Three percent raise begins in January

WASHINGTON (AFNS)—Congress has passed a Defense Authorization Bill for this fiscal year that includes a three percent across-the-board pay hike in January for all military members.

The raise applies to basic pay, housing, and food allowances. Airman Basics with less than four months service and Air Force Academy Cadets also will receive the January pay hike. In the past, they sometimes had not.

Both the House and Senate passed the FY 87 Defense Authorization Bill Oct. 15. President Reagan is expected to sign the bill into law before the end of the month.

Passing an authorization bill completes half the budget process authorizing various programs for the fiscal year. An appropriations bill is the other half of that process—appropriating the monies to fund those programs.

Congress agreed on the less generous, less expensive of two military pay raise proposals. The Senate proposal would have given military members a four percent pay hike Oct. 1. Instead, Congress opted for the House version: A three percent military pay increase effective Jan. 1.

The difference between the two versions amounted to $1.1 billion. The administration had asked for a four percent pay hike effective Oct. 1, the same as the Senate proposal.

Last year, the Defense Department estimated military pay trailed comparable civilian wages by 8.3 percent. Pentagon officials said the 3 percent pay hike in January will not be enough to keep pace with civilian wage increases. Therefore, that pay gap will widen.

Other personnel programs included in the FY 87 Defense Authorization Bill affect PCS moves, TDY payments, Family Separation Allowances, re-enlistment bonuses and spouse employment.

Congress capped the military's PCS budget at $2.5 billion, cutting $270 million from the Pentagon's original request.

The bill authorizes a new system for reimbursing TDY travelers called Lodging-plus. It provides a set amount for meals and incidentals plus reimbursement for lodging costs, not to exceed the local area cap. A cost cap will be established by location, so reimbursements will vary. Before the new system can be implemented, the President must certify that the lodging-plus method will not cost more than the existing method.

The bill limits the $60 a month Family Separation Allowance (FSA-Type II) to those members who involuntarily serve unaccompanied overseas tours. Volunteers currently serving unaccompanied tours in accompanied tour areas will continue to draw the FSA-Type II allowance only until their tour is completed.

Congress saved $291 million by allowing payment of only 50 percent of a Selective Reenlistment Bonus at the time of reenlistment. The remainder would be paid in annual installments spread out over the obligation period. Enlistment bonuses are authorized for all services.

A House proposal authorizing increases in Household Goods Weight Allowances for E-5s and above, was denied. The proposal would have increased weight allowances, ranging from 8,000 pounds to 12,000. Instead, the current 9,500 maximum for enlisted personnel remains.

The bill expands the hiring preference for military spouses and dependents seeking on-base employment. Previously, hiring preferences applied only to positions GS-8 and above. That preference has been expanded to include GS-5, GS-6 and GS-7 positions.

CFC touches home

by A1C Robin Reams
Staff Writer, Roundup

The Combined Federal Campaign, a once a year solicitation of federal employees, is well underway at Reese. The support of voluntary health and welfare agencies began more than 20 years ago by executive order.

In the past 20 years, millions of people have benefited from CFC organizations. Have any touched your life in some way?

Homeless children drew the attention of SrA. Tim Wigmore, assigned to USAF Hospital-Reese. "Having a child of my own has made me realize just how much children need," he said.

Through aid from a disease research and treatment agency, 2nd Lt. James Morgan, Instructor Pilot at the 54th Flying Training Squadron saw his mother overcome her disability. "She was told she would never walk again, and now she is," Lieutenant Morgan said.

"I am able to see the results of my contribution to Youth Activities," said A1C David Krajcovic, assigned to the Physical Fitness Center. "The kids need our support," he said.

A1C Edwin Forest's wife recently had a baby and donated to health care. "I wanted to help out other parents with kids who might not be able to afford everything they need," the Financial Services Specialist said.

Before you make the decision not to contribute to CFC, take another look through the pamphlet your CFC representative gave you. It lists numerous organizations that you can donate directly to.

Counseling programs, alcoholics, disaster victims and helpless elderly are only a few places that CFC donations go. Has anyone you know ever benefited from a CFC organization, or are you positive you will never need assistance?

As of Oct. 30, Reese has met 97 percent of its $127,500 CFC goal with a contribution of $123,720.

As I see it

General and Mrs. Hullender visit

Your previous Wing Commander, and current ATC/DO, returned this week to Reese to be the guest speaker at Texas Tech's ROTC Dining Inn at the officers' club this evening. While here, he also had the opportunity to check the progress of things in the wing, and we were fortunate to have him discuss ops matters with several of our aviators. Again, I was extremely proud to show General Hullender around—even though, as you can imagine, the immediate past Wing Commander knows full well how things were when he was in charge. The continuing successes of all the Reese team are evident even to the keenest of eyes and most knowledgeable critic. Thanks for once again showing the special Reese pride.

There's lots happen'n

• First and foremost, blue skies have prevailed this week—it's enough to make a Wing jump for joy in unison. It's great to have the machinery of this Wing whirling at full speed again. I've been around a lot this week, and have noted the good spirits of maintainers, operators, suppliers, et al, as you all bear down to maximize our mission accomplishment under a blue sky. Through your hard work, we're back about even. Of course everyone knows that it won't last forever and that our share of poor flying weather is probably just around the corner once again—that's what Capt. Bill Wolfenbarger says anyway. That's what history tells us. What's important is the "can do" attitude. We're back about even, yet what I hear most, even from the two Airmen from Hotel Flight in OMS that I had lunch with yesterday at the Caprock, its, "Sir, let's just hope we can keep the high sortie rate up for awhile longer to build us a good pad."
• Speaking of "blue sky" the 'Tops in Blue' performance last week was tremendous, thanks not only to the talented performers but also to Ms. Jean Ray for all of her hard work with the arrangements. Thanks Jean.

USAF Photo

• CFC is winding down, and in most cases is finished. Maj. Doug Lane reports that by next week Reese should once again be over the top. Several unit fund-raisers will be going on between now and then, such as the hospital's "moonlight bowl-a-thon" this Saturday night. I applaud these fund-raising efforts and encourage all of you that can to participate in the fun for a very worthwhile cause.

• Hennessey Trophy competition got underway this week when Capt. Chuck Hatcher's services troops hosted, with the help of Pauline Reed and her staff, an "icebreaker" get-together at the Caprock Cafe. Lt. Col. Tate from the headquarter's staff got a taste, not only of great food, but the team spirit at Reese. He left Reese to go tally his score card. We don't yet know how we came out officially. Win or not, my hat is off to all the many who have made our dining facility, and it's service to the troops, the best anywhere in my estimation.

• During Wednesday's staff meeting, Maj. Lee Cox proudly announced that Reese AFB has just been selected to have the best Accounting and Finance Office in ATC for the fourth quarter of 1986. Go by and congratulate his folks.
More Reese Winners.

• Lt. Col. Stick Turner and his 54th FTS flyers bid farewell to Lt. Col. Dave and Linda Taylor last Tuesday evening at the officer's club. A "roast" of sorts, with Dave center stage in the hot seat. Such is the custom, and done with great form and humor. But I was particularly proud of Dave's closing remarks as he bid farewell to his troops, and all the people of Reese. He wanted to assure us all that Reese has something very special working. A spirit that is contagious. "Oh sure," he said, as I recall, "every once in a while there will be someone here that doesn't catch-on, and tries to buck the system and just get by. But invariably when that happens the guy is run over by 3000 people hell-bent on getting the job done." AS I SEE IT, that's exactly what separates Reese from whoever is number two.

I want your views

A reminder. You've saved quite a tidy sum of dollars through MIP suggestions that can be plowed back into improving the working and living conditions on base. It's time to identify a good project. I want your views before deciding. Use the CARELINE. Several already have. Deadline is set for Nov. 7.

Attitude problem also the NCO's problem

by CMSgt. Rafael Moreno
senior enlisted advisor
Hellenikon AFB, Greece

How many times have you heard the phrase, "Airman, you've got an attitude problem."

I'm certain we've all heard it at one time or another. Most of us have developed positive attitudes and have tried to develop positive attitudes in others. However, there still remains that minority who will not change their negative attitudes.

- What causes a person to develop a negative attitude? I believe it is because new people follow the example of their supervisors.

Supervisors who constantly complain, who accept low standards, who have poor performance records or lack initiative and motivation are the creators of negative attitudes. Their subordinates see in them a form of behavior they will soon emulate.

The result is a younger, but otherwise exact copy of the supervisor—a malcontent who doesn't care, who has nothing good to say about anything or anybody and, more importantly, an individual who will soon be setting the example for the new people.

Today's Air Force, with its diversified mission and state-of-the-art equipment, cannot afford to retain people with negative attitudes. Supervisors and leaders must make every effort to identify and change these people from liabilities into assets. The supervisor's goal is to positively educate and motivate these people or to eliminate them from the service.

Those with attitude problems must make every effort to change the way they think, act and feel. They should not let themselves be influenced by those who have nothing good to say about anything or anybody. They should seek out those known for their positive attitudes, getting real answers and not just some loser's biased opinion.

A negative attitude is like a bad cold—difficult to cure and highly contagious. The remedy is positive motivation, positive influences, a positive environment and positive leadership.

The cure can only be wrought by direct involvement of professional NCOs. Professional and positive leadership will guarantee that we have the right people for the mission. (AFNS)

IT'S YOUR RIGHT

Go ahead, light it up,
Besides, who really cares;
If you choose to smoke or not,
Is strictly your affair.

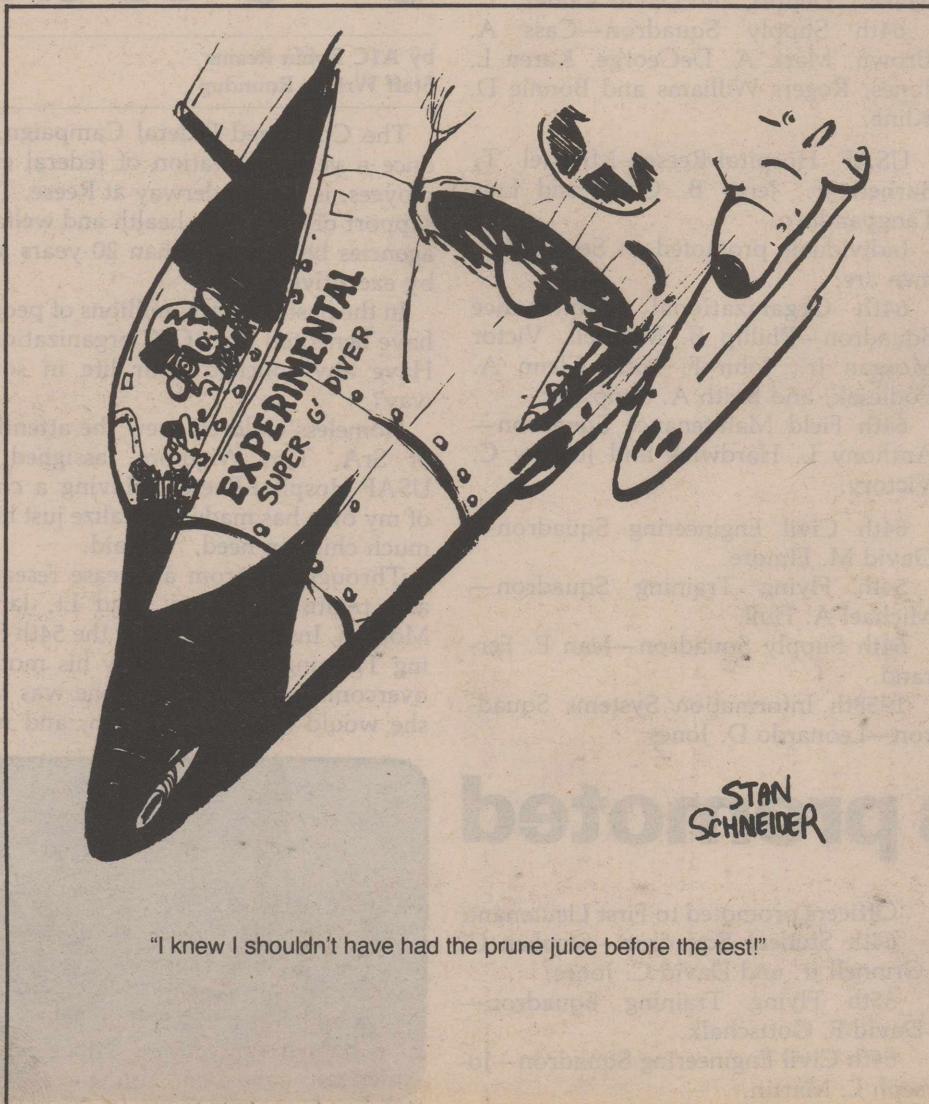

It's up to you, it's your right,
It's for you to decide;
It's not they but you,
Who is bent toward suicide.

Smoking is so stylish,
You look so debonair;
And so, what does it matter,
If you pollute the air.

You know you'll beat the odds,
So do exactly as you please;
It's those other many smokers,
Who'll contract lung disease.

A cancer ward's the last place,
You'd ever spend the night;
And if you keep on smoking,
You know—you could be right!

Commander's Column

by Col. Roy L. Bobbitt
commander, Hospital-Reese

Recently, I read a poem entitled "Reputation vs Character" (author unknown). Several of the verses remain in my mind because of the author's interpretation of the terms reputation and character. Let me quote a few verses for clarification.

People are our concern

Reputation is seeming; character is being...
Reputation is what you need to get a job;
Character is what you need to keep it...
Reputation is what you have when you go to town;
Character is what you have when you go away.

When reading these words, the importance of the opinions of others is placed in perspective, along with the importance of our own perceptions and qualities.

We all like to think we are independent and unaffected by others' opinions, but it is simply not true, especially, as military members. Unless you join an organization directly from civilian life, there is usually someone in the squadron who was stationed with you before or who knows someone who was stationed with you. Either way, your reputation precedes you.

Keeping this in mind, we can see the importance of your performance and your attitude in the job you are currently assigned. You may fill all the "squares" on paper but fortunately or unfortunately what is most often remembered is the manner in which you approached the job. Such as, she always stuck to the regulations or he didn't really care how it was done as long as it was done during normal duty hours. Which reputation do you prefer?

As it is with the individual, a squadron develops a reputation, often based on others' initial contact with the squadron. If that initial contact is perceived as courteous and knowledgeable then the squadron is perceived as having those qualities. Here within the Hospital, we've started an active program to assure that first and last impressions are the best. It's called the Patient Sensitivity Program. Our motto is "People Are Our Concern." In each section of the Hospital we have selected staff members who are most skillful in human relations. They will go into action should those we serve experience problems.

Reputation and character should not be irreconcilable but should co-exist for the good of one another. The verses of the poem emphasize this. Reputation is described as a superficial quality that when not combined with character is merely a facade. Character, that distinct feature or attribute that individualizes each group or person, is the backbone of the individual or organization. Remember the movie, The Right Stuff? During the selection procedure for the astronauts it was determined that all candidates exceeded the criteria so the selected few had to have something special. That attribute is impossible to describe on paper nevertheless it is a vital qualification and a key factor in the success of the mission. We all have that attribute to some extent. So remember, in your daily interactions, your reputation and that of your squadron depends on it. You too have the Right Stuff. Go for it!

Each vote cast is important

by Martin Tullai
chairman, history department
St. Paul's School
Brooklandville, Md.

It is alleged that in the late 1970s a pollster asked an interviewee, "Which is the greatest problem facing democracy in the United States today: public ignorance or public apathy?" The response: "I don't know and I don't care."

Apocryphal or not, this seems to illustrate aptly the current sentiment about the primary political campaign. Most "off-year" elections, without a presidential race to enliven the scene, are languid affairs. But this one appears even duller than the usual. The pace of registrations is behind expectations and voter interest is subdued at best.

Through television editorials, talk shows, sponsored debates and extended newspaper coverage, the media have made a strong effort to combat this malaise. The promotion of informed discussion, it is hoped, will generate increased citizen participation on election day.

The necessity of these efforts brings to mind the telling quip of Bill Vaughn, "America is a land where a citizen will cross the ocean to fight for democracy and won't cross the street to vote in an election."

Political scientists, aware of this disturbing problem, have identified several factors which contribute to low voter turnout. For one, some folks feel alienated—they just do not trust political institutions and regard elections as meaningless. Another group of non-voters consists of persons who have no sense of political efficacy. They lack any feeling of influence in politics and do not believe that they, or their votes, can have any impact on government.

These citizens should know that one vote, or a few votes, can make a difference. Maybe not all of the time, but certainly each vote cast is important and has the potential of being decisive.

Charles Evans Hughes realized this was true. In 1916, if just one more voter in each California district had voted for him, he would have been elected and the incumbent, Woodrow Wilson, would have gone down in history as a one-term president.

In 1876 Rutherford B. Hayes was finally elected president over Samuel J. Tilden—but only after a bizarre series of events culminated in the creation of an extra-constitutional electoral commission composed of 15 members. This group finally elected Mr. Hayes—by one vote, 8 to 7.

In 1884 Grover Cleveland fought James G. Blaine for the presidency. New York was the crucial battleground. Out of more than a million ballots cast in this state, Cleveland won by the scant margin of 1,047 votes. This gave him the Empire State's 36 electoral votes and the election.

John F. Kennedy gained the White House instead of Richard Nixon in 1960 by an average of less than one vote per election precinct.

Charles H. Hardin was elected governor of Missouri in 1874 by the smallest margin in history—less than one vote! At the time, Missouri's governor was officially chosen through a system similar to that of the Electoral College. Counties went for or against a candidate, and votes were apportioned according to their populations. But some of the counties were very sparsely populated, and a county of fewer than 500 residents received only portions of one vote. When the final tally was made, Mr. Hardin had defeated his challenger, Gen. Francis Cockrell, by one-sixth of a vote!

On another level, the 12th amendment—election of the president and vice president—was approved in the House of Representatives by a single vote. Nathaniel Macon's vote gave its proponents exactly the two-thirds majority necessary for passage.

President Andrew Johnson escaped removal from office by one vote. At the impeachment trial in the Senate, Edmund Ross cast the deciding vote against conviction.

Of course, it can't be known for certain when one ballot will be crucial. But more significant, perhaps, is the fact that it's great just to feel the healthy satisfaction of expressing one's conviction. As John Quincy Adams advised, "Always vote for a principle, though you vote alone, and you may cherish the sweet reflection that your vote never lost."

Robert Humphrey, who spent much of his life in public service, offered some good advice to those whose disdain for politics keeps them away from the polls. "If you think politics is a little dirty," he counseled, "why don't you get a bar of Ivory soap and get in and clean it up instead of sitting out there in the bleachers."

Of all the reasons given for non-voting, the chief is—surely and simple—a lack of interest. Citizens in this category are indifferent, apathetic and usually uninformed.

It would be no loss if these people stayed home. After all, it's important to vote, but it's crucial to vote knowledgeably.

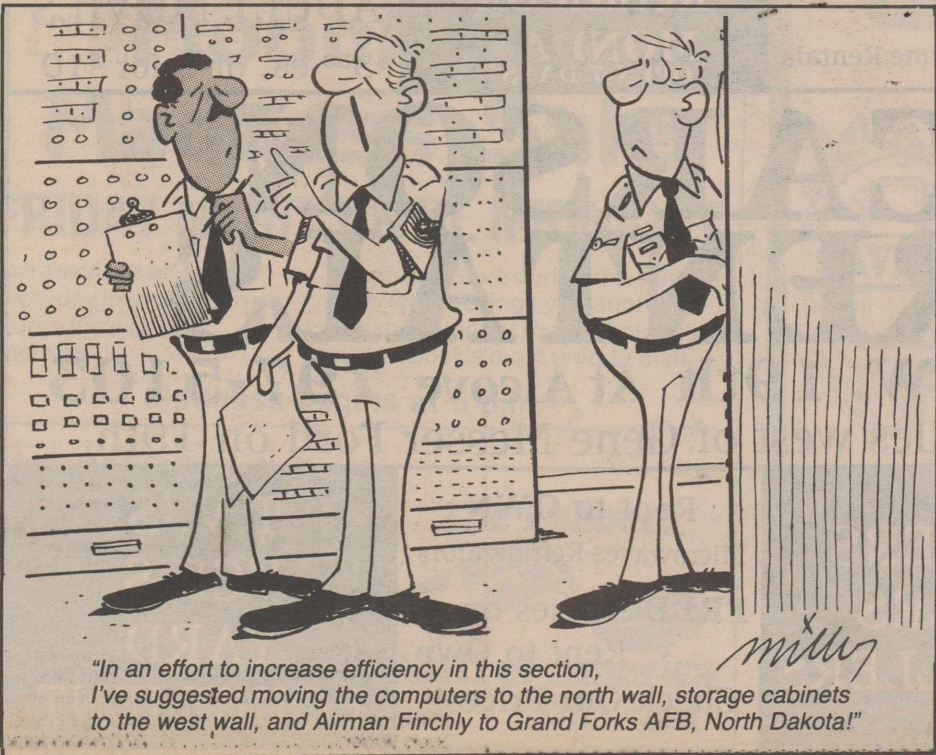

Political scientist William A. McClenaghan has said about this group, "The fact that those persons don't very often vote might well be counted among our blessings. Surely, elections are not intended to be polls of the indifferent, lazy, apathetic or ignorant."

The writer experienced this group in action when, many years ago as a high school senior in a Pennsylvania coal town, he worked at the polls for a candidate aspiring to become a tax collector.

As election day moved to its last hour, flunkies from both parties went out to round up those who had not yet cast their ballots and bought their votes for a few dollars. These indifferent, slothful and incredibly apathetic souls disgraced themselves and were an insult to the genius of democracy.

We sometimes forget that voting is a political right—it belongs to those who qualify, to citizens who can meet certain legal requirements. This privilege carries a responsibility. Those who take it lightly should be reminded of George Jean Nathan's admonition, "Bad officials are elected by good citizens who don't vote."

Not just a flag

by 2nd Lt. Lawrence Cooper
Public Affairs, 64 FTW

There have been articles about the proper way to salute the American Flag, as well as, when to, but not why. It seems to me that quite a few people consider stopping for reveille and retreat just another block to fill, to be just another formality. Impatiently they wait for the flag to go up or come down, and then they scurry on their merry way wishing that they hadn't the misfortune of being delayed.

Sure there is a delay in waiting for that flag, but instead of wishing that you had been a little earlier, take the time to reflect on just what that Red, White, and Blue Banner symbolizes. Thousands of Americans have died fighting not for the flag but for what it stands. Freedom of speech, freedom of religion, the pursuit of happiness are but a few of the things that every American can enjoy. We live in a place where we can choose our training, travel wherever and whenever we want, and even buy anything that we can afford; these things are not enjoyed by everyone worldwide.

We sometimes take for granted what other people in other countries deem privileges. Where we can go to a supermarket, others are starving; as Americans we travel all over the world on vacation, while others need special passports just to leave their own cities. Each time that flag goes up or comes down, take that time to remember that it represents all the rights we enjoy and all the people who took their time to help create this nation and to protect the freedom of all those who reside within.

Health alert

The early autumn months are high-risk months for the transmission of encephalitis by mosquitoes in Lubbock. Encephalitis (Western equine and St. Louis types) is a virus disease of the nervous system transmitted by mosquitoes. It is seldom fatal but can result in physical pain, loss of productivity and even hospitalization. The disease is not spread from person to person. Wet conditions allow the mosquitoes to breed. Base housing residents are urged to eliminate breeding sites such as empty flower pots, to report mosquito problems to Base Entomology, and to use mosquito repellants at night when necessary.

Officers meeting a promotion board through the end of the year and affected by the new criteria for wear of the overseas ribbon will not be required to update their official photographs. Official photographs need not reflect the new criteria until January.

Children invited

Library Story Hour is Wednesday, 10-11 a.m. and 12:30-1:30 p.m. The hour is free and includes reading aloud, movies, activities and games and other fun things to do. All children are invited to share in the fun.

Time for shots

The 1986-87 Influenza Immunization Program for Reese AFB is being conducted Oct. 20-Nov. 14. Immunizations are mandatory for all active duty personnel (IAW AFR 161-13). All personnel should be aware that the immunization is most effective in preventing illness when received early in the season. All active duty personnel who have a valid medical waiver prohibiting the immunization (pregnancy, allergic to eggs) must bring proof of the waiver to the Immunization Clinic to avoid receiving a 'no-show' notification.

All base organizations must contact the Immunization Clinic at Ext. 3846 to establish the date, time and location for their immunizations and to provide the name of their contact person. Each organization is expected to provide a qualified individual who can validate the unit's personnel roster and to pull notification cards.

All personnel, including those on mobility, are required to have their shot record with them when receiving the immunization.

Immunizations for dependents and civilian government employees will be given after Nov. 14 based on the availability of vaccine.

For more information, call SSgt. Willie Garth, Ext. 3846.

Changes and clarification for 'Grandfathering' badge given

RANDOLPH AFB, Texas (ATCNS)—Air Force officials have announced changes and clarification for wearing the new aircraft and munitions maintenance badge. The change includes "grandfathering" for those previously qualified.

The badge was conceived as a qualification badge for maintainers of aircraft, munitions and associated equipment, officials said. The purpose of the basic badge is to identify and recognize those skilled performing or supervising such maintenance. The senior and master badges identify and recognize an increased level of qualification as well as prolonged, honorable service in aircraft and munitions maintenance.

Originally, the badge was not authorized for members with prior experience in eligible Air Force specialties who weren't presently holding one of the specialties as a primary AFSC. Officials decided that these individuals should not be penalized just because an appropriate badge was not available when they qualified. Therefore, criteria has been announced for "grandfathering" members, regardless of their current AFSC, when their application is verified by the chief, quality force branch and approved by the awarding authority.

"Grandfathering" criteria includes:

- Basic maintenance badge: Enlisted members must have earned a five-skill level AFSC in one of the designated maintenance specialties listed in Air Force Regulation 900-66, para. 4. Officers must have earned a fully-qualified AFSC of 4016, 4024, or 4096. Enlisted or officer maintenance AFSCs which, over time, have directly converted to one of these AFSCs are considered qualifying AFSCs.

- Senior maintenance badge: Enlisted members must have met the criteria above, earned a seven-skill level AFSC in one of the designated specialties and worked in one of more of the specialties for more than seven years. Officers must have earned a full-qualified AFSC listed above and worked in one or more of the designated specialties for more than seven years. Directly converted AFSCs again apply.

- Master maintenance badge: Enlisted members must have met the criteria for the senior badge, earned a nine-skill level AFSC or chief enlisted manager code in one of the designated specialties, and worked in one or more of the specialties for more than 12 years. Officers must have earned a fully-qualified AFSC of 4016 or 4096 and worked in one of more of the designated specialties for more than 12 years. Directly converted AFSCs again apply.

The "grandfathering" criteria apply to members who qualified prior to publication of AFR 900-66 (Aug. 8) and who submit their application for the badge on or before Aug. 7, 1987. Officials believe this one-year period is sufficient to get the word to all levels.

AFR 900-66 sets the policy and criteria for awarding the badge. Individuals in six enlisted specialty codes are eligible: 32XXX, 42XXX, 43XXX, 461XX, 462XX and 463XX.

MWR sees new face

by AIC Robin Reams
Staff Writer, Roundup

The Reese spirit has already caught on with Mr. Jack Bird, the new Recreations Service Manager at Moral, Welfare and Recreation. His goal is to "be the best in the Air Force."

Mr. Bird has taken on where Mr. Earl Hutchings left off, and his goal is to see the Reese MWR division win the Gen. Curtis E. Lemay award for the best MWR division in the Air Force he said.

In his 19-year career with the Air Force, Mr. Bird feels he has "seen every phase of the field" he said. Mr. Bird began his career as enlisted under the MWR division for seven years. He also spent a year playing the clarinet with the 9th Air Force Band at Shaw Air Force Base, S.C.

At his previous base, Mr. Bird led the Shaw MWR division to be the best in Tactical Air Command.

Mr. Bird plans an overall upgrading of facilities on the inside. He also plans to expand on programs and add programs needed for "good leisure time recreation," he said.

"Reese is the best base I've seen, and the people here are friendly," Mr. Bird said. "It's good to be here."

Know your rights

by 2nd Lt. William T. Huffman and Capt. Michael D. Russell

Airlines often overbook flights to allow for cancellations and no-shows, sometimes causing too many people to show up with confirmed reservations, resulting in someone getting "bumped" off the flight. The Department of Transportation regulates airlines and requires them to seek out volunteers before bumping anyone voluntarily. As incentive, many airlines offer discounts or credits for future tickets to those who volunteer to give up their seats on the flight. This could be to your advantage if you have time to spare.

Before you volunteer, see if the next flight is acceptable. Make sure your seat is confirmed, if you are placed on a waiting list you could end up stranded. Also find out if the airlines will provide such things as food and lodging if you have to wait overnight for a flight. If not, you might have to spend the money they offer you on these things.

If you do not have time to spare and do not want to be bumped, be sure to get to your departure gate early. When there aren't enough seats and no one volunteers to be bumped, airlines usually bump the last people to show up. If you are bumped and the airline can get you to your destination on another flight within one hour of your originally scheduled arrival time, they do not have to pay you anything. However, if you arrive at your destination one to two hours late you can get up to $200 in addition to the face value of your ticket. If your delay is longer than two hours, the most they will have to pay you is $400 plus the face value of your ticket.

If you are travelling on government orders and are asked to voluntarily give up your seat, you may do so and may keep the money, as long as the delay does not affect the performance of your official duty or cost the government money. If you are involuntarily bumped, then any money for compensation must be turned in to the government, even if it does not interfere with the performance of your duties or cost the government additional money.

You should allow extra time in your schedule. Cancellations and delays are quite common and airlines usually refuse to pay passengers for financial losses resulting from these because their schedules are not guaranteed.

Senate confirms new Under Secretary

WASHINGTON (AFNS)—James McGovern, a Naval Academy graduate and former Navy fighter pilot, has been confirmed by the Senate as the next Under Secretary of the Air Force.

Mr. McGovern succeeds Edward C. "Pete" Aldridge Jr. as Under Secretary. Mr. Aldridge was appointed Secretary of the Air Force earlier this year.

The Air Force Under Secretary position is the second-highest civilian post in the Air Force.

Mr. McGovern has served since 1982 as the Senate Armed Services Committee's Staff Director and Chief Counsel.

He joined the committee staff in 1981 as a general counsel.

Graduated from the Naval Academy in 1969, Mr. McGovern spent six years on active duty as a Navy fighter pilot, Squadron Personnel Officer, Legal Officer and Aircraft Maintenance Officer. He has logged 2,000 flying hours, mostly in F-4s. Mr. McGovern is a Marine Corps Reserve Lieutenant Colonel.

After leaving the Navy, Mr. McGovern entered the Georgetown University Law School, graduating in 1978. He spent the next few years working in a Washington law firm before joining the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Make tonight a safe Halloween

By Evelyn D. Harris
American Forces Information Service

Halloween is a time of making believe and adventure for children, and parents often put a lot of time and creativity into planning the perfect costume. But it's also important to plan for Halloween safety. Costumes should be non-flammable and short enough so the little goblins won't trip. If the costume involves a toy gun or sword, make sure it is not sharp or heavy enough to hurt anyone. Especially for little children, avoid extra-long clown shoes or mom's and dad's oversized shoes. You might want to have a dress rehearsal to make sure they can move and see well in their costumes. Make-up is better for vision and breathing than a mask, but if they must wear one it should fit well and have openings for the eyes and room to breathe. To make sure drivers can see your children's costumes, if the costumes aren't light enough, give the children a flashlight or a glow-tube (glow-tubes come in fun and "scary" shapes like little skulls) so they can see and be seen. If your young children go "trick-or-treating," go with them or send a responsible teenager along. Go over basic traffic safety rules with them, such as crossing only at intersections after looking both ways. Tell them to stay on the sidewalk, and if there is none, to stay as close as possible to the curb, facing traffic.

Tell your children to stay in your neighborhood, and have an agreed-on time for them to return home so you can inspect their costumes and to wait until they get home before they eat them. Throw away any unwrapped candy, and wash and cut up fruit into little pieces. If you find anything wrong with a candlelit jack-o-lanterns where curtains or costumes will brush the military or local police so others can be warned.

If you're staying home waiting for trick-or-treaters, remember to put your light on and every-where!

Keep your sidewalk and steps clear. Be careful not to put candlelit jack-o-lanterns where curtains or costumes will brush them. To be extra safe, substitute a small flashlight for the candle.

If you're driving, drive more slowly and watch for children crossing only at intersections after looking both ways. Tell them to stay on the sidewalk, and if there is none, to stay as close as possible to the curb, facing traffic.

Wearing seatbelts is a snap

by Sgt. Cherie Powers, USAF
Ground Safety Specialist

The National Transportation Board (NTSB) released a report in September that stated people would be better off not using lap belts when riding in the rear seats of a car. This report only studied 26 cases, and was a specific search for cases in which belts failed. It looked at only frontal crashes and failed to consider side collisions and roll-over crashes where belts are particularly effective. Moreover, the NTSB looked only at injuries caused by belts and ignored situations such as ejections which are generally fatal and are prevented by safety belt use.

The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) has studied thousands of accident cases and the overall conclusion is that a person riding in the rear seat of a motor vehicle has a much better chance of avoiding serious injury or death by wearing a safety belt than traveling unprotected.

Furr's take Rattlers

by A1C Dave Krajcovic
Physical Fitness Center

Oct. 25, the Reese Rattlers came up short against Furr's in Men's Varsity Basketball.

It was run and gun the whole game as Reese started the pace and kept it up the entire game. Furr's had a ten point lead twice in the game, but after Reese fought back, the leads changed constantly.

Being dead locked at 55 to 55 at halftime, the pace was expected to slow in the second half, but it was the give and go's and the fast breaks to continue the fast paced game.

In the final five minutes of play, Reese made crucial mistakes that cost them the game as Furr's kept running and getting the ball to the inside big men.

Reese missed several three-point shots in the closing minutes and had too many turnovers.

Even though Reese came up short, it was a great game and provided good experience for the upcoming games.

The final score was Reese, 107, and Furr's, 109.

The top scorers were:

Furr's	Pts.
Joe Johnson	33
Tony Chomelt	32
Don Nichelson	18
Reese	Pts.
Tony Chatmen	29
Al Miller	26
Steve Talbot	22

The General Protestant service at 11 a.m. is offered for those with a more "free church" background, and the Liturgical Protestant service at 8:45 a.m. is provided for people coming from background in churches with more liturgically structured services.

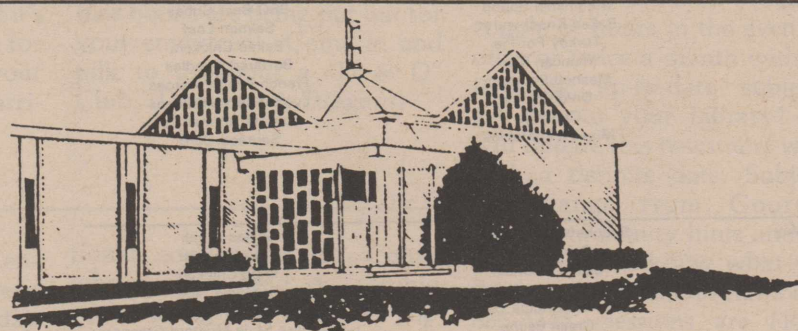

Please join us at either of these services, or our Catholic or Gospel services, soon!

Although no Jewish services are conducted at the chapel, we can provide information about local civilian services if you call the chapel office at 885-3237.

Special Events

The All Saints/Halloween Party is tonight at the Chapel, 5:30-7:30 p.m. The party is for the whole family. Non-occult costumes please. Supper, games and fun. Everyone is invited to attend.

In addition to our services on Sunday mornings, both Protestant and Catholic programs provide Christian education for all ages—preschool through adults. Remember, you never stop learning, or get to the point where their is nothing left to discover about your faith.

Weather

by TSgt. Mark J. Campbell
Det. 11, 24 Weather Squadron

Have you enjoyed the weather this past week? Maybe, there is some more of it to come for the next couple of days. The area has enjoyed very mild weather that has been cool and dry during the nights and warm during the days. This is the result of the jet becoming "zonal" across the mid portion of the United States. The term "zonal" is used to denote a straight line flow across a certain distance. When the jet does become zonal, and no front exists in the area, the area may usually enjoy fair weather. When the jet begins to wave back and forth over a certain area it has a tendency to enhance any system that is in the area and may create some serious storms. There is no threat of this occurring, at least for the next couple of days.

The weather should remain fair from Thursday and on into the early portion of the weekend. There may be a slight change by late Saturday. On Friday and early Saturday, the temperatures will remain as they have been the last couple of days.

The daytime highs will be in the mid to upper seventies and the overnight lows will be in the mid to upper forties.

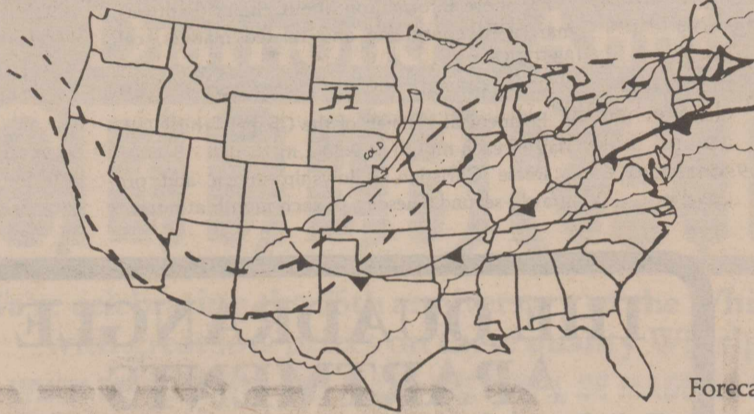

The winds will be gusty on Friday and Saturday afternoon and predominately from the south until late Saturday. This will keep the area dry during the the early part of the weekend.

On Saturday, there will be a weak cold front that will pass through the area. The wind direction will change and come from the north and this will cool the temperatures down by Sunday. For temperatures, the daytime high on Sunday should be somewhere in the mid sixties and the overnight low should be in the low forties. As far as precipitation is concerned, so far, the best chance for any is for rainshowers with the increase of cloudiness on Saturday.

There will be a slight chance for the rainshowers into the early part of next week and the temperatures will begin to get even cooler as another Canadian air-mass moves into the area by late Sunday and Monday. This air-mass should really cool things down. Temperatures at night will be in the thirties and the daytime highs will only reach to the mid to upper fifties and possibly into the low sixties.

Halloween night will be partly cloudy with a slight tingling chill in the air so dress the little trick-or-treaters snugly.

Have a good and safe Halloween from the Det. 11, 24 Weather Squadron.

* Excellent  Good
 Average * Poor

The Boy Who Could Fly (PG) ***

A cast of relative unknowns puts together good acting with a good story to produce a sentimental story about a young boy who lives in a world by himself and who spends his time sitting on his window sill pretending that he can fly. Toss in the new neighbor, the girl next door, who befriends the boy and tries to draw him out of his fantasy world. Can she do it, or can he really fly? Take along a friend or the whole family and find out.

Crocodile Dundee (PG-13) ***

From poachers to transvestites, this film has it all. Writer and star, Aussie Paul Hogan turns in a wonderful performance. This is a quick and witty adventure/romance that moves from the swamps and crocodiles to the fast life in New York. Newcomer Susan Koslowski plays the beautiful reporter that tracks Dundee down in the wilds of Australia and who convinces him to visit the wilds of New York City. Dundee proves to be as naive about the city as the reporter was in the wilds, but the two of them find common ground between them and romance blooms. This is a must see!

Jumping Jack Flash (R)  1/2

Bored with your office life? Not Whoopi Goldberg. She stumbles onto a plot to kill a government agent known as Jumping Jack Flash. Only she can save him, but can she save herself? At least her sterling performance is what saves this movie.

Peggy Sue Got Married (PG-13) **

At first glance this seems to be a knockoff of Back to the Future, but in fact this movie was in production well before the release of the previously mentioned hit. Kathleen Turner tries very hard to save this movie,

Sunday, "Cobra" Sylvester Stallone sheds his Rocky and Rambo guises for this fast moving, hair raising, police thriller and becomes the match chewing, tough-as-nails, unconventional cop nicknamed Cobra who works the L.A. zombie squad doing jobs, no other cop will touch—R.

Tuesday, "Cloak & Dagger".
