Consumer Prices Up Again In June

WASHINGTON (AP)—Propelled by rising food and housing costs, consumer prices in June rose at an annual rate of 12.4 percent, slightly higher than the month before, the government said today. The Labor Department reported that consumer prices in June increased 1 percent, compared with 0.9 percent rises in both May and April. The annual rate during those two months was about 11 percent.

For the first six months of this year, inflation - as measured by the consumer price index - accelerated at a 14.8 percent seasonally adjusted spendable earnings which subtract Social Security payments and federal income taxes - were down 7.7 percent. Despite June's slight increase, the inflation rate is proving more moderate than earlier this year when it stood at more than an 18 percent annual level. The Labor Department reported that four-fifths of June's 1 percent increase was due to housing prices and mortgage costs. That entire component jumped 1.8 percent, but officials said it should show sharp declines soon.

"Mortgage interest rates have declined, but did not show up in June's figures," said Labor Department economist Patrick Jackman. "We know they will turn around drastically next month, but we aren't quite sure about home prices," he said.

Food prices, due largely to the heat wave that has struck the Midwest and South, are expected to rise strongly beginning in late summer. Once this begins, particularly for beef, consumers could expect a period of six months to a year of generally upward prices, Jackman suggested.

Besides housing and food, most other consumer goods continued to show moderate rates of increase - a trend that began in April.

Verdict Prompts Violence

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—A rash of suspected firebombings, brick-throwing and looting broke out overnight in a predominantly black section of Chattanooga after a jury acquitted two of three Ku Klux Klansmen charged with shooting four black women.

The third Klansman was found guilty of reduced assault charges in the verdict returned by an all-white jury Tuesday.

No one was seriously hurt in the disturbances.

High Court Upholds Ruling

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)—The Texas Supreme Court today upheld lower court decisions that Southwestern Bell Telephone and a Houston fabrics shop must pay $182,220 to a woman who tripped on a moulding covering a telephone wire.

Without writing a new opinion, the court said there was "no reversible error" in decisions awarding the money to E. Jean Martin and ordering Bell and Hancock Fabrics Inc. to pay it.

Shorter Policies Endorsed

AUSTIN (AP)—Insurance men and consumer groups alike today endorsed a new readable personal automobile insurance policy that would be two-thirds as long as the present standard policy.

The State Insurance Board came close to approving a policy immediately, but then delayed action after discovering it had not been posted for public comment for the 30 days required by the Texas Administrative Procedures Act.

The policy would take effect June 1, 1981, if approved by the board.

Panel Appears To Agree Tax Cut Now Not Wise

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Ways and Means Committee appears to agree with President Carter that no tax-cut bill should be passed this year. Now the president must convince the Senate Finance Committee.

The Finance Committee, under instructions from the Senate Democratic Caucus to produce a tax-reduction plan by Sept. 3, was opening hearings today with testimony from Treasury Secretary G. William Miller.

Miller testified Tuesday before the Ways and Means Committee. To a man, Democratic members agreed with the Carter administration position that action on a tax cut should be delayed until early next year, after the fall elections.

Rep. Al Ullman, D-Ore., the committee chairman, said Americans are "far more concerned about halting inflation than cutting taxes."

But some House Democrats reminded Miller that it isn't easy to oppose tax cuts in an election year, especially when unemployment is rising.

"We are out on a limb for the president," said Rep. Tom Downey, D-N.Y. "He has to be strong, firm and unequivocal" against any tax cut this year. "If he's not," added Downey, "you're going to have a lot of angry Democrats." "And an angry secretary of the treasury as well," offered Miller.

WALKWAYS REPLACED—Walkways on the west side of the bleachers at Tiger Stadium are being replaced. The work started about July 15 and is expected to be completed by Aug. 15. The boards are being replaced by aluminum planks. The work contract was awarded to Eddie Williams, a high school science teacher. Q—How much does the local school system spend on maintenance and upkeep of buildings and grounds?

A—The maintenance budget for the current year, which will end Aug. 31, is approximately $530,000, says E.D. Flynn, assistant superintendent-business. This pays for salaries, supplies and any repairs by contract, or capital improvements needed.

Freight Service Comments Sought

Letters have gone out to members of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce seeking comments on freight service here and response is beginning to reach the chamber office.

Bill Warner, chamber manager, said the comments are being sought as a prelude to a meeting of chamber directors and officials of Merchants Fast Motor Lines to discuss freight service.

The chamber had originally asked that a public meeting be scheduled. However, officials of the

Bombs In Tehran Kill 6 In Downtown District

By The Associated Press Several bombs exploded today in a bustling shopping district in downtown Tehran, killing six persons and injuring nearly 100 others, Tehran Radio reported.

At least one of the bombs exploded on Ferdowsi Avenue, a main street in the center of city, near the Turkish Embassy and the German Consulate, the radio said.

Ferdowsi Avenue, one of the busiest streets in the capital, is lined with shops selling carpets, antiques and other items. A number of embassies are also located there.

The bombs began exploding about 9:30 a.m. - 2:30 p.m. EDT - at a time when the street usually is crowded with shoppers.

The state radio quoted a revolutionary committee spokesman as saying authorities had "clues" to the identities of the bombers. He did not elaborate.

The official Pars news agency said 10 more drug traffickers were executed this morning on orders of the regime's special narcotics court, headed by Ayatollah Sadegh Khalkhali. The state radio also reported the executions of four Iraqi "saboteurs" in oil-rich Khuzestan Province.

We just received a copy of a little booklet written by John J. McKetta, the E.P. Schoch Professor in the Department of Chemical Engineering at the University of Texas in Austin, and it has some comments on the so-called "good old days" that we have considered from time to time, as the modern world seems to be closing in on us.

McKetta said one of his students once asked, "What has all these 2,000 years of development of industry and civilization done for us? Wouldn't we have been happier in 100 B.C.?"

McKetta said, "No. Chances are 97 out of 100 that, if you were not a poor slave, you'd be a poor farmer, living at bare subsistence level."

When people think of ancient times, says McKetta, they think of themselves as members of aristocracy. They are sitting in the Agora in Athens listening to Socrates, in the Senate House in Rome debating with Cicero, riding on horses as knights of Charlemagne time. They are never slaves, never peasants, but that's what most of them would be.

"When were the 'good days' in America?" McKetta looks back 150 years as an example. For one thing, people didn't have to worry about pollution very long—because life was very brief. Life expectancy of males was about 38 years. It was a gruelling 38 years. The work week was 72 hours. The woman's lot was even worse. She worked 98 hours a week scrubbing floors, making clothes by hand, bringing in fire wood, cooking in heavy iron pots, fighting off insects without pesticides. Most of the clothes were rags by present-day standards. There were no fresh vegetables in winter. Vitamin deficiency diseases were prevalent, and homes were cold in winter and sweltering in the summer.

Think how it would have been during the past four or five weeks without any man-made cooling systems! Epidemics were expected yearly, 150 years ago, and chances were great that they would carry off some members of the immediate family. If you think the water pollution is bad now, it was deadly then. In 1793, one person in every five in Philadelphia died in a single epidemic of typhoid as a result of polluted water. Many people of that day never heard a symphony orchestra, and they never traveled more than 20 miles from their birthplace during their entire lifetime.

So, even with its economic and social problems, we'll still take 1980.

The cactus patch philosopher says most of the mistakes of our life come from feeling when we ought to think and thinking when we ought to feel.—WACIL MCNAIR is hardly a marriage made in heaven, but the Republican Party's national ticket could prove to be especially durable and popular in the forthcoming campaign.

DETROIT (NEA)—The political mating of Ronald Reagan and George Bush

As everyone who didn't sleep through the entire Republican National Convention knows by now, Bush was Reagan's second choice for a running mate, chosen only after the abrupt collapse of a torrid but brief political romance between Reagan and former President Gerald R. Ford.

In addition, the lack of any positive personal chemistry between Reagan and Bush suggests that they are something of a political "odd couple." But marriage of convenience are neither unknown nor unfeasible in contemporary campaigns.

When Reagan ran for his first term as governor of California in 1966, for example, he embraced an ideology perhaps more conservative than his current one - but he gracefully and readily bowed to the ticket-balancing exigencies of the time in campaigning alongside Robert H. Finch, the moderate Republican who was running for lieutenant governor.

Reagan's uneasiness with Bush - a man viewed by the GOP presidential nominee as too stiff and aloof - was an ill-kept secret throughout the primaries earlier this year.

Bush's inflexible performance during the Nashua, N.H. debate with Reagan already has become a major piece of 1980 campaign lore, but less publicized was a similar incident that occurred only hours before he was picked by Reagan for the GOP ticket.

The two men sat next to each other at a luncheon that day sponsored by the Polish-American community in nearby Hamtramck, Mich. Bush was so tense and nervous that he spilled soup on himself during the meal. Indeed, before Bush went to the podium in the convention hall that evening to deliver a previously scheduled major address, he was informed that negotiations with Ford were well under way and probably would be successful - thus apparently scuttling his vice-presidential aspirations.

But the need to balance the Republican ticket was especially crucial this year, because Rep. John B. Anderson, R-Ill., threatened to attract moderate and progressive Republicans to his independent candidacy for the presidency.

"The addition of Ford to the ticket would have totally eliminated the Anderson problem," says one knowledgeable Republican insider. "Bush isn't quite that strong, but he'll cut Anderson off at the knees."

Ford might well have been on the Reagan ticket if he hadn't insisted upon the transfer of so much power and authority from the president to the vice president in a Reagan-Ford administration.

"Ford wanted too much," says one senior member of the Reagan campaign staff. "The only thing for Reagan would have been (the Interior Department's Bureau of Indian Affairs)."

were waging high-powered propaganda campaigns replete with rallies, petitions and a blizzard of promotional literature. Bush and his senior campaign staff were quietly yet effectively serving Reagan's cause.

On the second day of the convention, for example, Reagan's political operatives were faced with the threat of opposition to the proposed Republican platform from as many as 10 state delegations - a potential display of disunity the party was determined to avert.

When the Reagan forces traced a substantial portion of that dissent to delegates originally committed to Bush, he was called upon to aid in quelling the nascent uprising.

"Bush cracked heads," says one observer of what followed. "He made it very clear to his people that there were to be no platform fights on the convention floor because bigger things were at stake."

letter to editor

To The Daily News: On July 11-12, I attended an over-night campout for the handicapped of Scurry County at the Lake View Lodge on Colorado City Lake.

This is the second year we have done this for our "kids" and it is fantastic. There were 21 handicapped people and 29 helpers on this outing. We had supper Friday night, cooked our breakfast and lunch on Saturday. The "kids" had the opportunity to camp out, have boat rides, play in the lake and fish. This is something most of our handicapped do not get to do, unless there are some interested people to promote and supervise such a program.

We are fortunate to have people that will help us do this. To see them enjoy themselves in such a tremendous way is very rewarding. A fun time was had by all. We would like to thank all of the helpers, the Scurry County Association for Retarded Citizens, and most of all, the handicapped that took part in this outing. We will have another campout such as this on Aug. 1-2 at Lake View Lodge.

lesson from england

Why can't Americans as a whole see the dangers that now are enveloping this nation because of the mania that appears to be driving the majority actually to want a welfare state and the madness of the liberal sector in viewing the labor union movement as the ultimate in human salvation?

It would be wonderful if every American who has liberal leanings and is straying or has strayed from the corner of capitalism could visit England and study that nation's past and present.

The liberals play see-saw in Texas, but in the elective offices of the state it appears that the liberals as of this date have a slight edge, if not a big one.

The general election looms ever nearer now, and that will be a day of determining the Texas trend. We hope it is back to conservatism and the American Way.

A Texas A&M University economist, Dr. Morgan Reynolds, recently returned from England. He said the British economy has deteriorated to the point where it faces complete failure.

He added, "What we are seeing (there) now is the early stages of collapse of the welfare state. You simply can't run a commune on a nationwide scale. You've got to have rewards for effort; otherwise, people won't do anything."

The economist from Texas had gone to England to attend a conference entitled "The Impact of Trade Unions in Great Britain," sponsored by the Center on National Labor Policy Inc. of Arlington, Va., and the Institute of Economic Affairs in London.

The picture he saw was not pretty. And he blamed British labor unions for the conditions that in 25 years have taken Englishmen from the fourth highest standard of living in the world to 17th today.

Know what the professor reports? He said, "I didn't realize how bad the situation was in England. They are now the poor of Northern Europe. And the situation is especially sad because the English are people who enjoyed prosperity and power so recently in world history."

And heed the professor's warning: "Obviously there is something we can learn from them."

The economist said trade unions contribute 85 percent of the finances received by the British Labor Party, and without trade unions there would be no Labor party, nor would there be socialism in Britain. He pointed out that unions restrict production and "it is gradually sinking through to the public that trade unions have been the impoverisher of England."

Dr. Reynolds said the trade unions "have driven investments overseas and they are overmanning jobs. We call it featherbedding." He added that the unions claim they redistribute wealth or income by taking profits and putting them in the hands of the people. Left in the hands of the real earners, the employers, the profits are a means for economic expansion which in the end, create more jobs, investment and wealth, he said.

"The ability of unions to redistribute wealth in the private sector is very small," he continued. "That's why unions operate through the political marketplace. He pointed out that only government can redistribute income on a large scale. He said, "England is at a turning point. Either it can continue down the path of less and less prosperity, or it will lift the dead hand of government bureaucracy." It is time that Americans, all the way down to the small-town and little-city levels, realize that the plight of England today can very well be America's plight tomorrow, unless we turn sharply to conservatism, drive the unions out of the political marketplace, back far away from the welfare state, and lift the dead hand of government bureaucracy.

I come from a family of pioneers. My mother invented, guilt in 1936.

My dad dedicated his life to trying to get nail holes in the wall to heal themselves.

And according to my children, I introduced the word "No" to the Western world. (Before that time parents used "We'll see.") Their theory is that at first I only used the word to get attention.

Then I started to enjoy it and today it's such a habit I say "No" before they even ask the question.

It's a distinction I don't deserve. I am not the first mother in North America to use the word "No." In fact, there is no doubt in my mind that when historians decipher cave markings of prehistoric cave dwellers and discover etched in a rock a plaintive, "Mom! Can I eat the leftover bear?" her reponse chiseled below will translate into, "No! I'm saving it for lunch!"

The word "No" is finally gaining the respectability among child psychologists it has so long deserved. Some of them are at last spreading the word that "No" means love and character building.

When I told my kids this, they said they already had more character than Mt. Rushmore.

They never understood me. They always thought I got some kind of a cheap thrill out of saying, "No, you can't drift down the Ohio River in a plastic dishpan," and watching them fall around over furniture starting at me with the contempt usually reserved for a mother who picks her children up by the ears.

I don't expect anyone to ever fully appreciate that a mother makes more decisions in one morning than the Supreme Court makes in three years.

"Can I borrow your camera to take to a beach party?"

"You wanta chaperone our three-day-two-night prom?"

"Can I pierce the dog's ears?"

"Will you tell me where you hid the book that condenses every novel ever written so I won't have to read this whole book tonight for my report?"

"Can I wear what I've got on?"

"Can't I stay here for a week by myself?"

"Do you want me to grow up hating you?"

I went shopping with my daughter the other day and as I pulled on a bathing suit I turned around and said, "What do you think? Should I buy it?" She shook her head and said, "No."

"Why not?" I demanded.

"Because your entire body looks like it needs pressing in it. I'm saying no because I love you and it will build your character."

Somehow, it sounded better when I said it.

NEW YORK (AP)—The most profitable way of accumulating wealth today is through the medium of "transcendental capital," says James Dale Davison, the young founder of the National Taxpayers union.

The phrase isn't likely to attain wide usage - but it is one of those easily understood terms like "tax cut" - but for those who want to understand the economy it pays to understand the definition.

Transcendental capital, says Davison, possesses rights and powers that other capital, such as your savings account, can't even approach. It is very popular today. Your neighbor uses it; you probably use it too.

And yet, it isn't even capital in the conventional sense. "It is merely a substitute by which an individual enjoys returns on capital owned by someone else," says Davison in his new book, "The Squeeze."

Politicians use it. It keeps many of them in power, says Davison. Strip them of their ability to take your capital and redistribute it - for votes, of course - and some would lose their seats, he says.

Chrysler, which lost its ability to raise conventional capital, has learned to tap transcendental capital in the form of government loans, Davison points out. So did Lockheed and General Dynamics, he says.

He isn't through with his list. "Doctors, lawyers, and other professionals also profit mightily from regulations which grant them an effective claim on productive wealth," he says. And others too.

It includes recipients of welfare payments, jobless benefits, and income-transfer programs "which have come to include disability payment for just about any hurt." To say nothing of pensions.

Davison says that one consequence of transcendental capital, the definition of which seems to be based in its transcending the legal power, and that it destroys productive capital.

And if that happens, he suggests, there won't be any conventional capital left to transcend or redistribute.

Nearly everyone has had the frustration of receiving a phone message, restaurant bill or mechanic's receipt and not been able to read more than any three words. Whatever the intent, some messages and signatures are so illegible that they are almost unrecognizable.

We must excuse ourselves of today's terrible handwriting because of the communications gadgetry, telephones, typewriters, computer print-outs and others.

There is a Writing Instrument Manufacturers Association now who has done extensive study for this common problem. They continuously strive to help people's awareness of bad handwriting. W.I.M.A. says that business losses are as much as $200 million, lost yearly as a result of illegible records and messages.

Stoppily filled-out returns hamper tax collections while indecipherable addresses account for much of the 38 million pieces of mail that wind up in the dead-letter office at a cost of nearly $4 million a year for extra handling.

Terrible handwriting is really not a new problem. Even the white house has set forth bad examples of penmanship. Among the recent presidents, Richard Nixon's script was barely legible, while John Kennedy's was so erratic that he seldom signed his own name the same way twice.

Though Jimmy Carters' handwriting is clear, it seems elementary style when compared with other Chief Executives like George Washington and Thomas Jefferson with their flowing lines of neat penmanship.

Among professionals, doctors continue to live up to their reputations as the worst scribblers, among the worst, guilty of this quirk, according to studies are general surgeons, urologists, followed closely by gynecologists and cardiac surgeons.

The hurried nature of the modern society is responsible for the "hen scratch." But, some experts say there are other reasons. Bad handwriting is a way of sometimes saying something and taking it back at the same time. People scrawl signatures on material for which they don't want to be held responsible.

We are not all blessed with John Hancock's writing skill so they offer a suggestion for those of us who give priority to speed rather than clarity. Sit properly. Watch out for tricky letters like a, e, b, and r and last but not least, think of the person receiving what you write.

nine top tricks at spades. He has to find a 10th trick.

He can get that 10th trick in hearts or clubs. He needs a 3-3 break in hearts which has a 36 percent chance. He needs a 3-2 break in clubs which has a 68 percent chance. Obviously, clubs is the suit to work on.

South leads ace and a small club and is happy to see that the suit did break 3-2. A second diamond is led and South must ruff. Now he leads another club. East wins and leads a third diamond.

South has been careful to leave trumps alone up to this tie. Now he must be careful not to trump at this stage of the proceedings. Instead he discards a heart that was going to be a loser anyway.

The defense is now helpless. If another diamond is led, South ruffs in dummy; if a heart is led, South wins in dummy. Either way South has been able to keep four top trumps which are enough to pull East's teeth.

This hand illustrates the case when you cannot pull trumps because you must keep trumps in dummy to protect your own.

Insurance Board Adopts New Advertising Rules

By LEE JONES
AUSTIN (AP)—The State Insurance Board has adopted new truth-in-advertising rules that one member says are among the nation's toughest.

The rules, which take effect in six months, require insurers to disclose policy loopholes in their advertising and prohibit deception in advertising of "Medi-Gap" policies for the elderly.

Board staffers began work on the new rules more than three years ago at the direction of former board Chairman Joe Christie, who said existing guidelines allowed too much deceptive advertising to go unchecked.

Board members Bill Daves, Lyndon Olson Jr. and Durwood Manford voted unanimously for the rules.

"These are some of the toughest and probably the strongest advertising rules in the country. They are fair to the consumer and fair to the industry."

The rules provide the kind of strength we as regulators need to make sure consumers are not misled in any form or fashion," Olson said.

A committee of insurance men worked with board staffers Linda Borsheim, Jim Norman and Woody Pogue to put the regulations in final form.

A company that disobeys the rules could, at minimum, receive a cease and desist order from the board and could be fined or placed under direct board supervision.

While most advertising complaints stem from promotion of hospitalization insurance, the rules also cover life and property and casualty insurance ads.

Old persons complained at hearings in November and December of widespread deception in marketing "Medi-Gap" policies, advertised as covering "everything that Medicare doesn't pay."

Previous guidelines allowed health insurance advertisers to gloss over the fact that their policies contained major limitations and exclusions.

For the first time, the board will regulate advertising for health maintenance organizations and prepaid legal service plans.

The new rules include these requirements or prohibitions:

- An advertisement may not say "no medical examination required" if, in fact, the policy does not cover pre-existing ailments. If a medical examination is required, the advertisement must say so if it includes an application form.
- Medi-Gap and other advertisements may not be printed or packaged in such a way that a person might be tricked into thinking it came from a city, state or federal government.

-Applications attached to health insurance advertisements must include a place for the customer to say he or she understands that benefits will not be paid for a certain period of time for pre-existing ailments.

-A Medi-Gap advertisement headed "Important Notice" will be presumed automatically to be decep-ive. -If the cost of a policy is higher because premiums are collected in person at the policyholder's home, an advertisement must say so. This rule, directed at so-called industrial insurance that is sold mainly to the poor, was requested by the Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now (ACORN). -Negative features of a policy, such as a waiting period before it takes effect or an exclusion of pre-existing diseases, may not be advertised in positive terms, such as calling a waiting period a "benefit builder." -Disability policies may not be advertised in terms such as "extra income" or "extra cash" that would lead one to believe he or she will make a profit from being in the hospital. -Policies may not be advertised with such terms as "investment plan" or "profit sharing" that would mislead purchasers to think they are getting more than an insurance policy. -Advertisements may not imply or state that dividends are guaranteed and illustrations of policy dividends must be based on an insurer's present dividend scale. -Insurance companies must keep copies of their advertisements on file for three years and make them available for inspection by board examiners.

For White House...

Billy Carter Was Libyan Connection

By Michael J. Sniffen
WASHINGTON (AP) President Carter's national security adviser capitalized on Billy Carter's controversial relations with the Libyan government by using him as a go-between in seeking Libya's assistance in an effort to gain release of the American hostages in Iran, White House officials say.

The revelation marks the first acknowledgment by White House officials that the president's gregarious, plain-spoken younger brother, who reluctantly registered with the Justice Department last week as an agent of the Libyan government, played any role in U.S. foreign policy. Presidential press secretary Jody Powell, in a lengthy briefing Tuesday on the controversy swirling about Billy Carter, said national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski asked him to set up a meeting on Nov. 27, 1979, with Ali el-Houderi, Libya's chief Washington representative. A written statement released by Powell's office noted that the meeting between Brzezinski, Houderi and Billy Carter took place "three weeks after the seizure of the hostages in Iran, and the United States was exploring every possible avenue of contact with the Iranian leaders." Powell said he didn't know whether the president was aware of the meeting. But he also insisted, "There can hardly be any serious thought that the president's brother is in a position to advise the president on foreign policy matters."

While the meeting was unsuccessful in winning the hostages' freedom, Powell said Brzezinski was informed a few weeks later that Col. Moammar Khadafi, leader of Libya's leftist Arab government, had sent a message to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini in Iran calling for their release.

President Carter, in a two-paragraph statement on the controversy, said it was not "appropriate for a close relative of the president to undertake any assignment on behalf of a foreign government," and he called for a full public disclosure of "the existence of any such relationship." The president did not mention his brother's receipt of $220,000 from the Libyans, which Billy Carter and the Libyans have characterized as part of a $500,000 loan.

Billy Carter was surrounded by reporters as he left a restaurant at a New York hotel, where he was staying Tuesday night. When a reporter held up a newspaper with the headline, "White House Says: Asked Billy Aid on Hostages," the president's brother said: "Paper's right." He refused further comment.

The Senate Judiciary Committee is deciding today whether to investigate the Billy Carter-Libyan ties.

Dear Abby

Husband Smokes While Wife Burns

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I can't stand cigarette smoke, but two years ago I married a three-pack-a-day man. I knew it would be hard for Jim to give up smoking altogether, so I told him I'd appreciate it if he wouldn't smoke in our bedroom.

He promised, and for a long time he kept his promise. Then he started to "forget" once in a while, and now he's been smoking in our bedroom regularly.

One night his cigarette rolled off the ashtray and burned a big hole in the nightstand. That did it! I finally said, "OK, Buddy, there are going to be some new rules around here. There will be no lovemaking in the same room you smoke in!"

Knowing Jim, I thought for sure that would cure him, but it didn't. Jim is still smoking in the bedroom, and I'm HUNGRY FOR LOVE

DEAR HUNGRY: You overplayed your hand. Give Jim another chance and remind him of his promise. And insist that he owes it to you to honor that promise. Should he "forget," remind him, and remind him, and remind him. But never withhold marital relations as a means of punishing him.

DEAR ABBY: HEARTSICK PARENTS wrote: "Recently our 25-year-old daughter decided to live with her boyfriend, and now they have a child. They say that marriage may or may not come later. God knows how upset and brokenhearted we have been, but we thought it best to tell our wonderful friends of many years that we were new grandparents."

HEARTSICK PARENTS' complaint was that not one of their friends had written or kept in touch since. They wrote: "How it would have helped to ease our heartsache if they had responded. Do they think that we condone our daughter's lifestyle? (We do not, but we're making the best of it.)"

You replied, "Wonderful friends should be supportive, loving and non-judgmental, so perhaps your friends were not so wonderful after all."

Abby, before "wonderful friends" can be supportive, loving and non-judgmental, the parents must exhibit these traits.

If the new grandparents themselves admit to being "upset and heartbroken," then what can their friends say?

Frankly, if friends told me that they had unfortunately become grandparents, expressing negative feelings about the event, I'd be at a loss for words, too. And perhaps permanently.

ZEPHYR COVE, NEV.

DEAR NEVADA: Thanks for an angle I failed to see. But "wonderful friends" can help "upset and heartbroken" parents understand and endure the unconventional lifestyles of their children. That's when "wonderful friends" are really needed.

DEAR ABBY: An acquaintance of mine sent me an invitation to her daughter's wedding. I have never met the daughter and do not plan to attend the wedding. Neither do I plan to send a wedding gift.

I feel that to ignore the invitation would be rude, so I thought I'd just send the bride and groom a nice card of congratulations.

I have asked the opinions of others about this, and have been told that sending a card with no gift would be worse than ignoring the invitation altogether. Is this true?

ACQUAINTANCE

DEAR ACQUAINTANCE: Not in my book of etiquette.

TV Land Turned Off By Political Programs

NEW YORK (AP) - The networks devoted more than half of last week's prime time to coverage of the Republican National Convention, but it was non-political programming that attracted the most viewers, according to figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co.

"The Jeffersons," a consistent hit on CBS, was the highest-rated show for the week ending July 20, followed by five other CBS shows, including "60 Minutes" in second place and "Alice" in third.

CBS beat the opposition by a narrow margin in the three-way competition for convention viewers, and with help from the half-dozen non-political programs, finished first in the weekly ratings race.

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Nature's way of telling you

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I am a 67-year-old female. Last August I started having trouble with my back. The doctor said that the X-rays showed that the little cushions between my vertebrae in the small of my back were wearing out. I've had spasms troubles like this for years. I went to the hospital for X-rays and was told the same thing. But no one has ever said why the cushions were wearing out and whether it's a disease. I would appreciate any information you can give me.

DEAR READER—We all have those little cushions between the vertebrae. They literally cushion the shock that would normally occur from walking movements which would otherwise jar the spine. They are our shock absorbers.

The painful muscle spasm isn't all bad. It is nature's way of telling you that something is wrong. The spasm helps to splint the area where the damage has occurred. That is also why the muscle spasm will not go away permanently until the underlying cause is corrected. Temporary relief of spasm may make you feel better but it may not solve the basic problem that needs attention.

As the discs become worn or degenerate they tend to rupture or protrude against nerve roots and muscles in that area. This is what causes the back pain.

Patients with this type of problem often do well to strengthen their abdominal muscles and their back muscles. I'm sending you The Health Letter number 13-10, Backache and What to Do about It, which discusses these problems in detail and suggests the kinds of exercises that may be of help to you.

Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Now as I've indicated in The Health Letter I'm sending you, backache is just a symptom. It's very important to find out what causes it. Before beginning an exercise program, including the one I'm sending you, you should go over it with your doctor. During the time there's an acute rupture of a disc between the vertebrae, exercise may actually be detrimental. Once the acute phase is over, strengthening those trunk muscles goes a long way to help prevent recurrent back pain.

It's hard to say why the discs degenerate but they do have a very poor blood supply. Degeneration of those discs can also occur much earlier in life, even in people in their middle 30s. The general inactivity of our society has had a lot to do with the increased frequency of backaches in our population.

Since you are female and in your age group, there's also a possibility that you may have degeneration of the vertebrae from osteoporosis. That's the problem of dissolving bones, not the little cushions. It will be important in your case to have this point clarified.

The types of exercises that you might need may be entirely different for the two problems. Exercise is good for both circumstances but the type varies. Individuals who have degeneration of the vertebrae should avoid lifting and straining exercises as they may actually cause the vertebrae to fracture and lead to additional complications. At Lake Near Dallas, Longview...

Officials Test For Agent Orange

POINT, Texas (AP)—Dallas and Longview have turned off their water pumps at Lake Tawakoni while federal and state officials test for possible contamination from a chemical dump near the lake.

At the Texas Department of Water Resources in Kilgore, federal and Sabine River Authority officials began testing topsoil and water from the lake for traces of Agent Orange, a powerful herbicide that may have leaked from chemical cannisters buried nearby. "We don't even know in fact if that's (Agent Orange) what is it. We're talking about a very limited amount. This has gotten blown all out of proportion," said Jack Tatum, SRA technical services manager.

City spokesmen for Dallas and Longview said they expected no problems, but were shutting down pumps as a precaution.

Tom Taylor, director of Dallas Water Utilities, said the shutdown would be only for "a few days" and would not affect the city's overall water supply.

"We have four other water supplies we will use until the chemical is identified," Taylor said. "In a very few days, a decision will be made on reopening Tawakoni."

In Longview, city manager Ray Jackson said pumps were being shut down because "it's better to be safe than sorry."

However, officials in Greenville, a city which receives its entire water supply from Lake Tawakoni, refused to shut down pumps, saying that the reports of possible contamination were "just rumors."

Maynard Nelson, director of the Sabine River Authority, the site of the chemical dump, said several chemical containers were buried about 150 yards from the lake in 1978 "just to get them out of the way."

The pit is about 24 feet long, 10 feet wide and six to eight feet deep, said

Phillip Payne, SRA maintenance and operations supervisor. The chemicals had been stored in a barn since 1968.

Of Price Fixing...

Liquor Stores Found Guilty

LUBBOCK (AP)—A federal court jury has awarded nearly $1 million in damages to patrons of some Lubbock County liquor stores that jurors said conspired to fix prices.

Jurors ruled Tuesday that the eight defendants in the four-year-old lawsuit must pay $927,000 in overcharges to customers who patronized the stores between 1970 and 1974.

Those individual patrons, however, will be paid if and when they prove the overcharges in a separate court hearing.

Defendants listed in the suit included Pinkie's Inc., Cecil's Inc., The All Star Co., Cross Keys Package Store Inc., the Lubbock County Beverage Association, Bob Grimes, Hubert Odum and Kenneth Odum.

The lawsuit, filed by then Texas Tech University law student David Greenhaw, contended that several liquor store owners and operators had conspired to set and maintain county wide liquor prices and alleviate competitive marketing.

The decision marks the third time a federal jury has found the eight defendants guilty of conspiring to set prices along "the strip," a portion of county road lined with liquor stores outside of Lubbock.

Greenhaw, now a Stanton attorney, alleged in his suit that the four liquor store corporations and three individuals connected with two of the businesses, along with the now-defunct Lubbock County Beverage Association conspired to set and maintain county-wide liquor prices.

The eight defendants previously pleaded guilty to criminal price fixing charges and were assessed fines and probated jail sentences.

The Justice Department also filed a civil anti-trust suit against same defendants and a federal judge issued an injunction prohibiting them from participating in price fixing.

Nuclear Plant Schedule Revised By Power Firm

Estimated dates for operation of the Comanche Peak nuclear plant have been revised to 1982 for Unit 1 and 1984 for Unit 2, and the estimated cost of the plant has been revised to $2.5 billion or $972 per kilowatt, Bill Marquardt, president of Texas Electric Service Company, announced today.

The revisions resulted from studies which were done as part of the regular view of the construction program. The new cost estimate is an increase from the $1.7 billion estimate made in 1977. The change in schedule means an estimated delay of about one year for each unit.

"Even at this higher cost, Comanche Peak will still mean substantial savings to our customers compared to what they would pay for electricity produced by natural gas and oil," said Marquardt. "For example, he said, in 1986 electricity produced by Comanche Peak will cost about 25 percent less than electricity produced by gas and oil.

Marquardt emphasized that the new operation dates and cost figure are still estimates that are subject to further revisions.

"We still face a number of unknowns," he said. "Completion dates and costs for any major construction project — not just nuclear plants — are constantly being influenced by factors that can't be controlled or predicted, such as future inflation rates and regulatory changes."

He noted that costs of the company's lignite-fueled power plants have increased steadily over the years. The first plant was finished in 1971-72 at a cost of about $125 per kilowatt. By 1977 construction costs for those plants had grown to $275 per kilowatt, and current estimates for new units are running as high as $750 per kilowatt.

"But because nuclear plants present some unique problems, we know we will be making some further substantial changes in the Comanche Peak design.

"Some changes have already been indicated by studies into the Three Mile Island accident, and reviews are underway to determine if others are needed. Still other changes have been under consideration by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission for some time," he said.

But he noted that regulations that will govern some changes are still being developed. "We've attempted to estimate the cost of these upcoming changes. We know they will contribute significantly to the announced delay of the plant and the new cost estimate, but we don't have enough information yet to know the full extent of the impact as to both time and money it will take to implement these changes. It may be more than we anticipate at this time."

These changes include such major items as: —Implementation of any improvements which a review indicates are necessary to make control room instruments provide additional information. —Addition of a separate display console which will indicate key information relating to safety of the plant.

—Establishment of a technical support center which will support activities in the plant's control room in the event of an emergency. —Establishment of a near-site emergency operations center from which additional operational support can be provided.

"We want to make any changes that are needed to enhance the safety of Comanche Peak, and we are benefiting from the experiences of the nuclear industry in this respect. But these kinds of changes, which we have been making continuously since we began building the plant, are expensive and time-consuming," Marquardt said.

"We've based our previous schedule and cost estimates on existing design requirements and safety regulations, as well as on the nuclear industry's previous construction experiences. But it's become clear that these previous experiences have not been a good barometer to use in predicting timetables and costs for new plants such as Comanche Peak.

"It would be fair to say that we are not building the same plant we started building in 1974. The design that was acceptable then has been changed steadily through new interpretations of existing requirements and regulations, as well as additions of new requirements."

He noted the Department of Energy has recognized the effect of these changes in a study which says, "Compliance with new requirements for safety, greater quality control and environmental protection has increased design complexity and has had a major impact on construction schedules and plant costs."

"What this means is," Marquardt said, "in trying to estimate completion dates and costs, we're facing a moving target."

Freight

(Continued From Page 1) schedule the meeting with the freight line officials as soon as possible, probably early in August. He urged that all who wish to submit comments do so as soon as possible.

Earlier, the chamber had conducted a survey on freight service, and the results of the survey also will be presented at the meeting with the freight company officials.

Bombs In Tehran

On Tuesday, Iran reported new Iraqi border attacks as an exile opposed to Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's regime was killed in the United States by an assassin disguised as a mailman. Pars said Iraqi gunners scored a direct hit on an oil well at Naft-Shahr, setting off a fire that raged for hours.

It said a land mine planted in the same area by Iraqi mercenaries blew up under a bus, killing five Iranians and wounding 15.

Several border villages also came under Iraqi artillery fire, and Iranian forces returned the fire, inflicting "heavy casualties" on the Iraqis, Tehran Radio said.

Pars also reported that Kurdish guerrillas fighting for autonomy from Khomeini's regime killed eight revolutionary guards and wounded 13 near the town of Baneh in West Azerbaijan, Pars said. The report claimed scores of the rebels were killed or wounded in a seven-hour battle.

Tehran Radio said "a large number" of guerrillas and three pro-Khomeini men were killed in fighting along the Sanan-

Hispanics Laud Alien Decision But State Planning An Appeal

HOUSTON (AP)—While Hispanic leaders voiced enthusiastic approval for a federal judge's order that allows illegal alien children to enter school this fall, Texas officials say they will appeal the ruling.

The decision by U.S. District Judge Woodrow Seals is a landmark decision bringing Texas back in line with the concept of equal opportunity. Ruben Bonilla, national president of the League of United Latin American Citizens, said Tuesday.

Bonilla said he would ask the state to support Seals' ruling Monday that struck down a 1975 Texas law barring undocumented children from public schools because "an appeal would reflect an attitude of indifference."

Mark White, Texas Attorney General, said Tuesday the state will appeal the ruling and is researching the possibility of filing a lawsuit against the federal government for not enforcing federal immigration laws.

"Now we're being told to pay for the failures of the Justice Department," White said, adding that the federal government "caused the problem and they're the ones who should pay for it."

"They're calling upon the taxpayers in the state to pay for undocumented workers' children who are unlawfully in the country," White said. Seals ordered the state to stop enforcing the law

Justice Department is taking a position supporting illegal alien children when they (the government) are the cause of the problem in the first place.

Attorneys for the plaintiffs called a press conference Tuesday to dispute what they called "gross exaggerations" and inflammatory statements made by state and school officials after the ruling was announced Monday.

Several of the attorneys said the remarks had "racial overtones" and charged that the reaction to the ruling may keep undocumented children from attending school.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements, in Waco Tuesday to address a National Guard gathering, voiced his disapproval of the ruling by saying, "the main issue we must solve is the problem of undocumented aliens, not education."

"There is a contradiction of terms," Clements said, "in that illegal alien children can get our free education." He added he felt the problem of illegal aliens could be handled by temporary work visas. White said he was not against educating illegal alien children, but added "the problem is who is going to pay."

"There are two losers in this," he said. "First, the children of Mexican-Americans who are trying to use the bilingual program. It is going to spread too thin. There are not enough teachers."

"Second, the taxpayer who is going to be required to pay for the expenses of these children, who should be paid for by the nation as a whole."

School officials across the state, particularly those from cities along the U.S.-Mexican border, have said the ruling will trigger a flood of undocumented children that will cause the schools severe economic problems.

Billy Reagan, HISD superintendent, said he will ask HISD board members to push for federal impact funding to help schools defray the cost of admitting the students.

Texas admit undocumented children but charge them tuition -- HISD charges $163 a month -- most have simply refused to allow the students admission under the umbrella provided by the statute.

Mount St. Helens Blows Again

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP)—After lulling observers with six weeks of relative serenity, Mount St. Helens exploded in a spectacular series of eruptions, hurling ash 11 miles high into a clear blue sky. Ash reached Canada and air traffic was restricted in parts of the Northwest. Residents of some cities in eastern Washington were warned they may have to haul out their ash masks again following the mountain's display Tuesday, which could be seen for more than 100 miles. The U.S. Geological Survey said a pyroclastic flow — a superheated avalanche of ash, gas and rock — poured down the north slope of the mountain almost to Spirit Lake. The mountain resort area six miles away became a volcanic wasteland after the mountain's first eruption May 18, which had a force as great as an atomic bomb.

There were no reports of injury late Tuesday and the only evacuation was carried out in the town of Cougar as a precaution. Many of the town's residents had not returned after the volcano's previous eruptions May 18, May 25 and June 12, and some of the 20 to 25 people who did were not fleeing the town again, authorities said.

The eruption came as a surprise to scientists and federal disaster officials who were winding down activities.

Scientists had said that a recent fall in volcanic activity indicated that pressure was being released rather than building within the volcano. That theory was blown as the first blast ripped a hole in the lava dome building in the volcano's gaping crater.

"Yesterday, we did not expect anything like this to happen," said USGS geologist Tim Hait. "Today, probably this morning, we did not expect anything like this."

The eruptions began at 5:41 p.m. PDT, shortly after a flurry of earthquakes. Six quakes were picked up between 6 a.m. and 11 a.m. and by 3 p.m., they had increased in frequency to about one every five minutes, scientists said.

A series of four or five small earthquakes ended at 5:13 p.m. One minute later came a mushroom-shaped eruption of steam. Subsequent blasts contained ash that darkened the sky and could be seen as far north as Seattle and south as Corvallis, Ore.

The National Weather Service charted ash plumes that moved northeast, following the same path as the ash-laden cloud that caked eastern Washington and northern Idaho with the grit May 18.

A second eruption at about 6:26 p.m. towered to 60,000 feet, said Carl Burgeson of the U.S. Forest Service. A third shot of ash rose to about 50,000 feet shortly after 7 p.m. and pulsations followed at 7:20, and at 8:30 p.m. Eastern Washington residents braced themselves as fine ash — described as gritty like table salt — began falling. However, the amounts were smaller than on May 18, observers said.

Private College Costs Continue To Increase

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—The cost of a four-year private education is now higher than the median income of all U.S. families, and the worst is yet to come.

A student who attends a four-year, private college or university and lives on campus will face a bill of over $6,000 for the coming academic year, up from about $5,500 last fall, according to a new study.

Joe Paul Case, director of program administration for the College Scholarships of the College Board, says the $20,000-a-year college education is approaching

The College Board on Tuesday released its annual estimate of College costs for the 1980-81 academic year, based on a survey of 3,200 schools.

Case said the increase from last year's figures was lower than the boost in the preceding year and lower than expected "considering the way inflation has escalated." But he painted a gloomy picture for students and parents struggling to pay the bills.

He said Congress is unlikely to increase federal aid for college students this year. "Without increased appropriations," he said, "more students will have to share the same financial-aid pie."

Case said college costs have gone up about 90 percent since 1970. If the rate of increase continues, he said, "we'll see college expenses approach $20,000 a year at high-cost colleges by the end of the decade."

Students and their parents now pay 56 percent of the college bill, according to the College Board. The rest comes from scholarships, Social Security and Veterans' Administration benefits, etc.

Case said, however, that the proportion may change in coming years. "If parents' incomes don't keep pace with inflation, the gap between the amount they are able to pay... and the rising cost of college will widen," he said. The board survey indicated that total annual costs — tuition, room and board, transportation, books and personal expenses — during the 1980-81 academic year will average $6,082 at private, four-year colleges and universities. At that rate, a four-year education would cost $24,328. The Conference Board, a non-profit, business research organization in New York City, calculates that the median family income for 1980 is $21,350. The median is the exact midpoint; half of all families have a higher income; half have a lower income.

According to the survey, the 1980-81 cost of a year at a private, four-year college for a resident student will be 10.3 percent higher than it was last year. From 1978 to 1979, the cost rose 10.6 percent.

Costs for resident students at public, four-year colleges will be an average of 8.1 percent higher this fall — $3,409 for the year — than they were last fall. During the preceding year, costs at the four-year, public institutions went up 8.5 percent.

'Close To Death'

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP)—Convicted Irish Republican Army commander Martin Meehan, on a hunger strike for 66 days, was reported "close to death" today.

Meehan's attorney, Oliver Kelly, who visited him in the military wing of Belfast's Musgrave Park Hospital for three hours Tuesday night with a doctor, said the guerrilla refused appeals to abandon his self-imposed fast.

Meehan's wife, Brieger, said he received last rites by a Roman Catholic priest in his guarded ward late Tuesday.

What Texas Electric says about setting your central air to save money.

At Texas Electric we are often asked about the cheapest way to operate a central air conditioning unit and still be comfortable.

Here's what we recommend.

- Keep the temperature at 78° or higher. Each degree below that causes the unit to use more energy.
- Leave your air conditioner's fan switch in the "auto" position. This way the fan only comes on when it's needed.
- Finally, before you leave the house, turn your air conditioner switch to "off." Even though your house may be warmer when you return, you won't be paying to air condition an empty house while you were gone.

For more energy-saving ideas and answers to your questions, call Texas Electric and arrange to attend an Operation Tighten-Up workshop in your neighborhood.

Midland Knocks Local Girls Out Of Running

Midland, with its back to the wall, fought off three challenges last night to sack up the championship in the United Girls Softball Association's senior division on the Towle Park Diamond.

The team was equal to the task and when the dust of three games had settled, Midland had won a tripleheader to earn the right to participate in the national tournament Aug. 7 at Denison.

Tuesday night's scores were Midland 9, Big Spring 5; Midland 10, Snyder 4; Midland 4, Snyder 3.

Thus, the team from Midland continued its mastery over Big Spring, a team it had defeated Monday night, 12-0, and more than avenged its 8-4 loss to Snyder in Monday's second game.

The tournament champions placed five on the all-tournament team, while Snyder had four and Big Spring three.

Snyder is represented on the all-tournament team by Shari Cotton, Sharon Fritz, Pam Gray and Donna Halford. Midland's all-tournament players are Sandy Alvarado, Roxie Barrett, Tonya Burton, Lori Breeding and Aileen Miller, while the Big Spring all-tournament players are Peggy Calhoun, Cynthia Washington and Elsie Wheat.

In the final game Tuesday night, Midland prevailed in a hard-fought contest that saw Shari Cotton, the Snyder pitcher, help her own cause with an out-of-the-park home run. However, Midland rapped out seven hits, including doubles by Jana Robinson, Lori Breeding and Caren Sharp. Pam Percival contributed a double for Snyder, while Sharon Fritz and Bee Fuentez had singles.

Midland had collected 10 hits to down Snyder, 10-4, in the middle game of the evening and send the tournament into an extra game. Snyder, by virtue of its Monday night victory, could have ended it with a victory in that one.

Aileen Miller had three singles to pace Midland, while Roxie Barrett and Tonya Burton had two each. Pam Gray, who pitched for Snyder, had two singles and Cotton had a double. Sharon Fritz, Bee Fuentez and Nancy Woods each had a single.

Midland pounded out 13 hits to eliminate Big Spring in Tuesday night's opener. Aileen Miller had three singles, Roxie Barrett had a double and two singles and Sandy Alvarado had a pair of doubles. Peggy Calhoun got two of Big Spring's five hits, both of them singles. Division I, II and III of the UGSA have their tournaments scheduled here Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

No Save For Darwin; He Ends Up Winner

BOSTON (AP)—Former starter Danny Darwin accepts his emergency role as the No. 1 right-hander in the Texas Rangers' bullpen, but he has one major beef.

"I can't get a lousy save," the 24-year-old Darwin said Tuesday night after his record zoomed to 9-1 in the Rangers' 4-3 victory over the Boston Red Sox.

"Gaylord (Perry) pitches a super game (for 6 2-3 innings), but then I make a couple of bad pitches and wind up the winner," Darwin said.

"I'd rather have a save, but that's the way things are going for me this year. I give up a run and the guys come back and win for me. I have only one save in 24 relief jobs and I'm looking for more. I'm still not used to relieving, but I think I'm getting better."

With runners on first and third and two out in the seventh, Darwin replaced Perry, who appeared en route to his 285th major league victory and 53rd shutout until Tony Perez two-run double in the sixth.

Darwin batted out Perry by getting Dave Stapleton on a line drive to center, but ran into trouble as the Red Sox tied the score 3-3 on a double by Fred Lynn and a single by Carlton Fisk. A pair of walks, one intentional, loaded the bases before Darwin struck out Dave Rader to end the inning.

The Rangers then sent veteran right-hander Mike Torrez down to his 11th loss of the year by pushing across a run in the ninth.

Leonard Homer Ices Another Astro Victory

HOUSTON (AP)—New York Mets Manager Joe Torre is beginning to expect strange things to happen to his team when it plays in the Astrodome and Tuesday night's game lived up to expectations.

"Hector Cruz hit his first home run of the season off us in Cincinnati and now Leonard gets his third homer of the season off us," Torre lamented Tuesday night after Leonard's two-run home run ignited the Houston Astros to a 6-5 victory.

"Strange things are just happening to us lately. I'm not taking anything away from Leonard or Cruz. But why does it have to be against us all the time? The Astros have the greatest built-in advantage playing indoors in this ball park."

New York fashioned a 5-3 lead against the Astros after four innings only to watch Leonard's towering two-run homer over the center field fence tie the game in the sixth after Craig Reynolds had walked.

Later in the same inning Terry Puhl singled and Jose Cruz drove him home with the winning run and the Mets had another example of bad luck playing in the Astrodome where they've won only two games in the past two seasons.

It was Houston's 19th one-run victory of the season and another in a long series of comebacks. And Leonard's blow provided the spark.

"I don't know what he hit but you don't see many balls hit over the center field fence in the Astrodome," Cruz said of Leonard's homer.

"That was clutch hitting at its best." New York got one run in the second inning off Houston starter Joe Niekro, whose passed ball allowed John Stearns to score from third base and Steve Henderson's third inning triple provided another run.

The Mets added three more runs in the fourth on singles by starting pitcher John Pacella and Lee Mazzilli and a wild pitch by Niekro. The Astros, who took a 2½ game lead over Los Angeles in the National League Western Division race, got one run in the second on Rafael Landestoy's single and two more runs scored in the third on a triple by Cesar Cedeno and single by Enos Cabell.

Physicals Set For Athletes

High school and junior high athletic physicals have been scheduled here, the earliest to be held Aug. 5.

All high school boys who plan to participate in any school-sponsored sport during the 1980-81 campaign will take physicals Aug. 5 at the Field House, reports John Gary, athletic director.

Seniors take physicals at 7:30, followed by juniors at 8, sophomores at 8:30 and freshmen at 9.

Any athlete not able to take a physical on these dates should contact his or her coach before the physical date. There will be no make up dates for physicals. All athletes must have a physical before they will be allowed to participate in any sports. Other questions may be answered by contacting the Athletic Department at 573-8528.

High School physicals for girls will be taken at the above hours on Aug. 7, also at the Field House. Eighth grade boys will take physicals Aug. 25 at 7:30, 7th graders at 8:15, at the high school Field House. Junior High girls' physicals will be held at 7:30, 8th grade, at 8:15, 7th grade, Aug. 26 at the Field House.

The school will pay for physicals taken at the scheduled times. Otherwise, the student will be required to pay for his or her physical.

Abused Parker Wants Pirates To Trade Him

SAN DIEGO (AP)—All-Star outfielder Dave Parker, upset that he's become a target of home-park fans, says he's "reached the point of no return" in Pittsburgh and wants the Pirates to trade him.

His trade demand came two days after the latest fan abuse incident involving the National League's 1978 Most Valuable Player and two-time batting champion.

Parker, who took a .284 batting average with 12 home runs and 52 runs batted in into Tuesday night's game, walked off the field in the eighth inning of a doubleheader opener last Sunday in Pittsburgh after a spectator nearly hit him with a transistor radio battery. The 29-year-old outfielder sat out the second game, won by Pittsburgh 8-7 over

Los Angeles. Pirates' Manager Chuck Tanner said Parker has become the target of "a sick person."

Parker said he's informed the Pirates' front office that they "have to get me out of town, period."

If traded, terms of his contract confine the list of potential teams to nine, including Cincinnati, his hometown. Other teams he identified Tuesday are the Los Angeles Dodgers, California Angels and Atlanta Braves.

"I was hit in the back of the head with a gas valve from a pellet gun last year. Sunday it was a battery. Earlier this year somebody tossed a sock full of nuts and bolts that weighed five pounds. A couple of years ago it was a bat," Parker told The Associated Press.
