With Kennedy Endorsement...

Carter Launches Re-Election Bid

NEW YORK (AP)—President Carter is launching his fall re-election campaign today with the endorsement he sought so fervently from Sen. Edward M. Kennedy and, at least seemingly, the party unity he needed to meet the twin challenges from Republican Ronald Reagan and independent John Anderson.

"I will support and work for the re-election of President Carter," Kennedy said in a post-midnight statement.

That, perhaps even more than the declaration of nomination, was what Carter and his lieutenants wanted to hear to cap their anxious efforts to bring the Massachusetts senator aboard the campaign after the long and bitter struggle for the nomination.

The often-turbulent Democratic National Convention concludes tonight with the formal renomination of Vice President Walter F. Mondale and the winners' acceptance speeches.

And while there was no definite word, it was widely assumed Kennedy would seal his support with a closing appearance on the podium with the ticket he wanted to displace.

For Carter, Wednesday night's convention session was a triumphant moment in his embattled presidency but one he was forced to share with his defeated rival.

As the roll call of the states was read for the presidential nomination balloting, the cheers often were louder for Kennedy than for Carter.

When the heads of delegations called out their votes, they consistently referred to Carter as "the next president of the United States." For Kennedy, they used words like "gallant...eloquent...courageous."

The loudest cheer for Carter came when the Texas delegation announced shortly after midnight that its 108 votes had put Carter over the 1,666 he needed for renomination.

At that, the delegates waved Carter-Mondale signs and shouted and stomped about the floor as Carter's wife Rosalynn, his mother, Lillian Carter, and other members of his family watched in Madison Square Garden.

But the cheers of these unity-hungry delegates grew into a roar of relief a few minutes later when House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., the convention chairman, interrupted the demonstration with a message from Kennedy: "I congratulate President Carter on his renomination. I endorse the platform of the Democratic Party," O'Neill read from the five-sentence statement. "I will support and work for the re-election of President Carter. It is imperative that we defeat Ronald Reagan in 1980. I urge all Democrats to join in that effort."

Then, the speaker added, "And so, united we stand."

That was only mostly true. A short time later, when the Minnesota delegation offered the traditional motion to make Carter's nomination unanimous, delegates shouted, "No, No, No."

Saudis threaten Holy War

By The Associated Press

Saudi Arabia, the world's biggest oil exporter, declared that "holy war" is the only way to deal with Israel's annexation of Jerusalem. But Israel said it was not shocked or worried by the statement, and most of the 13 nations with embassies in the holy city resisted Arab pressures to move.

Hand Grenades Stolen

FORT HOOD (AP)—Criminal investigators here are puzzled over the disappearance of three cases of deadly, baseball-sized hand grenades.

"We don't know who took them, why, or where they took them at this time...we just know they are missing," said Capt. Charles Schill of the Army's Criminal Investigation Division.

The grenades can explode within four seconds and produce casualties within 75 feet if the pin is pulled and the arming handle is not depressed, he said.

Leaves Self Open For '84

NEW YORK (AP)—California Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. reaffirmed his endorsement of President Carter's re-election today, but refused to rule out the possibility he would seek the presidency again himself in 1984.

Brown, who earlier this year castigated Carter for an "utterly bankrupt" economic policy and an indecisive foreign policy, refused to either repeat or directly withdraw those criticisms in a news conference today.

Billy Denies

Doing Wrong

WASHINGTON (AP)—Billy Carter met with Senate investigators today on his dealings with Libya and told reporters, "I haven't done a damn thing wrong."

Lawyers for a special Senate Judiciary subcommittee took Carter's deposition at his lawyers' office today in preparation for his public testimony possibly late next week.

The president's brother said he talked to the Senate investigators informally for about seven hours in Georgia over the weekend. He said this session was to provide them his deposition under oath.

The president's brother may testify to the Senate subcommittee late next week, according to Richard Paul, an aide to Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind.

Delegates From Texas Push Carter Over Top

NEW YORK (AP)—"The Eyes of Texas" rang out in Madison Square Garden as 108 Texas Democrats cast their votes for President Carter's nomination Wednesday and clinched his bid for four more years in the White House.

The song started the traditional demonstration for the party's nominee at the Democratic National Convention.

Carter's victory was a virtual certainty for two days but not officially clinched until the Texas numbers put it over the 1,666-delegate convention majority in the roll call of the state.

Texas supporters of Sen. Edward Kennedy cast 38 votes for his unsuccessful bid to derail the president's re-election.

Three of the 152 Texas delegates voted uncommitted and two wrote in Rep. Kent Hance, D-Texas, for the nomination. The freshman congressman from Lubbock was not a candidate.

Former Texas Attorney General John Hill announced the state's votes by first telling the convention that the state was the cornerstone of the Carter-Mondale campaign's victory in 1976.

The delegation steps into the convention's concl-ing session today in search of the party unity most delegates said is needed to secure a Democratic victory over Republican candidate Ronald Reagan.

"They're our friends; this is not a divided state party," Billy Goldberg, the state Democratic Party chairman, said about the Kennedy delegates after the vote. "That's normal for Democrats to have two candidates."

Appraisal Notice May Be Confusing

All Scurry County taxpayers are about to receive a confusing notice through the mail from the Scurry County Appraisal District.

One thing taxpayers are not to do is to send in a payment in response to this notice, said Ray Peveler, chief appraiser.

The notice is one that is required by law, but is confusing to most taxpayers because some of the language required by law makes it appear at first glance to be a statement.

The notice states "Do Not Pay," and it is sent out only because the law requires such a notice when property has been reappraised and the new appraisal exceeds the former appraisal by $100 or more.

The tax figures on the reappraisal notice are what the taxes on the property would be at the same rates that were in effect last year. Taxing jurisdictions here have not yet adopted their tax rates for the coming year. In most jurisdictions, the rate likely will be lowered because assessments this time will be based on 100 percent of market value. In most cases, total taxes are expected to be about the same as in 1979.

Peveler said these new appraisal notices usually result in some taxpayers mailing in checks, or coming to the tax office to pay their taxes. This is because it is easy for a person at first glance to interpret the reference to last year's taxes as the statement for the current year. Therefore, all are being urged to heed the statement, "Do Not Pay," which is included on the appraisal notice.

In tiedown roping for boys 13-15, it was Brad Bryson of Saginaw who led the others with his time of 11.02 seconds. Still in the tiedown competition, but in the 16-19 age bracket, it was James Zant of Odessa who took the lead with a 9.12.

In steer riding it was a tie between Glen Overby of Rotan and Jimmy Lee of Pecos. Each had a 71.

The SDN Column

Joe Williamson brought us a list of interesting items the bureaucrats spend our money for. It was compiled by Congressman Jack Kemp, who at one time was mentioned as a strong contender for becoming Ronald Reagan's vice presidential candidate on the Republican ticket.

It reminded us of some of the "Golden Fleece" awards announced from time to time by Sen. William Proxmire.

Anyway, according to Congressman Kemp, here's how some of the federal funds are spent:

- $64,000 for a study of the mating habits of the fiddler crab.
- $100,000 for a study of emotional effects of separating monkeys from their mothers.
- $640,000 to Gay Community Services for "education about gay life-styles and gay peoples' problems."
- $93,000 to teach Navajo Indians how to be medicine men.

- $100,000 to tend 205 Amazon parrots.
- $29,100,000 for advertising for the federal government.
- $47,800,000 for salaries of individuals administering the Selective Service System which has been out of existence since July 1, 1973.

- $3,300,000,000 each year just to print forms, directives and reports created by the government.
- $2,000,000,000 each year to file and store all of these accumulated papers.

This reminded us of the story about the soldiers on a lonely base during World War II, who, for laughs, devised a new government report on the use and deployment of flypaper strips in mess halls. They sent it to the Pentagon, the story goes. In due time, all other bases were getting inquiries about their flypaper reports.

Oswald's Body To Be Exhumed

DALLAS (AP)—Dallas County Medical Examiner Charles Petty said today he will examine the body of accused presidential assassin Lee Harvey Oswald, which may be exhumed from a Fort Worth grave Friday.

The examination is an attempt to determine whether the body is actually that of Oswald, named by the Warren Commission as the lone assassin of President John F. Kennedy here Nov. 22, 1963.

Petty said he would do the examination at the request of Dallas attorney

Jerry Pittman, who represents British author Michael Eddowes. Eddowes claims the body is that of an impostor and has been trying for years to have the body exhumed.

Petty's office today issued the following statement:

"The Dallas County Medical Examiner's office is not in any way officially involved in the exhumation of the remains of Lee Harvey Oswald. Because the Institute of Forensic Science is the only facility in the area properly equipped to conduct an examination for the purpose of establishing identity I have agreed to undertake this examination.

"I have further agreed not to make any comments public or private and to allow Mr. Jerry Pittman to release such information as he may determine proper. I have asked certain individuals who are experts of forensic examinations to be present and to assist me in the examinations."

"The cases come every day. Most get better but too many die. For those who get well, there is great joy all around, playing and joking and happy scenes of departure when they leave. You hope it will be those that will stay in your memory, but it is the ones that break your heart that stay most vivid. Like the grandfather who buried all but one of his children and grandchildren in Cambodia, and brought in his last sick grandson. A day later, the little child just faded away. Then, a teen-age girl carried in her little brother stricken with meningitis. As we tried to save him through the night, she stood close by, touching him, sponging him off and weeping. When he died, she quietly left, leaving her brother on the floor wrapped in an old blanket.

tion in 1933 in response to the refugee flood unleashed by the rise of the Nazis.

The IRC has responded, through facilities in Florida and Central America, to the needs of Cubans. It has aided Haitians, Chileans, Argentines and other Latins who have fled their homelands for diverse reasons.

Also Ugandans, Angolans, Somalis and Ethiopians on the continent, Africa, where the refugee crush may be greatest of all - estimated at more than 2 million.

And Afghans, crowding into camps in neighboring Pakistan.

Also Jews, Armenians and others permitted to leave the Soviet Union (53,000 during 1979, compared with 40,000 in 1978; plus dissident Czechs, Poles and fellow East Europeans.

One of the report's more illuminating sections is on Hong Kong, the destination of some 75,000 Vietnamese boat people during 1979 and also a haven for refugees from another quarter.

In this era of sudden good feelings with Communist China, it has been easy to overlook, or under-report, the fact that many Chinese would prefer to be elsewhere. For those who can evade the Crown Colony's patrols and the shoot-to-kill zone established by Chinese authorities on their side of the border, that turns out to be Hong Kong.

They included "freedom swimmers" who take their chances in the treacherous waters between the mainland and the Crown Colony, many of whom fail to make it and reach freedom posthumously as bodies washed up on beaches.

For those who do make it, the International Rescue Committee is there to help.

IRC is only one of many volunteer agencies active in its chosen field. Name the Red Cross and Oxfam, among its more notable associates, and you have only begun the roster.

But considering the continuing magnitude of the problem, the field of refugee assistance is scarcely overcrowded. That is the distressing aspect of the encouraging effort.

That passage is excerpted from the letter of a volunteer worker at a facility in Thailand of the International Rescue Committee. It is included in the IRC's latest annual report, a document that makes both distressing and encouraging reading.

The latter because of the evidence it provides of the efforts of compassionate humans to do something about a human problem.

Take Indochina to start - and that, unfortunately, is exactly what it is, only the start. The refugee crisis there has been years in the building and IRC has been involved throughout. From facilities in Thailand, it is providing medical and food assistance to hundreds of thousands of Vietnamese, Cambodians and Laotians who have fled the oppression and continuing disorder of their homelands.

Recommendations of its Citizens' Commission on Indochinese Refugees have been adopted as government policy and, through committee offices in U.S. cities, it has processed a large portion of the 280,000 refugees resettled in the United States during 1979.

Although they dominate the headlines and news columns, the Indochinese are, however, only a part of the refugee problem - and effort. Worldwide, the IRC reports, it has been a bumper year with greater effort expended during 1979 and the early months of 1980 than in any comparable period since the founding of the organiza-tax cut needed if---

Americans have good reason to be confused about cutting federal taxes, even though it is a consummation devoutly to be wished. The average citizen doesn't know what to believe because of conflicting information from the nation's political leaders.

The Republicans led by Ronald Reagan propose a 30 percent reduction during the next three years in individual taxes and an acceleration of business depreciation, with 10 percent off next year. They cite a persuasive case for how retaining about $25 billion in the private sector would stimulate the economy and help pull the nation from its worst recession since World War II.

President Carter lost no time in roundly denouncing such tax relief as "irresponsible," "sheer deception," "a free lunch, something for nothing."

But even as Senate Democrats tabled GOP tax legislation, they blatantly echoed the Republican initiative by promising their own tax-relief program by Sept. 3, well before the general election - a pledge that Carter apparently is going along with.

Meanwhile, the president's chief economic adviser, Alfred Kahn, suggested to Congress the other day that the administration is moving toward "inevitable" tax relief that he said would "have to be on the order of $20 billion, perhaps $25 billion."

What to believe? Inasmuch as most Americans are being pinched simultaneously by inflationary and recessionary pressures and would welcome tax relief, the question is whether the Reagan tax proposal, or any substantial tax cut, is in the national interest. Would it, for example, fuel additional inflation? Is it really justified?

As to justification, the answer is definitely yes. During the last 10 years, the federal tax burden has more than tripled from $193.7 billion in fiscal '81. A typical American worker will pay direct and indirect federal taxes of $5,451 this year - more than one dollar out of every four he earns. And taxes on corporate profits this year amount to a stunning 70 percent when the tax paid by stockholders on dividends is included.

Actually, the phrase "tax cut" is grossly deceptive. The $25 billion reduction urged by the GOP would offset only a fraction of the $100 billion to $124 billion tax increase - the greatest tax increase in U.S. history - that Americans will pay next year. A true tax cut under what the taxpayers are forking out in 1980 would have to exceed this staggering built-in tax growth.

Obviously a real tax cut in the neighborhood of $130 billion is out of the question. But it could easily be argued that the Reagan tax cuts, which now frighten the big spenders in Washington, are too modest.

As to the inflationary effect of a tax cut, the answer cannot be an affirmative as is the justification for it. If tax cuts are accompanied by cuts in federal spending and if the money supply remains stable, then inflation is not increased. In that case we would merely be transferring purchasing power from Washington to the taxpayers - a healthy exercise.

Did you realize that August is the only "No Holiday" month on the calendar?

No hats and horns, no Easter eggs, no presidents' birthdays, no parades, no banks closed, no decorating the house, no flags waving, no Candygrams and no interruption in the garbage pickups on Mondays.

Maybe that's why I've always loved August. The white sales are over. My summer cold has stabilized. I've survived another vacation without killing someone. Camp is over. The grass is brown and doesn't need cutting. It's too late to diet for bathing suits and it's too early to start for the Christmas parties.

August is a wonderful, funky month to dump all the promises into ... all the resolutions for fall ... and all the excuses of summer. It's too hot to cook.

It's too humid to let your hair grow.

It's too crowded to clean the house.

It's too futile to call a meeting.

It's too hectic to start sewing.

Too dusty to clean the garage.

Too counter-productive to write a letter until's there something to write about.

August is a go-to-pot month. You can bite your nails. Let your dark roots hang out. Keep the calendar on July. Procrastinate to your dentist. Leave the top button of your shorts undone so you can breathe. If you're late paying your bills, your creditors think you're abroad.

Life is a rerun and who cares enough to get up and change the channel? I don't know who to thank for August. Surely everyone knows it's fair game for a holiday of some kind. But somehow the creators of National Pickle Week, Plastic Furniture Month, Miss Junk Food Princess and National Illegible Handwriting Week let August alone.

September is filled with schedules and order, October is a tribute to goblins and disguise; November, a time of thanks; December of joyous celebrations; January, resolutions; February, a tribute to our leaders; March, an ode to the Irish; April, the resurrection; May, a day for mothers; June, for fathers; July, our glorious heritage; but August is everyone's time to lay back and wallow in the knowledge that there is absolutely no occasion to rise to.

Manual typewriters, which had found a haven here at the Snyder Daily News, are rapidly becoming an endangered species. They are, I fear, going the way of the dinosaur, the passenger pigeon, and the dodo bird.

The word around here is that the newspaper is switching over to a computer operation in about six weeks. I am not complaining, however. I recall reading a first-day-on-the-job story by the late H.L. Mencken. Mencken, who started out his career as a newspaper reporter in 1899, went on to become a newspaper editor, magazine editor, philologist, and social critic. While a cub reporter he met a product of the old school who was so old he considered the use of the typewriter 'effeminate.'

The oldtimer believed that men - real men, that is - always turned in their copy handwritten. Only women, homosexuals, and other assorted sissies resorted to using a typewriter, he believed. Mencken claimed, I think, the oldtimer got his start in the newspaper business back during the Civil War, when men were men and when no quarter was asked for or given in news rooms.

Mencken always remembered that experience from his youth and resolved not to be so close-minded in his thinking. I believe I can do the same.

The ability to change one's thinking and to change one's way of doing things, are essential parts of growing. A computer operation, once the initial adjustments are made, will be a smoother way of getting the newspaper out. Newspapers are, increasingly, becoming modernized. They are joining the rest of the industry, and it is time, too.

Still, I will always think fondly of the old manual typewriter. There were some good stories written on them.

WASHINGTON, D.C. - Every day that Congress is in session, the session begins with a prayer. There is no law that requires that daily prayer nor is the content of that prayer dictated by any law. It is a simple reminder of the faith in God that this country was built upon.

It seems an extreme contradiction for that same governmental body to refuse the same freedom of spiritual expression to every schoolchild in this country. That is the reason that I support current attempts in Congress to force debate of the school prayer issue before the full House of Representatives.

Until 1962, it was common in many public schools to open the day with a classroom prayer. Then, in 1962 and 1963, the Supreme Court struck down this practice, on the grounds that state-sponsored religious exercises in the public schools violated the First Amendment of the Constitution. It is argued that the court did not prohibit individual, private prayer by students during the school day, but rather any type of state-sponsored religious practice. It is that argument that I support being debated in Congress and the freedom of voluntary prayer absolutely established as the law of the land.

The means for accomplishing that goal, the Helms Amendment to the Supreme Court Jurisdiction Act, is not, I'll be the first to admit, perfect. It would, basically, remove jurisdiction over such questions from the Federal courts, reaffirming the states' rights in deciding this sensitive question.

That amendment, at present, is being held up in the House Judiciary Committee and I have joined some 174 other members in signing a discharge petition which would force the bill to the floor for consideration.

Controversy has surrounded this issue for far too long and a generation of our children have been denied this basic freedom guaranteed by the writers of our Constitution.

Our country was built on three great principles. The first of these was faith in God; the second was constitutional government and the third was the right of private ownership of property. We have witnessed a dangerous erosion of those three principles over the years and a return to school prayer is one step toward rebuilding the strong moral foundation which sustained our country through its formative years and can be relied upon in the days ahead.

I do not advocate any form of mandatory, sectarian, state or federally dictated prayer, but a simple recognition that our faith, as individuals and as a country, is placed in the God of one's understanding. We must also remember that while our Constitution guarantees freedom of religion, it also protects those who choose freedom "from religion." The rights of all must be maintained.

Phillip was able to retain the spade finesse option and find a lucky end play that let him avoid the spade finesse.

He won the club in his hand and cashed dummy's ace and king of trumps. Then he took dummy's ace of clubs and ruffed the last club.

That eliminated the clubs from his hand and dummy and got rid of three clubs from each defender. Then he played his ace and king of diamonds. Finally he led a small trump.

West was in with the queen of trumps. He didn't have any cards left except spades and had to lead the suit. That took care of the first spade finesse. The second spade finesse was unnecessary since one spade would go on dummy's fourth diamond.

Note, that this end play was a lucky one. West had to have that exact 5-3-2-3 distribution. On the other hand, it could not cost South anything. If West had held an extra club or diamond he would have led it. South would still get to discard one spade on the long diamond and take the spade finesse.

Here is a hand from a rubber bridge game in Manchester, England, as reported by International Popular Bridge.

As you can see, Phillip Laddin, the declarer, would have a cinch if the heart queen would drop doubleton or the spade king were held by East. Neither of those favorable situations existed, but

Highway Costs Could Jeopardize Pay Raises

SAN ANTONIO (AP)—Soaring highway construction costs, coupled with reduced revenues from gasoline and automobile taxes could jeopardize pay raises for state employees, a Bexar County legislator contends.

Sen. Bob Vale, D-San Antonio, said Wednesday he was shocked at projections of state finances in an August bulletin from the Texas Research League.

Vale said the Highway Fund was eating state revenue in such large gulps that prospects are dim for any end-of-budget surplus that could be used for salary increases over the next two years.

"Where is the money coming from with a governor who is on a no tax kick?" Vale said. "I want to see what kind of Houdini act he can come up with."

Vale said that Gov. Bill Clements has proposed that the state raise additional funds by changing the state gasoline tax to a percentage basis from the current flat rate.

"I don't take kindly to an increase of 400 or 500 percent in the gasoline tax," he said, noting it has been suggested it might take 25 cents a gallon in taxes to put the Highway Fund back in order.

The budget drain by the Highway Fund can be traced back to the 1977 legislature which guaranteed revenue to the fund from the state's general income if sufficient money was not collected from gasoline and automobile taxes to reach a predetermined level adjusted for inflation, the legislator said.

Vale said the Texas Research League report indicated the state's revenues may run $300 million higher than estimates this year, but that the Highway Fund already was projected to use $263 million of the bonanza.

"Any surplus we might have anticipated is being gobbled up," he said.

Highways were projected earlier this year to cost $348 million, he said, but now that figure is estimated to soar to $633 million, causing an increased drain on general revenues, Vale said.

Reasons for the lack of highway funds, he said, include Texans using less gasoline and buying fewer automobiles, new autos using even less gasoline, and soaring construction costs.

Carter, Kennedy Lock Horns On Jobs Program

By OWEN ULLMANN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK (AP)—Sen.

Edward Kennedy and the labor community had given Jimmy Carter a simple ultimatum: if he wanted them to support his re-election campaign, he would have to support their $12 billion jobs program.

Each side got some satisfaction, but not all that it wanted.

Kennedy and labor got a presidential pledge for their program in principle, but not the $12 billion price tag.

Carter got the unity he had sought at the Democratic National Convention, but not the full or enthusiastic backing he may need to defeat Ronald Reagan in the fall.

Carter arrived here Wednesday certain of renomination—but in danger of losing much of his party over an economic platform plank calling for a Kennedy-proposed jobs program to combat the recession and a 7.8 percent unemployment rate.

The night before, labor delegates supporting Carter had united behind the plank to secure its adoption despite frantic efforts by the administration to defeat it.

Soon after arriving at his hotel, the president and his people were consulting, negotiating, looking for a way to keep the party together behind Jimmy Carter.

The jobs plank symbolized the chasm that separates Carter from Kennedy and labor on economic issues.

Carter placed calls to AFL-CIO President Lane

Kirkland and United Auto Workers President Douglas Fraser. Later, top Carter aides Stuart Eizenstat and Hamilton Jordan conferred with top Kennedy operatives Paul Kirk and Carey Parker. Carter followed up that discussion with a personal phone call to Kennedy.

A little more than three hours before the convention renominated him, Carter issued an artfully worded statement accepting the "intent" of the jobs plank but omitting reference to the specific spending requirement that administration officials say is both inflationary and ill-designed for current employment conditions.

The 13.6 million member

AFL-CIO, in another restrained response, said it was "glad the president's statement accepts the principles and objectives" of the jobs program. "We will continue to work for specific job-creation programs" with the administration, the statement said.

"This is a giant step toward harmony and unity," said Fred Kroll, president of the Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks and a Kennedy delegate from Pennsylvania.

"I'm not at all satisfied," complained United Rubber Workers President Peter Bommarito, a Kennedy delegate from Ohio. "The voice of the delegates spoke and he (Carter) won't accept it.

An aide to Jerry Wurf, president of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees and a Kennedy delegate from the District of Columbia, said the union leader "is not happy with the Carter statement at all."

The AFL-CIO's executive council is almost certain to endorse Carter when it holds its summer meeting in Chicago next week. But whether the labor federation can turn its campaign troops out to fight for the president remains far from certain.

Director William Wyler has been nominated for a dozen Academy Awards. He has won three. They were for "Mrs. Miniver," "The Best Years of Our Lives," and "Ben-Hur."

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Confused about cholesterol

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My family has a history of heart problems so I have my cholesterol checked once a year. My last reading was 289. My doctor said this was on the high side of normal, high being 310. Recently I read in the paper of a fellow who had a massive heart attack and his count was only 260 which his doctor told him was too high, the high side being 250. I'm 49 years old and I'm very confused and concerned.

DEAR READER — I can understand your reaction. The problem really relates to different attitudes about what is normal. There are published normal values for cholesterol levels up to 310. However, those ranges include a high percentage of the people who do develop heart attacks.

To have an optimal reading in terms of having the least amount of risk of having a heart attack associated with your cholesterol level, you're better off to have a level below 220. The situation gets even more sticky because some laboratory methods of determining cholesterol levels yield higher results than others. That's why some office values are said to be normal up to 250.

The truth is the lower your cholesterol level is the less likely you are to have a heart attack or a stroke or any other complications of fatty-cholesterol deposits in the arteries. If you do have a strong family history of heart disease, it is important for you to keep your cholesterol level low. And it's important to have a normal amount of "good" cholesterol as opposed to "bad" cholesterol. That means that a reasonable portion of your cholesterol should be in the small fatty-cholesterol particles as opposed to the larger ones.

To help unconfuse you, I am going to send you The Health Letter number 15-2, Understanding Your Cholesterol, Triglyceride and Other Blood Fats. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

I think you probably should make an effort to lower your cholesterol and that means the proper use of diet and exercise. If these aren't sufficient to lower your cholesterol down to more optimal levels, then there are medicines that can be used if needed.

I should also point out that your cholesterol level is only one of several risk factors. High blood pressure and cigarette smoking are also important factors in increasing your risk of heart attacks and strokes.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is it true that men who have had a stroke should refrain from intercourse?

DEAR READER — That depends on how well you recover. Many people have strokes and are left with minimal difficulties. In the course of time, they may recover so well that you can't even tell they've had one. If a person retains the physical capacity to do moderate exercise and is so inclined, it's not likely to be harmful.

Blood pressure and heart rate do go up during intercourse but the amount of elevation is relatively small with one's mate. Studies have shown that it's quite a bit higher with extramarital activities. Irregularities of the heart also sometimes occur. Some of these are transitory and are not exceptionally important. If your heart is in good enough condition for you to do a moderate amount of exercise, it shouldn't be a problem for you.

Del Rio Wins Battle To Keep Fed's Noses Out Of Its Water

DEL RIO (AP)—Folks who get their drinking water from San Felipe Springs are claiming a major victory over a federal agency that wanted to protect breed of two-inch minnows living in the waterway.

"We won, finally," Mayor Herb Whitis said Wednesday after the U.S. Parks and Wildlife Service announced it would not declare the waterway a "critical habitat" for the Devil's river Minnow.

"We're just elated. Usually you don't take on the federal government and win like this," Whitis said. Residents here had voiced vehement opposition to the wildlife department's plan to declare the tiny fish endangered and portions of the Devil's River and San Felipe Creek a critical habitat.

Del Rio draws its drinking water from a natural spring at the creek.

"The public response just united the whole city," Whitis said.

"Uncle Sam wanted to come in here and tell us what to do and we don't like that down here in this part of the country."

Plans for a celebration already were underway Wednesday night. "We're going to have the biggest barbecue this part of the country has ever seen," Whitis said. "And we're going to drink lots of that San Felipe water."

Lynn Greenwalt, director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, Interior Department, notified members of the Texas congressional delegation Wednesday he had decided against the proposed declarations.

The proposals sparked angry reaction from Del Rio residents at two public hearings earlier this month.

In 1870, German archeologist Heinrich Schliemann began the excavations in Turkey where he found the ruins of Troy.

Anderson Joined By Mary Crisp

NEW YORK (AP)—Mary Crisp, who resigned in tears last month as co-chairman of the Republican National Committee, was named today to a senior post in John B. Anderson's independent presidential campaign. Anderson announced that Ms. Crisp would become chairperson of his campaign with responsibilities for political strategy, fundraising and personal speechmaking appearances. It was the latest move in the Illinois congressman's effort to put new life in his campaign and encourage support from disenfranchised Republicans and Democrats.

Says Pro-Family Groups Cheated In Textbooks

AUSTIN (AP)—Textbook critic Norma Gabler said Wednesday publishers give too much room to organizations such as National Organization for Women and not enough to "pro-family" groups.

"It appears that every minute group of activists rate space in textbooks, but the great majority is always cheated," Mrs. Gabler told the State Textbook Committee.

Specifically, she protested a high school sociology book, "Understanding Society," offered for adoption by Prentice-Hall. Mrs. Gabler complained of a picture showing N.O.W. activists and said many well-known women oppose causes supported by N.O.W., such as the Equal Rights Amendment.

"Proof of the effectiveness of pro-family ladies is evidenced by the fact that states have quit ratifying the E.R.A. since legislators have realized the views of the great silent moral majority," she told the committee.

Mrs. Gabler and a paid researcher for her non-profit textbook analysis corporation, Sheila Haralson of Kilgore, waved the phonics flag in criticizing readers proposed for adoption.

A committee member asked why, if phonics is the best way to teach reading, "learned societies" such as the International Reading Association don't endorse it.

"Once a mode of instruction is established and supported by an organization, I can see why they would be conservative and slow to change," said Mrs. Haralson.

Publishers' responses were typified by Macmillan's, which said children must learn to read through a combination of methods, including phonics.

Macmillan said limiting reading exercises in the early years to words that are "phonetically regular" is a "disservice" to children. Children must learn from the context of a sentence which one of several possible pronunciations and meanings a word might have, the publishers said.

Mrs. Haralson also protested content of some stories in the readers, including the Rand McNally Reading Program for grades 1-8. She said it was "insulting to America and its form of government" for a character to say in an 8th grade selection, "Our society doesn't take care of old people. They do in Denmark. ... Our government should take more responsibility."
