Weekend update

Rain Refuses To Fall

The clouds were there but the rain refused to fall again Friday, at least in any substantial amount, and the drought that has parched fields and turned lawns brown continues. Three hundredths of an inch did manage to seep from the sky Friday and .6 was reported at Lake Thomas. But as near-by as Ira the rainfall report was zero and the forecast calls for fair skies with only a chance of scattered thundershowers.

Two Injured In Shell Fire

HONOLULU (AP)—An explosion and fire that erupted at a petroleum storage facility here critically injured two oil company employees who were to be flown to Brooke Army Medical Center, in San Antonio, Texas. The fire erupted at 10:25 a.m. Friday in an area between facilities of Chevron USA Inc. and Shell Oil Co., sending flames 100 feet into the air.

Three Chevron storage tanks were damaged, along with a Shell office building and a corrugated metal warehouse. It took about three and a half hours to extinguish the blaze.

Another Hijacking

MIAMI (AP)—Six Spanish-speaking hijackers carrying bottles believed to contain gasoline forced an Eastern Airlines jet with 52 people aboard to fly to Cuba Saturday, the fourth diversion to Havana this week, officials said.

The plane, originally scheduled as a Miami-Orlando, Fla., flight, returned to Miami safely at 10:50 a.m. after a roundtrip to Havana and after three hours on the ground there, Federal Aviation Administration spokesman Jack Barker said by telephone from Atlanta.

Meeting VP Contender

WASHINGTON (AP)—Independent presidential candidate John B. Anderson planned to meet Saturday with Boston Mayor Kevin White, one of several Democratic political leaders reportedly under consideration as Anderson's vice presidential running mate. The meeting was scheduled at White's vacation home at Monument Beach, Mass.

Eleven Dead In Oil Blast

TOKYO (AP)—Two explosions, apparently caused by leaking gas, hammered an underground shopping arcade in a city southwest of Tokyo today, killing at least 11 persons and injuring 176 others, police said.

Flash Floods Leave 7 Dead

BRADY'S BEND, Pa. (AP)—Flash flooding that swept away houses and swamped cars left at least seven people dead, and bulldozers were clearing mudslides and twisted debris as emergency workers searched for more victims.

Ten houses were reported to have been swept away and 100 suffered major damage. Four people were injured and an undetermined number were missing, police said Friday. Heavy rains — including four inches within a half hour — pushed Sugar Creek out of its banks late Thursday, sending up to 60 families fleeing for their lives.

"We made a human chain with our kids and headed up a hill," said Carolyn Olszak, whose front steps were washed away. The torrent swept five of their cars away and dropped a snowmobile in their yard, she said.

"The water came up awful fast," said William Crawley, whose house sits along the bank of Sugar Creek. "It was a losing battle. You couldn't get ahead of it."

The public water supply in Brady's Bend was destroyed and drinking water was being trucked in, said emergency coordinator Marc Hillwig.

Gov. Dick Thornburgh declared a disaster emergency Friday for eight communities in three western Pennsylvania counties — Armstrong, Butler and Clarion. Damage was expected to be in the millions of dollars, according to state officials at a command center set up at the flood scene.

Hearing Set In Banks' Tax Suit

District Judge Wayland Holt has set a hearing for 10 a.m. Aug. 25 in the tax suit filed by two Snyder banks here Friday.

Judge Holt issued a temporary restraining order Friday, good for 10 days, and the hearing will be held concerning the plaintiffs' request for a permanent injunction.

Snyder National Bank and West Texas State Bank filed the suit Friday on behalf of each bank and their respective shareholders against the taxing jurisdictions within Scurry County which assess and levy ad valorem taxes on bank stock. Similar suits have been filed in several Texas cities, including Dallas, Midland, Garland, Lubbock, Levelland, Abilene and Fort Worth.

The total amount of taxes in question is approximately $100,000, according to attorneys in the case. The suit will allow the taxes to be paid to the court pending outcome of the suit.

The suit is really a challenge of the Texas Property Tax Code, and does not question the operation of any of the taxing or governmental agencies in Scurry County.

The suit contends that Section 11.02 of the code is unconstitutional and that attempts to tax shares of bank stock as intangible property while exempting all other shares of corporate stock in the state and all other intangible personal property is a violation of equal and uniform taxation as required by the state constitution.

Bank attorneys said the sole basis for filing the suit is the contention of the banks that the state statutes are unfair and unconstitutional. Representatives of various governmental agencies were served notice of the suit Friday afternoon.

Attorneys in the case are James Rosser, representing Snyder National Bank; and Gene Dolaney, representing West Texas State Bank.

Bond Set In Brink's Case

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A Brink's guard robbed his armored van of $1.85 million, police say, and a nationwide search was under way for the man charged with what appeared to be the second-largest heist in the nation's history.

A complaint filed in federal court charged George Manuel Bosque, 25, with robbing his Brink's truck shortly after he and another guard picked up the money at San Francisco International Airport early Friday morning. Bond was set at $3 million.

The money — $1.25 million from First Hawaiian Bank and $600,000 from Central Pacific Bank, both of Honolulu — was headed for deposit in the Federal Reserve Bank here. It was insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and by Brink's.

Rates, Rules Changed...

Fair Now Accepting Booth Reservations

Plans are moving ahead for the annual Scurry County Fair, which is scheduled for Sept. 18-19-20.

The fair will be held at the Scurry County Coliseum, utilizing space in the coliseum, the agriculture-livestock exhibit building and the coliseum grounds.

Reservations for booths are now being accepted at the Snyder Chamber of Commerce office.

The fair association has announced some changes in rates and regulations for booths this year. An

Bonnie Sets Sights North

MIAMI (AP)—Hurricane Bonnie sets its sights northward today, but forecasters think the second storm of the 1980 Atlantic season won't rival its predecessor, Allen.

Bonnie was upgraded Friday night from a tropical storm to a hurricane after officials at Miami National Hurricane Center clocked the storm's winds at 85 mph. At 6 a.m. EDT, forecaster Gil Clark of the National Hurricane Center in Miami said it appeared the storm would not strengthen today.

eight-foot by eight-foot commercial booth in which products will be offered for sale the coliseum will rent for $50 this year. Commercial booths will be allowed to sell by order only, with products sold during the fair to be delivered after the fair closes.

Scurry County non-profit organizations will be allowed to sell and deliver non-edible products from their booths. Their rental fee for an eight-by-eight booth is $30. Commercial booths for display only will rent for $30.

Commercial vendors may rent space outside the coliseum as space permits for $45. They may make direct sales and deliveries from designated areas outside the coliseum. These booths must be furnished by the vendors themselves.

Scurry County non-profit organizations wishing to sell products, including edibles, also will be permitted to set up their own booths in designated areas outside the coliseum. They will be assessed $20 each. The outside booth space will be assigned by the exhibit construction superintendent.

Fair association officials said they hoped that many groups and organizations will have booths at the fair this year, since they always attract considerable interest.

The SDN Column

Now that the two major parties have held their political conventions, perhaps the television networks can brace themselves for more important matters, such as college and professional football.

The politicians are smart enough to get their annual shows on the air before kickoff time, and, hopefully, the candidates will establish proper priorities during the next 2½ months to keep their TV appearances from conflicting with football games on the tube.

Politics and football have become almost year-round sports. It seems ages since the hopefuls began tuning up for the longest string of primaries ever held in this country. And, of course, less than six months elapsed between the Super Bowl and the opening of professional football training camp.

Both politics and football present paradoxes. Ask the average man or woman on the street what he or she thinks about politics, and chances are about 10 to 1 that the reply will be something like, "It stinks," or "I hate it."

Yet, it attracts the attention of more people for a greater span of time than any other activity in this country, at least every fourth year.

Ask the average person about football, and chances are great that most will say there is too much of it—that it gets monotonous. But it still attracts ever-increasing numbers of fans to the stadiums and huge audiences on television.

Politics, of course, is essential to our form of government. Frankly, we never could understand how anyone could embrace the American system on one hand, but express the wish that politics could be eliminated. You just can't have a republican form of government without it. And, with all of the exposure available now via television, we are amazed sometimes how little most Americans know about their political parties.

Some can't understand why they can't vote in more than one primary election, for example. These are the people that the professionals are able to hoodwink.

But, regardless of what you think about it, the system is ours, and it has lasted more than 200 years. But we're glad the conventions are over and that it's time for football.

Lawman Among Six Indicted In Lufkin

LUFKIN (AP)—A lawyer and a constable-elect are among six people indicted Friday by an Angelina County grand jury for felony theft or conspiracy to commit felony theft.

The grand jury accused Lufkin attorney Sid Medford, constable-elect Donald May and two other men of borrowing $42,000 from a Lufkin bank under false pretext.

May, who was elected constable in May and faces no opposition in November's General Election, was indicted on the same day he graduated from a law enforcement training academy in Nacogdoches.

The indictment said Medford, May, William May and Larry Knowlton were supposed to have bought a bulldozer with the money, but instead leased one, reported it stolen and divided the $42,000 from the bank.

New Programs Offered At Local Dance Studio

"In addition to tap, ballet, jazz, pointe and gymnastic classes, the West Texas Theatric Arts Centre will be introducing many new and exciting programs to this fall's curriculum," says Debbie Row, director of West Texas Theatric Arts Centre.

"Two new adult classes and a performing company will be incorporated into this year's program," she said. "Aerobics, one of the adult classes, is the use of your entire body in continuous motion to control weight, improve cardiovascular functions, and promote general well-being."

Aerobic classes will be offered mornings, during noon and evenings. Each class is one hour long and meets twice a week for 10 weeks, she said. Country and western classes and a ballroom class for couples, will be offered adults. Steps are based on standard dances of the past, but with new flair, she said.

One of the studio's main objectives this year is to present more opportunities for Snyder's young talents to perform. This is to be accomplished by the formation of "The Stars of Tomorrow." This group of dancers will perform for local organizations throughout the year. Students wanting to participate must audition by Aug. 23. The company will begin Aug. 25 to prepare a 20-minute variety show, plus a special Christmas show.

The studio has received an invitation to perform at the Taylor County Coliseum in Abilene, Sept. 13 during the West Texas Fair.

Seven girls have auditioned and been accepted for the 'Stars' They are: Jennifer Cole, daughter of Romona Cole; Susan Brim, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Brim; Laurie Donelson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mal Donelson; Rebekah Powell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Buddy Powell; Kristen Walton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dalton Walton; Michelle Holder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Waylen Holder; and Meredith Reed, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Reed.

The company will be limited, says Mrs. Row, therefore, students need to make appointments to audition.

For organizations interested in having "The Stars of Tomorrow" present their show, or need other information, schedules, or other information, call Mrs. Debbie Row.

Believed To Be Titanic ...

Stormy Seas Hinder Filming Sunken Ship

NEW YORK (AP)—Stormy seas raised doubt Saturday that television cameras from a research ship would successfully focus on what is believed to be the wreck of the Titanic, giving scientists the first view of the sunken luxury liner in 68 years.

"We think we've got the Titanic," said Mike Harris, expedition leader aboard the research vessel H.J.W. Fay, when the outline of a ship was discovered by sonar Friday 380 miles off the coast of Newfoundland.

"We won't be sure until we send the television cameras down, but the sonar shows it's the right length, right width and right height of the Titanic," Harris told The Associated Press by ship-to-shore phone.

In an interview this morning, Harris said the weather had deteriorated and 10- to 12-foot high waves were dimming prospects that the cameras could be lowered in an effort to determine if the wreck on the bottom was the liner that took 1,500 people to their deaths.

"We're going to do everything we can, but we're not sure if we can do it at this point," he said. "We may have to leave before going down." He said crews were preparing cameras for a try at photographs, but emphasized, "we're really in big trouble with the weather."

After a 2½-week search in rough seas for the fabled ship, a specially designed scanning sled dangling 600 feet above the ocean floor in 12,000 feet of water picked up the shadowy outlines of what appeared to be a ship, Harris said.

The 38-member crew, which includes 22 scientists, hoped to get a closer look at the outline today with the cameras, which will send back television pictures and color stills of whatever is down there.

The "unsinkable" Titanic on April 15, 1912, struck an iceberg on maiden voyage from England to the United States and sank in less than an hour, in the worst peacetime maritime disaster in history.

The general area where the vessel went down has long been known, but the great depths in that part of the Atlantic have frustrated other searches.

"This is not too far from the historic site where the ship went down," said Harris, a documentary filmmaker from Tampa, Fla.

Expedition sponsor and Texas oilman Jack Grimm said the object was in a 20-mile long "miniature Grand Canyon on the ocean floor."

"Maybe we've found the heifer in the box canyon," he said from his Abilene, Texas, home Friday night.

After bankrolling unsuccessful hunts for Noah's Ark and the Loch Ness monster, Grimm, who put up $1 million, hopes to hit the jackpot with this venture. He thinks he could make a profit, possibly from movie rights, on the Titanic.

Tech Palentologists Say...

Sub-Tropical Forest Covered West Texas

EXPLORING THE PAST—Dr. Sankar Chatterjee of Texas Tech University and his wife, Sibani, examine a piece of sandstone rock at an archeological site near Post, Texas, for 180-million-year-old fossils. Chatterjee believes he has found a new genus of reptile from the Late Triassic period in the Dockum rocks formation. (TECH PHOTO)

LUBBOCK—The clue was a sharp inch-long claw, virtually lost in the red clay soil of a 60-foot-high hill eight miles south of Post.

A casual passer-by wouldn't have noticed it and a future rain would have washed the 180-million-year-old claw into an infrequent creek at the base of the hill. But the three Texas Tech University paleontologists one hot July afternoon were no casual passers-by. For a month they had been looking for something just like that seemingly unimportant sliver of bone.

The claw was an indication that the eroding hillside contained other fossils. The paleontologists—Dr. Sankar Chatterjee, his wife, Sibani, and research assistant Dave Proctor—were looking for 180-million-year-old proof that arid West Texas once was covered by a sub-tropical coniferous forest similar geologically and climatically to now-distant India and Europe.

Three weeks' digging not only uncovered further evidence for the theory of continental drift—that the earth's land once was joined in one super continent, only to slowly separate and drift apart—but also uncovered a bonus as well. The scientists found what they believe is a new genus of rousuchid thecodont, a meat-eating giant reptile that roamed what are now the South Plains during the Triassic period. Key to their belief is the rotary-joined ankle, unlike the hinged ankle of dinosaurs, common to the one adult and three younger rousuchids unearthed from their primordial burial ground.

Rousuchids, which Chatterjee says grew to a full length of about 30 feet, were most identical to dinosaurs except for different ankle joints. The rotary-joined rousuchids walked in a semi-erect posture, while the hinged-jointed dinosaurs walked erect. This erectness probably gave dinosaurs greater speed and mobility, a factor that may have led to their eventual dominance of the earth and the extinction of the rousuchids, Chatterjee said.

The tell-tale claw belonged to one of three young, 10-foot-long reptiles. Parts of their skeletons, plus the skeleton of the still-growing 2-foot-long adult, were found in a common "grave."

Rousuchids are a relatively new-found form of reptile discovered in Brazil, Argentina, East Africa, Switzerland and perhaps China. Rousuchid fragments first were reported in North America in 1979 in Wyoming, and now in 1980 in West Texas. Unlike other rousuchids found so far, however, those near Post were bipedal—they walked semi-erect on their hind legs, not unlike the later Tyrannosaurus rex.

Two years will be needed to do comparative studies to catalog his finds and publish a paper establishing discovery of a new genus of rousuchid, Chatterjee said. One significance of the West Texas discovery is "the excellently preserved skeletons, which will give detailed interpretation of this animal's anatomy."

Chatterjee's team began in June to explore the area south of Post—a red clay and sandstone region that is part of one of the most extensively exposed continental Upper Triassic formations in the United States. A National Geographic Society grant provided funding for the summer-long dig, which Chatterjee hopes can be refunded for another three or four years.

Reason, he said, is that he suspects at least two other previously unknown reptile species lie buried about 20 feet away. Where the team is digging—a formation known as the Dockum rocks—is one of only four late-Triassic paleontological sites in North America. The other three formations are the Chinle rocks in Arizona and New Mexico, the Newark group on the East Coast, and Chugwater rocks in Wyoming.

The Dockum rocks were chosen not only for their proximity to Texas Tech University, but also because this now-dry landscape once teemed with fish, amphibians, and aquatic and semi-aquatic reptiles. A full understanding of animal life in that region's distant past, Chatterjee said, will provide "a more sufficient basis for interpretation of relationships to contemporary and later vertebrates in different parts of the globe."

During the Late Triassic period, West Texas was covered with thick coniferous jungles. Meandering rivers, swamps and lakes dotted the landscape and torrential rains, with flash floods, frequently occurred. Thecodont reptiles were especially abundant in the hot and humid forests.

Commonest forms, Chatterjee said, were phyosaurs—aquatic, long-snouted, crocodile-like creatures, and aetosaurs—plant-eating, armadillo-like reptiles covered with bony spikes.

The newly-found rousuchid may have been the chief predator in the Late Triassic jungle, using his sharp, serrated teeth and recurved claws to tear into his prey. The lightly boned rousuchids could run relatively swiftly on their hind legs, easily catching their slower four-legged victims, Chatterjee said.

The Triassic was the crucial period of vertebrate evolution when reptiles past their evolutionary peak had evolved into various rather specialized lines, Chatterjee said. Along these lines may have been the ancestors of crocodiles, dinosaurs, birds and mammals. A full understanding of West Texas' Docum fauna will form a sounder basis for establishing this evolutionary succession, he said.

Crop Of Pot Not Hurting From Drought

SEILING, Okla. (AP)—Sheriff Larry Price said Dewey County in north-west Oklahoma has one sturdy crop that even the drought and heat wave haven't hurt—marijuana.

Patches of marijuana—at least 15 to 20 acres—are flourishing along creek beds and farmland east of here, the sheriff said.

Price has had reports that someone in Texas is selling directions to the area.

In the past two weeks, deputies have arrested men from Texas and New Mexico caught wandering through the patches which are marked with "no trespassing" signs.

One of the men, from Lubbock, Texas, who allegedly was caught with three trash bags full of freshly cut marijuana told officers he bought a map of the patches for $50 from a friend in Lubbock, Price said.

In past months, people from as far away as Washington state and North Carolina have been in Dewey County searching for the patches, Price said.

"We've been aware of it (the marijuana) for the past few year. But it didn't seem like too many people were going out there until recently. Maybe we just haven't been catching them," the sheriff said.

Although lawmakers and landowners have been knocking down the 8-to-12-foot-tall plants with mowers, the crop is far from being exterminated. Even in the recent drought and high temperature have had no noticeable effect. "It's the only green thing out here. Just like a weed, you want it not to grow and it does."

DWARF SHRUBS FOR MODERN LANDSCAPES:

If you deplore the thought of planting shrubs because of the tedious pruning that they require, you may want to consider dwarf plants. Dwarf plants are just about the nicest thing to hit the nursery trade in recent years. And they are great news for the homeowner as well.

Texans are noted for their love of things big, but when it comes to shrubs, big, over-grown specimens mean work and problems. Dwarf, compact, low growing plants can be the answer to your landscape maintenance problems.

Dwarf plants are best used in small, detailed areas where they will be observed at close range, such as patio and entrance areas. They should, of course, not be used for background plantings, or in areas where they might be overgrown by larger shrubs or annual flowers. Pruning is virtually eliminated when you use dwarf plants. But remember that even though dwarf, they do require room to spread and grow. Your nurseryman can advise you on the proper planting distance of the particular dwarfs you select.

Dwarf shrubs to be considered are: DWARF YAUPON HOLLY - Native much-branched shrub. Excellent for low hedge, as specimen, or as container plant. Very popular landscape shrub, with few insect or disease problems.

WHEELER'S DWARF PITTOSPORUM - Very compact ever green shrub with glossy dark evergreen foliage. Possesses all of the same desirable qualities as regular Pittosporum but attains only a fraction of the size. Useful as a border plant, small hedge, or in containers.

DWARF MANDINA - Interesting new dwarf mounding shrub. Plant form is very much unlike the regular Nandina domestica. Produces small compact, densely foliated plants with green foliage in late spring and summer which turns brilliant scarlet and bronze in the winter. Ideal as a specimen plant.

DWARF PYRACANTHA - Several varieties of hybrid dwarf pyracanthas available - 'Tiny Tim', 'Red Elf' are two of the popular favorites. Dwarf, mounding, compact growing habit. Dark evergreen foliage.

DWARF ABELIA - Low, spreading evergreen shrub. Shiny small leaves with reddish tinge. Delicate white flowers are borne on the plant most of the summer.

ROCK CONTONESTER - Its flat, horizontal branches make this plant ideally suited for planting in rock gardens where these branches can rest on the ground or on a low bank where it will serve admirably as a groundcover.

DWARF GARDENIA - A compact, flat-topped, evergreen shrub with leaves glossy dark green. Very fragrant flowers during warmer months. Likes acid soil.

DWARF BURFORD HOLLY - Erect evergreen with dark glossy green foliage. Slow growing. Spring bloom is followed by clusters of red berries.

17 Years After His Death...

Oswald Theories Still Abound

By JOE STROOP
Associated Press Writer
FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) - Some dismiss it as just a publicity stunt, others insist it is the key move in discovering details of a massive Soviet conspiracy. And the main character in the drama has been dead nearly 17 years. The question: who is buried in Lee Harvey Oswald's grave? At the center of the controversy is British author Michael Eddowes, who believes the man in the grave is not Oswald.

For three years, Eddowes had insisted Oswald, accused of assassinating President John F. Kennedy, is institutionalized in the Soviet Union, where he defected in 1959. The day of the killing - Nov. 22, 1963 - police arrested a man they said was Lee Harvey Oswald and charged him with the president's death.

Two days later, before he could be indicted, that man was shot to death in the basement of the Dallas police station by nightclub owner Jack Ruby, who died in jail three years later while awaiting retrial of his murder conviction.

Eddowes claims the man arrested, shot by Ruby and buried in Fort Worth's Rose Hill Cemetery is a Soviet agent named Alek James Hidell who assumed Oswald's identity, returned to the United States and shot Kennedy. "I know - I know - a Russian agent shot your president and I intend to prove it," Eddowes told the Associated Press last week. "I think that's a bunch of b.s.," said Dallas County Sheriff's Deputy Walter Potts, who executed the search warrant at Oswald's apartment the day Kennedy was killed. "There's no doubt in my mind that the guy killed in the basement and buried in Fort Worth was Lee Harvey Oswald," Potts said. Eddowes wants the body exhumed and examined to make sure. The exhumation, approved by Oswald's widow, was delayed at the request of Oswald's brother, who purchased the grave plot and pays for its maintenance. A state judge has agreed to hear arguments on the exhumation Friday, perhaps clearing the way for resolution of Eddowes' theory, which he began actively pursuing three years ago.

His original petition for an exhumation order, filed last year, is pending before the Texas Supreme Court after rejections by lower courts.

Bill Alexander, chief prosecutor for the Dallas County district attorney in 1963, believes Eddowes' motivation is not a search for truth, but for publicity.

Alfred Nobel, the Swedish chemist and philanthropist, was born in 1833.

More Benefits Allowed Vets With Amputations

Less than a month remains for veterans to apply for increased benefits they may be eligible for if they have multiple amputations. E.H. (Dan) Dever, Jr., Scurry County Veterans Service Officer, said.

The increased benefits payments stem from a change in Veterans Administration regulations made last year as the result of a study that indicates some veterans with severe, multiple amputations may run a higher risk of developing heart disease.

These veterans who apply for the higher benefits before Aug. 22, 1980, can get the increased compensation rate retroactive to Aug. 22, 1979, if they are eligible.

Veterans who need information about VA programs may contact Dever's office in the Administration Building at Western Texas College. Dever is also Veterans Outreach Coordinator for the college and can help veterans complete the forms necessary to apply for VA educational benefits. The office is open each weekday and may be reached by calling 573-8511, extension 212.

From Tired Wells...

New Methods Sought To Recover More Oil

HOUSTON--More than 300 billion barrels of crude oil will remain in known oil fields when they are no longer able to produce with today's methods. "This is the easiest extra oil to find but the toughest to recover," explains Pete Kelly, Exxon Company, U.S.A.'s Production Department engineering manager.

A popular misconception holds that oil exists in large underground pools or lakes and that the wells simply suck the crude from the ground like a straw drawing soda. Unfortunately, oil is trapped in porous rock, and the reservoir holds oil more like a sponge, making recovery of a large percentage of the oil very difficult. Conventional oil production methods, on average, only recover about one-third of the oil in place.

Oil companies have been researching "enhanced recovery" methods for years in hopes of developing processes that will recover additional oil that remains "locked" in fields at the end of their normal productive lives.

Estimates of the amount of oil which can be recovered by enhanced recovery processes vary widely. Kelly estimates that at current world oil prices about 20 billion barrels may feasibly be tapped. This extra oil would increase America's remaining reserves by 70 percent and would help sustain U.S. oil production, which is currently three billion barrels per year, he says.

"But enhanced recovery methods are expensive and high risk investments because they are complex and basically unproven," Kelly says.

Exxon is experimenting with three enhanced recovery methods:

Thermal: Steam is injected into the reservoir to heat heavy, molasses-like crude so that it will flow.

Miscible: A solvent such as carbon dioxide or nitrogen is injected into a reservoir to dissolve the oil.

Chemical: Various special chemicals are injected to "wash" or push the trapped oil out of the reservoir rocks.

Projects involving all three methods are underway or planned for several U.S. oil fields. In the next few years, Exxon will be spending several million dollars to see if the processes can be made to work, Kelly says.

"If we are successful in learning how to make the processes work, getting more oil out of old fields will play an important part in meeting the country's energy needs in the next three decades and could be supplying up to 10 percent of the country's crude oil needs by the year 2000," Kelly says.

Divorce Rate Up Again

WASHINGTON (AP)—The federal government says the nation's divorce rate, after leveling off for a year, has resumed its upward climb.
 The National Center for Health Statistics said in a report issued Friday that in 1978 - the most recent year for which statistics are available - there were 1.13 million divorces for a national rate of 5.2 per 1,000 people.

Interviews For Teaching Sub Candidates

Persons interested in substitute teaching in the Snyder Public Schools during the 1980-81 school year who have not received an application form should call the school administration office, 573-5401 and request an interview, says Jack Gorman, assistant superintendent.
 Requirements for placement on the substitute list for those who have not previously substituted in Snyder are a minimum of 60 college hours and to be at least 21 years of age. A college transcript is to be presented at the time of the interview.
 Applicants who do not hold degrees and those not certified to teach in Texas will be required to have applications on file in the school administration office by Sept. 5 in order to be approved by the Texas Education Agency for the coming school year.
 Those persons holding a degree and a Texas Teacher's Certificate may apply at any time during the school year but preferably by Sept. 5, the same date as non-certified persons, he said.

ces than the year before and, the report adds, early data for 1979 indicate another increase of 40,000 for that year.
 "In 1978 the national divorce rate resumed the upward trend that had characterized its movement between 1963 and 1976. The rate was 5.2 per 1,000 population in 1978, up 4 percent over the rate of 5.0 recorded for both 1976 and 1977," the report states.
 According to the report, the divorce rate increased in northeast, north central and southern regions.
 For the West, however,

the rate dropped for the second consecutive year. The decrease, noted in 1977 statistics, was "the first decline on any regional rate since 1962," although the West still had the highest rate of divorce.
 The overall divorce rate for western states dropped from 6.6 per 1,000 people in 1977 to 6.5 in 1978. By contrast the rate in the Northeast grew from 3.2 to 3.4; that in the north central states rose from 4.7 to 4.9 and in the South it grew from 5.7 to 5.8.
 The report noted that the median duration of marriages ending in divorce

New Methods Sought To Recover More Oil

HOUSTON—More than 300 billion barrels of crude oil will remain in known oil fields when they are no longer able to produce with today's methods. "This is the easiest extra oil to 'find' but the toughest to recover," explains Pete Kelly, Exxon Company, U.S.A.'s Production Department engineering manager.

A popular misconception holds that oil exists in large underground pools or lakes and that the wells simply suck the crude from the ground like a straw drawing soda. Unfortunately, oil is trapped in porous rock, and the reservoir holds oil more like a sponge, making recovery of a large percentage of the oil very difficult. Conventional oil production methods, on average, only recover about one-third of the oil in place.

Oil companies have been researching "enhanced recovery" methods for years in hopes of developing processes that will recover additional oil that remains "locked" in fields at the end of their normal productive lives.

Estimates of the amount of oil which can be recovered by enhanced recovery processes vary widely. Kelly estimates that at current world oil prices about 20 billion barrels may feasibly be tapped. This extra oil would increase America's remaining reserves by 70 percent and would help sustain U.S. oil production, which is currently three billion barrels per year, he says.

"But enhanced recovery methods are expensive and high risk investments because they are complex and basically unproven," Kelly says.

Exxon is experimenting with three enhanced recovery methods:

Thermal: Steam is injected into the reservoir to heat heavy, molasses-like crude so that it will flow.

Miscible: A solvent such as carbon dioxide or nitrogen is injected into a reservoir to dissolve the oil.

Chemical: Various special chemicals are injected to "wash" or push the trapped oil out of the reservoir rocks.

Projects involving all three methods are underway or planned for several U.S. oil fields. In the next few years Exxon will be spending several million dollars to see if the processes can be made to work, Kelly says.

"If we are successful in learning how to make the processes work, getting more oil out of old fields will play an important part in meeting the country's energy needs in the next three decades and could be supplying up to 10 percent of the country's crude oil needs by the year 2000," Kelly says.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The federal government says the nation's divorce rate, after leveling off for a year, has resumed its upward climb.
 The National Center for Health Statistics said in a report issued Friday that in 1978—the most recent year for which statistics are available—there were 1.13 million divorces for a national rate of 5.2 per 1,000 people.
 That is 39,000 more divorces than the year before and, the report adds, early data for 1979 indicate another increase of 40,000 for that year.
 "In 1978 the national divorce rate resumed the upward trend that had characterized its movement between 1963 and 1976. The rate was 5.2 per 1,000 population in 1978, up 4 percent over the rate of 5.0 recorded for both 1976 and 1977," the report states.
 According to the report, the divorce rate increased in northeast, north central and southern regions.
 For the West, however,

the rate dropped for the second consecutive year. The decrease, noted in 1977 statistics, was "the first decline on any regional rate since 1962," although the West still had the highest rate of divorce.
 The overall divorce rate for western states dropped from 6.6 per 1,000 people in 1977 to 6.5 in 1978. By contrast the rate in the Northeast grew from 3.2 to 3.4; that in the north central states rose from 4.7 to 4.9 and in the South it grew from 5.7 to 5.8.
 The report noted that the median duration of marriages ending in divorce was 6.6 years in 1978, unchanged from the year before. The median age of divorcing husbands was 32 while that of wives was 29.7, the report added.

A grass fire 19 miles north of Snyder on Highway 84 was doused Friday evening by city firefighters.
 The fire was reported at 6:45 p.m.

Interviews For Teaching Sub Candidates
 Persons interested in substitute teaching in the Snyder Public Schools during the 1980-81 school year who have not received an application form should call the school administration office, 573-5401 and request an interview, says Jack Gorman, assistant superintendent.
 Requirements for placement on the substitute list for those who have not previously substituted in Snyder are a minimum of 60 college hours and to be at least 21 years of age. A college transcript is to be presented at the time of the interview.
 Applicants who do not hold degrees and those not certified to teach in Texas will be required to have applications on file in the school administration office by Sept. 5 in order to be approved by the Texas Education Agency for the coming school year.
 Those persons holding a degree and a Texas Teacher's Certificate may apply at any time during the school year but preferably by Sept. 5, the same date as non-certified persons, he said.

Consider Card In Window Channel
WASHINGTON (AP)—To help identify your car, should it be stolen, one of the simplest and most effective means of concealed identification is to drop a business card, or similar identification, down a door window channel. Consider etching your license number in hard-to-find spots. One investigating agency found an owner's car because he had scratched his license number under the gas cap.

Playboy Playmate Murdered

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The county coroner intends to speed up an autopsy on Dorothy Stratten, Playboy magazine's Playmate of the Year, whose nude body was found sprawled across a bed near that of her estranged husband. Police Lt. Dan Cooke said. Ms. Stratten moved out of the home two months ago, but went back Thursday to talk with Snider about their marital problems, friends said. Autopsies normally take days to complete because of a backlog, but the examination of Miss Stratten was being accelerated because of the notoriety surrounding the case, Cooke said Friday. The results were expected Saturday.

Ira Church Setting For Sterling, Jones Nuptials

Miss Nancy Gayle Sterling became the bride of James Kevin Jones on July 26, 8 p.m., in the First Baptist Church of Ira. Rev. Jerry Neill officiated the double ring ceremony.

The altar area featured a double-row rainbow candelabrum flanked on each side with spiraling candelabra, holding 60 votive cups and greenery. A three spiral candelabrum adorned with spring flowers were placed at the piano and organ. Votive cups and greenery marked the pews.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal length gown designed and sewn by her mother. Her gown was fashioned of bridal satin with an overlay of silk organza, featuring a scoop neckline and cap sleeves. The empire bodice and sleeves were overlaid with reemboirdered lace and scattered seed pearls. Her full skirt fell into a chapel length train. The hemline, scalloped in front, featured a deep ruffle of crystal pleated organza edged with reemboirdered lace and scattered seed pearls, matching the bodice. The bride wore a derby hat, covered with silk organza, completed with silk flowers turning up the brim, and a veil of silk illusion attached in the back.

The groom wore a toast Regency tuxedo, white ruffled shirt and bow tie. The bride carried a lace fan adorned with a crescent shaped spring bouquet of yellow roses, white daisies, aqua and peach carnations, purple status and baby's breath. Streamers of yellow, white and aqua finished the bouquet. The groom's boutonniere was a yellow rose and baby's breath, matching the bride's bouquet.

In keeping with tradition, for something old the bride wore a coral and gold pen belonging to her maternal great-grandmother, worn by her mother in her wedding; something new was her dress and hat; something borrowed was a string of pearls belonging to her mother, and something blue was her garter, a gift from the bride's aunt, Mrs. A.E. Sumruld. For good luck, she also wore pennies in her shoe, minted in the years of the couple's birth-dates.

Maid of honor was Sharon Black of Midkiff. Bridesmaids were Pam Paty of Roscoe and Karen Jones, sister of the groom. Their formal length dresses were of aqua crepe, featuring spaghetti straps, a cape of floral chiffon over the bodice and an A-line skirt. They wore spring flowers in their hair and carried spring bouquets.

History of transfer bids

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

Dave Carter of St. Louis, who invented two-way Stayman decided to go one step further in taking advantage of the precise information given by an opening notrump bid and invented what is called the Texas convention.

In this convention the four-diamond response to a notrump opening shows hearts and opener must respond four hearts. Here is a typical hand for this response: S-x-x-H-K-J 10-x-x-D-K-x-x-C-x-x. Responder wants the hand to play in four hearts, but also wants his partner to play the hand so that the lead will come up to the notrump bidder. Similarly if responder has a long spade suit, he replies four hearts as a transfer to spades.

Dave thought of this when Oswald Jacoby was intelligence officer on the original staff at the Korean armistice talks. When Jacoby got home he heard about this convention and adopted it enthusiastically.

Then, in 1955 Richard Troxel, one of his opponents in the Eastern pairs mentioned that he used transfers at the two level. The idea appealed to Jacoby and he started the study of low-level transfers after a notrump opening. He started using them, writing about them and today the Jacoby transfer is played by almost every expert bridge player in the world.

The Jacoby transfer fits beautifully with Stayman and Sam Stayman is just as enthusiastic a JTB user as Jacoby is a user of Stayman.

We will discuss Jacoby transfer bids (JTB) next Saturday. (NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.)

Couple Exchange Vows In Candlelight Ceremony

Two seven-branched candelabra and a large floral arch, formed of apricot silk roses, English ivy, carnations, and satin ribbons, set the scene for the wedding of Miss Norma Jean Garcia and John Carlton Crownover at 2 p.m. June 21.

The couple married in a double ring nuptial mass at Saint Elizabeth's Catholic Church by Father Thomas Jordan, of Our Lady of Guadalupe Church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Garcia, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Marilyn R. Crownover.

Pamela Pierce sang "Theme from Ice Castles," and Darrell Collins sang "Always and Forever," pre-nuptial selections, accompanied by Tammy Farmer at the organ. Miss Pierce and Collins sang "The Wedding Song," at the close of the ceremony.

Maid of honor, Glenda Garcia, sister of the bride, wore a candlelight eyelet dress trimmed in apricot satin ribbon. She carried a nosegay replica of the bridal bouquet, consisting of apricot silk roses, trimmed with crystals, pearls, lace and ribbons. She presented this bouquet to the bride, who later threw the bouquet to the bridesmaids.

The bridesmaids' dresses, made by the bride, were floor length apricot eyelet dresses accented with candlelight satin ribbons. The bridesmaids presented the bride a gift to be used during the ceremony. Jo Beth Stephens presented the bride with two white satin and lace kneeling cushions which were made by the bride's sister, Glenda Cassie Crownover, sister of the groom, presented the bride with a white Bible trimmed with satin, lace and flowing stephanotis. Naida Garza, cousin of the bride, presented her with a lasso, signifying unity and the joining of the bride and groom. Laticia Pevehouse presented the bride a white basket containing 15, 1980 dimes called "harras," signifying the first money to be handled by the bride and groom.

Given in marriage by her father, Miss Garcia wore a traditional gown of white organza, lavishly trimmed with Chantilly lace. The fitted bodice featured an empire waistline, with high neckline and stand-up lace collar. The sheer bodice was accented with two rows of Chantilly lace, and her full lace sleeves ended with fitted wrists and lace over the hands. The full skirt featured two rows of organza and two rows of lace at the bottom, and additional double rows of organza and lace swept from the front of the dress up the sides, and ended in a point in the back below the waistline in an apron effect. A satin bow with streamers accented the back of the dress at the waistline. The full chapel train featured double rows of organza and lace. Her chapel length veil of illusion was gathered to a headpiece of Chantilly lace, and the same lace edged the veil.

The bride carried a bouquet of crystal and pearl orange blossoms and apricot silk roses. She also carried a rosary of crystal and pearls, which had been presented to her by her godmother, Mrs. Gloria Romo. In her white Bible she carried two pennies dated with the years in which the bride and groom were born.

In keeping with tradition, the bride wore for something old, a diamond necklace with matching earrings, which had been given to her by the bridegroom. Something new was her wedding gown and veil. Borrowed was a diamond ring from her aunt,

Dora Garcia. Something blue was her garter a gift from her aunt, Angela Carrasco, of Tulia.

The groom wore an After Six Ivory Royale tuxedo with white pleated shirt and tie, complemented by an apricot boutonniere.

Best man was Sam Byrom of Snyder. Serving as groomsmen were David Yearwood of Houston, Jay Roemisch of Hermleigh, Paul Norred of Midland, and Vance Voss. Ushers were Gregory Gonzales, cousin of the bride, and Carl Payne. The ushers and groomsmen wore Ivory Royale tuxedos.

The flower girl was Monica Garcia, sister of the bride. Katrina Carrasco was a ringbearer. Candlelighters were Christina Ramirez, cousin of the bride, and Kellye Fullen, cousin of the groom. They wore apricot, candlelight, and green print dresses. The other ring bearer, Benjamin Felan, was attired like the groomsmen.

The reception was held at the Scurry County Coliseum. A four-tiered wedding cake, a wedding gift from Mr. and Mrs. Valvin Garcia of Austin, aunt and uncle of the bride, centered the bride's table. The bride and groom toasted each other with champagne provided by Sue Garza, aunt of the bride. Serving at the bride's table were Sue Garza and Penny Ramirez, cousin of the bride, Eloisa Briseno, aunt of the bride, and Irma Alderete of Levelland. Angela Michelle Alderete passed out the wedding scrolls. Miss Valerie Wilson presided at the bride's book. Out of town guests registered from Austin, Houston, Midland, Eastland, San Angelo, Breckenridge, Levelland and Tulia. The groom's table featured a German chocolate cake, made by Mrs. A.L. Byrom, a gift to the couple. The table was complemented by a brass candelabrum coffee service, and English ivy. Serving were Mrs. Troy Greenlee and Miss Shelley Grosshans.

Other members of the houseparty included Mrs. Sara Carne, Mrs. Carol Miller, and Mrs. Dora Garcia.

Chromium A Must For People

LUBBOCK—Chromium is not essential to proper performance of an automobile, but a trace of it is a must for the human

Ford's Daughter Bears Girl

WASHINGTON (AP)—Susan Ford Vance, daughter of former President and Mrs. Gerald R. Ford, gave birth Friday to her first baby, a 6-pound, 3-ounce girl.

"We're real excited," exclaimed the tired father, Charles Vance.

"We've named her Tyne Mary," he told a reporter. "Tyne because we both thought it was a pretty name, and Mary for my grandmother. She's now dead, and we both loved her."

The baby was born shortly after 6 a.m. at Georgetown University Medical Center here. The Vances live in suburban Virginia.

body. The best source, Texas Tech nutritional scientists say, is meat. There is chromium in vegetables also, particularly pepper, but there's a hitch. The chromium in meat gets through the walls of the intestines easily to where it is needed. Not so, with chromium in vegetables.

Vegetables also have phytate in them and it has a tendency to unite with the chromium molecules to form masses too large to move easily through the intestines' walls. There's a possibility, too, that the phytate in vegetables unites with chromium molecules in meat, thus reducing their bioavailability. If the chromium cannot penetrate the intestine walls it is eliminated as waste.

Therefore, Texas Tech nutrition researchers are concerned whether chromium from soy sources fulfills the same needs as that from meat.

The need to know has been intensified because soybean products are increasingly being used as meat extenders or replacement. And now the Federal government has approved a 30 percent inclusion of soy products as a meat extender for school lunches.

United States Rep. Kent Hance of the 19th Congressional District of Texas just last week announced that the United States Department of Agriculture (USDA) has approved a $65,000 grant to Texas Tech's Department of Food and Nutrition for a two-year study of bioavailability of chromium from meats, from soybean products and from mixtures of the two.

The study had already begun at Texas Tech funded by a $4,000 appropriation from the Texas Legislature.

Dear Abby

Tell Master Salesman
"No Deal"

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1980 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: First off, I am no ordinary girl. I have always been very mature for my age.

When I was 13, I fell in love with a man much older than myself. I am now 16 and still feel the same about him. If possible, I am more in love with him than ever.

Well, he's married and has four kids. He lives in South America, but comes here about every three months on business. I never know exactly when he will be in town, but as soon as he gets here he calls me, and I skip school and go to his hotel to be with him. Every time we're together we grow closer.

The last time he was here I saw him two days in a row. Then I called his hotel and found out he was with another woman, so I told him it was all over between us. He pleaded with me not to make any decisions until he could explain. I am so in love with him I agreed to let him explain, but he left town without seeing me, and now I don't know what to think.

I know he loves me, Abby, but I don't know how to handle things from now on. Please help me. My mother would never understand.

CRYING IN MY PILLOW

DEAR CRYING: If that man calls you again, gather every bit of strength your heart and soul can muster and tell him you never want to see him again. Then hang up. Don't wait for any explanations. He is a master salesman. You have been used. I beg you not to let yourself be used again.

DEAR ABBY: I'm a working woman, divorced, and the mother of a 4-year-old child. I'm self-supporting and barely make ends meet. I'm dating a little, but no one steady. One man I date is especially nice. When he brings me home he always insists on paying my sitter. I'd be lying if I said I didn't appreciate it a whole lot.

My best friend (we work together) reacted strangely when I told her that this gentleman insisted on paying my sitter, and I let him. She said, "All men are alike. They want to obligate you. Sooner or later he'll get his money's worth." Abby, our relationship has been very proper. He's never tried to push himself on me or do anything I felt was out of line.

What do you think? Does a woman obligate herself by letting a man pay for her sitter?

BOBBI ON A BUDGET

DEAR BOBBI: Some do and some don't. It depends on the man. You can't put them all in one bag. As long as you don't feel obligated to him, you're not.

DEAR ABBY: Do you think of dying very much?

SAN MATEO SAM

DEAR SAM: No. It's the last thing I want to do.

DEAR ABBY: My 12-year-old daughter, Annie (made-up name), has a big problem she needs help with. Annie is a quiet, shy girl who has always stayed in the background. She has a girlfriend I'll call Rebecca. Rebecca is pushy and loud and has a big mouth. Whenever my Annie makes friends with another girl, this loud-mouthed Rebecca takes her new friend away from her. If Annie were more pushy like Rebecca, she would fight to keep her friends, but she just can't do it. She's too nice. How can I help Annie so she won't keep losing her friends to Rebecca?

ANNIE'S MOM

DEAR MOM: Annie will have to cultivate and maintain her own friendships. No one can steal a friend, as if it were some kind of mindless doll. Mothers who try to run interference for their children in such matters tend to weaken, not strengthen them.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple, "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped (28 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Summer Housecleaning
Saves Energy, Money
So you missed "spring" cleaning this year - after all, rainy days aren't the best incentive.

Then do some "summer"
housecleaning - and this year, make it "conservation cleaning" with energy savings in mind.
Clean "Big Energy" Users Pay lots of attention to your heaviest energy users - such as furnaces, air conditioners and major appliances. That includes the clothes washer and dryer and the refrigerator and freezer.

Energy-saving cleaning also means maintenance - like drivebelt tightening or lubrication - to help your appliances work more efficiently and last longer.

Start With Furnace
Start with the furnace.
Since the average household furnace uses about half the total family energy consumption in a year, give it top priority.

You won't use the furnace until next fall, but now's the time to get it in shape.

Make sure the filter is clean - and promise yourself you'll clean the filter or change it every two months when you're using the furnace. This can save much money.

Some filters just need a tapping and a good vacuum for cleaning - or you can wash them with a hose or under a faucet. Most are disposable now.

Also, lubricate electric motors, fans and pumps
according to the manufacturer's directions. Use oil sparingly once or twice a year.

Check all the drive belts for proper tension. If belts are properly adjusted, you should be able to "press them together one-half to one inch. Replace cracked or frayed belts.

Clean Air Conditioner
Clean the air conditioner
next.

Inspect the filter. Clean it or replace it every month
during the cooling season.
Make sure the condenser is clean. If not, the unit will have to run longer to do the job.

Regular lubrication is important, here, too, if required by the manufacturer.

Have a professional repairman check the air conditioner every other year.

Other Energy Savers
Here are some other energy-saving things you can do:

Keep the condenser coils on your refrigerator and freezer clean - to help them work their best during the hot summer months when demands on them are heaviest.

Think about repainting
the walls with lighter colors to reflect more light and reduce lighting costs.
Keep all lighting equipment clean. Dust and soil reduce lighting efficiency.

Check lampshades for discoloration. White reflects more light. If the insides of your shades have darkened, clean the shades, relene them or replace them.

Draperies, kept closed, will go a long way toward keeping hot summer sun from heating your home - and they will reduce air-conditioning costs. In winter, they can help keep out cold air, and that reduces heating costs. Make sure your draperies are clean and in good condition for the greatest efficiency.

"Summer" cleaning
means heavy laundry
chores, too - bedspreads, curtains, blankets and other bedding. Be sure to use full washer loads to save energy.

For heavily soiled items, use hot water. For the rest, use warm or cool water to save energy, if possible.

Line drying is fashionable again, so cut even more energy costs by drying clothes outdoors in good weather.

During balmy days of late spring and early summer, save energy by opening windows more and using air conditioning less
- but make sure your screens are clean to allow optimum air circulation.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Concerned about lipoma

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a lipoma tumor on my left arm. I've had it for at least 15 years. I think it may be growing a little. How can I be sure? I showed it to my dermatologist last week and he said he wouldn't want to see it get any bigger. How large is considered dangerous? It is 6.5 cm now. He said that if it gets any bigger, a puncture biopsy would be necessary. Please explain a puncture biopsy. Can it be done in the doctor's office? Then he told me that a plastic surgeon would have to remove it. I would think that since it specifically affects the skin that my dermatologist should remove it. Am I right? What type of doctor would be best to remove it? How is it removed?

Since a tumor is rounded, when it's taken out it often leaves a depression in the tissues around it. If it's in an area where it's not exposed or otherwise doesn't bother you, that can be done rather simply. Sometimes a plastic surgeon reconstructs the area to prevent a saucer-like depression.

In any case, the removal procedure is relatively simple, at least for the surgeon, and the discomfort to the patient is minimal. For lumps under the skin that you can't be sure what they are, I agree with the old saying, "When in doubt, take it out."

DEAR DR. LAMB — Does honey really cure or help arthritis? I read in a book that it's supposed to help if you take it with black coffee in the mornings.

DEAR READER — I would suggest throwing that book away. It's an obvious source of medical misinformation which can cause more damage to your health than any help you might derive from it.

No, there's not one word of truth to the idea that honey will cure arthritis. The main ingredients in honey are exactly the same as you find in table sugar. Both are made up essentially of glucose and fructose. In table sugar these two single sugars, glucose and fructose, are hooked together in what we call a double sugar. In honey they've already been separated. When you use table sugar it's broken apart into the same single sugars by an enzyme in your intestine. So once table sugar and honey get into your bloodstream they have essentially the same actions.

The Orient Express completed its maiden run from Paris to Constantinople - now Istanbul - in 77 hours and 49 minutes in 1883.

Still Assessing Damage...

Allen Altered Texas Landscape For Years

SOUTH PADRE ISLAND (AP)—As the helicopter blades chopped the air above the South Texas coastline, meteorologist Richard Hagan realized that his hunch was correct.

Although the first hurricane of the season did not come ashore with its full fury, it still was strong enough to leave hundreds of millions of dollars in damage and alter the landscape for years.

Before the storm made landfall it had churned its way from the Caribbean to Texas' doorstep as a Category 5 hurricane — the most severe classification. Texas was fortunate, though, as the storm suddenly weakened hours before it moved inland.

Still as his helicopter moved up the coast, Hagan saw 68 new cuts raked by the storm along 50 miles of the seashore north of this resort town. "It makes South Padre Island look like a bunch of islands," Hagan told fellow workers at the National Weather Service office in Brownsville.

From the time Allen set a course toward the Gulf of Mexico on Wednesday, many South Texans wondered if they would survive a direct hit of such a strong storm.

Mercifully, Allen lost much of its strength before striking the coast early Sunday morning between here and Kingsville.

Yet its peak winds of 138 mph recorded at Port Mansfield and rains of almost 16 inches at Alice will result in losses totaling at least $600 million, according to an estimate by Gov. Bill Clements.

Hundreds of families lost their homes or suffered severe flood damage, both in coastal communities and inland towns drenched with torrential rains.

An estimated 200,000 fled coastal areas before the storm hit.

In Corpus Christi alone, almost 500 persons likely are out of work due to storm-damaged businesses, city officials estimate.

Cotton farmers lost $19 million in unharvested cotton just in Hidalgo and Cameron Counties. By Thursday, residents had begun streaming to disaster relief offices opened in Harlingen, Port Aransas and Alice to claim storm losses and seek fast help.

Many remember the growing anxiety that began several days before when Allen tore apart Haiti and blasted through the western Caribbean, continuing northwestward.

In an affluent Harlingen subdivision, J.L. Brett watched Thursday night as forecasters announced the Texas coast likely would be under a hurricane watch by Friday morning.

Bet On White Tiger Pays Off

OMAHA, Neb. (AP)—Henry Dooley Zoo director Lee Simmons' gamble with a poker-playing circus trainer has paid off with the birth of two tigers, one a rare white animal worth an estimated $60,000.

Simmons says there are only about 12 white tigers living at three zoos in the United States.

The whole thing started several years ago when Simmons was called by the circus trainer those tigers, in Omaha with a show, needed medical attention.

During their conversation, the trainer said the tigers had produced a white cub, but he had lost it in a poker game with another circus performer. Later, the trainer offered to sell the parents, Rajah and Sheba.

Simmons said he had been skeptical that they had white genes, but did some checking, thought the story credible and decided to gamble and buy them, hoping they would produce another white cub.

Britain introduced the penny post system in 1840.

Israel Gets Tough With Drivers

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP)—The large, black-bordered death notice in the newspaper lacked only a name. Instead there was a grim message to Israel's notoriously reckless drivers:

"Only you can keep your name out of here. Drive safely."

A blunt advertising campaign, coupled with stiff traffic fines, increased enforcement and expensive gasoline, appear to be making an impact on Israeli motorists, who have been killing each other off at a shocking pace for years.

In the first six months of 1980, 168 people died in traffic accidents - a 45 percent drop from the 309 traffic deaths during the same period last year. The total number of injury-causing accidents is down about 20 percent, leaving government officials encouraged but not yet satisfied.

"You can't be proud when people are getting killed," said Yehiel Amitai, director of the highway safety campaign in the Transport Ministry.

"But there is an awakening."

For years the killing went on unfettered. Israeli drivers, infamous for bad driving habits and worse road manners, have claimed more than 13,000 lives since the country was founded in 1948 - a toll equal to Israel's war dead. More than 400,000 Israelis have been injured.

"All the years we handled them gently, saying please do us a favor and drive carefully," Amitai said. "Now we're telling the ugly truths. The message is, if you keep on driving this way, you're going to die."

The safety campaign began last fall with the inauguration of a weekly television show, titled "Enough!" right before the evening news, Israel's most-watched program.

The dramatic short documentaries spotlighted such heart-rending subjects as children killed in accidents, distraught families of victims and hospital wards packed with injured motorists.

"We had to show them the suffering, to show it could happen to you," said Moshe Becker, a road-safety expert who advises the show. "It's like talking to a donkey. First you hit him on the head, so he perks up his ears. Then you tell him what you want to tell him."

Subsequent programs have dealt with specific aspects of road safety, including how to react to dangerous road situations, and stressed the benefits of slowing down and taking fewer chances behind the wheel.
