Sunday "Blue Law", Effective In November, to Bring More Headaches

Merchants and consumers, now confused and "up in the air" over the new State sales tax, have another headache in store early in November, when the so-called "Sunday Blue Law" goes into effect.
Rep. Carl Wheatley pointed out this week that the ban on Sunday sales of a wide list of items goes into effect Nov. 7, 1961.
Rep. Wheatley opposed and voted against both bills when they were up for consideration in the Legislature, but the laws were enacted by a majority of the legislators.

The "blue law" takes into account the fact that some religious sects observe Saturday as the Sabbath or day of rest. The law provides that the merchant may select either Saturday or Sunday for observance of the religious observance in his particular community.
Items which cannot be sold on Sunday (or Saturday) include the following:
Clothing, clothing accessories, wearing apparel, footwear, headwear, home, business office or outdoor furniture, kitchen ware and utensils, home appliances, stoves, refrigerators, air conditioners, electric fans, radios, television sets, washing machines, dryers.

Rep. Wheatley pointed out this week that the ban on Sunday sales of a wide list of items goes into effect Nov. 7, 1961.

Provision is made that prohibited items can be sold in case of an emergency when purchaser signs a statement to that effect.

Stamford Woman Found Dead In Car Sunday

Mrs. C. W. (Joanne) Wood Jr., 29, of Stamford, was found dead in a car on an abandoned gravel road four miles north-east of Stamford about 7:30 a. m. Sunday.
The hose from a vacuum cleaner had been attached to the car's exhaust and one end of the hose extended into the car through the ventilator window in the rear door of the 1952 model Ford.
The body was discovered by C. W. Dudensing, farmer living in the vicinity, who had gone to see about his cattle in a pasture adjoining the road, known as the old Haskell-Stamford road.
Motor of the car was still running, Dudensing said. He turned off the ignition switch, opened the car doors and jerked the hose from the exhaust, then notified Stamford officers.
Stamford police officers Denton Black and Bascom Connolly were joined by Haskell Sheriff Garth Garrett and Justice of the Peace Virgil Brown in making an investigation. Time of death was estimated at 3:00 a. m.
A verdict of death by mono-oxide gas, self-inflicted, was returned by Justice Brown.
The body was taken in charge by Kinney Funeral Home in Stamford.

The murder trial of Rober Marvin "Boss" Kingston, pending on the docket of 39th District Court since last June, is scheduled for hearing Monday Sept. 11, with a special venire of 144 prospective jurors called.

District Judge Ben Charlis Chapman will preside. The special venire will be the same panel which reported last June 19 when the case was set for trial. The jury panel was excused and the trial postponed due to the busy farm season.
The Grand Jury indictment against Kingston, 25-year-old oil field worker, charges him with the killing of George Eel Elliott on or about March 5, 1961, "by striking him with his hands and fists and kicking and stomping him with his feet with shoes on."
Prosecution of the case will be directed by District Attorney Royce Adkins.
Counsel for the defendant will be Dennis P. Ratliff of Haskell and L. G. Matthews of Brownsville, uncle of the defendant.
A 39th district court grand jury returned the murder bill against Kingston after investigating circumstances connected with the death of Elliott, 39-year-old farm worker.
Elliott, married and the father of three children, died in the Haskell Hospital from injuries allegedly received in a fight with Kingston in downtown Haskell in the early morning hours of March 5, 1961.

Rubens Bates of Goree Speaks To Local Lions

One of the most forceful and inspiring talks heard by members of the Haskell Lions Club this year, was given by Rubens Bates, of Goree, at the Tuesday noon-day luncheon meeting.
"Alcoholism is a disease and should be treated as such," Mr. Bates, a long-time member of Alcoholics Anonymous, forcefully pointed out.
Steps or signals of alcoholism, Mr. Bates said, are: A person begins to drink, blackouts, liquor means more to you than other individuals, excuses for drinking, can't face problems, drink more than you mean to, going on a bender, deep remorse, full of fear, realize drinking has you licked, get help or you go under.
"Any one or more of these signals can lead to alcoholism," Mr. Bates said.
"Between 65 and 85 million people in this country drink alcoholic beverages and there are around 5 million alcoholics. Seventy percent of inmates in prison are there because of alcohol," Bates said.
"The alcoholic problem should be attacked through law enforcement, our courts and through our educational systems," Bates emphasized.

Sales Tax Draws Protests

Storm clouds of protest boiled up quickly among consumers, clerks and merchants during the first week of application of Texas' almost-general sales tax.

Reaction was not so much against the cost of the new tax, but more to the principle, inconvenience and confusion. Natural resistance to any new levy always is evident. And there's certainly nothing "hidden" about a sales tax. Noticeable were strange new surpluses of pennies in pocket and purse. They were bothersome. Arguments also ensued over what is subject to tax, and what isn't.

Although State Comptroller Robert S. Calvert issued bulletin after bulletin explaining what is covered by the tax, it was evident that much time will have to pass before everyone concerned clearly understands the new law.

No one would venture a guess as to how many telephone calls were received by the Comptroller's office during the first week. The multitude of businessmen converging on the Capitol to seek information or lodge complaint gave Comptroller Calvert not a moment's peace.

Meanwhile at the other end of the line—the direct contact point for collection of the extra pennies—clerks, especially those in supermarkets, were equally harried. There had been so little time for them to bone up on the many exemptions and intricacies of the new way of taxing Texans.

Probably the most universal scheme to beat the tax emerged in coffee shops across the state. If the coffee tab for the group came to 25 cents or more, there was no sense in one person picking it up and having to pay an extra penny.

Most Home Accidents Avoidable

Home accidents, like other accidents, are fundamentally the result of inadequate knowledge, insufficient skill and faulty attitudes.

Most of the annual four million or more deaths and injuries caused by home accidents can be prevented if we observe four rules:

1. Learn to recognize and understand the many hazards of the home.
2. Develop a sense of responsibility toward safeguarding ourselves and others against the possibility of home accidents.
3. Acquire the skills required to perform household tasks safely.
4. Acquire safe, orderly habits in all of our activities in the home.

Let us insure our own safety and the safety of our families and friends by observing these four simple rules of home safety.

By A. PATE

A salute to our HHS Indians and their coaches for the hard-earned victory over the Seymour Panthers Friday night. It was a perfect start for what is to be a good football season for Haskell.

Congratulations also to our fine High School Band, Pep Squad, loyal student body and team supporters for their splendid support at the opening game. The Indians deserve 100 per cent support at every game. Let's see that they have it.

Football forecasters took a beating last weekend, with upsets the rule rather than the exception. We should have gone ahead with our hunch and predicted the Indians would scalp Seymour and that Quannah would topple Stamford.

But since we didn't stick our neck out and make the predictions, we can't do any boasting. Neither do we have to come up with alibis, either.

Hubert Bledsoe, used car dealer here, believes he has some conservation minded cows. Recently he turned the cows into a field of sudan, and they went after the lush grazing.

The animals also followed a generally accepted soil conservation practice, Hubert says. The cows would graze two rows of sudan, then skip four, he declared.

He maintains that he can take any doubters out and let them see for themselves.

Henry Withers says that by the time a man can afford to lose a golf ball, he can't knock it that far.

Mack Martin of Houston, former Haskell druggist and one-time employee in Oates Drug Store, was here several days visiting relatives and friends.

Mack had also been to Rule, where he visited several hours with Dr. J. C. Davis, veteran physician there and at Sager-ton.

Mack recalled the time in 1917 when he was a boy in Sager-ton and Dr. Davis was practicing there. An epidemic of smallpox threatened the community, several cases having developed.

As a precaution, vaccination was recommended for every-one. One prominent Sager-ton bus-nessman couldn't bear the thought of being vaccinated, the way the smallpox vaccine was administered then.

He complained to Dr. Davis, "Doctor, I can't bear the thought of having a spot on my arm scraped raw."

Dr. Davis, always considerate, confided that a new preventive of smallpox could be developed which could be sprayed on. "Billy Martin has just received some of this new preparation, and if you'll come to my office in the drug store I'll be glad to spray you," the Doctor promised. An appointment was made for a certain hour that evening.

In the meantime, Dr. Davis had confided to a few friends and invited them to get in on the fun. Then the Doctor and J. M. (Billy) Martin, Sager-ton druggist, filled a tub about half full of ice cold water, colored and scented to resemble a medical preparation. After securing an old-time spray gun used on livestock, the Doctor waited.

When his patient arrived, the Doctor told him to remove his clothing, and began stirring the high-smelling preparation. As soon as the "patient" was dis-robed, Dr. Davis let go with the spray gun. A lusty yell from the "patient" followed and this was the signal for a half-dozen friends to crowd into the office. The Doctor kept pumping away with the spray gun until the victim was "sprayed" from head to foot, while the gang of friends cheered.

Instead of getting angry, the victim took the joke good-naturedly. Later, after the smallpox scare had subsided, he boasted that the "spraying" kept him immune from the disease!

Another chapter has been added to the story about the rattlesnake killed in front of Brazelton Lumber Company one evening recently.

The rattler, killed by an unidentified motorist, was left lying beside the pavement on the driveway leading into the lumber yard.

When Manager Desmond Du-laney, along with employees Bobby Medford and Jerry Dunnam opened the yard they noticed the snake and checked to be sure the reptile was life-less, then dragged it to a pile of trash in the yard waiting to be hauled off.

The trash truck didn't make its rounds that day and the last thing Bobby and Jerry noticed was the defunct snake still lying near the trash pile.

Next morning, however, the trash was still there but the rattlesnake was gone.

Discernible in the dust was the faint trail of the rattler which could be traced along the ground near the wall of a lumber shed until it disappeared under a pile of lumber!

Because they are positive the snake was dead, Bobby and Jerry theorize that an opossum or skunk, finding the rattler, decided to take the reptile to its den under the lumber pile and convert it into a skunk or 'possum banquet.

Manager Desmond agrees with Bobby and Jerry in at least hoping their conclusion is correct. Reasoning of the trio is that they'd prefer having a snake-eating skunk or 'possum around instead of a crippled, ill-tempered rattlesnake running loose in their lumber yard.

They're not making any immediate plans to trap the migrant 'possum or skunk, either. They've tried that before.

A few years ago, a 'possum was seen in the lumber yard and Major Lewis, an employee of the company then, set a steel trap in what he thought was the critter's runway. Like many other ex-East Texans, Major had visions of a fat baked 'possum for his table.

Next morning when Desmond and the rest of the crew came to work they knew as soon as they reached the yard that the steel trap had worked. They also knew the trap's victim wasn't a 'possum.

When they finally became sufficiently acclimated to approach the trap their next problem was to devise some way to get rid of the angry polecat caught in the trap by one foot.

With the help of several out-siders, the odorous task was finally accomplished and the polecat dispatched but not before everyone connected with the foul undertaking had been initiated into "The Odor of the Skunk."

Persons crossing the Double Mountain Fork of the Brazos river west of Rule on the modern highway bridge probably give no thought to the problem early settlers had in getting across the muddy, fickle stream.

First crossings were at ford-and naturally could only be

TIPS ON HOME SAFETY . . .

MANY DANGERS LURK IN YARD

The amateur gardener is exposed to many hazards and must exercise constant care when using yard tools and equipment.

Press are co-sponsors of the 1961 Home Safety Program in Haskell.

Almost 12 per cent of all home accident fatalities occur in the yard, according to a survey reported by the Kansas Board of Health and the Nassau County, N. Y., Health Department.

Of the total deaths, 5.6 per cent were caused by falls; 1.6 per cent by exposure to fire; 1.3 per cent by suffocation; and 3.1 per cent by miscellaneous causes.

Principal dangers are careless handling of rakes, hoes, and lawnmowers. Turn hoes, rakes, etc., downward when momentarily laid aside and store properly when not in use.

1. Avoid using an electric mower when the ground is wet. You may cause a short circuit or slip on the damp grass and fall against the blades.

2. Before using, clear lawn of stones, wires, and other articles that the mower may catch and throw into the air. If an object discharged by a mower strikes you or a bystander, it may cause serious injury.

3. Be sure that children and pets are at a safe distance when you are using the mower.

4. Be sure of your footing and balance when you are operating the mower on an incline. Downhill mowing is especially dangerous.

5. To push the mower over obstructions, tip it by manipulating the handle rather than by reaching under the mower.

6. Stop the engine before removing objects from reel or rotary blades.

7. Disconnect plug wires when you are working on the underside of the mower.

8. Store fuel in a closed metal container and keep it out of the reach of small children.

9. Shut off mower before leaving the mower unattended.

10. Keep flame away from the mower while refueling.

Letters From "Exes" Indicate Peak Attendance at 1961 Homecoming

As plans move ahead for Haskell's fifth School Homecoming to be held Friday and Saturday, Oct. 6 and 7, indications point to a record attendance at this year's affair.

Letters are going into the mails this week to ex-students and former teachers inviting early registration for this year's program.

Homecoming officials are preparing for a rush of ticket and registration requests, especially from those who have attended previous Homecomings.

"We have received scores of letters from Exes who were here for the 1959 Homecoming in which they praised the affair and expressed their intentions of being on hand for the next Homecoming," officials of the organization said.

Some excerpts from these letters are given below:

Mrs. Walter Bickley (Frankie Alexander): "The homecoming was such a joy. I am still in the clouds over the fun I had. How wonderful it is to 'come home' and see the old friends again."

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie McCrary (Juanita Kirkpatrick): "We want to tell you we think this Homecoming was a huge success, and we appreciate the work all of you did to make the meetings such happy ones. Thank you again, it was real fun being with all our friends and we appreciate Haskell's hospitality."

Mrs. A. J. Smith (Florence French): "The homecoming was wonderful, everyone said so. We enjoyed it all so very much and I don't believe we will ever miss another, if we can possibly help it."

Mrs. S. R. Moore (Lucy Hill): "We did enjoy the homecoming so very much and are looking forward to the next one. It was so nice seeing all of our old friends, and we do thank everyone for their hospitality."

The Paxtons: Mrs. Paxton, Hattie and Lillian: "Our thanks go to many people, we realize, for having made the Homecoming such a pleasurable and memorable time. It was wonderful being back and renewing friendships. Sometimes at such reunions one is inclined to think everyone else looks so old! But to us everyone looked pretty or handsome or distinguished."

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Odell: "We had a grand time at the reunion and we are looking forward to the next time. Gordon is writing his family now."

trying to interest them in coming to the next reunion. We realize you have all spent hours of hard work on these homecomings and we love you for it. My only regret is that I did not go to school in Haskell."

It did me a wonderful lot of good. I was so proud of all of you and the wonderful job you put over in this year's Homecoming."

The Boll Weevil and Its Control

(First of a Series) By F. W. MARTIN, County Agent

Due to the increase of boll weevils in the county this year, the following information is given for use by farmers in controlling boll weevils.

One misconception on boll weevils is the opinion by many that the weevils are scattered by cotton burs. All of the entomologist and cotton specialist of Texas A&M College say that it would be almost impossible to spread boll weevils in cotton burs. Due to the fact that the weevil winters over only in the adult stage, the insect must have more protection than the cotton bur can afford.

The adult weevil winters in wooded areas and fence rows where there is protection from the cold. One important way in controlling the boll weevil is to destroy the adult weevil by burning, plowing and etc., during the winter.

The boll weevil crossed the Rio Grande at Brownsville in 1892 and rapidly spread over the entire Cotton Belt. The first specimens described were reared from bolls; thus it was given the present common name. It is believed that the "square weevil" would have been a better name since the squares are attacked more readily than the bolls. The weevil prefers cotton but will feed and breed on althaea.

Description: The boll weevil egg is rarely seen because it is deposited in the square or boll. The white egg is elliptical with a soft smooth shell and measures about 1/30 inch in length. The immature weevil is a white legless grub and when full grown measures about 1/4 inch in length. The pupa is also white and is found within the square or boll. The mature weevil is about 1/4 inch long, grayish brown and has a prolonged snout which bears the chewing mouthparts at its tip. The front femora have two spurs on the inner surfaces and the body is clothed with hair-like scales.

Life History: The boll weevil hibernates or passes the winter in woods, trash, grass, cotton stalks, crop debris, fence rows, around houses and in Spanish moss. Early in the spring, the overwintered weevils leave their hibernation quarters in search of food. Soon after the first squares are one-third grown, egg laying begins. The female eats a cavity with her mouthparts in the square or boll and deposits an egg. She then seals the cavity by secreting a sticky substance. On the average, females lay about 100 eggs during their life.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to say "thank you" to friends and neighbors for their cheerful messages, prayers, flowers, and personal visits during Dr. Scott's stay in the hospital and since his return home. Your kindness is deeply appreciated and will never be forgotten. — Dr. and Mrs. Frank C. Scott. 36c period of about 30 days. The eggs hatch into larvae or grubs in about 4 days and transform into pupae within the squares or boll in 9 days. Six additional days are required for the adult to emerge. The pre-egg laying period requires about 8 days, making it possible to have a generation of weevils in about 27 days.

Nature of Damage: Weevils puncture squares and bolls for feeding or for egg laying. Egg punctures can be distinguished from the feeding punctures by their wart-like appearance. Punctured squares flare open and usually fall to the ground within a week. Small punctured bolls may also drop to the ground but the larger bolls may remain on the plant. However, severely damaged bolls may fail to open or may open partially, with one or more locks ruined by the weevil.
