Chief Martin takes over 'I've seen tremendous

by A1C Greg Spraggins Editor, Roundup

CMSgt. Coy K. Martin assumed the 64th Flying Training Wing Senior Enlisted Advisor position on Oct. 6, 1986, as CMSgt. Gene Richardson took over as the Propulsion Branch Superintendent.

Chief Martin's primary responsibilities include maintaining communication liaison between the commander and the entire base enlisted force and advising the commander on special interest matters, including health, welfare and morale of assigned personnel.

'A Senior Enlisted Advisor in a flying wing is probably the best job an enlisted person can have," said Chief Martin. "Air Training Command cannot be compared to any other command. In ATC, we are performing our mission every day, and our mission is very real. We aren't waiting to do it.'

Chief Martin feels that everything at Reese continues to improve. "The enlisted force keeps getting younger and smarter. There are old facilities on the base that need to be replaced or upgraded. Some of our people, activities and programs need to be expanded or perhaps some new ones added. All these things will take place within the next few years. It's just a matter of time," he said.

Chief Martin was born April 4, 1939 in Pennington Gap, Va., where he graduated from Pennington High School in June 1957. He attended the University of Kentucky during the, school year of 1957-58.

On March 4, 1959, Chief Martin entered the U.S. Air Force. He completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Texas, and in December 1959, he completed his technical training as a radio maintenance repairman at Keesler AFB, Miss.

changes in the enlisted force since I joined in 1959," said Chief ;Martin. "The quality of life of the men and women has been brought up to a closer parallel to the mission. We can't separate the two any more."

He is a graduate of the Headquarters command Noncommissioned Officers Academy at Bolling AFB in Washington, D.C.

Chief Martin's first duty assignment was the 683rd Aircraft Control and Warning Squadron at Sweetwater, Texas where he worked as a radio repairman and a Military Affiliated Radio Station (MARS) radio operator. In January 1962, Chief Martin was assigned to Otis AFB, Mass., as a communications and radar electronics maintenance repairman on a "Texas land in the Atlantic Ocean.

From June 1963 through May 1968, he worked at Richards-Gebaur AFB, Mo. as a ground environment analyst, a maintenance management technician, and a communications-electronics inspector with the 29th Air Division, and then with the 10th Air Force (Air Defense Command). These duties required extensive travel to Air Defense Command units located throughout-the United States and Canada.

In June 1968, Chief Martin was assigned to Malaha Air Stadar Squadron at Dauphin Island, Ala., as the radio maintetendent of Operating Location done, they will." AC of the 770th Radar Squad-

In May, 1973, Chief Martin was assigned to the Military Advisory Assistance Group, Tehran, Iran, as a communications-electronics advisor. He returned to Shaw AFB, S.C. in June, 1975, and worked there as the maintenance superintendent for the 682nd Direct Air Support Center Squadron. In May, 1977, he returend to Tehran, Iran, as a Joint/Combined Exercise Advisor. He was the Senior Enlisted Advisor to the Chief of the American Miltiary Mission with the Iranian Military until February 1979, when United States personnel were evacuated from Iran. He moved on to Reese AFB, Texas, in June 1979 as the chief of maintenance in the 1958th Communications Squadron and was the 64th Fly-Tower," an early warning radar ing Training Wing Senior Enplatform located 35 miles from listed Advisor from August 1980 to August 1982. He became the Senior Enlisted Advisor at Vance AFB, Oklahoma, from August 1982 to August 1985. Moving to Maxwell AFB, Alabama, Chief Martin became the Senior Enlisted Advisor at Headquarters, Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps. His responsibility included detachments at 152 geographically separated units.

'Reese AFB and the people of Lubbock, Texas have a well kept secret. It's a great place to live and work," said Chief Martin. Staff reunion

This week's Wing Staff meeting was the first in a while where yours truly could look left or right and see the so-called 'first string' present-the full colonels, after quite a spell, were all back again. Col. Chuck Edwards, base commander, had spent the last twenty-plus days as an accident investigation board president at Williams AFB, Ariz. Col. Don McCullough, deputy commander for resources, was back from an ATC sponsored Resource Management conference. And your wing commander had barely escaped the wintry storm in central Colorado that nearly trapped me over the long weekend. For the first time in over a month, all of the key staff was present for duty, sort of a reunion. So what you ask? Consider this: During this period, the Wing has functioned superbly. Aircraft have been well maintained and kept ready for flight, quality student training has continued SAFE-LY. Even with frustrating WX interruptions, basewide facility projects have progressed on schedule. Reese has welcomed our new ATC Commander, Lt. Gen. John Shaud, in flawless Reese style. His first visit went extremely well. The simple fact is that during this period, the Wing has functioned without a hitch.

Of course things don't go that well by accident. My thanks to some of our talented 'linebackers' of supervision-Lt. Col. Ted Owenby, Lt. Col. Bill Duncan, Lt. Col. Luddy Faris, and Maj. Ron Tiehen, who hitch-up their belt and do a first rate job filling in whenever duty takes their bosses out of the local action. The bottom line is that Reese just makes it happen, whatever it takes. And that's important.

It is significant to me that the Reese community can operate so well in the absence of key supervisors without one iota of mission degradation. The truth is that folks here simply get the job done without needing much supervision, which says a lot about the pride, professionalism and attitude of every one of you.

Boss's Day Awards Luncheon

We've had great luncheons in the past, but this year's annual Boss's Day Awards Luncheon was a marvel, characterized by the good-humored homage paid each contestant, contrived and put to verse by Reese's own back-closeted champions of iambic pentameter, Sparky Schwartz, Ted Ownby, J.T. Washington, et al. It was a true community affair with such Wing-wide response that Wanda, Glenda, and the other officer's club staff had to pass the luncheon courses from the far ends of long over-crowded tables due to the lack of room to maneuver between them.

In case you didn't make the event, I want to first recognize the award winners. Congratulations to the four runners-up: Col. Chuck Edwards, Maj. Randy Nierstheimer, Capt. Al Wallace and MSgt. J.T. Washington. A big round of applause for one of the most dedicated supervisors you'll find anywhere in the Air Force, Ms. Karen Nance, contracting officer.

Second, our thanks to Cheri Re and her Federal Women's Program Luncheon committee, for organizing an event such as this that truly benefits the closeknit team at Reese. Special thanks to Maj.

Robert Schwartz, Billy Swanson, Shirl Francis, Holly Novak and TSgt. Donald Minnis for helping make the luncheon a success.

• A special congratulations to two of our folks for winning honors as ATC's Outstanding Supply and Fuels Personnel for 1986. Capt. Philip Gunderman won the award for the Outstanding Junior Manager in Supply and 2nd Lt. Ron Gallagher took the honors for Outstanding Base Officer in Fuels. Super job guys!

 Also, congratulations to MSgt. Charlie Baldwin of Civil Engineering upon his graduation from the First Sergeant Academy this week. Good job.

• In case you missed it, we're all winners of the Air Force Outstanding Unit Award. This coveted award again reflects the pride and team spirit of our Reese family. A special thanks to all of you for doing such a super job all the time.

Final thought

Few things are more important on any 'team' than communication-up, down, and sideways communication. That's why we have active Unit Advisory Council meetings and various advisory boards across the base. That's also why supervisors at Reese get out from behind their desk-'managing by wandering around.

I very much appreciated two events this week that served to give me special insight into the problems and perceptions of the Reese community. First, thanks to MSgt. J.T. Washington's NCO Leadership School, Class 87-A for your frank coments and some tough questions. My answers for the 'too tough' category are on the way back. Also, I had my first working lunch with a representative group of permanent party wives. If one wants to feel the pulse of the community, ask the 'betterhalf' how things are going. Thanks to all of you 35th Flying Training Squadron wives for your open and straight forward comments and questions.] consider our time together not only enjoyable, but extremely informative to me, and productive!

As I See It, good communication is the essential ingredient to continued excellence. Thanks!

The Air Force has often been accused of lacking an understanding of its own history. While this is not true in an official sense-Reese's award winning his- result has been a rather dramatic in-torian, Ruedele Turner, comes to mindit often is true of the individual members of the Air Force. There are partial explanations for this. The Air Force is a technologically intensive, forward looking organization more interested in the future than in the past. As the youngest of the four services, the Air Force simply doesn't have much history to begin with.

Fortunately in the last several years, a number of things have happened to change the state of affairs with Air Force history. Probably the most important is Project Warrior, a program designed specifically to narrow the gap between current Air Force members and the people and events which preceeded us. The Office of Air Force History has published a significant number of volumes as part of Project-Warrior-books that previously were difficult or impossible to find. Professional Military Education courses, at all levels, are stressing the role of history in rounding out an Air Force member's perspective. And finally, respected historians are turning their attention again to military topics. The crease in the number and variety of books available to anyone who wants to understand where we've come from in order to better grasp where we're going.

What follows is a list of twelve books that I would recommend to anyone-veteran or rookie-who wants to learn more about the Air Force.

DeWitt S. Copp's two volume set, A Few Great Captains and Forged in Fire is probably the best work to date on the history of the USAF through World War II and is available not only in base libraries but also most BXs if you want your own copies.

Guilio Douhet's classic, The Command of the Air, virtually unattainable for decades, has been reprinted by the Government Printing Office under the auspices of the Office of Air Force History. Most Project Warrior collections have a copy. It's not easy reading, so you might want to reference Bernard Brodie's Strategy in the Missile Age for a superb analysis of Douhet's theories.

The American Way of War by Russell Wrigley is an excellent treatment of the evolution of our distinctive approach to warfare, to include aerial strategy. It's available in hardback and paperback.

Biographies and autobiographies are an excellent source of information. Just about every base library carries Global Mission by General "Hap" Arnold and Mission With LeMay by General Curtis LeMay. Thomas Coffey's recent books, Hap on General Arnold and Iron Eagle on General LeMay fill a void in Air Force history. Burke Davis' The Billy Mitchell Affair is a very readable ac-count of the spiritual father of the USAF. And, of course, Brigadier General Chuck Yeager's autobiography, Yeager, has become an instant success. And finally, General William Momyer's Air Power in Three Wars is a highly personal account of the author's combat experiences, concentrating primarily on the air war in Vietnam.

All these books are readily available. If you were to read one a month, in the space of one year you would have a solid foundation of professional knowledge to build on for the rest of your career.

by Maj. Lennie Day Wing Inspector General

Have you ever wondered how the ATC Inspector General folks get so smart on so many areas before they come to inspect? It seems they come in to evaluate and they always know just where to look and what questions to ask. Well, their secret is no real secret at all. Those IG inspectors are smart alright or they wouldn't be on the IG team, but they are not really any smarter than we are. So what gives these people the edge? What do they have that some of us don't have? The answer is a comprehensive checklist.

These checklists guide the IG through the various functional areas that they may not be "experts" in and points them in the right direction. They know what the correct answer should be before they ask it. They have worked with that functional expert in developing the checklist to evaluate your area. These checklists 1. Research how your counterparts at philosophy, and the associated regulations. They are time-tested and updated routinely to insure they are current and correct. So why can't we have these same kind of checklists to help us before the IG comes in? The answer is "We do."

They are called Self-Inspection Checklists. We should be building our checklists just like the IG—research, apply the regulations, and update regularly. The unit that consistently provides a self-inspection report that indicates no findings is either paying lip service or has a very shallow program; and that's the unit that usually has the most write-ups to are based on past inspections, command other bases are doing. Find out the good and bad through inspection reports and phone calls. Then apply that to your program. 2. Stay up with the regulations. 3. Update your checklist routinely. Nothing is static and your self-inspection checklist should reflect the latest command guidance/philosophy. One last tip on building good checklists: don't underestimate the value of the "new guy" looking at the program. They can often see things with a new and innovative eye. When someone questions or critiques, use it constructively.

We've obviously been doing the job well and we have two great IG inspections this year to reinforce that feeling. But now is the time to invest in future 'Excellent" inspections. We can do that So how do we get good self-inspection now by insuring our self-inspection proportant asset and we must enmand has received in the last sure they have the knowledge, discipline and common sense it takes to get the job done safely. Unquestionably, we provide our troops with the knowledge traordinarily hard to maintain, and skills for them to be productive initially. Our challenge is to continue their development. Not only must they know the limits of the equipment they operate, they must know their own limits. Knowing what their limits are and having the self-discipline to stay within the limits are key ingredients to safe mission accomplishment. Regardless of the duty-a security policeman on patrol, a personnel specialist in the CBPO, a maintenance specialist working swing shift, a student pilot on his last solo mission-adhering to established guidelines and procedures must be second nature. We need to ensure our people use sound discipline off duty as well. Do they realize the effect of alcohol on their reflexes and judgment and, therefore, decline to drive a car or ride a motorcycle? Are they disciplintions that unnecessarily press the Air Force awards the comthree years. Overall, we have one of the best safety efforts in the Air Force, but the truth of the matter is we must work exthat record.

Air Training Command's commitment to safe mission accomplishments is evident in our

So far in 1986, we have had five Class A aircraft mishaps (three fatalities). Also, 13 of our people have lost their lives in ground related mishaps this year. Things are not looking good at all. It's time to get to work. Our losses this year are unacceptable and I ask each of you to rededicate your commitment to the safety of our people, both on and off duty.

them to their limits? We must continue to stress that good discipline is paramount to safe mission accomplishment.

Common sense is equally important to safe mission accomplishment. We obviously do not operate in a zero risk environment and rules do not cover every situation in black and white. Every rule in the book might allow a sortie to be flown; however, the pilot, for reasons known only to himself, should not fly. Common sense dictates we not fly that mission. Another example: Some of our states have yet to pass helmet laws, but a motorcyclist with common sense knows he or she is nine times more likely to be killed or permanently disabled if in an accident without that helmet. Common sense tells when the risks are too great. Common sense lets us know if the actions we are taking are "really" in the best interests of the mission.

Squadron commanders, branch chiefs and first sergeants form the artery that carries the the command. Commanders and supervisors need to ensure their folks possess the knowledge of their equipment and themselves, have the discipline to use the knowledge and exercise the common sense necessary to judge when the risks are too great.

Banquet scheduled

The Noncommissioned Officer Academy Graduate Association will host the Annual Enlisted Awards Banquet Nov. 22, 1986, at the Officer's Open Mess.

CMSgt. James C. Binnicker, Chief Master Sergeant of the Air Force, will be the guest speaker for the banquet. The Wing's outstanding First Sergeant, Senior NCO, NCO and Airman of the Year will be announced at the banquet. Those selected will then go to compete at the ATC and possibly become one of the Air Force's 12 Outstanding Airman of the Year. The NCOAGA sponsors this event annually through fundraising events. The project coordinator for this year's event is CMSgt. Leonard Minzer, Ext. 3446. If you would like to assist, contact one of these key personnel: MSgt. Frank Berg, co-chairman and entertainment, Ext. 3474; MSgt. Roy Wilson, publicity chairman, Ext. 3615; TSgt. Lafayette Butler, seating chairman, Ext. 3028; and TSgt. Art Rennels, decorations chairman, Ext. 3951. Contact your First Sergeant for reservations.

Health alert

The early autumn months are highrisk months for the transmission of encephalitis by mosquitoes in Lubbock. Encephalitis (Western equine and St. Louis types) is a virus disease of the nervous system transmitted by mosquitoes. It is seldom fatal but can result in physical pain, loss of productivity and even hospitalization. The disease is not spread from person to person. Wet conditions allow the mosquitoes to breed. Base housing residents are urged to eliminate breeding sites such as empty flower pots, to report mosquito problems to Base Entomology, and to use mosquito repellants at night when necessary.

All personnel should be aware that the immunization is most effective in preventing illness when received early in the season. All active duty personnel who have a valid medical waiver prohibiting the immunization (pregnancy, allergic to eggs) must bring proof of the waiver to the Immunization Clinic to avoid receiving a 'noshow' notification.

All base organizations must contact the Immunization Clinic at Ext. 3846 to establish the date, time and location for their immunizations and to provide the name of their contact person. Each organization is expected to provide a qualified individual who can validate the unit's personnel roster and to pull notification cards.

All personnel, including those on mobility, are required to have their shot record with them when receiving the immunization.

Most nutritionists agree that grabbing a quick meal at a fast-food establishment isn't all that bad if: 1) you have an understanding of the relative nutritional value of fast-foods so you can choose the "better" ones, 2) you make a point of nutritionally "rounding out" the fast-food meal through your other two daily meals, and 3) you think of fast-food dining as a "treat" and not something you do too often.

Who do you call?

by SMSgt. Jimmy L. Robinson

- The Lubbock, Texas, Meals on Wheels recently moved to another part of town. When they needed help in moving the office furniture, who did they call? No, not Ghost Busters, but the 1958th Communications Squadron. Squadron personnel work with the program on a weekly basis, delivering food to the elderly and disabled in Lubbock. So, when asked, they were more than willing to help. So, on the appointed day, several squadrort members showed up bright and early. In less than three hours, the move was completed. In a letter to the base commander, Ms. Sue Buckner, executive director of Lubbock Meals on Wheels, said, "It was remarkable to see how efficiently and quickly the move went...We appreciate the squadron's help in both this activity and each week in delivering meals. Thanks for everything!' She also said, "The work of these people saved us two or three hundred dollars we would have had to pay a mover, money that can now be used where it was intended."

Voting: an easy process

by MSgt. Billy M. Shields Chief, Customer Assistance

The United States is one of the few countries in the world where free elections are routinely taken for granted. Voting is one of the most important rights and privileges of American citizenship.

Unfortunately, many take that right and privilege for granted and fail to vote. That's a shame because it means that non-voters allow others to make the decisions which affect all of us. Millions of Americans who are eligible to vote aren't even registered to vote, and in most states registration is a necessary step to vote.

In the past, the voter registration system itself was blamed for low registration rates. In addition literacy tests, poll taxes, registration requirements that a voter be a landowner, and many other barriers served to discourage or outlaw registration. Today, however, voter registration is easy and convenient even for the absentee voter. It's as simple as seeing your voting officer or counselor and requesting a Federal Post Card Application (FPCA) to register and/or request for a ballot. You simply fill it out, sign it (some states require notarization by an officer or other official authorized to administer oaths), and mail it to your county or town local election official-it's even postage free. You may register if you are a U.S. citizen 18 years of age or older. Most states will send you a ballot in response to a single Federal Post Card Application. But remember in most states you must register by Oct. 6, 1986 if you wish to receive a ballot for the Nov. 4, 1986 general election.

It is a good idea to have your unit voting officer or counselor check the EPCS to insure it is properly filled out, signed, dated, and notarized if appli-

A membership salad supper for Lady L.U.L.A.C. #281 will cable. Just because you voted in the primary election, it does not mean you will automatically receive a ballot for the Nov. 4, 1986 election. You may need to submit a new FPCA in order to receive a ballot for the general election. Check with your voting officer or counselor about requirements for your state.

Voting procedures are contained in the 1986/1987 Voting Assistance Guide which is available through the installation voting officer. Civilians may obtain information at any U.S. Embassy or consulate. McGruff says October is crime prevention month

by A1C Felix Saenz Base Crime Prevention Manager

Be A Crime Fighter...

Crime and the fear of crime are big problems which influence how you live. Figures and statistics don't tell the whole story. Because each incident of crime hurts all of us-our neighborhoods, our schools, our businesses and our children.

The most important resource we have in reducing crime and fear in our neighborhoods are neighbors working together to prevent crime. Crime prevention means reducing the chances for criminals to victimize you and your neighbors. It means protecting people and property, and increasing community safety and well being. Most of all, it means people like you taking responsibility for your own and your neighbors' security, and knowing and working with local law enforcement and neighbors to protect your homes, neighborhoods, and kids.

Crime Prevention is watching out, and helping out. Crime

ed in every season of the year. Winter time is here, a time for everyone to start thinking about Christmas. The winter is a special time of the year, but is also a time when busy people become careless and individuals are especially vulnerable to theft and other crimes. Take some tips from McGruff the crime dog:

•Even though you're rushed and thinking about a thousand things, stay alert to your surroundings and the people around you.

•Lock your car and close the windows, even if you're only gone a few minutes. Lock packages in the trunk.

•Teach your children to go to your neighbors and ask for help if they are separated from their parents in an emergency.

•Avoid carrying large amounts of cash. Pay for purchases with a check or credit cards when traveling.

•Be extra careful with purses and wallets. Carry a purse under your arm. Keep a wallet in an inside pocket.

Prevention will always be need-AT HOME

•Be extra cautious about locking doors and windows when you leave the house, even for a few minutes. Leave lights and a radio or television on so the house looks occupied.

•Don't display gifts where they can be seen from a window or doorway.

•If you go away, get an automatic timer for your lights. Have a neighbor watch your house and pick up the mail and newspaper.

These are just a few tips you can take to help prevent a crime. For further information on how you can prevent a crime call me at Ext. 3615.

Thrift shop remodeled

by Joanne C. Ruble

"When you think of a thrift shop, what vision is conjured up? Is it a dark, dusty place, cluttered with junk? Well think again! The Reese AFB Thrift Shop is bright, clean, newly painted and has attractive curtains on the windows. The Remodeling was accomplished by Diana Edwards, Karen McIntyre, Jean Griffith, Joyce Galloway, Candy Garrison, Christine Schardt, Sandy Elliott and Sue Roeleff, Mr. James E. Truelock, chief, Material Storage and Distribution Branch and Supply donated the metal shelving and SrA. David Miller helped with the painting. Since the remodeling, the Thrift Shop has increased sales and profits.

The Thrift Shop operation is Shop property and may be sold simple. The hours of operation are Tuesday and Fridays from 10 a.m. til 2 p.m. Customers may bring 15 items for consignment on Tuesdays from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. The customer may come in any time during the 60 days of the consignment contract to lower the price of their items or to withdraw them. When the contract expires the remaining items become Thrift as donations. The customer receives 80 percent of the selling price, and a check is written once a month for all items sold during the previous month.

The Thrift Shop accepts donations which are sold at a very reduced price. The Thrift Shop profits are used by the Reese OWC for charitable contributions to worthy organizations on base and in the local commu-

Everyone wins with the Thrift Shop. The person consigning items receives money for items no longer needed, the buyer gets great bargains, the base and local communities receive money for needy projects.

The Reese Thrift Shop adheres to the same standard of excellence that can be found everywhere on Reese AFB.

Off the blotter

by A1C Felix Saenz Base Crime Prevention Manager

With over three million burglaries reported every year in the United States, the growing concern for home protection and private property is hardly surprising. Burglary rates are increasing in small communities faster than in large cities. Unquestionably, Reese is one of these small communities.

Is your property properly locked up? The Security Police h ave noticed a lot of insecure property. It's your property that will be stolen when it's insecure.

Incidents that occurred in the past month show an increase in theft of private property.

•Discredit to the Air Force was caused by an individual who was caught shoplifting at Bldg. 105. the BX Sept. 1.

•On Sept. 5 and 10, two individuals had their wallets stolen from the gym lockers after they left it insecure.

•Bringing discredit to the Air Force, on Sept. 6, an individual causing minor injuries was apprehended for assault at Dorm 220

Model Instalation bases a success

Secretary of the Air Force Edward C. "Pete" Aldridge Jr. had special praise for the Model Installation Program being tested at selected bases in the United States and overseas at a brief press conference with Air Force reporters at Randolph AFB Sept. 24 before flying back to Washington.

EXCELLENT

The MIP is a success story of the first magnitude," Mr. Aldridge said. He explained that the MIP lets the commander command by removing much of the bureaucratic burden. "The accomplishments that we have had in the program are just tremendous. The lesson is to decentralize, let the commander use his resources in the best way to meet the mission," he said.

The Air Force is preparing to expand the program to all bases by January.

Mr. Aldridge also expressed his concerns about manpower. The Air Force has made considerable progress in recent years toward resolving its readiness crisis, according to the service's top civilian leader, but is facing another-meeting its expanding missions without an increase in people.

'We're getting new missions but, unfortunately, we aren't getting the manpower increases necessary to man those missions," Mr. Aldridge said.

"I think what's going to happen," he said, "is that we'll keep the Air Force end strength about level, but we'll have to figure out how to use our people more productively. Military and strength is the next crisis in the Air Force."

Mr. Aldridge said the Air Force is looking to new technologies to help it through the next crisis. The focus, according to the secretary, is on reliability, maintainability and productivity, not performance.

"Performance is in there as a source selection criterion, but it is not the top priority," he explained.

"Our contractors are bidding and are in competition for the advanced tactical fighter on the basis of which contractor can deliver the most reliable and maintainable airplane, so we don't have to keep a large maintenance force to support it," he said.

Other fixes, according to the secretary, include the transfer of additional missions to Air Force Reserve and Air National Guard Forces, as well as the contracting of some functions to civilian firms.

"We're looking at missions going to the Guard and Reserve to the extent that they can handle them," he said. We're also looking at contracting out those non-essential functions so we can use our people as effectively as we can."

Despite the manpower crisis, Mr. Aldridge emphasized that the Air Force is in "great shape."

"I think we probably have the best quality people we've ever had, the best trained, the best motivated. It will be my job to keep it that way," he said.

The secretary noted that people are at the top of his list of priorities. Also on the list are strategic modernization programs, readiness and sustainability, airlift and tactical force modernization and the space program.

Mr. Aldridge was at Randolph to meet with the com-mander of Air Training Command, Lt. Gen. John A. Shaud. (AFNS)

Maintenance Quality Assurance Foreman William T. Turner pictured above with Col. James McIntyre has retired after 36 years of service. Mr. Turner entered Civil Service in 1948 at Pyote Army Airfield, Texas. In 1950 he moved to Lubbock and began work here at Reese. He has watched the pilot training business grow from the propeller driven, tail wheel steering T-6 Texan to the supersonic T-38 Talon. Mr. Turner participated in the conversion from T-6 and B-25 to the T-28 and T-33 and finally to the T-37 and T-38.
