Pilot Fears Contamination

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The pilot of a Japan Air Lines 747 flight from Tokyo that landed Saturday at San Francisco International Airport reported the plane may be contaminated with radioactivity from a Chinese atom bomb test, officials said.

Officials of Japan Air Lines said the plane landed at about 9:45 a.m., and that its 350 passengers were being held on the craft until it could be determined whether its exterior had been contaminated with radioactive debris.

The officials said the captain of the flight, whose name was not immediately available, had radioed ahead requesting the inspection, but it was not yet known why the pilot suspected the plane had been contaminated.

An airport fire truck was preparing to wash the exterior of the plane with water if radioactivity was found.

Ax Murder Trial Opens

McKINNEY, Texas (AP) — A petite, curly-haired housewife was in court here today — charged with hacking a family friend to death with a three-foot ax.

The murder trial of Candace Montgomery has shaped up to be one of the most notorious in this North Texas city. But State District Judge Tom Ryan says he intends to keep a tight rein on the proceeding.

The grisly murder ignited national interest shortly after the bloody body of Betty Gore was found in her Wylie home June 13. Mrs. Montgomery, described as an active church member, a devoted mother and a friend of the victim, surrendered to police two weeks later.

Brownfield Remains Dry

BROWNFIELD, Texas (AP) — Residents voted Saturday to keep this city dry as the West Texas wind, defeating a proposition to allow the retail sales of alcoholic beverages by an almost two-to-one margin.

Officials in this town of 11,000 southwest of Lubbock expected a large turnout for the first wet-dry liquor proposition here in 42 years after they received requests for 771 absentee ballots.

More than 2,700 residents voted, defeating the proposal by a margin of 1,777 to 953.

Terry County Clerk Frank Gray termed the voter turnout as average for most elections, but certainly not as large as county officials had predicted.

The pro-wet forces had argued that passage of the issue would virtually wipe out bootlegging here and boost city finances with the extra sales tax revenues.

Firemen Held At Bay

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A shotgun-wielding Fort Worth woman was jailed late Sunday after she held police and firemen at bay outside her ex-husband's burning house, authorities said.

No one was injured in the southside fire, but neighbors told police the woman fired several shots.

The 27-year-old woman was jailed for investigation of arson, police said.

Backs More Parole Officers

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Legislative Budget Board, split on whether the state needs more parole officers, Saturday backed a proposal to pay for 42 additional officers.

The staff proposal called for adding the officers in 1983. The Board of Pardons and Paroles now has 263 officers, each supervising about 50 parolees.

Rebel Plot Said Thwarted

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Soviet tanks encircling the main garrison outside the Afghan capital of Kabul thwarted an army plot to overthrow President Babrak Karmal's government, a report from Afghanistan said Saturday.

The report, from a Kabul source who has been accurate in the past, said the confrontation between rebel Afghan army units and Soviet troops occurred last Tuesday at Pul-i-Charki garrison 8 miles east of the Afghan capital.

Afghanistan has barred Western reporters and the report could not be confirmed independently.

The source said Pul-i-Charki units with total manpower of about 3,600 planned to join about 20,000 Moslem rebels around Kabul on Tuesday night to overthrow the Karmal regime and install a "national government" that included insurgent participation.

But Soviet tanks, armored personnel carriers, armored cars and combat brigades completely encircled the base at dusk as Russian helicopter gunships and jets circled overhead, the source added.

The Soviet Union sent an estimated 80,000 troops to Afghanistan last December to join the pro-Moscow regime's fight against Moslem insurgents.

GOING UP—The Scurry County United Way campaign had reached $24,477, or 43 percent of its goal, it was disclosed at a report meeting this morning. The Rev. James Jackson, left, and Fred Castillo, two workers in the drive, brought the United Way sign on the courthouse square up to date. The next report session for United Way campaign workers has been set for 10 a. m. next Monday in the Chamber of Commerce conference room. (SDN Staff Photo)

Mideast War In 5th Week

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Iraq said its infantry and armor consolidated an "airtight siege" of Abadan and Khorramshahr as the Persian Gulf war entered its fifth week today. But Iran said Abadan's defenders prevented Iraqi tanks from penetrating the city's defenses and that house-to-house fighting raged in Khorramshahr for the fourth straight day.

Iran also announced it renamed Khorramshahr — which means fertile city in Farsi — to Khuninshar, which means "city of blood." It said the name change was in tribute to the "epic resistance" put up against the invading Iraqis by diehard Islamic revolutionary guardsmen in the port, which is 10 miles from the refinery city of Abadan.

Iran's leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini agreed to allow a mediation commission of Islamic heads of state to go to Tehran but said its task was to be confined to "investigating the criminal invasion" ordered by Iraqi President Saddam Hussein. Iranian Radio reported.

The broadcast, monitored here, said the patriarch of Iran's Islamic revolution gave the statement in response to a plea for a negotiated settlement of the war made by Habib Chatti, Tunisian secretary-general of the 40-nation Islamic Conference.

The leaders of both Iran and Iraq ignored appeals from other Moslem nations for a four-day cease-fire during Islam's holiest holiday, the feast of Id el Adha, which began Sunday. The Koran, the Moslem holy book, forbids the spilling of human blood during the period.

Meanwhile, the 52 Americans held hostage in Iran began their 352nd day in captivity today, and the speaker of the Majlis, Iran's Parliament, indicated that it would decide their fate late this week or early next week, just before the first anniversary of their being made prisoners.

Speaker of the Majlis, Ayatollah Hashemi Rafsanjani said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press that the Parliament would decide in the "next two or three days" on conditions for the release. He also said it was a "very remote possibility" that the hostages would be put on trial, although some hardline members of Parliament have called for spy trials for at least some of them.

Iranian communiques reported heavy fighting at both ends of Iraq's 300-mile invasion front as well as in the central sector. But no major change in the battle lines was reported by either government.

Iran acknowledged for the first time that the Iraqis controlled all the highways leading into Abadan and said they hit the besieged city with "heavy weapons and artillery fire" Sunday. But the defenders "returned the fire and prevented the Iraqi mercenaries from advancing," a communique said. It claimed the destruction of six Iraqi tanks, five other vehicles and five enemy "bunkers."

The communique reported house-to-house fighting was continuing in the port of Khorramshahr, 10 miles up the Shatt al-Arab estuary from Abadan, and said the Iranian navy was evacuating the wounded "with difficulty." Iraq, meanwhile, claimed its troops overran an Iranian army camp at Aldaj, near Khorramshahr. It said eight Iranian soldiers were killed, 84 were taken prisoner and 10 tanks were destroyed.

Iran also claimed that its forces in the Susangerd area, 90 miles north of Khorramshahr, blocked an attempt by Iraqi troops to advance and forced them to retreat.

Another Iranian communique said at the northern end of the front, in the Gharb Gharb sector, Iranian forces after "forcing the enemy to retreat in hand-to-hand fighting and capturing heights overlooking the enemy positions, completely destroyed" an Iraqi ammunition and equipment depot, and Iranian artillery blew up another equipment campaign will blitz Texas this week with a one-day visit by the candidate and a 1 1/2-day swing by his chief Democratic challenger, Sen. Edward Kennedy.

Carter's Team To Blitz Texas

The President will spend most of Wednesday in Texas, arriving in Beaumont that morning from New Orleans. Around noon he will leave Beaumont for Waco and then travel to Texarkana for a late afternoon rally, campaign organizers said, although a detailed schedule of the president's activities has not been released.

Kennedy, who opposed Carter's renomination by the Democratic party, now is campaigning for the president's re-election.

His Texas appearances will begin Tuesday morning when he arrives in Houston for a rally. He will then travel to McAllen for an evening rally before proceeding to San Antonio for a night meeting with "political activists," according to his published schedule.

On Wednesday, the day Carter arrives in the state, Kennedy will dedicate a new school, John F. Kennedy High School, in San Antonio before leaving Texas for Massachusetts.

Lions Delay Bulb Sale

The Snyder Lions Club's light bulb sale which had been scheduled for Tuesday night has been postponed for a week.

Jack Cypert, president of the club, said the light bulb sale was being delayed so that Lions making their rounds would not interfere with the World Series telecast this Tuesday night.

Ask Us

Q.—Why can't the city build a concrete overflow across Deep Creek just past 37th St. so the creek can keep about four feet of water in it all the time?

A.—Similar proposals have been considered before, but never got off the ground. City officials say there would be some red tape, since approval would be required by state and possibly federal agencies to install some type of low-water dam, but it might get some attention in the future.

Supreme Court Leaves Laetrile Ruling Intact

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court gave federal regulators a major victory today by turning away arguments that terminal cancer victims have a constitutional right to use Laetrile.

The justices, without comment, left intact a federal appeals court ruling that because no such right exists the government is free to ban the controversial substance.

Today's action was not a definitive ruling. It is conceivable, though not likely, that the high court could at some later date agree to study the issue in depth.

But for now the practical effect is just as momentous. Cancer victims determined to get Laetrile without leaving the United States must do so illegally.

The Laetrile controversy has been an emotional one because of modern medicine's failure thus far to conquer cancer.

A number of physicians advocate the use of Laetrile, an apricot-pit derivative, for cancer victims. Others in medicine and science discount its effectiveness, portraying its use as medical quackery.

By a unanimous vote in 1979, the Supreme Court upheld a federal ban on the interstate shipment of Laetrile. But that 1979 decision left unanswered the question of whether terminal cancer victims have a right — grounded in their right to privacy — to use the substance.

The 1979 ruling also did not

Carter, Reagan Utter Declarations Of Peace

By The Associated Press

President Carter and Ronald Reagan laid out cold, hard cash to talk about war and peace, and then both came down on the side of peace.

"Peace is my passion... peace is my pledge," the president declared in a radio speech Sunday for which he purchased time on the Mutual Broadcasting System.

Reagan, for his part, said during the half-hour that he bought on CBS television that he shares with all Americans "the deep and abiding hope for peace."

Each man also tried to portray the other as more likely to get the nation into war. Reagan said Carter had allowed the nation's military strength to erode, and Carter declared that Reagan's policies could lead toward "the nuclear precipice."

Independent presidential candidate John Anderson, meanwhile, spoke before a Jewish group in the Chicago suburb of Evanston and warned of growing anti-Semitism.

"An attack on the Jewish people is by implication an attack on us all," Anderson said. "If we do not draw the line here and now, we can't draw it anywhere."

Carter and Reagan left the paid airwaves today to head out on the campaign trail, the president to Pennsylvania, Ohio and New York, and his Republican rival to Ohio, Kentucky and Illinois. Anderson speaks tonight in Schenectady, N.Y.

The president's trip today into the industrial Northeast follows a staff assessment that Reagan's forays into the traditional Democratic strongholds may be producing few results among the blue-collar voters he's fighting so hard to win.

White House press secretary Jody Powell said Sunday that "everything we see shows those people starting to come back home."

Without citing specific poll findings, Powell said recent surveys showing Carter pulling closer to Reagan found that "the biggest movement has come among blue-collar workers."

In the radio speech Sunday, for which he paid $22,000, Carter maintained that Reagan was advocating measures that could move the nation closer to nuclear war.

"Over the last 20 years, we have taken some tentative steps away from the nuclear precipice. Now, for the first time, we are being advised to take steps that may move us toward it," he said.

Final Action Due On City Tax Rate

The Snyder City council planned to take final action on the city's 1980 tax rate at a special session set for 5 p. m. today in the council room at city hall.

The council passed on first reading at its regular session Oct. 6 an ordinance setting the tax rate at 40 cents per $100 valuation.

Tax statements are scheduled to go out this week from the county tax office, which is collecting taxes this year for all taxing entities in the county.

Also on the agenda for the special meeting this evening are two appointments and plans for developing a new city park on land being contributed for that purpose by the Line family. A proposal to acquire a topographic map of the park property will be considered.

A position on the planning and zoning commission is due to be filled, and reappointment of Dr. Wilton N. Jones as City Health Officer is on the agenda.

The city's policy on elimination of sub-standard buildings is due to be discussed at the meeting.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Republicans had high hopes earlier this year of becoming the majority party in the U.S.

Senate when the 97th Congress convenes next January. Now it appears that they will gain a few seats in November but will still fall considerably short of Senate control.

Currently the Democrats hold 59 Senate seats to the Republicans' 41. (Independent Harry Byrd of Virginia is considered a Democrat for purposes of organizing the Senate.) To gain control of the next Senate, the Republicans will need nine more seats if Vice President George Bush is on hand to break ties or 10 more seats if Walter Mondale wins a second term.

Of the 34 seats being contested this year, 24 are currently Democratic and 10 are Republican. The GOP plan was to hold onto all of the seats it now has, pick up one or two seats being vacated by Democrats who did not seek re-election or who were defeated in primaries, and score big gains against a group of liberal Democrats from increasingly conservative states.

That plan looked good on paper in August. But now it does not appear likely to work in November.

Why not? For one thing, the Republicans are having difficulty retaining the 10 contested seats that they already hold. The primary defeat of New York's Jacob Javits makes it likely that the Democratic candidate, Rep. Elizabeth Holtzman, will win that Republican seat. The Pennsylvania seat being vacated by Richard Schweiker may also be lost if Democrat Pete Flaherty continues his strong showing against Republican, Arlen Specter.

The Republicans got a big break with the primary defeats of Democratic incumbents Richard Stone in Florida and Donald Stewart in Alabama. Republicans Paula Hawkins, Florida's former public-service commissioner, and retired Army Gen. Jeremiah Denton are given good chances of winning those seats.

With the possible exception of a win in Connecticut by Republican James Buckley, it appears unlikely that Republicans will gain any more seats currently occupied by retiring Democrats. So, the party's victories in these open races will at best counterbalance the losses of seats that it now holds.

Nine of the contested Democratic seats are considered beyond Republican reach—these are the seats held by Dale Bumpers of Arkansas, John Glenn of Ohio, Daniel Inouye of Hawaii, Wendell Ford of Kentucky, Russell Long of Louisiana, Herman Talmadge of Georgia, Alan Cranston of California, Thomas Eagleton of Missouri and Ernest Hollings of South Carolina. It would be viewed as a stunning upset if the Republicans captured just one of these seats.

To win Senate control, the Democrats therefore have to defeat the so-called "vulnerable" Democrats. Recent polls, however, indicate that the GOP is not doing nearly as well in those races as was expected earlier this year.

Republican planners figure that the Democratic senators easiest to defeat would be Gary Hart of Colorado, John Durkin of New Hampshire, Frank Church of Idaho, John Culver of Iowa, George McGovern of South Dakota and Birch Bayh of Indiana. Despite the extraordinarily expensive and slick campaigns being staged on behalf of these senators' GOP challengers, most observers now believe that only Church and McGovern are likely to lose their seats—and no one would be too surprised if both survived in very close elections.

The remaining Democratic incumbents up for re-election are Warren Magnuson of Washington, Robert Morgan of North Carolina, Patrick Leahy of Vermont and Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin. All are in close races, but only Morgan appears to be in any danger of losing his seat. And Morgan is currently leading in the polls despite opposition from the powerful political machine of his Republican colleague, Jesse Helms.

Therefore, dramatic Republican gains also seem unlikely in states where Democratic senators are seeking re-election. It would take the coalitional effect of a Ronald Reagan landslide to produce a shift of more than four or five of these seats, and no polls predict a Reagan victory even approaching those proportions.

Most observers now believe that the next Senate may well have two to six more Republicans than does the current chamber. Four seats is considered the most likely Republican gain.

The next question becomes whether enough conservative Democrats can be persuaded to join with this slightly larger number of Republicans to enable the Republicans to control key Senate votes. Given the results of some recent votes in the Senate, this may indeed be possible.

synthetic fuels lag

It's not surprising that the government's new synthetic fuels program is bogged down in political disputes even before it starts.

President Carter has sent five names to the Senate as directors of the quasi-government Synthetic Fuels Corp. The Republicans want him to fill only four positions of the seven-person board, leaving the balance for "they hope" a new president to fill after the election. One of Carter's nominees already has withdrawn his name from consideration.

The program has become a political football and is likely to remain one as long as it exists. It has authority to spend up to $88 billion in loans and price guarantees for development of alternative fuels. That's a plum with terrific potential for patronage, pork barrel and influence-peddling. Congress would do better to reconsider and dissolve the program before it gets underway. We'd like to see the GOP candidate pledge to dissolve it if he's elected rather than squabbling about whether he'll get to appoint some of the directors.

The major premise of the program almost guarantees failure. It's designed to fund the most risky, most exotic kinds of projects, those that people who are putting up their own money rather than the taxpayers' have judged least likely to be successful. That should make it a haven for crackpots and fast talkers. Who gets the money will inevitably turn heavily on who has access to Congressmen, state and local officials and influential bureaucrats. Lobbying for the grants should create a whole mini-industry of consultants and line the pockets of the heavy-hitting lawyer-lobbyists who throw their weight and contacts around Washington.

We're aware that innovations often come from people who look or sound like crackpots who haven't been able to get themselves heard by hidebound corporate research departments. The synthetic fuels program just might get lucky and fund a breakthrough. But the chances are pretty slim, and we don't see why the taxpayers should be funding this kind of gamble when the odds against success are so high.

This political flurry at the outset leaves no doubt about how highly politicized the synthetic fuels program will be. If politics already outweigh merit and promise, the odds against success become even heavier.

Congress should reverse itself and bail out of the synthetic fuels boon-doggie immediately. Once it's established, it will become one of those sacrosanct pillars of the Washington establishment, and criticisms, no matter how justified, will be greeted with retorts along the lines of "are you against innovation and taking a few risks?"

An intelligent observer can see the course the program is likely to take. We have an opportunity to cut our losses now. We should take advantage of it.

New parents worry about the dumbest things. I guess we all did. It comes with the territory. I remember a nervous neighbor of mine who read somewhere that a child should have two "stools" a day. As compelling as it was for me to hang around and wait for the quota to be met, she finally devised a code to keep me informed. She'd simply put a cardboard sign in her window, announcing, "One!" or "Two!"

Needless to say, she drove the bread man crazy. (Not to mention the kid growing up remembering his mother as a red-faced woman hanging over the crib making weird noises.)

I always thought the No. 1 concern of new parents was the selection of a name until I heard a story from a grandmother this week whose daughter had just had a baby. Everything had gone well. The baby had a name everyone could live with, was in good health and schedules were being met. Then came the hitch. "What does the baby call Grandma?"

In keeping with modern attitudes, her first name was suggested. Samantha? The child would be old enough to drive before she could handle

Malers?

Too formal. Besides, to be consistent, she'd have to call her other Grandma by her last name which was Fliederhofer.

Wait a minute. Since everyone called Samantha "Sam," how about Grandma Sam?

Negative. Already the child had a problem with two parents who shared the same name. "Couldn't you see" a teacher asking, "What's your daddy's name?" Jerry. "And your mother's name?" Jerry. "And your grandmother's name?" Sam. Forget it.

Was she comfortable with "Granny"? Absolutely not. It suggested a silver-haired, plump woman with apple cheeks.

"Grandma?" She'd have her hair done every week to live up to that one.

"Nanny?" Sounded like a hired grandmother who flies with her umbrella open.

"Nana?" That's the sound a goat makes.

"Namo and Nonee?" Aren't they the whales at Sea World?

Finally, someone said, "What about Grandma?"

"It's catchy," said Jerry.

"It's different," said Jerry.

"I think it's me," said Samantha.

Ezekiel had a vision of a whirlwind, a cloud and a fire out of which came "four living creatures," each with four faces. C.G. Howie cites the rabbinic interpretation of this vision as representing God's dominion of nature. Man was created to rule the earth; the lion is king of the forest; an ox is the most powerful domesticated animal; the eagle rules the air.

"As for the likeness of their faces, they four had the face of a man, and the face of a lion, on the right side; and they four had the face of an ox on the left side; they four also had the face of an eagle." — Ezek. 1:10

Half are impotent by 75

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR LAMB — I am a widower, 77 years old. Until a few months ago my virility was good but now all at once I have no more desire for sex. What happened? What can I do? If it's old age, I think there is nothing that anybody can do but if there are other causes, maybe you can help me out.

I have a girlfriend and she thinks that I'm running around and she is very mad. I love this lady very much and don't want to lose her.

DEAR READER — Tell your girlfriend that about half of American men are impotent by age 75. That also means that half are still active. Impotence is a symptom and it can be caused by a lot of different factors.

Why do men in your age group lose desire for sex? The current thinking is that it may be related to basic factors in the brain itself. Many healthy men who have not used alcohol to excess have normal male hormone levels, about the same level as men in their latter 20s.

If you send me your address I'll send you The Health Letter number 3-12. Impotence, to explain the problem more fully to you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

Impotence can also be caused by poor circulation to that area or by damage to nerve mechanisms that control normal responses. In some instances an implant can be used to enable a man to still function. A specialist in urology can brief you on recent developments and tell you whether any of these devices would be useful in your particular case.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm 21 years old and my husband and I have been attempting to have a baby for 11 months. We haven't had any success. I have a tilted uterus. My doctor doesn't seem to think that will keep me from getting pregnant. He told me not to worry, that I'd get pregnant. That's certainly easier said than done.

Two times I've missed a period and developed the symptoms of an early pregnancy (fatigue, breast tenderness, backaches and nausea). Eventually I started my period and my symptoms went away. Both times I took an at-home pregnancy test and one time at my doctor's lab and they were negative. Now I'm going through the same thing again. My doctor tested my urine and he doubts I'm pregnant. Could I be talking myself into being pregnant and causing all these symptoms of pregnancy?

DEAR READER — Yes, you could. We call this pseudopregnancy. In rare cases this even leads to abdominal enlargement and progression of the symptoms of pregnancy. You might be surprised to know that this also happens in animals. Sometimes our bodies certainly play tricks on us.

Now in the rest of your letter you were concerned about your ovulation and when was the best time to get pregnant. You might want to record a daily basal temperature for yourself. Take your temperature each morning before you get out of bed and plot it. With this your doctor could help you pinpoint when your ovulations are actually occurring. Finally, if you continue to have a problem, both you and your husband may need to go to a fertility clinic for a relatively complete examination to determine what factors, if any, are affecting your ability to get pregnant.

Cecil Hall was honored with a birthday party last Sunday with his daughters and their families attending.

Mrs. Eva Mae Brackeen has returned from Midland where she visited her new great-grandson, Dustin Wayne, son of the K. W. Brackeens of Pecos. She accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Jeremy Helm of Ira to Midland.

Boyce Jones is reported recuperating satisfactorily from a recent illness, and Osman Jackson is also doing well following recent surgery in Odessa.

Style Show At Museum

Designer fashions by Star Shelton will be shown in a style show on Nov. 8 in the Scurry County Museum.

The style show will be accompanied by a luncheon, and tickets are to be purchased in advance. Tickets are $6 each and are available in the museum office. Information about the program may be obtained by calling the museum office at 573-6107.

Mrs. Shelton weaves the fabric for her garments, with each finished piece being given a descriptive name according to the image it evokes from the designer. Weavings by Mrs. Shelton will be featured in the museum Nov. 9-25.

Black Hair Usually Dry

Black women's hair tends to be dry because the oil glands in their scalp are less active. This condition is aggravated when hair is straightened chemically. Like perming, straightening is best done at a good salon. The newer ammonium thiogluconate (thio, for short) relaxing solution may be less caustic than the old sodium hydroxide, but it doesn't work as well on really kinky hair. Whichever you use, condition regularly and try dressing your hair with a waxless oil for extra sheen.

Coupon Clipping Turns Into Profitable Hobby

BOONSBORO, Md. (AP) — Kim Smith thinks nothing of spending hours each day thumbing through stacks of magazines and newspapers. But instead of reading them, she's searching for moneyback, money-off and free merchandise coupons.

Although the pastime is a time-consuming one, Mrs. Smith said it was also profitable and helped fight inflation.

"When you're able to save a dollar here and a dollar there, it really adds up," she said, adding that since her husband was furloughed from his job last summer she has learned the importance of cutting costs where she can.

Mrs. Smith is not alone in her coupon search. She and 11 other women recently formed a club which meets once a month. During the meetings, held in different homes in turn, the members clip, trade and talk coupons.

"At one time, people laughed at folks who used coupons," said Mrs. Smith. "They would never think of doing such a thing. But times have changed and, with prices high, those same people are standing in grocery lines hollering to their coupons."

There are some grocery stores in the area where the use of coupons is frowned upon, according to Mrs. Smith.

"Some of the managers and clerks can be difficult," she said. "But the majority are nice. They understand that people have to save every way they can."

And the savings from coupon use cannot be overlooked. One club member noted that by her calculations, she saved $980 last year by using coupons.

"That paid for my winter oil bill," she said, adding that she also received $300 worth of free merchandise through coupon usage.

"It can be a lot of work — clipping and saving coupons," said club member Lucy Hose. "But I feel it's worth the effort. I lock myself in a room once a week and do nothing but look through magazines and newspapers for offers."

All the members of the coupon club are women. But Mrs. Smith said that didn't mean men weren't involved in coupon clipping.

"My husband won't go to the store now unless he has coupons," she said. "And my father has gotten into the act, too, competing with me to see who gets the most and best coupons."

One woman noted that

Cure Table Wobbles

There is an old joke about the carpenter who cut off a bit of one leg of a table to cure its wobble — and cut off a little too much. Then he cut off a bit of the other legs — and cut off too much. By the time he had the table level, he had a coffee table instead of a dining room table.

The obvious answer is: Don't cut off pieces of a leg in an attempt to cure a wobble. This project has a better way.

You will need thin wooden shims, a rasp or sharp knife, white polyvinyl glue and sandpaper. It will take about 15 minutes.

1. Test the table for wobble and determine which of the legs are short. Usually two will appear short and two long.
2. Insert small shims under the short legs until the wobble disappears. The best shims are thin pieces of wood slightly larger than the bottoms of the table legs. Wood veneer makes good shims. You can buy it in many hobby shops. Shops which feature model airplanes may have thin birch sheets which would do. (Don't buy balsa sheets because the wood is too soft.) You can use cardboard, of course, but in time it will compress under the weight of the table, so you may have to add more shims later.
3. Glue the shims to the leg bottoms, allowing the weight of the table to serve as a clamp while the glue sets.
4. Allow the glue to dry overnight, then use a rasp or sharp knife to trim away excess shim material, making the shim the same shape as the leg bottom.
5. Finally, sand the shims and stain them the same color as the table. You can shellac the finished shims to protect them from moisture.
6. There is always the possibility that the wobble may be due to an uneven floor, and not a short leg. If so, moving the table to another location would cure the wobble.
7. It is also possible that the wobble may be caused by loose legs, and not short legs. Then reglue the legs properly.

Mrs. Fischer Honored On 86th Birthday

Mrs. Mattie Fischer was honored with a party on Sept. 21, her 86th birthday.

Mrs. Fischer had ironed for the public until her retirement several years ago.

Attending were Mrs. Fischer's children, Lelia Burrow, Philip Fischer and wife, Wanda, and Marie Moore and husband, Grady.

Grandchildren and great-grandchildren attending were Nort, Joy, Marshall, Rex and Deborah Fiscus of Clyde; Johnny, Linda, Renea, Donny, Donna and Angela Mills of Forsan; Rex, Marsha, William and Sabrina Robinson of Snyder; Wayne, Margaret and Rodney Glass of Snyder; Jean, Greg and Shelly Hayes of Rotan; John, Daria, Amy and Josh Floyd of Ira. Also attending was Shane Robinson, a great-great-grandson.

Friends and neighbors attending included Donald, Sharyon, Adam, Audra and Wendy Bond; Bob, Genetha and Richard Payne, Mrs. Lottie Morton, Mrs. Leota Head and Mrs. Arlie Rodgers.

tract would be reached at every table.

Alan: "Today, any expert pair that didn't get to six would be disgusted with their bidding. A modern invention called 'The splinter bid' would have been used to show that singleton club in the North hand and 13 HCP opposite 13 would have been enough for the slam."

Oswald: "North wants to be in game or higher as soon as he hears the two-heart response to his spade opener. He tells this to his partner plus the additional fact that he has a club singleton by the simple expedient of jumping to four clubs."

Alan: "Three clubs would have been a forcing bid, showing clubs. Four clubs is a splinter."

Oswald: "North's splinter bid tells South that all South's points will be workers. So, South accepts the idea of a slam by cue bidding in diamonds."

Alan: "North has a minimum opener and merely goes to four hearts, but South makes one above game slam try by going to five hearts. North accepts and bids the slam."

Dentist Accepts Being A Person People Hate

NEW YORK (AP) — Randy Knuth is an affable young man who is resigned to the idea that people love to hate him. Sometimes it seems like they come to his office in Tucson, Ariz., just to tell him so.

"I just hate dentists," they moan. "I'd rather be anywhere than here."

"They say 'no offense, don't take it personally,'" Knuth reflects. "Maybe after a period of time, a person could get tired of that. But so far I just accept it."

Dentists are among many people we love to hate simply because they do what they do. Whether it's dentists, police officers, door-to-door salesmen, landlords, collection agents, tax auditors, meter maids or dogcatchers, almost all of us love to hate somebody.

The services they perform may be necessary, but that doesn't keep us from regarding them as at least a little bit evil.

Consequently, it doesn't hurt those people to have thick skins and perhaps even a bit of naivete.

"Funeral directors shouldn't be lumped in with the people you love to hate," complains Jean DeSapio, editor of the Funeral Service Insider newsletter in New York. "You're talking about stereotypes that haven't existed for years and years."

She says morticians sometimes bear the brunt of a family's grief and anger, but that is widely accepted as part of the job.

"Maybe they've come to grips with something everyone else is terrified of," she says.

"Not all bill collectors, though they're painted that way, are ogres," says Harold Slaughter, manager of The Rent Collection Co. in Washington, D.C. "It doesn't affect me, but over the years I have become immune to it. Anybody in this business has got to get used to it."

"Our people don't have that problem," says Elliott Florin, the manager of a 50-person Manhattan sales force for the Fuller Brush Co.

"In fact, it's the opposite," he says. "My dealers tend to have more complaints about customers than vice versa. If you've ever been in sales, and the majority of your customers are middle-aged women, you know what I'm talking about."

Larry Layman, a Peoria, Ill., police detective, jokes that he first realized people didn't like him when they started shooting back.

"But even out of uniform, he says, a policeman can't get out from behind his badge."

"You walk into a party, and everybody starts saying, 'Cheese it, the cops are here.'"

You lose your identity except as an authority figure. It ostracizes you pretty much," Layman says.

That's also the reason, he says, that police officers usually don't have any friends except other police officers.

"You lose your common bond with other people," he says.

There have been few studies of how the people we love to hate react to being hated.

Cotton

NEW YORK (AP) — Cotton futures No 2 were lower at midday dealings today.

The average price for strict low middling 1 & 1/16 inch spot cotton advanced 125 points to 83 3/4 cents a pound Friday for the nine leading markets, according to the New York Cotton Exchange.

Midday prices were unchanged to $2.00 a bale lower than the previous close, Dec 85, Mar 90 and May.

SPE Chapter To Hear Klementich

Erich K. Klementich, vice president and general manager of Great Lakes Engineering, Inc. of Houston, will discuss the key elements for successful deep drilling of oil and natural gas wells at a meeting of the Society of Petroleum Engineers here Wednesday.

The meeting is set for 6:30 p.m. at the Snyder Country Club.

According to Klementich, who is on a speaking tour as part of SPE's Distinguished Lecture program, adequate technology exists to successfully drill and complete deep wells. However, too often the hole is lost or fails to meet its objective because of errors in management, engineering, or operations. Klementich emphasizes organization and management as effective tools to overcoming these problems. Engineering guidelines related to the application of current deep-drilling technology and suggestions for reducing operational problems also are stressed.

Klementich holds a BS degree in mechanical engineering from California State University, Los Angeles. Before joining Great Lakes Engineering, he worked for Shell Oil Co., where he was engaged in ultra-deep drilling in the Gulf Coast, Mid-Continent and Rocky Mountain areas.

SPE is an international organization of some 40,000 engineers, scientists and managers engaged in the production of energy sources through wellbores.

Pars, the official Iranian news agency, said some 200 Iraqi troops had been killed or injured in the Gilan-e Gharb area Saturday night and Sunday.

Baghdad Radio said a military source in the Iraqi command for the central sector reported the Iranian artillery at Dezful, a key garrison town and oilfield center 150 miles north of Abadan, had been destroyed, the enemy fire along the combat lines silenced, and "the remnants of the collapsing enemy troops took to their heels, abandoning hardware and arms." There was no report, however, that the Iraqis had entered Dezful, which has been under attack for weeks.

There was no confirmation of any of the claims since foreign reporters were barred from the battlefronts.

In the air war, Iraq said Iranian jets bombed Baghdad and the north Iraqi cities of Suleimanieh and Waset. Damage and casualties were not reported.

DEAR READER — A growing number of people who call themselves "survivalists" not only would call your fears realistic but would suggest that you begin immediately to prepare for all possible disasters — including the collapse of civilization.

Not being a survivalist myself, I have always thought it adequate for our family to be prepared for a few days without our usual sources of water, heat, electricity and food.

Bill Pier, editor of the Personal Survival Letter, suggests that you test your family's ability to survive for three days by abruptly and without discussion turning off your home's utilities. Try to do this when all of you can stay home throughout the experiment.

Pier suggests that you can cook with candles or kerosene lamps or by burning rolled newspapers or paperback books, drinking water can be tapped from the water heater.

He warns that the crisis period comes after 24 hours when your inability to flush the toilet or watch television begins to get on your nerves. But at least you will be discovering what you need to exist independently for a few days.

Woodrow Wilson. Ragtime. The Great Houdini. The year is 1913 and a new Bell telephone begins ringing throughout the land. Ah, those were the days...

Now you can relive those days with Southwestern Bell's new Country Junction* telephone — a happy blend of yesterday's spirit with today's technology.

Lovingly handcrafted in natural oak and antiqued nickel trim, the Country Junction phone is a classic that blends with period settings and makes an attractive statement with the crisp, cool lines of contemporary taste.

No matter where the telephone is placed — kitchen, den, family room, living area — this is a phone that will be seen and admired. Because it has modular components, installing it is as easy as hanging a picture.

In a busy, bustling world, the Country Junction telephone is a pleasant reminder of those times when all phone conversations began with the voice that smiled.

Now on display at your neighborhood PhoneCenter Store.

laws have little practical value because the federal law says no ingredient or component of Laetrile may be moved across state lines.

The Supreme Court appeal acted on today was filed on behalf of all terminal cancer patients who seek to use Laetrile. In part, the appeal stems from a 1975 lawsuit filed by Glenn Rutherford, a 63-year-old Conway Springs, Kan., cancer victim.

Oil Glut May Idle Refineries, Says Study Group

DALLAS (AP) — An oil study group predicts more than 25 percent of the nation's crude oil refining capacity will be idle in 1981.

The supply and demand committee of the Independent Petroleum Association of America said surplus products inventories and a continuing decline in demand will drop 1981 refining to its lowest level in more than 42 years, about 73 percent of the crude oil processing capacity that exceeds 17.5 million barrels a day.

Refinery use has dropped to a low of 69.9 percent in recent weeks as crude and products inventories climbed to record levels. The latest American Petroleum Institute weekly report gave a 71.8 percent utilization rate compared with 83.6 percent a year ago.

The study committee said, however, the U.S. oil supply outlook, despite the historically high inventory levels, is clouded by danger the war between Iran and Iraq will spread.

Further escalation of the Middle East disturbance, with disruption of supply lines, could change the picture radically," the report said.

"If there are no new disturbances, U.S. supplies should be adequate through all of 1981."

The committee's semi-annual report was released as the 6,600-member trade group opened its 51st annual meeting with emphasis on strategy to kill the windfall profits tax placed on crude oil by Congress last March. IPAA and 33 state and regional groups challenged the constitutionality of the tax last Tuesday in a federal court suit in Casper, Wyo.

During preliminary committee meetings Sunday, the independents expressed fear of congressional attempts to extend the tax to natural gas regardless of the outcome of next month's general elections.

Harold E. Wright, natural gas committee chairman from Gilmer, Texas, called for continued pursuit of a long-term goal of market pricing for all energy, despite saying there is "growing talk in Washington of a windfall tax on gas."

"As with crude oil, there is no economic justification for a windfall profits tax on natural gas, but again, political expediency always defies logic and reasoning," Wright said.

"Regardless who is elected president or what the makeup of the next Congress is: the need to focus on these problems will remain."

Much of Sunday was spent studying procedures for compliance with the windfall profits tax. But John Miller, association president from Alma, Mich., said the study does not mean independents are pessimistic about prospects for a successful lawsuit.

Skeptical But Hopeful Hostage Decision Near

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Carter administration, skeptical yet hopeful that Iran is near a decision on the hostage question, apparently is rejecting an Iranian call that U.S. radar planes be withdrawn from the Persian Gulf to remove "obstacles" to the Americans' release.

S. Muskie said Sunday the AWACS reconnaissance planes were deployed at Saudi Arabia's request to protect its territorial integrity during the Iran-Iraq war. He said they have no offensive capabilities and denied they are being used to pass intelligence information to Iraq.

reaffirmed the U.S. position of impartiality in the war, but added without elaborating: "That position may have to be adjusted as circumstances develop."

Muskie said the war is a separate issue from the hostages. Iran's Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Rajai suggested Saturday that the United States could improve prospects for releasing the 52 hostages, now in their 352nd day of captivity, by removing the aircraft and keeping Jordan from aiding Iraq during the war. He called the planes "obstacles to solving the hostage question."

Nuclear Bomb Debris Nearing West Coast

WASHINGTON (AP) — Radioactive debris from a Chinese nuclear bomb exploded in the atmosphere last week was due to arrive on the West Coast Sunday morning, the Environmental Protection Agency said late Saturday.

spokeswoman for the agency said the latest information indicated the cloud would reach the West Coast at 6 a.m. EDT Sunday.

Ms. Casey said the agency had alerted its nationwide air monitoring system and would begin taking milk samples for laboratory tests of radioactivity. Milk is particularly sensitive to radioactive fallout.

Mrs. Norred

Funeral service has been set for 4 p. m. Tuesday in the Bell-Seale Chapel for Ira Lee Norred, 74, 111 Lubbock Highway, who died at her home at 6:50 a. m. Sunday. Burial will be in the Snyder Cemetery, under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home. She is survived by five stepdaughters, Faydene Hart of Snyder, Jo Ann Barfield of Sweetwater, Betty Hodgson of Farmers Branch, Patsy Barnett of New Home and Mickey Clark of Austin; two step-sons, James Norred of Midland and Bob Norred of Shamrock; a brother, Roy Burnett of Oceano, Calif.

Mr. Etheredge

Funeral service was set for 2 p. m. today at Faith Baptist Church for Will Lee Etheredge, 80, who died Saturday morning in Cogdell Memorial Hospital. The Rev. Buck Hatfield, the Rev. Clarence Minton and the Rev. Bob Rhodes were to officiate and burial was to be in Hillside Memorial Gardens, under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home. Surviving are two daughters, Opal Loveall of Snyder and Myrtle Atwell of Houston; two sisters, Alma Patrick of Snyder and Jalma Scott of Woodlake, Calif. He was married in 1920 in Fisher County to Sadie Peterson. She preceded him in death on April 28, 1968.

Ground School Course Slated

A 40-hour course in aviation ground school is scheduled at Western Texas College from Oct. 21-Dec. 9. Dr. Gene McClurg will be the instructor for the course. Classes will meet from 7-9:30 p. m. Tuesdays and Thursdays with the exception of Thanksgiving. Fees are $55 per person and students will need to purchase their own textbooks, available in the WTC bookstore. Persons wishing information about the course or to reserve space in the class are to call the continuing education office at 573-8511, extension 240.

Chapel Shooting Leaves Man Dead

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — A shooting incident at a chapel on the Texas A&M campus Saturday left a 19-year-old man dead and a freshman student wounded, authorities said.

The shootings took place about 9 p. m. at All Faiths Chapel, said university spokesman Lane Stephenson.

Campus police determined the man, whose identification was withheld pending notification of relatives, was not an A&M student, Stephenson said.

A preliminary investigation showed the man had been shot once in the head, Stephenson said.

The student wounded in the incident, identified as Janie Koster of Cypress, Texas, was listed in stable condition at St. Joseph's Hospital in Bryan late Saturday.

Rajai, while in New York to address the United Nations, also predicted that the Parliament's decision on conditions for freeing the hostages was "not far away."

Vice President Walter Mondale, campaigning in Hartford, Conn., backed Muskie's assessment, saying: "I see no reason to be unduly optimistic or unduly pessimistic."

Iranian lawmakers, meanwhile, gave conflicting assessments Sunday.

A hardline legislator, Assadollah Bayat, said consideration of the hostages will have to wait until the Iran-Iraq war is over. Reached by telephone from Beirut, Lebanon, Bayat said the Parliament is to meet on Tuesday, but that the hostage issue is still in the hands of a seven-member committee and there are no immediate plans for a full debate on the subject.

But the speaker of the 270-seat Parliament, Ayatollah Hashemi Rafsanjani, was quoted in an interview with a Swedish radio correspondent as saying the conditions for the hostages' release would be decided "by the end of this week at the latest."

Rajai said at his news conference in New York it would be easy to resolve Iran's previous demand for an official apology for American interference in Iranian affairs during the rule of the late Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Dear Abby

Love Is Best Weapon In Smoking Battle

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My 60-year-old husband has emphysema so bad he can hardly draw a deep breath or laugh without coughing. His doctor said he absolutely had to quit smoking, so he saw a hypnotist a few times, came home and announced that he was "cured." I knew he was lying because whenever he'd come in from the outside he'd smell of smoke. He thinks he's fooling me, but I keep finding cigarettes stashed all over the house.

Abby, I feel like I'm living with a dope addict. Should I throw the cigarettes out when I find them? It's bad enough to live with a man who's killing himself because he isn't man enough to quit smoking, but to know that he's a liar and a cheat hurts even more. I really love him, but I feel so helpless. Please tell me what to do.

HEARTSICK WIFE

DEAR WIFE: First, I'll tell you what not to do. Don't tell him that if he were a "man" he could quit smoking. He hates his habit as much (or more) than you, but he's hooked. His craving for nicotine is as real as a heroin addict's need for a fix. Don't throw away the cigarettes he's stashed. It will only make him feel guiltier, and Lord knows, he already feels guilty enough.

If you love him, tell him! He needs to hear it to help him conquer the habit. I've heard from literally hundreds of smokers who have been as hooked as he, but managed to quit. Some used the tapering-off method; others said "cold turkey" was the only way. Many recommended behavior modification. Some credited prayer. But of all the programs for which people pay, according to my readers, the most successful by far is Smokers. (For information, the toll-free number is 1-800-227-2334. In California it's 1-800-642-4772.)

Your man may have to try several methods before finding the one that works for him. But with your love and support, his chances for quitting are infinitely better.

DEAR ABBY: A writer asked whether it was proper to ask "Who else is coming?" after receiving an invitation to a party. Your reply, "It's not considered good manners," prompts this letter.

Recently we drove 20 miles to a party only to find that our neighbors had done the same thing. Our "good manners" in not inquiring who else was coming was both wasteful and expensive.

I suggest that hostesses consider this, and offer information that would promote sharing a ride. Or perhaps a guest might properly inquire as to whether he could give any other guests a ride.

WARSON WOODS, MO.

DEAR WOODS: Asking "Who else will be there?" out of curiosity is tacky. Offering to provide transportation to other guests is thoughtful.

DEAR ABBY: Many of your readers may get the wrong impression from ANONYMOUS, who said, "I was married to a Christian Scientist who wished to return to the celibate life — married, but no sex. Then I suddenly came to my senses, divorced him, and now I am married to a normal Presbyterian."

Abby, Christian Scientists are "normal," too. The warmth and affection evident in their family lives belie that frigid and misleading picture given.

A.W.P.

(Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Party Vote Not Necessary

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — they must support the same political party where they voted on May 3.

Strake said such activity "threatens to corrupt the integrity of our political system and must not be tolerated, even by acquiescence."

Strake said Texans may vote for any candidate on the general election ballot, "regardless of what primary they voted in. Any statement to the contrary is not only a deliberate and deceitful attempt to coerce voters, but is also a violation of federal law."

Witches' Meet Stirs Up Wrath

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A reformed prostitute and a converted heroin addict emerged as the most vocal Christians protesting a weekend convention of modern-day witches in this Texas Panhandle city.

the full moon nearest Nov. 1. The group chose Amarillo this year because the lead branch of the Church of Wicca is located in nearby Dimmitt.

They said they feared the Church of Wicca meeting would stir up evil spirits and endanger the citizens of Amarillo. But the witches, led by a man who said his father was once a Baptist minister, insisted they don't worship demons and don't even believe in the devil.

But the folk at the San Jacinto Church took the witches' meeting in their hometown as a serious intrusion.

"This is a spiritual war," said Hagler, who said he "did drugs" for 10 years before he "met Jesus at a honky-tonk in Amarillo in August of 1979."

Head witch Skip Tarrant of New Bern, N.C., said that was "impossible because witches don't even believe in hell."

Folks Killed In Front Of Two Sons

DALLAS (AP) — A West Dallas couple was killed by a pair of gunmen who burst into their home Sunday night and began shooting as their two sons watched, police said.

"We believe in reincarnation," said Tarrant, who said his father was a Baptist preacher in Missouri when he was a boy.

A friend, visiting the couple, was hospitalized in fair condition with gunshot wounds in the leg and chest.

The witches' two-day convention was disrupted for four hours Saturday when a bomb threat forced the evacuation of the 251-room Holiday Inn where they were meeting.

David Owens, 30, and his 29-year-old wife, Shirley, were killed. Roy Clark, 31, of the Dallas suburb of Hutchins, underwent surgery for his wounds. Police said the two gunmen, who knew the Owens family, came to the house and demanded money, then started shooting.

During the evacuation, about 300 fundamentalists led by reformed prostitute Judy Mamou, gathered in a vacant lot near the motel to display placards, clap their hands, sing religious songs and listen to a preacher. A marquis set up in the lot read, "Take Up Your Cross, Not Your Broom."

Police said they believed the children — ages six and 10 — were not killed only because the gunmen "ran out of ammunition."

"We are here to pray because the Bible warns of witchcraft," said Mrs. Mamou, who said she was a prostitute for 13 years before she became a Christian evangelist nine years ago.

Owens was found on the living room floor with gunshot wounds to the chest and head. Mrs. Owens had been shot repeatedly. She was found in a dining room chair, a dinner plate spilled in her lap.

Tarrant said his group will not return to Amarillo any time soon.

Officers said the boys ran from the house, chased by one of the gunmen who stopped when he ran out of ammunition. The boys told police they ran to a neighbor's house and had the neighbor call police.

"It was certainly the most violent and unfriendly reception we've ever had anywhere," he said. "To me it is reminiscent of the Salem witch trials."

"The boys were unable to give us much information because they were still in shock," said police investigator Gerald Robinson.

He said the Wicca group would meet in Missouri or North Carolina for its next "Samaian Seminar," which is held annually to coincide with Wisdom teeth are called that because they normally appear when a person is between 18 and 25, and supposedly has reached the age of wisdom. Some appear as early as 14 and others as late as 65 — and 40 percent of the people never have any wisdom teeth at all. They are officially known as the third molars and are the last teeth on each side of the upper and lower jaws.

Raiders-Steelers Matchup Tonight

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Pittsburgh Steelers may be forced to battle the Oakland Raiders tonight without a key offensive weapon, running back Franco Harris. Harris, who strained ligaments in his left knee in last week's loss to Cincinnati, was listed as "doubtful" for the nationally televised game.

If Harris is sidelined, he'll be replaced in the starting lineup by Rocky Bleier or Russell Davis. Harris is just 63 yards shy of becoming the third player in National Football League history to rush for 9,000 yards.

The Pittsburgh-Oakland series, considered one of the most intense in professional football, dates to 1970. The Raiders hold a 6-5 edge in season and post-season play, but the Steelers have won three of the five games played at home.

Are the Raiders the arch enemy of the Steelers, or just another football team? "Nothing special," says Steeler Coach Chuck Noll. "All we're concerned with is playing one game," he said. "They all count one."

For some members of the Steeler squad, forgetting isn't easy. "When you think of the Oakland Raiders, you think of Darth Vader," says Pittsburgh running back Rocky Bleier. "It doesn't change, even though we haven't played each other since 1977."

Perhaps least cordial were the feelings between Raider defensive back George Atkinson and Steeler wide receiver Lynn Swann. He suffered concussions from Atkinson's hits in two games, the second one giving rise to Noll's comment that there was a "criminal element" in the NFL.

Among other highlights of the teams' bruising relationship were allegations that: —Balls used in a 1973 regular season game at Oakland were underinflated and decorated with obscenities and Raiders offensive linemen wore greased jerseys.

—A priest spied on Raider practices at Three Rivers Stadium in the 1975 playoffs.

—Pittsburgh arranged to have the field at Three Rivers Stadium frozen solid in order to hamper Oakland's passing game.

No one called foul play, but people still marvel at Harris' "Immaculate Reception" of Terry Bradshaw's deflected pass that gave Pittsburgh a 1972 playoff win over the Raiders.

Their last meeting was Sept. 25, 1977 in a regular-season game won by Oakland.

Of the 22 players who started for the Raiders in that game, seven remain on the active roster, Cliff Branch, Art Shell, Gene Upshaw, Dave Dalby, Mark van Egghen, John Matuszak and Ted Hendricks.

If the rivalry still lives, it will have to be rekindled tonight.

Pittsburgh, tripped last weekend for the second time this season by Cincinnati, enters the game with a 4-2 record.

Oakland, which last week upset San Diego, enters tonight's game at 3-3. Quarterback Dan Pastorini, newly acquired from Houston, is out with leg injuries. Backup Jim Plunkett will make his first start since 1977.

Philadelphia Beats 'Pokes On Controversial Play...

Eagles Take Over NFC East Lead

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It was, as in all plays of this nature, a matter of opinion. Tony Hill of Dallas, who believed himself the victim of foul play, was livid. Roynell Young of Philadelphia, the accused, professed his innocence.

The guys in the striped shirts agreed with Young, and the Philadelphia Eagles' 17-10 National Football League victory Sunday was secure. And so was their position as sole occupants of first place in the National Conference East with a 6-1 record, one game ahead of Dallas.

The play was the last of the game by the Cowboys, coming with 45 seconds to go and Philadelphia already ahead by a touchdown, thanks to Ron Jaworski's second TD pass of the game, a 15-yarder to Charles Smith with 4:27 remaining.

After that score, set up by middle guard Charlie Johnson's interception, James Jones ran the kickoff back 41 yards to the Dallas 40 and White marched the Cowboys to the Philadelphia 8-yard line. Then, on fourth-and-goal, he looped a pass to Hill at the left edge of the end zone. Hill jumped. So did Young, who batted the ball away.

Young, of course, saw things differently. "There was contact," he admitted, "but I was going for the ball. And the defensive man has the right to go for it in that kind of situation. I have a clear conscience on that play... I think I had an opportunity to intercept it, but I just wanted to knock it down. I felt relieved when I saw the ball just lying on the ground there."

Before that, the game hinged on the third of White's intercepted passes. With six minutes to play he tried to force a pass to Jones, a rookie, playing because Tony Dorsett had left the game with cracked ribs. Linebacker John Brunk deflected the ball and Johnson made a diving interception.

Campbell Breaks For 203 Yards...

Oilers Hold Off Bucs, 20-14

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers' two-tight-end offense was a much discussed topic after Sunday's 20-14 victory over Tampa Bay. But it was the quarterback and running back who made it work.

Quarterback Ken Stabler artfully combined the Oilers' attack and Earl Campbell banged out a career-high 203 yards rushing on 33 carries as the Oilers ended a two-game losing streak.

The Oilers obtained All-Pro tight end Dave Casper from the Oakland Raiders last week and immediately installed him in the starting lineup opposite incumbent Mike Barber. And the change got immediate results.

"I think the two-tight-end offense helped us today," Campbell said. "It made it seem like we had more men on the field."

Stabler completed 19 of 26 passes for 242 yards, hitting Barber for a 17-yard touchdown pass in the second quarter and handing off to Rob Carpenter for a gutsy 10-yard touchdown run in the third period.

Casper, with less than a week of practice with the Oilers, caught one pass for 14 yards, but spent most of the day blocking.

WTC Tops JC Field At New Mexico Meet

LAS CRUCES, N.M.—Western Texas College won the junior college division and placed fifth overall at the New Mexico State University Intercollegiate Tournament held here over the weekend.

The Westerners' No. 1 team fired a 923 and its No. 2 squad carded a 937 to take first and second places in the junior college division over third place New Mexico Military Institute, 938, New Mexico Junior College, 942, and Midland College, 951.

Next action for WTC will be the Pan American University Intercollegiate at Rancho Viejo in Brownsville, Oct. 29 through Nov. 1.

"NMSU Golf Course is a very difficult course and the greens are tough to putt," stated WTC Coach Rob O'Day of the weekend victory. "I never (before) had a team that played in a tournament when we had four individuals finish in the top four places. A score of 77 is good on this course with a USGA rating of over par. We had some excellent rounds and also some inconsistent rounds, mainly because of too many three-putts. WTC played well."

Sophomore Frank Monfrey was the junior college division medalist with a 227. WTC freshmen Jeff Seger and Matt Vincent tied for the runner-up medalist spot with 228s each, while sophomore Richard White was fourth with a 230.

O'Day was also pleased with his teams' effort in the university division. Host NMSU easily won the division, carding an 866 to Arizona University's 900. AU No. 2 took third with a 906, while NMSU No. 2 placed fourth with a 919. Then came WTC No. 1, followed by Eastern New Mexico University (935), WTC No. 2, NMMI, Pan American University (942), NMJC, Midland, and in 12th, West Texas State University (1,044).

Unser Provides Fire As Phils Sting Royals

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — It now comes down to Steve Carlton and the rest of the Philadelphia Phillies' "Comeback Gang."

And for that, the Phils can be thankful to a small man with a big bat. Del Unser, a castoff two years ago when the Phillies latched onto him, performed nobly once again Sunday, sending Philadelphia home with a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven game World Series.

The sixth game of the Series will be played Tuesday night with a seventh game, if necessary, Wednesday night. The Phillies will start the left-hander Carlton, baseball's premier pitcher, Tuesday night against Kansas City Royals right-hander Rich Gale.

Carlton may or may not share the spotlight when he worked McGraw for a leadoff walk. McGraw used just three pitches to strike out Brett for the second time in three innings, then walked Aikens. McRae hit into a fielder's choice, erasing Aikens and sending White to third. That brought up Amos Otis, who had homered earlier.

"I tried to pitch a 1-2-3 inning," McGraw said, "but as I got deeper and deeper into trouble, I began to pitch more carefully. When Otis came up, I tried to make perfect pitches. I didn't care if I walked him."

Otis walked on a 3-1 delivery from McGraw, bringing up Jose Cardenal, who came in as a pinch hitter two innings earlier. McGraw went to 1-2 on Cardenal, then struck him out.

Edwards Clan Wins Disney Golf Tourney

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Danny Edwards, a six-year veteran of the PGA Tour, was beaming with pride as he talked about his younger brother, Dave.

"He showed me and he showed the world that he's one tremendous player. You're going to be hearing a lot from him in the next few years," said Danny, at 29 five years the senior of the brothers from Edmond, Okla.

They'd just blended their talents for a better ball, 7-under-par 65 that made them the first set of brothers to win the Walt Disney World National Team Golf Championship.

Consultants Called In When State Needs Help

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — When state government can't — or won't — do it itself, the usual answer is hire a consultant.

Since January, state agencies have signed consultant contracts worth more than $6.5 million. Millions of additional dollars have been paid for other outside professional services.

In past years, those services have included part-time priests and country singers for the Texas Department of Corrections, dentists and doctors for poor children and special investigators for at least two agencies.

Unlike some states and federal agencies, however, Texas seems to have gotten a handle on the hire-a-consultant syndrome, although there is room for improvement.

"Reports of abuses have dropped off a whole lot," says Sally Watkins, aide to Sen. Lloyd Doggett, D-Austin.

Doggett was the chief campaigner for legislation aimed at stopping such abuses as "brother-in-law" contracts without competitive bidding. The governor now has a veto over any consultant contract costing over $10,000, and agencies must issue public invitations to bid.

Consultant contracts got a lot of attention in 1978 when it came to light that Gov. Dolph Briscoe was keeping his payroll down by hiring a firm to staff the Governor's Office of Migrant Affairs. Briscoe also hired a number of his ex-employees as consultants.

State law now requires disclosure if a consultant has worked for a state agency within two years before receiving a contract.

Legislation passed last year authorized a heavy state investment in energy research. The Texas Energy and Natural Resources Advisory Council has commissioned 19 studies, ranging from lignite gasification to solar cooking.

The solar cooking contract went to the Oscar Mayer Co. — as in Oscar Mayer wieners — at Sherman.

McGraw-Hill holds this year's biggest consultant contract, $1,975,000 to conduct the statewide Texas Assessment of Basic Skills testing of school children.

Sometimes, a consultant contract offers a way out of a knotty personnel problem.

Agriculture Commissioner Reagan Brown wanted to hire Dr. John Hutchison, retired director of Texas A&M's Agricultural Extension Service and Brown's old boss. But Hutchison couldn't draw both a state paycheck and a state retirement check.

So Brown got Gov. Bill Clements' approval of a $100-a-day consultant contract for Hutchison to "help develop guidelines to make Texas No. 1 in agricultural income and profitability."

Hutchison got an office down the hall from Brown's and advised Brown on such things as gasohol.

"I would say he almost works full time. Somebody is trying to hire him every day from us," Brown said. Within a week, he announced that Texas A&M had hired Hutchison.

An agency may hire consultants only if there is a "substantial need" for their services and the agency cannot do the job with its own people.

When the Texas Rehabilitation Commission wanted to upgrade the training of its employees on their civil rights, it hired ARBEC Inc. for $41,000.

Dr. Maurice Dutton, president of ARBEC, said the commission will get "a total training program," including reference manuals, group exercises, slide shows and trainers' guides.

Dutton said he welcomes the new competitive bidding requirements.

"It has made no difference in our company's success," he said.

Audits of the 10 largest state agencies indicate fairly heavy reliance on outsiders for services not covered by the consultant rules.

The Texas Department of Corrections paid between $1,200 and $1,800 each to three Catholic priests and fees up to $10,000 to country singers Tammy Wynette, Tom T. Hall, Larry Gatlin and Freddy Fender.

TDC spokesman Rick Hartley said the singers were paid from gate receipts for performing at the Prison Rodeo.

Hartley said the priests were hired because "we don't have enough chaplains to fully carry out religious programs."

In recent years, the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation and the Parks and Wildlife Department hired former officials as special investigators. Parks and Wildlife paid former director Henry Burkett $9,892 for an investigation in 1979. MHMR paid its retired attorney, Earl Scott, $5,554 to look into problems at Rusk State Hospital.

The Department of Human Resources pays millions of dollars yearly to dentists and physicians for early check-ups and treatment of poor children. In 1979, eight dentists received more $100,000 each.

Dr. C.C. Chandler, senior dental consultant, said the dentists and doctors receive less than their usual fees and are a bargain compared with establishing state-run clinics.

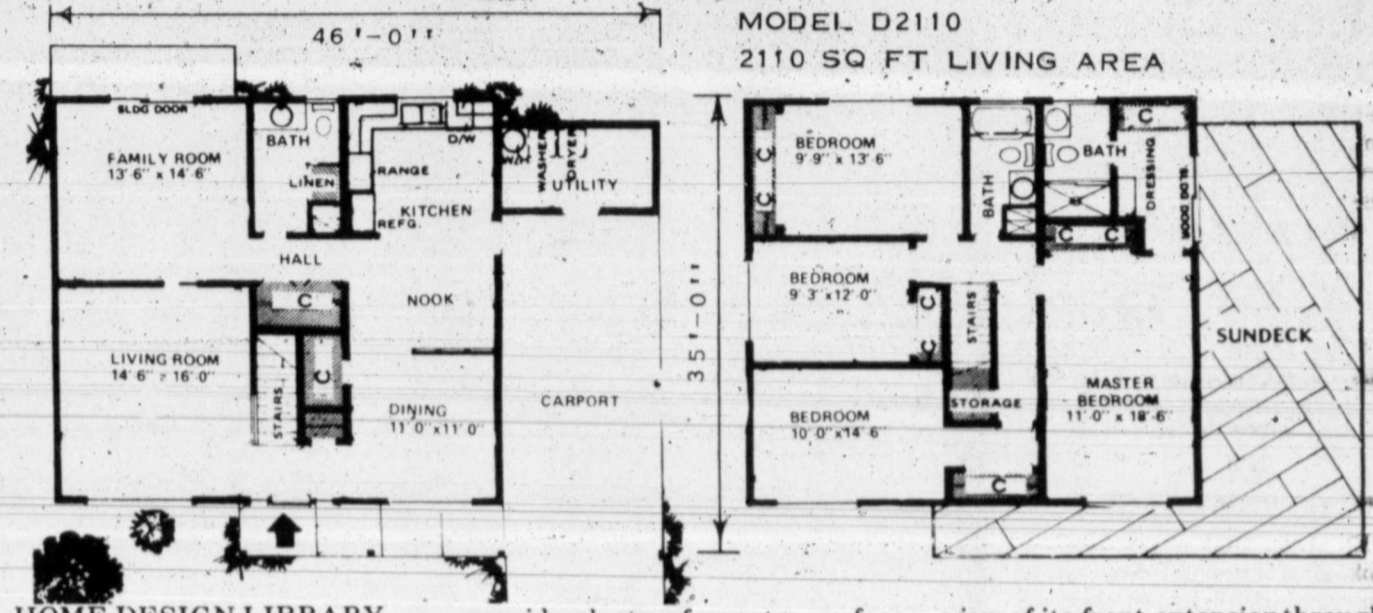

"It is more economical to pay a fee for service and let the dentist ... pay for all supplies, materials and office overhead out of the fees paid for his services," Chandler said.

Doggett says there are too many exemptions to the consultant law to suit him — notably those for lawyers, doctors, engineers, architects and accountants.

"We yielded to political realities. It became clear that if we didn't exempt them, we couldn't pass any bill at all," he said.

Doggett says he has no plans to bring professional services under such consultant requirements as competitive bidding because "I don't think we can pass it."

Delightful Sundeck

HOME DESIGN LIBRARY by Larry Farnsworth

This two storied house is an especially attractive one with charming dignity and pleasant lines, enhanced considerably by the "wrap around" sun deck which graces its upper floor.

Note how the simple entry area at the foot of the stairs channels traffic efficiently along only the side of the dining room and kitchen dining area to the rear hall so that the basic function of these rooms is not disturbed.

Note too the separate living room with its nice big window, and the pleasantly separate formality of the dining room.

The large country style kitchen uses an L-shaped work area to provide plenty of counter surface and cabinet space and also allows lots of open floor space for informal dining and other desired pursuits. A door to the carport and its handy utility room conveniently places laundry facilities just a few steps away.

Next to the kitchen is a downstairs bath and beyond it a comfortably designed family room with a sliding door to the rear of the property.

The second floor contains two more back to back baths and four lovely bedrooms as well as additional storage space. Note the good closets in the bedrooms too, and the master bedroom's dressing room with its extra closet and built-in dressing table. This luxurious room also has sliding doors to the huge sundeck and a pleasant view of its front extension through a nice big window.

Note too how the stair well area on both floors has been utilized efficiently to provide a quantity of good storage closets.

Consider once again the exterior of this charming house. Note the arch like effect which gains distinction from being repeated three times ... at the front entrance and window and at the carport entrance.

For a truly beautiful house designed to make living truly beautiful too, this plan is a good one to select.

Amaranth Makes Comeback...

Health Food From Forgotten Plant

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Africa. Now, amaranth may be making its way back across the oceans, spurred by a National Science Foundation study that termed it one of the 20 most promising new crops in the United States.

Experiments are under way to adapt the plant to climates and soils in the United States. Some health-food stores and a magazine are promoting the work, and General Foods is growing some amaranth.

One study is being conducted at the University of California department of agronomy in Davis by S.J. Jain and Holly Hauptli who hope to find the best strain for California conditions.

"Interest in grain amaranth as a major crop has grown in recent years, mainly due to its excellent nutritional quality," Jain reported.

It contains up to 18 percent protein compared to 9 percent for wheat and has "a well-

Wants Safety Law For Fair

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Rep. Ed. Watson, D-Deer Park, who plans to introduce legislation to require safety inspections at amusement parks, says he is shocked that State Fair of Texas officials did not show more concern about injuries at the event.

"One woman suffered a broken wrist when thrown from a ride, a ride operator has a leg broken by machinery, and another rider received injuries in a fall," said Watson.

"How could any responsible group call these minor accidents?" he asked.

The European Coal and Steel Community was established in 1951.

Shop Around Before Purchasing Life Insurance

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

The Federal Trade Commission has been forced to stop its efforts to regulate the sale of life insurance. But consumers can regulate their own purchases to get the most for their premium dollars.

The FTC had proposed that state insurance commissions require companies to provide more information about the cost and rate of return on different types of policies. The proposal died when Congress passed legislation reaffirming its policy of leaving insurance regulation solely up to the states, and ordering the FTC to study insurance only if it is asked to do so by committee of the House or Senate.

followed an FTC staff report which was sharply critical of the industry. Insurance companies challenged the report and accused the FTC of basing its study on false assumptions.

At the center of the controversy is the argument over term insurance versus whole-life policies. Each has advantages and disadvantages.

Term insurance provides a fixed amount of protection for a fixed period. After the term expires, you have no more protection unless you get another policy. Premiums are relatively low when you are young, but increase as you get older.

Whole-life policies provide protection for as long as you live. They also build up cash values. You can borrow against them and, if you decide you no longer want the insurance, you can discontinue the policy and take the accumulated cash. Premiums for whole-life policies generally are higher than those for term insurance, but they are fixed and do not increase as you get older.

The FTC described whole-life policies as a combination of insurance and savings and, it said, the average rate of return on the savings portion of most policies was under 2 percent a year.

The American Council of Life Insurance said the FTC calculations were wrong. It said the average rate of return was closer to 6 percent. The council also said that whole-life policies are not savings or investments.

John H. Filer, chairman of the board of Aetna Life & Casualty of Hartford, Conn., summed up the council's position when he testified before the Senate Commerce Committee last October.

"Whole-life insurance is not partially insurance and partially savings," he said.

It is wholly insurance. It is not designed to provide for the possibility of economic gain in return for a risked sum of money. That's an investment. Nor is it designed to accumulate deposits of money building toward an individual or family goal so long as the depositor remains alive to make the deposits. That's a savings account.

The Better Business Bureau's "Guide to Wise Buying" says that no matter which type of insurance you choose, it is important to shop around. "Compare the cost of similar policies offered by a number of firms. Premiums vary substantially," says the BBB.

Ask how long it will take you to build up cash value in a whole-life policy. The FTC said that 45 percent of the people who buy whole-life policies drop them within 10 years and many of them lose money.

Wants To Bill State For Aliens

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A South Texas state representative said Saturday the state should pay $600 per alien student to school districts that have to teach large numbers of foreign children.

Rep. Hector Uribe, D-Brownsville, told the state board of the League of United Latin American Citizens that poor border school districts cannot come up with the money to teach illegal and legal alien students.

"When the poor must pay to educate the poor, the quality of education for all students suffers," he said in a release prepared for the meeting.

A 1975 Texas Education Agency study showed over 44,000 alien students in Texas schools. Most were in 61 school districts along the border.

The Brownsville Independent School District, which is fighting a federal court ruling that Texas schools must educate illegal alien children, has the equivalent of more than two elementary schools housed in temporary buildings, Uribe said.

Under his plan, a school district would be eligible for state aid if 5 percent or more of its students were aliens. The district would also have to have property values at or below average values.

The state money would be reduced or eliminated if a federal plan is devised to help the districts.

"School officials in impacted schools overwhelmingly believe the federal government should help pay the costs of educating foreign-born students," said Uribe. "I agree, but we cannot wait for the federal government to assume its responsibilities."

Battery Thefts Are Reported

Police during the weekend received their reports involving two auto batteries.

Making one complaint was L.L. Allen, 4503 College. He told officer Buddy Kinney a $100 battery had been taken from his vehicle. That incident was reported Sunday.

Saturday, Joe Carrisales, 605 19th St. reported his $46 battery had been stolen. Taking that report was Mike Harris.

Also received was a reported criminal mischief. Larry House said someone had spraypainted his 1977 Oldsmobile while the vehicle was parked at the National Guard Armory. That was reported Saturday to Kinney.

Reported to both the police department and sheriff's office was a possible drug overdose. Taken from a residence on Camp Springs Road to Cogdell Memorial Hospital about 5:30 a.m. Sunday was a 24-year-old woman. A hospital spokesman said the woman was in good condition and might be dismissed today.

Playhouse Fire Is Extinguished

Snyder firefighters were dispatched to the 4514 Fredonia St. residence of Bobby Beard last night to extinguish a playhouse fire in the back yard.

The fire was reported at 8:05 p.m.

Table tennis started to become a major sport throughout China after Mao Zedong endorsed it as an ideal game for his Red Army soldiers in the late 1920s.
