Q—What is in the Diamond M Museum building?
A—When Texas Tech University took over the Diamond M art collection, only a few of the more rare works were taken to the school's Ranching Heritage Museum in Lubbock. The bulk of the collection is being stored in the museum building, secured by an alarm system.

Jobless rate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The number of Americans filing new claims for unemployment benefits surged again in mid-July, the biggest rise in more than a month, the government reported today. The Labor Department's report on jobless claims showed that for the week ending July 13, there were 425,000 Americans filing new claims for unemployment benefits, an increase of 30,000 over the previous week's mark. That 30,000 rise was the biggest surge since early June, and wiped out much of the earlier improvement that had occurred.

Hundreds of entries expected...

'Best of Texas' here this weekend

FFA and 4-H Club members from throughout the area will begin arriving here Friday for the Best of Texas Steer and Lamb Show.

Over $2,000 in top prize money will be awarded to grand champion and reserve winners of the show, which is scheduled Saturday and Sunday in Scurry County Coliseum.

Animals will begin arriving at the ag annex on Friday. The lamb show, featuring both prospect and progress lambs, will begin at 10 a.m. Saturday. Progress and prospect steers will begin to be shown at 8 a.m. Sunday.

Lamb and steer showmanship competitions will be open to all participants and will be held following their respective shows. A junior and senior competitor in both the steer and lamb showmanship competitions will be recognized.

All shows will be in the coliseum and are free to the public. Concessions will be available.

The grand champion steer winner will receive a $1,000 cash prize with the reserve champion receiving $500. The grand champion lamb winner gets $500 while the reserve winner will receive $250. Prize money will also be awarded to the top six or eight places in each class. The number of places recognized and the amount of award will depend on the number of entries in the class, organizers said.

Other prizes include belt buckles for breed champion winners and showmanship honors. Ribbons and banners will also be awarded.

Event organizers have announced over 250 pre-entries and anticipate that an additional 250 entries are possible as the show date draws near. Lambs may be entered as late as Friday afternoon and steers should be entered by Saturday morning. Last year, almost 400 head of livestock were showcased.

"The show is open to all Texas FFA and 4-H members," said Mike Morrow, county agriculture agent. Morrow noted participants are traveling from as far as the Corpus Christi area for the event.

Participants will be treated to a swimming party Saturday afternoon, sponsored by Western Texas College.

17 believed killed by child molester, police now believe

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Police believe the convicted child molester found this week in an apartment strewn with body parts has killed at least 17 people, the police chief said today.

Police Chief Philip Arreola said some of the suspected victims of Jeffrey L. Dahmer may have been killed 10 or more years ago and outside of Milwaukee.

The figure of 17 is "based on information that the suspect has provided us and concurring, corroborative information provided by other people," Arreola said.

Dahmer, 31, confessed to killing and cutting up 11 people whose parts, including three refrigerated heads, were found in his tiny, foul-smelling apartment, police said Wednesday. Police also found a photo of a boy who has been missing since May and whose brother Dahmer was convicted of molesting in 1989.

Dahmer told police he dragged and strangled his victims, dismembered them and boiled some of the heads to remove the flesh, according to court papers.

Circuit Judge Frank T. Crivello set bail at $1 million cash. Homicide charges could be filed today, District Attorney E. Michael McCann said.

Dahmer moved in with his grandmother in suburban West Allis in 1982, The Plain Dealer of Cleveland reported today. Dahmer's stepmother, Shari, told the paper that six years later she smelled a harsh, chemical odor coming from the basement and the garage.

House members get ok to spend more - on selves

AUSTIN (AP) — While the Legislature is in session looking for ways to balance the budget, House members have gotten the OK to spend more on themselves.

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Thursday that the House business office is circulating a memo to House members authorizing them to begin collecting an additional $85 per day to cover expenses while they are meeting in special session this summer.

According to a letter from chief House accountant Leon Branch, House members who live more than 50 miles from Austin may claim $85 for each day they have been in session since an attorney general's opinion authorizing such payments was issued May 2.

All but six of the House's 150 members live further than 50 miles from the Capitol, said Larry Crawford, House business office executive director.

Crawford said that since the letter went out Tuesday, no lawmakers have filed for their newly authorized expenses.

If all of them claimed the $2,380 in expenses they may collect for the 28 days they've been in session since May 2, the total would be $342,720.

The current special session began July 15 and runs to mid-August. Lawmakers are looking to bridge a projected $4.8 billion deficit in the next two-year budget.

According to the Star-Telegram, House members will not be required to produce receipts proving that they actually spent $85 on food and lodging each day.

So far, senators have declined to take advantage of the expense money ruling. Some lawmakers have said they wouldn't accept the money because of the political heat they could receive.

Future of Communist Party at stake in crucial meeting

MOSCOW (AP) — Communist Party hard-liners and reformers faced off in a potentially divisive meeting today, with President Mikhail S. Gorbachev urging the party to broaden its appeal by abandoning its Marxist focus on the working class.

At stake in the closed-door session of the 410-member Central Committee is the very future of the party, whose political monopoly was forced on the Soviet people until Gorbachev came to power and promoted democratic reform.

Gorbachev has proposed a new party platform for Communists to renounce their totalitarian past and advocate democracy and a mixed economy.

Hard-liners consider Gorbachev a traitor seeking to foster capitalism. They were expected to heap harsh criticism on him, and perhaps even seek his ouster as party general secretary.

The independent Interfax news agency reported Gorbachev's recommendation that Communists seek to represent a greater range of people, rather than just workers. The statement indicated Gorbachev may even urge the party to court supporters of Western-style capitalism, long vilified by Soviet Communist leaders.

Gorbachev also said a party congress could be called this fall to vote on the new platform, the agency reported.

The Communist Party historically has said it expresses the "interests of the working class," or proletariat. In Karl Marx's 1848 "Communist Manifesto," he issued his famous call, "Workers of the world, unite!"

In a speech earlier this month to a committee drafting the new platform, Gorbachev reportedly said, "People are simply turned off by the party. What can it give to society...if it cannot even get its own house in order?"

Tension was already high when the Soviet president met Wednesday with regional party leaders, the agency said.

Nicholson to speak at teacher workshop

Randa Nicholson, coordinator of gifted programs in the continuing education division at Abilene Christian University, will be the guest speaker at a workshop Wednesday designed for elementary school teachers.

The workshop will be held from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. in the high school library and is limited to 30 participants. Teachers interested in attending should preregister in the Snyder ISD business office. A $10 registration fee is required.

Six hours of AAT credit has been applied for and will be awarded upon completion of the workshop.

Nicholson will discuss different strategies and instructional activities which teachers can employ with students who exhibit advanced academic tendencies.

She has a master of arts degree in gifted education from Arizona State University and has worked in a variety of programs serving gifted and talented students. She previously served as the program and assessment coordinator at the Center for Precocity at Arizona State and has developed several training workshops for teachers of academically able students. In addition, she has directed the filming of model teachers in individualized instruction to be used as a teacher training video tape.

Her work includes academic counseling utilizing comprehensive ability and achievement assessments, diagnostic/prescriptive techniques, and individual educational plans. Currently, she is involved in coordinating in-services for regular classroom teachers, administrators and teachers of academically able students. She is also providing mini-courses for academically able students, extracurricular academic classes for able students and is assisting in the development of a regional center for gifted and talented education.

The City of Lubbock has experienced months of controversy about a new animal ordinance, one that includes cats roaming at large.

Lubbock may be barking up the wrong tree if a swank hotel in Chicago is any indication. The hotel, where regular rooms range from $175 to more than $900 per night, has decided to capitalize on patrons' pets.

This 275-room luxury hotel, unlike most major hotels, allows dogs and cats to check in. Under the hotel's new VIPets service, the Ambassador East has set aside six rooms and two suites as pet pads. Maids turn down the blankets on small cushioned beds and leave a milk bone for a guest dog or a toy for a cat.

Fido also gets a doggie bag of treats and a customized feeding bowl, while cats get a scratching post and a litter box. The hotel further promises the loan of "state of the art" pooper scoopers for neighborhood walks plus 24-hour veterinarian and grooming services.

The basic cost is relatively economical at $15 per night. We suspect room service is extra, and there is no indication if there is a telephone in the bathroom.

One patron, a film producer, lodged two cats and two dogs, including a Great Dane, for two months while the master was filming a movie. The service was described as great "because they get so depressed when they're separated from the family."

Alfred Hitchcock once brought his pet but the hotel pet policy was informal until just recently. Michael J. Fox has stayed with his terrier while Lassie and Spuds McKenzie have also been guests.

Morris the Cat is said to have once eaten in the hotel's elegant Pump Room restaurant. He dined in Booth One, generally reserved for visiting celebrities and politicians.

Your Birthday

July 25, 1991

Your artistic and creative ideas could yield you a handsome profit in the year ahead. Discuss them with friends and associates who might have sound marketing suggestions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be alert at this time for an opportunity that could prove to be rather profitable thanks to two people with whom you share close relationships. Trying to patch up a broken romance? The Astro-Graph Matchmaker can help you understand what to do to make the relationship work. Mail $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Conditions that have been a trifle restrictive will be alleviated today, giving you the chance to improve your social life. You'll now have more freedom to pick and choose both activities and companions.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) For best results today, keep what you hope to accomplish limited to the parties directly involved. You do not want to tip your hand prematurely.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Through the auspices of a friend, you may learn of something new today that will capture your fancy. In fact, you could easily become devoted.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You are likely to find that individuals, whose cooperation is essential to your immediate needs, are more helpful than usual today. Unfortunately, tomorrow might not evoke a similar response.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Concentrate today on plans that not only affect the immediate, but also impact events approximately two weeks down the road. It's important that you look ahead.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Give as much attention as possible today to a joint venture that has good financial probabilities. This endeavor could be a winner.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Lay the groundwork today for a significant agreement you're contemplating so that, once negotiations are completed, everything will go off as anticipated.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) As of today, conditions that have an effect upon your career should grow more harmonious. This is a cycle where ambitions can be advanced.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Benefits other than social ones can be gained at this time through a new friend you recently met. This relationship is worth cultivating.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) A domestic disturbance that has been keeping things off balance a bit can now be rectified without leaving any scars on the parties involved.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Circumstances might start drawing you closer to someone with whom you've always felt you had little in common. Wow, are you in for a pleasant surprise!

Top Legislative officials are no-billed

PORT LAVACA, Texas (AP) — Grand jurors found no wrongdoing among state legislative leaders who gathered on remote Matagorda Island last month to privately discuss the state budget.

Gov. Ann Richards, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock, House Speaker Gib Lewis and others met June 26-27 on the island, prompting the public watchdog group Common Cause to complain that the gathering may have violated provisions of the Texas Open Meetings Act.

Calhoun County District Attorney Jack Whitlow presented the complaint to a 12-member grand jury that began meeting Monday. The case was no-billed by the panel, meaning no action will be taken on the complaint, Whitlow said Wednesday.

"The decision was up to the grand jury and they chose not to proceed," Whitlow said. "I wasn't real surprised after researching the legal background on the situation."

Besides Richards, Bullock and Lewis, others attending included Sens. John Montford and Bob Glasgow and Reps. James Hury and Jim Rudd. The lawmakers present constituted a quorum of the Legislative Budget Board. Richards is not a member of the budget board.

Whitlow said the board's meeting failed to apply to two of the five provisions of the Open Meetings Act — specifically that the meeting involve formal action or deliberation and that the board must have supervision or control over public business.

"The Legislative Budget Board has supervision and control over the initial appropriations bill submitted to the regular session of the Legislature," Whitlow said. "Once the appropriations bill is submitted, the board no longer has supervision and control. Therefore, the act is not applicable to the Legislative Budget Board in this situation."

Suzu Woodford, executive director of Common Cause of Texas, was disappointed with the decision.

"We're never going to know if any deliberation took place (by the budget board)," she said. "That's our point. I can't imagine there wasn't any deliberation and some questions asked. The whole point is the public will never know. That's our concern."

But Lewis said the gathering was held only to brief legislative leaders.

"I think what they saw, what they came to the realization of that that was a non-issue, and there was no basis for anyone to ever make that claim that that was a violation of the Open Meetings Act," he said. "The intent of that meeting was a briefing, bring everybody on the same level as far as dealing with the same numbers, and having the staffs brief us on what changes need to be made, and get us prepared for the special session. "As far as taking any action that would be ever attributed to actions that were legislatively meant for the LBB to do, there was never even a question in anyone's mind," Lewis said Wednesday.

"Obviously, we're pleased that the citizens looked at the issue and decided that no violation of the Open Meetings Act occurred," Chuck McDonald, Richards' deputy press secretary, said.

"We never thought it was an LBB meeting and still don't,"

Rafe Greenlee, press secretary to Bullock, said.

The governor had defended the gathering, saying she was meeting with the lawmakers as individuals rather than budget board members. Spokesmen for the lawmakers have said the session was exempt from the Open Meetings Act because they only received briefings from aides.

Whitlow noted the Open Meetings Act was "vague and uncertain when applied to briefing sessions between state employees and governmental agencies."

Ms. Woodford said the Open Meetings Act was clear to her in spelling out what conduct to avoid.

"You post the meeting 72 hours in advance," she said. "There's an act in place and the public has a right to know what affects them. We think it's important people take the act seriously and not just pay lip service to it. Certainly this does not help public confidence in their representative government."

Glenn Goulet, spokesman for the Associated Republicans of Texas, also was unhappy with the grand jury's inaction. The GOP group first asked Whitlow to look into the meeting, but it did not file an official complaint until after Common Cause filed theirs.

"The Calhoun County grand jury swept this issue under the rug," Goulet said.

"We're disappointed, and the real tragedy here is that there's nothing new about the New Texas — it's still business as usual conducted behind closed doors. And the real losers in this are the people of Texas because they have now been shut out of government," he said.

Unemployment benefits...

Jobless workers rally for extension

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen is attacking President Bush for refusing to declare the recession an emergency and extend unemployment benefits to thousands of jobless workers whose checks have run out.

"The Bush administration calls for an emergency for the Kurds, for the Turks, for the Bangladesh. And even in the president's budget, they declared an emergency for the Panama Canal Commission," Bentsen told a rally Wednesday of jobless workers gathered on the steps of the Labor Department.

"I say it's time to declare an emergency for the unemployed workers of America," Bentsen, D-Texas, told the crowd under a sizzling noonday sun.

Chanting "Lay off Bush" and "26 weeks is not enough," the crowd called for Bush to extend unemployment benefits for jobless workers whose checks stop after 26 weeks.

But Bush's spokesman, Marlin Fitzwater, said Wednesday that the president believes the economy is in recovery and would likely veto emergency legislation to extend unemployment benefits.

Bentsen, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, promised the panel would act today on a plan to extend unemployment benefits up to 20 weeks.

Bentsen would not raise taxes or cut other programs to pay for his proposal's $5.8 billion cost. Instead, he would declare the recession an emergency and allow the government to simply borrow the needed money, thus driving up the deficit.

Fitzwater, however, said the president opposes such a plan unless there are spending cuts to pay for it.

Unemployment coverage has expired for an estimated 2.3 million workers.

In Texas, according to Bentsen's office, 546,000 people were unemployed in May, and as of June, 12,394 had exhausted their benefits.

"Only the fat cats at the top levels of this administration could fail to understand what the unemployed are up against in terms of getting unemployment insurance benefits," Sen. Paul Sarbanes, D-Md., told the rally.

"What they don't understand or appreciate is what it means not to be able to meet the house payment and the car payment, not to be able to put food on the table for your kids," Sarbanes said. "We're talking about working people — people who have been working year in and year out, who are now out of a job because of this Bush recession."

Sarbanes predicted Congress would send emergency legislation to the president's desk, "and ask him what he thinks about it."

"I say it's time to recognize there's an emergency here at home," Sarbanes told the rally, coordinated by the Philadelphia Unemployment Project.

HIV infected worker placed on leave

HOUSTON (AP) — A hospital has placed a health care worker on administrative leave after he revealed that he has the AIDS virus in a newspaper article.

Brian Bradley, 30, revealed his infection in a story Saturday in the Houston Chronicle. He was relieved from his duties Monday as a scrub nurse at the University of Texas M.D. Anderson Cancer Center.

His case is believed to be the first test of the validity of new federal guidelines for health care workers infected with the human immunodeficiency virus that causes AIDS.

Bradley's attorney, John Paul Barnich, said, "Now we know what's going to happen to health care workers who reveal their (HIV) status."

Because of his status, Bradley adheres strictly to universal precautions, he said. But he said he fears that HIV-infected health care workers will be driven underground if other institutions follow the lead of Anderson.

Bradley opposes a proposal by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., to impose mandatory jail sentences on health care workers who conceal their AIDS virus infection.

He also opposes the federal Centers for Disease Control's new guidelines that recommend infected health care workers refrain from performing invasive procedures involving exposure to blood.

Such workers could continue only if an expert panel approves and each patient agrees to being treated by an infected health care worker. The guidelines do not recommend mandatory testing for health care workers.

The state Senate and House on Wednesday approved bills that would incorporate the CDC guidelines into state law. Those bills must go before a conference committee to work out differences.

Dr. James Cox, the Anderson vice president who decided to place Bradley on leave, said Bradley frequently had his hands in patients' body cavities along with needles and scalpels.

"We don't want anyone to lose his or her job," said Cox, but "there was a risk of his blood getting into a patient's open wound" if Bradley cut himself.

Cox said that although the newspaper story spurred the state institution's immediate reaction, Bradley eventually would have been removed from the operating room.

But, Cox said he doesn't intend to require health care workers at Anderson to undergo testing for HIV or to immediately notify patients in whose surgeries Bradley participated, because "we think the risk is so terribly low."

Bradley said he feels he jeopardized his job because he followed CDC recommendations and told his employers about three years ago that he carried the virus.

Student likes working at cancer center

HOUSTON (AP) — Stephanie Cecere has been spending her summer days in a laboratory working with leukemia patients and deciding what she wants to do with her life.

The 18-year-old San Antonio resident will attend Rice University this fall. And now she has decided what she will study.

"I decided after coming here I definitely want to be a doctor," she said.

The decision came after spending part of her summer vacation working with some of the top cancer researchers in the world.

Miss Cecere is among 23 of the brightest high school graduates in Texas who were picked to work briefly at M.D. Anderson Cancer Center in the Texas Medical Center.

Their brief introduction to the renowned cancer center has allowed them to experience the thrills of research and the knowledge that their work is breaking new scientific ground.

"It's just like in the book, but in the book they're just little yellow squiggles," Sabrina Warren, 18, of Lampasas, said of her experience watching surgery. "But right there, I could touch it."

"You really don't think about when you come here that you're actually doing the stuff they're developing now," said Krishna Polu, 18, of Houston. "I look in the library to see if it's been done before and it's not. You get a good feeling. I'm not just some peon in the lab cleaning test tubes. You're actually doing research."

Miss Warren, Polu and their fellow students, along with six science teachers, are completing an eight-week session this week designed to encourage them to pursue careers in science and encourage the teachers to motivate their students toward careers in science.

"We're very sad to leave. The time went by very, very fast," Miss Cecere said.

The Summer Program in Biomedical Sciences is paid for by the Dallas-based Carl B. and Florence E. King Foundation. More than 600 students have participated in the program, now in its 31st year.

Panel dismisses allegations of widespread corruption

WASHINGTON (AP) — Allegation by a former Customs Service agent that the agency's Southwest region was rife with corruption "is a libel on the integrity" of Customs workers, says the chairman of a government panel that found no basis to the charges.

"We went to the Southwest border looking under rocks attempting to find snakes," chairman Frank Keating said Wednesday. "We found no snakes, but we did find insects."

Those "insects" include mismanagement and supervision problems that include a "failure to promptly investigate ... integrity violations," something that could give pause to whistleblowers, said Keating, who is general counsel of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The dozens of findings and recommendations of the panel, formed by Customs Commissioner Carol Hallett in May, will be released within the next week, Keating and Hallett said in interviews.

They noted that all the panel's decisions were unanimous. Five members were from outside the Customs Service and four were with the service.

Hallett hailed the panel's conclusion on corruption. "They said the allegations of systemic corruption simply do not exist, and they interviewed over 150 people," she said. She said she was briefed on the panel's findings last Friday.

However, Hallett acknowledged that individual problems still exist.

"Where you have drugs, guns and money, you have the potential for abuses and people stepping over that fine line," she said. "There is such pressure from the drug traffickers to get people to cross over that line."

The corruption allegations arose in January. The syndicated Jack Anderson column cited accusations by former Customs agent Louis Smit that when he and a fellow agent, John Graham, were investigating drug dealers in Texas, they received reports from other federal law enforcement agencies and the U.S. attorney's office that the local Customs office might be corrupt.

Public Notice

On April 9, 1991, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company filed an application with the Public Utility Commission of Texas to request that the optional feature "Call Transfer Disconnect" be available to all PLEXAR I customers by including the feature in Southwestern Bell's PLEXAR I tariff. Currently, this optional feature is available only on a customer requested basis.

Call Transfer Disconnect (CTD) is an optional feature that allows PLEXAR I customers the ability to transfer a call to another telephone number within or outside their PLEXAR I system, hang up, and permit the two remaining parties to continue with the call. The PLEXAR I user is then free to place or accept another call. CTD is not intended to be used to avoid toll charges. Therefore, CTD will not be available to PLEXAR I customers subscribing to optional Extended Metropolitan Service or Extended Area Calling Service.

If the company's application is approved, the monthly rate for CTD will be $4.00 for each PLEXAR I station line. Prior to the June 19, 1991, Interim rate approval, Southwestern Bell was billing customers who receive the service $1.50 for each station line equipped with this feature. In addition, under Southwestern Bell's proposed tariff, every line within the PLEXAR I system must be equipped with this feature. The nonrecurring charge for the additional lines which must be equipped with CTD will be waived for existing CTD customers. The tariffed monthly rate will apply to all existing and future CTD customers.

Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate, or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0256, or (512) 458-0221, teletypewriter for the deaf.

Class of '56 sets reunion

The Snyder High School class of 1956 has planned their reunion for Aug. 2-3 to be kicked off with a Friday get-together for snacks at 8 p.m. at Willow Park Inn.

A coffee has been set for Saturday at 10 a.m. at the home of Gay Birdsall Kimmel on the Colorado City Highway. A 7 p.m. poolside buffet dinner will be held, followed by music and gathering in the banquet room at Willow Park Inn.

For additional information, call Doris Agee Andrews at 573-1663; Annice Hardy Trujillo at 573-8987; Monte Blakely at 573-0907 or Ann Autry Yeilding at 573-9774.

that feeling when he heard his partner open three spades. But luckily no one doubled — and South even made the contract.

After the three club tricks and diamond switch, declarer won in the dummy and cashed the heart winners to discard his diamond loser. Now the problem was to avoid two spade losers. If the opposing trumps were divided 3-3, there was nothing South could do, he would have to lose tricks to the jack and king. But if they were breaking 4-2, he had one chance: an opponent holding jack doubleton. (Finding someone with king doubleton would do no good, as the jack would eventually score a trick.)

Declarer ruffed a diamond to get back to hand, cashed the spade ace and continued with the spade queen. South felt the appearance of the jack was only right and proper. West won with the spade king, but declarer ruffed his heart return, drew trumps and claimed nine tricks.

Old-fashioned ice cream makes elegant pie

By The Associated Press

Vanilla ice cream — so simple, so pedestrian to some — can turn a humdrum dessert into a cool, elegant summer affair.

For instance, a vanilla meringue pie shell holds layers of ice cream, orange sherbet and crushed cookie crumbs. The pie is topped with a layer of whipped cream and fresh orange slices.

Frozen Vanilla Meringue Pie
1 Vanilla Meringue Pie Shell (recipe follows)

4 ounces vanilla wafers (about 2 dozen), cookies or shortbread
1 cup heavy whipping cream
2 teaspoons granulated sugar
2 teaspoons pure vanilla extract

1 pint orange sherbet, softened slightly
1 pint vanilla ice cream, softened slightly

Orange slices, if desired Prepare Vanilla Meringue Pie Shell. Set aside. In a medium-sized plastic bag place wafers; seal bag. With a rolling pin coarsely crush wafers (makes about 1 cup); set aside.

In a large bowl of an electric mixer beat cream, sugar and vanilla extract until soft peaks form; set aside.

Evenly spread orange sherbet over vanilla meringue pie shell; top with a layer of vanilla ice cream. Sprinkle with reserved cookie crumbs; cover with swirls of reserved whipped cream. Freeze until firm. Cover with plastic wrap. Keep frozen until ready to serve. Before serving, remove from the freezer for 10 minutes; garnish with orange slices, if desired. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Vanilla Meringue Pie Shell
2 egg whites
2 teaspoons pure vanilla extract
1/8 teaspoon salt

1/2 cup granulated sugar
Preheat oven to 250 degrees F. Line a 9-inch pie plate with foil; set aside. In a large bowl of an electric mixer combine egg whites, vanilla extract and salt. Beat until soft peaks form. Gradually add sugar, beating until stiff and glossy. Spread over bottom and sides of the prepared pie plate. Bake 1 hour; turn off oven; let stand in oven for 4 hours or overnight to dry. Remove foil; return pie shell to pie plate before filling. Makes 1 shell.

Mavs say Macleod suit is groundless

DALLAS (AP) — The Dallas Mavericks say John MacLeod's lawsuit is a case of greed. The former coach is seeking a percentage of profits the team made after he was fired.

"In the opinion of the Mavericks, the claim is without merit," said Doug Adkins, the team's vice president-counsel.

"The Mavericks agreed to pay his base salary for the year he departed and one additional year," Adkins said. "We did that. The issue he has raised is that he's entitled to certain bonuses. But we never agreed to them and we don't intend to pay them now."

The breach-of-contract lawsuit was filed in state District Court of Dallas this week. Adkins said the Mavericks will file a reply sometime before Aug. 20.

MacLeod, 53, was hired as Mavericks coach on June 4, 1987, and fired on Nov. 29, 1989, when he was replaced by his assistant Richie Adubato. He coached the New York Knicks in 1990-91, but left on May 4 to coach at Notre Dame.

MacLeod was hired by Dallas under a handshake agreement with team owner Donald Carter. That contract, later put in writing, provided a base salary of $245,000 a year for his first season, an annual performance bonus and other benefits, the lawsuit states.

The salary was to increase at least 5 percent annually, the lawsuit says. MacLeod also contends he was owed 2 percent of the first $1 million in team profits each year, plus 3 percent of any additional profits.

The Mavericks disagree.

"Mr. Carter stands behind it, and we are not only disappointed but also shocked that John would take this action," Adkins said. "There were no exchanges of contract, but I'm sure he, like us, probably made his own personal notes..."

"The problem in dealing with a man such as Carter, whose word is his handshake and a handshake is his contract, is that if people have a lapse of memory, you end up with a swearing match at the courthouse," Adkins said.

When the handshake agreement was later put into writing, the lawsuit states, it specified that if the Mavericks ever fired MacLeod, he would be entitled to the entire compensation for that season and one more.

James Coleman, MacLeod's attorney, said Wednesday that since MacLeod was fired 11 games into the 1989-90 season, the former coach has received his salary and benefits, but the Mavericks have not paid him his share of the profits.

"We wrote them a letter demanding the payment, and they didn't send a check," Coleman said. "It is our position that he is entitled to all the compensation he had been getting for those two years."

Aggies' Batts is suspended

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Marcus Batts, a redshirt freshman defensive back for Texas A&M University, has been suspended indefinitely for violating team rules, head football coach R.C. Slocum announced.

A&M officials would not comment further on the suspension, but the Bryan-College Station Eagle reported that Batts has been accused of trying to buy three compact discs July 13 using a stolen American Express card.

The Eagle reported that Batts was arrested Tuesday and released the same day after posting $2,500 bail on a charge of credit card abuse, a third degree felony.

Alan Cannon, A&M sports information director, would not release any details about the suspension. Cannon did say that Batts was suspended from the team, but he remained enrolled at the university. Batts is a general studies major.

Batts was an all-district safety as a sophomore and junior at Lamar High School in Houston. He switched to quarterback in his senior year and earned the Houston Independent School District's Co-Offensive Player of the Year.

As a senior, Batts completed 58 of 144 passes for 1,229 yards and 13 touchdowns. He also rushed for 348 yards and 10 touchdowns on 85 carries.

Adkins said he had not determined the exact figure MacLeod says he was due, but he hinted it was about $100,000. "It's not a huge sum of money, but enough for people to litigate over," he said.

MacLeod has not been available for comment since the lawsuit was filed.

MacLeod posted a 96-79 record in just over two seasons with the Mavericks.

Haller named in steroid suit

DALLAS (AP) — Former Baylor basketball player John Wheeler has filed a $3 million lawsuit in Dallas claiming former Baylor basketball coach Jim Haller induced him into using steroids.

Wheeler's mother, Nina Wheeler, contends the steroids contributed to her son's serious health problems.

The lawsuit was filed Wednesday in Dallas County District Court, naming Haller, Baylor and MBank N.A. in Waco as defendants and himself and his mother as plaintiffs. The lawsuit also alleges that the coach, university and bank induced Wheeler into signing a promissory note for a car Wheeler could not afford.

Nina Wheeler said the steroids contributed to her son's needing two open-heart operations, one in 1986 and six weeks ago. Wheeler, who has Marfan's Syndrome, is scheduled for another heart operation Aug. 16.

Red Sox eek out 2-1 victory

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Boston Red Sox didn't crush the "Can" but they did snap a six-game losing streak with a victory against their old flamboyant teammate.

Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd, who was with Boston for seven years, took the 2-1 loss in his debut with the Texas Rangers Wednesday night but pitched well enough to win.

"You could tell he was a little nervous because he wanted to show what he had and he wanted to win," said Boston's Mike Greenwell. "It's fun to face him."

Joe Hesketh (4-1) and two relievers combined for a two-hitter against the heavy-hitting Rangers, who saw a four-game victory streak go down the drain.

Boyd (0-1) allowed only six hits in five innings but the Red Sox won their first game in Arlington Stadium in 10 attempts.

Boyd, who was 6-8 for Montreal before he was traded for two minor leaguers and a player to be named later, admitted to a touch of nerves.

"I was more off mentally than physically," Boyd said. "The distraction of playing my old team put me off track just enough. I wanted everyone over there to say: 'The Can looks good. That's all I wanted.'"

Boston manager Joe Morgan, who feuded with Boyd during his stay in Boston, said "he didn't have his control like he usually does. He threw a lot of pitches for him."

Boyd said he wanted to bury his feud with Morgan.

"Those things are personal and I'd like to leave it at that," he said. "Play baseball was all I wanted. All I wanted to do was pitch. I think I can help out this club."

Boston's Tony Pena said it was the same old "funky" Boyd.

"He has about six or seven different pitches and we saw them all except for his speedball," Pena said.

Texas manager Bobby Valentine was pleased.

"We saw what 'Oil Can' can do," Valentine said. "We were looking for a quality starter and I think the adjective for 'Oil Can' is quality."

Wade Boggs, whom Boyd once accused of racism, said he "threw good. He'll help 'em."

St. Louis nips Houston, 4-3

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The St. Louis Cardinals had to be sad to see the Houston Astros leave town.

"It's been nice. Let's keep it going," catcher Tom Paganuzzi said after the Cardinals completed a three-game sweep of the Astros with a 4-3 victory Wednesday night.

The Cardinals left 15 runners on base, but it didn't stop them from raising their record against the NL West's last-place team to 7-2. St. Louis outscored Houston 18-5 in the three games and have outscored the Astros 58-28 in their nine meetings this season.

"We have three more games with them, and I think it's important for us to win," Manager Joe Torre said after the Cardinals outthrew Houston 13-5. "We need to beat clubs that we can beat."

The Cardinals got big games from Jose Oquendo, who's been in a season-long hitting funk, and pitcher Ken Hill, coming off three ineffective outings, to finish off the Astros.

Oquendo got his first three-hit game of the season and drove in the game-winning run in the ninth inning with a bases-loaded single over a drawn-in outfield.

"It feels like the first three-hit game in a couple of seasons," said Oquendo, who's batting just .231. "I can't say I'm out of my slump yet, but I'm feeling more comfortable. I hope I can keep contributing."

Oquendo went 5-for-10 in the series. On the game-winner, he drove a pitch from Al Osuna (5-3) over the head of center fielder Gerald Young.

"He didn't try to kill it," Torre said. "He just went up there, relaxed, and swung the bat."

Hill worked eight strong innings and was an unexpected offensive star. He entered the game 1-for-32 on the season, but contributed RBI singles in the fifth and sixth.

Pro football camps

Scrimmage to give players variety

AUSTIN (AP) — Dallas Cowboys coach Jimmy Johnson expects tonight's scrimmage against the Houston Oilers will give his players some of the variety they have been lacking in training camp.

"It's good for our guys to go up against another team," Johnson said Wednesday. "It gets old when you're competing against the same guy day in and day out."

Johnson said he will primarily use his base defense against the Oilers' run-and-shoot offense. In a regular season game, the Cowboys would employ a nickel defense against the pass-oriented scheme. He estimated the scrimmage would last about 130 plays.

Starting running back Emmitt Smith and first-team wide receiver Michael Irvin will be held out of the scrimmage. Smith has been slowed by a hamstring pull and Irvin has a sore back.

Johnson cut short morning practice by 15 minutes Wednesday after several players complained of muscle tightness. A few others are nursing slight muscle pulls.

"We've got so many players with tight hamstrings and pulled groins who are unable to go at full speed," Johnson said. "We decided to give them a little time off."

The Cowboys cut the number of veteran holdouts to four Wednesday afternoon by signing guard John Gesek to a three-year deal.

Middle linebacker Jack Del Rio, defensive linemen Dean Hamel and Danny Stubbs and fullback Alonzo Highsmith entered the 11th day of their holdouts.

Johnson welcomed starting defensive tackle Danny Noonan after Noonan ended his 10-day holdout and went through his first training camp workout.

"He's a key player for us," Johnson said. "He's outstanding against the run and in our division, that's a key. Our defensive front should be as strong as it's been since I've been here, by far."

Noonan worked out in pads only a few hours Wednesday after signing and passing his physical. Johnson said Noonan should be able to quickly get into the swing of camp.

Noonan, 26, praised the Cowboys for keeping negotiations on a positive note.

"I never got an offer until yesterday, and then we got it done in a matter of hours," Noonan said Wednesday. "But I was always confident the deal would get done. It was always kept on a professional level."

Noonan, Dallas' first-round pick in the 1987 draft, made $325,000 last season in the final year of his contract. Last season was the best of his four with the Cowboys, finishing fourth on the team in tackles with a career-high 85.

Oiler kicker hopes to prove himself

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Teddy Garcia hopes his second San Antonio experience is better than his first.

Garcia, who finished last season as the Houston Oilers' kicker, started a summer job with the WLAFL San Antonio Riders by kicking one field goal in four attempts and missed an extra point that assured a loss for the Riders.

He was released and glad to leave town. "I'm for getting any kind of experience I can but, yeah, I was glad to get out of there," Garcia said. "If they hadn't pulled me out, all I would do is hurt myself more and more."

Garcia is back in town now, trying to solidify his job with the Oilers and trying to overcome bad kicking habits he obtained during the summer.

"We couldn't even kick an extra point," Garcia said. "Everybody got a little shaky. That hurt. Every time we got in a game, somebody wanted to do something different. One person would get scared or shaky and other things would happen."

Strange things happened when Garcia trotted onto the field.

"I'd be taking my steps and they'd center the ball," Garcia said. "In one pre-season game my center yelled at me to hurry. I never heard that in my life. It was like a 20-yard field goal and he's telling me to hurry."

UIL, coaches mull proposal

HOUSTON (AP) — The University Interscholastic League and the Texas High School Coaches Association have formal proposals from a local executive who wants the Class A through 4A football championships played at a single location each year, The Houston Post reports.

John Kelley, president of Associated Trading Inc., wants the UIL to conduct the 1991 football championships at the Astrodome and then rotate the games in subsequent years among Dallas, San Antonio and Houston, the Post reported Wednesday.

The two-day event determines the state high school champions of each class.

Because of contractual agreements, the Class 5A championship games are not included in the plan, but could be added when a football television agreement expires at the end of the 1991 season.

This is the third proposal for a central location for the games presented to the UIL in recent years.

The only Boston runs came on an RBI double by Ellis Burks and a bases-loaded single off the left field wall by Jack Clark.

Hesketh's only mistake was a homer by Brian Downing that hit the leftfield foul pole. Jeff Gray went one and one-thirds innings and closer Jeff Reardon earned his 24th save.

"Who said we couldn't win a game in this place?" said Morgan. "Hesketh was just outstanding."

Hesketh said "my sinker was working great."

But the talk in the lockerrooms after the game was about Boyd.

"He kept us off balance pretty well considering he hasn't been in the American League for a few years and facing his old teammates," Burks said. "I'm glad to be where I am," Boyd said. "And I think the Rangers will be glad I'm here."

Base closing proposal clears another hurdle

WASHINGTON (AP) — An independent commission's proposal to close 34 military bases and realign 48 others is moving closer to becoming reality.

The House Armed Services Committee approved the proposal Wednesday on a 44-8 vote. The issue will be considered by the full House next Tuesday. The Senate Armed Services Committee is expected to act on the commission's report by Friday.

The House committee's overwhelming approval came despite complaints from some members that the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission acted unfairly. Opponents of the list concede there is little they can do to block it.

"The data was faulty or inconsistent," said Rep. Lane Evans, D-Ill., one of the eight who opposed the list.

But Rep. Thomas Andrews, D-Maine, said the commission's selection process was "open, honest ... there were no backroom deals."

But Andrews said he was unhappy that the panel voted to close Loring Air Force Base in his state based on data he said was flawed. Rep. Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., who voted against the list, said the commission acted too hurriedly and was not independent enough from the Pentagon, which supplied a third of the commission staff.

She and Rep. Neal Abercrombie, D-Hawaii, said American bases on foreign soil also should be considered for closure.

Congress has 45 legislative days from July 10 to either approve the list without modification or reject it entirely. The recommendations already have

President Bush's approval. Meanwhile, a federal judge in Philadelphia set Sept. 30 for a hearing on a lawsuit to stop the government from closing the Philadelphia Naval Shipyard, one of several major installations on the shutdown list. The suit was filed by members of Congress from Pennsylvania and neighboring New Jersey and Delaware.

The Justice Department told the court the lawsuit was out of order because Congress has yet to affirm the commission's recommendation to close the shipyard, which employs more than 7,600 people. But Bruce Kauffman, an attorney for the plaintiffs, said it was the Navy that jumped the gun — by diverting vessels from the yard and starting to fire workers.

Closing the 34 facilities and realigning 48 others will save $2.3 billion between 1992 and 1997 and $1.3 billion annually after that, the commission says. There is a one-time cost of about $4.1 billion to close the facilities.

Other major installations slated for closure include Fort Ord, Calif.; Fort Benjamin Harrison in Indianapolis; Grissom Air Force Base in Peru, Ind.; Carswell and Bergstrom Air Force bases in Texas, and the Naval Station in Long Beach, Calif.

Altogether, the closings will directly affect 82,000 military and 38,000 civilian jobs.

Besides Schroeder and Evans, House committee members voting against the commission list were: Reps. Bob Davis, R-Mich.; Thomas Foglietta, D-Pa.; Dennis Hertel, D-Mich.; Curt Weldon, R-Pa.; Frank McCloskey, D-Ind.; and Barbara Boxer, D-Calif.

Obituaries

Jenna M. Bennett

1971-1991

Services have been set for 10 a.m. Friday at Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home Chapel for Jenna Marie Bennett, 19, of Snyder. Dr. Tim Griffin, pastor of First Christian Church, will officiate. Burial will follow in the Snyder Cemetery.

Miss Bennett was pronounced dead, due to a sudden illness at 11:15 a.m. at her residence, by Justice of the Peace Wanda Rushing.

Born Aug. 24, 1971, in Snyder she was a clerk at the C&W Stores.

Survivors include her mother and father, Frank and Linda Lou Bennett of Snyder; a sister, Melanie Ann Bennett of Snyder; a maternal grandmother, Melcina Timora of Snyder; and a paternal grandmother, Gladys Bennett of Pampa.

Henry Norris

LAMESA — Services have been set for 2 p.m. Friday at the First United Methodist Church in Lamesa for Henry Norris with the Rev. Jim Terry, pastor of the church, officiating. He will be assisted by the Rev. Clifton Igo, Gerald Parsons and a former student, R.B. Snell.

Burial will follow in the Lamesa Memorial Park under the direction of Branon Funeral Home.

He was the father of Dick Norris of Snyder.

Mr. Norris passed away at 1:45 p.m. Tuesday at Medical Arts Hospital in Lamesa following a lengthy illness.

Born in Texico, N.M., he married Margaret Ann White on Aug. 31, 1937, in Lamesa.

Moving to Lamesa, from Farwell, in 1928 he was principal of Richardson schools in the western part of Dawson County. He was then associated with the Ballard School and in 1931 he began his tenure with the Lamesa school system. There he was a history instructor, high school principal and was elected county superintendent. In 1945, he resigned and started the Henry Norris Insurance Agency.

Mr. Norris served as chairman of the Dawson County Community Chest, president of the Lamesa Lions Club, District Boy Scout executive, president of the Lamesa Chamber of Commerce, served on the Lamesa City Council, chairman of Dawson County Old Timers Assn., and served one or more terms as chairman of various civic and charitable groups such as March of Dimes, Dawson County Crippled Children organization, Tuberculosis and Heart Associations.

He was chairman of the board of stewards for the Methodist Association during 1965-66. As a member of the First United Methodist Church, he had served on the official board of the church since 1931 and was superintendent of the Sunday school. He served six years on the board of directors of Medical Arts Hospital, and was chairman two years. Being instrumental in starting the hospital, he also founded the Old Simpson House as a museum for Dawson County, heading the committee that raised $6,000 to buy the house.

Survivors include his wife, Margaret Norris of Lamesa; another son, Jim Norris of Lamesa; one sister, Beulah Harrison of Harlingen; four grandchildren; and one great-grandchild.

Memorials may be made to Medical Arts Hospital Ladies Auxiliary.

Iran hostage report...

Demos to push formal investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite possible political peril, House Democratic leaders plan to pursue a formal investigation of whether the 1980 Reagan-Bush campaign struck a deal with Iran to delay release of American hostages until after the election, Democratic sources say.

The officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said Wednesday that House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., would announce the probe next week and detail the mechanism he will establish to carry out the investigation.

President Bush has denied any knowledge of a campaign hostage deal with Iran but has said he would not mind if Congress carried out its own inquiry. Former President Carter has called for an investigation.

Foley is convinced that the persistent allegations are too serious to allow them to circulate without final answers, the sources said. He has become convinced, as well, that those answers cannot be obtained without the power of a formally constituted committee to issue subpoenas and to question witnesses under oath.

Sensitive to the political overtones of an investigation which could stretch into an election year, the sources said, the speaker is determined that the probe be a low-profile effort.

Some Democrats have been eager to pursue the matter, convinced that it could be politically damaging to Republicans. But for Foley, the prospect that an investigation could be seen as an expensive fishing expedition has caused him to approach the issue cautiously.

The speaker was said to be considering several formats for an investigation, but he appeared most inclined to designate a task force within the House Foreign Affairs Committee and its staff to do the work.

Such a team would include

Republican as well as Democratic members and could later include Senate representation should Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, decide to become involved, the sources said.

Hampering any such investigation is the fact that the story is more than a decade old, and that a key witness — William Casey, the Reagan campaign chairman and later CIA director — is dead. Others who claim knowledge of the affair, including some Iranians, have less than stellar reputations, the sources noted.

House Democratic staff members have been informally looking into the allegations since they were revived in a newspaper article in April by former Carter administration official Gary Sick.

Sick and others who claim knowledge of the affair have since been interviewed, and aides have presented Foley with a private report on their findings.

Dahmer gives confession

Dahmer's father, Lionel, investigated and found "bones and the residue in the containers, but he couldn't tell if they were human or animal bones," Mrs. Dahmer said.

"Jeffrey said it was an animal he found. When he was young, he liked to use acid to scrape the meat off dead animals. He told Lionel that's what he was doing."

The family feared he was involved with the occult, she said.

Mrs. Dahmer also said her stepson often brought men home through a private entrance to the basement.

"One time he was down there with a man and his grandmother opened the door," she said. "He was bare-chested and he said to her, 'Don't come down here, you don't want to come down here.' She thought they were both naked. So she didn't go down."

Police Chief Philip Arreola said police found five full bodies and parts of six others at Dahmer's apartment. All the victims were apparently male, he said. He refused to comment on news reports that Dahmer admitted to cannibalism.

Dahmer issued a statement through his lawyer saying he "has no one to blame but himself, not the police, not the courts and not the probation department."

"There comes a time when you have to be honest and this is the time," he said.

Police today identified one of the victims as Oliver Lacey, 23. His mother, Catherine Lacey, said he was last seen July 12 going to a Milwaukee mall for ice cream.

Police also said they found in Dahmer's apartment the photograph of a 14-year-old boy who is the missing brother of a youth Dahmer molested.

Dahmer fondled that 13-year-old youth after promising to pay him $50 to pose for photos. Dahmer was released from prison in March 1990.

The boy's brother, missing since May, is seen in the photo in his underwear, his handcuffed hands over his head, another brother said.

Dahmer found his victims at bars and shopping malls and lured them to his apartment for photographs, court papers said.

"Dahmer further stated that he would drug these individuals and usually strangle them and then he would dismember the bodies, often boiling the heads to remove flesh so he could retain the skulls," a police affidavit said.

Soldiers and militiamen do battle

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP) — Federal soldiers and Croatian militiamen battled on the border between Croatia and rival Serbia before dawn today as tensions over Croatia's attempts at secession continued to grow.

Croatian radio said six militiamen died and 15 were wounded in the fighting near the village of Erdut, in eastern Croatia about 60 miles northwest of Belgrade, the capital of Yugoslavia as well as Serbia. The federal army said its troops suffered no casualties.

Croatia's defense minister, Sime Djodan, said in Zagreb that the republic was "preparing for a defensive war with all available means." Croatia accuses the Serb-dominated federal army of siding with armed Serb militants living in the republic.

Fighting between Croats and Serbs has intensified this week, threatening to push Croatia into war with Serbia, Yugoslavia's largest republic and a staunch opponent of independence for Croatia unless Serb-dominated areas of the republic are allowed to join Serbia.

In other incidents overnight, two Croatian militiamen and a federal army sergeant were reported killed in a clash in Vinkovci, and Croatian security forces and Serb militants fought in several parts of Croatia.

After the failure of a summit meeting of Yugoslav leaders on Monday, Croatian President Franjo Tujman called on his people to be prepared for war.

Croatia declared independence on June 25 in tandem with Slovenia, the federation's northernmost republic. Slovenian militiamen and federal troops fought fierce battles until a truce in early July.

YUGOSLAVIA

The disintegration of Yugoslavia, with the republics of Croatia and Slovenia declaring independence and then fighting the Yugoslav army and Serb-dominated central government, was almost preordained. More than any other country in Europe, Yugoslavia is an ethnic patchwork, a country whose peoples have been loosely bound only by economic necessity.

Yugoslavia's six republics are made up of Serbs (37 percent), Croats (20 percent), Muslims (9 percent), Slovenes (8 percent), Albanians (8 percent), Macedonians (6 percent), Montenegrins (3 percent), Hungarians (3 percent), and Bulgarians (2 percent). About the only thing the ethnic groups have in common is their hatred of each other and their general hostility toward the central government in Belgrade.

The country was formed after World War I from remnants of the old Austro-Hungarian Empire. Serbs, Croats and Slovenes were thrown together into an uneasy alliance under King Alexander, who changed its name to Yugoslavia in DEAR DR. GOTT: I have something rare called CREST syndrome. My doctor indicates I will eventually suffer from crippling arthritis. I already have pain in my joints and am on pain medication, but I wonder what lies ahead.

DEAR READER: CREST syndrome is an acronym for complications resulting from scleroderma, a chronic autoimmune (self-allergy) disease marked by scarring and other degenerative changes in many organs.

- C: calcinosis, calcifications under the skin.

- R: Raynaud's phenomenon, poor circulation to fingers and toes that is made worse by exposure to cold.

- E: esophageal malfunction, difficulty swallowing, heartburn and inflammation of the esophagus.

- S: sclerodactyly, taut, shiny skin over the fingers.

- T: telangiectasia, dilated blood vessels in the fingers, chest, face and lips.

In addition, patients with scleroderma often suffer from arthritis, shortness of breath, maldigestion, heart inflammation and renal disease (the major cause of death).

Although scleroderma is a serious disease, its course is variable and unpredictable; it may be slowly progressive, but the prognosis is poor in the presence of heart or kidney complications.

Scleroderma is usually treated with prednisone, a type of cortisone. Other drugs are used to relieve specific symptoms, such as joint pain and intestinal complaints.

You seem to have a relatively severe form of scleroderma. Should there be questions about your prognosis and treatment, you may seek a consultation with a rheumatologist, a doctor specializing in the management of autoimmune disorders.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my health report "Help I - Physical Illness." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: In a recent column, you stated that treatment for head lice is by prescription only. This is incorrect; please inform your readers.

DEAR READER: Thank you for correcting me. I made a boo-boo, as the comedian Jerry Lewis used to say.

More and more drugs that were once prescription compounds are now available over the counter. For those interested readers, here is an updated list of non-prescription remedies for lice: A-200, Barc, Pronto, Endlice, Kwell, RID, Triple X and NIX. I apologize for my error.

You may obtain further information about head lice by requesting the pamphlet Facts About Head Lice from the Society for Visual Education Inc., 1345 Diversey Parkway, Chicago, IL 60614.

For money-hungry states...

Lotteries are not a sure bet anymore

by The Associated Press

When Gov. Ann Richards opened a special session of the Texas legislature last week, she urged lawmakers to support a lottery to help with a multibillion-dollar deficit.

"It is the rarest of all creatures," she said, "a popular way to generate revenue."

But officials in Texas — and Louisiana where a lottery begins this fall — may be taking a bigger gamble than they think.

State-run lotteries are no longer a sure bet.

In the fiscal year just ended, seven of the lotteries operating in 31 states and the District of Columbia made less than they did the previous year, the first time many saw lottery revenues fall. Revenues of six others saw a dip. Still others see bets drying up this year; in New York, betting is down 10 percent.

The explanations are many. A weak economy; the Gulf War; competition from other games. "With the banking crisis and the war, we're a little behind," said Peg Rose, a spokeswoman for the Rhode Island Lottery Commission.

But some see more long-term reasons. Public interest, they say, is flagging. In some cases the games have reached a saturation point. It will take new games and more hype to keep the bets coming in.

"It's going to take some fairly dramatic change in the way they are doing tickets or some significant new product," said Duane Burke of the Public Gaming Research Institute.

State lotteries have come a long way since 1964, when New Hampshire instituted a cumbersome sweepstakes game that earned the state a few million dollars.

New York started its own sweepstakes in 1967. New Jersey pioneered modern lotteries with a computerized, mass market game in 1968. Massachusetts, Connecticut, Pennsylvania and Rhode Island joined the club in the early 1970s. Lottery fever spread to the Midwest, then to the West.

Last year, people bet nearly $21 billion on state lotteries, a 7 percent increase over 1989. But the gains are modest compared with double digit increases during the heydays of the 1980s.

California saw lottery revenues drop from $2.59 billion last year to $2.29 billion this year. Oregon's lottery dropped 11 percent, from $162.6 million to $147.3 million. Idaho, Iowa, Missouri, Ohio and Pennsylvania also took in less last year.

Lottery revenues have gone flat in Florida, Illinois, Maine, New Jersey, and Rhode Island.

"We've seen increased competition over the years," said Mike Lang, a spokesman for the Illinois lottery. "We use to have no lottery states near us. Now we have several."

In a year of state budget crisis, the declines are even more painful for officials who have come to rely heavily on their lottery.

Many use the revenues to balance the state budget. Others earmark it for education, conservation and capital projects. South Dakota's video lottery netted the state $106.7 million last year, making it the third largest contributor to the state's general fund.

The effects of the decline are being felt. In Pennsylvania, declining lottery revenues and increasing medical costs have forced the state to raise the amount senior citizens pay for prescriptions.

While the recession is blamed for a drop in betting, the reasons are often more complex. California's revenue fall came after the odds of their big lotto games were raised by adding numbers to choose. Ohio also saw bets drop when it raised the odds and put a $26 million cap on jackpots.

The strategy worked in Washington state, where revenues jumped from $246 million to $259.6 million after the game was changed from a pick of six of 44 numbers to six of 49.

Lottery spokesman Richard Paulson said the change was made after research showed bettors wanted bigger jackpots. The change obliged everyone: last year state residents thrilled to jackpots of $14 million, $12 million and $10 million. Previously the biggest jackpot was $7 million.

"It's not like the odds went from wonderful to terrible," said Paulson. "We made them longer, but they were never great."

The big jackpots were hyped in ads. But hard-pressed states are taking an opposite tact: 16 are trimming advertising budgets.

Some say the drumbeat of publicity is the best way to keep the bets flowing. Jim Hosker, former director of the Massachusetts Lottery, brought that philosophy with him when he took over Kentucky's lottery.

Kentucky changed its prize structure, increasing the number of winners. In six months, revenues have jumped 25 percent.

"We're government, but we're in the marketing business," said Hosker, who is also president of the National Association of State and Provincial Lotteries. "Ivory Snow sells more soap when it markets new improved Ivory Snow. Lotteries are the same way."

Some states have listened to the advice and instituted Las Vegas-style video card games. Revenues have more than doubled since its advent in South Dakota. West Virginia has had success testing the games at race tracks. Oregon has just passed a video lottery law.

Members of the Concerned Shrimpers of America, which objects to mandatory use of the devices, have said they plan to remove the gear during a protest Friday off Grand Isle.

Shrimpers say the devices, designed to protect endangered sea turtles from drowning, have reduced their catches. They also contend that there are not enough sea turtles in Louisiana waters to justify using the gear.

"Our position is the Coast Guard enforces the laws 365 days a year, 24 hours a day, and this is really no different," said Lt. Peter Seaman, a Coast Guard spokesman.

The penalty for a first offense can be a fine of $8,000 to $12,000 for the boat captain and owner, according to the Coast Guard. Repeat offenders could be fined up to $25,000 and have their boats and gear seized.

Progress made in Baylor/Baptist rift

DALLAS (AP) — There is new hope for healing the rift between Baylor University and the Baptist General Convention of Texas, said the head of the BGCT panel trying to resolve the dispute.

"The best thing about it is that it simply represents an affirmation on Baylor's part that they really are interested in finding common ground," said Dr. Robert E. Naylor.

However, Naylor said the symbolic agreement reached Wednesday between BGCT leaders and Baylor officials still faces a long approval process concluding in November with a vote by the full convention.

"I would emphasize that it is in no sense an official agreement," Naylor said Wednesday night.

"The names involved for the convention are respected leaders, but not a committee to produce a proposal," he said. "Their opinion will carry weight. I will say that it will be considered."

Wednesday's proposal would allow the convention to elect 25 percent of Baylor's governing board and the university's regents the remaining 75 percent.

Naylor, president emeritus of the Southwestern Seminary in Fort Worth, said the proposal falls short of what the convention's executive board had said in June was needed.

"We feel that the convention is entitled to more governmental participation in the election of their regents," Naylor said.

Baylor and the convention had been at odds since last September, when the university's board of regents established an independent governing board free from convention control.

The regents cited the threat of a fundamentalist takeover of the state convention for the Sept. 21 action amending Baylor's 146-year-old charter.

The amended charter allowed the convention to choose only one-fourth of the new governing board of trustees through the regents, with the regents selecting the remaining members. Prior to that change, the convention elected the entire governing board.

The convention protested the move and froze some $6 million in funds earmarked for the university. Proposals and counter-proposals offered by both sides were rebuffed.

Although the agreement signed Wednesday is similar to a proposal Baylor offered in May that was rejected, Baylor vice president of communications Mike Bishop said the accord should not be considered a victory for the school.

"This is a mutual agreement," he said. "The university wanted to preserve its relationship with the convention, and the leaders of the BGCT did not want to lose a world-class institution in Baylor."

Fingerprint computer leads to arrest in 16-year-old murder case

DALLAS (AP) — A routine drunken-driving arrest in Minnesota has resulted in the arrest of a man wanted in a 16-year-old murder case in Dallas because of the use of a new $4.5 million fingerprint computer, police say.

Officers said Stephen Currier, 36, was arrested last Friday on a drunken-driving charge in the farming community of Luverne, Minn.

A warrant check showed that Currier was wanted in connection with a 16-year-old slaying in Dallas, a case reopened in April with the aid of a $4.5 million fingerprint computer.

The 1975 case is the oldest to have been revived and prosecuted with the aid of their Automated Fingerprint Identification System, or AFIS, which contains prints from more than 300,000 people, Dallas police said Wednesday.

Currier was indicted Monday in the slaying of Roy Junior Roberds, who was shot once in the head in the bedroom of his home in the South Oak Cliff area of Dallas.

Currier told The Dallas Morning News Wednesday in an interview from the Nobles County, Minn., jail, that police had told him only that he was wanted on a murder warrant dated in June and carrying a $25,000 bond.

Currier denied any involvement in Roberds' killing, saying he had never met or heard of the victim. He said he was working in a Chicago restaurant for all of 1975 and did not visit Dallas, the newspaper reported.

Mamie Holman, 71, of suburban Lancaster, said she learned of Currier's arrest this week.

"Oh, thank God it's over," she said. "I had almost given up. But a mother never gives up."

Roberds, 29, was a public works employee from suburban DeSoto at the time he was found slain in his apartment. Ms. Holman said the family had never heard of Currier until detectives mentioned his name.

During the past 16 years, Currier has been in the Texas prison twice, for burglary from 1979 to 1981 and for theft from 1984 to 1989. "I don't see why they're coming up with something after all this time," he said. "They've had ample time."

But police at that time did not have the help of an AFIS computer.

Until they obtained the machine in 1989, police needed a suspect before they could try to match fingerprints taken from a crime scene. They had no way to compare fresh prints to those on record.

Commission adds 'Lone Star State' to license plates

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Ann Richards says a decision to emblazon the state's license plates with the phrase "The Lone Star State" is "Texas through and through."

"We like it," said Richards spokesman Chuck McDonald. "It's fitting and appropriate and truly Texan."

The Texas Highway Commission voted Wednesday to add the phrase to Texas tags.

The commission approved the change in response to a resolution passed in the Legislature's regular session that urged the addition.

Highway department chief Arnold Oliver said the commission "agreed it was time to put Texas' unofficial but best-loved label on the plates."

"Texans have made their pride plain, to the point of making it the object of legislation," Oliver said. "We obviously have a lot to be proud of, and our newest license plates, with its flag and 'The Lone Star State,' couldn't trumpet that any more loudly."

The new slogan, which will be in small blue lettering at the bottom of passenger vehicle tags, should start appearing on Texas highways in early 1992.

Adding the logo shouldn't raise the cost of making the plates, which now feature a Texas flag along with blue numbers and letters, said department spokesman Al Zucha.

Column causes organ donors to change mind

CHICAGO (AP) — An Ann Landers column about organ donors whose families were mistakenly charged for their generosity has alarmed thousands and prompted some people to tear up their donor cards, health officials said.

"We are extremely concerned," Esther Benenson, spokeswoman for the United Network for Organ Sharing in Richmond, Va., said Wednesday. "We were flooded with calls from people calling just to make sure that their families weren't going to be charged, and from people who said they no longer wanted to be donors."

Landers said in a statement Tuesday that she will run a clarifying column in August. She urged people not to change their minds about donating organs.

"I find it tragic that so many readers misunderstood the column on transplantation and are now tearing up their donor cards," she said.

Transplant organs were in short supply before the column. Last year there were 6,145 donors nationwide, up from 5,797 in 1989, Benenson said.

"Anything that can cut into organ donation is serious," said Betty Perls, spokeswoman for the Regional Organ Bank of Illinois. "There are currently 23,711 people waiting for transplants nationwide and seven a day are going to die."

Ring collection may not be recovered

DALLAS (AP) — A Texas millionaire says she has no hope of recovering a jewelry collection worth $25 million that was stolen from her villa in France last weekend.

"I think it's just of those terrible things that was meant to be," Wendy Reves said Wednesday from her home outside Nice. "I just wish I knew why."

Mrs. Reves says she had planned to display her rare collection of 387 hand-cut rings at the Dallas Museum of Art, where she is a key benefactor. She says she still has not notified police in the village of Roquebrune-Cap-Martin, France about the theft of the uninsured gems.

"It's such a big theft the local police wouldn't understand the scope of it," she said.

Mrs. Reves' loss ranks as one of the largest thefts of jewels and valuables.

In 1980, robbers took $16 million in jewels from the Cannes, France, villa of Prince Abdel Aziz Ben Ahmed Al-Thani. The largest theft on record came seven years later when $47 million in jewels and cash were taken at gunpoint from a British safe-deposit center.

Mrs. Reves' loss is so large that Nice police officials say it sounds improbable.

"Such a sum is not possible, it's so huge," said Inspector Robert Leroy. "Generally with stolen jewels they don't take such sums — it's too much to try to resell."

"In the 15 years I've been here, I can assure you, there has been nothing of that size."

Mrs. Reves, 75, has been trying to put the theft behind her. On Wednesday she said the thieves had "stolen my soul."

"That night, after we found the jewelry stolen, I said I'm going to get falling-down drunk. So I had two vodkas, got dog drunk and fell down," Mrs. Reves told The Dallas Morning News.

"But I'm a strong woman, and I have to carry on."

Mrs. Reves, a Marshall native, is the widow of Hungarian writer and publisher Emery Reves.

She said a team of detectives has been hired to try and locate the jewels. But she says the ordeal has left a bad taste in her mouth.

"This has totally thrown my life upside down," Mrs. Reves said. "I love the villa, but I feel violated. It's a horrible feeling."

Daughter Has a Full Plate; Parents Get Only Crumbs

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: For quite a long time now, when certain situations arise, I ask myself, "What would Dear Abby say?" I would like to address this situation:

Before I was married, I visited my parents (they live nearby) several times a week. Now I am married — with new friends, wanting to spend time with my husband and also visit my other siblings. This means that my husband and I don't visit my parents as much.

The problem? I feel guilty for not spending more time with them. My mother makes comments like, "Oh, we haven't seen you for months!" (Not true, Abby; we see them at least twice a month.)

I know that we are only as guilty as we make ourselves feel, but I would like to know, in Dear Abby's opinion, how often is often enough to visit parents? They don't seem to understand that there are other people in my life now, and working every day makes me tired at the end of the day and weekends are precious. Any comments?

FEELING GUILTY

wedding, which is scheduled for 2 p.m. We will not be able to leave for home the day of the wedding because there are no evening flights.

So — after the airfare, hotel for two nights, meals, car rental, etc. — the wedding will cost each of us well over $700, not including the gift.

I have just found out that the groom's family will not be invited to the rehearsal dinner, even though we are all from out of town. (There will be only six or eight of us.)

We are very hurt to think that we will be left alone in a hotel in a strange city after all of the effort and expense we will go through to attend this wedding.

Don't tell us it is our choice to go or not. We know that, but his wife would never forgive us if we didn't come, and besides, we really want to be there to see this nephew married.

Please try to explain why my brother and his wife are excluding us from the rehearsal dinner. It can't be the cost — they can well afford a few more dinners. What do the etiquette books say?

HURT IN NEW YORK

Concern voiced over Pantex expansion

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Tearful pleas of protest and foot-stomping cheers of support drowned each other out as Department of Energy officials listened to testimony regarding a proposed expansion of the Pantex nuclear weapons assembly plant.

More than 350 local residents and state officials were expected to air their concerns about expansion at Pantex, 20 miles northeast of Amarillo, during a two-day hearing expected to end this evening.

The battle lines were clearly drawn Wednesday as farmers and ranchers whose land surrounds the Pantex plant carried signs reading "NO!" while most business and city leaders wore buttons reading "YES."

"It's already a big battle," said Bill O'Brien, a local rancher and businessman who heads a task force, called Operation Commonsense, questioning the expansion at Pantex.

"On one side you have advocates over-promising jobs and construction and the other side is exaggerating the dangers of the expansion," O'Brien said. "The bottom line is people need to do some research and check everything out before going one way or the other."

State and city officials as well as local residents took turns speaking to two DOE panels in separate rooms at the Amarillo Civic Center all day Wednesday.

Pantex is one of five weapons plants nationwide being considered for expansion as part of a downsizing of the country's nuclear weapons complex.

Among the proposals would be the relocation of the plutonium processing from the Rocky Flats plant near Denver to Pantex, the nation's final assembly point for nuclear weapons.

Reports of plutonium, a lethal carcinogen used to make triggers for nuclear warheads, seeping into the groundwater near the Rocky Flats plant have raised the fears of local farmers who draw water from the precious Ogallala Aquifer running beneath Pantex.

City officials, who see the expansion as a needed boost to revitalize the economy, feel the DOE should be given a second chance to build safe, state-of-the-art facilities.

"I strongly support the expansion of the Pantex plant," said U.S. Rep. Bill Sarpalius, D-Amarillo, who testified Wednesday.

Sarpalius presented the DOE officials with a letter signed by 25 of the 27 members of the Texas delegation — Democrats and Republicans — who support the expansion at Pantex.

Foreign buyers want hardwood stock

WASHINGTON (AP) — The vast Appalachian area's hardwood timber resources of white and red oak, black cherry, yellow poplar and ash are being tapped increasingly by foreign buyers.

A report by the Agriculture Department said exports of U.S. hardwoods rose more than 15 percent last year to $1.5 billion from $1.3 billion in 1989.

One reason for the rise in hardwood exports has been increasing concern in some foreign markets about deforestation in Brazil and other tropical areas that have traditionally supplied hardwoods.

"These environmental concerns, coupled with restrictions on exporting hardwood from Indonesia and Malaysia, spell change in domestic and international market structures," the report said. "They also may create a unique opportunity for growth in the U.S. hardwood export market."

Overseas demand for hardwood began to take off in the early 1980s, with Taiwan, Japan and Europe creating much of the market growth.

"Today, producers in the Appalachian region export to more than 60 nations," the report said. "The top three markets are Japan, Canada and Germany."

It has been concern over tropical timber that is part of the reason that Germany has become a market for growing potential for Appalachian hardwood producers. "The preference (of German importers) for lighter colored wood is creating a demand for white oak, ash, yellow poplar, beech, hard maple and bass wood," said the report in the August issue of AgExporter magazine.

"There is also a recent increase in demand for U.S. hardwood in Singapore," it added. "Because of log export bans in Indonesia, Malaysia and Thailand, interest in U.S. veneers and lumber for use in the Anti-counterfeiting bill is designed to save money

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government is unveiling a new $100 bill designed to foil counterfeiters using high-technology, state-of-the-art color copiers.

But because the changes are subtle — the addition of a nearly invisible thread and a microscopic line of type — most people won't notice any difference.

"It does not alter the appearance, for all intents and purposes, of currency notes," Ira Polikoff, a spokesman for the Treasury Department's Bureau of Engraving and Printing, said in an interview. The new bills "will continue to look identical to current notes."

Treasury Secretary Nicholas F. Brady and Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan were introducing the new bill today at a news conference in the Treasury's Cash Room.

Polikoff said new $100 bills, which like current ones will bear

Benjamin Franklin's portrait, were being introduced first because the C-notes now in circulation "are the most susceptible to counterfeiting."

New $50 and $20 bills will be added later this year, followed in the next year or two by new $10 and $5 bills.

There is no plan to alter the $1 bill. It poses little risk because it is not worth the effort to most counterfeiters, Polikoff said.

The government decided to add what it calls "security enhancements" because of the development of sophisticated color copiers that can duplicate almost exactly the Federal Reserve notes now in circulation.

The Secret Service said counterfeiters passed $14 million in bogus bills during the fiscal year ending last Sept. 30. Another $66 million in counterfeit money was seized before it could be circulated, it added.

Teachers may strike to get more money

AUSTIN (AP) — Some Texas teachers, saying they are being short-changed by the state on salary and health insurance benefits, are beginning to talk about a strike, one leader says.

Several hundred Texas State Teachers Association members protested at the Capitol Wednesday.

"I hear the word strike," TSTA President Ollie Besteiro said as some protesters chanted: "Strike, strike, strike."

She noted that Oklahoma school teachers walked out for nearly a week last year to win passage of school reform and financing legislation.

"Our neighbors in Oklahoma had all they could take last year. And while I'm not proposing that at this point ... if things get any worse we may not be able to hold teachers and other educational employees back," Ms. Besteiro told the crowd.

In an interview later, Ms. Besteiro noted that state law prohibits public employee strikes, but she said that may not stop them.

She said teachers are growing increasingly angry over actions like those by the House early Wednesday — cutting funds for many school programs — and threats to cut Teacher Retirement System contributions and not fund a health insurance plan approved by lawmakers this spring.
