L. B. Maxey, of Floydada, chairman of the County School Board, Judge Jno. W. Howard, member of the board from Precinct One and County Judge E. C. Nelson, Jr., attended the meeting from this county. A program of interest to trustees, superintendents and school workers in general was held at the normal and luncheon was served at the Canyon Inn where an organization was launched. Mrs. Ola Legg, of Hale County, was elected secretary of this organization. Nine county judges and two county superintendents were present at this meeting. Floyd County had the second largest delegation of the counties represented.

The fact that Floyd County has been one of the most consistent school house building counties in the panhandle for years has been common knowledge. It was interesting, however, to know that it is the only county at this time continuing the school building program actively. Floyd County common school districts, totalary 1st for school building and equipping purposes.

Other interesting facts brought out at this meeting, indicating the standing of Floyd County educationally among the counties represented at this meeting are:

Floyd County has more common school districts than any other county on the plains, with thirty-one. Hale County, next door neighbor, is second with twenty-six. Floyd County has ten more districts than the third county on the list which is Lipscomb with these matters. five common school districts.

The party from this county went to Canyon on Monday and after the close UNION MEETING IN PROGRESS of the sessions in that city Tuesday afternoon, returned home Tuesday night.

Eagles Erect Homes Which Much Resemble the Ancestral Mansions of the Proudest Families.

Describing the bald eagles which make their nests on the desolate islands off South Carolina, Herbert Magazine:

"There is something characteristhing attractive to the mind, in the performance of the eagle's home. Most birds' nests are ephemeral things. After a few weeks or months they are gone, and not only gone but forgotten. The eagle's home is year after year, enduring for a longer | its whirling motion. time than many a man lives, cared for and kept in repair by the winged architects who built it and who seem to feel a genuine affection for it. On a plantation near the coast there is a nest in a pine 112 feet above the ground. For more than 50 years the same pair of eagles have inhabited this nest, and it is possible that they will still be living there when houses that men are building today, out of the kind of lumber with which one must now be content, have fallen into ruin."

LITTLE CHANGE IN HUMANITY

Investigation Has Shown That Modern Man Is Very Much Like His Remote Ancestors.

Donald A. MacKenzie's "Ancient Man in Britain" gives a most interesting account of our more remote ancestors, in the Stone age and in days down to Roman times Some 25,000 years ago, it is known, from skeletons, that the men found in Britain "in all essential features were of modern type. They, dressed in modern attire, would pass through the streets of a modern city without particular notice being taken of them."

These people suffered from our complaints. They were clever surgeons and could trepan the skull with success, as skulls have been found in which the wound made by trepanning had healed. They buried the dead with rites which proved that their minds, like ours, were occupied with the mysteries of life and death. In the mouths of some of the dead found have been green stone amulets, as in Egyptian burials as far back as 3400 B. C., and perhaps even further.

Motor transport between Hobart and Launceston, the north and south ports of the island, is making serious inroads, it is said, on state railway receipts. The western part of Tasmania remains a wilderness of lakes, forests and mountains, but in the north, east and south, road building is proceeding steadily.

EASIER FOR WOMEN

Women not only have obtained the right to vote, but their influence is beginning to be felt in the arrangement of their homes. In the old days the architect was satisfied to design a good-looking building, with the kitchen tucked away anywhere, and closets placed wherever he might have a bit of waste space. But the newer build, gs are all provided with light, airy closets. The kitchens are well lighted and ventilated.

Many of the houses now have a small opening in the outside wall to accommodate the garbage can, and ventilators to carry the cooking fumes outside.

> Queer Feelings

"Some time ago, I was very irregular," writes Mrs. Cora Robie, of Pikeville, Ky. "I suffered a great deal, and knew I must do something for this condition. I suffered mostly with my back and a weakness in my limbs. I would have dreadmy limbs. I would have dread-ful headaches. I had hot flashes and very queer feelings, and oh, how my head hurt! I read of and of others, who seemed to and of others, who seemed to have the same troubles I had, being benefited, so I began to use it. I found it most beneficial. I took several bottles and was made so much better I didn't have any more trouble of this kind. It regulated me."

Cardui has been found very helpful in the correction of many cases of painful female disorders, such as Mrs. Robie mentions above. If you suffer as she did, take Cardui—a purely vegetable, medicinal tonic, in use for more than 40 years. It should help you. Sold Everywhere.

Money from Hiding Places

The Texas lawmakers have taken a strong hand in seeing that Guaranty Fund Banks are operated for the good of the public. So splendidly have they performed, and with such perfect protection and safety to depositors, that they have added confidence and stability to every financial institution in the state. This confidence in Guaranty Fund institutions has worked to the good of all banks by bringing forth from hiding places vast sums of heretofore undeposited wealth, to be placed in the banks of the state, and turned once more into channels of commerce and usefulness for the advancement and betterment of every state industry.
