

Cash incentives could save state money

AUSTIN (AP) — State Comptroller John Sharp said encouraging competition among state agencies and private companies may be one of the up to 450 suggestions he has to save the state $1.6 billion without cutting services.

Gov. Ann Richards and legislative leaders in February ordered the comptroller's office to scour state agencies for suggestions on saving money and increasing efficiency. The state is facing a projected budget shortfall of $4.7 billion.

Sharp announced last week that the 100 auditors conducting the Texas Performance Review had uncovered at least $1.6 billion in savings. So far, he has been reluctant to provide details of possible recommendations, saying that agencies already are scurrying to protect their interests.

"Every one of them (the ideas) is going to make sense, but every one of them is going to have a price tag — a political price tag," Sharp said.

The report is due July 1, in time for the Legislature to consider when they write the state budget during a special session Richards has said she will call July 8. Lawmakers put the task off until completion of the review.

Sharp said Monday that one idea under consideration is to encourage bidding to provide services among state agencies and private companies.

"Competition works, and we've got to find a way to inject it into our system," he said.

He also recommended enforcing a state requirement that universities accept junior college course credits. Despite a 10-year-old law, students still frequently are denied credit by professors or administrators, Sharp said.

"There'll be plenty of howling and gnashing of teeth on this, I'm sure," he said. "It's been a common complaint by junior colleges all across the state."

Another contender for the review's final report is a plan to give cash rewards to state employees who save money.

The employee bonuses would be an attempt to change what is now common practice by agencies who end the year under budget, Sharp said. They frequently spend money on things they don't really need to avoid having their budget slashed in the future, he said.

In the system under consideration, a percentage of the money agencies save — perhaps half — would be returned in lump-sum payments to workers.

"What happens next is all the sudden old Joe Blow says, 'Well I have to fly out to Midland today to check on some things.' They (other employees) say, 'The hell you are. That's our money.'" Sharp said.

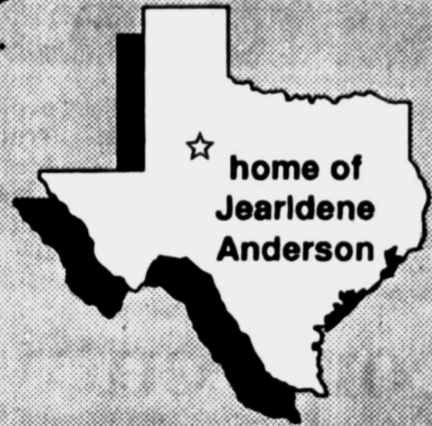

Although the state would spend money in the short run, the program offers incentives to reduce waste, he said.

"In those instances that we've seen, the state actually gained a lot of money by instilling that sense of 'this is our money' into the program," he said. "They save a lot of money by spending a lot of money."

Ask Us

Q.—Why was only one name printed in Monday's police report when four persons were arrested for DWI?

A.—The long-standing policy of the Snyder Daily News is to print only the names of persons charged with a felony. In arrests made last weekend only one was charged with a felony. The difference between a misdemeanor and felony in a DWI case is two prior convictions.

In Brief

Plane crash

COLORADO CITY (AP) — Bad weather may have contributed to the crash of single-engine airplane that went down in a West Texas field, killing both men on board, an official said.

Lee Terrell, 24, of Hurst, and John William Stokes, 46, of Weatherford, were killed Monday when the Cessna 210 they were in crashed during a thunderstorm, said Mitchell County Sheriff Wendall Bryant.

Terrell apparently was piloting the plane, the sheriff said.

The bad weather may have played a role in the crash, said Texas Department of Public Safety trooper David Wisniewski.

The plane had been reported missing Monday.

City council told...

New Ivie pipeline due to increase local water rates

Colorado River Municipal Water District General Manager O.H. Ivie told Snyder city council Monday night that a water rate increase of 4.25 cents in 1993 and of 8.75 cents in 1994 is needed to fund the cost of the Ivie Reservoir pipeline.

Ivie's presentation came during the regular June meeting of the council.

The pipeline would be some 155 miles, providing water from the new reservoir to contract cities San Angelo, Midland and CRMWD member-city Odessa. Cost of the pipeline is $113 million and should be completed by January of 1995, Ivie said.

Ivie and other CRMWD representatives presented figures which showed Snyder water rates well below rates paid by cities of comparable population. Ivie contended that even after the increase, Snyder water customers will enjoy rates below other Texas communities.

Also attending the meeting were representatives from the chamber of commerce's economic development planning committee to once again ask the city to consider the establishment of an enterprise zone.

The council recently held two special work sessions on the enterprise zone program, but during Monday's meeting, council members said they did not have sufficient information on the program to make a decision. Instead, the council chose to establish a committee, still to be appointed, to study the city's role in economic development to include a possible enterprise zone.

Council member Jack Denman was the only dissenting vote on a proposal that would offer Snyder ISD a 10-year lease agreement for the east and west fire stations.

Under the tentative contract — which will still have to be approved by school trustees — the city would lease the buildings for $1 a year. The agreement would save the city some $4,000 in maintenance costs annually said City Manager John Gayle. However, expansion of the central fire station would eventually be required. Estimated cost of the expansion is $40,000.

In other business, council member Jackie Greene was elected mayor pro-tem and an ordinance prohibiting parking along 37th St. was approved on second reading.

A proposed street closing was tabled and a request of $7,200 from hotel-motel tax fund for the AJRA National Finals Rodeo was approved.

The council also voted to become a member of the Big Country Resource and Development Area at an annual cost of $25.

Present at the meeting were Mayor Williamson, Gayle, City Attorney Ernie Armstrong and council members Denman, Greene, Mike Thornton, Vernest Tippens, Joe Coronado and J.D. Smith.

Strauss new Soviet envoy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush today nominated Robert Strauss of Dallas as ambassador to the Soviet Union and said he was certain the prominent Democrat was the right man to represent the United States in this period of "fantastic change" in Moscow.

Strauss is a former chairman of the Democratic National Committee and international trade representative under President Carter. His relationship with Bush crosses party lines; along with Secretary of State James A. Baker III, Bush and Strauss are Texans and longtime friends.

Bush said he was certain that no one was more talented to make sure that two big ships — the United States and the Soviet Union "don't pass in the night for lack of understanding."

Strauss, 72, had been mentioned mid-way in the president's two-year search for a replacement for career diplomat Jack Matlock. But he said recently he had turned down the job.

Bush sidestepped a question of whether he would be going to Moscow by the end of June for a summit with Mikhail Gorbachev. He said the administration would be deciding on a timetable in "the next couple of days."

Bush made his surprise appointment as the United States and Soviet Union are driving toward agreement on a treaty to slash long-range nuclear weapons and to forge closer economic ties.

Soviet President Gorbachev has appealed for greater economic aid from the West, and Bush has indicated a willingness to help.

Said Strauss: "I have concluded if there's a role I can, I'm delighted to play it with this secretary of state and this president."

"A week ago if anybody told me I'd be standing here I'd say they'd be crazy, said Strauss.

"I enter this administration as a Democrat as all of you know. It's a nonpolitical appointment if ever there was one."

Grand jury indicts trio

Three individuals were indicted on five charges by a Scurry County grand jury Monday.

Twenty-nine-year-old Gregory Allen Porter of 215 35th St. was released from custody after posting bond on two felony driving while intoxicated charges and an escape from custody charge. Bonds were set at $10,000 for the escape and $2,000 each for the DWI charges.

Porter was charged the a May 6 DWI offense and another on May 24, from which the escape charge stemmed.

According to police, Porter was stopped at 9:38 p.m. in the 900 block of Ave. E and arrested for DWI. While being booked into Scurry County Jail, the suspect reportedly ran out the front door of the building. He was again apprehended without incident just before midnight in the 1900 block of West Drive.

Also indicted were Richard Dean West, 47, of 1212 29th St. for a May 18 DWI charge and Elisello Usevio Delao, 28, of Route 3 Box 357 for a May 18 DWI charge.

Bond for each was set at $2,000. The grand jury returned a no bill on a burglary of a habitation offense.

More computer capacity may be required

The state legislature's solution to equalization of school financing could mean the purchase of additional computer equipment to handle the increased work load.

Scurry County Appraisal District board met this morning to discuss the establishment of the County Educational District, selection of the board of directors, tax implications and to hear public comments.

The board discussed the changes that would have to be made in the local office, due to House Bill 351 which would combine Scurry County with four other counties in the educational district which would include 11 school districts.

The other counties in the education district No. 11 are Crosby County, with three school districts; Fisher County, with two school districts; Garza County, with two school districts; and Kent County with one school district. Scurry County has three school districts — Ira, Hermleigh and Snyder.

L.R. Peveler, Scurry County Appraisal District's chief appraiser, noted the computer system is working at peak capacity now. He explained the need for additional equipment to handle the excessive load. Peveler was to meet with the city officials today to explore the possibility of a joint system and further discuss a solution.

No action was taken following discussion other than the board's approval of bills.

Present at the meeting were Peveler and board members Julius Roemisch, Bill Voss, John Reed and Doug Flynn. Absent was Mickey Sterling.

It happened not long ago in San Francisco. With little warning, state courts throughout California were shut down on Friday, April 5. It was Thanksgiving Day.

You may remember that President Bush declared April 5 to 7 "national days of Thanksgiving" to mark the end to the Persian Gulf War.

The White House said it meant only for people to reflect on the victory, not stay home from the office. Still an obscure 1951 law dictates that anytime the president or governor utters a magic phrase like Thanksgiving, holiday or public fast, California courts must refrain from judicial business.

We wonder if the golf courses were closed, too...

Young pilot likes planes, not girls

KILL DEVIL HILLS, N.C. (AP) — Daniel Shanklin, the Texas schoolboy who appears to be the youngest pilot to fly across the United States, is a typical second-grader.

He likes airplanes. He doesn't like girls. He doesn't really like news conferences, but puts up with them. He likes video games.

Why doesn't he like girls? "Because they're always slapping me. Ugh," the little pilot said Monday as he flew toward First Flight Airstrip, where he bounces to a landing and a place in unofficial aviation history.

During the flight from Raleigh-Durham International Airport to the coast, Daniel pretended to zoom faster than the 122 mph Cessna 172 was flying. He also made bullet noises, "ffpppttt" noises, clucking noises, whistled and once hit his instructor on the head.

Daniel peppered instructor Stuart Moon with questions: "How does a helicopter fly? What's a Loran? Where's that TV helicopter? Is that the airstrip we're going to? It looks small."

"He's a little squirrely with all the excitement," Moon said. "Video games. That's what I like," Daniel said. "Next time we'll stop at a Stop 'N Go with a quarter and play video games."

Daniel told reporters waiting for him that they all asked the same questions, but that his grandfather coached him on answering them. Still, Daniel stuck to one-word answers much of the time.

The flight started about 10 a.m., when Daniel and Moon, sat at the end of a runway going through the final preflight checklist. Then Daniel pulled the throttle out and held the brakes, letting the single-engine aircraft vibrate as they checked instruments.

Daniel landed at the airstrip adjacent to the Wright Brothers Memorial about noon, bouncing twice after touching the airstrip.

"That was the worst landing I've ever had and I wanted it to be the best," Daniel said as Moon gave him instructions for getting the aircraft under control.

"I'm glad I'm finished," the boy said, exchanging high-five hand slaps with Moon in the cockpit as they taxied to a stop. The flight began May 26 in San Diego, Calif.

About 300 schoolchildren from elementary schools in nearby Kitty Hawk and Manteo cheered as the youth flew over before landing. Moon, 30, of San Antonio, Texas, said his pupil's rough landing may have been caused by a cross wind blowing off the Atlantic Ocean, less than a mile away.

Daniel received tee shirts and commemorative pins from local merchants and a birthday cake in the shape of an airplane. Daniel's eighth birthday is today, and the children serenaded Daniel with "Happy Birthday."

The boy's grandfather Dr. Ken Shanklin, 59, a plastic surgeon from Fresno, Calif., said he believed the flight was a record for youngest pilot to fly coast to coast.

The Guinness Book of World Records doesn't keep such record by age. The National Aeronautics Association in Washington stopped keeping age-related flight records in the late 1980s. Two 9-year-olds completed separate flights in 1988 and 1989 before the NAA stopped keeping records.

The record "is not the most important thing about this flight but if I have it I have it," said Daniel, who is from San Antonio. "This is my first and last big adventure."

The elder Shanklin said the flight showed that children were capable of more than adults sometimes gave them credit for.

Daniel's nine-year-old brother, Michael, flew in his grandfather's six-seat airplane. Daniel and Michael have said they want to join the Air Force and fly together.

Both boys received flying lessons for Christmas from their grandfather. Moon, who began working in March as a flight instructor, said Daniel was "a very methodical pilot. He's very meticulous."

"The weakest point, because he's seven years old, is attention span," Moon said.

That showed during the final leg of the trip. Daniel handled the take-off from Raleigh-Durham and the landing at the coast alone.

Deli gets consecutive life terms for slayings in cabin

COALVILLE, Utah (AP) — A prison parolee convicted in the slayings of a Texas woman and her mother during a cabin burglary has been sentenced to seven consecutive life prison terms by a judge who recommended he never be freed.

Edward Deli, 22, stared at his shackled hands Monday as 3rd District Judge Frank Noel sentenced him.

"If you at any time are free, you will be a danger," said the judge. "I've searched the records for any sign of remorse. Any signs have come far too late and are too unconvincing to have a mitigating effect on this sentence."

The judge said he would recommend to the state Board of Pardons that Deli never be freed.

"I'm hoping and praying I don't live very long," Deli said in a later telephone interview. "But knowing my luck, I'll live to be 250 years old."

Deli contended the prosecutor exaggerated the crimes because he was bitter the jury had not given him the death penalty.

Deli had been charged with first-degree murder in the Dec. 22 shooting deaths of Kay Tiede, Humble, Texas, and her mother, Beth Potts of Murray, Utah.

But a lone juror held out against a capital conviction favored by the other 11, and Deli was convicted May 14 of two counts of second-degree murder.

Codefendant Von Lester Taylor, 26, pleaded guilty to capital homicide and was sentenced to death May 24. He chose lethal injection over a firing squad. Death penalties undergo an automatic review in the Utah Supreme Court.

Deli said Taylor fired the shots that killed Tiede, 49, and Potts, 76, at the family cabin in northern Utah.

Kenneth Tidwell, Mrs. Potts' son and the brother of Mrs. Tiede, said he would use every resource to assure that Deli never is paroled.

"This man is dangerous. He would do it again, even if he were freed when he were 70 years old," Tidwell said. "This won't bring my mother and sister back, but I do feel justice was served."

Deli also was found guilty of attempted homicide, two counts of aggravated kidnapping and one count each of aggravated arson, aggravated robbery, aggravated assault and theft.

All told, seven counts carry a maximum penalty of life imprisonment, and the kidnapping charges have minimum mandatory terms of 15 years.

Noel also imposed one-year firearm enhancement terms on six counts. Theft is punishable by a one-to-15-year prison term, and aggravated assault by zero to five years.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please provide information on the skin allergy urticaria.

DEAR READER: Urticaria simply means "hives," the itchy, irregular, patchy rash that usually denotes an allergic reaction. Hives can appear and disappear quickly, without warning. They are due to the release of histamine into the skin.

Urticaria can be caused by reactions to foods, cosmetics, drugs, animal hair — in fact, anything that can provoke an allergic reaction can cause hives. Stress and anxiety also may lead to urticaria.

Acute treatment of hives includes cold compresses and antihistamines, such as Benadryl; cortisone may be needed in severe cases that don't respond to over-the-counter remedies. If possible, the cause of the hives should be determined, so it can be avoided in the future.

In general, urticaria is a harmless annoyance; however, it may indicate the presence of a severe, developing allergy that should not be ignored. For example, in people taking medication, the appearance of hives is a warning that, unless the drug is stopped, more serious, life-threatening allergic reactions could follow.

The initial diagnosis and treatment of urticaria can be carried out by a family physician; patients with severe or recurring hives may need referral to allergists.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband has been diagnosed with idiopathic pulmonary fibrosis. Please discuss this.

DEAR READER: Pulmonary fibrosis refers to the widespread presence of diffuse scar tissue in the lungs. The condition is commonly caused by inhalation of a particulate matter, such as sand (silicosis) or asbestos, leading to progressive difficulty breathing and inability to exercise. Eventually, patients become quite handicapped. The condition can be diagnosed by X-rays and biopsy. Idiopathic (of unknown cause) pulmonary fibrosis appears without any obvious antecedent exposure to air pollution. It, too, leads to progressive respiratory disability. Treatment consists of cortisone, special breathing exercises and supplemental oxygen. Because patients with IPF experience frequent respiratory infections and may develop heart failure, antibiotics and heart stimulants, such as digoxin, may be necessary.

In some instances, the rate of progression is slow and patients may remain relatively symptom-free for years. In others, respiratory ability worsens rapidly with death occurring in a matter of weeks.

Because of the potential seriousness of IPF, I believe patients with this disorder should be under the care of pulmonologists, doctors with advanced training in pulmonary diseases. Such specialists can advise your husband about treatment and methods of coping with this affliction.

Kellye speaks at meeting

The Scurry Charter Chapter of the American Business Women Association met May 23 at the Martha Ann Woman's Club with Ruby Deavers hostess to 19 members and one guest. Mae Cole gave the invocation.

Nathalie Kellye was the guest speaker. She started her business in Rotan about six years ago, she said, and she and her family moved to Snyder three years ago. She began by making quilt collars, dolls and teddy bears and has grown into a business, Nathalie's, with 32 employees and representatives over 49 states including several foreign countries with Japan being their largest buyer.

She and her husband, Joe, go to market twice a year, she said, and most of the designs are made with cookie cutters that Nathalie designs. Buttons they make are washable but cannot be dried in a dryer, she noted. She said they cut approximately 3,000 buttons a day and have about 219 different designs for buttons, button covers, earrings, pens and necklaces, she concluded.

Grace Bryant, vocational chairman introduced Leona Wiggins, Ira postmaster since September of 1975. She explained the different stamps and rates and told the group it was possible to refuse junk mail delivery by contacting the post office. She announced the date for White Buffalo Days was Oct. 12.

Jessie Scarbrough said the National Convention for ABWA was set for Nov. 13-17 in Las Vegas. Maxie McNew and Margaret Easterwood told of the Silver Tea for May 26, 1992. Carol Young, president, appointed Deborah Rodgers, Ruby Neves and Pat Faver to the audit committee. Vera Pruitt, Mae Cole and Barbara Scrivner are on the nominating committee.

The door prize was won by Maxie McNew and Betty Bynum.

"Concerto in F," by George Gershwin, had its world premiere in 1925 at New York's Carnegie Hall, with Gershwin himself at the piano.

Hot popcorn soup anyone?

NEW YORK (AP) — The next time you invite the gang over to watch television, pop up a bowl of hot popcorn soup. That's right, popcorn soup.

The soup was created by David Turk, owner of Indiana Market & Catering, a specialty food shop, and executive chef Stephen Evasew. It was introduced at a "New York Dutch" dinner at the James Beard House here.

POPCORN SOUP

2 pounds popcorn
1 small white onion, chopped
3 celery ribs, chopped
4 cups fresh chicken stock
2 cups water
6 cups milk
Salt and pepper to taste
Chopped cilantro, roasted red pepper or freshly popped popcorn (for garnish)

In a large pot, simmer the popcorn, white onion, celery, chicken stock and water for 30 minutes. Remove from the heat; let mixture stand for 1 hour to let the popcorn absorb the liquid.

Process the mixture in a food processor or blender for 30 seconds. Return the mixture to the pot; add the milk and simmer for 30 minutes. Be careful not to let the soup burn.

Pour the soup through a strainer, pressing as much of the solids through the strainer as possible. Season with salt and pepper; garnish with chopped cilantro, roasted red pepper or freshly popped popcorn. Makes 6 servings.

Note: This soup can be served immediately, but if refrigerated for one or two days, it will thicken and develop a hearty corn taste.

Cast a couple of eyes over today's deal. East's decision not to open, yet to overcall at the three-level, is dubious. It is safer to open a borderline hand than to overcall later, especially at such a high level, because there is less chance of being doubled for a lucrative penalty. Here, though, South could hardly pass over three clubs.

West led the club ace and switched to the heart 10 — six, queen and jack. East returned the club eight, the high-spot lead being a suit-preference signal for hearts. After ruffing, though, West switched to a diamond. He knew from the appearance of the heart jack that a heart return from his long suit would be ruffed by South.

Declarer won with dummy's king and called for a low spade. Here East made the correct move. He went up with the spade ace. But then he made an error: He tried to cash the heart ace. He was annoyed his partner hadn't led a heart at trick four. Declarer ruffed, drew the remaining trumps with the spade king, and claimed. If only East had led another club, West's spade queen would have been promoted for the setting trick.

East was clearly wrong, but suppose West leads a heart regardless at trick four. Declarer ruffs, plays a diamond to the dummy and calls for a spade. Now East has no other defense. He must win with the ace and lead a club, hoping for a trump promotion. So West was wrong also.

LAFF-A-DAY

Crowell cager inks with Lady Dusters.

Western Texas College women's basketball coach Kelly Chadwick has signed still another outstanding cage prospect for his 1991-92 squad. His latest acquisition is Crowell High School guard Tami Kajs (rhymes with josh). "She is a shooter," Chadwick stated. "The night I went to recruit her she scored 44 points. Her high game was the night before when she scored 52." Kajs was the team leader on a Crowell High squad that won the District 3-A title in 1990 and '91, were area champs the last three years and a regional semifinalist in 1989. The 5-5 guard was the loop's Most Valuable Player as a junior and senior, was selected all-region and second-team all-state as well as earning a berth in the state Class A track meet in the 300 meter hurdles.

"She has exceptional three-point shooting range," he continued. "Tami is also very quick, a good ball handler, with a quick release on her shot." "She has played mostly in a shooting guard position, however, I plan to play her at the point as well as the No. 2 guard. She has the tools and intelligence to become one of my all-time great point guards, which puts her in a very elite group of players." "Like most high school players, Tami will need work on her defense, her ball-handling skills and some time to step up her level of play and intensity to the college level. "I believe," he concluded, "that she can become an impact player as a freshman."

NEW ADDITION — Tami Kajs, seated, signs with coach Kelly Chadwick's Western Texas College Lady Dusters, recently. Kajs was an all-district, all region and second-team all-state performer at District 3-A champion Crowell High School as well as a multiple academic award winner. Chadwick looks on as the 5-5 guard signs on the dotted line. See related story this page. (Contributed photo)

Snyder all-stars play in nationals

GEORGETOWN, Tex. — Snyder's girls' Little Dribblers All-Stars will begin play in the national tournament here Wednesday. The 11-12 year-old Major All-Stars, coached by Jay Roemisch, Larry Braziel and Robbie Braziel, will take on host Georgetown No. 2 at 6 p.m. tomorrow. Snyder juniors, ages 8-10, will open Thursday competition with an 8 a.m. contest against Southwest Amarillo No. 2. Their coaches are Joe Roemisch and Glenna Barrow. A win by the Snyder Majors would have them facing the victor in the Borger No. 2-Levelland No. 1 opening round tilt, at 9:15 a.m. Thursday. A loss would pit them against the loser of the same game in an 11:45 a.m. Thursday elimination battle. Junior all-stars from Snyder would tangle with the Levelland No. 1-Georgetown No. 2 winner at 8 a.m. Friday with an opening round victory. The loser of the Snyder-Southwest Amarillo game will face the Borger No. 2-Weatherford loser at 3:30 p.m. Thursday. The championship game for juniors is set for 7:15 p.m. Saturday, followed at 8:30 p.m. by the major title tilt. Juniors competing for Snyder include Shanna Hall, Jennifer Roemisch, Terri Robinson, Laurie Huddleston, Jami Barrow, Erica Vasquez, Karley Collins, Mandy Hess, Leslie Daniell, Renee Trevino, Morgan Kelley and Amy Church. The majors' roster features Michelle Roemisch, Brandi Bates, Jamie Burleson, Sha Marric, Erin Maytubby, Kristy Bollinger, Brandy Gill, Halea Huestis, Darla Blackwell, Erica Garvin, Samantha Trevino and Joshelyn Helm.

Montreal replaces Buck Rodgers

MONTREAL (AP) — Buck Rodgers had an inkling his seven-year term as manager of the Montreal Expos was up when he learned general manager David Dombrowski was flying to Montreal. "I knew he wasn't coming to see us off on our road trip," Rodgers said of Dombrowski, who had been in West Palm Beach, Fla., with other Expos administrative personnel to prepare for Monday's draft of amateur players. Dombrowski's hastily arranged trip was a bad omen for Rodgers, who was called by Dombrowski and told that third base coach Tom Runnels would be replacing him at the helm of the struggling National League club. The Expos, with a 20-29 record, have lost 10 of their last 11 games and are 13 games behind the East Division-leading Pittsburgh Pirates, farther back than any club in major league baseball's four divisions.

Hearn wins light-heavyweight title

LAS VEGAS (AP) — The Hit Man became the Slick Man, and in the process became a world champion for the sixth time. Fighting as controlled a fight as he has in his 13-year pro career, Thomas Hearn turned back the clock and his critics Monday night to beat Virgil Hill on a 12-round unanimous decision and win the World Boxing Association version of the light heavyweight title. "This meant more to me than any fight in the world," said Hearn, who won his first title at 147 pounds when Jimmy Carter was still president. "I have to put this above my other titles. They all mean something to me, but this means a lot more."

Agassi races past Hlasek

PARIS (AP) — Andre Agassi, playing as if he had a plane to catch, raced to an emphatic 6-3, 6-1, 6-1 victory today over Jakob Hlasek to gain the semifinals of the French Open.

Agassi, a finalist last year and the No. 4 seed this year, disposed of the unseeded Swiss player in 1 hour, 15 minutes, the fastest victory of the week involving one of the top players.

In the semifinals, Agassi will play the winner of a match later today between second-seeded Boris Becker and 10th-seeded Michael Chang, the 1989 champion.

Trice coaching Detroit defense

Veteran Arenaball coach Jerry Trice, a native of Snyder, began the new season Friday night when the Detroit Drive trounced Denver, 31-13. Trice is the defensive coach for the defending champion Drive. He spent last season working with the Albany Firebirds of the new league after having spent 1989 with Detroit. The Snyder talent spent 15 years coaching high school football in Texas before beginning a five-year stint as head coach at Ranger Junior College in 1978. While at RJC Trice forged a 48-6 record which included a juco national title in 1979. He is a graduate of McMurry College in Abilene and holds a masters degree from Texas Tech.

Kajs averages a whopping 28 points per game while shooting 54 percent from the floor and 63 percent from the foul line. She also adds an average of five rebounds per game. "I feel extremely fortunate to have the opportunity to work with a young lady of the caliber of Tami Kajs," Chadwick bubbled. "She is an outstanding and talented young lady." Besides her basketball talents, Kajs will bring a grade point average of 94 to WTC's fall semester. She is a recent winner of the National English Merit Award, the National Mathematics Award as well as being listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students. Additionally, she is an International cheerleader and an international qualifier as a cheerleader and the winner of the Southwestern Rural Electric Association's Good Neighbor Youth Tour Essay contest. "Gary Miller, her high school coach, is very conscientious," Chadwick reported, "Therefore I know she has experienced good coaching."

Hearing will focus on property tax system

AUSTIN (AP) — The countywide property tax districts created by the state's new school finance law will be the focus of a court hearing that starts in two weeks, said lawyers who met with the judge overseeing the case.

Wealthy school districts have challenged the law, which is designed to shift hundreds of millions of dollars in local property tax revenue from wealthier to poorer school districts within the new education taxing districts, drawn largely along county lines.

"The issue that's going to be tried is the issue of the ad valorem (property) tax system as used in the statute, and whether that's constitutional or not," said Al Kauffman of the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, representing a group of poor school districts.

"That seems to be the guts of the issue that will be before the court," he said Monday.

The new law sets a minimum property tax for the countywide taxing regions to levy for public education.

The school districts also may tax more without sharing the revenue. The state will make up the difference, up to a certain level, if poor school districts cannot raise enough money through local taxes alone.

State District Judge F. Scott McCown has scheduled a hearing in the case to begin June 17.

The hearing should last about a week, said lawyers representing the state and wealthy and poor school districts.

School districts with high property wealth say the new law sets up an unconstitutional state property tax, and that it wrongly shifts funds from one school district to another.

The state will argue that the county education taxing districts are constitutional, said Gray McBride, a spokesman for Attorney General Dan Morales.

Kauffman also said the county taxing districts are constitutional.

But he added, "As far as whether the whole system is constitutional, we have no position yet. We're looking at that."

Kauffman said McCown will decide whether to consider if the state may constitutionally rely so heavily on local property taxes to support public schools. State money and some federal funds also go into public schools.

Some wealthy school districts say the funding system depends too much on local property taxes, and that it is not adequately financed.

If McCown looks at whether the state puts enough money into the school finance system, that would take another hearing, Kauffman said.

The state contends that the Legislature has the authority to determine the financial structure for public education, McBride said.

Kevin O'Hanlon, Texas Education Agency general counsel, said, "Basically, what we're telling McCown in blunt terms is if they (wealthy school districts) are right, they're asking the court to impose an income tax... If you can't use the ad valorem tax, there's only one game in town."

Wealthy school districts have asked that the state not use the new local property tax funding mechanism, but be required to finance schools at the same level as provided in the new law for next year. They have asked that state spending that is not constitutionally mandated be restricted until the school system is funded.

It is estimated the new law will cost $992 million to $2.1 billion more in local property taxes, and $1.3 billion in new state aid, over the next two years.

The new law was passed in response to a Texas Supreme Court order to even out education funding available to school districts. Unless overturned, it will replace the current finance system beginning in September.

The Supreme Court twice has unanimously ruled unconstitutional the current $14 billion-a-year system, which now includes large funding disparities because of school districts' use of their own property tax revenue.

Ag commissioner touts in-state processing

AUSTIN (AP) — A 12-city tour continued today as Agriculture Commissioner Rick Perry touted a drive toward in-state processing of state-grown crops and livestock.

"You'd give an A-plus to production agricultural, but you'd barely give a passing grade on our processing of agricultural products in the state of Texas," Perry said Monday at a news conference in Austin.

Perry launched the "Make it Texas" program designed to lure investors to build tanneries, fiber mills, packing facilities and processing plants.

"We can brag that we produce more cotton, cattle, goats, wool and mohair than any other state," Perry said. "But the bragging stops when it comes to processing those products and reaping the resulting profits."

For instance, he said, Texas boot makers currently import their leather from out of state.

Although Texas' $11 billion per year in agricultural sales leads the nation in the production of several commodities, only eight percent of those products are processed in Texas, he said.

The department has produced a seven-minute video to spread the message of Texas agriculture and labor to seminars and conventions throughout the world.

Perry said the Agriculture Department will assist in marketing surveys, and the issuance of $25 million in low-interest loans for the development of new agribusinesses.

He said the processing drive will also include local chambers of commerce and other business groups.

"By exporting our raw commodities, we are, in effect, exporting jobs, opportunities and dollars that otherwise would go into Texans' pocketbooks," Perry said. "It's time we kept our jobs at home."

Committee chairman C.G. Charles Scruggs of Austin, said, "We are raw products, economic slaves, profiting little from our abundant and efficient production."

Scruggs, the retired editor in chief of Progressive Farmer magazine, added, "We in Texas must begin to develop the means to turn a dollar's worth of raw corn, or cotton, or wool or wheat to 25 to a $100 of ready to eat, or ready to wear products."

After Austin, Perry planned visits to Houston, San Antonio, Fort Worth, Dallas, Tyler, San Angelo, Abilene, Lubbock, Amarillo, Waco and Mission.

Perry said the department has never had a more consolidated effort to increase processing, and that farmers and ranchers are now more alert for new opportunities since production levels are reaching their limit.

Perry also appointed a 14-member committee to help promote the program.

Class planned for wives

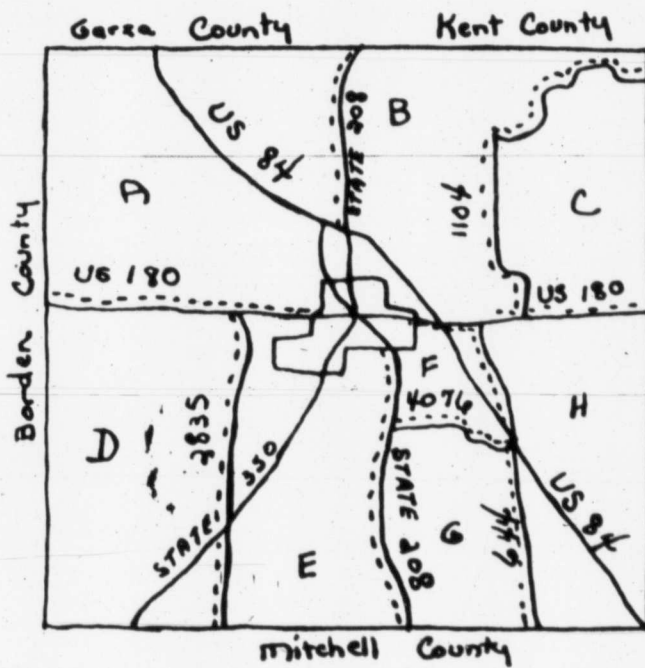

A classroom scout school for cotton farmers' wives will be held on Thursday, June 6, at 9 a.m. at the County Extension Office on 2605 Ave. M.

Mike Morrow, County Agricultural Agent, will discuss the cotton plant and how it develops, and Deanna Holladay, County Entomologist, will go over major insect pests and "beneficials" found in Scurry County cotton fields. The training should conclude by noon. In-field training will occur later. Participants in the classroom training will decide when that should occur. Farmers' sons or daughters interested in learning to scout are also welcome to attend.

Corn belt extremely wet

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite a huge mud hole in Iowa and some other places where too much rain has mired field work, the nation's corn planting is not so far off schedule as some might fear.

About 92 percent of the expected 1991 corn acreage was planted in the 17 major growing states by June 2, the Agriculture Department's weekly survey showed Monday. That compared with 87 percent a year ago and the longtime average of 95 per-

Manufacturers of products marketed as "fresh" learned last month that the U.S. Food and Drug Administration is getting serious about food labeling.

By November, the FDA will propose sweeping regulations that amount to the first major changes in food labeling in 20 years.

Products with labels that make glib claims using such terms as "light," "lite," "reduced," "low-fat," or "cholesterol-free," among others, will have to start backing them up when the FDA rules become final, likely by November 1992.

The new regulations, mandated by the Nutrition Labeling and Education Act of 1990, should benefit consumers the most. The new law requires that virtually all packaged foods contain nutrition information on the labels.

The FDA signaled in April that it will enforce the new food label rules on the books by seizing more than 2,400 cases of Citrus Hill Fresh Choice orange juice. The FDA complained that the product's manufacturer, Procter & Gamble, violated its policy that prohibits using "fresh" to describe processed orange juice.

Until now, nutrition labeling has been largely voluntary. The FDA required only that a label contain the name and address of the manufacturer and a list of all ingredients in descending order of weight. Calorie information was optional.

Once FDA regulations are implemented, consumers will be able to make better food choices, especially if they are on strict diets relating to health problems.

Required nutrition information will focus more on macro-nutrient data such as fat, calories and protein rather than on such micro-nutrients as vitamins and minerals. Labels will list serving size, number of servings and total calories, total fat, cholesterol, sodium, carbohydrates, sugars, fiber and other ingredients in each serving.

High-fiber claims would be prohibited under the law unless the food is also low in total fat. A health claim also is forbidden unless it is authorized by FDA regulation based on "significant, scientific agreement" supporting the claim.

For the first time, fresh fruits, vegetables and seafood will be labeled. Regulations will allow nutrition information to be provided at a single location at the point of sale and permit the information to be expressed as an average, or range per serving.

Under the new law, FDA may allow a statement on the absence of cholesterol in a product, but only if it would help consumers maintain healthy diets. However, claims of "no cholesterol" won't be allowed in products that do not contain cholesterol to begin with.

Plant clinic tour planned

A plant clinic tour will be conducted by the Scurry County extension service on Monday, June 10, beginning at 9:30 a.m.

Dr. Pat Morrison, extension entomologist, and Dr. Roland Roberts, extension vegetable specialist, will be present to assist with the tour.

Purpose of the tour is to assist homeowners with plant problems — including problems with trees, lawns, ornamental shrubs and gardens.

To be included on the tour, persons should contact the extension office at 573-5423 before 5 p.m. on Thursday, June 6.

Persons should leave name, address, phone number and your particular plant problem. There will be a limited number of time slots available.

When Gift Has a Personal Touch, Deliver It in Person

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1991 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: About 12 years ago, I gave a beautiful handmade quilt to my nephew and his wife as their wedding gift. I made it myself, and everyone who saw it said it was a work of art.

I did not deliver it myself. Another relative carried it to my nephew's home. I got a thank-you for the gift, but it was not said that the gift was a handmade quilt.

To make a long story short, a few months ago I was at this nephew's home and I saw the quilt hanging on a quilt stand in their bedroom. I asked who made the stand and my nephew's wife said, "My brother made the stand, and my grandmother made the quilt."

I asked, "Where is the one I gave you?" She said, "This is the only one we have."

Now, the grandmother has lived with that lie on her conscience all these years — letting people believe that she made it when she knows perfectly well that I made it.

My advice to anyone who has a nice gift to give: Deliver it yourself! And, Abby, don't you think somebody owes me an apology?

STILL HURT IN OHIO

DEAR STILL HURT: Good advice! But it wouldn't hurt to have enclosed a gift card with the quilt with a brief message: "Made with love from Aunt () to ()."

Since this is irritating you, why don't you set the record straight and tell your nephew and his wife that you made the quilt that was delivered to them by another relative, who took the credit for having made it?

DEAR ABBY: The copy of "Please God, I'm Only 17" appeared in today's Chicago Tribune, and its appearance was very timely. Just yesterday, I confiscated my 17-year-old son's driver's license after overhearing a conversation with a friend in which he boasted of doing 60 in a 45-mile zone on a small residential country road. (I didn't know yet how long I would keep it or what else I might have him do in order to make an impression.)

I decided upon the following course of action after reading your column. I clipped it and gave it to him with the following:

"Dear John: When you copy this little piece, 'Please God, I'm Only 17,' 25 times in your neatest writing and on good paper, and prominently display all 25 copies in your bedroom (nope, make an extra two copies, one for each car), you may have your license back. John, this is called tough love. Remember it. You may have to use it some day with one of your own children. I love you. Mom"

Thanks, Abby.

Nurse imprisoned for taking prescription

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — An Air Force nurse may give birth to her first child in a Texas jail because she took a pair of 2-year-old prescription pain pills for a bruised hip.

Capt. Carla Lancaster was charged last fall with stealing and using drugs taken from the hospital where she worked. A court martial last month cleared the former Basehor, Kan., woman of a theft allegation and a charge of wrongful drug use.

But Lancaster, 27, was sentenced to six months in prison for using oxycodone, an ingredient in the prescription painkiller Tylox. She is serving time in San Antonio, Texas.

Lancaster, who is four months pregnant, said the pills she took were left from a prescription she received after her wisdom teeth were removed in April 1988.

Authorities at Lackland Air Force Base in San Antonio charge that she is a victim of her own drug use, not military intolerance.

"It looks like we convicted this pregnant, young captain of using her own medicine," said Lt. Col. Johnny Whitaker, an Air Force spokesman at Lackland. "There's an awful lot more to this case than you see on the surface."

Her defenders contend that Lancaster is a scapegoat for the Air Force's inability to keep its narcotics under lock and key.

Air Force officials said they are restricted in what they reveal about the case during the appeal process but more incriminating evidence will come to light with publication of the court-martial transcript.

Meanwhile, Carla Lancaster has been discharged from the military. Her husband, Jack Lancaster, said another week or so without her paycheck could bankrupt the couple. He is a medical assistant studying to become a teacher.

Her parents, Carl and Margaret Moses of Basehor, can hardly believe what's happening to their daughter.

"They're locking her up for taking two pills that were prescribed for her," Margaret Moses said. "Does that make any sense?"

U.S. Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., is chairman of the House Government Operations Committee, which oversees military hospitals. He recently called for the General Accounting Office and the Pentagon's inspector general to study Lancaster's case.

Carla Lancaster hurt her hip last summer after tripping in her apartment and banging the hip on a kitchen counter. About a month later, the hip still hurt and she took the painkillers she had left over from having her wisdom teeth removed.

Later that morning of Sept. 27, 1990, she went to work her 12-hour shift at Wilford Hall Air Force Medical Center in San Antonio.

Early in the shift, authorities learned that syringes of the painkiller Demerol on Lancaster's ward had been drained and refilled with saline solution.
