Q—How are Little League All-Stars selected?

A—Each manager submits a written list of up to 14 names from all Little League teams. The 14 players who collectively receive the highest number of votes are designated as All-Stars.

In Brief

Gang attack

DALLAS (AP) — About 20 men and boys robbed and beat an Irving couple in a Dallas park and then sexually assaulted the woman before robbing a would-be rescuer, police said.

The woman was not raped, but five of the men pulled her behind a truck, ripped off her blouse and began assaulting her, Detective Don Knight said.

Officers said the couple bought some food and went to a picnic table at Kidd Springs Park in the Oak Cliff section of Dallas early Sunday when they were attacked by the group.

Joe Hopkins, 39, approached the group and was beaten and robbed when he tried to intervene, Knight said.

Resignation accepted

Pct. 1 commissioner Duaine Davis

Scurry County Commissioners Court this morning accepted "with regret" the announcement that Precinct 1 Commissioner Duaine Davis will retire, effective Aug. 1.

In other action today, commissioners approved a change in the fee structure for Hermleigh water works, okayed a recommendation to enter into agreement with the Texas Department of Criminal Justice Pardons and Paroles and tabled a request by the Scurry County Historical Commission and any action on bid proposals for microfilming records.

Davis has served 38 years in Precinct 1, including six as commissioner. After being appointed to the court in July of 1985, he was elected in January of 1986 for a two-year term and re-elected to a four-year term in 1988. Before serving on the court, Davis was employed by Precinct 1 for 32 years.

After reading Davis' letter of resignation, County Judge Bob

Doolittle noted that he has received eight applications for the position and expects to recommend a replacement within two weeks. His recommendation will be submitted to the court for approval. Commissioners changed the Council facing lengthy agenda

Snyder City Council will consider two resolutions — including one that could increase water rates in 1993 — and will consider tax exemption status for a local non-profit organization, choose a delegate to the Big Country Resource Conservation and Development Area and hear a report on the enterprise zone, during its 6:30 p.m. meeting today at City Hall.

The council will consider on first reading a resolution supporting the construction of a 155-mile pipeline from the O.H. Ivie Reservoir by the Colorado River Municipal Water District. CRMWD General Manager O.H. Ivie, the new reservoir's namesake, and other district officials attended the June 3 meeting of the council in which he said water rate increases were needed to fund the pipeline which would provide water sources to CRMWD contract cities Midland and San Angelo and member city Odessa.

A proposed increase of 4.25 cents per 1,000 gallons in 1993 and an 8.75 increase in 1994 was proposed by Ivie to help finance $113 million the water pipeline is expected to cost. According to CRMWD officials, the project is expected to be completed by January of 1995.

The other resolution to be considered concerns the closing of the 1700 block of 3rd St. in the J.B. Chambers addition.

Council member and chairman of the city's enterprise zone committee Jackie Greene is scheduled to give a report on the proposed enterprise zone project. The committee was formed in June to investigate the benefits and disadvantages of a city designated enterprise zone.

Other business facing the council is a review of tax exemption status of Snyder Neighbors Sharing for 1988 and the selection of a delegate and alternate to represent the city on the county RC&D committee.

An additional meeting of the council is scheduled for 6:30 p.m. July 15 with a work session to follow.

Appraisal board set to convene

A budget workshop and the new county education district are expected to dominate discussion as the Scurry County Appraisal District board of directors meets at 8 a.m. Tuesday at district offices.

Topping the morning agenda will be a proposal presented by chief appraiser L.R. Peveler to act as the assessor/collector for the county educational district. All proposals will be submitted to CED board for consideration during its July meeting.

Also on the agenda is workshop for the district's 1992 budget, the proposed purchase of a personal computer for communications and a review of the bills payable.

Garza court candidate but sources claim he is not president's pick

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — U.S. Circuit Judge Emilio Garza of San Antonio has met with Justice Department officials and has been confirmed as a finalist for a U.S. Supreme Court seat.

White House Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater confirmed Sunday night that the newly appointed judge to the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans is among the potential nominees under consideration by President Bush.

President Bush has scheduled a news conference for 1 p.m. CDT today at his Kennebunkport, Maine, vacation home, and is expected to discuss his choice to replace retiring Justice Thurgood Marshall.

One administration official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the president had let close aides in on his decision.

Although there was speculation in recent days that Bush would select a Hispanic, sources speaking on condition of anonymity indicated today that was not the case.

A White House aide declined to say whether Bush would be accompanied by a nominee.

Garza was in San Antonio today and declined to talk to reporters. One source said he was interviewed at Justice Department headquarters for several hours on Saturday.

Garza served as a U.S. District Court judge for three years before his recent promotion to the appeals bench.

July 4th activity begins Tuesday

Pre-July 4th celebration activities begin Tuesday in Snyder, as Snyder Palette Club begins taking entries for its annual show in Towle Park Barn.

On Wednesday, food and activity booths begin setting up in the park, arts and crafts booths open and registration for several contests takes place.

Registration for Snyder Palette Club's July 4th Art Show is set from 10 a.m. until 7 p.m. Tuesday in the park barn. The show will be held from 9 a.m. until 7 p.m. Thursday.

Divisions include professional/teacher, amateur, and student (through high school). Categories are landscape, still life, portraits and contemporary. Original and copy-classroom work will be accepted and judged in respective categories.

The per-entry fee is $3 for adults and $1.50 for students. Artists may price their work for sale, with 10 percent going to the Snyder Palette Club. There will be separate divisions for paintings and photography. A best-in-show rosette and $10 award will be given in each division. Ribbons in first through third and honorable mention will also be awarded in qualifying categories.

Food and activity booths begin setting up at 1 p.m. Wednesday and will officially open at 5 p.m. The arts and crafts booths, located in the National Guard Armory, will also open at 5 p.m.

Also Wednesday, registration for the washer pitching and horse shoe pitching opens at 5 p.m.

Wednesday's activities end at 9 a.m.

The Thursday, July 4th, events begin with a 7:30 a.m. Prayer Breakfast in the county coliseum, follow with a 10 a.m. parade through Towle Park and conclude with a fireworks display at dark. Numerous activities will be going on throughout the park all day.

Soviet parliament approves landmark privatization law

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet parliament today overwhelmingly approved a landmark law that allows the state to sell most industry to private companies and individuals, including foreigners. Passage of the law by the Supreme Soviet marks a major step in the transformation of the Soviet Union's state-run economic system. The law will take effect upon publication early this week.

The Soviet government, which owns virtually all industry, is proposing to transfer two-thirds of it to private hands in less than five years but will retain up to half of the defense industry and the energy industry.

"This may be the most important step from a state economy to a market economy," lawmaker Fyodor Burlatsky said.

He said the law would strengthen President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's hand when he meets with leaders of the Group of Seven industrialized nations in London in two weeks to discuss Western aid for Soviet reforms.

The law was approved by a vote of 303-14. Twenty-six lawmakers abstained.

Privatization "is one of the main preconditions of Western countries — to take real steps for privatization of the economy and real economic reform," Burlatsky said.

Gorbachev met with British officials in the Kremlin today to discuss his trip to London. No details on the meeting were immediately available.

Privatization has been difficult for the Soviets. Hard-line Communists have opposed it, as Marxism considers private ownership of production as an exploitation of the working class.

Gorbachev long resisted the move, preferring halfway measures such as leasing factories to employees.

When the decision finally came (see SOVIET, page 8)

Local man, 20, killed in one-vehicle accident

A 20-year-old Snyder man was killed Sunday when a pickup in which he was a passenger overturned about a mile and a half east of Ira on Farm to Market 1606.

Andrew Ramirez Jr. of 1701 39th St. was pronounced dead at the scene at 5:10 p.m. by Scurry County Judge Bob Doolittle.

According to DPS troopers, Ramirez was a passenger in a 1982 Chevrolet pickup which was traveling west on FM 1606 when it slid sideways into the right-hand ditch, crossed back over the roadway, struck a dirt embankment and overturned one-and-a-half times. The accident occurred about 4:20 p.m.

Another passenger, 18-year-old Juli Lay, currently of San Angelo and formerly of Snyder, was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by private vehicle where she was treated and released.

The driver, 20-year-old Israel Hinojos, of Snyder, refused treatment.

The accident is still under investigation, according to DPS Trooper Rick Campos.

Dick Clark testifies he is 61 years old

DALLAS (AP) — A prosecutor curious about Dick Clark's age took advantage of the perfect opportunity to get the truth — and nothing but the truth — from the nation's oldest teen-ager.

Clark, host of "American Bandstand," appeared last week in U.S. District Judge Barefoot Sanders' courtroom as a character witness for a defendant in a complicated investment fraud trial.

When it came time to cross-examine Clark, Assistant U.S. Attorney Bob Webster was ready to grill the multimillionaire entertainer-producer.

"Since I have you under oath, my wife told me to ask, 'How old are you?'"

"Sixty-one," replied Clark as jurors broke into laughter.

For decades, Clark's youthful good looks have made him the butt of many jokes.

He has often compared the response caused by his boyish looks to that of a female sex symbol, and has said he would like to be allowed to "age gracefully."

Many cheer at welcome home parade

AUSTIN (AP) — At least 37,000 people turned out to welcome home Texas veterans of Operation Desert Storm — and to honor all of the state's men and women who have fought for their country — in the "Texas Heroes Parade."

The stars of Sunday's parade were 3,000 of the 50,000 Texas soldiers who served in the Persian Gulf War. They marched down the main street of the capital, surrounded by yellow balloons, waving U.S. and Texas flags, and accompanied by military bands and hardware from the war.

But organizers took care to include veterans of all wars in the honors.

Five floats representing World Wars I and II, the Korean and Vietnam wars and prisoners of war-missing in action rolled down the street after Lt. Gen. Calvin Waller, second in command of Operation Desert Storm and the grand marshal of the parade.

"We are not here to glorify war. Rather, we are here today to honor the men and women of Texas who've asked to risk the ultimate sacrifice whenever America has called," said Land Commissioner Garry Mauro said.

"This is my first coming home parade, and I've finally come home," said Dennis Dunlap of Austin, who served in Vietnam with the Marines in 1967-1968, as he watched the celebration.

"For a lot of years I had mixed emotions, and now I can just throw all that in the Dumpster where it belongs and get on with it," he said.

Barbara Levesque clapped and cheered as she watched her husband, Capt. Mike Levesque, march at the head of the 12th Aircraft Maintenance Unit from Bergstrom Air Force Base in Austin.

"I think it's great," Mrs. Levesque said. "The people that worked with my husband really appreciated the fact that the people of Texas wanted to do this for them, and they were really pleased that the American people gave them so much support while they were over there."

"I think it's good for kids," said Virginia Healer, a spectator from Austin.

"It's been a real long time since there has been very much to have pride in, and while it's always important to remember that war kills people and that's never something to be taken lightly, it's also important to remember that there are things worth standing up for," Mrs. Healer said.

Before the parade, Gov. Ann Richards presided over a solemn ceremony honoring the families of the 31 Texas troops killed in the Persian Gulf War. As it began, four RF-4C Phantom jets from Bergstrom Air Force Base flew overhead in formation.

In spite of treaty...

Americans still suffer in Mexican prisons

HOUSTON (AP) — As the United States and Mexico joined in 1975 to crack down on a burgeoning drug flow across the border, Mexican prisons were filling with America's middle-class sons and daughters.

Lured to Mexico, Central and South America by narcotics trade profits — or to buy drugs for personal use — many were arrested by Mexican authorities. They were thrown in jail, often tortured, forced to sign confessions written in a language they did not understand and held for months — sometimes years — without a trial.

As parents furiously turned to the U.S. government for help, political pressure increased on both sides of the border.

The proposed remedy: The American-Mexican Treaty on the Execution of Penal Sentences, which provided for the transfer of U.S. citizens arrested in Mexico back to their home country, and vice versa.

But almost 15 years after the treaty was signed, the horror for Americans in Mexican prisons has not changed. U.S. citizens are still beaten and abused and forced to pay thousands of dollars for both the necessities of life and the processes of law.

"To tumble from a middle-class existence to the conditions in a Mexican prison is a blood-chilling event," said Detlev Vagts, 62, a Harvard Law School professor and one of the authors of the prisoner exchange treaty.

Since the agreement was signed Nov. 30, 1977, 1,016 American prisoners have been returned to the U.S. and placed in federal prisons to serve out their sentences, while 612 Mexicans in U.S. jails have been transferred.

Mexican officials, reportedly embarrassed by horror stories told by young Americans who were released, escaped or bought their way out of Mexican jails, saw the document as a quick way out of a political quagmire.

Vagts and others involved in the process said the treaty was seen on both sides as the best mechanism to solve a problem created by a crackdown by the two nations on the border drug trade.

During the late 1960s, as drug use became popular, marijuana growers in Mexico were all too happy to play the supply-and-demand game.

The Nixon Administration accused the Mexican government of doing little to stem the tide and launched a unilateral attack on border drug traffic, calling it "Operation Intercept."

The Mexican government, saying trade with the U.S. was jeopardized by Operation Intercept, agreed to step up its own drug enforcement efforts.

In October 1971, approximately 300 Americans were in prison in Mexico. By the end of 1976, that number doubled to more than 600.

"The (U.S.) Bureau of Prisons people were amazed at the educational level of American prisoners in Mexico," Vagts said. "You never see that kind of prison population outside a highfalutin' federal penitentiary. They were college educated.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I had a pacemaker inserted because of palpitations that occurred every two or three weeks. Now I have them almost every day, despite the pacemaker and my Lanoxin. What's happening?

DEAR READER: Most pacemakers — small, battery-powered generators implanted under the skin of the chest wall — are used to maintain the heartbeat if a person's own, natural pacemaker fails. That is, implantable pacemakers speed up the pulse in patients who have heart block leading to dizziness or fainting.

Palpitations (extra heartbeats) are unrelated to these devices. Therefore, I'm not sure why you have a pacemaker at all. On the basis of what little information you supply, I believe you need more medicine to suppress the additional heartbeats that cause symptoms. There are many drugs for this purpose; Lanoxin (digoxin) is one.

Suppressive therapy can slow the pulse rate. However, in your case, this should not be a problem because your implantable pacemaker will maintain your pulse at a pre-set level, irrespective of the effects of the medicine.

I suggest you describe your symptoms to your doctor and work with him (or her) to find a suitable medication that will reduce or eliminate the palpitations, which, in some instances, can be dangerous. If your doctor is unable to help you, ask for a referral to a cardiologist.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been prescribed a stool softener and Bentyl for the relief of hiatal hernia and spastic reactions. What is your opinion on the continued use of these products?

DEAR READER: Stool softeners often help patients with spastic bowel to eliminate.

Bentyl (dicyclomine) is an antispasmodic drug that may relieve intestinal cramps and reduce reflux, the backwash of irritating stomach acid into the esophagus.

The medicine has several side effects, including dry mouth, nausea, vomiting, constipation, abdominal pain, blurred vision, difficulty urinating, palpitations, dizziness and rash, to mention a few. Some people with hiatal hernia are prone to reflux, and Bentyl may help the heartburn and gas of this condition.

In my experience, medicine to neutralize stomach acid (antacids) or to reduce the flow of gastric acid (such as Tagamet and Zantac) are more effective antidotes than is Bentyl.

However, if Bentyl does the job and you are not subject to side effects, it's OK to use. Apparently, your doctor believes that spasm plays a major role in your symptoms, and he (or she) has attempted to aid you by prescribing a stool softener and an anti-spasmodic. Both medications are appropriate for long-term use under medical supervision.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Hiatal Hernia." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Pearl Harbor commemoration to be strictly American event

WASHINGTON (AP) — To avoid offending Japan, the United States is not inviting any foreign governments to ceremonies marking the 50th anniversary of the attack on Pearl Harbor.

The decision, reached after months of deliberations, was also meant to defuse anger from veterans' and survivors' groups opposed to official Japanese participation in the events.

The Dec. 7 anniversary is a delicate issue for the Bush administration, worried about stirring bitter memories and fueling the type of Japan-bashing sentiment generally directed at Japan for allegedly unfair trade practices.

Japan, after all, is heavily invested in Hawaii and all over the mainland, is a major American trading partner and holds a significant amount of U.S. government debts.

The State Department's solution to the delicate dilemma: no foreign dignitaries will be invited to the three-day commemoration, and the Bush administration won't have to worry about not inviting Japan.

"We envision no official participation by foreign guests in the Pearl Harbor commemoration events. These events mark a solemn national occasion," a department policy statement said.

Some 2,300 American servicemen and civilians were killed when Japanese planes bombed the Pearl Harbor naval base and other targets in Hawaii, drawing the United States into World War II the next day.

stationed at Kelly Air Force Base in San Antonio.

"He would have loved this. But he's happy that we can be here, I know he is," she said.

Texas A&M's Ross Volunteers presented a flag to each of the 25 families present as a cannon salute was fired and four Confederate Air Force planes flew overhead, one breaking off in the missing man formation.

Japanese newspapers have speculated recently that the anniversary may prompt a wave of anti-Japan sentiment in this country.

The State Department set to work to allay such concerns.

"It would be wrong to interpret this commemoration as against Japan in any way. It is not, and will not be, an anti-Japan event," the department said in its statement.

Officials say the State Department has been examining not only the Pearl Harbor anniversary but a host of other World War II commemorations inching up on the calendar.

The administration has decided, for example, that foreign governments will be invited to attend the 50th anniversary of the battle of Guadalcanal next year.

Attorneys appointed for well-off defendants

HOUSTON (AP) — Lawyers are being appointed by the courts for defendants who can well afford to hire their own counsel, costing Harris County nearly $500,000 last year, according to a published report.

"That makes me ill. That makes me tremendously ill," Harris County Commissioner Jerry Eversole said of the unnecessary appointments.

In a copyright story published Sunday, The Houston Post reported that the county's felony courts routinely fail to check defendants' financial backgrounds before granting their requests for free legal counsel.

During the week of Oct. 8, lawyers were appointed for at least 309 defendants in 483 cases. Twenty-two questionable cases cost taxpayers $8,780, The Post reported.

If this week were typical, and court employees say it was, the amount of questionable expenses for appointments would amount to $456,550 during 1990. In that year, a total of $10.8 million was spent on appointed attorneys in the felony courts.

Eversole helped to create a committee to find ways to bring down the costs of both felony and misdemeanor appointments.

"We need to come up with a system to determine who truly is indigent," he said.

It's not as if the judges have to look hard to determine the defendants' financial status. The job information and salaries of those defendants are listed in the Harris County Pretrial Services Agency reports, which are part of the defendant's court file.

The Post investigation was based on interviews with key participants in the 22 felony courts and from an examination of all 483 felony cases that were filed during a one-week period last October.

Barbara Knutson, whose son was killed Aug. 28 during Operation Desert Shield in an airplane crash at Ramstein, Germany, said the celebration left her with mixed emotions of sorrow and happiness — but mostly pride.

"It's a great day for America. This is great hospitality. Texas can be proud," said Mrs. Knutson, of Jamestown, N.D. Her son, Tech. Sgt. Lonty Knutson, was

Delays noted at border checkpoints

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The summer vacations of Customs inspectors along the border are creating long waits for motorists attempting to cross into Texas using the two international bridges in Brownsville, officials say.

Some motorists report delays of nearly two hours while crossing over from Matamoros, Mexico.

"We're short. What happens in the months of June, July and August is that we have a full complement of people on vacation," U.S. Chief Customs Inspector Eutimio Ruedas said.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service and Customs share the job of staffing primary inspection areas, Ruedas said.

Ruben Escobedo of Houston said Saturday he had been waiting nearly two hours to cross into the United States.

Students protest loss of MTV channel

BRYAN, Texas (AP) — The TCA cable television company says it hopes to replace MTV with one of its subsidiary stations that plays popular rock, country and jazz videos.

But Aggies insist they want their MTV — and they don't want others deciding for them whether the performances on the music-video cable network contain too much sex or violence.

About 40 people, mostly Texas A&M students, demonstrated outside TCA Cable TV company's office in Bryan on Saturday. The protesters carried signs including ones reading "End censorship before censorship ends you," "What's TCA's real problem with MTV — morals or $?"

"We're making a show against censorship and a show of support for a second cable company," said Gwynne Ash, leader of Aggies Against Censorship. "We want to show that not everyone wants their decisions made for them."

TCA announced Thursday that MTV would be dropped at midnight Saturday when its contract expired. The company said the network's content was no longer suitable for general audiences.

MTV specializes in hard-rock and top-40 music videos and off-beat specials aimed at young adults. The cable company said it received numerous complaints that the videos contain sex and violence inappropriate for children.

TCA officials have not decided which network will replace MTV. The company is negotiating with MTV Networks to replace MTV with VH-1, which MTV owns.

VH-1 plays popular rock music videos, as well as country and jazz videos.

"We're very hopeful that we can reach an agreement for VH-1 as a replacement," Rogers said.

"If (parents) feel it's a bad influence on their kids, they should tell them not to watch it," said Richard Rose, a business owner and parent at the protest. "You see as much on MTV as you see at the beach, so let's ban the beach. It's insane."

Rose said TCA should offer MTV only to those subscribers who want it and not penalize everyone by dropping it.

Randy Rogers, TCA's local manager, said the company tried that, but MTV refused.

"We've asked them to allow us to sell it on a positive-option basis at no extra charge to those customers who want it," he said, saying he believes such an arrangement would satisfy all subscribers. "MTV's refused to negotiate that point with us."

Guess the end-position

By Phillip Alder

Bridge can be extremely frustrating at times. You know you can make your contract — if only you can work out which opponent holds a key card.

How do you figure it out? Sometimes the bidding (or lack of it) will tell you. At other times the play will be indicative. But if neither of these factors is any help, go with the odds — or guess well.

Against three no-trump, West led a low club. (A low one is usually a better choice than the jack if you don't have J-10-9 or J-10-8.) East won with the club queen and continued with the king, declarer ducking twice in dummy. East's club nine now went to dummy's ace.

Declarer played a spade back to his ace and a spade to dummy's jack, and cashed the spade king. East discarding a heart. Next came three rounds of diamonds, West now throwing a heart.

Declarer would make the hand if he guessed which opponent held the heart king. If it was West, dummy could exit with a spade, leaving West endplayed, forced to lead away from the heart king at trick 12. If it was East, a diamond exit would endplay him one trick earlier. Which was the right play?

The point-count gave no help. The split was 6-7 or 4-9, but neither opponent would have bid in either case.

The distribution was the key. West was known to have begun with 4-3-2-4 shape and East with 2-4-4-3. This made the odds four to three that East had begun with the heart king. Declarer exited with a diamond, and justice was done: East did have to lead away from the heart king.

Demand for cancer drug creates yew bark poachers

OAKRIDGE, Ore. (AP) — Rangers in the Northwest's national forests are chasing a new kind of poacher: one with a drawknife who strips bark from Pacific yew trees to cash in on demand for a new cancer-fighting drug.

"It's a damn waste," said Jim Simonson, yew coordinator in the Willamette National Forest. He looked out over the naked white trunks of 62 yews that were illegally stripped of their bark. The girdling kills the trees.

The bark is the primary source of a drug called taxol, which has shown a unique ability to fight cancer by stopping cells from dividing. It has proved effective in tests on women with advanced breast and ovarian cancer.

The National Cancer Institute is so excited about the drug that the government has pledged to collect 750,000 pounds of yew bark a year. That would produce about 55 pounds of taxol, enough to treat 1,250 people.

In a multimillion-dollar deal, the government granted Bristol-Meyer Squibb Co. exclusive rights to produce taxol from bark collected in national forests.

Selling for $2.50 a pound, yew bark means easy money for some. Logging restrictions to protect the northern spotted owl, a threatened species, are making it tougher for loggers and millworkers to make a living.

"As more and more people are laid off work, and mills close, we are expecting to see more crime problems on the national forests," said Carola E. Stoney, forest agent in Willamette.

"Of course, this deal on taxol has just taken the yew bark sort of right to the head of the class."

Bark that took 80 to 200 years to grow can be stripped in minutes from as high as a man can reach to about knee height.

Wimbledon...

Connors ousted by Rostagno

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Jimmy Connors was the star, but he had a supporting cast of thousands of young fans on a very untraditional day at Wimbledon.

They applauded the ballboys and belted out soccer songs. They counted each stroke out loud during warmups. They hollered "Jim-mee, Jim-mee" at a player twice their age.

All in the staid Centre Court stadium. And on the middle Sunday — a rest day at the tournament since 1877.

"The atmosphere was great today," Connors said after limping out of the tournament in straight sets to Derrick Rostagno. "It was a different crowd, not the traditionalists giving you the 'Jolly good.'"

The rain that had caused a huge backlog of matches during the opening five days returned briefly on Sunday. But it did little to dampen the enthusiasm of fans who stood in line overnight for tickets they normally cannot get. The All England Club reluctantly agreed to break tradition by playing Sunday because of the traffic jam of matches.

"The committee are determined this should not be seen as a precedent," said Chris Gorrage, the club's chief executive. "It was forced upon us by the extreme weather conditions."

Though Connors lost his third-round match 7-6, 6-1, 6-4, the fans exulted in his gutsy performance. Connors refused to quit despite injury to his leg in the first set.

"For somebody who was not supposed to play Wimbledon, to do this well is really a lot of fun," said the 38-year-old Connors, who had wrist surgery last winter.

"I've done my duty here. I've given this place everything that I've had to give. I broke my back for them. I didn't mind bleeding and doing whatever it took to play my best tennis, and now I still like doing that. But this is just all gravy for me."

There were plenty of other things to cheer — Ivan Lendl rallied from two sets down to win, John McEnroe and top seed Stefan Edberg advanced to a fourth-round clash and 16 other seeded players also won.

Lendl, a seven-time semifinalist whose bid to win Wimbledon has turned into an annual crusade, nearly ended his 1991 campaign in a second-round match against MaliVai Washington.

But he rebounded for a 4-6, 2-6, 6-4, 6-4, 7-5 victory, only the third time he has managed a two-set comeback. It was his 200th Grand Slam triumph, second only to Jimmy Connors among active men's players.

"You can say a lot of things about me, but don't say I quit," Lendl said.

Three-time champion McEnroe and two-time winner Edberg both won in straight sets and are scheduled to meet Tuesday in a replay of their 1989 semifinal.

"I'm the big underdog, so I'll just go for broke," McEnroe said. "He is playing quite well, but I am capable of beating him. I have beaten him enough times to know that I can do it."

Defending champion Martina Navratilova and top-seeded Steffi Graf led 11 seeded women, including Gabriela Sabatini and Arantxa Sanchez Vicario, into the fourth round.

MEMORIAL GOLFER — Matt Hymer of Hamlin drives his tee shot toward the green on hole No. 1 in Saturday's round of Snyder Country Club's annual Golfers' Memorial Partnership. Hymer and his partner Daniel Jones, also of Hamlin, finished with a 142 two-round total in the weekend tournament. Don Morris and Tommy Morris fired a 122 to win the event. Morris nab Memorial title Don Morris and Tommy Morris fired a tournament best 59 on Sunday to capture a one-stroke win over Gary Varnadore and Keith McKelvey at Snyder Country Club's annual Golfers' Memorial Partnership.

Morris and Morris registered a 63 on Saturday before Sunday's 59 for a 122 total and the tourney title.

Varnadore and McKelvey took the first-round lead with a 62 Saturday, and improved to a 61 in Sunday play to wind up with 123.

Danny Kloza and Les Tilley turned in a 127 on rounds of 65 and 62 to claim third place in Championship Flight.

Other winners in the weekend event included Larry Walker and B.W. Harris, who finished first in President's Flight, First Flight's Tracy Long and Elliot Cox, Jay Cumbie and James Caldwell in Second Flight, Mike Casey and Frank Grimmett in Third Flight and Fourth Flight's Dean Jeffress and Jerry Rose.

Walker and Harris wound up with a 66-64-130 tally to win First Flight by five strokes.

Rick McPhaul and Terry Haggerton teamed up for a second-place 135 with scores of 71 and 64. Jerry Wilbourn and Carl Guelker's 69-67-136 was good for third.

In First Flight, Long and Cox edged Bo Cornett and Jack Darnell and Johnny Ramirez and Joe LaRoux by a single stroke for the win.

Long-Cox ended the tournament with a 64-69-133. Cornett and Darnell tied Ramirez and LaRoux, both teams with identical 66-68-134 totals, but won second position in a playoff.

Cumbie and Caldwell turned in Second Flight's top round on Sunday with a 68. That, combined with the pair's opening-round 71, gave them a 139 for top honors.

Steve Kloza and Jimmy Kloza earned runner-up status with a 72-69-141 and Jene Steakley and Mike McLeod nabbed third with a 143 total, featuring a 72 on Saturday and Sunday's 71.

Casey and Grimmett won a playoff with Marvin Sentell and Gordon Gray for the Third Flight crown.

Each team finished 36 holes with 146 totals.

Casey-Grimmett carded a 70 and a 76 for their final tally while Sentell and Gray took a 74 and a 72.

Vance Voss and Johnny Reed came in third with their 79-73-152.

A 73-74-147 was Fourth Flight's best, shot by Jeffress and Rose.

Tom Wright and Barry Wright took second with their 78-70-148 and Nub Morris and John Miller's 74-75-149 was good for third.

Cincy hangs on for 5-4 win

CINCINNATI (AP) — Jeff Reed somehow managed to hang on — just like his team.

The Cincinnati Reds' catcher held on to the ball when Houston's Eric Yelding bowled him over at home plate Sunday to get the crucial out in a 5-4 victory over the Astros.

The Reds' seventh victory in nine games completed a costly homestand. Second-place Cincinnati lost four starting pitchers to injury, yet managed to tighten the National League West.

"We've hung in there tough," manager Lou Piniella said.

No one was tougher Sunday than Reed, who had the wind knocked out of him but stayed in the game after preserving a 5-4 lead in the eighth inning. The play protected a lead built on power.

Bill Doran, Billy Hatcher and Paul O'Neill hit solo homers in the fifth inning off Pete Harnisch (5-6) to put the Reds ahead 4-1. Doran also singled home a run in the sixth off Harnisch, who saw his earned run average soar from an NL-leading 2.01 to 2.32.

The three-homer spurge gave Cincinnati eight multiple-homer games in its last nine. The Reds now have 74 for the season, trailing only Chicago in the NL.

The Astros responded with a solo homer by Luis Gonzalez and a two-run homer by Jeff Bagwell off Chris Hammond (6-5), who went six innings to win his third straight decision.

Rob Dibble relieved Randy Myers in the eighth with Gerald Young on third and Yelding on second, two out and the Reds leading 5-3. Bagwell lined a single to right that scored Young, and Yelding tried to follow him with the tying run. O'Neill came up throwing.

"I knew the ball was on target. I didn't know if it was going to beat him or not," O'Neill said. "All I did was throw it and hope."

Yelding beat the ball, but made a bad decision. He could have slid in safely as Reed reached toward right field to take the throw; instead, he ran him over, and was called out by umpire Dutch Renner when Reed held on.

Yelding had expected Reed to block the plate, and decided halfway down the line he'd run him over.

"If I would have slid, I would have been safe," Yelding said.

Boyd beats local for berth in finals

LUBBOCK — Snyder's Jason Warren fell to Chris Boyd of Sweetwater, 6-2, 6-0, Saturday in the quarterfinal round of the Highway 80 Tennis Tournament.

Boyd went on to defeat Vernon's Tony Soto, 6-3, 5-7, 6-3, in the 16 Regular Division on Saturday before earning a spot in the finals by beating Eric Alexander of Lubbock in straight sets, 6-0, 6-1.

Boyd lost to Matt Conner of Temple in the championship match, Sunday, 6-2, 6-3.

Oilers 16, Dodgers 6

Valerio Torres pitched the Oilers to a 16-6 win over the Dodgers in a recent Junior Teenage League tilt.

Torres added four hits, one for an extra base, from the plate. Other top offensive performers for the Braves included Nathan Zalman, who ripped a double and two singles and Jimmy Henry, who doubled twice.

Reagan Key contributed a pair of hits, as did Russell Schlegel, and Tommy Torres, Doug Seabourn and Oliver Vasquez each clubbed a single.

Craig Lang hammered two base hits for the Dodgers followed by teammates Jeff Hobbs and Chris Mitchell with a single each.

Rangers win, 2-1...

Guzman two-hits California

ANAHEIM, Calif. (AP) — For nearly three years, Jose Guzman was the Texas Rangers' big burden.

Recently, though, his status has been upgraded.

"He is a Godsend," Texas manager Bobby Valentine said Sunday after watching Guzman come to the Rangers' rescue.

Guzman's two-hit, 10-strikeout effort stifled California 2-1. Furthermore, his second consecutive complete game gave welcome relief to a bullpen that had tolled 13 innings the previous two days.

"Guzman made us look good. We didn't play that well, but good pitching will erase a lot of mistakes," Valentine said after the Rangers jumped into a tie for second place in the American League West, three games behind Minnesota.

For three long years, while he struggled to overcome a rotator cuff tear, Guzman had looked only hapless. His injury surfaced near the end of his 11-13 season in 1988, and his comeback was slowed by his initial decision to rest instead of undergo surgery.

Guzman finally had an operation early last year, but rehabilitation delayed his return an additional year.

Finally, he and the Rangers can see the long process paying dividends. Guzman went the distance against Oakland, winning 6-1 on Tuesday.

Sunday marked his highest strikeout total since April 7, 1988,

Couples earns Memphis win

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — If Fred Couples had gone through with his original plans to skip the $1 million St. Jude Classic, it would have been a $180,000 mistake.

Couples took charge on the back-nine Sunday, posting a final-round of 3-under-par 68 and matching Tom Kite's 72-hole record at the TPC Southwind with a 15-under 269 to capture the $180,000 winner's check.

After building a one-stroke lead in Saturday's third round, Couples admitted the Memphis stop, in its third year at the 7,006-yard, par-71 Southwind course, almost didn't happen.

"I loved the old Colonial course we used to play, and you become a little stubborn when there's a change," said Couples, whose titles include the 1984 Tournament Players Championship.

Peter Persons, who was paired with Couples, kept the heat on early, reaching 13-under for the tournament and leading for five holes before hitting into the water on both 11 and 12 to open the door for Couples.

Couples, now a five-time tour winner, took advantage of Persons' misfortune, sinking birdie putts of 15 feet at both the 12th and 14th holes and tapping in from four feet on 16 to pull away from the field.

"I felt that I hit some aggressive shots, but I just didn't make any putts (early in the round)," said Couples, who matched par on his first 11 holes. "I just didn't get the ball that close. The greens were hard and fast and I may not have putted them too aggressively."

Couples, now a five-time tour winner, took advantage of Persons' misfortune, sinking birdie putts of 15 feet at both the 12th and 14th holes and tapping in from four feet on 16 to pull away from the field.

Trevino gets ace at WTC

Ruben Trevino fired a hole-in-one Sunday on the Western Texas College golf course.

Trevino's ace came on the 172-yard sixth hole using a 4-iron. Witnesses included Morris Allred and Frank Frizzell.

Space exhibit opens

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — For some visitors to an 80-ton exhibit that outlines the Soviet space program, it brought back memories of fear that Soviet superiority in space was a danger to the United States.

"We all had such a sense of doom," Barbara Page, 41, of Clearwater, Fla., recalled. "This rekindles all those old fears, but it's really pleasant to find that we can now share what we know, instead of all that fear and panic."

She was among more than 6,000 people who turned out Saturday for the opening of Soviet Space, which outlines the Soviet space program from Sputnik to space stations.

For the most part, visitors have raved about the show, the first comprehensive exhibit of the Russian space exploration.

"This is fascinating," said Ann Prather-Powers, 41, of Fort Worth. "I've been to NASA in Houston and Cape Canaveral and you don't meet anyone from NASA — just a tour guide. There are Soviets here."

The exhibit, which is scheduled to run at the Fort Worth Museum of Science and History through Jan. 1, opens with a 15-minute film tracking the history of the space race between the United States and the Soviet Union.

"I didn't realize they were the first in a lot of things concerning space," said Rex Whalen of Fort Worth. "That was really surprising."

The 1 1/2-hour tour begins with models of early Soviet rockets. Visitors then move on to replicas of Soviet capsules, research satellites and an orbital observatory. Soviet missions to Mars, Venus and the Moon also are covered extensively.

One display model simulates the preparation and launch of a Soviet rocket. The four-foot capsule "lifted off" eight inches with a cold rush of air.

Visitors are allowed to walk inside the work module of the Mir space station, and the floor of the display is designed to make them feel as though they are experiencing the weightlessness of space.

"It made me feel as if I was going to throw up," said Rebecca Jackson of Dallas. "Is that what space is like?"

Historic shoe store circled by downtown development

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Shoehorned between the Caravan of Dreams and the rising profile of Sundance West stands Solomons Shoe Store, a relic of an earlier era when downtown streets were lined with mom-and-pop shops.

Owner Leroy Solomon, whose folks started selling shoes at 306 Houston St. during the Depression, is the sole holdout on the block. He is the lone retailer who has not surrendered his turf to a buyout by the Bass family, developers of downtown's urban-renewed Sundance Square.

The Caravan of Dreams, the nightclub next to the shoe store, has reopened after a six-month renovation and expansion. Solomon remained unperturbed by the scaffolding, the sidewalk detours, the dust and incessant construction noise.

Content to fit the feet of families who have bought his moderately priced shoes for generations, the 62-year-old retailer is in no rush to run off.

His 2,400-square foot property is appraised by tax authorities at $120,000; it is listed for sale by Henry S. Miller for $1 million.

"As long as my health holds and our customers keep coming in, I'll stay," said Solomon, who enjoys updating customers with news about his own grown children: two physicians and a teacher.

Bill Boecker, general manager of Sundance Square, said his agents tried to purchase Solomons. The space was envisioned as part of Sundance West, a high-rise complex of apartments, shops and offices.

But the agents gave up, Boecker said.

"We were unable to reach what everybody was comfortable with as far as price," he said. "So we designed around it. It's a wonderful little building. It's a piece of history there."

Solomons' two-story brick walls were constructed in 1903, its Red Goose Juvenile Shoes sign installed in 1948. With tiled entryway, whirring ceiling fans and oak-framed glass doors, the store offers a pleasant step backward. Glass cabinets display worn-out, button-topped boots like those that Solomon's parents, Julius and Selma, sold when they entered the shoe trade.

Beneath the checkout counter, another glass shelf features a rainbow-hued Poll Parrot doll and a foot-high Red Goose statue alongside old, worn, patent-leather shoes sold under those long-gone labels.

Adorning the walls are scenes from "Treasure Island" and glimpses of Disney characters, painted in the late 1930s from a comic book that Leroy Solomon's brother Manny, now 67, was reading the night a painting crew redecorated the store.

Over the years, a succession of painters has given the walls new coats of white, being careful to paint around Donald Duck, Mickey Mouse and Goofy.

"It's just amazing how Solomons has survived all these years," said Bud Schwartz, who ran a Houston Street shoe store until the early 1970s, when construction dust and detours drove him out. "They still have a very loyal following. People go out of their way to buy shoes from them. It's a David-and-Goliath story."

Schwartz remembers the pre-mall era, when at least 17 Houston Street stores sold shoes and boots — among them Luskey's Western Store, one block north.

Louis Luskey, 70, who has helped out in the family business since he was 8 years old, recalled the bustle of downtown shoppers, particularly on Friday nights.

"With stores open late, till 9 p.m., there were two police on each corner to work the traffic," he said. "I can picture it right now, the various locations of the stores. Going down the street there was Bud Schwartz and Meyer Schwartz — not related. There was International Shoe Co. Julius and Selma Solomon bought it and the boys joined. Across the street was Burt's and Bakers, Hollywood Shoe Store ... and Sam Schwartz, Meyer's brother."

That was before downtown businesses opened suburban branches, before malls drew stores like magnets and before high-rises dwarfed merchants like Leroy Solomon.

But the sole holdout isn't feeling shopworn.

"I had my best Easter ever," maintained Solomon, content to be among the last of a vanishing breed. "I'm looking forward to a big back-to-school business."

New Stonehenge has been built in Texas hill country

HUNT, Texas (AP) — Unlike its counterpart in England, there is no question about who built the Kerr County arches.

But why Stonehenge II was built is just as elusive as the mystery surrounding the prehistoric megaliths rising up from the English countryside.

"We didn't set out to build Stonehenge," said Al Shepperd, who designed the structure along with neighbor Doug Hill. "We were just messing around with rock and it kind of grew. We certainly had no idea the way it would turn out."

Far from the Salisbury Plain, this modern-day monument rises in a pasture along a rural lane in the Hill Country, two miles west of Hunt on Farm Road 1340 — about 115 miles west of Austin.

The massive structure is generally 60 percent as tall as the original and 90 percent as large in circumference.

"When you turn the corner, you know what a great curiosity it is and the mindset — why is it here? Why is the original one built where it is?" said Phil Neighbors, executive vice president of the Kerrville Area Chamber of Commerce.

Many theories exist about the origins of the English Stonehenge, but no one knows for sure who built it or what prompted its conception. But Stonehenge II was born at the Kerrville dump in the summer of 1989.

Hill, 39, a tile contractor, was gathering limestone for his patio but decided one stone was too large for his use. So he crossed the road and stood it upright in Shepperd's field.

"Doug pulled up at 7:30 (a.m.) and said 'I've got a rock out here for you,'" said Shepperd, 70, a retired motel owner.

"I said, 'It looks kind of funny by itself, let's put an arch somewhere,'" he said.

Hill constructed an arch 13 feet tall, with a three-foot wide opening. Together, the haphazardly placed limestone and the man-made frame reminded Shepperd of Stonehenge, which he had visited earlier in 1989.

The two then set out to create a replica of the famous landmark. From August 1989 to May 1990, Hill built hollow plaster arches that were reinforced with steel rods and metal lath.

Each pillar of the arches is set in concrete for stability. The plaster was tinted a dark gray and allowed to weather to resemble the stone of the original.

The four inner arches are 11-12 feet tall. The ones that ring the outside vary from 9 to 11 feet tall to compensate for the slope of the land. Five thousand square-feet of plaster and 800 bags of cement were used in the construction.

Hill said he was more interested in making the Stonehenge replica look right than trying to match the scale of the original. He said he did not attempt to align the sculpture with astronomical bodies — as the original Stonehenge appears to be — since the hills in the area block the sun at various times anyway.

"It's probably not perfect, but it gets the point across," Hill said. "It's a play thing. I like to think of it as a work of art, but I haven't found anyone else who needs one."

Since the early days of construction, cars have screeched to a halt when the project comes into view.

Already, there has been a wedding, youth campouts and numerous photo sessions — including one for a ballet troupe and rock album cover — at the site.

The story has appeared on national television and in a children's magazine.

"People thought we were crazy," Shepperd said. "They thought we were getting into satanism."

But not everyone likes Stonehenge II. Hill said an employee of a nearby youth camp told him she looks the other way when she drives by because she believes the design is evil.

"She is thoroughly against it," Hill said, "like it was an idol."

But most people see the sculpture as a quirky tourist attraction.

"It's another thing that draws attention to Kerrville and Kerr County," said Neighbors.

The Kerrville Area Chamber of Commerce includes the sculpture on its list of attractions.

"We encourage people to come and look," Shepperd said.

He and Hill are planning to add a log book for visitors to sign. T-shirts depicting the project are also a possibility.

The two designers now are discussing a second project in the 22-acre field that would depict the crash of an unidentified flying object.

Hill said it will be up to the visitor to decide if the UFO has any symbolic connection to Stonehenge.

Shepperd said he generally visits the site during the day and doesn't get hooked into its mysticism.

Hill, though, says the replica is a special place.

Agreement calls for army pullback in Slovenia

LJUBLJANA, Yugoslavia (AP) — Yugoslavia edged back from civil war today after an agreement that government troops would return to barracks in rebellious Slovenia, and a break in a bitter political deadlock over the country's leadership.

But it was not yet certain that the army would abide by the pullback pact which was reached late Sunday by federal Premier Ante Markovic and Slovenian leaders and was to take effect today.

The army had been without a supreme commander since mid-May because the collective presidency of the ethnically diverse federation was paralyzed by a dispute over its annually rotating chairmanship.

That stalemate was broken with the election of Croatia's Stipe Mesic to the post early today. Forces led by Serbia, which is the largest Yugoslav republic and dominates the army, had for six weeks blocked Mesic's appointment.

Marxist-ruled Serbia

vehemently opposes the independence drives of Slovenia and Croatia, which turned to secession six days ago after failing in their attempts to transform Yugoslavia into a loose association of sovereign states.

Logistics of the demobilization in Slovenia still had to be worked out.

But prospects for a peaceful settlement to Yugoslavia's gravest postwar crisis were at their brightest since last week, when fighting flared between the federal army and Slovenia's territorial guard.

Slovenia's mainly reservist force had put up unexpected resistance to the Yugoslav army after it moved to seize border posts and the main airport.

Tension remained high in the Slovenian capital of Ljubljana today. Streets were barricaded by buses and trucks, and the territorial militia was on high alert.

Fighting between federal troops and Slovenian defense forces has since Thursday claimed the lives of at least 63 people and wounded 142.

Budget crunch affects many states

By The Associated Press

Maine's failure to enact a spending plan forced a shutdown of non-essential state services today, and a similar closure loomed in Connecticut as budget talks came in under the wire or fell short in several states and New York City.

Connecticut, California, Pennsylvania, Ohio, North Carolina, Illinois and Massachusetts entered a new fiscal year today without a spending plan in place.

New Jersey adopted a budget just before the midnight deadline, as did Washington state. New York City reached agreement on a spending plan in time to avert a takeover by a financial board created during the fiscal crisis of the 1970s.

In Maine, Gov. John R. McKernan ordered about 2,000 employees to report to work at jobs involving health and safety. More than 10,000 others were told to stay home until further notice while the Legislature wrangled over a budget.

"We hope this impasse is going to be resolved as quickly as possible and we want to get back to the normal operation of government," McKernan said.

Connecticut Gov. Lowell Weiker vetoed a budget passed by the Legislature but delayed a similar shutdown by 24 hours. The Legislature was given midnight tonight to approve an acceptable budget.

"We will not have a series of one-day delays. This is it," he said. Weiker has warned that he will furlough about 7,000 employees if lawmakers don't approve a spending plan by 11 p.m.

Lawmakers over the weekend rejected Weiker's proposal to enact a state income tax, approving a budget that relied instead on sales taxes on a variety of previously untaxed services, including haircuts, taxis and dry cleaning.

There were no other immediate threats of large-scale government shutdowns in states that failed to adopt budgets.

New Jersey legislators passed a budget and Gov. Jim Florio signed it just six minutes before the midnight deadline. The $14.7 billion spending plan calls for no new taxes but could force the layoffs of up to 2,300 workers.

New York Mayor David Dinkins and City Council leaders agreed on a $28.7 billion budget that will cost the average city homeowner about $143 in additional real estate taxes. The plan calls for most of the $1.5 billion in service cuts Dinkins originally proposed, including 10,000 layoffs.

In Pennsylvania, legislators abandoned their marathon session shortly before 9 p.m. and conceded their budget would be late. Before recessing, the Senate approved a stopgap budget to keep money flowing for welfare and debt service.

With no budget in place, $250 million owed to schools and to push ahead with privatization, it took just two months to complete work on the law, which is remarkably fast for the Soviet parliament.

But Burlatsky said it actually required the entire six years of Gorbachev's leadership to reach this decision, which is critical to development of a market economy.

Burlatsky said the battle over implementation of privatization continues.

Most important, the central government, republics, and even local governments are fighting over who owns each factory — and therefore who gets the money when each is sold.

The law creates a national foundation for privatization, which will decide which factories to sell.

The foundation will create a committee for each factory, including representatives of all interested parties which will decide the price and how to sell the factory. Some factories may be given away.

During debate today, some lawmakers wanted to give employees the right to veto the sale of their companies.

The proposal failed after Deputy Prime Minister Vladimir Shcherbakov said "this section can paralyze the entire law."

He and other lawmakers said workers might block the sale of companies to prevent government subsidies from being cut off and protect jobs.

Police work stabbing; note gunshot victim

Snyder police made only one arrest over the weekend but handled numerous calls, including a stabbing, an apparent self-inflicted gunshot wound and an assault.

Officers filed a report of a self-inflicted gunshot wound after they were called to the 2400 block of 26th St. at 3:45 p.m. Sunday. Snyder EMS took a 31-year-old man to Cogdell Memorial Hospital where he received treatment for a gunshot wound to the abdomen. He was later transferred to St. Mary of the Plains Hospital where he is reported in stable condition today.

Police said it is believed a .25 caliber handgun was used in the shooting.

Police identified a 67-year-old male as a suspect in an aggravated assault Sunday in which another male, 67-year-old David Bailey, was stabbed at about 4:25 p.m. in the 3200 block of Ave. K.

Bailey, a resident of 3008 Ave. K, was treated and released at Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

The suspect has not been arrested and the case has been filed with the county attorney.

In a report Saturday, police responded to a fight at the Smith Recreation Center at 11:42 a.m. No arrests were made, but one individual was transported to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by private vehicle. After being treated, he came to the police department to file Class A assault charges against another individual.

The weekend's only arrest came at 1:55 a.m. Sunday when police took a 22-year-old male into custody in the 2600 block of Ave. E for public intoxication.

At 10:30 a.m. Sunday, H.E. Lewis requested an officer in reference to someone breaking into a trailer house at Lewis' Used Cars and taking a briefcase. A burglarly report was filed.

Earlier in the day, at 10:21 a.m., Mary Lou Mata of 2003 Ave. E contacted police in reference to someone breaking a window out of her van. A report was taken for criminal mischief Class B.

Among the accidents reported over the weekend were:

—at 1:24 p.m. Sunday, police worked an accident at 5300 College Ave. involving a 1987 Ford van driven by Casey Franks of 2311 40th St. and a TU Electric light pole. Damage to the pole was estimated at $600.

—at 8:15 p.m. Sunday, officers worked a hit-and-run at 1500 27th St. involving a parked, unoccupied 1988 Ford Ranger pickup owned by Orville Proffitt of Lawton, Okla., and an unknown vehicle which left the scene.

—at 4:23 p.m. Saturday, police worked an accident at 4600 College involving a 1982 Mercury driven by Jesse McClain of Rotan and a 1987 Buick driven by Cecil Gray Jr. of Rt. 3, Box 125.

—and, at 11:21 a.m. Saturday, officers investigated an accident at 1400 College Ave. involving a 1988 Chevrolet driven by Elburn Lynn Mendenhall of Abilene which was towing a 1983 Airstream travel trailer, and a 1979 Ford Crown Victoria driven by Opal Wood Eades of 803 E. 19th St.

Police also reported five bicycles found early Monday morning. Found were a 24-inch Murray two-speed bicycle in the 4500 block of El Paso at 12:52 a.m.; a 20-inch Huffey bike and a 26-inch Huffey 12-speed bike at 1:02 a.m. at Towle Park Pool; and a 26-inch Huffey 10-speed and a 20-inch Casino five-speed at 1:23 a.m. in the 3700 block of Austin Ave.

The bicycles were taken to the police department.

Judge: doctors cannot unplug comatose woman's respirator

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A judge today rejected the appeal of doctors who sought to unplug the respirator of a severely brain-damaged woman against her husband's wishes.

Hennepin County Judge Patricia Belois granted Oliver Wanglie the power to make medical decisions for his wife of 54 years, Helga. She has been in a persistent vegetative state since May 1990.

Doctors at Hennepin County Medical Center had asked Belois to appoint an independent conservator to decide Mrs. Wanglie's fate.

"I think she'd be proud of me," Wanglie said when the judge's decision was announced. "She knew where I stood. I have a high regard for the sanctity of human life. We seemed to have lost a lot of our moral fiber in this country."

The Wanglie case is considered unique because family members rarely argue against doctors' advice in such cases, according to Dr. Steven Miles, an ethicist at Hennepin County Medical Center. When disputes arise, normally it's because doctors refuse family requests to terminate life-sustaining care.

Wanglie, a retired lawyer, has said no one is better suited than he to decide his wife's fate.

The Wanglies, both 87, are devout Lutherans and Mrs. Wanglie is a minister's daughter. He said the tenet he shares with his wife about sustaining human life at all costs was something they discussed but never wrote down.

"He is in the best position to investigate and act upon Helga Wanglie's conscientious, religious and moral beliefs," the judge wrote in her decision granting guardianship powers.

At a court hearing May 28, Miles said doctors at the county-owned hospital don't question Wanglie's sincerity, but they object to treating his wife because her condition is hopeless and respirators are not meant for prolonging life in such instances.

Miles said in court that Wanglie does not fully understand his wife's condition and was not competent to make medical decisions for her.

The judge disagreed.

"Except for unconvincing testimony from some physicians and health care providers at the Hennepin County Medical Center, there is no evidence that Oliver Wanglie is unable to perform the duties and responsibilities of a guardian," she wrote.

Mrs. Wanglie's medical problems started Dec. 14, 1989, when she tripped on a rug. Respiratory problems and pneumonia followed. A respiratory attack at a St. Paul hospital in May 1990 cut off oxygen to her brain, resulting in severe brain damage and her persistent vegetative state.

Dear Abby

Relative's Hug Is Too Close For Young Woman's Comfort

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1991 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I have a male relative who puts his arms around me, holds me close, and hugs me every time he sees me.

I have hinted that I don't like it, but to no avail. When I casually mentioned this to his wife, she smiled and said, "People who experience physical contact tend to have fewer emotional problems."

Abby, this may be true, but as far as I'm concerned, every time he does this to me, I feel manhandled, and I dislike it intensely.

If I were to take harsh measures, my other relatives would say I'm being foolish — he is just being friendly.

Please tell me how to handle this situation. I am not a child.

YOUNG FEMALE ADULT

DEAR YOUNG FEMALE ADULT: Quit hinting, and when this male relative approaches you, give him the straight-arm and this short speech: "From now on, no more hugging, please. I don't mean to be unfriendly, but I really am not into hugging."

And if his wife again interjects her opinion with regard to physical contact and emotional problems, you smile and tell her that you don't need that much physical contact — and you'll take your chances with "emotional problems," should any occur.

DEAR ABBY: I don't lie, steal, swear, gamble or cheat on my husband. I don't do drugs, cheat on my taxes, abuse my children or run stop signs. I don't chew my fingernails, drink to excess, overeat, gossip or spit on the sidewalk. But I am addicted to cigarettes, and consequently, I am subjected to verbal and emotional abuse by non-smokers.

I know what it is like to be treated like a second-class citizen. I am told where I may and may not sit. I have been told that I stink, I'm weak, and I ought to be ashamed of myself.

So what do I do? I go out in the

Republicans: GAO, CBO do Democrats' bidding

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Iraqis weren't the only enemy in the Persian Gulf, Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf complained. His troops also faced a platoon sent from back home — pesky auditors from the General Accounting Office.

"GAO audits have a place — outside the theater of warfare," Schwarzkopf heatedly told the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Schwarzkopf apologized for getting emotional. But that was just what Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., was looking for.

"Perhaps we can rein in this agency," he told the general. Perhaps not, but minority Republicans in Congress are giving it their best shot.

In the House and Senate, leading Republicans have grown irritated with what they see as pro-Democratic bias in Congress' non-partisan support agencies — and are introducing bills to fight back.

Although these agencies are just acronyms to most people, and their work dull number-crunching, they lay the groundwork for tax and budget decisions that affect everyone.

"There has ... been a clear pattern in recent GAO testimonies that promote a policy, rather than provide information," Sen. Pete V. Domenici, R-N.M., said last week as he called for an audit of the auditors.

Domenici said Comptroller General Charles Bowsher, who heads the GAO, supported Democratic arguments when he suggested that billions of dollars could be saved if the United States adopted a national health care system like Canada's.

GAO publications, meanwhile, carry articles with a clear political preference, Domenici said, and one 1988 document "read like the policy platform of the defeated Gov. (Michael) Dukakis," the Democratic presidential nominee that year.

"The confidence members can have that a product produced at GAO will be objective and unbiased has clearly been lost," he said.

ally and light a cigarette to comfort myself and calm my nerves. Am I such a bad person?

GUILTY IN ANTIGO, WIS.

DEAR GUILTY: No, you are not a "bad" person. You are just one of millions of smokers who are addicted to cigarettes and are not yet ready to do whatever it takes to free yourself of this addiction. When you're ready, call the National Cancer Institute's Cancer Information Service. Its toll-free number is (800) 4-CANCER.

DEAR ABBY: I recently had a friend visiting me. She brought her children along. I noticed that her children were playing at my desk where I keep my jewelry in a drawer.

After they left, I discovered that one of my rings was missing. Should I tell my friend?

ANXIOUS

DEAR ANXIOUS: Yes. But before telling her, search everywhere you think the ring might be, to make certain that it is nowhere to be found — not just misplaced.

From 'doomsday rocks'

NASA wants to protect Earth

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (AP) — Scientists say Earth is a sitting duck in a cosmic shooting gallery of asteroids, and they are plotting ways to prevent a "doomsday rock" from hitting the planet and wiping out much of humanity.

"We want the public to know there are these flying rocks out there that may be a menace to Earth," said planetary scientist Eleanor Helin of NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena.

The chances of a big asteroid striking Earth during any one human lifetime are extremely small. But so many people would be killed that any individual's chances of dying this way are between 1-in-6,000 and 1-in-20,000, said David Morrison, space science chief at NASA's Ames Research Center in Mountain View.

"The risk that it will say on your tombstone, 'Killed as the result of an asteroid impact' is somewhat greater than chances you'll be killed in an airplane crash — and much greater than being killed by fireworks, tor-

Gray's expertise is needed

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater had just learned that Thurgood Marshall was retiring from the Supreme Court.

"I'll go tell the president," he told his secretary as he bolted for his office door. "Get Boyden Gray right away."

The chance to sift through the backgrounds of candidates for the nation's highest court was no doubt a welcome change for Gray, the tall, gangly White House legal counsel.

Gray has been immersed in recent weeks — spending far more time that he liked, according to associates — on the controversy surrounding the travel practices of President Bush's chief of staff, John Sununu.

In the process, Gray has become the one official with the power to ground Sununu, who has inspired fear and animosity throughout the government and who technically is Gray's superior.

Following Gray's review of Sununu's far-ranging travel on Pentagon jets, Bush decreed that the staff chief could no longer commandeer a government plane without the counsel's approval. Nor may he travel on a corporate aircraft unless Gray decides there is no conflict of interest involved.

That the president would place so much trust in his 48-year-old counsel does not surprise associates who say the two have built close ties. Gray was counsel in Bush's vice presidential office and the first presidential appointee.

"He is the only guy around here who doesn't seem to mind walking to work in a rainstorm," presidential assistant Sig Rogich said of Gray. "It just shows that Boyden is unaffected. I like his style."

The president and his lawyer share patrician roots, although Bush grew up in Connecticut and Gray is from North Carolina. Their late fathers — Sen. Prescott Bush and Gordon Gray — were friends.

nadoes, volcanic eruptions, nuclear accidents or terrorism," he said.

Helin and Morrison were among more than 160 astronomers, engineers and planetary scientists who gathered here Sunday for the International Conference on Near-Earth Asteroids. The conference ends Wednesday.

The meeting is sponsored by the NASA and The Planetary Society, a non-profit group with 120,000 members worldwide.

Scientists say it's technically feasible to prevent catastrophic collisions by placing huge rockets on asteroids or exploding nuclear bombs to nudge them out of Earth's path.

First, they want more money to build telescopes to search for "near-Earth asteroids" — big rocks that cross Earth's orbit, which are leftovers from the solar system's formation and may be on a collision course with the planet.

"Earth exists in a cosmic shooting gallery," Morrison said. "It would be prudent to broaden the search so we can find out if there is a doomsday rock out there."

Such a collision "could happen tomorrow. It could happen any time," said Tom Gehrels, who heads an asteroid-hunting project at the University of Arizona's Spacewatch Telescope on Kitt Peak. "If it does happen, society goes."

"We're talking about almost unbelievable widespread death and destruction" if Earth is hit by an asteroid wider than one-half to one mile, Morrison said. Such a collision would have the power at least 77,000 atomic bombs of the size that destroyed Hiroshima — and probably many more, he said.

"If you've seen pictures of what it's been like in the Philippines with Mount Pinatubo erupting, just imagine that happening all over Earth," he said. "The sky turns pitch black. Temperatures drop and kill crops. Most of us would probably starve to death."

Evidence suggests a 6-mile-wide asteroid smashed into Earth 65 million years ago, killing two-thirds of all species, including the dinosaurs.

Smaller asteroids pose a more frequent threat. A 10-foot-wide rock would kill thousands if it hit midtown Manhattan, Helin said.

Earth came close to such a collision on Jan. 18, when a 30-foot-wide asteroid swept within 106,000 miles of Earth.

Body to be exhumed to prove paternity

COMANCHE, Texas (AP) — A Dallas genetic testing firm will try to determine whether a man who died last December was the father of a 2-year-old Comanche girl whose mother seeks the majority of his estate.

Successful DNA reconstructions have been performed on bodies buried up to several years, said Bob Giles, scientific director of Gene Screen.

"Whether or not it will work will be determined by the state the body is in," Giles said.

State District Judge James Morgan has said he would approve the exhumation once an order is presented so that a paternity suit filed by the mother of the young girl can be settled.

Iris Malcom Edmondson, 47, of Comanche died Dec. 21 from a heart attack, according to Christopher Till, an attorney representing Peggy Hidrogo. She said Edmondson is the father of her daughter.

"As the surviving child, she would get most of everything," Till told the Abilene Reporter-News.

If the girl is determined to be Edmondson's child, her inheritance would be held in a trust until she turned 18. She also would become eligible for Social Security benefits, Till said.

Edmondson did not leave a will and his wife of five years, Paula, was named administrator of his estate. The estate is valued at between $40,000 and $50,000, said John Gleaton, an attorney representing Ms. Edmondson.

If the test shows with 99 percent or greater certainty that Edmondson is the girl's father, the result probably will be accepted, Gleaton said.

Till said Gene Screen officials told him that with genetic testing on the body, they can prove it by that degree of certainty.

Blood samples from Ms. Hidrogo and her daughter will be compared with tissue samples from Edmondson's body.

Gene Screen normally tries to reconstruct a DNA pattern from a deceased person's closest living relatives to determine paternity. But Giles said that could not be done in this case because Edmondson has no known children and his father is dead.

The results of the procedure, which is expected to be conducted in the next several weeks, will not be known for four to six weeks.

Till refused to discuss his client's relationship with Edmondson or why Hidrogo had not previously sought to determine paternity.

State officials react to base closing decisions

By The Associated Press
Three Texas military bases are candidates for the chopping block while a fourth dodged the same fate in an eleventh hour decision by the Base Closure and Realignment Commission.

The vote Sunday recommends Carswell Air Force Base in Fort Worth, Bergstrom Air Force Base in Austin and Chase Field Naval Air Station in Bee County for closure.

Kingsville Naval Air Station emerged the only Texas military base winner as the independent commission voted to keep the base open.

"There is no doubt the sigh of relief is very common among the community at this point," said Kleberg County Sheriff Adan Munoz. "Our hard work and prayers paid off."

Munoz, who watched the commission's decision on television, said, "We should all take more time to appreciate what maybe we have taken for granted in the past."

"I guess I could say I'm happy for a lot of people," said Arthur Chisolm, who was on duty at Kingsville NAS Sunday afternoon. "I imagine a lot of the people on base didn't get a lot of sleep last night."

Rep. Pete Geren, D-Fort Worth, said in Washington he was very disappointed by the commission's vote to close Carswell, and shares the disappointment with "thousands of people back home."

"I can say with certainty that we left nothing on the table. Our community put its shoulder to the wheel and fought this decision as hard as humanly possible. No community in the country did as much as we did."

Geren promised to fight in Congress to keep the Carswell hospital open, saying closing the hospital would actually cost taxpayers and that saving the hospital will result in saving taxpayer dollars.

Fort Worth Mayor Kay Granger said the decision was not what the city wanted to hear.

"Well we're very disappointed, we disagree strong with the decision," Ms. Granger said. "We felt like the commission members made statements throughout about other bases that supported what we said about Carswell, but the decision has been made now."

Ms. Granger said she will appoint a task force this week to immediately analyze the situation and recommend alternative uses for the base.

While Bergstrom's closure was expected, it was not a foregone conclusion, said Austin mayor Bruce Todd, who was sworn into office two weeks ago.

"While it's devastating news, it was fairly well anticipated," Todd said. "I think it's time for Austin to press ahead with studies of civilian uses for that site."

Bergstrom's closure could help solve a lengthy dispute over the relocation of the city's civilian airport, Robert Mueller Airport.

For the past 10 years city leaders and voters have been trying to expand the site, now east of downtown. The Austin City Council voted about four years ago to move the airport to a site near Manor, a town northeast of Austin. But those plans were tabled when word of Bergstrom's possible closure surfaced.

Despite word that the federal base closing commission voted to shutter Chase Naval Air Station in Beville, some residents expressed optimism that the South Texas community would bounce back.

"I consider this a victory ... in the disappointment in the moment is a brighter, more hopeful look into a future with endless opportunities," said retired Navy

Capt. Bob Ferguson, who commanded Chase Field from 1972-75.

Ferguson, who for the past 15 months chaired the task force to keep Chase Field open, watched the panel's vote from his Beeville home, surrounded by family members.

Both he and task force member Jay Kimbrough said they were delighted that the commission voted not to make Chase Field an outlying field for the Navy. That decision would have kept the field in the Navy's hands for periodic use.

"Of course the victory for us was that we were not designated as an outlying field. That would have been a catastrophe of all catastrophes," said Kimbrough, a Beeville lawyer who served as an infantry machine gunner in Vietnam.

Chase's loss will be catastrophic, said Kimbrough, who estimated 29 percent of Bee County's income stems from Chase. But he and Ferguson expressed hope that the field — and community — could find a new life.

"Our beloved Chase Field will truly become ours," Ferguson said. "Ours to build, to create, to expand and to develop."

With the 6-1 vote to close Chase, the commission voted to keep open Kingsville NAS and Meridian NAS in Meridian, Miss.

Kimbrough said the fault for the negative vote on Chase should be laid at the feet of Rep. Solomon Ortiz, D-Corpus Christi, whose district includes Kingsville.

Kimbrough said Ortiz did not fight to save Chase, allying himself instead with supporters of the Mississippi facility.

"I trust the integrity of the commissioners," he said, adding,

Fight is underway for helping dairy farmers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A strong push is under way in Congress to help dairy farmers out of a financial slump, but feelings run deep and emotions are often at odds.

The National Milk Producers Federation, for example, says the Agriculture Department is wrong in claiming that dairy price support policies are sufficient. Much improvement is needed, it says.

The push to help dairy farmers — who are simply producing more milk than is needed — has raised the hackles of James Bovard of Cato Institute, a libertarian research group based in Washington.

"Congress is on the verge of creating a new criminal class in America — milk bootleggers," Bovard said. "Farm-state congressmen are launching another crusade to drive up dairy prices via sweeping new controls over dairy farmers and milk sales."

Last week, a House Agriculture subcommittee voted 10-9 to boost the government's minimum milk support from $10.10 to $12.40 per 100 pounds.

The plan would guarantee the higher price on a limited amount of a dairy farmer's production, and a lower price for the rest — a two-tiered principle opposed by the Bush administration.

Under the federation plan, the overall milk support would be raised only to $11.60 per hun-dredweight, the approximate cost of production. A two-tiered arrangement would apply temporarily to deal with surpluses as those occur.

The subcommittee, headed by Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, and the federation agree that dairy farmers are being hit financially by depressed market prices and under-priced supports.

USDA figures indicate that dairy cash receipts in 1991 may drop nearly $3 billion from last year's record level of $20.2 billion. Milk prices, which reached $14.48 per hundredweight in 1990, are expected to average about $11.70 this year.

Bovard, an associate policy analyst at the Cato Institute, which opposes governmental involvement in many activities, contends that dairy prices in 1989 and 1990 "soared to record levels" and are just dropping back to normal.

If the push in Congress prevails, he said, milk prices could rise by as much as 40 cents per gallon.

"Dairy farmers in recent years have done far better than most farmers," Bovard said. "According to (USDA), the average dairy farmer's net worth increased by 58 percent between 1987 and 1990 — probably a larger jump in net worth than any other industry in the United States enjoyed."

Milk supports are carried out indirectly by the department's Commodity Credit Corp. Plants, or wholesalers, are required to pay dairy farmers at least the minimum price stated by the government.

In return, the CCC buys surplus butter, cheese and non-fat dry milk to keep prices from dropping below the support level. In the purest sense, the system doesn't involve direct payments to dairy farmers, although costs of operating the program are subsidies.

Bovard also includes added costs to consumers for dairy products, along with cost estimates related to other government actions designed to protect dairy producers. "American farmers are among the world's most efficient and competitive producers of some products, but most American dairy farmers are not competitive by international standards," he said. "Farmers in Australia and New Zealand can produce milk at less than half the cost that the average American farmer can."

Citing USDA studies, Bovard said dairy import quotas, price supports and marketing restrictions cost American consumers between $5 billion and $7 billion per year.

Last members dissolve Warsaw pact alliance

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — The six remaining members of the Warsaw Pact formally dissolved the defense bloc today, disbanding a once-powerful communist alliance binding the Soviet Union and satellite countries in the Soviet Union's postwar orbit. The Warsaw Pact's military structures ended April 1, and the Soviet-led trade bloc, Comecon, was disbanded last week in Budapest.

Havel, the dissident playwright jailed after the 1968 Warsaw Pact invasion of Czechoslovakia, presided at the final meeting dissolving the Warsaw Pact's Political Committee.
