Striking Firefighters Back

By The Associated Press
Striking firefighters returned to work in Mobile, Ala., and police officers said they would report later in the day, while in Boston, 1,000 secretaries and technicians ended their strike against the City Hospital.
But prime-time television and film actors stayed off the job for a fifth day after parading in Hollywood picket lines, and in San Francisco, negotiations continued in efforts to end a walkout by hotel workers. Meanwhile, Newspaper Guild employees of the Reuters news agency walked out Thursday in a wage dispute.

Cooperation Promised

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Carter is promising full White House cooperation, perhaps even his own testimony if necessary, in the special Senate investigation of his brother Billy's Libyan connections.
Presidential press secretary Jody Powell said Thursday that Carter did not expect to invoke executive privilege for either himself or his aides to keep them from testifying or providing information. He will instruct his staff to cooperate fully, Powell said.
The Senate Judiciary Committee was meeting today to discuss details of the probe by a nine-member panel—five Democrats and four Republicans—into the Billy Carter-Libyan ties and whether the White House influenced a Justice Department investigation of the president's younger brother.

Spill Team Formed

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP)—Mexican and U.S. response teams will work together to battle oil or hazardous material spills that threaten the coastline of either nation, says Ambassador-at-Large Robert Krueger.
The ambassador-at-large for Mexico announced Thursday in Corpus Christi that Mexican and U.S. negotiators had reached an agreement to appoint a joint spill response team to monitor and combat potential pollution problems.
However, Krueger said the agreement does not include provisions for payment of damages or cleanup costs from any such spill. And he said damage payments for the blowout of a Mexican offshore well in the Bay of Campeche last summer were "not discussed."

8 Chattanooga Cops Shot

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—Tactical police teams shot out streetlights and cordoned off a predominantly black housing project after eight officers received minor gunshot wounds in this city of three nights of violence in this racially tense city.
The shooting occurred about two hours after a dusk-to-dawn curfew took effect Thursday, closing all retail businesses in this southeast Tennessee city of 170,000. The curfew was imposed after two nights of firebombings, looting and rock-throwing that followed a jury's acquittal of two Ku Klux Klansmen in the shooting of four black women.

Keeping tab on our neighbors:

Despite the fact that they have been forced to reduce their use of city water due to a dwindling supply, a survey conducted the other day by the Sweetwater Reporter indicates little support by people in that city for a proposal to purchase water from Lake E.V. Spence.

The Colorado River Municipal Water District, of which Snyder is a member city, has agreed to sell Sweetwater up to 3,000 acre feet of water per year and pipe it to them.

The Sweetwater newspaper quoted several people as opposing it, although one admitted that they might not have time to do otherwise and maintain a supply for the city's customers. One apparently had been misinformed, stating that he objected to "going to a large expense to get water from a lake that has gone dry before and might again in the future." Lake Spence has never been full, but it also has never been dry since its dam was closed.

Census figures are still attracting attention wherever they have been reported.

Tom E. Roy of the Ballinger Ledger says Ballinger had expected an increase in population because several factors indicated more people were there than in 1970. But the bureau's figures say the town has lost population during the past decade.

"The only logical answer is that the Bureau of Census places an inordinate amount of importance on housing units, especially vacant ones," says Roy.

"For example, the figures say that there are 211 vacant houses in the city. Yes, you read it right, two hundred and eleven vacant houses. Now, anyone who has tried to buy a house in this little burg knows that people at the census bureau are blowing blue smoke out of their ears if they think we have that many habitable, vacant houses in this town."

We had wondered ourselves about the importance attached to vacant houses in some of the reports made public so far. We wonder if they place any significance on the number of dwellings added since 1970.

WTC Budget For '80-'81 Approved

Western Texas College trustees Thursday night approved a $3.7 million budget following a public hearing attended by representatives of 3 major oil taxpayers and by a representative of the Scurry County Taxpayers Association.

The spending figure for 1980-81 is an increase of $578,000 over the current fiscal year. The largest item in the budget is for salaries which represents 51 percent of the total.

Of the total increase, $300,000 is for a blanket 14 percent salary increase approved by the board in June and an increase in employee benefits.

Other major items accounting for the increase, according to WTC President, Dr. Robert Clinton, are $35,000 for tax collections, $10,000 more for insurance, an additional $20,000 for utilities and $24,000 for adult vocational education.

Dr. Clinton said the teaching staff actually is being reduced by one person this year even though a record enrollment is expected for the fall.

Art Dimney, tax representative for Chevron, noted that the bulk of the increase would require local tax funds. Dimney said nobody likes budget increases, but that under the circumstances (inflation) that he found little in the budget to pick at.

Dimney said the board would have little control over the matter, but that he felt that a state tuition increase should be approved whereby students would shoulder a larger portion of the cost of their education. At present, tuition and fees pay for only 16.3 percent of the budget. Only the state can change tuition rates.

Billy Huddleston, representing the local taxpayer association, reminded the board that a 50 percent increase in local funds, even for a good cause, is worrisome for some people.

Also attending the meeting was Carlton Meredith, representing R.E. Smith and others; and John O'Neal, representing Texaco. Meredith asked that the board continue to evaluate each individual program.

Also attending the meeting was chief tax appraiser Ray Peveler. Based on preliminary estimated tax values of $1.9 billion, the college would have a total tax rate of 11.03 cents. Last year when the tax valuation ratio was set at 25 percent, the tax rate was 49.5 cents. At 100 percent, the current year's rate could have been 12.3 cents. Despite the tax rate decrease, and because of increased valuations, local tax bills generally will be higher.

Following the budget hearing the board went into a brief executive session to discuss a personnel matter, and Dr. Clinton announced that no action was necessary.

In routine action, the board approved the employment of Harold W. Alsop as instructor in biology effective with the Chevron U.S.A. has announced the biggest single oilwell drilling operation in Scurry County since the boom days of the late forties and early fifties.

They are included in a huge, in-field drilling project that is expected to boost the yield in the SACROC unit. Unconfirmed reports were that 300 wells would be drilled in five years.

Chevron will drill each of its projects to 7,100 feet.

Zone Change For Apartments Ok'd

Developers of an apartment complex in East Snyder were given a zoning change go-ahead last night, but one attached with conditions.

Mike Graves, a local realtor and representative of a group of developers planning the apartment complex, approached the planning and zoning commission with a request to have two tracts of land changed from an R-1 (single family residence) area to an R-3 (multi-family residence) area.

The land in question consists of blocks 27 and 28 in the Adams Addition and lots 1-9 in block 1 of the Sunrise Addition. Graves said tentative plans of the developers call for the construction of two 16-unit apartment houses in the lots 1-9 in block 1 of the Sunrise Addition, with the possibility of apartments being erected in the future across the street in blocks 27 and 28 of the Adams Addition.

That plan, however, ran into opposition when J.D. Hinton, the owner of a rent house near one of the tracts planned for development in the Adams Addition, claimed that a two-story apartment complex in a neighborhood of one-story homes might tend to lower residential property values. Both Hinton and Loyd Webb, who lives in the neighborhood, objected to the possibility that mobile homes might be moved into an R-3 area. Graves noted that the developers do not yet own the land, although negotiations for its purchase were already well underway and the purchase of the land was expected to be completed shortly.

What was passed last night was a compromise plan in which lots 1-9 in the Sunrise Addition would be declared an R-3 zone, with the tract of land across 36th St., the land planned for development in the Adams Addition, being rezoned as an R-2 (two-family residence) area with a one-story height limitation. Specifically excluded from both tracts of land are mobile homes and-or mobile home parks.

The whole measure is contingent upon the developers first securing the land, and even then the matter must pass approval of the city council.

Also approved last night was a request by Mrs. David Strayhorn to have lot 1 in block 54 of the Original Town of Snyder changed from an R-2 area to a C-2, or residential-commercial, area. She said she tentative plans to construct some rental storage units on the property.

The two measures passed unanimously by the board. Members attending were Ross Blanchard, Ross Carroll, and James Jones.

Ask Us

Q—Who's responsibility is it to keep trees trimmed that overhang the streets, and to what height should they be trimmed?

A—The city does this wherever and whenever trees and-or shrubs become a hazard to traffic. Anyone who knows of hazardous situations should call city hall, said John Gayle, city manager. Trees and shrubs should be kept pruned sufficiently to allow unobstructed view on streets, especially at intersections.

Tax Break Should Be Delayed, Says Volcker

WASHINGTON (AP)—The chairman of the Federal Reserve Board says battling inflation must take priority over cutting taxes and revitalizing American business.

For that reason, chairman Paul A. Volcker told the House Ways and Means Committee on Thursday, any decision on a tax cut—even one aimed at stimulating productivity—should be delayed until next year.

"Tax and budgetary programs leading to the anticipation of excessive deficits and more inflation can be virtually as damaging as the reality in driving interest rates higher at home and the dollar lower abroad," Volcker said.

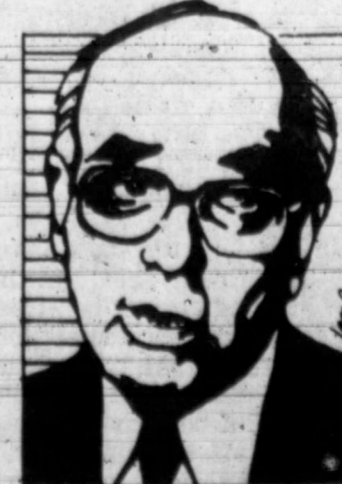

The committee, which seems inclined to oppose any tax-cutting action this year, asked testimony today from leaders of big business, many of whom are calling for tax reductions in the face of declining productivity and rising unemployment.

In opposing a tax-cut vote this year—even though such a reduction would not take effect until next Jan. 1—Volcker positioned himself with the Carter administration, most Democrats on the Ways and Means Committee and with one of his predecessors, Arthur Burns.

Charles E. Walker, deputy treasury secretary during the Ford administration, told the Senate panel Thursday that "Congress should enact major tax-cut legislation now" because delaying a vote until next year would only lengthen the recession.

Walter W. Heller, who is chief economic adviser to the Kennedy administration, said there's no reason Congress should not act now to cut taxes by about $30 billion and "restore a little color to the economy's cheeks without any risk that it would turn into the flush of inflationary fever."

subsidized campaigns

One of the legacies of Watergate is the federal subsidy now paid to the two major political parties. This year the Republicans and the Democrats will take in about 120 million tax dollars. The practice is unfair, immoral and should be abolished.

Few citizens realize that after the major party conventions the entire cost of the Republican and Democratic party candidates is going to be paid for by the taxpayers. The two campaigns will receive $29.4 billion in direct grants and huge postal subsidies so they can flood mailboxes with campaign junk mail. The reason for this political giveaway: to stop corruption, of course.

Over the years money became a major factor in elections. Always looking for an easy way out, politicians opted for expensive media campaigns rather than organizing grassroots efforts. After all, organizing is hard work and requires people to involve themselves voluntarily. At the same time campaigns were becoming expensive government was growing at a fast clip. It wasn't long before the politicians discovered a method of raising campaign money.

The bigger government gets the more businesses and other interest groups are willing to spend to influence politicians. Can anyone blame, for example, business for contributing to a candidate who will in theory tax it less than his opponent? Even if men-of-commerce disdain the practice, they view this protection money as part of the cost of getting the job done, and politicians know it.

The abuses of the 1972 Nixon campaign are well known; these abuses convinced Congress to act. Consistent with everything else Congress does, it ended up ripping off the taxpayers in the name of solving the problem.

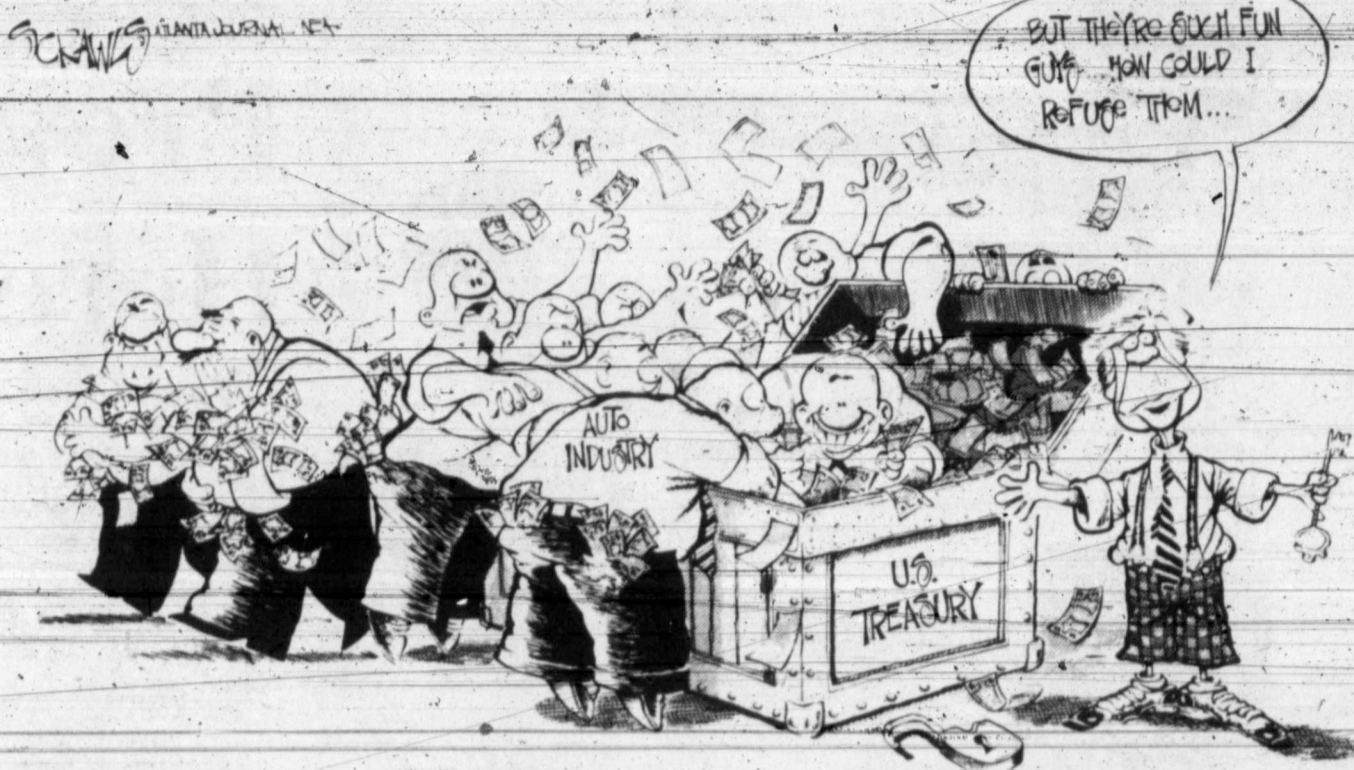

So now the presidential candidates of the two major parties are, at least in theory, free from the influence of big contributors. But just how fair is the situation? In the current issue of Inquiry, Mary Meehan, a free-lance writer from Washington, D.C., castigates the fairness of the current federal financing and regulation of presidential campaigns.

Meehan suggests, and we heartily agree, that it is unfair to force independents and members of small political parties to pay for the campaigns of the two majors. She points out that the current laws are doubly unfair to members of minor parties because they, while not receiving any federal funds, are nevertheless thoroughly regulated by the same complex laws controlling the big boys.

Demonstrating this unfair and immoral situation, Meehan points out that the GOP and the Democrats will receive $3.3 million each for their conventions. The smaller parties will get nothing.

Even if the current system was not patently unfair it still wouldn't work. Already some Republicans have found a loophole and are raising millions of dollars to wage an independent campaign against Jimmy Carter. Preventing anyone from spending his own money to communicate his ideas is a violation of his right to speak, so the loophole is likely to withstand a court test; it makes a mockery of the whole idea of federal funding of campaigns.

The answer to the problem is simple. Instead of spending tax dollars on campaigns, the way to reduce the influence of special interests is to reduce the size and power of the federal government. If it weren't profitable for them to be around the special interests would stay away.

The dull thing about men's fashions is that they're always so "practical."

They always put zippers and buttons in the front of their clothes where they can see to fasten them. They never let their ankles see daylight. They always have a jacket handy to slip into and cover their stomachs after they eat. Their styles are controlled by the "conservative party," which has been in power since they voted out white knee socks and satin breeches.

It was rather predictable that during a recent transit strike in New York, men started to wear sneakers with their "serious suits" to work just to be comfortable when they walked long distances.

However, the real shocker is that the strike is over and men are still wearing their sneakers. I never thought I'd live to see the day when Prof.

Irwin Corey and my husband would be trend-setters.

With Prof. Corey, it's an act. With my husband, it's a statement against style. He started wearing gym shoes ten years ago when he began to jog. "Healthy feet are my life," he would say dramatically. I went shopping with him just once for a pair of running shoes. With three more days, he could have created a world. We saw the inner sole dissected... the construction blueprint of the heel... the stress areas diagrammed. We looked at them in mirrors, in a crouching position and under an X-ray machine. He paid more for them than our wedding pictures. He never takes them off.

It's like traveling with Woody Allen. He walks into a room and just in case no one notices he's wearing blue sneakers with an 18-inch optic yellow cushioned tongue and grip-fast shoestrings with a star on each heel with a dress suit, he calls attention to it. "Yes, these little babies have carried these legs over the finish line at Boston, San Diego and Phoenix," etc.

I think there's more to it than just "comfort." I think "conservatives" are once again flexing their muscles and saying, "I'm sick of being told by my mother, my wife and my employer to wear 'hard' shoes. I'm sick of being told I have to wear a tie to be dressed up or a coat to be allowed to eat dinner in a restaurant with valet parking. From here on in, I wear what I want, when I want, and where I want."

As my hostess welcomed my husband the other night, she whispered, "What's he supposed to be?"

"Simple. From the ankles up, he's Ivy League. From the knees down, Little League."

unnecessary bankruptcies

NEW YORK (AP)—Bankruptcies this year are occurring at a greater rate than in 1975, when a record 224,000 were filed, and some lenders are blaming the Bankruptcy Reform Act, which took effect last October 1.

"Consumer Bankruptcies Grow... Is Greed A Reason?" asks the National Consumer Finance Association in one of a series of position and background papers, sent to news people during the past week.

The association concedes the recession's role in the increase, which it estimates at 24 percent, greater than a year ago, but it suggests the public is exploiting the law rather than merely seeking its protection.

It asks provocatively: "Are Americans becoming less concerned about their financial responsibilities and any possible social stigma attached to bankruptcy?" Other suggestions are also posed as questions.

"Are consumers rushing to this traditional last resort merely to void paying debts?" it asks. "Are others motivated by greed encouraging people to declare bankruptcy when it is not necessary?"

The association, made up of consumer finance and other loan companies, appears to place much blame on lawyers who advertise their "bankruptcy expertise" and urge clients to exploit the new, more liberal law.

It suggests also that people are being encouraged to declare bankruptcy when it is not really necessary. "I am not suggesting that bankruptcy should never be used, but it is a last resort," Walter Kurth, NCFCA president said. "Alternatives should be explored first."

One attraction of the new federal law is the liberal list of exemptions, or properties that cannot be taken in a bankruptcy action.

Among exemptions under the law are $7,500 in the value of a residence, $1,200 in a motor vehicle's value, $700 in professional tools or books, $500 in jewelry, and $4,000 of accrued dividends.

Under the law, a consumer can file for personal bankruptcy under two plans. Chapter 7 involves liquidation of personal effects to pay debts. Chapter 13 enables a person with a regular income to reorganize, under court protection, his or her financial obligations to creditors.

Under Chapter 13, the debtor must design a monthly budget and adhere to it for three years. Any amount remaining after court-allowed sums for food, clothing, housing, leisure and the like is used to reimburse creditors through a court-appointed trustee.

After the three-year period, the debtor is discharged from previous obligations. The amount repaid within that time, according to the court-approved plan, becomes the debtor's total liability.

Helmut Schmidt in Bonn was no more enchanted than Jimmy Carter in Washington when Valery Giscard d'Estaing slipped away from Paris in secrecy to meet Leonid Brezhnev in Warsaw. Schmidt's own upcoming and fully publicized state visit to Moscow thereby being upstaged by his own closest ally.

Then there was the affair of the European Community budget. Margaret Thatcher's Britain had had it with being the largest contributor while realizing minor benefits, since the bulk of the EC's funds went to subsidize farmers - mostly French farmers.

Giscard's France was fully prepared to bid adieu to the British on the issue but Schmidt's West Germany moderated the confrontation with the result that the British contribution has been reduced with West Germany making up most of the difference - and now itself complaining about the free-ride being provided those farmers across the Rhine.

To repeat, it looked as though the French-German marriage which has dominated West European family affairs for two decades was, if not heading toward divorce, at least under some strain.

But not to worry. Giscard's recent state visit to West Germany has all the appearances of having resolved whatever genuine bad feelings existed and reaffirmed the relationship of the two countries as best allies.

For a number of very interested observers - the aforementioned Margaret Thatcher and Jimmy Carter - that development is of interest for a number of somewhat contradictory reasons.

It means that calm and cooperation continue to prevail at the very heart of the European alliance, which is cause for relief. But it also means that France and West Germany will continue to act almost as one in pursuing policies that are at times out of sync with if not directly contradictory to those favored by other members of the alliance.

The Franco-German relationship is one of the wonders of the post-war era. An ancient antagonism that ignited two world wars in this century has been converted into the foundation of European stability.

True, not all who benefit from that stability are completely at ease. Smaller nations are only too aware of how completely France and West Germany dominate affairs. The economies of the two, for one powerful example, account for more than half the EC gross national product total.

By and large, however, the relationship has worked constructively not only for the two partners but for the interests of their less-favored associates - with an occasional exception in the case of the British.

But new tests of the Franco-German bonds are coming up. Now that his treasury is the major underwriter, Schmidt is determined to press for long-overdue reforms to reduce the excessive 70 percent of the EC budget consumed by agricultural subsidies. That means a direct confrontation with French interests and as the French have so demonstrated in the past, it is not their way to quietly give way.

There is also the matter of the Spanish and Portuguese applications for EC membership, favored by the Germans for, among other reasons, the anticipated strengthening of the two countries' democratic development. But opposed by the French because of the competition their essentially agricultural economies would pose for - you guessed it - French farmers.

Recent history, however, suggests that these and other differences may strain but not rupture the relationship. Which not only the French and Germans have reason to welcome.

France and Germany acting in concert may present difficulties for the United States and Britain, to name only two of what can be a lengthy list of nations. But, as history again demonstrates, nowhere near those experienced when they are at odds.

There is good news and bad news on the insurance front for consumers. The good news in auto insurance is that the policies are likely to be only two-thirds as long and readable even to regular people like you and me. The state insurance board came close to approving the policy Wednesday but then delayed action when it was discovered that it had not been posted for public comment for the 30 days required. If approved, the policy will take effect June 1, 1981.

The bad news is that car insurance is going up. Inflation and the whopping cost of repairing these toys they sell for cars nowadays is blamed.

The insurance board did pass some tough new rules Wednesday aimed at stemming deception in the peddling of hospitalization, life, property and casualty insurance. No more may the advertisements say such things as, "No medical examination required," if in fact, the policy does not cover pre-existing ailments.

Other rules or requirements include:

-Negative features of a policy, such as a waiting period before it takes effect, may not be advertised in positive terms such as calling a waiting period a "benefit builder."
-Disability policies may not be advertised in terms such as "extra income" or "extra cash" that would lead one to believe he will make a profit from being in the hospital.

-Policies may not be advertised with such terms as "investment plan" or "profit-sharing" that would mislead buyers to think they are getting more than an insurance policy.

These and other new rules will make selling insurance more difficult and lord knows its a tough job already. It takes a certain kind of individual to succeed in such a competitive business but a man right for the job can always make a go of it.

A story goes that a particularly inept looking man with a severe speech problem once approached a sales manager of one of the giant firms for a job. He was turned down flat. But the man begged for a chance to show he could sell.

"Okay," the sales manager finally said. "In the building across the street is our biggest competitor. If you can sell the president one of our policies I'll put you on." And as an afterthought, added: "If he should buy be sure and get a blood sample, urine sample and collect the premiums for a year." "That should take care of that problem," he figured but shortly the young man returned with a paid-up policy and both samples.

The sales manager was astonished but then thought: "Why that old battle ax over there bought a policy from this idiot just to heckle me."

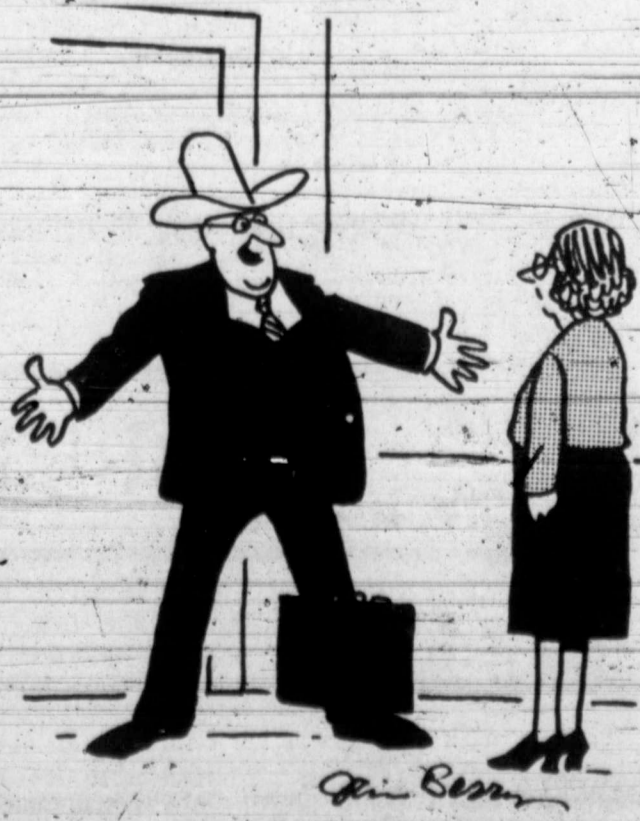

"There is one more test, he told the young man. Again he was sent to a rival company and again he came back with a paid up policy and samples.

Desperate by now to get the insistent young applicant out of his hair, he picked out a skyscraper and told him: "This is your final test. This time you must sell the president and his secretary policies... and don't forget the samples.

"It couldn't happen three times in a row," the executive assured himself and when the young man did not return for a couple of hours he thought he was finally through with him. But then came a knock on the door. When he answered, the young man was standing there with a stack of policies in front of him, money sticking out of every pocket and five-gallon cans, full to the brim, on either side.

"While I was there I thought I might as well sell a group policy," he said.

'Texas' To Welcome Boost From 'Dallas'

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Paul Rauch is well aware that his new daytime drama on NBC, called "Texas," might get an inadvertent boost from a super-successful prime-time series on CBS set in the same great state. He insists it wasn't planned that way.

"No one really believes me when I say that," Rauch says, "though I do hope we will benefit from everything that's happened with 'Dallas' and 'Urban Cowboy' and the many other things in the media that relate to Texas."

He adds that he will continue the new series in NBC's daytime lineup. Rauch has been executive producer of "Another World" since January 1972, and will produce both hour-long series.

NBC has reworked a good part of its daytime schedule to make room for the new soap. "Another World," which has run 90 minutes a day since March '79, will be cut back to an hour when "Texas" premieres Aug. 4.

The second half-hour of "Texas" will come from "The David Letterman Show," which has been 90 minutes long since its sign-on June 23. The new comedy-variety program will be broadcast from 10-11 a.m. EDT, with "Another World" from 2 to 3 p.m. and "Texas" from 3 to 4.

Starting a soap opera from scratch has proven a difficult task in the past, and Rauch has attempted to deal with that problem by introducing several leading characters from "Texas" in recent episodes of "Another World."

Rona Joins 'Tomorrow'

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Rona Barrett, the Hollywood reporter on ABC's "Good Morning America," will leave the show in October to join the "Tomorrow" show on NBC.

Miss Barrett, who was instrumental in bringing the ratings of "Good Morning America" up to par with NBC's "Today," will also make regular appearances on "Today," an NBC spokesman said Thursday.

ABC had been negotiating to renew Miss Barrett's contract, which expires Oct. 24, but the talks reached an impasse, according to a statement issued by the network.

"Texas" will continue for the first few weeks of "Texas," then will be dropped and the two series will maintain separate identities, the producer says.

Beverlee McKinsey, who has played Iris Bancroft in "Another World," takes her character to "Texas" as the new series' star.

"Texas" was conceived by both Rauch and Joyce and John William Corrington, head writers for CBS' long-running "Search for Tomorrow."

"The three of us had created a show we called 'Reunion,' set in antebellum New Orleans. When NBC asked us to develop a daytime drama, part of that concept was encompassed by 'Texas.'"

Murder Mars Session Of Metropolitan Opera

NEW YORK (AP)—Deep in the bowels of the Metropolitan Opera House, past the giant Chagall paintings and the crystal chandeliers, someone tossed the bound, nude body of a blonde violinist down an airshaft as the Berlin Ballet danced on the main stage.

Helen Hagnes, who disappeared after telling friends she was going to meet star Valery Panov, apparently died after a chance encounter backstage Wednesday night, police said.

The mystery deepened when Panov said he did not know Miss Hagnes.

An autopsy was scheduled today to determine what caused the death of the 30-year-old professional musician, whose body apparently was dropped 60 feet from the opening of a rooftop air duct to a protruding beam below. Police said there were no apparent wounds on her body.

The murder occurred some time after Miss Hagnes left the orchestra pit between portions of the ballet company's program.

The company performed its scheduled ballet, "The Idiot," with the orchestra playing music by Dmitri Shostakovich on Thursday night as more than a dozen detectives combed the building for clues.

Although the murder was a topic of conversation among the crowd of some 3,200 ballet fans, neither the ballet troupe nor the orchestra of freelance musicians publicly mentioned the killing.

"They're very upset," opera spokeswoman Johanna Fiedler said of the dancers. "But everyone's professional. There's just the feeling that the show goes on. It's something that's ingrained through years of practice."

Dancers were escorted in groups around the opera building by police detectives. Ms. Fiedler said the normal house security force of eight would be doubled until the troupe moved on to Washington after Saturday night.

Miss Hagnes had performed for the first two selections of a four-ballet program Wednesday night. Theater officials said she left her violin on her chair, stopped in a dressing room and then left around 9:30 p.m. for what was described as an "artistic discussion" with Panov, the Soviet emigre dancer and choreographer in his dressing room.

But she was never seen in or near Panov's dressing room, and police said Panov is not a suspect in the case.

Miss Hagnes' disappearance was noted when she did not return at 10 p.m. for the fourth ballet of the night and when her husband, Janis Mintiks, a sculptor, could not find her at the end of the show.

WESTERN DUO—Carla Borelli plays young Texas sophisticate Reena Cook and Chandler Hill Harben is Max Dekker, a hard-working ranch hand who labels himself a "man of the land" — with little desire to explore the glamorous life of urban Houston — in the new NBC-TV daytime drama, "Texas," which premieres Monday, Aug. 4.

The crossruff hand is one in which declarer needs to ruff back and forth in order to make the trumps separately. Obviously, if you want to make trumps that way you cannot afford to play them out.

North's four-spade jump was preemptive. That bid is always a gamble, but North really was gambling a trifle too much.

South's jump to seven was an even worse gamble. He did have all the aces, but there was no reason for him to play his partner for second-round heart control.

South won the first trick with dummy's four of trumps. He needed 12 more tricks for his grand slam. He could make three tricks with the three side aces which meant that he needed nine tricks with trumps.

Fortunately, there were still five trumps in his hand and four in dummy so if he made them separately he had his grand slam.

All his trumps were high so he could crossruff without fear of an overruff. There was one problem left. West still held the trump five.

This meant that South should precede his crossruff by cashing the heart, diamond and club aces. This is standard with crossruffs. Get your off-suit tricks in first to guard against discards by opponents. With the three aces in, South spread his hand since the crossruff could not be stopped. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Mass Transit Riders Protest Fare Hikes

By CHRIS ROBERTS
Associated Press Writer
PHILADELPHIA (AP)—The bus got halfway up the hill and stopped, its motor straining, gray smoke pouring from the exhaust pipe. Some passengers got out, and the bus inched forward.

At the top of the hill, the passengers, who had walked alongside the hissing vehicle cheering it on, got back in to continue their uncertain journey home.

"And for this we pay?" asked one rider.

Effective today, they pay more. The Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority instituted a 65-cent base fare, joining Los Angeles in charging the nation's highest price at the fare box.

City transit riders in New York, Boston, Baltimore, Cleveland, Washington, D.C., and the San Francisco Bay area are also dropping more into fare boxes because of recent increases which began in New York on June 28.

Not surprisingly, SEPTA's fare increase is unpopular with the riding public.

During Wednesday's board meeting, where the increase was approved, rowdy demonstrators screamed their disapproval, at one point yanking a microphone away from SEPTA board chairman David Girard-deCarlo and forcing a recess.

Outside on the street, demonstrators vowed not to pay the new fares, originally scheduled to take effect July 1 but delayed in court.

SEPTA, the nation's third largest transit system, carries 1 million passengers daily on a five-county network of trolleys, subways, buses and commuter trains including subsidized Conrail lines formerly run by the Penn Central and Reading railroads.

It shares the same problems faced by many other systems: antiquated equipment, costly maintenance, rising labor and operating costs and lagging government subsidies.

For example, diesel fuel costs have risen dramatically, from about 50 cents a gallon one year ago to about 90 cents a gallon today, according to SEPTA spokesman Joaquin Bowman.

At the close of fiscal 1980, SEPTA had an unfunded deficit of $20.9 million—$15.7 million from inflation, $5.2 million due to subsidy shortfall. The state subsidy for fiscal 1981 will be $94 million—up from $76 million but only enough to make up the unfunded deficit.

"Without additional revenue we would have either had to shut down or drastically reduce service," said Girard-deCarlo. "And to reduce service below what we are now providing is not an alternative."

The average age of a Broad Street subway car is 48 years; 33 years for a trolley car. Vehicle reliability—measured as mean distance between vehicle failures—has fallen an average of 58 percent in the last four years.

Selling Out for Marriage: Buyer Beware

By Abigail Van Buren

1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I need an answer soon. I am a good-looking woman in my late 30s. I want more than anything in the world to send my two children to college, but it will take more money than I have.

I have recently met this older man who wants to marry me—right now! He is very rich and he's crazy about me. We are the same religion, but we live in different parts of the country.

It will take seven years to get my children through college and on their own. After that, I plan to terminate my marriage from this rich old man.

If I live with him for seven years, I might as well stay 10, as I have been told that if I do, I will be entitled to half of everything he has. Is that true?

Please, no lectures on my reason for marrying him. You and I both know that since the beginning of time, younger women have been selling themselves to older men for security, and older men have been happy to make the deal. Hurry your answer.

NORTH AND SOUTH

DEAR NORTH: I offer advice on affairs of the heart. There's no heart involved here—only money and the law. Consult a lawyer. And be prepared to sign a prenuptial agreement with this "rich old man." I've never known a rich man who wasn't also very smart.

DEAR ABBY: My husband recently gave a bachelor party for one of his co-workers who is being married soon. He wanted to have the party in our home, which I agreed to until he told me he had hired a dancing girl to strip down naked, then jump into the lap of the prospective groom while someone took pictures of all this as a joke!

I told him I wouldn't permit this sort of thing in our home, whereupon he informed me that this is routine for all bachelor parties.

Seeing as how I refused to let him have the party at home, he made arrangements to have it somewhere else.

What is your opinion of entertainment like this, Abby?

GEORGIA WIFE

DEAR WIFE: I think it's over-baring.

DEAR ABBY: I notice you sometimes use your column to help a lot of people, so I sure hope this letter makes it, because now that the tourist season is here, we motel owners sure could use a break.

We own a small motel in Independence, Kan., and, Abby, you wouldn't believe what some people do without towels! They use them to polish their shoes, mop up the floor, dye their hair, take makeup off their faces, wipe mud off their shoes and clean their cars.

We provide plenty of facial tissues and toilet paper that would serve these purposes nicely, but no, everybody goes for our clean white towels!

There is no bleach, detergent or spot remover that will restore these towels to their original whiteness, regardless of what the TV commercials say.

Maybe we shouldn't complain. At least the towels are left behind so we can use them for rags. A lot of people just steal them.

HURTING IN KANSAS

DEAR HURTING: Here's your letter. Readers, have a heart and reach for a tissue instead of a towel.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Explosive Volcanoes Danger To Ozone Layer

By WARREN E. LEARY

AP Science Writer

WASHINGTON (AP)—Explosive volcanoes such as Mount St. Helens may damage the protective ozone layer of the atmosphere, according to a study by a scientist believed killed while observing the eruption in Washington state.

The report in the July 25 issue of Science magazine was written by Dr. David A. Johnston, a U.S. Geological Survey scientist missing and presumed dead since the first eruption of Mount St. Helens on May 18.

Johnston was part of a survey team taking measurements on the mountain when it unexpectedly exploded, killing at least 34 persons, and leaving scores still missing.

In the report written last year and revised in January, Johnston said earlier projections greatly underestimated the amount of chlorine in volcanic material, particularly from those around the Pacific Basin.

Analysis of trapped gas pockets in volcanic glass and other material indicates molten magmas "may contain more than 0.5 to 1 percent chlorine, which exceeds by 20 to 40 times or more the earlier estimates upon which volcanic atmospheric impact has been estimated," Johnston wrote.

This means that the amount of chlorine emitted into the atmosphere by volcanoes could be equal to between 17 percent and more than 100 percent of the 1975 world production of chlorine in fluorocarbon chemicals, he said.

If these numbers prove correct, they bring into question the usefulness of efforts to limit production and use of fluorocarbons. These chemicals are used as refrigerants in cooling systems and as propellants in aerosol spray cans.

Fluorocarbon gases rise and accumulate in the upper atmosphere. Once there, sunlight breaks them down and releases chlorine or chlorine compounds that destroy ozone concentrated in a layer 20 miles above the Earth, scientists say.

Ozone is a form of oxygen that shields the planet from the Sun's deadly ultraviolet rays. Some scientists fear that if more of this radiation reaches the Earth, it could lead to widespread increases in skin cancer and possible climatic changes.

The United States has banned the use of fluorocarbons in spray cans and proposed limiting production. However, worldwide use of the chemicals is rising despite the warnings.

Johnston said in his report that volcanic explosions powerful enough to penetrate the stratosphere have been occurring about once a year in recent times.

It would take large eruptions such as Mount St. Helens to shoot chlorine high enough to reach the ozone layer because chlorine from volcanoes is in the form of hydrogen chloride. This compound is readily water soluble and doesn't rise that high on its own because rain washes it out, Johnston said.

The scientist called for more studies of volcanic sources of atmospheric chlorine because they may be as significant as man-made sources.

Three Mishaps Reported Here

Three traffic accidents were worked by the city police department Thursday.

The first occurred about 10:15 a.m. in an alley off the 1800 block of 39th St. In it, an unknown vehicle struck a Lone Star Gas Co. meter, causing about $150 damage.

The second mishap was in the 2500 block of College Ave. at 1:05 p.m. There, a 1973 Pontiac driven by Virge Wills of Fluvanna struck a parked 1979 Pontiac owned by W. Jay Kidd.

The final mishap was at the intersection of 30th st. and College Ave. Reports show a 1977 Ford driven by Eloise Morgan and a 1973 Ford driven by Minerva Llenes collided.

All the accidents were investigated by Sgt. Jerry Parker.

coming school year. A native of Denison, he graduated from East Texas State University and last year was a part-time instructor at Cedar Valley College in Lancaster, Tex.

The board then gave approval to rodeo coach Bob Doty to purchase a mobile home at the rodeo grounds on West 30th. Cost would be $7,400 and the mobile home presently is on location.

Doty would house five scholarship students there and the students would help care for the livestock and protect facilities and feed.

The board also instructed Business Manager Gay Hickman to seek quotations for typewriter maintenance, and also to seek bids on some typesetting equipment.

Edwin Parks, president, presided at the meeting and board members present were Bill Jones, Wacil McNair, R.C. Patton and Howard Sterling.

Local Couple Sentenced In Federal Court

LUBBOCK—U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward sentenced a Snyder couple yesterday to three years in prison and a $30,000 fine each for failure to file federal income tax returns.

A federal court jury on June 25 had found Dr. Sherman H. Merritt and his wife, Lupe Merritt, guilty on three counts.

Judge Woodward suspended one year of Merritt's prison sentence and ordered that he be placed on probation after serving his prison term. Judge Woodward also ordered Merritt to file all of his tax returns and pay past due taxes in connection with the charges filed against him.

The judge suspended all three years of Mrs. Merritt's term and her fine. She was placed on probation and was ordered to file returns and pay back taxes.

The couple had been charged with failing to file income tax returns for 1973-74-75. Court officials reported that Merritt had filed notice of appeal to the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans.

Andrews On Top; Tigers In Running

By Bill McClellan
MONAHANS AND SNYDER could issue strong challenges, but will be no match for the (Andrews) Mustangs.

Texas Sports

NOTHING LIKE STIRRING the coals a month or two before the steaks are marinated, 'ey?

The 1980 version of football is creeping even closer, as the above quote, taken from Texas Sports Magazine, attests. With it of course, comes the hoopla, fun and frustration of preseason polls and predictions.

So where does Snyder sit over a month before the season begins? Well, according to Texas Sports, the Tigers should finish third in District 2-4A, behind first choice Andrews and second pick Monahans.

Dave Campbell's Texas Football charts the Mustangs on top as well, followed by what seems to be a tossup between Fort Stockton and Snyder. Campbell's mag, which sells for a hefty $3.75 (inflation, no doubt), doesn't attempt to list anything but its No. 1 pick. In fact, it runs a disclaimer which states, "...the order in which the teams are listed... does not represent Texas Football predictions of an order of finish..." etc. Gee Dave, for $3.75 we expect more.

ANDREWS' EDGE, IN addition to three top offensive skills people - quarterback Keith Brooks, running back Van Percy and end Ricky Jarvis - is six returning starters on defense. Throw in Mustang tradition, add one of the better programs around, and you've got a winner.

Snyder also returns some people in key positions, such as QB Mike Roemisch, RB Keith McClain and leading receiver Dale Jenkins, and boasts line energy in Neil Evans and Tony Degrate, among others.

UNLIKE ANDREWS, HOWEVER, Snyder must come up with solid line materials, an effective defensive backfield, and a good helping of confidence before it can contend for the top spot this year.

Snyder's underclassman program is one of the best in the area, and it is here that the Tigers can hope to base the crux of their success, along with senior leadership and experience from the Roemisch-Degrate-Jenkins clan.

Though short on varsity maneuvers, the ranks will bring up scrappy fighters that aren't used to losing. In fact, Snyder's current crop of varsity recruits lost one game during freshman and JV wars. Not bad, huh?

IT ALL ADDS up to two big questions: 1. Can Snyder's defense jell quickly enough to compete in a district race which begins as early as Sept. 19? 2. Can a group of eager but inexperienced youngsters find the confidence that Snyder never really grasped last year?

Just what effect these factors will have is something neither I, Texas Sports or Dave Campbell can figure on in a preseason poll.

But I don't think head coach Mike Jenkins would mind much if we started him out ranked third and let his Tigers earn their way from there. Would 'ya Mike?

TWO OTHER NOTES: Snyder hosts Andrews on Nov. 14. The final district game of the season. Also, Texas Sports picks Ira High School to win the District 2, Six-Man ranks.

Missy Hodge and Yolanda Anderson combined for two hits each while Pam Batchelor, Becky Dayna and Tammy Wadkins knocked one apiece to help Snyder's Division I All-Stars in a 9-7 come from behind victory over Midland last evening. The win was Snyder's

Brett Gets New Pact

KANSAS CITY, Mo (AP) -George Brett, Kansas City's All-Star third baseman who's having a brilliant season despite injuries, has signed a contract that puts him at the top of the baseball salary structure.

Sources told The Associated Press that Brett has signed a five-year contract that calls for a salary of $900,000 a year.

"It will amount to a million a year the last five years," said one source. He did not elaborate but apparently referred to deferred payments and other fringe benefits.

In addition, the agreement will add $250,000 to each of the two years remaining on Brett's Present pact.

Brett and General Manager Joe Burke both refused to confirm or deny the report.

"I just don't have any comment at all," said Brett, who had two hits against Chicago Thursday night and raised his average to .379. "They've asked me not to comment about these things, and I told them I wouldn't."

"I have nothing to say on the matter," said Burke.

Brett's present contract, signed after he won the American League batting title in 1976 with a .333 average, is believed to bring him about $330,000 annually, much of it in deferred payments.

tone bright spot of the evening, as both its Division II and Division III teams suffered a loss. Odessa Red, which had defeated Midland Gold 18-2 earlier in the day, stopped Snyder 6-1 in an evening encounter. The Odessa club cranked up a pair of pitchers to sear 15 strike-outs past the locals. Lisa Rosas paced Snyder's effort with a double and a single. Thresa Ashworth, Becky Gray and Jena Fox added a single apiece. In other Division II results, Big Spring downed Midland Blue 17-6, then fell to Odessa Blue, 16-0.

This morning, Snyder was to take on Midland Gold with the loser dropping from the double-elimination tournament. Other Division II games this morning were to pit Big Spring against Midland Blue at 9 and Odessa Red against Odessa Blue, in the winner's bracket, also at 9. Odessa Red Division III handed Snyder's Stars a 6-1 loss last evening, pushing hosts into a do-or-die situation at 5 o'clock this evening. Snyder will be pitted against Odessa, a 5-0 loser to Big Spring. Meanwhile, Midland Blue, and Big Spring were to vie at 11 this morning in the winner's bracket.

socialization Tournament continues in Snyder through Saturday. Thursday's Scores: Division I: Big Spring 14, Odessa 13; Snyder 9, Midland 7; Division II: Odessa Red 18, Midland Gold 2; Big Spring 17, Midland Blue 6; Odessa Red 6, Snyder 1; Odessa Blue 16, Big Spring 0; Division III: Midland Blue 10, Snyder 2; Big Spring 5, Odessa 9; Friday's Games: Division I: Winner's Bracket-Big Spring vs. Snyder, 11 a.m.; Loser's Bracket-Odessa vs. Midland Blue, 11 a.m.; Tonight: Odessa-Blue victor vs. BS-Snyder loser at 7 p.m., Farm League Field. Finals to begin 9 a.m. Saturday, EL Field.

Stanger Shares Lead In 'This Stupid Game'

JERICHO, N.Y. (AP) -Julie Stanger and Sally Little shared the opening day lead in a $125,000

72-hole Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament at the Meadow Brook Club. After that, the pair seem to have little in common.

The 23-year-old Stanger, on the LPGA tour less than two years and a graduate of Arizona State, called golf a stupid game after her 3-under-par performance Thursday on the par-72, 6,347-yard layout that saw only one bogey as opposed to four birdies.

Little, a 29-year-old native of South Africa and 10-year veteran, who has her mother, father and sister among her gallery, missed only one green and had three birdies in posting her first-round 69.

Told about Stanger's remark regarding golf, Little offered, "That was an unusual remark to make for somebody who is making a living playing the sport. There is no question golf puts you down and it can make you negative, but I look at it as a tremendous challenge. I feel it is one of the hardest sports you can play."

The 5-5, 120-pound Stanger, in sharing the opening-day lead for the second consecutive week - she had a career best 68 in Baltimore last week and was tied with Joyce

Entries Flood WTC Tourney

The annual Western Texas College Partnership Golf Tournament, filled to the point of overflowing, begins here Saturday at 9 a.m.

Sixty-four teams make up the field, but in case one or two drop out this evening, director Bob O'Day has a long waiting list to pull from.

According to the Western coach, this weekend's tournament gathers some of the better golfers in the West Texas area, including two-time champions and former WTC linksters Mike Waller and Britt Lindsey.

Action will begin each day of the two-day tourney at 9 a.m. Another shotgun start will be held each afternoon at 2. Teams will be seeded after Saturday's rounds.

A free barbecue will be held for entrants tomorrow evening at 7. Guests of the players will be admitted for $5 to the dinner.

Western College Course will be closed to regular golf traffic during the tournament, but Coach O'Day is urging spectators to support the tournament. There is no charge.

Simons Heads Hartford Event

WETHERSFIELD, Conn. (AP) -Long after most of the spectators had gone home from the opening day of the Greater Hartford Open, first-round leader Jim Simons stood on the practice green working on his putting.

Although he held a 2-stroke lead after tying the opening-round record with a 9-under-par 62, Simons apparently was not about to let his game deteriorate overnight.

"Golf is 'too unpredictable,'" he had said Thursday after the first round. "I don't know if what worked today will work tomorrow." What worked for Simons Thursday was his putter, which he used to register 10 birdies, five of them in a row, and only one bogey. He credited his fine putting to a "two full days of hard work" on his short game this past weekend and early this week. He practiced so hard, he said, that he was tired even before the GHO started.

He would have had a hard time convincing Jamie Gonzalez he was tired after shooting a round that tied the record set last year at the Wethersfield Country Club by George Cadle.

Olympics Marred By Decision In Gymnastics

MOSCOW (AP) -At the awards ceremony, Nadia Comaneci, silver medalist, shook hands with Yelena Davydova, gold medalist.

Tonight they were to come out fighting. Comaneci's last chance for Olympic gold was to be the highlight of the sixth day of Olympic competition that also included the semifinals of the 800 meters. On Thursday, bitter rivals Steve Ovette and Sebastian Coe each took it easy in winning his heat, the first step toward their expected classic clash of running talent and egos in the 800 final Saturday night.

Also on today's schedule was the first appearance of two-time Olympic heavyweight champion Teofilo Stevenson, the Cuban knockout artist with the lethal right hand; the 100-meter dash final, and possibly more gold for the amazing Soviet gymnasts in the men's individual events.

The Soviet Union continued to pile up the medals in the only Games in modern times without an American team. Through Thursday, the Soviets had 27 gold medals - the rest of the 80 nations here totaled 23 - and 53 medals overall. East Germany was slipping second with nine gold and 37 total.

The Soviets picked up one gold medal Thursday night, which some will say was picked right out of Comaneci's pocket. The all-around gymnastics award ceremony was eerie. The athletes shook hands, smiled and waved to the crowd. It was hard to believe that just minutes before, the same arena was the scene of the longest, most bizarre argument in Olympic gymnastic history.

Going into her final exercise, the balance beam, Comaneci, the last competitor in the event, was 9.25 points behind Davydova, the latest in a line of young Soviet gymnasts who are making the Moscow Games very difficult for the star from the Montreal Olympics.

Her routine on the beam wasn't vintage Comaneci, it wasn't perfect. She wobbled a bit on one maneuver then stumbled a little on her dismount. Would it cost her? A 9.5 would give her gold; a 9.0 or lower would give her something much less.

The Romanian coach seethed. He couldn't understand the 9.85, nor could the Romanian head judge, Maria Simionescu, who initiated a long dispute by refusing to accept Comaneci's mark from the four-referee panel from Czechoslovakia, Poland, Bulgaria and the Soviet Union. The competition jury, which rarely overrules the referees, eventually disallowed Simionescu's objection.

In men's all-around gymnastics, Alexandr Dityatin of the USSR won the gold medal and became the first male Olympic gymnast to score a perfect mark of 10, in the vault, as five perfect 10 scores were awarded in the men's competition.

In swimming, Soviet Vladimir Salnikov won his third gold medal of these Games, setting an Olympic mark of 3:51.31 in the men's 400-meter freestyle; the Australians took their first gold when their men's 4 x 100 medley team beat the Soviets by .22 of a second, clocking 3:45.70; East Germany's Caren Metschuk won the 100-meter butterfly event in 1:00.42, and Barbara Krause of East Germany won the 100-meter butterfly in 1:58.33, an Olympic record.

$412 Million...

Record Loss By GM

DETROIT (AP) - The giant General Motors Corp. caught with an inventory of big cars at a time of rising fuel prices, has reported its first loss in a strike-free quarter since the Great Depression - a company record $412 million.

Top company officials said there were no "near-term" prospects of a return to profitability for the nation's third-biggest company. In last year's second quarter, GM earned a record $1.19 billion or $4.13 per share.

The company, which makes nearly half the cars sold in the United States, blamed the loss on the recession, consumer concern about higher fuel prices and competition from imports that get better gas mileage than domestic makes.

Large-car sales for the first half of the year were off 35 percent compared with last year, the company has reported.

"I think they underestimated the cost of getting rid of the biggies," industry analyst Arvid Jouppe said. Jouppe is research vice president of the brokerage house of John Muir & Co.

The record loss, reported Thursday, came to $1.43 a share for stockholders. It was more than three times larger than the company's previous record loss, $135 million, reported in the fourth quarter of 1970, when the company was being struck. Its last non-strike loss was in 1932.

GM has been cutting employment and production in recent months in efforts to cope with its financial problems.

Thomas A. Murphy, the company chairman, and Elliott M. Estes, the president, issued a statement saying that a "restoration of production and employment cannot be expected sooner than the fourth quarter of 1980."

The officials did say that they did not plan to reduce capital spending, which they say is essential to the company's plan to produce smaller cars with better gas mileage.

In another auto industry development, American Motors Corp., tiny by comparison to GM, also reported a record loss for the quarter.

AMC said it lost $84.9 million or $2.66 per share. Its worst previous quarter was the July-September quarter of 1976, when it lost $51.1 million.

Chrysler Corp. earlier reported to the federal government that it lost $568 million for the quarter, leaving Ford the only automaker not yet reported.

Analysts expect a loss of up to $500 million from Ford, bringing the loss for the four companies to almost $1.5 billion.

Ford, Chrysler and AMC have all said they do not expect to make money this year.

GM officials did not predict a loss for the year. The company has not had a losing year since 1921.

The Yukon Territory was established in 1898, two years after Klondike gold was discovered. The area was first explored in 1842 by Hudson's Bay Company agents and prospectors, who pushed north along the Liard River in the 1870s. Gold in the Klondike brought in enough population for the Yukon to be set up, and self-government was established several years later.

Pregnant woman's needs

DEAR DR. LAMB - Is it really necessary for a pregnant woman to take prenatal vitamins when she has previously had eight and nine pound babies? I have several friends who believe that this is a factor in causing them to have big babies and they're not doing without them. They eat nutritionally and also have been taught that getting fresh air and exercise are good.

DEAR READER - It depends. Whether any woman needs additional vitamins or minerals depends entirely on how much she is getting in her diet and how much of the vitamins and minerals are actually absorbed. In general, most women do need a little additional help during pregnancy.

A baby does not become too large because of what the mother eats. His normal size is dependent upon inherited characteristics or his own genes. You can cause a baby to be smaller than its programmed weight by not eating enough or not eating nutritionally or by smoking cigarettes. Women who have really large babies are sometimes destined to become diabetics. Of course, the size of the baby also depends upon how long the pregnancy lasts. The point is well illustrated by the premature baby which is characteristically small.

Two of the main needs for improved nutrition during pregnancy are increased amounts of calcium because the baby's skeleton will demand it, and increased amounts of iron because the baby's blood needs iron to form its own hemoglobin for its red blood cells.

Now if you don't get enough calcium, you'll lose some from your own skeletal system which is pretty hard on your teeth. Before women's nutrition was improved during pregnancy it was commonly said a woman lost one tooth for every pregnancy.

The recommended daily dietary allowance of calcium for pregnant women is 1200 mg of calcium a day. When she is not pregnant, during the childbearing years the normal woman may get by on as little as 800 mg a day.

There are also additional vitamin requirements. After all, it is true that you're eating for two instead of one.

It is also important to the developing baby for the mother to get an adequate amount of protein in the diet. A pregnant woman usually needs 30 grams more of good quality protein a day than a nonpregnant woman, or a total of at least 76 grams a day.

You'll need twice as much iron as the normal woman needs during her childbearing years during a pregnancy. According to the National Academy of Sciences' Food and Nutrition Board, the amount of iron required is in excess of what you can expect to get through dietary means and supplemental iron is recommended. If you don't get the iron you are more likely to have anemia problems during your pregnancy.

Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. It includes the table of needed vitamins and minerals for pregnant and lactating women.

The additional increase in vitamin needs, as distinct from the mineral needs, is minor and could probably be met easily with an adequate diet.

White House Scared By Billy Carter Caper

WASHINGTON (AP) - No matter what the ultimate outcome of the Billy Carter caper, with the presidential election just 3 1/2 months away, the White House is scared.

Petro Plants Brain Cancer Cases Studied

WASHINGTON (AP) - Federal officials reportedly fear they may find a high rate of brain cancer in plants that make chemicals from oil after the discovery of a larger-than-normal amount of brain cancer at two Texas petrochemical plants.

The investigation of the two plants began last year and turned up 25 brain tumor cases, including 24 fatalities, at a Dow Chemical plant at Freeport, Texas, and 18 other fatal cancers at a Union Carbide plant in Texas City, Texas, The Washington Post said today.

Thus far, investigators have not been able to single out a particular chemical that has caused the cancer rate, which is twice the normal level of the general population, Dr. Richard Waxweiler of the National Institute of Occupational Safety and Health told, the newspaper.

Some other plants are now being investigated, officials said. Aaxweiler said Wednesday "there's no reason to suspect all petrochemical plants," but J. William Lloyd, an epidemiologist for the Occupational Health and Safety Administration, said, "There may be any number of chemical plants involved."

Both the affected plants are in the Houston-Galveston area, where there are a number of other plants that make or handle petrochemicals.

James Hanson, a spokesman for Dow, said, "There is nothing so far to connect the workplace to the brain cancer. We see no common thread that would suggest exposure to any particular material or location in the plant" is the cause.

And with some Republicans comparing the whole affair to Richard Nixon's Watergate, White House officials are taking pains to reject that characterization at every turn.

But the facts themselves have created controversy. The president's brother, Billy, was forced by the Justice Department last week to register as a foreign agent because of his dealings with Libya, whose relations with the United States have not been friendly. The Libyan government has given Billy $220,000 of what the younger Carter describes as a $500,000 loan.

White House aides say it is too early to tell whether the bad publicity will jeopardize President Carter's chances this fall against Ronald Reagan, the Republican nominee who already has a healthy lead in most public opinion polls.

Reagan, independent presidential candidate John Anderson and some members of Congress lost no time calling for an investigation, and the Senate decided Thursday to appoint a nine-member committee to examine the matter and report its findings by Oct. 4, one month before the election.

The delicate, almost ingratiating way that White House aides are handling the matter speaks volumes about the extent of their concern.

White House press secretary Jody Powell told a group of reporters in his office Thursday that he would take pains to answer all questions as coolly and calmly as he could. He said he was making an effort to quell his normally combative spirit for the occasion.

And he did just that. In painstaking detail, Powell explained why he hadn't volunteered two days earlier the fact that President Carter had held a secret meeting with the same Libyan official who had met with the president's brother, Billy, 10 days earlier.

With Watergate clearly on his mind but never directly mentioned, Powell said he was "well aware that we deal with this situation in a historical context."

When a reporter interjected: "So do we!" Powell replied emphatically, "That's why we deal with it that way!"

The press secretary pleaded: "Before you say we are dealing with it in the same way as the Nixon White House, judge us on what we do." It was a sentiment he was to repeat, in various ways, throughout the day.

A Democratic Party official described the episode as "a factor and a distraction from the political planning operations."

"It is a matter that is being taken care of at the White House and we prefer it that way," said the official, who asked not to be identified.

The impact on the president's re-election chances, this official said, is "difficult for us to assess. But it clearly is a negative."

Bunnies Big Hit In Cardiac Ward

WAUKEGAN, Ill. (AP) - You're a patient in the cardiac intensive care unit of Victory Hospital. A Playboy bunny approaches your bed Thursday, tucks a napkin under your chin, and serves you chicken Saltimbocca.

"Of course, the cardiac patients were examined and found to be able to take any extra excitement," said Terry Lowe, director of food service at the hospital. "Everyone at the hospital got the special chicken dish."

Lowe started a gourmet food program eight months ago for the hospital's 400 patients and 1,000 employees. Once a month, well-known chefs from the area donate their services to help the hospital kitchen staff of 12 prepare gourmet treats. Chef Charlie Mavs of the Chicago Playboy Club was at the hospital Thursday with his favorite chicken recipe and four bunnies to help serve it. It is sauteed boneless-chicken breast, resting on sauteed eggplant and covered with a slice of ham and cheese.

Lowe said the hospital chef, Tony Robinson, is enthusiastic about the program. "The chefs think the program helps business," said Lowe. "Our employees are served the food in the hospital cafeteria. If they like it, they might take to eating at the restaurant where the chef works. Likewise with our patients."

"This was the first time Playboy bunnies helped serve the patients. And they made a big hit," said Lowe. "We will continue the program indefinitely."
