. On a manual typewriter, the rhythm is in the typist. On an electric typewriter, however, the rhythm is in the machine, it seems to me. Try as I may, I can never pace myself on an electric typewriter.

Some people, and I guess I am among them, will collect anything.

Hey, Nobel Winners: Your Kids Should Make It

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: JUST ASKING wondered how many Nobel Prize winners were children of Nobel Prize winners. He said, "Nowhere has it been proven that kids inherit their intelligence from their parents."

May I quote Paul R. Chernoff, associate professor of mathematics at the University of California, Berkeley:

"Since 1901 there have been about 330 Nobel laureates in science. Comparing this number with the total eligible population, one sees that the chance of a randomly selected person winning a Nobel Prize is somewhere between one in two million and one in 10 million."

"On the other hand, out of a pool of, say, 1,500 children of Nobel laureates, at least four have themselves won Nobel Prizes: W.L. Bragg (who shared the 1915 physics prize with his father), G.P. Thomson, Irene Joliot-Curie and Aage Bohr. This record seems to show that the child of a Nobel laureate is several thousand times more likely to win a Nobel Prize than a randomly selected child."

"It is indeed rather obvious that Nobelists' children have huge advantages both in heredity and environment."

DEAR NEW YORKER: I have a terrific calculator that I have not yet learned how to operate, so I'll take Chernoff's word for it.

DEAR ABBY: I am a recently engaged male, 24, making plans for my wedding. In considering the selection of my best man, I realized that my dearest and oldest friend is a female!

In this case, is selecting a woman for my best man appropriate and/or allowed?

BAFFLED IN BRADFORD

DEAR BAFFLED: Traditionally the groom asks his best friend to be his best man, but in friendship, gender is of no consequence, so it's certainly appropriate to ask a woman. As for being "allowed," as long as it doesn't affect the legality of your wedding, who's to stop you?

DEAR ABBY: In regard to the mother who wrote and was so upset because her son was marrying a paraplegic. My husband and I were appalled that there is still so much misunderstanding about the handicapped.

Paraplegics are not invalids. They are very independent and do not need someone caring for them. We know, because 10 years ago our son married a girl who had been a paraplegic since she was 1 year old! She's a college graduate who is now an accountant, does all her own housework and is learning to ski at the Winter Park program for the handicapped.

You advised this mother to get counseling. I would recommend that she go one step further and do some volunteer work at a rehabilitation center. She would learn a lot about the handicapped.

With love and understanding from her husband and mother-in-law, the paraplegic girl mentioned in your column can be as great a blessing as our daughter-in-law has been to us.

trump lead and South has a sure trump loser.

That means that he cannot afford to lose a club trick. Maybe clubs will break 3-3 in which case everything will come up roses.

Suppose they don't break that nicely. What can South do about that potential club loser?

Can he make it disappear into thin air? Maybe! At least he can try to work things out so that it will lose to East's sure trump trick. If you lose two losers at the same time you only lose one trick.

If East is long in clubs South can simply cash his high clubs and ruff his last club with dummy's last trump.

Suppose East is short in clubs? South can still romp home.

South must play clubs so that East doesn't get a chance to ruff a high one. South leaves a small trump in dummy, cashes dummy's king of clubs and leads a low club toward his hand. East can't do any good by ruffing that one since he will be ruffing a low club. So East discards.

Now South leads, his last club and ruffs in dummy. East can take his trump trick then or later, but South is home.

Guerrillas Said Robbing Peasants

LAS VUELTAS; El Salvador (AP)—Leftist guerrillas are robbing, threatening and sometimes killing peasants in these remote mountains to get food and coerce recruits for their drive to overthrow El Salvador's moderate military-civilian government, according to refugees who say they fled to escape.

"They stole all my corn and pointed a gun at me and said if I didn't join up with them, they would kill me," said Jose Domingo

Guardado, 40. "I barely grow enough to feed my family. I don't agree with what they are doing, but I couldn't afford to give them anything anyway."

Guardado and his family of 10 are among 1,500 refugees in Las Vueltas, a village near the Honduran border 50 miles northeast of San Salvador, the capital. He abandoned his home in Conacaste, about a day's walk from here, in the middle of the night for refuge in the dingy mud buildings here and the protection of a 12-man national guard outpost.

The guerrillas use the mountain area's remoteness and a nearby demilitarized zone to set up camps from which they attack military patrols. The peasants say they became alienated by the rebels' terror attacks on them and have turned their villages into ghost towns, depriving the guerrillas of a base of support.

Three leftist guerrilla organizations—the People's Revolutionary Army, the Popular Liberation Force and the National Resistance—operate in the countryside, but officials said they could not determine which is near here. The guerrillas seek to oust the junta that replaced the rightist government of Gen. Carlos Humberto Romero last October, then launched a program of land reform and nationalized the banks in the spring.

The refugees say the guerrillas are getting more desperate.

Judge Can't Order Evidence Turned Over

McKINNEY (AP)—A state district judge says he lacks the jurisdiction to order Candice Montgomery to give samples of her hair and blood to authorities investigating the brutal ax murder of a Wylie schoolteacher.

"Until the defendant is indicted—if she is—this court has no jurisdiction in the case," Judge Tom Ryan ruled Wednesday. Prosecutors had asked Ryan to order Mrs. Montgomery to give them the samples, but the judge said the jurisdiction rested with Justice of the Peace Glen Swaner.

Swaner issued the arrest warrant for Mrs. Montgomery on June 26 and set her bond at $100,000.

Judge Ryan also lifted the gag order he had imposed last week, adding that until a new ban is imposed, "everyone has the right to run off at the mouth."

Don Crowder, one of Mrs. Montgomery's attorneys, said he would seek a new gag order covering "everyone involved in the case—attorneys, law enforcement officers and investigators. Everyone."

Crowder said publicly in the case had made him "sick to death," and that he would ask Swaner to impose the order. District attorney Tom O'Connell said the Collin County grand jury would "continue its investigation" into the case, but he did not expect an indictment to be returned before the end of next week.

He said that Swaner had scheduled an examining trial for Mrs. Montgomery on July 10, and that before then the district attorney's office may file applications for search warrants. Betty Gore, 30, an acquaintance of Mrs. Montgomery, was "nacked" to death in her home June 15 by a killer wielding a three-foot pole ax. Small bloody footprints were found near the body and a thumbprint was lifted from the blood-smeared refrigerator.

Blood and hair were found in the Gore's bathtub, leading investigators to believe the murderer washed off the victim's blood before leaving the house.

Mrs. Montgomery furnished investigators with her fingerprints and two pairs of shoes, but on the advice of her attorneys refused to take a polygraph examination or give hair and blood samples. Sheriff's deputies impounded her car last Friday to search for evidence.

Canada's birth rate has dropped from 46 births per 1,000 people a century ago to 16 per 1,000 today.

Personality changes

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—Starting a few years ago my husband underwent a personality change. He had a loss of memory for awhile and I'm not sure whether he had a little stroke or not. He does take medicine for his heart and circulation.

One of the things which really worries me is that he has a problem with sex because he develops a pressure or tightness in his chest. What would cause this? I love him but every time I try to show any affection it doesn't please him. He gets so moody and depressed. What could make a nice man change like this?

It's getting more and more difficult to live with him because of his moods and because he doesn't even like to talk to me part of the time. This is entirely different from the way he used to be. I sure wish you could give me some answers to help.

DEAR READER—This is a relatively common problem. Our personality, judgment and even character are all related to basic functions in our brain. The brain is literally a storage computer for instructions that control our behavior. It's true that some people inherit certain characteristics but these can be modified by life experiences.

When a person has a stroke or the brain is damaged for any reason, these instructions may become garbled because of basic anatomical and chemical changes in the brain itself. When that happens a person's behavior may be significantly altered. In some instances the individual can't do a thing about it. The classic example is the minister's wife who's shocked when she goes into the hospital room and finds that her previously gentle, kind husband uses foul language and abuses her.

Some of these changes are related to circulatory problems that can be improved. Others are not. All of these changes fall into the group of altered behavior sometimes classified as senility. A person doesn't have to be old, however, for some of these characteristics to develop. In other instances, older people have underlying medical problems which might be treated.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 14-2, The Aging Mind, to give you a better picture of some of the things that happen. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. I'd like to emphasize that anyone who develops significant changes of this nature should have a very complete medical examination. It's true that many individuals can't be helped but that's no excuse for not helping those who can.

One of the people who should be involved in evaluating such problems is a psychiatrist. A large number of older people have changes because they really are suffering from a depression. There are medicines and other forms of treatment available which can provide significant help when this proves to be the cause.

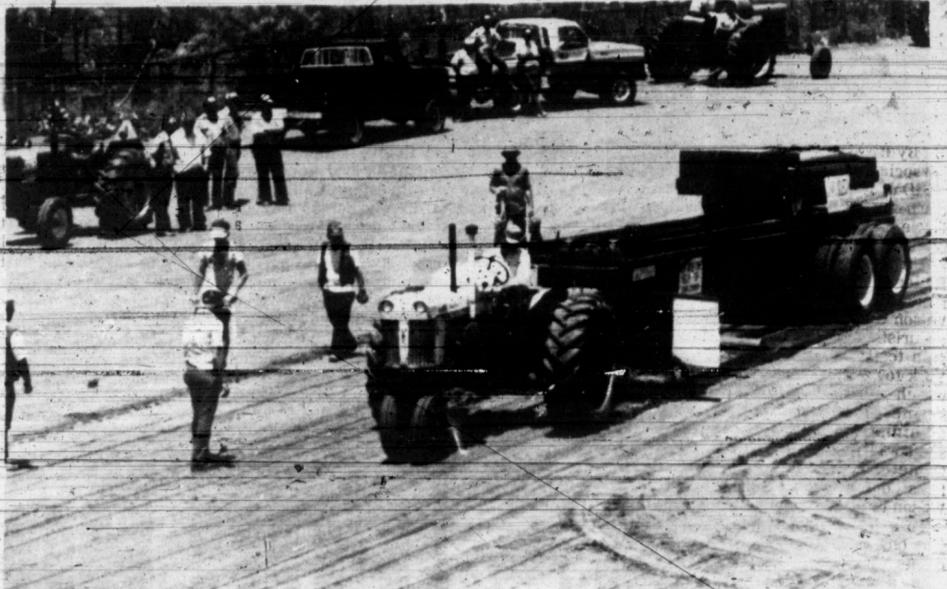

Now about your husband's chest pain during sex, that may be caused by his underlying heart disease. It could be from overworking his heart just the same as a person develops chest pain from other forms of exertion if he has a severe underlying heart problem.

Despite Heat Wave, Drought...

Expects Record Wheat Crop

WASHINGTON (AP)—Despite the heat wave and areas of severe drought in parts of the Great Plains, a senior government economist says he thinks farmers still will harvest a record wheat crop this year.

Moreover, says Howard W. Hjort, it's too early to be greatly alarmed over the corn crop, easily the most abundant and important of the U.S. grains. But Hjort, who is the chief economist and policy analyst for the Agriculture Department, said the heat and dry weather have taken a terrible toll in the nation's midsection, including the northern plains, where spring-planted crops and pastures have been hurt.

Not much hard information will be known for another week when, on July 11, the USDA issues a monthly report on 1980 crop production, including the first estimate of total U.S. wheat production and its first 1980 corn figures.

Last month the department estimated 1980 winter wheat output at a record level. Planted in the fall for harvest the following summer, winter wheat makes up about 75 percent of the total U.S. wheat production.

"In total, one would still expect to see a record wheat crop this year, of all wheat," Hjort said in an interview late Wednesday.

"I would judge that most of the winter wheat was sufficiently mature so that it (the heat wave) would have only a slight negative effect on that crop," he said.

"Clearly, there will be a record winter wheat crop. The spring wheat crop has been in trouble—the only question is the magnitude in the decline from last year." But in the northern plains region, including the Dakotas and Hjort's home state of Montana, there "are parts of it where they're not going to harvest much of a crop at all" this year, he said.

"Any of those spring crops have to have been hurt," including spring-planted wheat, barley, oats, flaxseed and sunflowers, he said. Besides that, "Pastures are poor, the hay crop is poor, hay prices are high and some farmers and ranchers are being forced to sell livestock prematurely or truck hay from long distances."

In the southern plains, particularly in Texas—which has more than half of the nation's cotton acreage—Hjort said some of the cotton crop will be affected. Grain sorghum, called milo, also has been hit hard, but probably not as severely so far as barley or oats, Hjort said.

Although corn is grown in parts of the heat-ridden

Great Plains—classified as all or part of 10 states running from Texas to Montana—and is being hurt, most is grown in the more humid areas of the Midwest and South where, according to Hjort, moisture supplies appear to be adequate right now for the crop to hang on.

Most soybeans, a prime source of high-protein meal for feed and vegetable oil, are grown in corn areas and also are planted in the spring.

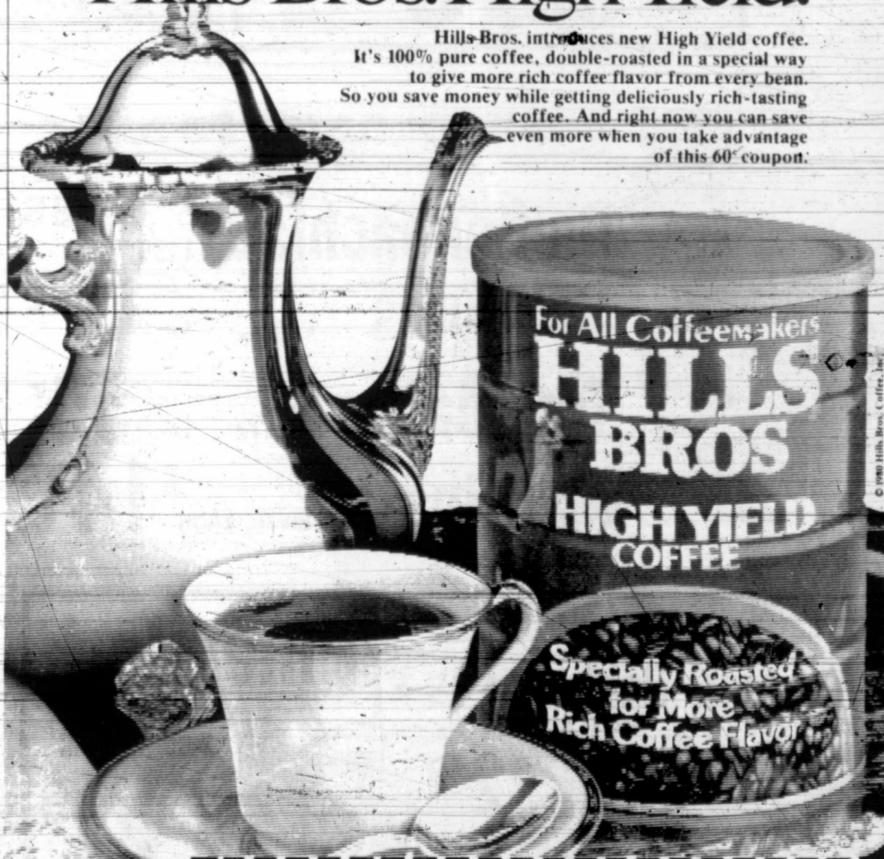

"I think through a broad spectrum of the country... there is a situation where I don't think there's any major damage (to corn), but it is vulnerable," Hjort said.

Corn's most critical period is now and in August, when the crop requires sufficient moisture for it to develop grain for harvest in the fall.

U.S. farmers are expected to plant nearly 79.5 million acres of wheat this year.

Symbol Of Uncle Sam Began With Meatpacker

By BEN WALKER
Associated Press Writer
TROY, N.Y. (AP)—Just down the road from the Uncle Sam Pipe and Supply shop, and just up the hill from the Uncle Sam Federal Credit Union, rests the grave of Sam Wilson.

Tourists won't beat a path to this eastern New York town to see the site, which is a national shrine. John Burridge, administrator of the sprawling Oakwood Cemetery, says most folks don't even know Wilson is buried there.

"To a lot of people, it's just one of 50,000 internments," he says.

But according to a legend—disputed by some historians but embraced by Congress—America's symbol of Uncle Sam began here with Sam Wilson.

Every Sept. 13—Wilson's birthday—the local politicians trudge up the hill to the gravesite and read speeches, and high school bands play patriotic songs.

"Governor Hugh Carey's daughter was even here last year," Burridge says with a proud smile. Who was Sam Wilson, who died here in 1854 at the ripe old age of 87?

He was a meatpacker, and a pretty popular one, according to the stories. He was also very critical against America's during the War of 1812. Sam Wilson spoke to civic groups urging an all-out effort, and soon the U.S. Army appointed him, Inspector of Provisions for the upstate area, asking him to provide 300 barrels of prime beef.

The meat went out in white oak casks, clearly stamped with the initials "EA-US."

A few months later, Gov. Daniel Tompkins went to a Troy army post to inspect the food condition. While there, the stories say, Tompkins asked soldiers what the initials on the barrels stood for. He was told the "EA" stood for Elbert Anderson, a food contractor.

The "US" actually stood for "United States" but the local soldiers, who had known Sam Wilson for years, told the governor it stood for "Uncle Sam" Wilson, the man supplying their meat. The allusion quickly spread to neighboring troops, who said that "Uncle Sam" was watching out for them. The nickname reached New York City in 1813, and was picked up by the Federalist press' political cartoons. Within a decade, government employees in Washington were telling visitors they worked for "Uncle Sam." Shortly thereafter, a red, white and blue pin-striped figure appeared on the nation's stages.

Some historians contend "Uncle Sam" began with stamping of "US" on government property. But the 86th Congress of the United States adopted a resolution in 1959 making the grave of Sam Wilson of Troy "progenitor of the symbol 'Uncle Sam'—a national shrine."

"Well, we know he's here," Burridge says, "and we're proud of it."

Says Federal Report...

3 Mile Island Getting More Risky By Hour

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—A new federal report says the Three Mile Island nuclear plant is getting more dangerous by the hour, but the plant's owners say that's partly because of too much federal interference.

"The longer it takes to remove the radioactivity from inside the plant, the more likely it is that further accidental releases of radioactivity will occur," said the report, released Wednesday by the Senate's Environment and Public Works subcommittee.

The study concluded that the chance of radiation releases—or even a reheating of the reactor core—is increasing because of cleanup complications.

The committee, which is monitoring the Three Mile Island cleanup, said the accident should not be considered over. "The likelihood of further accidents increases with time," the report said.

"At present, the plant's condition is not fully known...further deterioration can be assumed. Damaged and unattended equipment may fail and there is the potential for human error," it added.

Ken McKee of General Public Utilities, parent company of plant operator Metropolitan Edison, said some of the delay in the cleanup is inevitable because the operation is "unprecedented in scope and application of state-of-the-art cleanup technology."

But he said vague guidelines and step-by-step Nuclear Regulatory Commission approval procedures also contributed to the problems.

"We need some firm guidelines under which we can operate," he said, as well as advance NRC approval of entire cleanup methods.

Latest estimates indicate the cleanup will cost significantly more than the initial $400 million estimated and may take until 1985.

The first step in decontaminating the reactor containment building, the release of 57,000 curies of radioactive krypton gas, has been under way since the weekend.

Plant spokesman Sandy Polon said 21 percent of the krypton trapped in the containment building since the accident 15 months ago had been released into the atmosphere by Wednesday evening.

Huge Phone Rate Increase Feared

AUSTIN (AP)—Ma Bell is keeping her mouth closed, but a Public Utility Commission lawyer says the phone company might try to "sock it to" some customers when it files its rate hike request.

In the next few days Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. will ask for a statewide rate increase of about $300 million, spokesman Dale Johnson said Wednesday.

Johnson would not divulge specifics of the rate request, but PUC lawyer Allen King speculated Wednesday on the nature of the request.

"I have a feeling the rate increase and how much is going to be unusually significant to the business community in this case," King said.

He predicted Bell would "sock it to" customers of private line service, which includes burglar and fire alarm services.

He said Bell "always asks for" an increase in ordinary residential telephone rates and this case should be no exception.

"My information is they will not ask for any long distance increase, but we probably will because it hasn't been increased since 1976," King said.

Southwestern Bell serves about 4 million customers in Texas.

Pope John Paul II Again Defends Celibacy

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (AP) — Pope John Paul II again defended priestly celibacy and rebuffed Roman Catholic leaders who contend that such restrictions must be relaxed because of the decline in the number joining the priesthood.

Ordaining a group of deacons before a throng of nearly 200,000 in the world's largest soccer stadium, the pontiff warned them that their church has not changed its requirement that priests remain celibate and its opposition to marriage for priests.

"Do not delude yourselves," the pope said, "that a priesthood less austere in its demands for sacrifice and renunciation — as, for example, in the discipline of celibacy — will attract more people to follow Christ. Quite the contrary — daily sacrifice keeps alive the evangelical ideal."

It was John Paul's second address Wednesday restating a conservative guideline for the church. He reiterated his opposition to political action by the clergy in a speech to the Latin American Episcopal Committee, telling the international council of bishops that their church is above "economic and political systems and ideologies." He said political parties and public office are reserved for the laity while priests should stick to their spiritual mission.

The poverty-stricken Catholics of one of Rio de Janeiro's teeming shantytowns were richer today by one gold ring — stripped by the pope from his finger and presented to their parish priest after he visited their slum chapel.

"I want to leave my ring with your parish," said the pope in Portuguese, the national language, to a barefoot crowd of 150 jammed in the narrow, unpaved alleys of the favela, or shantytown, known as Vidigal, the teeming home of some 15,000 Brazilians.

The crowd applauded politely as the ring was passed to the parish priest, known as Brother Benjamin, outside the Chapel of St. Francis of Assisi. An official of the parish said the slum dwellers would meet to decide what to do with the ring.

A Vatican spokesman said the simple gold band decorated with a square Greek cross was given to John Paul by his predecessor, the late Pope Paul VI, in 1967 when he made him a cardinal in 1967.

The gesture was reminiscent of Pope Paul's presentation of his jeweled papal tiara to the United Nations when he visited its headquarters in New York in 1965. The tiara was exhibited on tour to raise money to aid the hungry. The ring was valued at about $1,000 but could bring a great deal more if sold at auction.

"In the whole world, the church wants to be the church of the poor," the pontiff said as he walked the main streets of Vidigal. "Remember that the value of man is not measured by what he has, but what he is."

He assailed the rich, "whose idol is profit and pleasure... May the truth disturb them." Today, the fourth day of the pope's 12-day tour of Brazil, he was flying south to Sao Paulo, South America's biggest city and Brazil's industrial center.

Appeals Court Affirms Case

The case of James Darwin Brewer has been affirmed by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals.

In affirming the case, the appeals court upheld the conviction of Brewer, who received a penitentiary sentence on a charge of theft of services.

Brewer was alleged to have failed to pay a bill he incurred while staying at the Travel Lodge.

Residents in at least four cities - Wichita Falls, Dallas, Houston and Abilene - suffered Wednesday through the hottest July 2 on record.

The heat wave, which has sent the mercury past the 100 degree mark for 20 straight days there also, brought temperatures Wednesday of 114 at Wichita Falls, 110 at Dallas-Fort Worth, 106 at Abilene and Waco, and 103 at Houston, Austin and San Antonio. It was 105 in Snyder.

At the same time, humidity was 16 percent at Wichita Falls and Abilene, 21 percent at Dallas-Fort Worth and 35 percent at Houston.

Temperatures are expected to reach about 105 the next couple of days.

Forecasters for the weather service predicted 100-plus temperatures for at least one more week, possibly for the rest of July.

Wednesday marked the 10th consecutive day of record-breaking temperatures at Dallas-Fort Worth and the ninth in a row for Wichita Falls. Weather men looked back to 1911 to find another year with 13 days over 100 degrees.

Highest temperatures reached 119 at Presidio and 117 at Wichita Falls last month. Dallas reached an all-time high of 113.

"If we don't get a break in the weather the next three or four days, we will see a real catastrophe in our state as far as agriculture is concerned," said Texas Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown.

The hot and dry weather has destroyed some crops and sharply reduced others, Brown said.

The heat wave has been blamed for the deaths of about 60 Texans, two-thirds of them in Dallas, since the temperatures began to climb over the century mark on June 23.

The casualty list is certain to climb, says an investigator for the Dallas County medical examiner.

"We will reach a plateau and then there will be a second wave of deaths. The first wave claimed its weakest victims, but in the second wave more will die as more and more people walked away from his babysitter. His body was found a few hours later behind a home, and investigators said his body temperature an hour and a half later was 103 degrees.

Officials said the body temperature was 110 degrees or higher on several heat victims whose bodies were found inside their "very hot" houses.

Among the latest victims was a 19-month-old child who was reported to have been found dead in his home. His body was found a few hours later behind a home, and investigators said his body temperature an hour and a half later was 103 degrees.

3 Misdemeanor Thefts Reported

Three misdemeanor thefts were reported to police Wednesday.

Donny Franks, 306 28th St., reported the theft of a $15 gasoline can, plus $14 in gasoline. Vernon Simmons, also of 306 28th St., reported the theft of 20 gallons of gasoline. Those two cases were worked by Sgt. Jerry Parker.

The other theft was worked by Buddy Kinney. In it, Grady Sellers reported the theft of a tackle box from his residence. Value of the tackle box and its contents was placed at $100.

American League...

Oglivie Heads All-Stars

NEW YORK (AP)—Ben Oglivie of the Milwaukee Brewers heads a list of 14 American League players chosen to participate in their first All-Star game next Tuesday in Los Angeles, AL President Lee McPhail said today.

Oglivie, the fourth-leading vote-getter among outfielders, probably will start for the American League since Jim Rice of the Boston Red Sox is disabled with a broken wrist, the league said.

Oglivie, hitting .332 with 21 homers and 56 runs batted in, joined Al Bumbry of the Baltimore Orioles, Rickey Henderson of the Oakland A's, Ken Landreaux of the Minnesota Twins, Al Oliver of the Texas Rangers and Jorge Orta of the Cleveland Indians on the AL's list of outfielders chosen to support those elected by the fans.

Reggie Jackson of the New York Yankees, Boston's Fred Lynn and teammate Rice were the elected outfielders. Rice, however, is one of three leading vote-getters who will miss the game because of injury.

Also injured are second baseman Paul Molitor of the Brewers (rib cage) and third baseman George Brett of the Kansas City Royals (ankle). They are expected to attend the game along with Rice, but they will not play.

Starting in place of Molitor will be either Bobby Grich of the California Angels or Willie Randolph of the Yankees. Either Graig Nettles of the Yankees or Buddy Bell of the Texas Rangers will start in place of Brett.

Backing up Yankees shortstop Bucky Dent will be Robin Yount of the Brewers and Alan Trammell of the Detroit Tigers. Cecil Cooper of the Brewers was chosen as the substitute first baseman, supporting 12-time All-Star Rod Carew of California.

Carlton Fisk of the Red Sox was the leading vote-getter at catcher, and he will get help from Lance Parrish of Detroit and Darrell Porter of Kansas City.

The AL pitchers were selected Wednesday by Manager Earl Weaver of the Orioles. They were relievers Tom Burgmeier of Boston, Ed Farmer of the Chicago White Sox and Rick Gossage of the Yankees, and starters Larry Gura of Kansas City, Rick Honeycutt of the Seattle Mariners, Tommy John of the Yankees, Dave Stieb of the Toronto Blue Jays and Steve Stone of the Orioles.

Those participating in their first All-Star game besides Oglivie are pitchers Burgmeier, Farmer, Gura, Honeycutt, Stieb and Stone; catcher Parrish; infielders Trammell and Yount, and outfielders Bumbry, Henderson, Landreaux and Orta.

The Yankees placed the most men on the AL All Stars, six Milwaukee and Boston each had four players selected, but one from each club is disabled. The Royals had three players selected. Baltimore, Detroit, Texas and California placed two apiece on the roster, and Cleveland, Toronto, Chicago, Seattle, Minnesota and Oakland will be represented by one player each.

Rangers, Perry Pop Seattle

SEATTLE (AP)—Texas right-hander Gaylord Perry made sure Rangers Manager Pat Corrales didn't have to use his erratic bullpen Wednesday afternoon. Despite struggling briefly in the ninth inning and Juan Beniquez's leadoff homer in the fourth, the only other time the Mariners got to Perry was the fifth. They got the first two runners aboard on singles, then scored on a double-play grounder. He was mixing his fork-ball with his fastball," said Corrales, who indicated Perry would have faced one more batter if he had failed to retire Walton. The Mariners had picked up their first run on Bob Stinson's two-out single.

Corrales went to the mound and said he told Perry to "get the ball down and get a double-play ball to kill the inning. That's what he did."

Seattle left-hander Rick Honeycutt, 7-6, worked the first 51-3 innings and got the loss. He'll represent the Mariners in the All-Star game next week.

"I'm having trouble with my fastball," said Honeycutt, who has lost five straight after opening the season with six victories.

"I walked hitters I shouldn't have and was making bad pitches in bad situations."

Meanwhile, Perry coasted. He said a shoving incident with the Seattle team photographer Tuesday night was not a distraction despite catcalls from the Mariner fans.

When people get on Perry, "the tougher he gets," Texas catcher Jim Sundberg added.

UIL Says Camp Rule Is Not Unconstitutional

HOUSTON (AP)—University Interscholastic League attorney Bob Gauss has denied a UIL rule banning participation in summer camps is unconstitutional.

"The right to participate in athletics is not a constitutional right," Gauss said Wednesday during final arguments of a suit challenging the constitutionality of the league rule. "This rule does not prohibit anyone from going to a summer camp."

"The rule only says if they go, they are ineligible to participate in varsity athletics in basketball and football for one year," Gauss said. "What we are saying is that the UIL has the right to regulate the competition of its members and as a part of that right, they have passed this regulation."

Speaking for plaintiffs Alex and Larry Harris, attorney T. Gerald Treece said the UIL rule violates the constitutional right of "family choice" of parents in educating their children.

U.S. District Judge George Cline heard final arguments in the suit Wednesday. The judge will issue a ruling in the case sometime after Monday, the deadline for the UIL to file its final brief in the case.

"What we have here are parents making a decision on what is best for their kids whether it is to go to summer camp or to the grocery store," Treece said. "Then the state comes along and puts a penalty on these kids—a one year's loss of eligibility."

Gauss said the rule prevented individual schools from sending an entire team to one camp where it could work together in the summer and gain an unfair advantage over other schools. It also avoids discrimination against poor athletes, who could not afford to participate in summer camps, he said.

"I don't think the UIL would tell parents they couldn't send their child to a summer camp to learn German because they might gain an unfair advantage over other children," Treece said.

"Yet, they say a parent, who has the right to educate his own child, can't send him to a summer camp."

"The UIL could very well pass a rule that says any contestants in UIL competition will be restricted to training they get in school and any student who goes to special training may not compete against the other students," Gauss said.

Lloyd Tops Navratilova; Connors Advances Too

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Chris Evert Lloyd dethroned two-time defending Wimbledon champion Martina Navratilova 4-6, 6-4, 6-2 today to reach the women's final against Evonne Goolagong.

The women's final, set for Friday, thus becomes a rematch of the 1976 championship round in which Lloyd won her second Wimbledon title with a thrilling 6-3, 4-6, 8-6 victory. Goolagong, seeded fourth this year to Lloyd's third, won in 1971.

Evert reached the final for the sixth time in eight years. The winner will get $42,000.

The semifinal began with erratic play by both women. But Lloyd stepped up her game as the match went on, and throughout the final set Navratilova was struggling to hold on to her crown.

Earlier, Jimmy Connors came from behind twice to defeat Roscoe Tanner 1-6, 6-2, 4-6, 6-2, 6-2 today for a place in the men's semifinals.

Connors, seeded third, will play No. 2 John McEnroe on Friday. Defending champion Bjorn Borg faced Brian Gottfried in the other semifinal later today. A crowd of 16,000 saw the Connors-Tanner duel on Center Court. It lasted 2 1/2 hours.

Tanner, beaten by Borg in last year's final, began with a stream of booming services and aed Connors five times in the first set.

WTC Hosts Low-Ball Meet

Western Texas College Golf Course will host a four-player, Florida Scramble, July 4.

Anyone interested may register by calling 573-9291 or going by the golf shop at the college. Entry fee will be $10 per player, plus an additional $5 green fee for non-members. The entry fees will go towards merchandise certificates to the winning teams in each flight.

Flight A will consist of low handicappers (at least two players with handicaps 8 and under). Flight B will include teams with each player having a handicap of 9 or above.

Players may form their own teams or be placed on a foursome by course manager Bob O'Day.

The tournament is open to the first 32 teams. Sixteen teams will tee off at 9 a.m. An additional 16 will leave at 2 p.m.

Netters Gear Up For '4th' Tourney

Snyder's annual Fourth of July Tennis Tournament begins Friday at 9 a.m. with its junior division.

Junior players are requested to meet at the high school tennis courts promptly at the starting time.

Adult play will begin at 5:30 p.m. Friday and conclude Saturday afternoon. Junior play may extend to Saturday also.

Some 80 individuals from a number of area locations are expected to complete in the tournament, according to meet director Margaret Sherrod.

Cities represented include Snyder, Hermleigh, Dallas, Abilene, Midland, Colorado City and Post.

At last check, mixed doubles was to be the largest field in the tournament. Men's singles and doubles were next.

'FOURTH' COMPETITOR—Ira Jay Clark is one of a number of area youth who will be competing in Snyder's annual Fourth of July Tennis Tournament here Friday and Saturday. Clark, who has been receiving instruction from the Scurry County Boy's Club this summer, entered his first tournament several weeks ago—at Hamlin—and took first place in the 12 and under group. He won four matches without losing a set. (SDN STAFF PHOTO)

Others May Be On Ballot

AUSTIN (AP)—Rep. John Anderson's recent visits to Texas should remind voters there may be other choices for the next U.S. President than Jimmy Carter and Ronald Reagan.

Ever hear of Andrew Puley? Ed Clark? Barry Commoner?

What about a feminine presidential candidate, like Diederé Griswold? Some of those may be on the Texas general election ballot.

And still other names will be on the ballot, outside the Democratic and Republican columns, seeking election from Texas to Congress or the Legislature.

Anderson told supporters in Austin he felt certain of getting the 40,719 signatures of qualified voters by July 14 that would put him on Texas' Nov. 4 ballot as an independent candidate for president. He has similar hopes in at least 40 other states.

In fact, Anderson urged backers to turn in considerably more than 41,900 signatures as early as July 4th to allow time for expected testing in the courts.

Anderson's campaigners have been following instructions of Secretary of State George Strake, a Republican, and allowing Democrats who voted in Texas' Democrats non-binding presidential poll May 3 to sign Anderson's petitions. Attorney General Mark White, a Democrat, said this is illegal, and Anderson's signers should not include anyone who voted Republican or Democratic on May 3.

Supporters of President Jimmy Carter fear Anderson's name on the ballot could siphon off Democratic votes, particularly among college-age voters where Anderson has directed much of his campaign.

But whether Anderson makes the Texas ballot or not, there likely will be several third parties qualified, which only have to produce 26,000 signatures making active campaigns are the Citizens Party with Commoner for president, Libertarians Ed Clark and the Socialist Workers Andrew Puley. The Secretary of State says these three parties are "timely filed" and only have to produce the legal petitions.

A number of other third parties made preliminary moves toward the Texas ballot but did not complete the process. However, if they produced enough legal signatures they likely could get a court order to appear on the ballot. These include the Workers World Party, whose presidential candidate Diederé Griswold was in Austin, San Antonio and the Rio Grande Valley last week.
