Q—We have heard about home equity loans but found out they are not allowed in Texas. Is this true?

A—That's true. Home equity loans, where allowed, permit individuals to borrow against the equity they have built up in their home. The money can be used for most purposes, such as paying college tuition, starting a business or buying a new car. Texas is one of the few states that does not allow home equity loans. Texas homestead laws allow you to borrow against your home only to purchase the homestead, to refinance an existing loan, make home improvements or pay ad valorem taxes.

In Brief

Girl is killed

HOUSTON (AP) — A 12-year-old girl was shot to death by two men who forced their way into her home demanding money, police said.

Iris Michelle Perez was in her home with her mother, Jean Marie, when the robbers kicked in their front door shortly before 1 a.m. Thursday, police said.

While one of the men held Mrs. Perez, 33, and her daughter at gunpoint, the other ransacked the home, going through dresser drawers and taking jewelry, the woman told police. She said both men repeatedly screamed at the woman and her daughter to turn over their money.

When none was found, police said, one man threatened to kill the mother but moments later shot her daughter.

Physics fight

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A heated disagreement about physics sent two St. Philip's College honor students to the hospital after a classroom discussion became a bloody fight.

Three students, all studying air conditioning repair, left an applied physics course Thursday discussing when radiant energy becomes heat, according to a police statement given by one student.

By the time the three reached the far edge of a campus parking lot, the argument had become heated and the three scuffled. At that point, one student withdrew a Swiss Army knife and stabbed his classmates with a 2-inch blade, police said.

John Alvarado, 26, and James Griffin, 37, were taken to Medical Center Hospital. Alvarado was in fair condition Friday with a stab wound to his lower abdomen, and Griffin was in good condition with a stab wound to his chest, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Shorts get one-year reprieve in SISD

Assistant principal among those hired for SISD positions

A Breckenridge educator was employed Thursday as the new assistant principal at Snyder Junior High: Thomas Fogleman, 39, who has served the past seven years as a band and choir director at Breckenridge.

He was given a two-year contract to begin Aug. 12 at an annual salary of $36,000.

Fogleman holds his mid-management administrator's license and earned his master of education degree from Angelo State University in 1982. He earned an associate degree from Navarro College in Corsicana in 1973 and a bachelor's degree in music from Tarleton State University in Stephenville in 1974.

He was employed by the Breckenridge school system in 1984. Prior to that, he worked with the Roscoe public schools from 1979-84; Winters public schools from 1978-79; and Throckmorton public schools from 1974-78. All of his school posts were related to band, choir or music to include a stint as a social studies and health instructor at Roscoe.

In addition, he has served as a choir director for various First United Methodist Churches at communities where he and his family have lived.

His wife, Kem, was employed as a reading teacher for Stanfield Elementary at Thursday's meeting also.

The couple has two daughters, Lynn Michelle and Amy Elane.

In other personnel action, Snyder trustees approved Thursday the employment of 14 new staffers; the relocation of two existing Snyder teachers; and the resignation of six local

Local man given life sentence

A life sentence ended the aggravated robbery trial Thursday of 34-year-old Melvin Riggins of Snyder.

The 132nd District Court jury made its determination at 9:05 p.m. after some three hours of deliberation on the punishment phase of the trial, which began Monday.

Thursday afternoon, the seven-man, five woman jury took only 30 minutes to find Riggins guilty of the robbery charge.

The jury began verdict deliberations at 2:07 p.m. and returned with the guilty verdict at 2:37. They were asked to consider the punishment phase beginning at 6 p.m., returning with the life sentence some three hours later.

The option for a life sentence was possible due to four prior felony convictions on the defendant's record. Previously, he had been found guilty of burglary of a habitation, robbery, felony theft and possession of a controlled substance.

The jury could have levied a fine against the defendant also, but it declined this option.

Riggins was on trial for the New Year's Day robbery and beating of another Snyder man, 31-year-old Arnulfo "Ronnie" Hernandez. Hernandez later died in a Lubbock hospital of head injuries.

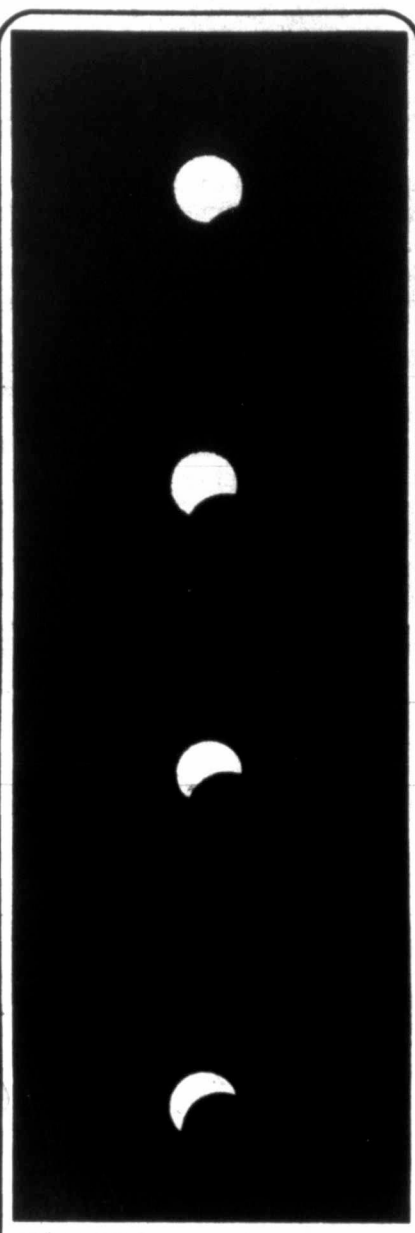

Also charged in the case are Bruce Wayne Nelson, 31, and Christopher Maurice Thompson, 30. Nelson and Thompson are in Scurry County Jail pending trial on capital murder charges.

Testimony presented during the four-day trial alleged that Hernandez' desire to purchase cocaine last Jan. 1 led him to a "hangout" on Ave. M known as Big Red's.

In a signed statement, the defendant indicated that he, Nelson, Thompson and Hernandez ended up in his car and that a fight broke out between Nelson and Hernandez over gas money.

In the statement, Riggins contended that he did not participate

'Economic factor' leads board to ok shorts for 1991-92

Students and parents who favor the wearing of shorts at Snyder High School and the junior high gained a one-year reprieve Thursday.

In response to what was termed the "economic factor" associated with the elimination of shorts, the Snyder school board — on a 4-2 split vote — backed away from implementing the new rule at the two campuses until the 1992-93 school year.

The decision came at the regular July meeting of trustees, a session which attracted a room full of Snyder High School students apparently on hand to protest the proposal.

During the board's "comments" portion of the meeting, only one student spoke up in protest, however. Kim Mitchell noted that her school wardrobe was "already purchased," commenting "I can't afford to buy new outfits all the time...and most of my outfits are shorts."

The ultimate motion to postpone the elimination of shorts at the two campuses came from trustee Geri Parker, who said she thought the "economic factor" of a wardrobe change...would present a hardship.

Her comment came in response to a second motion, however, one which would have seen the wearing of shorts eliminated this fall.

The issue itself was part of a revised student handbook presented to the board by new SHS Principal Gary Patterson. Its provisions had been profiled to the board at a workshop Monday.

At Thursday's meeting, trustee Ann Walton offered a motion to approve the handbook as presented, an action which would have left the new dress code pertaining to shorts in effect. She received a second to her motion from Billy Bob McMullan.

Following her motion, Parker offered her comments regarding the "economic factor" of the shorts change. Fellow board member Terry Martin echoed her comments, noting he had received 29 telephone calls with "24 against" this policy revision.

Walton's motion was then brought to a vote, ending in a 3-3 deadlock. Voting for it were Walton, McMullan and board president Sam Robertson. Voting against were Parker, Martin and Glen Clarady. Trustee Luann Burleson was absent from Thursday's meeting.

Parker then offered a second motion to accept the student handbook, but to delay the new dress code related to shorts until the 1992-93 school year.

As part of her motion, slightly revised guidelines regarding the "appropriate length" of the

Producer prices fall 0.3%

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prices paid by wholesalers fell 0.3 percent in June, the third decline in five months, the government said today in a sign that inflation pressures are subsiding before they reach the consumer.

The unexpected seasonally adjusted drop in the Labor Department's Producer Price Index followed an 0.6 percent spike in May, a modest 0.2 percent gain in April and declines in both March and February.

In another report, the Commerce Department said retail sales dipped 0.2 percent in June, the third loss this year, despite an advance in the automobile sector. Sales totaled a seasonally adjusted $151.9 billion, down from $152.2 billion in May. Sales also declined in January and in April.

Automobile sales, which represent about one-fifth of retail sales, rose for the second straight month, up 1.1 percent following a 0.5 percent advance a month earlier. Excluding this sector, overall sales fell 0.5 percent.

In advance, most economists had expected the wholesale price report to show flat or modestly increasing prices.

For the first half of 1990, prices paid by wholesalers for finished goods — ready to be shipped to retailers — fell at an annual rate of 1.5 percent, compared with an annualized increase of 8.2 percent in the previous six-month period.

The big difference between the two periods is in energy costs. They shot up at an annual rate of more than 60 percent in the last half of 1990 when Iraq invaded Kuwait. They fell at a rate of 19.7 percent in the first half of this year after it became clear the Persian Gulf War would not seriously disrupt world oil production.

Excluding the volatile food and energy sectors, the index moved up at an annual rate of 3.3 percent from January to June, about the same as in each of the three previous half-year spans.

In June, energy prices fell 1.4 percent after rising 2.4 percent a month earlier. Except for May, energy costs have not risen since November.

Celebration 'positive'

Ricky Fritz, interim chamber of commerce manager, related positive reports of the July 4th celebration at Towle Park during a meeting of the chamber's Tourism and Retirement Committee Thursday.

"The charge of $1 admission to the armory for the arts and crafts show was successful, he noted. The large attendance made a "break even" situation for the cost of the new portable restroom facilities provided in the park.

Progress for an Oct. 19 fundraising activity was discussed. The event will feature Hank Thompson and is to be held north of Jack Greene's home. Making the event a two-day affair was examined, with the possibility of staging an art show one day.

Randy Head noted plans for the AJRA National Finals are progressing. She said tickets and caps are available at the chamber and McDonald's. She said the rodeo will be televised for the sixth year and this year's event will be tape delayed, to be aired on Aug. 21 with sponsors to be Wrangler and Walls.

Committees are investigating having chamber-sponsored bingo in Snyder with plans for one-third of the profit to go to benefit a local charity. The chamber board approved the project with unanimous vote at its last meeting, it was announced.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "There are three kinds of memory — good, bad and convenient."

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

If you like to prow around in junk stores, you may want to beware. James Roberts, in the Andrews County News, told about a scary experience of one resident.

It occurred in New Mexico, two women on a trip started poking around an old warehouse that featured knick-knacks and antiques.

Items were hung from the ceiling, piled high on overcrowded aisles, boxes and crates were stacked in random fashion, and huge barrels contained trains of every imaginable description. One such barrel contained thousands of different kinds of buttons. One of the women was sifting through the odd assortment when she felt a sting on one of her fingers.

Thinking perhaps the finger had encountered a broken button, she thought no more of it.

Later, as the two women left the store, she felt an odd tingling in her arm, running from the wrist all the way to the shoulder.

Driving out of town, her arm began to swell. Red and yellow streaks appeared on almost the full length of her arm. Acute pain set in, and the two women headed for the doctor's office where the woman related the sting she felt at the antique store.

The doctor immediately diagnosed the ailment — a rattlesnake bite. The sheriff's office in the small town was notified. With the help of the owners, the sheriff dumped the contents of the barrel.

Among the myriad of buttons was a big mama rattler and five little'uns. The store was closed until the rattlers could be disposed of and the remainder of the barrels inspected.

So, if you're on vacation this summer and have a hankering to poke around old stores — keep your fingers out of barrels.

Critics fault lack of AIDS counselors

DALLAS (AP) — The director of an AIDS resource center praised the idea of confidential at-home testing for AIDS, but said companies providing the service apparently won't give the counseling to help victims cope with the news.

"We want people to volunteer and get tested, but we also know that getting tested without all the counseling can put people in greater jeopardy," said John Thomas, director of the AIDS Resource Center.

In some cases, Thomas said, officials believe people find out they are HIV positive and commit suicide.

According to an advertising flyer delivered recently to mailboxes in Dallas' Oak Lawn community near downtown, a company agreed, for a $50 fee, to "come wherever you are 24-hours a day, 7 days a week."

Meanwhile, similar ads by the company, HemaTest, in The Dallas Morning News, the Dallas Observer and a gay publication called This Week in Texas have prompted calls from potential clients from Denton to Houston.

"We test people who usually would not be tested," said HemaTest's founder and president, Christopher W. Brown. "We're trying to give them a service that is pampering to the client."

However, HemaTest's lack of trained counselors has Dallas County Health Department officials and some groups that serve AIDS patients concerned that they can't provide information to clients before and after the test.

Texas law requires that clients be counseled before an AIDS test to ensure that they understand the test and its possible implications. If the test is positive, the law requires that they be counseled again to help them cope with the diagnosis and to provide referrals to medical and other services.

But the state has no regulatory power to enforce the law, said Monty Waters, an attorney with the Texas Department of Health. The department can only suggest that AIDS testing services comply, he said.

The Dallas Morning News reported Thursday that Brown is the only person at HemaTest who has received training in AIDS counseling — a three-day seminar at the county health department.

He says he speaks with all clients by phone to determine how at-risk they might be, to explain the test and to make certain they won't harm themselves.

Chief of Urban League says racism is alive, well in U.S.

HOUSTON (AP) — The United States needs a domestic Marshall Plan to rebuild American cities, says National Urban League President John Jacob.

Jacob, addressing the 82nd annual NAACP convention, said the federal government spends too much money fighting overseas battles and helping the already wealthy.

"If America can spend a billion dollars a day on a war to stop Sadaam Hussein, if it can spend a billion dollars a week on the savings and loan bailouts, if it can spend one and a half trillion dollars a year in a federal budget packed with waste and handouts to the affluent, then it can afford to save our cities and invest in the people on whom its future depends," he said.

Jacob also reminded delegates of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People that racism continues to be a prominent force in America.

"The drive to achieve racial justice and parity is not finished," Jacob said.

"I am tired of hearing about how we're a colorblind society and that racism is a thing of the past. It's not. It is a clear and present danger to African-Americans and to America's future, and the people who peddle such nonsense are either lying or totally out of touch with reality or serving on the Supreme Court."

To close the weeklong meeting, the NAACP Thursday night awarded its Spingarn medal to Gen. Colin Powell, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the first black to serve as the country's top military officer.

Jacob, speaking on the final day of the NAACP's weeklong meeting, said racism didn't have to be violent, although he mentioned recent cases where blacks had been assaulted in apparent racial attacks.

"Why have so many other African-Americans been attacked by mobs, harassed by police and subjected to negative stereotypes?" he said.

But he said the nation's economic problems also could be tied to racism because the talents of minorities are not allowed to be developed.

"The time is gone when America could throw away its African-American population by relegating it to menial jobs and unemployment," he said.

He also called for congressional passage of the Civil Rights Act, vetoed by President Bush, and took issue with Bush's argument that the measure was a quota bill.

"Quotas are a phony issue," Jacob said, adding that President Reagan's appointment of Sandra Day O'Connor to the Supreme Court and Bush's nomination of Clarence Thomas to the high court amounted to filling a quota.

"Merit had nothing to do with those appointments," he said. "Ideology and politics had everything to do with them. So the ugly truth behind the quota smear is that it is a cynical attempt to turn a civil rights issue into a political issue that plays on irrational fears and latent racism."

Strauss will resign from law firm, quit directorships

WASHINGTON (AP) — If he's confirmed as the new ambassador to Moscow, Robert S. Strauss will forgo hundreds of thousands of dollars he now gets as a director of several companies. But he'll collect $1.4 million from his law firm.

"When I leave this firm, I leave permanently," Strauss, 73, said in an interview. "My name is out of the firm."

Strauss' financial disclosure forms, released Thursday, show he would receive the money for selling his senior partnership in Akin, Gump, Strauss, Hauer & Feld — the powerhouse law firm he founded in 1945 after working as an FBI special agent.

Strauss also has promised to resign all his corporate directorships and put his millions of dollars of assets into a blind trust.

Ambassadors, like other presidential appointees, are required by law to divest any financial interests that are likely to conflict with their new position.

President Bush nominated Strauss, a lawyer and lobbyist and former Democratic Party chairman, as ambassador to the Soviet Union last month. The Senate is expected to approve the choice.

Strauss left Akin, Gump in the 1970s to take the Democratic post and later to serve as U.S. trade representative and special Middle East envoy under President Carter. He rejoined the firm in 1980.

"As a former government official, I am particularly sensitive to the need to avoid even the appearance of using my public office for private gain or showing improper preference to one private party over another," Strauss wrote in a July 5 letter to the State Department's legal advisor.

Strauss promised in his letter that if he is confirmed, he will resign all his directorships on corporate boards and put his assets into a blind trust. The documents establishing the trust have been drawn up and approved by the appropriate government agencies, he said.

Your Birthday

Improvements in your financial position are likely in the year ahead. However, you'll have to guard against the inclination to speculate or take monetary risks.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If there has been an improvement in your financial affairs recently, you'd be smart not to talk about it in front of a friend who has not yet repaid you an old loan. LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Rather than make waves today, you may make some concessions to someone with whom you're closely involved. But be firm when necessary.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You're not likely to lack initiative or industriousness today, yet you may not accomplish your objectives; there's a chance you'll use the wrong tools or procedures.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The right types of social involvements could do a world of good for your attitude today. However, associating with negative companions will take the edge off your optimism.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you challenge someone whose views and opinions are contrary to yours today, nothing of value is likely to be gained. Neither you nor this individual has the power to change the world.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your faith in your philosophy of life might be tested and found to be lacking today. It might be wise to ask yourself, "Who is wrong, I or my beliefs?"

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) A joint venture in which you're involved could work out OK, provided there is parity in all things. Neither should be expected to invest more than the other.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You may request advice from several people today, then do what they told you not to do — in spite of their unanimous opinion. Don't blame them if it doesn't work out.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Your productivity will be predicated upon the way you schedule your tasks today. The worst thing you can do is put your most difficult jobs last.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You may be put in an awkward position today where you have to defend an old friend regarding an issue you don't truly support. Do the best you can, even if your heart isn't in it.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It's very important that neither you nor your male air your domestic differences in public today. If you do, both of you could severely tarnish your images.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Something you feel enthusiastic about should not be discussed at this time with an associate who is notorious for expressing negative views. It could dampen your outlook.

High court nominee praised one leader who is controversial

DALLAS (AP) — Supreme Court nominee Clarence Thomas twice mentioned his longstanding admiration for controversial black separatist Louis Farrakhan in speeches and used a quote from him to conclude the speeches, the Dallas Times Herald reported today.

The newspaper reported in a copyright story that it obtained copies of the speech independently and was later furnished identical texts of the prepared remarks from the files of the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission.

Both speeches were delivered in 1983 when Thomas was chairman of the EEOC, the newspaper reported.

A cover page provided the newspaper by the agency showed that one speech was given Sept. 19, 1983 to the Capital Press Club, an association of black journalists, and the other was delivered on Oct. 6, 1983, to the Association of Black MBAs in Atlanta.

Thomas described Farrakhan in both speeches as "a man I have admired for more than a decade" and concluded his prepared remarks with a quote from Farrakhan, who succeeded Malcolm X as chief spokesman for the black separatist sect in 1964.

"And so, I say to you, whether America overcomes or not, we the poor, we the oppressed, we the blacks, we the Hispanics, we the disinherited, we the rejected and most despised (sic), we will overcome and then together we will be able to say, in the words of Dr. Martin Luther King, free at last, free at last, thank God Almighty, we have united and made freedom a reality at last," the newspaper quoted the text as saying.

There were no other references to Farrakhan, whose last name was misspelled in the text of the first speech and who was identified as Lewis rather than Louis in both speeches, the newspaper reported.

Farrakhan would only a few months later gain national attention when Democratic presidential aspirant Jesse Jackson refused to disassociate himself from the Nation of Islam leader in light of Farrakhan's characterization of the Jewish faith as "a dirty religion" and description of Adolf Hitler as "wickedly great."

Farrakhan, a Chicago minister, refused to comment when asked about the speech, the newspaper reported.

Southmark sues former junk-bond king, others

DALLAS (AP) — A federal court lawsuit accuses former junk-bond king Michael Milken and various associates at Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. of orchestrating financial deals that pushed Southmark Corp. into bankruptcy.

The lawsuit, filed Thursday, asks for more than $200 million.

The lawsuit alleges Milken and others "saddled Southmark with a crushing burden of public debt, then encouraged Southmark to divert the proceeds of that debt from legitimate operating needs to highly speculative investments."

Drexel, with Milken at the helm of its junk-bond business, underwrote numerous debt issues of Southmark and its subsidiaries in the 1980s. Drexel encouraged other transactions that financially strapped Southmark, the lawsuit says.

"The issuance of high cost public debt in excess of the legitimate operational needs of the company, and the investment of the excess proceeds in speculative junk bonds, were completely inconsistent with Southmark's financial interests, and were done solely to satisfy the greed of the Milken group and other defendants," Southmark stated in court papers.

Civil rights leader rallies for workers

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson urged public housing tenants to fight crime in their neighborhood and told displaced factory workers America must rebuild from its current economic crisis.

And during a swing through Texas, Jackson strongly hinted Thursday he is vying again for the presidency, although he said he will decide this fall whether to enter the 1992 race.

Once a public housing resident, Jackson spoke to tenants of the violence-plagued Alazan Apache Courts projects, where he criticized President Bush's domestic policies.

"Bush and Quayle live in public housing. The White House is public housing. And since they don't like public housing, and I'm used to it, they should move on over," Jackson said, standing on a run-down porch in sweltering weather.

Jackson said if he were in the race he currently would be the front runner for the Democratic nomination.

He also encouraged the residents to stand up to crime.

"Far too often, brothers and sisters are killing brothers and sisters," he said. "We must stop the violence and stop the killing."

Some in the crowd, which at one point numbered about 400, were overcome with emotion as they chanted along with Jackson. Several women had tears streaming down their cheeks.

Jackson also led a rally organized by workers laid off by Levi Strauss Co., which closed a clothing factory here last year and moved the jobs to Central America. About 1,100 employees were left unemployed.

"We have a profound economic crisis," Jackson told about 200 supporters. "The Levi Strauss workers are not fighting for welfare — they're fighting for fair share."

Rather than bailing out Eastern European and Middle Eastern countries as well as the savings and loan industry, Jackson said, U.S. leaders should bail out American workers.

Dave Samson, a spokesman for Levi Strauss who attended the rally, said the San Francisco-based company does invest in the United States. Of its 31,000 workers, approximately 24,000 are in the United States and about 9,000 are in Texas, he said.

Make the most of it

Luckily for everyone, there are no perfect bridge players, even the greatest players make mistakes, but many errors go unpunished. Either the cards don't make you pay for an inaccuracy, or an opponent makes a faux pas in return, balancing the books, so to speak.

Today's hand is an example. Cover the East-West cards and plan the play in four spades, West leading the diamond king, diamond ace and another diamond, and East echoing with the eight and two.

Probably West should have ignored her partner's encouraging signal and switched at trick two or trick three to a club, which would defeat the contract. But she was a trusting wife — she continued diamonds.

Even so, it still isn't clear how to bring home 10 tricks, East being marked with the club king and heart ace from the auction. However, you do have some heart spots that can be put to good use. After ruffing the third diamond (high, if you think East might have begun with a doubleton), draw two rounds of trumps ending in hand, and then run the heart 10.

East may win with the jack, but what can he do next? If he leads a club, you win with dummy's nine and play the heart king, taking a ruffing heart finesse to establish a discard for your third club. If instead he cashes the heart ace, you ruff and have two discards available. Finally, if he leads a low heart, you can establish two heart tricks, thanks to dummy's eight.

Did you see the necessity to "finesse" the heart 10?

Locals drill C-City in Area semifinals

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

ROTAN — Snyder Little League All-Stars exploded for 13 hits and Patrick Jordan tossed a three-hitter as the locals notched a 15-0 semifinal win in the Area II baseball tournament Thursday.

The win puts Snyder in Monday's championship game against the winner of today's Colorado City-Rotan elimination game.

"Our bats were hot from the time we took them out of the bag," said Snyder manager George Page.

"Patrick Jordan did a good job for us, too. He struck out nine, only walked three and gave up just three hits.

"He (Jordan) told me before the game last night, 'I feel awesome,'" Page reported.

He was awesome, too, allowing just eight base runners in the game.

The Snyder offensive barrage began in the last of the first inning when Chris Ramirez walked and came home on a single by Jordan, who also scored on a series of errors.

With Snyder enjoying a 2-0 lead after just three batters, first baseman Patrick Cumbie stepped in and slammed a towering homer over the left centerfield fence.

The hometowners' big inning was the second when they scored five runs. Matthew Fambro led off with a single followed by a hit from Tommy Green. Fambro was picked off at third on a sacrifice attempt by Jerry Cervantez, who reached first.

An error on C-City shortstop Kyle Moore put Chris Ramirez aboard and loaded the bases for David Smith who responded with an RBI single.

Jordan drove in a run on an error by Doug Payne; playing second base for Colorado City, Cumbie launched a double that scored Jordan and Ramsey Castillo pushed Cumbie in on an error by third sacker Joe Jameson.

Scott Sanders slammed a 2-RBI single in the last of the fourth to pace a three-run inning for Snyder.

"That's really keeping your head in the game when a pinch-hitter comes in cold and drives in two runs like that," said Page.

"Scott did a good job."

Snyder iced the win with four runs in the bottom of the fifth including two on a Castillo hit that drove in Smith and Jordan.

While Jordan kept the Colorado City hitters on their heels, the C-City defense was knocking itself out of the game, committing 10 errors, including six by the shortstop.

Bear Cooper took the loss for Colorado City, giving up 10 hits, 13 runs and only one walk.

Doug Payne took over in the last of the fifth and was fouled for three hits and two runs.

In Thursday's other tournament game, Rotan's Michael Harrison tossed the hosts to a 6-3 win.

Rotan and Colorado City will tangle at 7 p.m. today in the double elimination tournament for the right to face Snyder in Monday's title tilt.

A championship by Snyder would pit the All-Stars against the Area IV champs at a site and time to be determined.

Pitcher has elbow surgery

DALLAS (AP) — Texas Rangers righthander Scott Chiamparino, who underwent elbow surgery, will be out for at least one year, team officials say.

Chiamparino suffered a torn ligament in his right elbow, a specialist in California said Thursday after exploratory surgery. A tendon-transplant procedure was performed on the pitcher in Los Angeles.

In the procedure, Dr. Lewis Yocum repaired the damaged

FLY OUT — Snyder Little League All-Star David Smith snags a fly ball in the early innings of Snyder's 15-0 win over Colorado City Thursday in the Area II baseball tournament in Rotan. Candiotti shuts out Rangers

TORONTO (AP) — Tom Candiotti learned how to pitch in low-scoring games while with the Cleveland Indians.

That experience came in handy on Thursday night.

"I was in enough low scoring games with the Indians that I now feel comfortable pitching in a scoreless tie," Candiotti said after allowing five hits in eight innings to lead the Toronto Blue Jays to their fourth straight win and 16th in their last 19 games, a 2-0 victory over the Texas Rangers.

"It was dead calm out there and the knuckleball was dancing real well," Candiotti (9-7) said after lowering his ERA to 2.09. "The conditions were just about ideal."

He struck out a season-high 10 batters in extending his scoreless string to 15 scoreless innings, and combined with Tom Henke, who pitched a perfect ninth for his 17th save in as many chances, as the Blue Jays picked up their major league-leading 11th shutout of the season.

The win, coupled with the Boston Red Sox 7-3 loss to the Minnesota Twins, gives the Blue Jays a 6½-game lead in the American League East. The Rangers trail the Twins by one game in the AL West.

Candiotti, who estimates he usually throws the knuckleball about 50 to 60 percent of the time, upped the total against the Rangers.

"I must have thrown at least 70 percent tonight," he said. "And when I wasn't throwing it, I was able to get the curve over for strikes."

John Olerud went 3-for-4 and drove in the only run the Blue Jays would need with an RBI single in the bottom of the seventh.

"(Kevin Brown) was keeping the ball low most of the night," Olerud said. "He just happened to get a couple up to me and I put them in play."

Olerud hit a pair of home runs against the Seattle Mariners last weekend and appears to be shaking a season-long slump that had his average hovering around the .200 mark.

"It's a bit hard to explain why

Cubs fall to Astros

CHICAGO (AP) — On a team loaded with youth, 35-year-old Ken Oberkfell is proving to be the Houston Astros that he can still play.

Oberkfell lined a two-out, two-run pinch-hit double Thursday night to break an 11th-inning tie and give the Astros a 6-4 win over the Chicago Cubs, Houston's sixth win in seven games.

"It's nice to rebuild, but you've got to have a few veterans around to come off the bench," Oberkfell said. "We've got a good mix here. It's easier for a veteran to come off the bench than it is for a young guy. Young guys want to play everyday."

Oberkfell's game-winner off Dave Smith (0-5) made a winner of Al Osuna (5-2), who pitched 1 1-3 scoreless innings. Mike Capel pitched the bottom of the 11th and loaded the bases with two out before escaping to earn his third save.

The double gave Oberkfell six hits and eight RBIs in 28 pinch-hit at-bats this year. More importantly, it saved a game for the Astros that had seemed in hand when they took a 4-0 lead into the fifth.

"We had the lead, lost it, but then we took it back," Luis Gonzalez said. "We had a lot of games like this earlier in the year where we didn't get the 'W.' But now this team has the character to win the close games."

The winning rally started when Smith, who left Houston to sign with Chicago as a free agent last winter, walked Jeff Bagwell with one out in the 11th. Smith struck out Gonzalez for the second out, but Ken Caminiti singled to left to keep the inning alive. Oberkfell followed with his game-winner

Agents targeted in NFL collusion suit

DALLAS (AP) — Leigh Steinberg and nine other prominent agents appear headed for a day in court in Minneapolis.

The NFL plans to subpoena 10 top agents in connection with a lawsuit in which the league alleges collusion between agents and the players' association. An NFL source identified three of those agents as Steinberg, Tom Condon and Bob Woolf, who represent dozens of NFL stars.

NFL spokesman Joe Browne said that the depositions would be served as early as next week.

"They just want our testimony," Steinberg said Thursday. "It's not clear what the term collusion means or the practice that is referred to. Whatever is necessary to produce a satisfactory contractual result for a client is certainly covered under lawyer-client privilege."

At a six-hour meeting Thursday, the 28 NFL clubs were told that the subpoenas will be served for a lawsuit being heard in federal district court in Minneapolis. The league has charged that the NFL Players Association and various agents have been in collusion in fixing salaries by sharing salary information.

"With the draft soon to expire and players almost certain to win a case destroying free agency restrictions," Steinberg said, "under the current climate, I would expect an olive branch instead of a cannon shot."

Doug Allen, assistant executive director of the NFLPA, argued that the NFL has things backward.

"What the agents and NFLPA do is pro-competitive," Allen said in reference to negotiations involving draft picks and veteran players. "Only an employer can fix prices. It's not collusive, but pro-competitive."

"We welcome the opportunity to demonstrate that... We're not only not worried about it, but welcome the opportunity to demonstrate that in court."

NFL Commissioner Paul Tagliabue, acting on his own, has decided that alcohol-related incidents will be punished the same as drugs and steroids.

The NFL suspends for four games any player who tests positive for drugs or steroids. Now Tagliabue will assess the same punishment for anyone who is convicted of an alcohol-related offense.

"We're not talking about finding an open container in someone's car," Joe Browne, the league's vice president of communications said. "We're talking about serious offenses. The commissioner will use his judgment."

Club executives were not aware that the policy had been implemented.

"We knew it was coming, but we didn't know the players were starting to be informed," said Jim Finks, president and general manager of the New Orleans Saints.

The league also announced that its Management Council's executive committee told the teams that practice squads are being eliminated because lawyers representing the players on those squads were making unreasonable salary demands.

Last year, practice-squad players made $3,000 a week for the 17-week season, a salary negotiated with the league after the NFL paid practice players $1,000 per week in 1989. Those players were free to negotiate salaries higher than the $3,000 on an individual basis.

GOP lawmakers want anti-tax 'tea-party'

AUSTIN (AP) — Recalling the Boston Tea Party tax rebellion, Republican lawmakers want Texans to send tea bags to state leaders to protest the possibility of new taxes when the Legislature convenes next week to write a budget.

"Taxpayers are furious," Rep. John Culberson, R-Houston, said Thursday. "Calls are pouring in from all over the state from frustrated taxpayers who are sick and tired of paying higher and higher taxes every year." Democratic Gov. Ann Richards agreed that some state agencies are complaining too loudly about proposed budget cuts, adding, "It's premature to talk about any tax until we talk about cuts."

Richards also reached to Republicans for cooperation during the special session that opens Monday to write a 1992-93 state budget.

"I don't think this is a partisan matter. This is a matter of responding to what we sincerely believe is the public's demand that we do something about making government do its job and do it effectively," she said.

The state's income for the next two years is projected to total $52.3 billion, about $4.8 billion less than the cost of maintaining all programs at current levels, legislative analysts say.

Comptroller John Sharp has recommended about $4 billion in savings and fee increases, ideas that include merging many of the more than 200 separate state government agencies and eliminating 1,040 of the 226,000 state jobs.

But the Republicans said agency opposition shouldn't be allowed to derail Sharp's "superb" budget-cutting ideas.

"There's no question the agencies are going to be dragging their feet and clawing their way right to the finish line on this thing," said Rep. Glenn Repp, R-Duncanville.

"All the special interest cows are mooing very loudly right now. Their reaction is another good reason why we're putting together this taxpayer rally. The public understands we can save money," Culberson added.

The lawmakers said the first "Texas Tea Party" anti-tax rally will be held July 22 at noon on the Capitol grounds.

shorts were included. This motion ultimately passed 4-2 with Walton and Robertson voting against.

The revised policy regarding length specifies that shorts must be "at or very near the top of the knee." The old guideline indicated an "acceptable length" to be "closer to the knee than the...middle of the leg."

With the vote, trustees stressed that enforcement of this guideline will be strictly "the judgment of the principal."

Regarding the entire student handbook, which covers the gamut of policies and procedures related to student conduct, trustees endorsed all other measures.

The proposal to eliminate shorts was prompted by what Patterson described as problems with the enforcement of "appropriate length." In his comments he noted, "length is a proven problem."

He added, "I also don't think shorts are appropriate on a high school campus."

In other action Thursday, trustees voted to:

—Approve out-of-district transfers for the coming school year. This included 69 students transferring into Snyder ISD and 73 transferring out. The figures follow closely last year's, when 60 transferred in and 68 transferred out.

—Accept the lone bid submitted to purchase fuel for district vehicles. The bid, offered by Line and Line Oil Co. of Snyder, was for four cents per gallon above dealer cost.

—Accept the lone bid submitted to purchase a heating and air-conditioning system for the SHS cafeteria. The bid of $24,987 was offered by Snyder Heating and Air Conditioning.

—Renew the contract with the Austin public accounting firm of Steen and Steen to collect the district's delinquent taxes. The contract, unchanged from last year, indicates the firm may retain 15 percent of the amount collected.

—Adopt federal guidelines for eligibility for free and reduced price meals served at school lunchrooms.

Police note two arrests

Snyder police made two arrests and worked a couple of minor traffic accidents Thursday and early this morning.

Officers took a 39-year-old male into custody at 6:30 p.m. Thursday near the county coliseum after a caller told police a man was in the area exposing himself.

A second male, age 26, was arrested at 12:01 a.m. today in the 1000 block of 29th St. for driving while intoxicated.

Both suspects were booked into the county jail.

At 11:30 a.m. Thursday, police worked an accident at 1500 25th St. involving a 1986 Ford driven by Rena Ruth Romero of 907 30th St. and a 1985 Ford pickup driven by Jerrel Dee Pylant of Hermleigh. No wrecker or ambulance was needed.

At 3:10 p.m. Thursday, police worked a wreck in the parking lot at Skinny's on 37th St. Involved were a 1989 Dodge van driven by Ester Guerrero of Rotan and a parked 1985 Ford pickup owned by Alvin Dodson of 2707 Ave. T. No wrecker or ambulance was called.

In one other report, officers found a White's Performer 10-speed bicycle and a Columbia ATB Trailrunner 10-speed bicycle at Towle Park Pool at 3:20 a.m. today and transported them to the police station.

in the "kicking" death of the victim. However, police Lt. Steve Warren told the jury he had obtained a pair of Riggins' shoes with what appeared to be blood residue on them. No evidence that the substance on the shoes was blood was presented by the prosecutor, however.

The defendant did not testify during the trial.

According to police reports, Hernandez was discovered by a passerby at 35th St. and Ave. J at 10:04 p.m. on Jan. 1. He was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital by Snyder EMS and was later transferred to St. Mary of the Plains Hospital in Lubbock.

He died at 5:27 p.m. on Jan. 2. Prosecuting the case was District Attorney Ernie Armstrong. The defendant was represented by Richard Wardrop of Lubbock. District Judge Gene Dulaney presided.

Gorbachev will take his case to ES leaders

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mikhail Gorbachev, the Soviet bear, will be rubbing elbows next week in London with the titans of capitalism, and their exclusive Group of Seven may never be the same again.

Granted, Gorbachev will come as a supplicant and not as a triumphant exponent of communism to this 17th annual gathering of rich folks. In fact, he is trying to adopt some of the methods that made the United States, Germany, Japan and the others so wealthy.

The Soviet president wants to learn the secrets of a market economy. He is not directly seeking capital. But he is looking for investment, technical help and other indirect assistance to keep his economy afloat.

Without resigning from the Communist Party — as Boris Yeltsin, Eduard Shevardnadze and other onetime allies have done — Gorbachev is inching in a direction that would have made Marx and Lenin blush.

But he still represents another world. By riveting the Seven's attention on the Soviet Union he is broadening their scope beyond past frontiers.

Through the years the Seven have not operated in total isolation. Their decisions on trade, for instance, reach beyond the United States, Germany, Japan, Britain, France, Italy and Canada.

The Seven also have not always stuck to economics. Last year, in Houston, for instance, they called for an effective system of deterring the spread of nuclear weapons. A year earlier, in Paris, they worried about terrorism and about the drug problem.

But their own interests generally have been paramount.

Now, Gorbachev comes to London saying, in effect, that the world is being drawn closer together and that developments in the Soviet Union must be taken into account.

Zbigniew Brzezinski, who was President Jimmy Carter's national security adviser, points out that not only the Soviet Union is being drawn into the deliberations.

The leaders of Czechoslovakia, Hungary and Poland, three countries newly emerged from the Soviet orbit and now experimenting with democracy and capitalism, also are clamoring for attention from the Seven.

Gorbachev and the post-communist states are "transforming the economic summit from a directorate of the free world economy into a directorate of the world's economy," Brzezinski said in an interview Thursday.

"In effect, the former communist and the still-communist world both acknowledge their economic future is now being shaped by the decisions of the G-7," he said. "This is a major watershed."

On the other hand, Michael Aho, director of economic studies at the Council on Foreign Relations, hopes Gorbachev's appearance in London is a "one-time phenomenon."

Aho said he was concerned that the problems of the Western nations, such as interest rates and trade, will get short shrift. "These countries share a common interest in resolving these issues and in developing Western capitalist economies," he said.

Richard Richter, WETA's executive producer for news and public affairs, said organizers have had informal contacts with campaigns.

He said all Democratic candidates are expected to come, and organizers hope President Bush will appear. If not, such surrogates as Vice President Dan Quayle or cabinet members may come, Richter said.

The convention was greeted enthusiastically by local and state officials and representatives of the University of Texas, where the activities will take place.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I was in an auto accident and suffered multiple contusions and abrasions next week in London with the titans of capitalism, and their exclusive Group of Seven may never be the same again.

Granted, Gorbachev will come as a supplicant and not as a triumphant exponent of communism to this 17th annual gathering of rich folks. In fact, he is trying to adopt some of the methods that made the United States, Germany, Japan and the others so wealthy.

The Soviet president wants to learn the secrets of a market economy. He is not directly seeking capital. But he is looking for investment, technical help and other indirect assistance to keep his economy afloat.

Without resigning from the Communist Party — as Boris Yeltsin, Eduard Shevardnadze and other onetime allies have done — Gorbachev is inching in a direction that would have made Marx and Lenin blush.

But he still represents another world. By riveting the Seven's attention on the Soviet Union he is broadening their scope beyond past frontiers.

Through the years the Seven have not operated in total isolation. Their decisions on trade, for instance, reach beyond the United States, Germany, Japan, Britain, France, Italy and Canada.

The Seven also have not always stuck to economics. Last year, in Houston, for instance, they called

Proposals of reform considered

AUSTIN (AP) — Members of the State Board of Education say it's time the state turned its attention toward students in the critical middle school years, who have been overlooked too long.

Officials working on school reforms have concentrated for the past several years on high school and elementary children, leaving 10-to-14-year-olds with "middle child syndrome," said Mary Knotts Perkins, chairwoman of a board committee studying middle grade education.

The school board heard public testimony Thursday on a series of proposals intended to meet the special needs of young teenagers by making middle schools less like mini-high schools.

The state has been studying policy changes for nearly a year as part of a nationwide program funded by the Carnegie Corp. of New York.

For many students, middle school is the turning point for their risk of dropping out or future academic success, officials say.

Education Commissioner Lionel "Skip" Meno said he believes there is a "very definite need for change and restructuring" in the state's middle schools.

"This is such a dire need. This is where we either lose them, or they take hold and go on to higher education," said Catherine Cortez, an 8th grade English teacher at Hereford Junior High School in the Panhandle.

The committee's proposed policy statement said: "Statistics showing low academic performance, poverty, poor health, and pregnancy paint a picture of risk for Texas middle school students."

One in four Texas children lives in poverty; 30 percent of eight graders already are older than average for their class; and Texas leads the nation in pregnancy rates for teens under the age of 14, the committee said.

"This is when they have emotional problems, this is when they have real problems — not just with their bodies, with their families and with their identity. And this is when they start to join gangs, use drugs, sexual promiscuity — all these things," Ms. Perkins said.

One of the most important new ideas is to create "a school within a school," officials said.

Instead of dividing students by ability and requiring them to change classes every period,

Austin to host democracy experiment

AUSTIN (AP) — Six hundred Americans will be chosen to meet with presidential candidates in a nationally televised January forum that's being billed as an "experiment in democracy."

The Public Broadcasting Service National Issues Convention, scheduled for Jan. 17-19 in Austin, will be broadcast over the PBS stations, organizers said Thursday.

"PBS is trying to change the way the election and the candidates are covered, to help place issues rather than the 'horse race' at the center of the national debate," said Richard Hutton, senior vice president for programming and production of the public television station WETA in Washington.

The convention is "an unprecedented effort by the nation's public television stations to use the medium in a way that may help stem the tide of disinterest and disenfranchisement that we have seen over the years," Hutton said.

Convention delegates will be randomly selected from voting-age citizens, and will include Democrats and Republicans.

Presidential candidates will be asked to provide information on issues to delegates before the convention. At the convention, they will meet with delegates, who will consider and vote on issues.

WETA is producer of the project, which came from an idea by James Fishkin, government professor at the University of Texas at Austin. Fishkin called the event the world's first "deliberative opinion poll."

"An ordinary poll models what the public thinks, given how little it knows. A deliberative poll models what the public would think, if it had a more adequate chance to think about the questions and issues," he said.

Fishkin said there may be endorsements of candidates on particular issues at the convention's end.

"Delegates will evaluate the candidates without the ordinary filtering mechanism of political advertising, shrinking sound bites, and repeated performances of the same stump speeches," he said.

New education commissioner wants to give more leeway to state schools

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas' new education commissioner is pushing a proposal to work with a handful of schools in developing innovative programs that can break state rules if they improve student learning.

The proposal was part of a Thursday presentation to the State Board of Education by Commissioner Lionel "Skip" Meno, who stressed a need for Texas to improve student achievement, and to ensure that all students are given an equal opportunity to learn.

The state must define what students need to learn to succeed in life, and find a way to accurately measure achievement, he said. Then, schools should be given flexibility: "The program is negotiable."

There will likely be at least 15 schools initially included in the pilot project, Meno said.

"We need to particularly focus on impacted schools where the tradition of achievement has been poor ... Those are where the new models are most dramatically needed," he said.

A Texas Education Agency liaison will be appointed to work with the schools, he said. Meno said he would delegate his power to waive certain state rules to the liaison, so regulations don't get in the way of new programs.

Bountiful harvest forecasted for feed grains

WASHINGTON (AP) — The wheat harvest is down sharply this year, but the Agriculture Department is still expecting a large output of feed grains, the main ingredient for U.S. meat, poultry and dairy production.

Officials said Thursday that fewer acres and smaller yields have reduced wheat production sharply from last year's bumper harvest.

But unofficial projections — the real field estimates won't be ready until next month — show that total 1991 output of corn and other feed grains may be at a five-year high.

Overall, the 1991 wheat harvest was estimated as of July 1 at 2.03 billion bushels, down 26 percent from last year's output of 2.74 billion bushels, the third largest on record.

New production estimates for the first time this season included durum and "other" spring-planted wheat in addition to winter wheat planted last fall.

The department's Agricultural Statistics Board said the average yield was estimated at 35 bushels per acre, compared with the record of 39.5 last year.

Farmers are expected to harvest about 58.1 million acres of wheat this year, compared with 69.4 million acres in 1990. The reduction is due mostly to the government's decision to require wheat farmers to idle more land in 1991 to qualify for price-support benefits.

To qualify, farmers had to put 15 percent of their crop base in USDA's "acreage reserve program," compared with only 5 percent of the 1990 crop.

But growing conditions were poor in much of the wheat area, reducing per-acre yields. Even so, the 2.03 billion bushels now estimated is slightly more than USDA had been projecting.

Thus, the nation's wheat stockpile for the 1991-92 season will be a bit larger than had been expected by department forecasters. And that will mean slightly weaker prices at the farm.

The department's first official estimate of 1991 corn, soybeans, cotton and some other major spring-planted crops will be issued Aug. 12, along with an updated estimate of wheat production.

Winter wheat output was estimated at a 13-year low of 1.36 billion bushels, down 33 percent from 2.03 billion bushels last year. Winter wheat makes up about three-fourths of the U.S. total.

Durum wheat production was estimated at 114 million bushels, down 6 percent from last year, and "other" spring wheat was indicated at 556 million bushels, down 5 percent from 1990.

The July report also estimated barley production at 476 million bushels, up 14 percent from last year. But output of oats, at 280 million bushels, is expected to drop 22 percent.

Flue-cured tobacco was forecast at 902 million pounds this season, down 4 percent from last year.

In a related supply-and-demand report, "highly tentative" projections of 1991 corn production showed the fall harvest might total 8.275 billion bushels, up from 7.93 billion last year. That was unchanged from a similar projection in June, based on yield trends and assumptions of favorable growing conditions.

Soybean production was projected at 1.97 billion bushels, up from 1.875 billion indicated in June and slightly more than last year's harvest of 1.92 billion bushels.

Indictments said to smash big drug ring

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A federal grand jury Thursday indicted 53 people for smuggling hallucinogens through California and Texas for distribution throughout the southeastern United States, a government prosecutor said.

U.S. Attorney Harry Rosenberg said the drug ring was headed by a man named Jean St. Pierre, now being held in Brazil, and enjoyed profits of $5 million during each of the four years it operated.

If convicted of racketeering and conspiracy charges, Rosenberg said St. Pierre — also known as The Captain — could be sentenced to life imprisonment and fined up to $2 million.

Authorities said St. Pierre has been out of the United States for about a year, but was arrested several months ago in Brazil, where he is awaiting extradition.

Indicted with St. Pierre for conspiracy, Rosenberg said, were 52 upper-level dealers who smuggled the hallucinogen Ecstasy into New Orleans for distribution later to Alabama, Georgia, Florida, Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas.

If they are convicted, Rosenberg said, the others could get 20 years in prison and $1 million in fines.

All 53 were from the New Orleans area, Rosenberg said.

Rosenberg said this drug ring was just as big as one formerly headed by Peter Marcello and his associates, most of whom are now in jail.

He said the Marcello and St. Pierre operations accounted for most of the hallucinogenic drug traffic in a wide area surrounding and including New Orleans.

Rosenberg said federal authorities were continuing an investigation of a Mississippi-based drug ring that used both the Marcello and St. Pierre organizations as its suppliers of the mood-altering drug.

He said Thursday's indictments resulted from a three-year investigation by the federal Drug Enforcement Administration in New Orleans.

In addition to the indictments, Rosenberg said the investigation also resulted in the seizure of about $175,000 in drug-related assets, including cash, real estate and motor vehicles.

to the collapse of MCorp, once Texas' second-largest bank holding company.

U.S. District Judge Robert Porter ruled Wednesday the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. withheld money owed MCorp's New Braunfels bank after their 1989 takeover.

The $17.1 million in dispute was lent to MBank Dallas by MBank New Braunfels.

After regulators seized the Dallas bank and 19 others owned by MCorp, MBank - New Braunfels was told it could get only 80 percent of the money, the same percentage creditors would receive for claims from the liquidation of MBank Dallas.

But because some MBank Dallas creditors got 100 percent of their claims, Porter said regulators violated the National Bank Act by treating MBank New Braunfels unfairly.

The New Braunfels bank was one of five to survive regulators' takeover of MCorp, a $2 billion bailout that ranks as one of the nation's largest. The bank and one in El Paso are virtually the only assets remaining for the company, which is now operating in bankruptcy.

In ruling on the MBank New Braunfels case, Porter asked both sides to file papers on damages.

In February, Porter ruled regulators wrongfully closed 12 of the 20 seized banks. Regulators later sold the 20 banks to Banc One Corp. of Columbus, Ohio.

Like the New Braunfels bank, the 12 banks had made loans to MBank Dallas. Regulators refused to repay those loans, depressing the financial condition of the 12 banks, MCorp contended.

The company's bankruptcy plan, filed in March, indicated it was seeking $250 million in actual damages plus consequential damages of up to $1 billion in that case.

MCorp attorneys have said that damages recovered from the FDIC would be used to pay creditors.

Another dispute between MCorp and regulators will be heard by the Supreme Court this fall.

The company and the Federal Reserve are at odds over whether MCorp maintained adequate capital for the five banks that remained after the 1989 takeover.

They disagree on the Fed's authority to enact its so-called "source of strength" policy, created in 1984 and 1987. The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last year ruled that Congress never authorized the Fed to impose the policy.

Dear Abby

Description of Nasal Spray Stinks to Confused Reader

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1991 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: You recently said that older people should not be ashamed to ask their doctors questions about medications prescribed for them. They should know how much to take, how often to use it, what the side effects are, etc.

I wonder why the instructions that come with some medications are written in language that nobody can understand. For example, my doctor prescribed a nasal spray. The only thing I could understand was, "Shake well before using." Here is a sample of what else came with my medication and instructions:

"Beclomethasone 17, 21-dipropionate is a diester of beclomethasone, a synthetic halogenated corticosteroid. Animal studies show that beclomethasone dipropionate has potent glucocorticoid and weak mineralocorticoid activity.

"The effects of beclomethasone dipropionate on hypothalamic-pituitary-adrenal (HPA) function have been evaluated in adult volunteers by other routes of administration. Studies with beclomethasone dipropionate by the intranasal route may demonstrate that there is more or that there is less absorption by this route of administration. There was no suppression of early morning plasma cortisol concentrations when beclomethasone dipropionate was administered in a dose of 1,000 mcg/day for one month as an oral aerosol or for three days by intramuscular injection."

Abby, there is much more that I cannot understand, but this should give you a general idea of what I mean.

JOHN W. EGGERS, SAN DIEGO

DEAR MR. EGGERS: I know exactly what you mean. Such gobbledegook is intended to confuse a person not schooled in Latin.

Don't be embarrassed. Ask your doctor for instructions that you can understand. And if there are any questions in your mind — ask for clarification.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 25-year-old woman who happens to have a very fair complexion. I do not tan very easily. My dermatologist just removed three precancerous growths from my arms and advised me to wear sunscreen when I plan to go out in the sun.

I get very irritated with people who tell me I would look a lot better if I got a little tan. Can you suggest a snappy comeback for these clods?

SUN-SHY IN GEORGIA

DEAR SUN-SHY: Snappy comeback? You need no snappier comeback than the truth. Try this: "My dermatologist just removed three precancerous growths from my arms."

Then notice how quiet it gets ... followed by a, "Gee, I'm sorry. I didn't know" ... or words to that effect.

DEAR ABBY: Knowing that you are an animal lover, I am writing with the hope that this will reach many zoo visitors.

Recently, a monkey in our zoo died because she was fed something poisonous by a visitor. There are signs on all of our animal cages requesting "DO NOT FEED THE ANIMALS," but some visitors pay no attention to them.

Abby, it is heartbreaking when, in spite of all our training and care, we cannot prevent a death because some well-meaning visitor ignores our "No Feeding" signs. Please print this as a reminder.
