Two Kinds of Competition

Fair and open competition is one thing. It keeps business on its toes, and assures the conumer of maximum value for his money. But competition in which, so to speak one competitor has a hand tied behind his back is something very different. An important case in point is the business of moving parcels from one part of the country to another,

A long established private enterprise—the Railway Express Agency-does this. There are also many state and local carriers. All of them must stand on their own feet. They must charge rates that meet the costs. A government enterprise-parcel post-also offers parcel delivery service. But parcel post does not stand on its own feet, even though when it was established Congress issued a mandate that it should do so. It has consistently operated on a deficit basis which, over the years, has totaled huge sums of

As a result, the taxpayers must pick up part of the tab for those who patronize parcel post. At the same time, private carriers must attempt to meet heavily subsidized competition.

There's no justice in that. It's bad business for all concerned. If the post office is going to carry parcels, let it charge an adequate rate.

Headache for Legislators

Though the legislators are still home, shots already are whizzing in the battle over how to raise more state revenue in

When the lawmakers arrive in January, they will have a hard time finding a road to new money that hasn't been land-mined ginia Reagan of Stephenville and strewn with barbed wire by some group that opposes that course. Advance studies indicate the need for as much as $100,000, 000 a year in new taxes.

Business groups, who have been holding meetings over the ited his mother, Mrs. Henrietta state, have come out flatly for a retail sales tax. They contend Perrin and other relatives in that to meet its needs, present and future, Texas must have a broad-based, spread-thin tax that will grow with the economy. Representtives of organized labor, strongly opposed to a sales tax, fired back. Labor has endorsed the idea of a broadbased, "growth" tax, but insists it should be an income tax, on corporations and individuals. Governor Daniel has voiced opposition to both sales and income taxes. Many legislators were elected on platforms opposing

Only other likely courses would be to raise taxes that already exist, or vote taxes previously rejected. But these roads also are blocked by groups ready to defend to the last.

Coming so closely on the heels of the wet victory in the Prec. 4 beer election, we were a little bit dubious when we got a tip that a lion or panther had been sighted on the highway in South Haskell County a short distance from Stamford.

But the report was quickly verified that "something" had been seen and reported by persons who were entirely trustworthy.

Stamford and Haskell offi-cers and volunteer lion hunters converged on the scene Wednesday night and gave the area where the animal was spotted a good going over with no luck.

Parties reporting seeing the animal described it as "look-ing like a lion" and said it crossed the highway in front Weinert areas. of them hurriedly. Stopping and backing up their

They were returning from Houston several weeks ago. It was around 10 p. m. and as they were traveling along 277 in the flat breaks adjacent to the Thos. B. Roberson land, the couple was startled when a huge animal crossed the highway a short distance front of their car.

It was either a panther lion, he believes. He and his wife both got a good look at the animal from a distance of about 50 yards.

Another Haskell man now believes he saw this animal, or one similar, near Scott's Crossing about two years ago. He, too, had never mentioned it because he felt that it would be too hard to beleive.

He is positive the animal is a panther, because of its long tail. Engaged in oil field work, he man says he has seen numerous big bobcats killed in the breaks of western Haskell and eastern Stonewall Coun-

In town last weekend for a brief visit, and in his words, To check up on a few of you guys to see how you're hand-ling things," was R. V. Sass of For, Worth, a retired construction engineer. He lived in Haskell a few years while supervising construction of the original Paint Creek power plant of West Texas Utilities Company. Then he went to California to supervise a big installation for Pa-cific Gas & Electric, and later came back here to oversee building of the first unit added to the Paint Creek plant. The veteran engineer has had an interesting career in building dams and power plants in every section of the United States, in Canada, and several foreign countries. He has been identified with some of the country's largest projects, including Boulder Dam. Now that he's retired. Mr and Mrs. Sass are living at Fort Worth, where they have

After one look at the surrounding country, with not a drop of water in sight, the crew members were of a single opinion: Someone had goofed in locating a steam 'urbine op-eration in the middle of a West Texas prairie!

One of the more brash boilermakers confided in Engineer Sass: "I don't believe there'll ever be enough water to fill one of those boilers."

The veteran engineer answered: "This is West Texas, son, and if you'll stick around you'll see enough water to float a river barge loaded with ore.

Although his remark was in fun, Sass saw it confirmed a short time later.

Keep Cotton Dry, Loose,

The final grade of lint in a bale of cotton is determined by the condition of the seed cotton when it reaches the gin. For this reason, cotton should be produced, harvested and handled so that it reaches the gin dry, loose and clean as possible, says F. W. Martin, County Agent.

Picking early in the morning or late in the afternoon when cotton is very moist should be avoided. Loss of color associated with delay in ginning of high-moisture seed cotton accounts for a large part of grade difference between cotton harvested during high-moisture periods and dry periods. To get the best possible prices for cotton, the farmer should harvest it dry andn keep it dry, the agent points out.

Small capacity transport ve-hicles have no place in the cotton field, Martin continues. Four-wheel, large capacity, wood-slatted or wire-sided trailers are recommended.

Another quality reducer, which is closely associated with small transports, is tramping the seed cotton in the trailer. Even the most elaborate and expensive ginning systems cannot remove all of the small "pin and pepper" trash that is ground into cotton by tramping.

Seed cotton should be harvest ed clear as possible to permit use of less gin machinery in obtaining a good grade. Pickers should be cautioned not to ers should be cautioned not to allow green leaves, excessive trash, dirt, colored rags, grass and other foreign objects to be mixed in seed cotton.

"You can help maintain quality in cotton by harvesting seed cotton when it is dry and by keeping it loose and clean." by keeping it loose and clean.'

OPEN THE DOOR to a new way of living—electrically

HOME

The door to a Medallion home opens to modern living convenience at its best. Any home, anywhere, can be a Medallion Home, regardless of styling, size or price. It is what's inside the Medallion Home that makes the difference.

Open the door to a Medallion Home and see for yourself. Note the number of work-saving electric appliances...the service entrance, circuits and outlets that mean REDDY WIRED...the handy light switches and decorative lighting fixtures, each with a definite purpose and each in the exact location to furnish plenty of "light for living."

I these conveniences are required in a Bronze or Gold Medallion Home. And, in the Gold Ion Home, there are more...including clean, comfortable electric heat. Before you buy, build kenize, get the facts about Medallion living from your Building Contractor or WTU.

Rains Idle Local Gins As 5,244 Bales Processed

Haskell gins, nearing peak operation for the season, were idled by rains which hit this section last week, followed by hard downpours and destructive hail in some areas Saturday.

Before closing down due to the rains, the three local gin plants had processed a total of 5,244 bales of cotton from this year's crop, a survey Monday revealed.

Gathering of the cotton crop was just getting under full headway. Much of the crop was open and some farmers had started machine harvesting of their crop when halted by rain.

Causing Damage To Small Grain

The fall armyworm has caus ed extensive damage to volunteer oats, barley and wheat according to F. W. Martin. County Agent. The armyworms have been observed in all sec tions of the county but seem be heavier infestation in th Mattson and Weinert communities. Several farmers have equipment and air planes. The armyworm may be con trolled by the use of Toxaphene (6 lbs. per gallon) and use one quart to 1-3 of a gallon of water. Another chemical that will give good control is Para-thion (2 lbs. per gallon) using pints per acre with water Parathion is only recommend-ed to be applied with air equipment and not ground equipment. Crops which are subject to attack by armyworms should be observed at frequent intervals for the presence of these insects. It is important to apply insecticides when the worms are small. Insecticides will not generally give satisfactory control of large worms.
