

THOUSANDS ATTEND BIG BLOWOUT AT LOCKNEY

Floydada People Find Lots Doing on Glorious Fourth—McDermott Post in Drill

Fully five thousand people from Floyd and adjoining counties attended the big barbecue picnic and carnival at Lockney on the 4th and 5th if anything like an accurate estimate could have been taken of the huge crowds that congested the streets there from ten o'clock Tuesday morning until late Wednesday night. Seventeen beebes which had been barbecued for the picnic the first day were accounted for in short order with the crowds clamoring for more. Pickles were served by the barrel, coffee by the tank and bread by the wagon load. The business houses were all closed in Floydada on the 4th and the population turned out en masse to attend the picnic.

An entire block of the business section in Lockney was roped off and reserved for special programs and gatherings. The barbecue was served under a large arbor which had been erected in the edge of the business district and which amply sheltered the throngs.

Tuesday morning the Lockney 20-piece band, directed by E. T. Willard, played in concert at the band stand until eleven o'clock. At eleven the combined forces of the Lockney and Floydada American Legion posts led by the Lockney band and followed by four horse wagon loads of old timers, representing "Thirty years ago," paraded the streets several times. Lieut. E. C. Nelson, Jr., of the McDermott Post Floydada, was in command. Following the parade was a drill in military exercises, conducted by Sergeant Jim Maynard of the McDermott Post.

At two o'clock in the afternoon a political meeting was held in which the candidates for County Judge and County Attorney spoke. The candidates were introduced by Judge Stalbird, of Lockney. No candidates for state or district offices were available. F. N. Oliver, of Spur, the first speaker on the program, spoke in behalf of Hon. Earl B. Mayfield who at present is Railroad Commissioner and a candidate for the U. S. Senate. He was followed by Hon. A. P. McKinnon and Hon. W. E. Huffines, candidates for county attorney. Twenty-five minute speeches were made by W. B. Clark, W. A. Robbins, E. C. Nelson, Jr., and Judge F. P. Henry, candidates for county judge, in the order named. Following was a five minute open session in which all of the candidates were given the privilege of the floor for a rebuttal.

The most interesting feature of the day was the ball game between Floydada and Lockney which was held at four in the afternoon. Both teams were on edge and showed considerable skill at playing a hard, fast game without letting either side score promiscuously. Mitchell tore loose in the early part of the game and made a homer before Johnson, Lockney's big league pitcher, had got his eyes opened. That was Floydada's only score. Lamb, of Lockney, made the score even in the latter part of the fourth inning. It stood pat until the latter part of the tenth when a score by Holmes, of Lockney, decided the winners. A timely double play from Ansley to Snodgrass to Carter saved the Floydada team from a bad situation in the ninth inning. The game was played excellently throughout. It was umpired by Wise, of Quitaque.

The lineup: Floydada; Bishop, m; Ansley, ss; Curry, c; Hall, lf; Mitchell, 1b; Andrews, 2b; Hubbard, p; Dickey, rf; Snodgrass, 3b.

Lockney: Pattey, 3b; Bybee, ss; Burson, rf; Lamb, lf; Wise, c; Johnson, p; Chessier, m; Holmes, 2b; Cowart, 1b.

The score by innings:

Lockney:	000	001	000
Floydada:	010	000	000

Struck out: by Hubbard 7; by Johnson, 15; bases on balls, off Hubbard 2; off Johnson, 0.

SISTERS MEET HERE AFTER SEPARATION OF 37 YEARS

Two sisters, who parted thirty-seven years ago in Tenn., are together again this week for the first time since. They are Mrs. W. M. Slinker, of Valley View, Texas, and Mrs. L. H. Weaver, of Lamesa. The former is here on a visit with her daughter, Mrs. M. H. Martin, having arrived some ten days ago. Her sister arrived Sunday and left this morning returning home.

Mrs. Slinker will probably remain several days on her visit here.

GRAIN CLASSERS' EXAMINATION TO BE HELD SOON

The Division of Markets, Markets and Warehouse Department, has announced that "the first examination to qualify individuals to operate as public grain classers under the newly appointed Board of Grain Examiners will take place in the very near future, at a point to suit the convenience of the greatest number of applicants. In view of its location, Fort Worth has been considered for this purpose, though should this not suit applicants, the examination will be held elsewhere.

"It will be the policy of the Markets and Warehouse Department this fall to insist on the use of these officially created grain classers, and while there will be some leniency shown in the utilization of unofficial grain classers until sufficient opportunity has been given all desiring to qualify under the law, this Department intends to insist on the utilization of officially certified grain classers, as only in this way will it be possible to get the results desired.

"These steps are taken that the classification of the great grain crops of Texas may be put on a more stable basis, and the loss and dissatisfaction caused by present existing methods may be eliminated.

Parties desiring further information regarding this matter should address their communications direct to the Chairman of the Board of Examiners for Grain Classers, Hon. J. F. Ross of Amarillo, Texas, who with R. R. Travis of Ralls and R. V. Crowder of Quanah will examine all applicants for certificates."

PRICE CLEMENTS CONVICTED OF DOUBLE KILLING

Jury Returns Verdict of Murder in First Degree—Proceedings Conducted Through Interpreters

Motley County News: Price Clements, who was charged with the killing of Clay Carpenter and Frank Aikens, near Cuba, New Mexico, on January 6th, of this year, was tried in the District Court of Rio Arriba, at Terra-Amerillo, in that state, last week.

This harrowing crime, details of which, together with the circumstances of the capture of the accused have been published in this paper from time to time, has carried particular interest to our people, owing to the fact that all the parties formerly lived in Motley county.

It required two day and night sessions of the court to hear the trial and arguments, but some delay may have been occasioned because the proceedings were all conducted through the medium of an interpreter, or three interpreters in this case.

The jury was out less than an hour, returning a verdict of murder in the first degree, which in this instance is understood to mean the death penalty, which has probably been assessed before this time.

We understand that the usual motion for a new trial will be filed and the case taken to higher courts.

This case, growing out of one of the worst crimes ever committed in this section, had attracted a great deal of attention, as two men had evidently been shot down in cold blood, without the pretense of defense, or possibility of escape, the motive being robbery, as they were supposed to have considerable money on their persons. To add to the horror of it all, was the fact that the accused was supposed to have been a friend, enjoying their hospitality.

Many weird and horrifying incidents are reported as having attended the trial, not the least among which was the displaying of the skulls of the victims, which had been detached from the bodies of the victims by a local surgeon, and brought into the court at a late hour at night, in a sack, and brought forth as exhibits. Those who had known the men in their life times, said one could easily recognize their heads. The hideousness of the scene, together with the offensive odor, is said to have made most of those present wish they were somewhere else.

H. W. Atkinson and wife left Tuesday for Austin, where they will spend some months, returning to Floydada in the late fall.

NEW SOUTH SIDE BRICK BUILDINGS ARE NEARING COMPLETION

The four new brick buildings on the south side of the square are nearing completion and indications are they will be ready for occupancy between the middle of this month and the first of August.

The new bricks add much to the appearance of the south side business section, completely filling all gaps on that side. They represent an outlay of about $25,000.

The large building of the White Produce Company on South Main is also going up fast. It will house the largest poultry and produce plant in this section of the plains when completed.

Rumors of other business buildings planned have been floating about during the past ten days. It is possible some of these may mature into actualities at an early date.

MAD STONE, APPLIED TO BITE, STICKS THIRTEEN HOURS

A mad stone belonging to A. J. Fanning, northeast of Floydada, applied to a bite on the leg of the eight year old son of Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Austin, of Center, stuck to the wound 13 hours before it turned loose Tuesday of last week.

A vicious cat bit the boy a few days previous and the head of the animal, sent to the Pasteur Institute at Austin, was too badly decomposed when it reached the institute to determine whether the animal was mad by the test.

The mad stone in the possession of Mr. Fanning has been used, he said Saturday, in many cases in this state and Oklahoma, probably as many as fifty. The wound from the cat's bite on the Austin lad is healed almost entirely and he is showing no ill effects at this time.

ROY LEE HAYNES IN LAS VEGAS, N. MEX., HOSPITAL

Roy Lee Haynes, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Haynes, of this city, is in a hospital at Las Vegas, N. Mex., where he is convalescing following an operation for appendicitis.

He left Floydada last Sunday morning in party with Mr. and Mrs. C. Surginer for Las Vegas to attend the F. F. F. Highway Convention and the Cowboys' Reunion, but became ill before reaching Las Vegas on the afternoon of July 3rd. The operation was done July 4th shortly after noon. His condition is quite satisfactory, his parents have been advised by Mrs. Surginer and the attending physicians.

Mrs. Haynes left for her son's bedside Tuesday morning.

K. L. Riggs, of Collinsville, Texas, is here on a prospecting trip and is the guest of J. E. Dickey and A. L. Scoggins, old friends, while here.

WHEAT ASS'N CONTRACTS FOR STORAGE SPACE HERE

The Wheat Growers' Association of Floyd County has contracted with the South Plains Grain Company for elevator space for storage at this point. Dr. O. H. Lloyd, of Vega, from the Amarillo office of the state organization, was here last week and closed the deal with the local elevator people.

The plan of the association is that if possible all the seed that will be needed in the county for seed this fall will be retained here, instead of shipping it out. During the past few weeks, according to organization workers, the membership has continued to grow, a number of pooling contracts having been made in recent weeks. Ample money for financing has been made available, it is declared.

The Grain Sorghums Association is also growing healthily, it is declared. J. A. Draper, of Amarillo, is making a personal canvass of the county for this organization. The principal surplus commodities grown in the county, including wool, cotton, wheat, grain sorghums and possibly dairy products will be represented by organizations by the opening of the fall season, each of which will be making shipments. Three of these organizations handled a portion of the crop last season in the county.

SEVERAL MEN MAY ACCEPT JOBS AS RAILROAD GUARDS

Several local men may accept jobs as special guards for railroad property during the strike which is now under headway among maintenance employees of the railway companies of the country. These men, if they go to work, will likely be employed by the Santa Fe.

J. A. Grigsby, sheriff of Floyd County, received a request for recommendation of suitable men for jobs of this kind last week.

To date no violence has occurred at any of the points in Texas and no damage done to railway property.

THE PAGEANT JULY 21st

The Pageant, "America, yesterday and today," will be given under the auspices of the Parent-Teachers-Association, Friday evening, July twenty-first, on the court house lawn.

The cast is made up of two hundred children and about fifty adults. The pageant is a continued procession of color full of life, interest and play, and yet not without its educational value. The early spirits of the wilderness, the butterflies, Fairy Flowers, Dryads, Tree Nymphs and Mist Maidens are portrayed by children in fantastic costumes and with symbolic dances. Then the Indians claim the scene, soon followed by the pioneers, nothing will be lacking in making this scene reminiscent of the "good old days," even the old camp fiddler will be there. Early colonial life is pictured by sixteen young ladies, who give the Old English Minuet, in colonial costume.

The Spirits of Texas and Floydada are shown with some interesting local history. Before the recession New America enters, accompanied by representatives of war service. Through the play ground movement, within recent years, there has been a revival of outdoor amusements. The Pageant meets this need, and in our cities and colleges they are becoming adopted annual festivals. The P. T. A. believes that Floydada should aid in this high form of artistic exercise and entertainment.

We invite the co-operation of the American Legion, Chamber of Commerce, City Council, and Churches in making this pageant inspiring and interesting to both audience and participants.

FLOYDADA BOYS WIN SECOND GAME WITH LOCKNEY

The Fourth of July baseball game played between Lockney and Floydada at the Lockney grounds during the big barbecue and picnic is declared to have been one of the prettiest contests staged in this section in several seasons. It was equalled, however, by Wednesday's contest except that the local boys had the breaks and won, 3 to 1.

Elmer Mickey, of Sand Hill, was on the mound for the Floydada team. He was pitted against Calloway, of Silvertown, formerly a Texas Leaguer, for Lockney. Lockney's only score came in the eighth when Patty got a fluke home run. A hot single to left field took a bad bounce and went to the outskirts of the playing field. The line up of the two teams was practically the same as on Tuesday.

Summary: Hits off Mickey 5; off Calloway, 6; struck out, by Mickey, 8; by Calloway, 10. Errors, Floydada 5; Lockney, 2.

Score by innings:

Lockney:	000	000	010	—1
Floydada:	200	000	010	—3

Redden's home was at Herrin, Ill.

R. A. LEMOND IS MANAGER S. W. BELL EXCHANGE

R. A. LeMond, of Plainview, is manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company's Floydada Exchange succeeding C. D. Long, who recently resigned. This change was made public last week. M. P. Bright, who came here from the plant department of the company at Amarillo, will give his entire time to the plant department, and Miss Roma Swain has been named cashier. The addition of a half-time operator on the switchboard has also been made.

With these changes it is believed that the service to patrons of this exchange can be materially bettered. R. A. LeMond, who is new manager here also has the Plainview Exchange and the Hale Center exchange. He will spend a portion of his time each week in Floydada, he said last Friday.

S. Y. CARTER DIES AFTER MANY MONTHS OF ILLNESS

S. Y. Carter, since 1918 a resident of Floydada, died at his home immediately south of town Sunday morning at 11 o'clock and was buried Monday afternoon in Floydada Cemetery following funeral services held at the Methodist Church at four o'clock. The funeral was directed by F. C. Harmon. Rev. C. B. Meador, pastor of the Methodist Church preached the funeral sermon.

An obituary of the deceased, prepared by his pastor, says:

"Samuel Young Carter was born August 25th, 1869 in Clark county, Arkansas. He came to Texas with his widowed mother in December, 1890 and located in Ellis county. He was married to Miss Mattie Smith, in November, 1896, and moved to Floydada in January, 1918, where they have lived to the time of his death. He was the father of seven children, six of them are living and were at the bedside throughout his illness. One little one two and one-half years of age, the first born, has been waiting for him during these years in the home that shall last forever.

"He was converted in 1898 and joined the Methodist church, and has lived an exemplary life since that time. For eleven years before coming to the west he was a steward in the church and has held that office one year since in Floydada. Brother Carter has not been able to attend church much since I came as his pastor, but frequent visits to him has brought a ripe acquaintance with him. Many times we have talked together about the work of the church, and I found him intelligent on his church life—he was well posted as to the doctrine and teachings of his church. Until he lost his hearing I never made him a visit but he asked me to hold prayer. Only a few days before his going I was out to see him, and he requested that we hold prayer. I asked him about his faith in God he said it was alright. We know where to find him, for he said, by life and conduct that Heaven was his home. The entire community believed in his religious life and integrity.

"His health was first broken about eight years ago, and he went to south west Texas, where he regained his health, but the epidemic of flu that swept our country, suddenly grasped him and from it he never recovered. He made a brave fight for health, but could never regain it.

"He leaves a wife and six children to mourn his going; also two brothers, B. M. Carter of Childress, and M. F. Carter of the same place and three sisters, Mrs. H. A. Wilson, of Boyce, Mrs. S. H. Sharp of Dallas and Mrs. J. W. Couch of Abilene, only the two brothers were able to reach him for the funeral but nearly all of them have been with him in his last illness.

"Brother Carter has many friends in his home community and we all feel loathe to give him up, but some day we, too, will be called. May we be as ready as we all feel that brother Carter was."

GOOD-SIZED DELEGATION AT LAS VEGAS FROM FLOYDADA

Floydada is well-represented at Las Vegas this week at the F. F. F. Highway Convention and the Eighth Cowboys' Reunion, which closed last night. Besides the boys' band, under the leadership of Sam Goslee, the delegation from Floydada included: J. U. Borum and family, R. T. Stribling and family, J. V. Daniel, J. T. Howard, wife and son, Mrs. Jno. N. Farris and children, J. A. Awtrey and family, J. G. Martin, J. B. Houston and Maury Hopkins. The latter is secretary of the association and will represent Amarillo and Fort Worth papers in covering the meeting for them.

Several of the delegation are making the convention their "jumping off" point for a vacation trip through the mountain regions of New Mexico and Colorado. The band boys and a portion of the delegation are expected home the latter part of this week.

THE AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

The Randall County News is exercising itself mightily about the senatorial race. The News is for Clarence Ousley, who many people think worked against the best interests of Texas for many years.

Dabney White threw some cold water on East Texas' tomato prosperity last week when he issued a statement saying that the tomato crop, while good, was barely paying expenses of gathering and preparing for the market. Surely the crop is paying wages, which is a great deal more than one draws for sitting around and "hollering."

Rev. John P. Hardesty, former pastor of the First Baptist Church at Lockney, has preached two or three sermons since taking up his pastorate at Slaton, favoring the Ku Klux Klan organization. The fact that the Klan makes a show of cleaning up immorality appeals strongly to many zealous people who do not stop to think of the means taken to accomplish the end. We can't bring ourselves to believe that two mountains make a hole in the ground.

To hear some folks talk, the paving of our streets is going to ruin them. We can't quite get their point of view, but the trains still run, and tickets are sold to all parts of the country, and there are still to be found benighted hamlets where paving is yet far in the future.—Memphis Herald.

If the taxpayers get value received for the money expended, it is impossible to spend too much on municipal improvements in a town the size of Memphis. This is true of Floydada as well.

Hereford Democrats are worked up over the fact that Civil Service rules will not apply in the determination of the appointees to postmasterships in cities of their class. The examinations announced for several panhandle towns during the next few weeks will be held "not under the civil service act and rules," but under "the president's order of May 10th." The Hereford post office is due for a change in September. Hereford Democrats who are bothering themselves about the matter should find themselves something more profitable to do.

Floydada has a "begging" ordinance and unfortunates who make this port have an opportunity to go to local authorities, prove themselves and get authority to solicit help from the people of the community. Persons who pay money to beggars who are later found unworthy should blame no one but themselves. We have the utmost sympathy for the unfortunate but an unfortunate ought to be able to prove their worthiness. If they can't show a permit from the city authorities to ask aid they should be turned down and referred to the city marshal. If worthy, they'll probably go to see him. If unworthy, they'll probably get out of town for fear they may see him.

"PADLOCK" MOST EFFECTIVE PROHIBITION WEAPON

July 1.—Federal Prohibition Commissioner Haynes states that the "padlock" provision of the Prohibition Act has resulted in the closing of a large number of hotels and other public buildings within the past year.

The Windsor Hotel at Denver has been closed as the alleged headquarters for bootleggers, according to Director McClenahan, and U. S. District Attorney Todd brought "padlock" action against the Home Lawn Hotel at Albany, N. Y., resulting in its closing for one year.

"The 'padlock' provision is the most effective weapon against persistent liquor violators," said Commissioner Haynes, "and from reports I have received, proceedings have been instituted against hotels and road houses in various parts of the country. When real estate owners find that their property is subject to a permanent injunction and violators find they are subject to contempt proceedings, it has a wholesome effect."

Sections 21 and 22 of Title II of the Prohibition Act, under which padlock proceedings are brought, provided that any room, house, building, boat, vehicle, structure, or place where intoxicating liquor is manufactured, sold, kept, or bartered may be declared a public nuisance, and may be sold to pay fines and costs, and the court may order same closed for one year.

The Texas Federal Prohibition Office being asked their experience in the matter said:

"There have been several places placed under injunction in Texas, among them a forty-five room hotel but mostly the section of the law has been used against drug stores and cold drink stands. It is suggested that in places like Galveston where it is alleged no effort is made by local officers to enforce the law and a cold drink saloon directly across from the police station sells whiskey as freely as any others, that such action is the only effective means prior to the time that the Court may send repeaters to the penitentiary."

ROARING SPRINGS GAME FRIDAY MEDLEY OF ERRORS

The game between Floydada and Roaring Springs clubs at the local park Friday afternoon was a medley of hits and errors, the locals winning 11 to 9.

Fomby pitched for Roaring Springs and Hubbard for Floydada. Two errors were made by Floydada players in the pinches and five by the Roaring Springs bunch. Heavy hitting featured the game. Hubbard got 7 strikeouts and Fomby 6. Hollis Moore was Hubbard's battery mate.

METHODISTS TAKE ONE

The Methodist Sunday School Baseball Team won their game Thursday last week from the Baptists, a home run the ninth by Irvin Bishop untieing the score and putting his team on top of the heap.

Captains Boone Hall and J. R. Yearwood were loath to trust this important game to their respective pitching staffs and accordingly did the heaving themselves.

The score was 4 to 3.

SAND HILL TAKES TWO FROM FLOYDADA BASEBALL CLUB

Sand Hill won two baseball games from the Floydada Baseball Team last week, taking the first on Tuesday at Sand Hill and the second here Saturday. The score Saturday was six to three.

Bright, who opened on the mound for Floydada, was wild, and was relieved in the fifth by Hubbard. Mickey heaved seven innings for Sand Hill and Womack two. A small crowd witnessed the game, which was marked by a number of errors, but was a fast one nevertheless.

SPEAKING OF STRAWBERRIES

Speaking of a huge strawberry from the garden of M. F. Hampton last week The Hesperian said it was two and a fourth inches in circumference,—a grievous error. The strawberry in question was four and a fourth inches in circumference.

Another strawberry we have seen this week was one grown in the garden of Mrs. Nelson Cowand southeast of Floydada on the Lakeview road. This berry measures four and a fourth inches in circumference, too, and was grown from a plant which was set out this spring. Incidentally the flavor was delicious.

E. S. Randerson has the record for the largest strawberry, however. He had one on display Wednesday which measured four and three-fourths inches in circumference.

A beauty about the Floyd County strawberries is that they are almost all of the ever-bearing variety. They begin early in the spring and last until frost. "Strawberries and cream" is a reality.

Dr. V. Andrews and daughter, Miss Maurine, accompanied by Miss Mary Childress returned the latter part of last week from a visiting tour over Oklahoma and North Texas. They visited at Purcell, Oklahoma City, Gainesville, Valley View, Fort Worth and Vernon.

A. F. Weigel, of Knoxville, Tenn., who has been an extensive landholder in the Baker Community east of Floydada for the past sixteen years, has been in Floydada this week looking after his interests.

Miss Charley Floyd, of Vernon, is visiting here with her cousin, Miss Maurine Andrews.

J. A. Price, former resident of Floydada, was down from Plainview on business Monday. Mrs. G. French, of Dallas, is here to spend the summer with her son, R. G. French and wife.

KANSAS CITY MARKET

Kansas City Stock Yards, July 3.—With Tuesday, July 4, the usual holiday at the Stock Yards, opening receipts for the week were small, though in line with expectations and prices were generally strong to higher. Fat cattle were strong to 25 cents higher. Prime weighty steers sold up to $9.90, a new high record price for the year. Hogs were strong to 10 cents higher and sheep and lambs 15 cents higher. Receipts today were 7,000 cattle, 8,000 hogs, and 6,000 sheep, compared with 9,000 cattle, 14,000 hogs, and 6,000 sheep a week ago, and a year ago was a holiday with no arrivals reported.

Trade in fat cattle opened early with killers anxious for the offerings. A strong even demand prevailed throughout the session with the average advance placed at 10 to 15 cents, and in some cases grass fat steers were up 25 to 35 cents. Prime native steers sold at $9.75 to $9.90, good to choice steers $9 up. Some Texas steers caked on grass brought $8.35, and straight grass fat steers sold at $6.50 to $8. No South Texas steers arrived. Cows and heifers were 15 to 25 cents higher. Veal calves were strong.

Thin cattle were in moderate supply, and volume of business was held down on that account. Prices were firm. A good many orders were unfilled.

Hog prices were strong to 10 cents higher and about up to the high level made Thursday of last week. The top price was $10.60 and bulk of the offerings sold at $10.35 to $10.55. Pigs sold up to $10.50. Offerings were short of urgent requirements and the supply was cleaned up in a short time. Indications are that receipts from now on will be limited until transportation conditions are more settled. Today's small receipts were attributed to the holiday July 4.

Most of the good lambs here were natives that sold at $12.50 to $12.85. They were quoted 15 cents higher. Sheep were quoted steady. Ewes sold at $4.50 to $5.65 and wethers $5.75 to $6.75. There is a good inquiry for breeding ewes and feeding lambs.

No new developments were reported in the horse and mule markets. Receipts were less than 100 head, and demand was limited.

Attorney W. W. Kirk, of Plainview, was in Floydada Monday.

J. O. Jackson leaves this week for Breckridge, where he will spend some time.

LORD ASHFIELD'S STORY

Lord Ashfield, responsible for the five-million scheme of Underground improvements for London, has a sense of humor which has helped him many times in business and other troubles, and tells some good stories.

One of them concerns two Scotsmen who had come up to town for a trip in the days when fares were lower. They found themselves outside a tube station, and one of them said: "I see you can get anywhere from here for twopence. Let us spend an interesting morning."

"No," said the other, with traditional caution. "I shall be here for a fortnight. There may be an excursion."—London, Tit-Bits.

THE TAX AX

Gen. Charles G. Dawes, the new director of the budget, was discussing his recent pronouncement that 60 per cent of government clerks are inefficient.

"Inefficiency means extravagance," he said. "Extravagance is what has put the axes in our taxes. I know a man who came home from a shooting trip the other day to be met at the door by his young son."

"Hello, father!" said the boy. "Here are your corporation assessment papers, and your income tax forms came this morning. There's a man waiting to ask about your excess profits duty, mother wants to see you at once, and would you mind lending me four dollars?"

BARBERS USE COMPRESSED AIR

Compressed air is beginning to be introduced in the best of the barber shops everywhere. The air does almost everything from the services of a brush after a haircut to blowing the excessive powder off a customer's cheeks. The tubes connected with the main source of supply hang by each chair.

YELLOW-RESISTANT CABBAGE VARIETIES

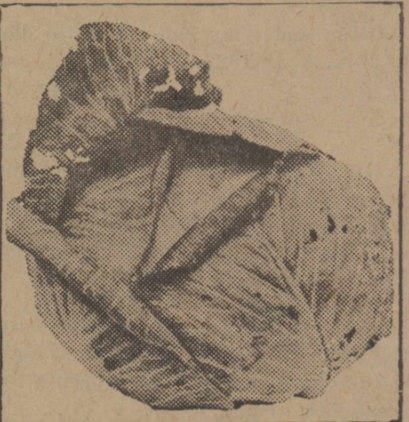

About 4,000 Pounds of Seed Produced in Washington.

Department of Agriculture and Wisconsin Experiment Station Been Investigating Disease and Assisting Growers.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

About 4,000 pounds of cabbage seed of the Wisconsin All Seasons variety, which is highly resistant to the disease known as "cabbage yellows," was produced in the Puget Sound section of Washington during the season of 1921. Cabbage yellows is caused by a fungus which is capable of persisting in favorable soils indefinitely and causes serious crop losses in infested regions. Disinfection of the seed reduces the danger of carrying other cabbage diseases to new districts, but the investigations of the University of Wisconsin have shown that the selection of resistant varieties offers the only way of preventing loss from yellows.

The United States Department of Agriculture, in co-operation with the Wisconsin experiment station, has for some time been investigating the disease and assisting growers and packers in the production of cabbage seed of the yellows-resistant strains on a commercial scale and in the field inspection of the seed crops. In addition to the All Seasons, several hundred pounds of Wisconsin Brunswick seed, another yellows-resistant variety, have also been produced.

One result of the investigations thus far is the development of these yellows-resistant varieties. Through the commercial cabbage growers and kraut packers a supply of the yellows-resistant cabbage seed is available to the growers in sections where these types of cabbage are needed. Resistant strains of other varieties, including Hollander, All Head Early, and Copenhagen Market, are being developed and will be propagated for distribution in the near future.

WHY PUREBRED SIRES EXCEL

Ratios Between Males and Females in Different Classes of Stock Kept for Breeding.

If you are ever inclined to doubt the importance of the quality sire, a glance at the figures below will reassure you. They represent the ratios between males and females in different classes of live stock kept for breeding purposes. The figures are based on a survey of more than 200,000 head of live stock of all kinds made by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Cattle—1 bull to 18.9 cows.
Horses—1 stallion to 16.9 mares.
Swine—1 boar to 11.5 sows.
Sheep—1 ram to 37 ewes.
Goats—1 buck to 26.6 does.
Chickens—1 rooster to 23.3 hens.

Other poultry, geese, ducks, turkeys, etc. (average)—1 male to 8.5 females.

These figures are taken from more than 2,000 farms in various parts of the country, and are believed to be typical of average conditions the country over. Since the sire is the parent of so many more offspring than the female, the importance of using a purebred sire of individual quality and excellence can hardly be overemphasized. There may be cases where scrub dams are wisely tolerated, but it is almost criminal to propagate undesirable characteristics by using scrub males.

STOCK PRODUCTION SYSTEMS

Among Controlling Factors Are Selection of Animals and Feed and Management.

Well-established systems of live-stock production consistently followed from year to year are the outstanding needs of the live-stock industry, according to a conference of animal husbandry and marketing extension workers held at Chicago. Economy of production, the conference agreed, is the most important factor over which farmers have control. Producing live stock of the best quality at the lowest possible cost was urged and particular emphasis was placed on economy of production rather than increased production as the key to a prosperous industry.

Among the controlling factors in economical live-stock production, in the judgment of the conference, were selection of animals, choosing of rations and good practices in care and management. Delegates to the conference included United States Department of Agriculture specialists and animal husbandmen and extension workers of agricultural colleges in the Central West.

RESOLUTIONS PRAISE S. S. WORK OF PRICE SCOTT

The work of Price Scott, who recently accepted the principalship of the Meteor Public School and moved to that place from Lakeview, is strongly praised in resolutions adopted recently by the Lakeview Young Ladies' Sunday School Class of which he was teacher. The resolutions passed and adopted are as follows:

"Be it resolved, we regret to lose our consecrated and faithful teacher; he was very instructive to us from lesson to lesson and we always found him to be prompt in class attendance which encouraged us to endeavor to attend regularly;

"Be it resolved, we regret to have Mr. Scott leave us for the enthusiastic way he taught us; we found him to live a Christian's life;

"Be it further resolved, we thank Mr. Scott for the faithful service he rendered our class in the social way, namely, the various contests and class socials we enjoyed. We wish him well where he goes and may his faithful service be as helpful and as pleasant in the new field as it has been with us."

Mrs. G. V. Smith and little daughter, Margaret, left Friday for Albuquerque, New Mexico, where they will visit during the month of July with Mrs. Smith's aunt, Miss Ross.

BREAKING UP BROODY HENS

(By F. W. Kazmeier)

At this time of the year, among the breeds like Rhode Island Reds, Orpingtons, Rocks, Wyandottes and the large and medium weight breeds, many of the old hens and some of the young hens show signs of broodiness. The older the hens the more broody they become. The large breeds also have this characteristic more developed than the small breeds like the Leghorns. The Leghorns and other small breeds are considered non-setters, but even among these when they get old many show signs of broodiness.

In happy days past—the saying originated that it is time to "break up" the broody hens. The methods proceeded or used would clearly indicate that the procedure has been properly named. Many people even today actually "break up" broody hens.

Many old and impractical ways have been suggested, but I shall endeavor to name only a few. Some people have put alarm clocks under the hens; others have tied red neckties around the hen's neck; still others have put them in a sack and tied the sack to the clothes line and reel; some put rocks under the hen; some duck them into a barrel full of rain water; some others put the broody hen into a merry go round—some few try to starve the hen; all, as you will see, real methods of breaking up setting hens.

The best way of breaking up broody hens is by giving them care and feed that will start them to laying again. It is not so important to break them as broody hens as it is to start them to laying again.

The easiest way to break up a broody hen is to put her in a box that has a slat bottom and hang the box up so that it will swing. This gives a good circulation of air under the hen which has a tendency to keep them cool. While a hen is broody, her temperature is several degrees higher than at other times. Be sure and give her plenty of feed and water, also milk and green food while in the prison. If she is taken from the nest the first night she attempts to set, and put into the slat bottom swinging prison, she will be completely broken up in two days, and they should be laying again in very few days. Cruel and abusive treatments may stop her from laying for several months.

Broody hens, if allowed to remain on the nest will ruin dollars worth of eggs, not to say anything about the fact that they are not producing.

In breaking up broody hens, it is important to confine them in the broody coop the very first night she wants to remain on the nest. If they are allowed to remain for several days it takes so much more time to break them up and start them to laying again.

In the spring and summer months it is advisable to place the broody coop outside in the open because there is more to attract the hen's attention, and it is cooler. These conditions tend to break up broodiness.

Indications of Broodiness: When a hen becomes broody she remains on the nest longer when laying, she leaves a few soft, downy feathers in the nest. When approached while she is on the nest, she begins to cluck, ruffle her feathers, and peck at the intruder. If left on the nest, soon most of the feathers on her breast drop off.

Female water fowls when broody, give a warning hiss as the male is likely to do at any time when molested.

Among the ducks, the Pekin and Indian Runner are mostly non-setters. In geese, turkeys, and common kind of poultry, broodiness is general.

As a rule, increased egg production is accompanied by decreased broodiness.

SIX BIG COMMON LIES THAT ARE TOLD JUST FOR FUN

A liar said he was riding on a horse through Russia when there came a heavy snow. He rode all day without seeing a house and about dark tied his horse to what he believed was a pointed stump, and went to sleep. By morning the snow had melted away and he found himself lying in a graveyard surrounded by a village. His horse was hanging to the top of a church steeple. Taking good aim with his forty-four, he shot the bridle rein in two, brought down the horse and went on his journey.

Abraham Lincoln used to tell about the fellow who would lie about the size of the fish he caught, so that his neighbors could not believe a word he said. In order to convince them he bought a pair of scales and would weigh the fish in their presence. One day a neighbor borrowed the scales to weigh a new baby and was surprised to find that the youngster tipped them at 45 pounds.

A medicine vendor thrilled his audience when he said that his girl lived in a big department house which caught on fire. The elevator shafts, stair cases and halls were full of fire and smoke; the firemen's ladders were were too short to reach to the ninth floor where she lived. Sticking her pretty head out of the window, she looked down at him like a dying calf and cried: "Help". The medicine man said he ran seventeen miles to a neighboring town, bought a rope, ran back and threw it up to her. She tied it around her neck and he pulled her down to the ground. An old fellow with billy-goat whiskers called him a liar right to his face in the presence of the crowd and said he don't have no faith in him or his medicine neither, after tellin' that!"

In our humble opinion, the Goliath of Lies is this: "The world owes me a living." The fellow who started that lie should have been sent to the penitentiary for life, and may have been for all we know. Many who have believed it have gone there. It has a touch of reason in it, which makes it dangerous, poisonous. The man who tries to collect what the world owes him is playing seven-up with trouble and destruction. Every thug, every gum shoe thief, every blue sky salesman believes the world owes him a living.—Ben F. Harigel.

PLAINVIEW BUILDING AND LOAN ASS'N GOING GOOD

Country Club Golf Course is Completed—Lightning Kills 212 Chickens

Plainview Herald:

The Plainview Building and Loan Association is six months old. It was organized six months ago, with a capital stock of $500,000 and to date has been instrumental in building six homes in the city, and two more are under construction by the Association. E. H. Perry, manager, announces that the Association has earned, during the first six months of its existence, more than 15 per cent on the dollar.

Approximately 1547 shares, totaling an investment of $154,700 have been bought by local men. Mr. Perry points with pride to the fact that stockholders in this institution have never been behind on the first of the month with payments on stock.

The golf course for the Plainview Country Club has been completed and many of the members have started practice. The course consists of nine holes. Most of the hazards are constructed.

P. J. Woodriddle, president of the club, states that it is hoped that construction on a home for the club will begin soon.

John Boswell, Secretary of the Chamber of Commerce and Board of City Development, states that the commercial quarters will be moved from its present stand to the room provided for the commercial bodies in the New City Auditorium, sometime before the 15th of July. The change may be made shortly after the first of the month. The Plainview Grain Exchange is to occupy a portion of the room allotted to the Chamber of Commerce and B. C. D. The public library has a large room, and the band will also have headquarters in the auditorium.

Mrs. Tom I. Bonds, who lives about ten miles East of Plainview in the Aiken community, lost 212 chickens by lightning. Seeing the storm coming, she had put all the chickens in the chicken house. Lightning struck the house where they were and killed all of them. Mrs. Bonds had only recently purchased the eggs and hatched the chickens. She had paid a fancy price for the eggs, for they were of pure bred stock and she had just started in the pure bred poultry business.

W. A. Baker returned Friday from Monday, Texas, where he had been since Tuesday of last week. He was accompanied by Misses Ora Slaughter, Elna Eubank and Joyce Hopkins. Misses Frank Haymes and Lorena Wilson, of Munday, returned with the party for a visit with the Baker family.

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—During the height of the New Orleans carnival season Jachin Fell, wealthy though somewhat mysterious citizen, and Dr. Ansley, are discussing a series of robberies by an individual known as the Midnight Masquer, who, invariably attired as an aviator, has long defied the police. Joseph Maillard, wealthy banker, is giving a ball that night, at which the Masquer has threatened to appear and rob the guests. Fell and Ansley, on their way to the affair, meet a girl dressed as Columbine, seemingly known to Fell, but masked, who accompanies them to the ball.

CHAPTER II.

Masquers.

Joseph Maillard might have hopefully considered the note from the Midnight Masquer to be a hoax perpetrated by some of his friends, but he took no chances. Two detectives were posted in the grounds outside the house; inside, two others, masked and costumed, were keeping a quietly efficient eye on all that transpired.

Each guest upon entering was conducted directly to the presence of Joseph Maillard himself, or of his wife; was bidden to unmask in this private audience, and was then presented with a favor and sent forth masked anew to the festivities. These favors were concealed, in the case of the ladies, in corsage bouquets; in that of the men, inside false cigars. There was to be a general opening of the favors at midnight, the time set for unmasking. All this ceremony was regarded by the guests as a delightful innovation, and by Joseph Maillard as a delightful way of assuring himself that only invited guests entered his house. Invitations might be forged—faces, never!

Lucie Ledanois entered the presence of her stately relative, and after unmasking, dutifully exchanged kisses with Mrs. Maillard. Until some months previously, until she had come into the management of her own property—or what was left of it—Lucie had been the ward of the Maillards.

"Mercy, child, how marvelous you look tonight!" exclaimed Mrs. Maillard, holding her off and examining her high color with obvious suspicion.

"Thank you, ma'am," and Lucie made a mock courtesy. "Do you like little Columbine?"

"Very much. Here's Aunt Sally; take Miss Lucie's cloak, Sally."

An old colored servant bobbed her head in greeting to Lucie, who removed her cloak. As she did so, she saw that Mrs. Maillard's eyes were fastened in utter amazement upon her throat.

"Isn't it pretty, auntie?" she asked, smilingly.

"My goodness gracious!" the stern eyes hardened. "Where—where on earth did you obtain such a thing? Why—why—"

Columbine's features flinched. She was a poor relation, of course, so the look in the older woman's eyes and the implication of the words formed little less than an insult.

Quietly she put one hand to her throat and removed the collar, dropping it into the hand of Mrs. Maillard. It was a thing to make any woman's eyes widen—a collar of exquisitely wrought gold studded with ten great blazing star sapphires. Beside it the diamonds that bejeweled Mrs. Maillard's ample front looked cold and lifeless.

"That?" queried Lucie, innocently, producing a scrap of chamois and dabbing at her nose. "Oh, that's very interesting! It was made for Queen Hortense—so was this scarf that keeps my ragged hair from lopping out! They were a present—only this morning."

"Girl!" The lady's voice was harsh. "A present? From whom, if you please?"

"Oh, I promised not to tell; he's a particular friend of mine. Aren't the stones pretty?"

Mrs. Maillard was speechless. She compressed her firm lips and watched Lucie replace the sapphire collar without a word to offer. Silently she exchanged a glance with the other woman.

"You Frighten Me, Holy Man!" She Cried, Gaily. "Confess to You, Indeed! Not I!"

tended a corsage bouquet from the pile beside her; then, in a trembling voice, forced herself to explain about the favor inside.

Slipping her mask into place Lucie was gone, not without relief. She knew very well that within half an hour Bob Maillard would be informed that she had accepted gifts of jewels from other men, with all the accompanying implications and additions that imagination could furnish. For, although Bob Maillard wanted very much indeed to marry her, his mother had no intention of sanctioning such a union.

"Neither has Uncle Joseph," she reflected, smiling to herself, "and neither have I! So we're all agreed, except Bob."

"Columbine!" A hand fell upon her wrist. "Columbine! Turn and confess thy sins!"

She had come to the foot of the wide, old-fashioned stairway that led to the floors above, and beside her had suddenly appeared a Franciscan monk, cowed and frowning in sober brown from head to foot.

"You frightened me, holy man!" she cried, gaily. "Confess to you, indeed! Not I!"

"Never a better chance, butterfly of the world. Haste not to the dance, fair sister—tarry a while and invite the soul in specie of import! Having passed the dragon at the gate, tarry a moment with this man of vows—"

"Shrive me quickly, then," she said, laughing.

"Now, without confession? Would you have me read your thoughts and give penance?"

"If you can do that, holy man, I may confess; so prove it quickly!"

The Franciscan leaned forward. His voice came low, distinct, clear-cut, and he spoke in the French which Lucie understood as another mother-tongue, as do most of the older families of New Orleans.

"See how I read them, mademoiselle! One thought is of uneasy suspicion; it is typified by a hard-lipped, grasping man. One thought is of profound regret; it is typified by a darkly welling stream of oil. One thought—"

Suddenly Lucie had shrunk away from him. "Who—who are you?" she breathed, with a gasp that was almost of fear. "Who are you, monsieur?"

"A humble brother of minor orders," and he bowed. "Shall I not continue with my reading? The third, mademoiselle, is one of hope; it is typified by a small man who is dressed all in gray—"

Lucie turned away from him quickly. "I think that you have made some grave error, monsieur," she said. Her voice was cold, charged with dismissal and offended dignity. "I pray you, excuse me."

Not waiting any response, she hastily ran up the stairs. After her, for a moment, gazed the Franciscan, then shrugged his wide shoulders and plunged into the crowd.

While she danced, while she chattered and laughed and entered into the mad gaiety of the evening, Lucie Ledanois could not banish from her mind that ominous Franciscan. How could he have known? How could he have guessed what only she and one other barely suspected? There was no proof, of course; the very breath of suspicion seemed a calumny against an upright man!

Joseph Maillard had sold that Terrebonne land six months before any gas or oil had been discovered there, and eight months before Lucie had come into the management of her own affairs. He had not known about the minerals, of course; it was a case only of bad judgment. Yet, indubitably, he was now a shareholder and officer in the Bayou Oil company, the concern which had bought that strip of land.

Lucie spoke angrily to banish the dark thoughts from her mind. Why, Maillard was a rich man, a banker, an honorable gentleman! To doubt his honor, although he was a harsh and a stern man, was impossible. Lucie knew him better than most, and could not believe—

"May I crave pardon for my error?" came a voice at her elbow. She turned to see the Franciscan again beside her. "With a thousand apologies for impertinence, mademoiselle; I am very sorry for my faults. Will not that admission obtain for me one little dance, one hint of forgiveness from fair Columbine?"

Something in his voice spelt sincerity. Lucie, smiling, held out her hand.

"You are pardoned, holy man. If you can dance in that friar's robe, then try it!"

Could he dance, indeed! Who could not dance with Columbine for partner? So saying, the monk proved his word by the deed and proved it well. Nor did he again hint that he had recognized her; until, as they parted, he once more left her astonished and perturbed. As he bowed he murmured:

"Beware, sweet Columbine! Beware of the gay Aramis! Beware of his proposals!"

He was gone upon the word. Aramis? Why, that must be the Musketeer, of course—Bob Maillard! The name, with its implications, was a clever hit. But who was this brown monk, who seemed to know so much, who danced so divinely, whose French was like music? A vague suspicion was in the girl's mind, but she had no proof.

Half an hour after this Bob Maillard came to her, and with impatient words made a path through the circle which surrounded her. "I know you now, Lucie!" he murmured. "I must see you at once—in the conservatory."

She was minded to refuse, but assented, briefly. The words of the monk intrigued her; what had the man guessed? If Bob were indeed about to propose, she would this time cut off his hopes for good. But—was it that sort of a proposal?

As she managed to rid herself of her admirers, and descended to the conservatory, she was highly vexed with herself and the Franciscan, and so came to her appointment in no equable frame of mind. She found Maillard waiting in the old-fashioned conservatory; he had unmasked, and was puffing a cigarette.

"By gad, Lucie, you're beautiful tonight. Where did you get that collar of jewels?"

"Indeed!" The girl proudly drew herself up. "What business is that of yours, sir?"

"Aren't you one of the family? D—n it—Lucie! Don't you know that I want to marry you—"

"My dear Robert, I certainly do not want to marry any man who swears to my face—you least of all!" she coldly intervened. "I have already refused you three times; let this be the fourth and last. Now, kindly inform me why you wished me to meet you here."

"I have a chance to make some money for you in a hurry," he said. "Your father left you a good deal of land up Bayou Terrebonne way—"

"Your father sold some of it," she put in, idly. His eyes flickered to the thrust.

"Yes; but you've plenty left, near Paradis. It's away from the gas field, but I'm interested in an oil company. We've plenty of money, and we're going to go strong after the liquid gold. That land of yours is good for nothing else, and if you want to make some money out of it I'll swing the company into leasing at a good figure and drilling there."

"You think there's oil on the land?"

"No." He made a swift, energetic gesture of dissent. "To be frank, I don't. But I'd like to throw a bit of luck your way, Lucie. That fellow Gramont—the prince, you know him—he's an engineer and a geologist, and he's in the swim."

"So," the girl smiled a little, "you would betray your business friends in order to make a bit of money for me?"

"So," the Girl Smiled a Little, "You Would Betray Your Business Friends in Order to Make a Bit of Money for Me?"

Maillard stared at her. "Well, if you put it that way, yes! I'd do more than that for—"

"Thank you," she interrupted, her voice cold. "I don't think I'd trust your sagacity very far, Robert. Good-night."

She turned from him and was gone, dancing through the great rooms like a true Columbine.

Midnight neared, and brought a concern to many; the Midnight Masquer had gained his name by invariably appearing a moment or two before the stroke of twelve. Jachin Fell, who divided his time between enjoying the smoking room and wandering about among the masquers, perceived that Joseph Maillard was watching the time with anxiety.

A large man, stern and a bit scornful of look, Maillard was imposing rather than handsome. He appeared the typical banker, efficient, devoid of all sentiment. Amused by the man's evident uneasiness, Jachin Fell kept him in view while the moments dragged. One might have thought that the little gray man was studying the financier as an entomologist studies a butterfly on a pin.

Shortly before twelve Columbine prouetted up to Fell and accepted the arm he offered her. They were for the moment alone, in a corner of the ballroom.

"I must see you tomorrow, please," she breathed.

"Gladly," he assented. "May I call? It's Sunday, you know—"

"If you will; at three. Something has happened, but I cannot speak of it here. Does any one else know that you—that you are interested in my affairs?"

The pale gray eyes of the little gray man looked very innocent and wondering.

"Certainly not, my dear! Why?"

"I'll tell you tomorrow." Then she broke into a laugh. "Well, it is midnight—and the Masquer has not appeared. I'm almost sorry."

The lights flickered off for a moment, then on again. The signal for unmasking!

The dancing ceased. From the whole room arose a babel of voices—cries of surprise, exclamations, merry laughter. Columbine removed her mask. An instant later Joseph Maillard approached them, chuckling to himself and looking hugely relieved.

"Ha, Lucie! I guessed you beneath the Columbine daintiness! Have you examined your favor yet?"

Remembering, the girl caught at her corsage. Cries of delight were arising on all sides as the favors were revealed—most handsome favors, even for Mardi Gras! From the heart of the rosebuds in her hand Lucie removed a brooch of old filigree work set with a group of pearls. She glanced about for Jachin Fell, but he had vanished with Maillard. A voice rose at her elbow:

"Mademoiselle, you are not less lucky than beautiful! Pearls to the pearl!"

She turned to see the Franciscan—no longer masked, but now gazing at her from a frank, laughing countenance, still partially veiled by the brown cowl that was drawn up close about his head.

"Henry Gramont!" she exclaimed. "Oh, I half suspected that it was you—"

"But you were not sure?" he chuckled. "You're not offended with me, Lucie?"

"I should be." She tossed her head. "You were impertinent, M. le prince!"

He made a distasteful gesture. "None of that, Lucie! You know I don't like it—"

"Oh, la, la!" she mocked him. "M. le prince is seeing America, n'est ce pas? He has come to America to find a rich wife, is it not?"

Gramont's face lost its smile, and suddenly became almost harsh.

"I shall call upon you at four tomorrow, Lucie," he said, abruptly, and turned. Nor did he pause to get her reply. An instant afterward Lucie was surrounded by a merry group of friends, and she saw no more of Henry Gramont.

About five minutes later those in the ballroom distinctly heard, through the open windows, the heavy pulsations of an airplane motor.

MANUFACTURERS NOW USING APPLES TO THE LAST SEED

The thoroughness with which the apple is now worked over and utilized by some manufacturers makes it comparable with the packing-house pig that leaves only a futile squeal. The apple is not transformed into such a variety of products as the pig, but all are useful, and when the last of the series has been made hardly a smell is left.

In many of the apple-using factories the apples are first pressed to produce cider, which may be sold as such or may be manufactured into vinegar. After thorough pressing the pomace is treated with hot water to remove the pectin, which, after purification, is sold in either liquid or solid form to manufacturers of jellies and similar products and to house-wives. The much-wasted and squeezed residue is dried, ground, and sold as cattle feed.

SECRET OF HAPPY MARRIAGE

In the forthcoming issue of our Magazine Section of 13th date is an article written by Kathleen Norris, entitled "Secret of Happy Marriage." The writer is of the opinion the average bride is bewildered with the glamour of her wedding day and expects an enjoyable time all the rest of life. "In fact," explains Norris, "successful marriage lies in service and in moderation, and in work, mixed thoughtfulness and tenderness for the husband."

IMPORTANCE OF SHADE IN THE POULTRY YARD

During the hot summer days, many growing chicks and mature fowls, in Texas, suffer greatly because of a serious lack of shade. Surely nobody that gives the question any thought can for a moment say that the fowls and chicks can do without shade.

The farm flock if allowed free range is no doubt most fortunate, because they will hunt shade. Yarded chicks cannot do anything but suffer and pant and take the consequences. Even many farm flocks, have inadequate shade.

We can only say that the hens need plenty of shade, if they have not got it. Anything that will make shade will answer the purpose.

SLEEPY DISEASE

Many cases of the so-called "sleepy sickness" in growing chicks can be traced directly to a lack of shade. This disease, is at this moment taking a heavy toll among the chicks of all ages. A lack of shade reduces the vitality of the chicks so they cannot withstand the ravages of disease. If you are losing many chicks from this disease do not blame anyone but yourself. Get busy and provide shade.

DROP IN EGG YIELD

Among laying hens, the latter part of June and the beginning of July, the egg production gradually drops. Some times it drops alarmingly fast. Why the sudden drop at that time? The only answer, a lack of shade. Flock after flock may be seen crowding into a little inadequate shade, with drooping wings and open beaks gasping for breath. Surely you must expect a decrease in the egg yield. Many people are inclined to disregard the fact until it is too late. Remember it is easier to keep them laying than to start them again.

NATURAL SHADE

Natural shade of course is the very best. Fruit trees are desirable because they do exceptionally well around hen houses. We have found plum, peach, pear and pecan trees excellent. The plum tree is especially desirable. It is wise to select a variety of fruit trees that thrive in your section of the State. We have also found mulberry trees on account of their rapid growth very desirable. The dropping from the chicks will be of material benefit to the tree.

Castor beans and sunflowers also make excellent shade, and where every thing else fails, these should be planted.

Remember any kind of natural shade will answer the purpose, provided it is not more than a 100 feet from the hen house, and much closer is better.

ARTIFICIAL SHADE

Many times it is necessary to provide artificial shade. This is especially true in West Texas. Where this is necessary it at once becomes an important task and should not be neglected or over looked.

Houses may be blocked up from the ground about 15 to 18 inches. Chickens prefer the shade beneath a low place like that.

Brush arbors are ideal but should be built low to the ground.

A frame covered with burlap sacks sewed together makes desirable shade. We are using the wooden shutters from our dwelling on frames about 15 inches above the ground, and find them excellent for the purpose.

LOW AND SWAMPY PLACES
Growing chicks prefer low and wet places during the summer. For this reason: locate the roosting coop close to these places on your farm; here they find more insect life and a greater abundance of green food.

COOL AND FRESH EARTH
Sometimes it is a good idea to pour several pails of water beneath trees or the object providing shade. Chickens like to dig and rest in cool fresh dirt. The water also has a tendency to keep down fleas. They like to take a dust bath in this cool, wet and fresh dirt. This will also help keep down the lice.

FRESH WATER

It ought not be necessary to mention this, but when we see how eagerly a flock of hens will drink a supply of clean, cool and fresh water about noon of some hot day, we can not help but call your attention to it. Too many farm flocks have no drinking water. Imagine yourself to have to do all day or may be several days without cool water to drink. (Copyrighted 1922 by F. W. Kazmeier.)

LOCKNEY NEWS BRIEFS

From the Beacon:

The home of Uncle Bill Smith was destroyed by fire yesterday afternoon about 1:30 o'clock. Origin of the fire is unknown.

The first thing anyone knew of the fire some member of the family saw the blaze and smoke coming out at the top of the building. The home was a complete loss. Most of the furnishings were saved. Water was not gotten on the building in time to check the flames. The house was situated in the neighborhood of 900 feet from a plug. The fire company made a quick response and did all it could to save the building, but the fire had too much headway to be checked.

Thursday morning Raymond Corbin was soldering a collection of shells picked up on the battle fields in France, making a display for the Fourth. One of the shells was a "dummy" and when he touched the hot soldering iron to it an explosion resulted. He received some ugly wounds in one hand, a piece of the shell sticking in the member. Several small pieces struck him in the face, but fortunately it missed his eyes.

Mrs. R. M. Broyles and daughters, Misses Olga and Frankie, returned Monday from a month's visit with relatives at Fort Worth. They were accompanied home by Mrs. Broyles' sister, Miss Mimie Pope, who will visit here with relatives.

The little child of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Biggs was severely burned Wednesday morning as a result of its pulling the stopper from a washing machine, and letting hot, scalding water fall on its body. The child was brought to town and medical attention given it. It was very severely burned on one arm and leg.
