Texan killed

ASPEN, Colo. (AP) — A 21-year-old Texan was killed Friday morning in a car accident near Aspen.

The Colorado State Patrol said that Grady Stowe of Vernon, Texas, died at 1:15 a.m. at the accident site.

Stowe was in a car being driven by 19-year-old Chad Scheider of Grand Junction, Colo. The car went airborne off the left side of the road and collided with two large spruce trees. The vehicle landed on its roof and rolled twice before coming to rest on its wheels.

The driver was taken to the Aspen Valley Hospital with multiple fractures.

"He's there for his retirement physical," said Maj. Mike Doble, a Defense Department spokesman.

Cable firm wanting to limit MTV to those who request it

by The Associated Press

TCA Management Company, a Texas-based cable company which counts Snyder residents among its 420,000 subscribers, is attempting to work a deal that would allow more flexibility with regard to its distribution of MTV.

Fred Nichols, president of TCA Management Co., says his company's dispute with MTV is about consumer sensitivity — not censorship.

"We don't have a problem with MTV or the contents. It's just that we operate in communities where we feel the content isn't suitable to all the customers we serve," said Nichols.

TCA wants to work out a deal that would allow MTV to remain in the basic cable package for subscribers who request the music channel. Those who don't want MTV would not receive it.

Nichols said Monday that hundreds of TCA subscribers in Texas, Arkansas, Idaho, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri and New Mexico have complained about some of the videos shown on MTV.

The music channel has been criticized in the past for videos depicting violence and scantily-clad performers.

The current contract between TCA and MTV expires June 30. Nichols said he hopes to reach a settlement with the New York-based company in the next two or three days.

"Basically, we're still talking to MTV and trying to work out a solution that would be in our best interests," he said.

Nichols said TCA isn't trying to censor MTV or have it removed from other cable systems. But he said his company has to be responsive to its customers.

"We have enough comments from customers to make it a problem to us. We're just trying to be responsive to our communities," he said.

Nichols, who declined to discuss any of the specifics being negotiated, said TCA's only options now are to distribute MTV to all its customers or none of them.

TCA, which is headquartered in Tyler, serves about 420,000 subscribers.

Audit team report expected to locate about $5.3 billion

AUSTIN (AP) — State Comptroller John Sharp will outline a plan to find $5.3 billion for budget-strapped lawmakers, it was reported today.

The Austin American-Statesman said the plan to be made public Wednesday would include massive agency consolidations, more federal aid and higher fees for state services.

Sources close to the audit team being led by Sharp previously have said he would propose up to $4 billion in savings, and the American-Statesman reported that another $1.3 billion in revenue would be revealed, mostly from increased federal grants.

The newspaper said the reorganization of state agencies would cost about 1,400 state employees their jobs but create 341 new positions. Hardest hit would be transportation and general government.

The audit is being prepared for the July 8 special legislative session to address a projected $4.7 billion budget shortfall to continue the current level of services.

Meanwhile, House budget writers composing a state spending plan for 1992-93 have treated state colleges and universities much better than public schools.

"Generally speaking this time around we treated higher educa-

Martial law to end; tribunals to disband

KUWAIT CITY (AP) — Kuwait announced today that it will lift martial law on Wednesday and disband special tribunals that sentenced nearly 30 people to death for allegedly collaborating with Iraqi occupiers.

The end of martial law will be an important step toward returning Kuwait to normal following the Persian Gulf War.

The law, in effect since U.S.-led allied soldiers forced Iraqi troops from Kuwait in late February, will expire Wednesday, Justice Minister Ghazi Obeid al-Sammar said in an interview at his home. "It was extended for a month, it won't be extended again," al-Sammar said.

The martial-law courts, which have been widely criticized by international human rights groups and Western governments, will be disbanded and the remaining cases sent to the general prosecutor for redistribution to the regular court system, the justice minister said.

The sentences that have been returned by the martial-law courts since they began work May 19 would remain in effect, he said.

Some 325 of 450 defendants have already been tried in the martial-law courts, with 29 condemned to death.

Under martial law, public assembly was banned and alleged collaborators with Iraqi forces during Baghdad's seven-month occupation were tried in special courts without the right to appeal. The trials have been widely criticized as unfair by international human rights groups and foreign countries.

Normal criminal courts offer more protection of defendants' rights, giving them greater access to counsel and the right to appeal convictions.

Kuwait's royal family has been criticized by opposition groups and others for moving too slowly to rebuild the country after Iraq's ruinous occupation and for failing to institute democratic reforms.

Local officials urge caution, supervision when using fireworks

With the recent surge in patriotism across the nation, city officials are anticipating a big July 4th celebration but urge residents to use caution when celebrating with fireworks.

City ordinances prohibit the sell and exhibition of fireworks within the city limits, and officials said that setting off firecrackers should be done outside the city limits.

Fire Chief Terry Don McDowell said children should always be supervised in the presence of fireworks and individuals should never hold them in hand when igniting. Fireworks should not be set off in a crowd or near homes with wood-shingle roofs.

Those setting off fireworks should be aware of their surroundings and present weather conditions such as wind velocity and direction and firecrackers should never be aimed at another person, said McDowell.

McDowell added that the recent rains should help curb grass fires related to fireworks.

Police officials note it is a Class C misdemeanor to set off the explosives in the city, punishable with a fine up to $200. Officials further explain that any other damage to property or any bodily injury to an individual could result in other criminal or civil charges.

City police and fire officials have the authority to confiscate firecrackers.

Local fireworks stands were able to officially open for business today and can remain open until midnight July 4, according to state regulations.

Kurt Mabry and Pat Sweeney of Petersburg have a stand along 37th St. and hope the recent wet conditions and a renewed patriotism will boost fireworks sales. They say they usually caution their customers — especially the younger ones — about potential dangers.

Sweeney said they are not (see FIREWORKS, page 8)

Assault charges are filed

A 36-year-old Snyder man held in county jail on an attempted murder warrant filed assault charges Monday against his alleged victim.

Richard Rios, who along with 28-year-old Elisello Usevio Delao was arrested last weekend on a warrant for attempted murder, filed the charges against Joe Martinez. Rios has been held in Scurry County Jail on $50,000 bond since his arrest Friday afternoon. Monday, he contacted Snyder police at 2 p.m. to file Class A assault charges against Martinez.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Many Americans seem to live beyond their seams."

Summer is shirt tail-out weather.

We know one young mother who was asperated by her son's inability to keep the tail of his shirt tucked inside his pants. She tried everything, but it either worked out or he pulled it out when he got out of sight of his home.

The mother was dumping her frustrations on a friend whose two sons had always appeared properly groomed. Their shirt tails had never flapped in the winds.

She wanted to know her friend's secret. "Oh, it's simple," the more experienced mother explained. "I just sewed lace on their shirt tails."

Communispond, Inc., a communications consultant for business did a survey of corporate words that are overused. Ninety-two percent of those surveyed said the following words and phrases are ones they would most like to see removed from the business vocabulary.

To make a point, the company put some of the words in a memo:

Your new "agenda": Be "proactive" and "interface" with customers. Start "networking." "Finalize" sales. Rack up the "done deals" that "impact" the bottom line.

"Vis-a-vis" our competitors. We've got "world-class," "state-of-the-art," "user-friendly" products. That's our "competitive edge."

We've also got the "know-how" for a "major break-through" to put us on the "fast-track" to a "win-win situation." We need your "hands-on input," so "start the dialogue" now. Putting it off is a "no-brainer."

Tape: woman tries to suffocate infant

HOUSTON (AP) — A woman arrested on two counts of injury to a child is suspected of having Munchausen's Syndrome by proxy, a condition where parents cause the illness in a child to gain sympathy or to draw attention to themselves, officials say.

Authorities said they used a video camera hidden in a hospital room to twice record the woman placing her hand over her 7-month-old infant's face in what authorities say was an effort to suffocate the infant.

Cathy Lanell Knighton, 23, was arrested Monday in connection with the incidents earlier this month at Texas Children's Hospital, where the infant was admitted for apnea, a disorder in which breathing ceases.

Ms. Knighton, an unmarried mother of three children, was charged with two counts of injury to a child. Bond was set at $20,000.

Officials said Ms. Knighton currently is undergoing psychological evaluation and is suspected of having Munchausen's Syndrome by proxy, a condition where parents cause the illness in a child to gain sympathy or to draw attention to themselves.

The child is in the custody of Harris County Children's Protective Services.

Dr. Ralph Feigin, physician-in-chief at Texas Children's, said the mother had been bringing the child to the hospital since her birth because of seizures and apnea. She was admitted most recently on May 27. After numerous tests, doctors could find no medical reason for the condition.

Officials put the hidden surveillance system in place after they became suspicious because the child's breathing problems occurred mostly when her mother was in the room. Authorities said the first incident was recorded on June 13.

"On the tape you can clearly see (Ms. Knighton) place her hand over the child's mouth and push down," said Sgt. Bill Stoney of the Houston Police Department's juvenile division.

The action triggered a monitor and the woman removed her hand.

"Then you see the medical staff come in," he said.

San Angelo man wants to donate 'real' Texas armadillos to nat'l zoo

SAN ANGELO, Texas (AP) — Armadillo connoisseur Sam Lewis was distressed to learn that two less-than-Texan armadillos were passed off as natives of the Lone Star State during the recent Texas Festival in Washington.

So the San Angelo entrepreneur, who has helped place Texas armadillos in zoos around the world, has offered to send two true-blue Texas 'dillos to the National Zoo.

A pair of six-banded armadillos presented to the National Zoo earlier this month to inaugurate the Texas Festival at the Kennedy Center proved to be impostors. The armadillos, which hailed from Central America, were presented as "a symbol of the uniqueness and charm of Texas."

Last week, Lewis wrote President Bush, offering to correct the error "in the interest of Texas authenticity."

"Real Texas armadillos — which have nine bands — must have been hurt to see a ... cousin from Central America in the National Zoo," he wrote.

Substituting a Central American 'dillo for a Texan type "is like passing a zebra off for a quarter horse," he said.

Lewis hasn't heard back from Bush or the zoo.

William Xanten, curator of small mammals at the zoo, said the zoo didn't have the facilities to exhibit the nine-banded armadillo.

The nine-banded version is nocturnal, meaning that the zoo would have to exhibit the Texas armadillo under reverse lighting. The zoo's small mammal house is not equipped to do so, Xanten said.

Colombians market cocaine like fast-food franchises

NEW YORK (AP) — Colombian drug dealers ran their U.S. marketing operations like a fast-food chain, giving managers responsibility for franchises, investigators said in announcing the indictment of 50 suspects.

Authorities seized more than six tons of cocaine in New York and five tons in Texas and Florida during the six-year investigation by city, state and federal authorities, Gov. Mario Cuomo said Monday.

The investigation revealed the structure of the Cali drug cartel, officials said.

"It is structured as a classic franchise business, but instead of a variety of hamburgers or gallons of ice cream, the cartel deals in tons upon tons of cocaine," said Ronald Goldstock, director of the state Organized Crime Task Force.

The top figure indicted was Jaime Orjuela, identified as the director of the Cali cartel's New York operations. He and several others are in Colombia, beyond the reach of extradition, said state police Superintendent Thomas Constantine.

Orjuela, his brothers Henry and Gilberto, and 17 others were charged with sale and possession of cocaine. The charge carries a maximum sentence of 25 years to life in prison.

A second indictment accused 28 other people of sale or possession, or both.

A third indictment accused two men of illegal weapons possession.

Twenty of those indicted had been arrested by Monday.

The cartel, believed to control 80 percent of the New York cocaine market, is "a highly organized institution every bit as effective as a Fortune 500 company," Constantine said.

Orjuela's immediate subordinates are called managers, authorities said.

"Each manager is responsible for a number of franchises," Goldstock said. "The franchise, or customer group, leaders, placed orders by telephone or fax to Orjuela or his staff, including his brothers, at Cali headquarters."

Determining severity of leukemia

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Earlier this year you discussed leukemia, stating it is to most people synonymous with "cancer" of the blood, a dangerous malignancy leading to early death. Is leukemia always cancerous?

DEAR READER: Leukemia is defined as "a progressive, malignant disease of the blood-forming organs." Therefore, by definition, leukemia is a form of cancer that is fatal if untreated.

Now the good news. If there has ever been a revolution in the treatment of cancer, leukemia is it. Many types are not only controllable, but curable, with modern chemotherapy (drug treatment) and radiotherapy (X-ray treatment). In particular, childhood leukemia often has a favorable prognosis and is no longer the dreaded malignancy it once was.

Furthermore, leukemia (like other cancers) shows wide variation in severity and progression. For example, acute non-lymphocytic leukemias are exceedingly dangerous, require strong drugs for control and often cause early death. On the other hand, patients with chronic lymphocytic leukemia may require intermittent, mild therapy and usually live for many years. Thus, the prognosis varies, depending on the type of leukemia. The disease is always serious, but always treatable and often curable. In my opinion, all leukemia patients should be under the care of hematologists.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Blood — AIDS." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Just prior to and during my menstrual period, I crave sex. Although this is certainly not a problem to my husband, I'm very concerned.

DEAR READER: Many healthy people experience cyclic intensification of libido (sexual interest). This is probably due to normal hormonal fluctuations.

Most readers may be surprised to learn that men produce small amounts of female hormone (estrogen) and women produce small amounts of male hormone (testosterone). In general, it's the testosterone that causes an increase in sexual interest.

Therefore, at certain times during their menstrual cycles (when estrogen levels are at their lowest), women may be aware of more libido. This is normal and does not indicate that these women are unhealthy. Increased libido is also associated with one's emotional state, such as comfort with a partner (a strong emotional attachment) and lack of fear of becoming pregnant.

Women who receive supplemental testosterone (as prescribed medicine for medical conditions, such as cancer of the reproductive tract) almost always feel an increased libido, other things being equal. Conversely, men who receive estrogen-like drugs (for conditions such as prostatic growths) invariably notice less sex drive.

Therefore, your cyclic craving for sex has a normal physiologic basis. You can count yourself lucky. In my experience, most people are more concerned about lack of sexual interest than too much. I suggest you stop worrying about your variation in libido, buy some fancy underwear and have a blast.

Polly's Pointer's by Polly Fisher

DEAR POLLY — What is the best way to keep dried herbs and spices fresh? — MRS. A.R.

DEAR MRS. A.R. — Although they are long-lasting, dried herbs and spices do deteriorate with time, becoming less flavorful and less aromatic as they age. Most authorities recommend keeping dried herbs and spices only one year before replenishing the spice cabinet with a fresh supply. However, I've found that many keep longer than that; just check them periodically to see if they are still full-flavored and fragrant.

Dried herbs and spices keep best stored in a cool, dark place. Keep them in dark-colored glass jars or in cans to keep out the light. Don't store them near the stove or oven or near other heat-producing appliances.

For really long-term storage or to keep spices and herbs at their absolute freshest, store them in the freezer, well-wrapped or bottled to prevent moisture from contaminating them. — POLLY

RECIPE OF THE WEEK — Vegetable gardens are starting to produce their bountiful harvest of summer vegetables. If you grow zucchini, I'm sure you can use another zucchini recipe to cope with the bounty. Try this zucchini pizza for a family pleaser.

Lightly salt 3½ cups coarsely grated zucchini (about 4 medium-sized zucchini) and let stand for 15 minutes. Squeeze out the excess moisture. Combine the zucchini with 2 beaten eggs, ½ cup flour, ½ cup grated Parmesan, ½ cup grated mozzarella and a little salt and pepper to taste. Spread this mixture into a greased 9-by-13 inch baking pan. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 20 to 25 minutes or until the surface is firm and dry. Spread a very small amount of olive oil over the surface and broil for five minutes. Cover this crust with 8 ounces tomato sauce and 1 cup grated mozzarella. Sprinkle lightly with a little dried oregano. Bake the pizza for 25 minutes at 350 degrees. Cut into squares and serve hot. Delicious!

If you'd like more ways to use your summer vegetable harvest, you'll appreciate the recipes and ideas in my newsletter, "Vegetable Varieties," featuring such tasty dishes as stuffed eggplant, squash fans with herb butter, old-fashioned corn fritters, gazpacho and more. Hooked on new movie

NEW YORK (AP) — Harrison Ford says the script for "Regarding Henry" hooked him the first time he read it, even though it had little in common with the adventure movies for which he's known.

"I had such a strong emotional reaction to the material, the story, the characters. ... I spend my whole life operating on the premise that if it moves me, it'll move them," said the star of the blockbuster "Star Wars" and Indiana Jones movies.

Ford plays a rich, arrogant lawyer who is shot during a robbery. After three weeks in a coma, he can't walk or talk and has no memory.

nents cannot run to another, more successful contract.

Doubling for one down is rarely a good idea. When declarers are warned about bad breaks, they will often play the cards a trick better. Note the debacle that befell East in today's deal.

Why did South run from four spades doubled when he had three trumps? Because East doubled with a thunderous voice. It was clear four spades wasn't going to make; maybe five clubs would.

Study the diagram and decide whether you would prefer to declare or defend.

West led the diamond king, which declarer won with dummy's ace, East signaling with his nine. Declarer drew trumps and then led the heart queen. West won with the ace, cashed his diamond trick and returned a heart. Declarer claimed, discarding his spade losers on dummy's K-10 of hearts.

The play contained several errors. If only East had retained the diamond nine, West could have underled his diamond honors at trick six to put his partner on lead. Then a switch to the spade king drives out dummy's entry before the hearts have been unblocked. However, South avoids this consequence by ducking the opening lead.

So you should declare? No! Suppose West leads a low diamond at trick one. Now East must get on play with the diamond nine for the killing spade switch.

The fortissimo double

By Phillip Alder

Openers at Wimbledon are rained out

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Instead of Andre Agassi and Jennifer Capriati, they got hours of rain and a bomb scare. But what the 26,000 Wimbledon fans did not get was a refund.

"I think we should get half our money back at least," said Sybil Stanton. "We spent hours and hours sitting in a marquee and it was just like being in an airport waiting lounge, with people even lying on the floor."

The fans, some of whom camped out overnight and then paid up to $26 a ticket, huddled under umbrellas all afternoon Monday as rain washed out the 66 scheduled matches on Wimbledon's opening day.

As dusk fell, they were ushered off Centre Court while authorities examined a suspicious package that proved to be harmless.

And they were told there would be no refunds, though ticket-holders on Centre Court and Court 1 will be given priority to buy similar tickets for next year's opening day.

The person who lost the most money Monday at Wimbledon, however, was Monica Seles.

Gerry Smith, executive director of the Women's Tennis Association, said the top-ranked Seles will be fined $6,000 for her late withdrawal from the year's third Grand Slam tournament.

Smith said WTA officials still do not know the exact nature of the injury that forced Seles to drop out last Friday. He said her agent, International Management Group, has been asked for a medical certificate specifying the problem.

The players didn't make out much better, spending the day chatting and killing time in their cafeteria and trying to ignore the abysmal weather.

"It's not an exciting day, is it?" asked men's top seed Stefan Edberg, who munched on scones and tea while his match against Switzerland's Marc Rosset was being rained out. "There's nothing you can do. I'm just sitting around waiting."

It was the 26th day washed out completely since Wimbledon began in 1877. Four other opening days have been wiped out — in 1888, 1903, 1969 and 1987.

And the London Weather Center had little encouragement for the next few days.

"It looks like another wet day Tuesday," a forecaster said. "I think it's unlikely that Wednesday and Thursday will be as wet, but there will still be some showers around."

London bookies dropped odds from 50-1 to 40-1 on bets that rain will interrupt or prevent every day's play on Centre Court during the two-week tournament.

Agassi, who had been scheduled to play Canadian Grant Connell on Monday, now will have to wait until at least Wednesday to show off his summer fashion line.

The flamboyant American, whose only other Wimbledon appearance ended in a first-round loss in 1987, has hinted he will abide by the All England Club's policy of "predominantly white" outfits.

Capriati also had her match against Shaun Stafford put off until at least Wednesday.

Hornets mum about No. 1 draft choice

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (AP) — Allan Bristow, who isn't saying it will be Larry Johnson that the Charlotte Hornets will take with the No. 1 draft pick, is making it clear that they are getting the player he favors.

"We're going to get the player we want," the team's player personnel director said. "There's no doubt in my mind this guy is the best player in the draft, not just for us but the best overall."

But Bristow and Hornets coach Gene Littles weren't unified Monday in separate interviews with reporters.

The first disagreement concerned a meeting last week when Littles, Bristow, Hornets owner George Shinn and other team officials discussed their draft choice.

While Bristow said it did not come down to a vote, Littles described it as a democratic system. "If Allan is outvoted, he has to go with it," he said.

Littles even joked that owner Shinn only had one vote and used it only as a "tiebreaker."

Bristow said the Hornets have reached a decision on who they will pick in a draft that lacks a true franchise player like David Robinson or Patrick Ewing.

"We've made our decision, but as far as letting the cat out of the bag you'll have to wait until Wednesday," he said.

Littles surprised Hornets management over the weekend when he was quoted by two newspapers as saying that he preferred to select Syracuse's Billy Owens.

Vikes, Walker come to terms

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. (AP) — The Minnesota Vikings paid a heavy price to get Herschel Walker. When it came to keeping him, they were more thrifty.

Walker, acquired two years ago for eight draft choices and five players, agreed to a one-year contract with the Vikings on Monday, ending months of sometimes acrimonious negotiations.

Vikings vice president Jeff Diamond, who negotiated the deal, would not say how much the former All-Pro runner will be paid. Neither Walker nor his Cleveland-based agent, Peter Johnson, could be reached for comment.

The Star Tribune of Minneapolis and the Saint Paul Pioneer Press reported in today's editions that NFL sources estimated the value of Walker's contract at between $1.6 million and $1.9 million.

The resolution "was partially a realization of theirs that we were not going to pay $2.25 million, even if we went to arbitration and we lost," Diamond said.

"Everybody reached the conclusion that it wasn't in anybody's best interest to go to arbitration or litigation. Everybody wanted to get it resolved."

Cards bop Rotan; face Cubs in final

The Hamlin Cardinals earned a spot in tonight's finals of the County Little League Baseball Tournament by handing the Rotan Rebels a 21-7 loss Monday night.

Damon Moore took the win from the mound for Hamlin, striking out 14 and allowing just 5 hits on the evening.

Offensive support came from Shawn Andrus, who had two doubles and a single, Chaz Shira, who punched a two-sacker and two base hits and Josh Hudson, who doubled and singled for the winners.

Lloyd Woodruff smacked a double and Colby Freeman knocked two singles for the Cardinals.

Mikeal Harrison ripped a two-sacker and a single to pace the Rotan attack. Alan Martinez singled twice and losing pitcher Ray Yanez added a triple.

Hamlin will tangle with the Snyder Cubs in tonight's championship game.

The Cubs advanced into the final with a 10-8 victory over Colorado City Saturday.

Patrick Jordan for Snyder and Shira for Hamlin are the projected starters for tonight's battle.

Game time is 7 p.m. at Logan Field in Towle Park.

Kurds plan meeting on Saddam's conditions

SHAQLAWA, Iraq (AP) — In exchange for Kurdish autonomy, Saddam Hussein has demanded a promise from the long-repressed ethnic group that it cut direct ties with the West and help him fight the Shiites, Kurdish leaders say.

The previously secret demands represent a key obstacle to an accord on Kurdish autonomy, the leaders say.

The disclosure cast doubt on the prospects for an early agreement.

On Sunday, Masoud Barzani, the leader of the biggest Kurdish group, said an accord was imminent.

Mahmoud Osman, general secretary of the Kurdistan Socialist Party, said Monday that representatives of Saddam's government set out the new conditions in a document submitted to Kurdish negotiators in early June.

The Kurdistan Socialist Party is a member of the eight-party Kurdistan Front.

In the document, Osman said, government officials urged Kurdish forces to help suppress uprisings and demonstrations against the ruling Baath Party.

Pro-Iranian Shiite parties and pro-Syrian groups were mentioned specifically, said Sami Abd al-Rahman, a top negotiator for the front and chief of the Popular Democracy Party of Kurdistan.

Negotiations on a Kurdish autonomy zone in Iraq have been going on in Baghdad since April, when Saddam halted his bloody crackdown on the Kurds' rebellion and allied military troops entered northern Iraq.

While many Kurdish leaders said they remained optimistic that an agreement could be reached with Baghdad, they played down the enthusiasm expressed by Barzani, who heads the Democratic Party of Kurdistan.

Barzani says Baghdad has agreed to elections in the northern Kurdish region within three months and nationwide within a year.

News of the secret Iraqi demands highlighted differences between Barzani and Jalal Talabani, head of the Patriotic Union of Kurdistan.

Talabani returned Monday to this mountain resort town near the Iranian border after a trip to Turkey. He strongly opposes Saddam's demands and says he is willing to prolong talks with the Iraqi government for "months and months" to avoid such an agreement.

"The obligations and conditions are terrible," said Talabani. "No Kurd can accept it."

In the coming days, he said, he will meet Barzani and other members of the Kurdistan Front to discuss Saddam's new demands, which have emerged as the main stumbling block to an agreement on Kurdish autonomy in Iraq.

Negotiations will then continue with Baghdad, Kurdish leaders said.

According to Kurdish negotiators, Saddam made three key demands.

First, the Kurdistan Front would be obliged to support the 1968 revolution that swept the Baath Party to power.

Second, the front would need the permission of the Baath Party to contact outside governments and organizations, including Western aid groups.

"Saddam wants to isolate the Kurds from their friends and all their points of strength," Osman said. "He wants us to be alone."

Finally, the front would be obliged to work with the Baath Party against any of its enemies and to condemn Iran, Iraq's enemy in the 1980-88 war.

"When there are uprisings, demonstrations, confusion against the Baath, we would be obliged to take our guns and kill," said the Kurdish leader who received the document from Iraqi authorities.

He spoke on condition of anonymity.

Boost in higher education funding sought

law passed by the Legislature to equalize education funding.

Williamson who pushed for the reduced funding in public schools said he was sick of pouring more money into the system. But other lawmakers said the reduction would hurt the state's ability to defend its remedy to school finance reforms ordered by the Texas Supreme Court.

Under the plan, higher education funding would increase $384 million over the 1992-93 budget period.

Public school funding would increase about $200 million, but that is more than $1 billion less than required by the law adopted earlier this year for school finance reform.

Committee members said another budget recommendation they made would reduce by $200 million the amount needed to continue current services provided by the Texas Department of Human Services.

Coupled with the reduction, the committee granted DHS broad authority in determining how its appropriation would be spent.

against Martinez stem from a June 2 altercation at 2007 Ave. L which occurred between 8:30 p.m. and 9 p.m. According to police reports, a fight broke out and Martinez was allegedly beaten with a baseball bat. At the time Martinez refused treatment and did not file a complaint. His condition grew worse, however, and he was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by private vehicle at 10 p.m. He was treated for head injuries and transferred to University Medical Center in Lubbock at 1 a.m. on June 3.

Martinez, 37, has since been released from the hospital and is recovering at home.

Damage from Kuwaiti oil fires said likely confined to region

WASHINGTON (AP) — The hazards posed by the smoke from burning Kuwaiti oil wells seem likely to be limited to the Persian Gulf region, says a panel of atmospheric scientists organized by the National Science Foundation.

"We expect some regional effects on the weather, but the preliminary findings thus far do not suggest that there will be major disruptions to global weather or climate," Robert Corell of the NSF said Monday.

Two teams of scientists said they were surprised by several of their findings in studies of the smoke cloud, and concluded that the danger is small outside the region.

But "the final word has yet to be said about what the impact is," cautioned Dr. Sylvia Earle, chief scientist for the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

In addition to the fires, spilled oil is polluting the land and sea in the region, she noted.

"This is as close as I would like to get to Hell," Dr. Peter Hobbs of the University of Washington said of the research.

Hobbs and Dr. Larry Radke of the National Center for Atmospheric Research in Boulder, Colo., led two teams of atmospheric scientists who studied the effects of the several hundred oil fires set by Iraqi forces before they were driven out of Kuwait.

The fires have produced a smoke plume stretching several hundred miles across the area. If the same fires were centered in Manhattan, the smoke would extend all the way past Florida, they said.

Dr. George Ullrich of the Defense Nuclear Agency said the findings "suggest a substantially more benign environment" than has been predicted by groups warning of the so-called nuclear winter.

The theory of nuclear winter holds that soot and dust thrown into the atmosphere by a nuclear war would block the sun, cool the planet and cause an onset of winter, destroying crops and leading to starvation and death.

Early speculation that the massive oil fires in Kuwait could lead to a similar situation are proving unfounded, the scientists said.

Soot and smoke from the blazes are rising only 12,000 to 15,000 feet into the atmosphere, Radke said. At that low level, the pollutants tend to drop out of the air fairly quickly, he said.

In order to spread out worldwide, the smoke would have to rise into the stratosphere, about 35,000 feet high, he said.

In addition, Hobbs said tests have found that the soot particles produced by the fires absorb water, a surprise to scientists who had expected the soot to repel water.

That is good news because it means that soot particles become the centers of raindrops and fall out of the air rather rapidly, Hobbs said. If they repelled water the particles would be able to stay airborne much longer.

Hobbs said the smoke from the fires is not as black as had been expected. Indeed, he said, some fires are actually producing white smoke, but the scientists could not explain why.

The paler smoke means less sunlight is blocked, although the skies in the region are maintaining a gray pall.

Hobbs said this apparently has had a local cooling effect, with Bahrain experiencing its coolest May in 35 years, at an average temperature more than 7 degrees Fahrenheit below normal.

Dr. Alan Bandy of Drexel University said he found less sulfur dioxide in the smoke than anticipated and that the smoke plume dilutes very quickly, reducing its chemical hazards.

Year-round classes

AUSTIN (AP) — Year-round elementary and middle school classes are likely to be tried in 25 to 50 Texas school districts this fall, an assistant education commissioner said.

There are financial advantages to using school buildings all year long, especially for fast-growing districts running short on space.

But most officials examining year-round school are attracted by the touted educational benefits of giving students several short breaks, rather than one long summer vacation, said Julian Shaddix, Texas Education Agency assistant commissioner for school administration.

'Robin Hood,' summer's first movie hit, defies its critics

NEW YORK (AP) — The wedding's off, and now Julia Roberts' Hollywood honeymoon is over, too.

Kevin Costner, meanwhile, is riding high.

Miss Roberts' new movie, "Dying Young," did just that. Considered within the industry one of the summer movie season's likely hits, "Dying Young" was killed in its debut by Costner in "Robin Hood: Prince of Thieves."

"Robin Hood" was the nation's most popular movie for the second week in a row, Exhibitor Relations Co. reported Monday. With $57.5 million in the bank to date, the adventure film stands out as the season's first real smash.

"Dying Young," on the other hand, opened in fourth place with thin ticket sales of $9.7 million and probably won't be around for long.

The maudlin story of a leukemia patient (Campbell Scott) and his nurse-lover (Miss Roberts) was savaged by the critics and is getting lousy word of mouth.

Executives at 20th Century Fox, the film's maker, did not immediately return calls Monday for comment on the film's lackluster performance.

Miss Roberts is Hollywood's highest-paid actress, earning a reported $7 million a movie. Before "Dying Young" made its sluggish premiere, she was thought to be one of the industry's most bankable stars. The "Pretty Woman" star was to have wed actor Kiefer Sutherland on June 14, but the wedding was canceled at the last minute.

"Robin Hood" got lousy reviews, too, yet audiences are leaving theaters enthralled and telling friends to go see it, its producers say.

"I think it's really an audience participation movie," said John Watson, who co-wrote and produced "Robin Hood." "We're getting a lot of cheering, booing of the villain and a lot of laughter."

Reviewers generally blasted the movie, saying Costner's performance was wooden and the film's modern-day sensibilities were out of place.

"Critics are not really seeing the movie for its full value," Watson said. "They perceive somehow that Errol Flynn should be reincarnated in the 1990s. We didn't set out to make an updated Errol Flynn. We set out to make a truly unusual Robin Hood — a reluctant hero."

"Robin Hood" is attracting a generous share of female moviegoers. Women tend to shun action-adventure movies.

"Kevin Costner has primarily female appeal and we took great pains to play up the romantic aspects of this movie," said Rob Friedman, president of worldwide publicity and marketing for Warner Bros.

"Everybody's loving the film,"

Friedman said. "Everybody but the critics."

"Robin Hood" appears to have staying power. Its gate for last weekend was down just 29 percent from its premiere weekend. Last summer, "Total Recall" slipped 41 percent in its second weekend, "Die Hard 2" fell 33 percent and "Days of Thunder" 31 percent.

The weak numbers generated by "Dying Young" aren't the only summer shocker. The once lightly regarded dude ranch comedy "City Slickers" has been the second-most popular movie for two weeks in a row and has made $47.3 million.

Starring Billy Crystal in a story of mid-life crisis on the Plains, "City Slickers" last weekend outgrossed not only "Dying Young" but also the heavily promoted Disney thriller "The Rocketeer," which finished in fourth.

"It's a very fun comedy and it's about something — it stays with them," said Martin Shafer, a partner in "City Slickers" producer Castle Rock Entertainment. "It's not the kind of movie where you just see it and then you go out for pizza and forget about it."

Still, "Robin Hood" may not be atop the box office charts for long. In fact, it may not last beyond the weekend.

"Oh, I'm pretty sure 'The Naked Gun 2 1/2' will be No. 1," Watson said.

Implants improve efficiency of feed

By KENT MILLS

Though prices for calves seem astronomical right now, you still need to continue utilizing every tool to get as much profit out of your operation as possible. One of those tools that is under-utilized by many West Texas producers has been implants to improve feed efficiency.

These implants are anabolic growth promotants that aid in allowing a calf to produce more meat and less fat as it grows. Since it takes about 2 1/4 times more energy to produce a pound of fat as it does to produce a pound of lean meat, you can see how the use of implants could help lower your cost of gain, either on pasture or in the feedlot.

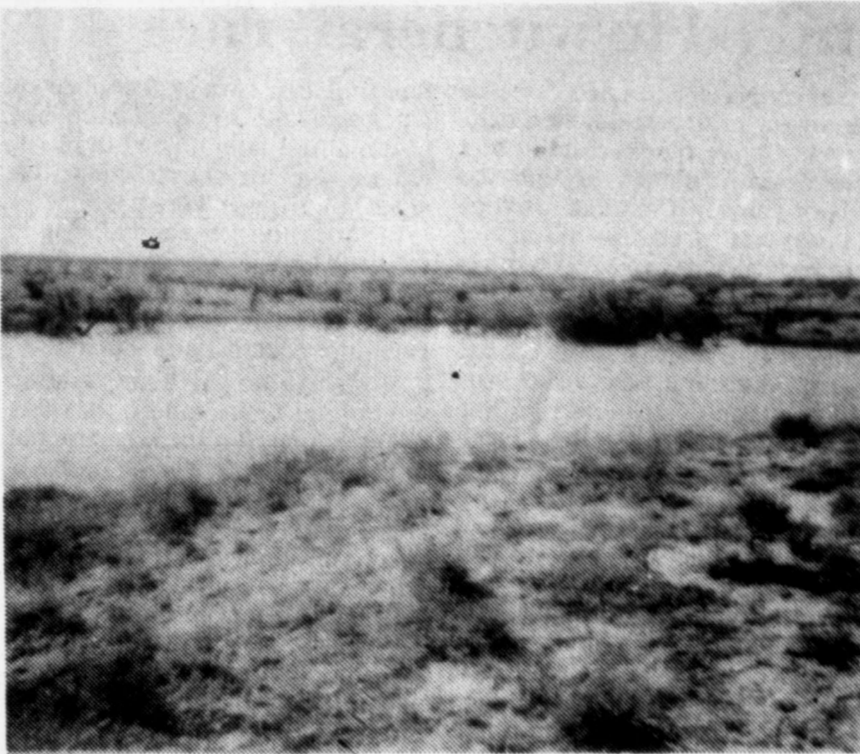

Feedlots have for years used implants as a matter of getting the most gain for their feed inputs. Cow-calf producers should also take advantage of the fact that implants can allow a calf to gain from 10 to 25 pounds more by weaning than a non-implanted calf for a cost of about a dollar an implant. With calves bringing around a dollar a pound, it's pretty clear that using implants can be a "money-making-project."

Some caution is advised when using implants on stocker calves. The calves must be on an "above-maintenance" diet. This really only affects those who run stockers through the winter on native pasture and do not supplement them. In research trials where they have provided a diet designed for weight loss, the calves that were implanted actually lost more weight than those not implanted. This has only happened in cases where the calves were in a situation where they were losing weight. Where calves have been supplemented to continue gaining a little bit during the winter, the implanted calves have consistently out-gained those not implanted.

Another area of caution is concerning heifers that you are going to breed and keep. Heifers can be implanted as calves with implants that are labeled as such. If the label directions do not say that the implant is for heifers, DON'T USE IT FOR HEIFERS. And definitely don't use any implant after weaning on heifers you are planning to keep. There are many reports of heifers having poorly developed reproductive tracts when implanted after weaning. A poorly developed tract would prevent a heifer from ever getting bred.

As with all tools, there is a right way and a wrong way to use implants. Read the label directions and cautions carefully before using, insert them in the proper place in the ear, and use only on those calves for which the implant is designed. You will find that a little money well spent will reap extra profits when your calves are ready to sell.

The recent rains have filled many livestock ponds to their capacity. This area had been dammed up three years ago and never held more than two feet of water. Recently, it filled to over 18 foot deep and ran around the spillway. (SCS Photo)

Iron deficiency hurts the beauty and productivity of many landscapes and gardens in Scurry County. One of the most frequently asked questions this time of year is, "Why are my plant leaves turning yellow, and what can I do to cure it?"

The answer is, "Your plants probably have iron deficiency." Many plants grown in this area are among the least sensitive to iron deficiency. Leaves turn light yellowish green between the dark green veins when a plant can't absorb enough iron through its roots. Chlorophyll is green, and leaves can't make chlorophyll without iron. Also, iron will not move from leaves that have enough iron, to yellow leaves that have a shortage.

Much of our Scurry County soils contain enough iron to satisfy plants; however, the element phosphorus can combine with iron in a chemical form that can't be absorbed in some plants. Sometimes when too much phosphorus is applied to lawns, the iron contained by soils becomes unavailable to the grass, shrubs and trees. In any case, there are ways to make your plant leaves grow bright green again.

You must be sure not to apply too much phosphorus fertilizer, and you can apply iron chelate or iron sulfate either to the soil around your plants or to the plant leaves using a foliar spray.

Iron chelate stays in available form for a long period of time and supplies iron evenly to plant roots. Iron chelate can be mixed with water and sprayed on young leaves to get iron into the plant to make chlorophyll. One to two ounces per plant applied around shrubs and small trees corrects iron deficiency for most of the season. Spraying the young leaves with a solution of one teaspoon per gallon of water, plus one teaspoon of mild detergent, will enable the leaves to absorb iron directly. Spray only when the air temperature is below 85 degrees.

Iron sulfate can be applied to soil and sprayed on leaves as well. Iron sulfate is a temporary treatment lasting only a month or two.

When using iron chelate or iron sulfate, beware of the staining power of these nutrient solutions. Iron sulfate that lands on sidewalks or light colored brick will stain it yellow and iron chelate will stain it red.

If you have questions relating to the amount of nutrients in your garden and lawn soils, you can take a soil sample and have it tested by the Extension Soil Testing Lab for the major essential elements and trace elements. Soil sampling instructions, forms and boxes are available at the Scurry County Extension Office.

Level I, designed for ginners with little or no experience, will cover topics such as maintenance and adjustments for seed cotton cleaners, gin stands and lint cleaners and air utilization and drying. Students in Level II will hear information on efficient equipment operation, pneumatics and waste collection, electrical and hydraulic systems along with management tips on timely ginning topics.

Cholera reported in Mexican mountain village

SAN MIGUEL TOTOLMALOYA, Mexico (AP) — A cholera outbreak that hit this remote mountain village is under control and only 2 of the 17 people who contracted the disease are still hospitalized, a Health Department official said.

"No one has died from cholera here," said Dr. Alfredo Peniche, one of a team of about 50 epidemic control specialists sent by the Department of Health in Mexico City.

Dr. Peniche and health officials in Mexico City said a man who, according to news reports died last week, succumbed to what was probably pancreatitis — or inflammation of the pancreas. They insisted tests showed the victim did not have cholera.

Health authorities first detected the disease in this farming village on June 17. But one man with the disease, Cristobal Serrano Ruiz, 40, said he had been feeling sick for about 2½ weeks.

Ruiz said he was hospitalized for three days and was cured at the medical center here. Monday, two other cases were recovering at the Social Security

Hospital at Sultepec, the county seat about 30 miles north, and a third suspected case was under observation here.

San Miguel is a remote community located about 60 miles southwest of Mexico City and 30 miles as the crow flies. It is so remote, it doesn't even have a telephone.

Government officials were immediately worried when they heard of the outbreak here — the first reported in Mexico — and quickly sent a team of specialists to provide San Miguel with pure drinking water, adequate sewage and to teach the 1,100 villagers basic hygiene.

More than 2,000 people died in South America in a cholera epidemic that began in Peru in late January, and spread rapidly through the rest of that country and neighboring Colombia, Ecuador, Brazil and Chile.

The disease, characterized by vomiting and diarrhea, was often fatal before the discovery of antibiotics. People used to die mostly from dehydration and massive loss of body minerals.

Nowadays, it is now quickly checked with antibiotics and the intravenous administration of serums.

San Miguel, at the end of an unpaved, rock strewn road negotiated only with four-wheel drive vehicles, has never had sewage or purified running water.

People have been using outhouses and getting their water from wells, the nearby San Miguel River, or collecting runoffs from the mountain in communal tanks during the rainy season.

Ten-year-old slayings are still open, sheriff says

PORT LAVACA, Texas (AP) — It has been 10 years since the slayings of four people at the old Cross Roads Tavern, but Calhoun County Sheriff Ken Bowden says officers are studying mountains of notes and it is still an "open" case.

Four people were found inside the tavern about two miles south of Port Lavaca on June 25, 1981. All had been shot execution style and three were dead. The fourth person died 28 days later.

Bowden points out that there is no statute of limitations for murder.

"It is still an open case," he told the Victoria Advocate Monday.

At about 6:30 a.m. June 25, 1981, the wife of one of the victims discovered her husband, Willard Baugh, 43, mortally wounded and three women dead in the bar.

Each had been shot twice with a handgun. Baugh, who died almost a month later, also had a large laceration across his stomach.

Evidence later showed that

Baugh suffered the cut when he fell across a broken door hinge while trying to reach a telephone, said Rick Brush, now a Palacios County Sheriff Ken Bowden says officers are studying mountains of notes and it is still an "open" case.

The other victims included Mrs. Lennie York, a 66-year-old widow who managed the tavern; Lark Saylor, 21, an occasional customer; and Marjorie Sheffield Matocha, 19, a waitress. All were killed between midnight and 1:30 a.m., a Victoria pathologist said.

Brush said he compiled some 3,000 pages of reports on the case and about a dozen unrelated felony charges, some federal, were filed as a result of the investigation.

Still haunted by the mystery, Brush traveled across the South to three states chasing down leads and helping other law enforcement officers investigate crimes based on evidence surrounding the murders in Calhoun County.

At each entrance and one either side of the five-story building lay two broken brown chicken eggs. On top of each egg was a small puncture with black candle wax dribbling down the sides. Eight eggs were used.

"It could be somebody doing it for good luck if they have to go to court or their son or daughter has to go to court," said Lt. John Bustos of courthouse security.

Santeria, an African religion employing black magic that has become popular in San Antonio and across South Texas, likely is at the root of the eggs, said Cynthia Burgin, the sheriff's department animal-cruelty investigator who has built a statewide reputation as an expert on such cults.

"Eggs are used for taking away something, for taking away evil influences, for cleansing," Ms. Burgin said.

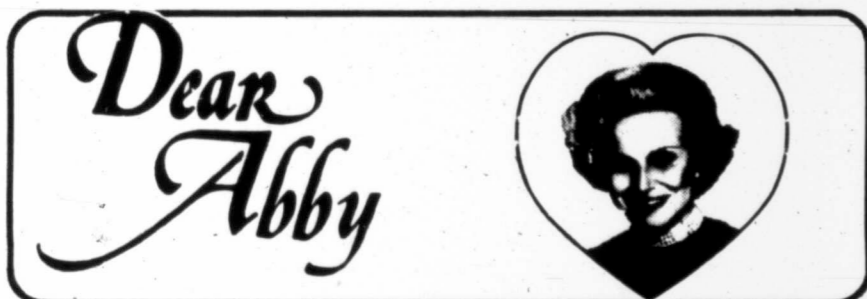

Chicken, eggs, candle wax linked to witchcraft rites

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The discovery of brown chicken eggs dripped with black candle wax strategically placed around the Bexar County Criminal Justice Center was probably an act of witchcraft designed to protect someone who had to go to court, officials said.

Security cameras at the county courts building captured the video image of an older woman clad all in white, carrying a large bag, scurrying away from the building during the pre-dawn hours Monday.

"It's probably a little witchcraft deal," said Dan Vela, the sheriff's chief of court security. "It's strange. This is the first time all my (18) years here that I've seen this."

Good Lovin' Is Senior's Secret for Good Marriage

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Sex for seniors? Why not? That's right up my alley. I'm age 85, with a 71-year-old third wife, and we make love frequently. I lost my first two wives to cancer after almost 20 years with each.

I met my present wife when I was 79 and she was 64. She had been with the only man in her life — her husband of 37 years — so I should not have been surprised at her obvious lack of experience. Being "made love to" was new to her, as opposed to being an outlet for a man's desires. Once we got in tune with each other, we made love 10 times in nine days — once every day, and twice on Sunday. I kid you not.

We have slowed down somewhat since I was hospitalized for a month after surgery to remove a cancerous colon. It was a month after that before we could resume our lovemaking. Notice, I said "lovemaking," not having sex. There is a difference.

By the way, I met my third wife in church. After our relationship became serious, we toured Europe together. Different names on passports don't bother hotel clerks or anyone else when two people travel as a couple. After living out of a suitcase for six weeks, we knew we'd either love each other or hate each other's guts. We married as soon as our property sales were completed.

My secret for a successful marriage? Take your time. Sex is a quick roll in the hay. Making love is like an ocean voyage; half the fun is getting there.

OLDER BUT NOT TOO OLD

DEAR OLDER: You could write a book ... you certainly know what to do between the covers. Hooray for you!

DEAR ABBY: Could you please tell me if there is anything a man can do to reduce the gray hair on his chest? Are there any products on the market that can handle this problem?

The hair on my head is mostly dark-brown with only a few gray hairs, but I am getting a whole flock of gray hairs on my chest. Hurry your answer, please. I don't want to look like an old guy on the beach.

MALIBU MALE

DEAR MALIBU: Ask your barber. He should know. If he can't help you, head for the nearest store that carries beauty supplies. Its shelves will be lined with "rinses" and "tints" that will solve your dilemma.

DEAR ABBY: Please say something about the widespread use of pacifiers. They are used mostly to pacify the parents who stick it in the child's mouth to keep it quiet.

Putting a plug in a child's mouth, whether it's a genuine plug or a bottle (when used as a pacifier), causes the child to associate comfort and relief of stress with oral satisfaction, which may lead later in life to smoking, overeating or alcoholism.

The child's instinct to suck is usually satisfied by breast or bottle when the child is hungry.

And don't you hate to see a child who is old enough to walk still sucking on a bottle?

BARBARA SNADER, CHILD DEVELOPMENT SPECIALIST

DEAR BARBARA: Yes. But the people who most love to see a child who is old enough to walk still sucking on a bottle are the orthodontists.
