Readiness - A Way of Life

I recently received a letter from General Iosue with the same theme as above. He said, "(ATC) has come a long way - command readiness is at its highest level ever. But we have many challenges ahead to successfully fulfill our responsibilities and commitments. I urge your continued dedication and strong support in the ATC readiness role.

Reese is doing just that. Our wing-wide readiness efforts were in full swing last week with a practice Mission Capability Inspection scenario. It was a long, extensive exercise, from robberies and hostage taking, to mobility and dispersal, to attack response and sheltering. Results? "Satisfactory," according to LTCs Dane Morvant and Chuck Lutz, our BEET Chief and Readiness Division Chief, respectively. Put another way: we're on track, but not quite up to Reese standards. More ATTEN-TION TO DETAIL and a stronger SENSE OF URGENCY would have enhanced the overall effort.

However, we are (as we should be) our own toughest critics, and the results of this exercise tell me that by and large we have a solid readiness posture. Now let's fine tune it, so when the real MCI hits, we'll no doubt set the command standard.

P.S.—There were some truly exceptional performers during the exercise. MSgt. Jim Mirick, the Mobility Processing Unit NCOIC, took timely, key actions to avert some serious processing delays. 1st Lt. Marilyn Rucker, a troop commander for one of the hospital mobility teams, moved her troops around the base in groups of two or three to minimize exposure during a simulated advanced threat conditionthat's the kind of flexible thinking we're looking for. During a robbery exercise, A1C Dale Pritchard was completely in charge at the law enforcement desk-excellent control and handling of the situation. The flying squadrons impressed the BEET team with their overall support of aircraft dispersal actions. As always, Supply's "Mobag" section ensured that our people were ready to deploy on schedule. Finally, the base as a whole showed the best resource protection the BEET team has ever seen-especially tight was the Maintenance Building Security, 955. Don't mess with those maintenance folks-they take it SERIOUSLY.

Some Short Notes

• Of the 2.35 million active duty U.S. military members in the world, Capt. Dave Bernacki ranked second in raquetball in the 1986 interservice tournament in San Diego. If you play him in a 15 point game, make sure he spots you 14-and also wears a blindfold.

• The road around our Hq building was completed this week-a welcome addition. Thanks to our Contracts team and 1st Lt. Steve Kmiecik, CE's project inspector, for ensuring a quality project was turned over to the Air Force. I also noticed that "Baker Lake" was finally drained in front of the same building as part of the project.

 The O-Club just completed a sharp looking renovation on the entry to the main bar and dining room. Stop by and check it out.

· How many of you knew that our guest speaker for today's graduation ceremony for Class 86-05, Maj. Gen. Hamm, ATC Vice Commander, was a previous Thunderbird pilot? For those of you Hot-Off-The-Press-Readers, graduation starts at 10 a.m. and the seats go fast, so come early.

· As a test program, our commissary will now be open on Sundays, from 12 to 6 p.m., starting June 15. (closed Mondays and Tuesdays.) Though it's an obvious hardship for the commissary folks, I applaud their attempt to better serve the active duty military community. Hats

• The annual U.S. Savings Bond Campaign kicks off in June. Take a serious look at the many benefits of buying savings bonds. The wing project officer is Maj. Carey Reynolds, who has put together a super educational program. If you have questions and don't know who your unit savings bonds rep is, give Maj. Reynolds a call at Ext. 3847.

Pacer Wheels

This Wednesday, I got to pass out the first Reese Pacer Wheels awards for the sharpest looking and smoothest running vehicles at Reese. Competition was stiff, but when it came to cleanliness, operator care, and pride, two stood out. Top honors in the General Purpose category went to the Disaster Preparedness folks who've done a fantastic job maintaining our Mobile Command Post. Their Vehicle Control Officer (VCO) since 1984 is TSgt. Dennis Sebranek, who deserves a pat on the back. The Fuels Branch won in the Special Purpose category. The VCOs, 2nd Lt. Ron Gallagher and TSgt. Gary Dixon, have continued the outstanding operator care that helped make the Fuels Branch "Best in the Air Force." I can't list everyone here, but AS I SEE IT, every person who operates or maintains those vehicles shares the awards, and reflect the best of the Reese pride and professionalism. I'm sure the competition will be even tougher next quarter.

Your money's worth

By 2nd Lt. Ronald D. Taylor 64th Supply Squadron

"Charge it, please." America's favorite slogan. Credit cards, lease to buy, mortgage, when you must perform plasetc., are all great tools for the consumer-when used properly!

As a military member you may often find it easy to receive credit. Salesmen approach with open arms, selling their highly acclaimed wares to unaware consumers. "Easy terms, first payment not due until June."

The ease of obtaining credit, coupled with the availability of so many blinking gadgets to grab your attention makes it difficult to control the urge to expend beyond your income. The mass marketers and finance companies know how to get to the root of a man's soul: to tempt, praise, cajole, and sell. The strongest of wills is hard pressed to exit a department store unscathed, much less the weaker.

There comes a time in life tic surgery on your credit cards. However painful it may first appear, the beauty of a destroyed credit card improves with age.

For those that can't tolerate surgery I can only suggest a budget: see that what you spend does not exceed what you earn. Even on "easyterms", failure to apply the above rules can lead only to financial doom. Rampant, unchecked credit will eat you alive! One thing to remember by B. Franklin, "Creditors have better memories than debtors; and creditors are a superstitious sect, great observers of set days and times."

hen I behold the flag

By SMSgt. Jesus Tarin, Jr. 64 FTW/Supply

"We pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands. One nation under God, indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." Remember those words?

our class Back in school would stand up every morning and repeat the pledge of allegiance to the flag. In those days of my youth I didn't pay much attention to the meaning of those words. As the years went by I learned to appreciate the true meaning of the pledge.

The American Flag is the symbol of Freedom throughout the world.

What does the flag really mean to you, me, and the rest Home of the Brave." of Americans? To me, the flag represents the utopia of bravery, loyalty, and above all, freedom. When I behold the flag I am reminded of all the brave Americans who spilled their blood and made the supreme sacrifice to secure continued freedom for all Americans. I am equally reminded of all the Americans that now stand loyal to defend and protect the flag and the principles of freedom. Yes, when I behold the flag I am proud to be in the service of my country and to be counted among those who stand ready to defend and protect the precious freedoms of America. It's with tearful eyes that I behold my flag and am reminded of those eternal words, "Tis the Star Spangled Banner, O Long May it Wave O're the Land of the Free and the

Commander's column

We're in good hands

By Col. Ramon Broerman Deputy Commander for Maintenance

In these articles-I usually have something to say about our Reese team—this time a few words about our total Air Force team.

As I look from my vantage point of nearly 30 years' service, I've got to tell you that we're in good hands with our up and coming young folks. About three weeks ago, I was privileged to represent the Wing at the Texas Tech ROTC awards ceremony and to present one of some 31 awards given to the outstanding young men and women in that program. Among the awards, which were primarily for academic and military performance, was one for lifesaving-pretty impressive-one of the young folks had hauled a heart attack victim out of his car - and started the guy's heart again-not sure I'd have been that swift. Last Saturday night, I got to see 24 seniors of that group receive their commissions-after a stirring speech by Major General Favor which reminded the new officers of some things which tend to fade away in memory after this many years since my commissioning-things like "you serve as an agent of the President, at the pleasure of the President."

In the group - 12 of 16 of the Air Force graduates are headed to pilot or navigator training. All have met our competitive standards. One young man got up and offered a toast to his proud grandfather-who was present when the Armistice was signed-that's right-World War I. The enthusiasm is awesome. Over the last few months, I've gotten to meet a broad crosssection of our young officers as they report in to Reesefor pilot training and for support jobs-and I'm-impressed. My wife is in close contact with a lot of the spouses and she tells me she's never met such a bright, interested, and dedicated group. And that's not all, the NCO spouses are equally impressive as evidenced by their recent auction to make money for scholarships for yet another generation of outstanding young folks-and this goes on all over the Air Force.

Looking back-and being honest-I think I was a pretty good NCO, but I wasn't a patch on what we've got now. The folks who know management, pursue degrees, and still find time to support Special Olympics-Scouts-Little League-et al. And our young enlisted people-I've got a Junior Maintenance Council meets once a month behind closed doors - just the young folks, my senior chief and me. They've got every opportunity to take shots at anyone and everyone-and don't. I have yet to hear a single comment about a supervisor or the leadership. It's not because they don't open up-they do-on any and every subject that has to do with improving efficiency and doing things right. Their inputs are valuable, express genuine concern and they make things better for all of us.

I can't say enough about the quality of our young people-both those we've already got on board and those on the way in. They're super...and we are indeed "in

Small claims court outlined

By 2nd Lt. Jim Lovell

If you have ever watched the television show "The Peoples' Court," you may think you know all there is to know about bringing a small claims law, the Small Claims Courts lawsuit. However, Texas law and Texas Small Claims Courts are different from does not exceed $1,000. those of California.

A small claims suit is a civil action arising out of a private dispute between two parties. The person who has a grievnce-the plantiff-brings the action against the person he feels has committed the wrong-the defendant. In Texas, the relief sought by the plantiff must be the payment of money. For example, if your friend "borrowed" your television set and failed to return it, you should sue for the value of the television set. You could not sue to have the actual set returned to you. The maximum amount of money you can sue for in a Texas small claims court is $1,000. Claims in this range usually do not justify hiring an attorney. The defendant has the option of hiring an attorney if he so desires. However, this would not hurt your case. You may feel you have a small claims case against your landlord, a business establishment, a repairman, a coworker, or even a friend or relative with whom you have a dispute about money due or owed for loans, goods, or services.

The term "jurisdiction" means the power or authority of a particular court to hear certain types of cases against certain people. Under Texas has jurisdiction over all civil cases in which the amount

The Small Claims Courts of each Texas county have jurisdiction over all people who live and work in that county. Therefore, if the transaction between the plaintiff and the defendant takes place in Lubbock County, then it is a Lubbock County Small Claims Court which has the jurisdiction. However, if the transaction took place in another county or if the defendant requests trial in his home county (they have that right), the small claims clerk will forward your paperwork to the corresponding county. More complex questions concerning jurisdiction can be quickly answered by the county small claims clerk.

Before filing a claim, you should ask yourself three basic questions: Do I have a valid claim? Is is worth the time and expense? If I get a judgement in my favor, can I collect on it?

A guide to inform you on how to process your case is available at the Reese AFB Staff Judge Advocate's Office, as well as answers to specific legal questions.

Most of us will never have the opportunity to be present for the ceremony at Arlington on Memorial Day. However, there are ways to make Memorial Day really meaningful. First of all, we can spend some time in silent meditation thanking God for our fallen comrades in all the wars in which our nation has been involved. Freedom isn't really free. Every time we look at a National Cemetery we are reminded of the sacrifices made

Memorial Day is a National Holiday in most states. It is entirely appropriate to celebrate-good food, good fellowship, a time to reflect. Most importantly, however, it is a time to determine that those who died, did not die in

We dedicate ourselves to continue to keep freedom alive even if at some time in the future, we too, must make the ultimate sacrifice.

We can best celebrate Memorial Day by rededicating ourselves to preserving the freedom so graciously given to us by those who made the supreme sacrifice. God forbid that any one-of us allow any-

A tribute to the military spouse

By SSgt. Raymond W. Courville

A tribute to the Military spouse, Who makes a home out of a house; Who supports the mission, that's no surprise, But the one who's rarely recognized.

Our mission goals would all fall short, If we did not have their full support; Our partners true, through thick and thin, Who give us strength to fight and win.

So let us take the time today, To tell them what we mean to say; We thank them for all that they do, And that we truly love them too.

Help's always available - just ask

I recently arrived at Reese on a CHAP (Children Have Potential) assignment. My child's medical problem placed our family in a very tight financial situation and there are more bills to come. We live in Reese Village and we have two problems associated with that: we need to do our family laundry and cut the grass. Base housing doesn't come with washers and dryers or lawn mowers. Can we get washers and dryers in base housing? How about lawn mowers? Please let me know if you have any suggestions. Thank you very much.

First of all, be sure you let those in your chain of command know of your situation. They should always be given a shot at finding a solution. We used to supply washers and dryers in base housing stateside several years ago, but they got to be such a high maintenance cost item that they were phased out. Unfortunately, there are no future plans to provide those items in base housing.

Lawn mowers, on the other hand, are available from MWR Supply Bldg. 2107, on a daily rental basis for $3 per day. Lawn edgers run $2 per day and a variety of other lawn hand tools rent for 50 cents a day.

If you are experiencing financial difficulties, I'd recommend you contact the Personal Affairs Office in the CBPO at ext. 3643. They can

My friend was involved in an off base accident. The other party involved is also a military member but he did not have insurance on his vehicle. Aren't you supposed to have insurance if you drive a car on base?

I thought that was the agreement you sign when you register your car at pass and ID.

You're right on both counts. Our Air Force regulations require everybody who registers a vehicle on base to have proof of the necessary insurance.

The Education Center's newest program with Houston Community College will offer at least six courses during the summer term, June 2-August 22. The program offers classes in all areas of Aviation Maintenance Technology or Aviation management. Additionally, all classes are fully transferable to South Plains College for elective credit, and to the Community College of the Air Force for those holding aviation-related Air Force Specialty Codes.

Classes in General Aeronautics, Airframe Systems, and Powerplant Theory will begin on June 2.

Registration is now in procan be obtained from the representative at Ext. 3087, or from the Education Center, Bldg. 920, CBPO, Room 139, Ext. 3634.

Don't overfill dumpsters

With the coming of spring and vard clean-ups, there is an increase in rubbage. This rubbage-grass, rocks and dirt-is not supposed to be dumped in the dumpsters because its' density increases the weight in the dumpster. This increased weight makes the dumpster too heavy for the truck to pick up. On the first Monday of each month, the Civil Engineering dump truck picks up such refuse if it is piled neatly at a curb.

In Family Housing, grass clippings should be placed in a bag and set beside a dumpster. Any questions should be referred to SSgt. Richard Morehouse, Ext. 3929.

Summer Camp physicals given

On June 2-4 USAF Hospital-Reese will be offering appointments for routine summer camp physicals. These appointments will be for military dependents. Immunization records and any additional forms required by the camp should be brought in at appointment time. Appointments from 1-4 p.m. and can be made by calling 885-3245.

Contributions increase

The Federal Employees' Retirement Contribution Act of 1983 provided that 'post-1983' employees covered under the Civil Service Retirement System-CSRS-would be subject to a reduced -1.3 percent-rate of withholding. The reduced rate provisions have now expired and have not been extended. Therefore, effective May 1, withholdings from the salaries of affected employees must be made at the normal CSRS rate-7 or 7.5 percent as appropriate.

The Logistics Civilian Career Enhancement Program -LCCEP-is pleased to announce the 1986 open season registration starting June 1 through July 31. All GS-11 through GM-14 civilians in logistics related functions are encouraged to register in the LCCEP program. Additionally, civilians in the GS-7 through GS-10 Transportation field are eligible to be registrants only. The LCCEP program offers significant educational, career broadening and training opportunities in addition to having approximately 2,400 positions Air Force wide in the program. Increased mobility enhances your opportunities, but conversely, be sure to only register in the areas you are willing to move into for the grade level you indicate. Registrants already in the program should take this opportunity to review their career brief and geographic availability status. Contact your local LC-CEP monitor in the Civilian Personnel Office, Ext. 3804, for further information.

Personnel needed to retrain

The Base Management Engineering Team is seeking qualified Senior Enlisted Personnel to retrain in to the manpower management career field.

Personnel in the grade of E-8 or E-8 selectees are prime candidates.

This job is one of the few in the Air Force which gives the enlisted technician the responsibility of making major decisions that impact how Air Force manpower resources will be used. In this environment, the technician's career is limited only by his or her own creativity.

Applicants selected for retraining into this field will attend an eight-week course at Keesler AFB, Miss. Interested persons should contact 1st Lt. Frank Kelly or TSgt. Attention train buffs, the Michael Shafer, Ext. 3713.

Trainer delivered early computerized system developed by the Electronic Systems Division to train tactical weapons controllers and technicians has been delivered ahead of schedule.

The System Trainer and Exercise Module realistically simulates tactical air scenarios through computers, communications and display consoles. Missions such as aircraft interception, close air_ support, air refueling, reconnaissance, and search and rescue can be simulated to train tactical control and reporting center combat crews.

Delivery of the last of 15 STEMs completed a successful production effort during which GTE Government Systems Division, Needham, Mass., consistently delivered the modules about 30 days ahead

HANSCOM AFB, Mass. - A of schedule, according to Lt. Col. John P. Reitinger.

Colonel Reitinger attributed much of the success of the program to GTE's outstanding program management. 'Their open approach to problem solving has enabled us to treat potential program delays as routine problems," he said. "The STEM program has been a model of government-industry cooperation."

Since 1984, tactical air control units in the United States and Europe, as well as some Air National Guard units, have received mobile STEMs in a 40-foot trailer-truck van or freestanding version for classroom training. According to Colonel Reitinger, the mobility of the truck-mounted STEM is an added advantage, because it can be transported to different training sites.

"STEM saves the Air Force money every time it is used because we are training our controllers in a realistic setting that would not have been possible before STEM without putting aircraft in the air," said Colonel Reitinger.

The system combines up to 200 simulated hostile and friendly aircraft radar tracks with a live air picture taken from surveillance radars. Operators at eight pilot simulator consoles control flights and communicate with unit controllers over the same radio channels that would be used in an actual air exercise.

According to Colonel Reitinger, STEM satisfies a longstanding need for a modern simulation system for realistic training of tactical air weapons controllers and battle management supervisors.

The Association is closely involved with all elements of the Air Force through councils and committees to learn of the special problems and needs of the Air Force family. The AFA ensures that our civilian policymakers understand our concerns and do something about them. In the areas of pay, promotion, medical care, housing, and force modernization the AFA has been highly successful. AFA hears the needs of Air Force people, takes positions on those needs, and fights for 35-10 changes posted

The Air Force uniform board has approved more than a dozen uniform changes that will become effective later this month when a message change to Air Force regulation 35-10 is published.

Two of the most significant changes involving women allow dark blue nylons with the service and dress uniforms and a plain black leather, or simulated leather, clutch purse with all uniforms. The purse must be at least five inches by nine inches and must not have any exposed metal.

The board also approved the wear of brown T-shirts with subdued and camouflaged fatigues for men and women. The olive-green T-shirt will be phased out and white T-shirts, if visible, will not be

Other changes permit:

 Wear of plain white socks with utility uniforms and combat boots. However, during exercies and deployments white socks cannot be visible and must be covered by black socks.

• Wear of the men's nylon raincoat by women. Smaller sizes of the raincoat are now being developed for women, officials said.

• Wear of conservative round diamond earrings with the women's mess dress and ceremonial uniform.

· Optional wear of highly polished chrome badges and

• Wear of the gray beret by Air Weather Service parachutists.

• Wear of the white beret by members performing Honor Guard duties.

· Wear of flight suits off base for short convenience stops and eating at fast-food restaurants.

· Wear of the olive green authorized for wear with fa- sweater or sleeping shirt under fatigues.

> Wear of the dark blue utility jacket with dark blue fatigues. Enlisted members will wear chevrons on the jacket and officers will wear pin-on collar rank insignia.

stars on parachute badges by people who have performed jumps during combat.

· Additionally, the board restricted wear of the dental smock outside the dental clinic, and authorized dental officers to wear on the smock standard blue plastic name tags identifying them as doctors. Also, enlisted dental specialists will wear the metal grade insignia centered onehalf inch above the name tag on smocks.

that it will soon standardize the wear of chevrons or collar rank insignia and Air Force and name tapes for all fatigue uniforms, and no longer permit members to wear sagegreen jungle fatigues once the existing stock is depleted.

• Wear of a distinctive jacket by major command elite guard members and special mission people pending approval and availability of the newly designed lightweight blue jacket. · Wear of combat jump

The Reese area had a pretty tough time of it last weekend. Some precipitation was received but not near enough. What is needed is a change of quantity of winds for more rain. The winds peaked out at 40 knots on Friday night and kept above the 33 knot range for most of the night. The reason for the winds was the passage of a cold front that really developed itself as it moved closer to the Reese area. We had been experiencing warm temperatures prior to the arrival of the cold front. The air behind the cold front was quite cold and when that air . came into contact with our warmer air, winds of the nature that were experienced was the result. The rain came along with the front into our area. Houston received a considerable amount of rain because they already had moisture in their area resulting in the reintensification of the rainshowers.

The device gives physicians precise control over pressure, composition and volume of air, oxygen and mists to help newborn babies breathe.

For this weekend, the weather may be influenced by another Pacific front that has been producing significant winds in the southern California and Nevada regions. It does not look like there is very much moisture associated with this front at this time. By the time the front gets to the Reese area, which is forecasted to be on Friday afternoon, moisture from the south may interact with the front giving the Reese area a good chance for thunderstorms.

The winds are expected to follow along with the front. On Saturday, the skies will be cloudy and there will be a good chance of thunderstorms in the afternoon hours. The winds will be coming from the northwest on Saturday but the temperatures are not expected to get as low as they did during last weekend. On Sunday the front will be on its way out of the Reese area and clearing of the skies is expected at that time. The winds may not be as strong as they will be on Friday and Saturday and the temperatures will be on the rise. The weather trend for the early part of next week will be a warming trend with the threat of thunderstorms remaining in the area. Hopefully the rain will come and it will be received where it is

Savings Bonds good buys

DALLAS (AFNS)-Even though the six-month interest rate for series EE Savings Bonds has dropped, they are still a good buy, say treasury department officials.

The current rate, 7.02 percent, is down from 8.36 percent. Officials said the new rate is effective until Oct. 31. The rate changes twice a year to keep pace with other financial markets.

Officials emphasized that interest earned on series EE bonds is never less than 7.5 percent for bonds held five years. Bonds held less than five years earn interest on a fixed, graduated scale.

Savings bonds are not subject to state and local income taxes, and the federal tax is deferred until redemption officials said.

Bonds come in 10 denominations, from $50 to $10,000. The cost of any series EE bond is one-half the face value. For instance, an individual buying a $1,000 bond pays $500.

Series EE bonds are also easy to buy, officials said. They can be purchased at any bank or Saving and Loan office. They also can be purchased through payroll sav-

Fight for lasting freedom

By Gen. Andrew P. Iosue ATC Commander

It's a great privilege for me to be with you on this 150th anniversary of Texas Independence as we gather today to honor the defenders of the Alamo. But in a broader sense we do more than that, we honor all American military men and women who served and died in freedom's cause. Furthermore, it's appropriate to take that a step further and honor all who have died for our country.

There is a story told about Attorney General Robert Kennedy at an event shortly after the assassination of President Kennedy. It was a Christmas party at an orphanage in Washington D.C., and, as Kennedy walked in, the whole place became silent. Suddenly a little boy darted forward from the crowd and said, "Your brother's dead: Your brother's dead." Adults in the room tried to ignore it, and the little boy knew he'd done something wrong; but didn't know what and started crying. The attorney general picked the child up, held him close, and said, "That's all right, I have another brother."

Things like that story and this event make us revisit again and again that emotional place within ourselves that makes us aware of how fragile life really is.

Ralph Waldo Emerson wrote more than a century ago that great men and great nations have not been boasters and buffoons, but have been perceivers of the terror of life, and have had courage

A son, Neil Thomas, born to Capt. Troy and Marla Tabor. on May 6, 12:08 p.m., at USAF Hospital-Reese.

A son, Ryan Scott, born to Capt. Robert and Betsy Frost on April 27, 5:19 a.m. at USAF Hospital-Reese.

A daughter, Jessica Michelle, born to SrA. Daniel and Jodi Blake on April 7, 7:12 a.m. at USAF Hospital-Reese.

A daughter, Erin Nicole, born to 1st Lt. James and Anita Dodd on May 9, 1:41 p.m. at USAF Hospital-Reese.

Here at the Alamo, the men whom we honor today, 150 years after the event, were fully aware of the terrors they faced. Now, time has passed and wrapped around itself so that an entire nation faces terror. Facing terror is hard to explain, and difficult to control, because it is so filled with things we don't know, don't understand and can't predict.

within themselves to face it.

Stop and think about the Alamo; it's not so much the names, or the deeds, or even the memory, that stays with us from these dead heros of the Alamo, but it is very much a matter of spirit. And if these heros could speak to us, like the heros on both American sides of the Battle at Gettysburg; like the heros falling in flaming coffins in the sky over World War I battlefields; or the heros at Bataan in World War II; Heartbreak Hill in Korea; Khe Sanh, An Khe...the list goes on and on.

And those American heros from all those hot wars and all those cold wars...if they could speak...there'd be a simple message. Don't worry, I have another borther. It's all right, I have another borther who understands and shares my spirit, and will be there to fight and die if necessary.

Recently, two Air Force captains were declared dead after their F-111 was downed in a strike against Libyan terrorism. Though not of same flesh and bloods as the de- make things right.

fenders at the Alamo 150 years ago, they rate in our regard as the direct, lineal spiritual descendents of the men we are honoring today.

Our cause is as right and as necessary to defend now as it was 150 years ago, or as it was in my home state of Massachusetts in 1775 when a correspondent named Isaiah Thomas reported the Battle of Lexington. He wrote, "The public most sincerely sympathizes with the friends and relations of our deceased brethren who sacrificed their lives in the fighting for the liberation of their country. By their nobel intrepid conduct, they have endeared their memories to the present generation who will transmit their names to posterity with the highest honor.'

In other words, don't worry, America's heros will always have more brothers. They always have; they always will, and it is as the spiritual brothers and sisters of the dead of the Alamo that we gather for this ceremony.

We say in honor of them, as we pledge to memory of the soldier filled in a disco in Berlin...or the little American baby killed in Greece...or the sailor horribly murdered on a peaceful air trip...or those two captains who died during the strike against Libyan-sponsored terrorism...don't worry, we are not forgetting. Don't worry, you have another brother who will fight to

Resolving the POW/MIA Issue

By Donna Bolinger American Forces Information Service

Of the more than three million Americans who served in Southeast Asia, 2,436 are still missing or unaccounted for. Their families and friends wonder, day in and day out, year after year, when - or if they will hear if their loved ones are dead or alive.

Among those waiting is retired Air Force Lt. Col. George Shine, whose son, Capt. Anthony C. Shine, disappeared more than 13 years ago.

The elder Shine, a veteran of World War II and the Korean War, received word on Dec. 2, 1972, that his oldest son's jet fighter had disappeared over Laos.

Since that day, his life has become one of waiting and hoping, and, as a board member of the League of Families of American Prisoners and Missing in Southeast Asia, helping to keep the issue of America's missing alive.

Shine said he is particularly encouraged by recent progress in resolving the POW/MIA question.

The Socialist Republic of Vietnam pledged in July 1985 to resolve the POW/MIA issue within two years.

Richard L. Armitage, assistant secretary of defense for international security affairs, recently reported to Congress the developments since then:

☐ The Socialist Republic of Vietnam has turned over 33 human remains, 29 of which have been identified as Americans and returned to their families.

☐ The Vietnamese government provided the results of their investigations into 49 of 70 reports relating to missing Americans. Based on these investigations, 21 remains 10 tentatively identified as Americans and 11 unidentified were expected to be returned this spring.

A joint U.S.-Vietnamese team excavated a B-52 crash site near Hanoi. This represented the first operation of its kind, and while the excavation uncovered only minimal human remains, it opened the door to possible future joint operations.

A joint U.S.-Lao excavation of a U.S. crash site in February 1986 uncovered human remains, now undergoing analysis.

☐ Four representatives of the Lao People's Democratic Republic attended briefings at the U.S. Joint Casualty Resolution Center and Army Central Identification Laboratory in Hawaii in September 1985 to learn about U.S. search and identification capabilities.

Armitage told Congress top priority in this effort goes to determining if some Americans are still being held in Southeast Asia.

All but 112 reports of live sightings of Americans have been determined to be fabrications or reports of men who have been accounted for. These 112 cases, which involve 86 reported sightings in Vietnam, 24 in Laos and two in Cambodia, are under continuing investigation in an attempt to confirm the information, Armitage said.

These reports, he said, give the United States hope that some missing Americans may still be alive.

'We continue to seek the return of, and any information on, all Americans that may still be held in Indochina, regardless of their status, condition or circumstances," he said. "We seek not revenge, not retribution — but resolution."

And resolution of the POW/MIA issue, defense officials agree, appears closer now than ever before.

"It is clear to me that our strategy is working, and we must maintain and increase this momentum," Armitage said.

As encouraging as this momentum may be, historians caution that, as in past wars, some of America's missing may never be found. They note that 78,751 Americans from World War II are still recorded as missing, as well as 8,177 from the Korean War.

Reese AFB, Texas

Thirty-three graduate pilot training

By 2nd Lt. Bart Klein and 2nd Lt. Steve Ragland

On June 4, 1985, fifty-six men passed through the front gate of Reese with one goal in mind—to learn to fly. The graduating members of Class 86-05 may have mastered the art of flying, yet the past year has not been easy for all. Many of the original fifty-six washed out of the program, but our numbers have been rejuvenated by the fate of classes before us. Together we all have succeeded.

While we were more than willing to strap on a jet after in-processing there were those who knew otherwise and began the task of preparing us for the many hours we would be airborne. Long slumbersome days were spent in classroom lectures and instruction. At last, the day arrived when our intrepid group of aviators marched down to the 35th Flying Training Squadron to begin the T-37 phase of training.

The T-37, affectionately known as the 'Tweet', is a unique training machine with the capability of turning jet fuel into noise. Nothing in life had ever prepared us for what we were to experience. Quickly, we found out how little we actually knew and how susceptible we were to intimidation during morning stand-up EPs. Then came the day we stalled, looped, and spun the mighty Tweet towards the ground before returning home to practice overheads. Yes, nothing could beat the fun of going into the air for 1.3 hours of constant humiliation. During this phase our numbers began to diminish at such a rate that many wondered if we would not all be listed as casualties.

We left T-37s two feet taller and with a new vocabulary to dazzle our friends and families: Fizzle, Fuzzy, Ping, Hose your Buds, Cludo, Sierra Hotel, Colt, Peak, and Pogo, along with our newly acquired nicknames (Hamburger, Doc, Jungleman, Wags, Rodney D, Deadman, Rags, Stangeek, the Bomb, the Big Ace, and Dot). It didn't take long to realize that the T-38 was exactly like the T-37...Well, at least both had two wings, two engines, and one of those guys who beat you severely about the head and shoulders. Down the street we learned about new concepts like blowers, variable landing speeds, G-suits, and 2 mile loops. Formation provided us thrills for us and required our instructors to invest in Grecian formula.

The Class also discovered a new phenomena in the Rocket. Call it the red dot club, the sunset group, or whatever you wish, but the hooks began flying like a sunny afternoon at the lake. At times you weren't anybody unless you were on SMS.

Then it came, the tears and cheers of assignment night. The cheers from those who received their first choice and the tears from those who didn't. (Remember—there's no such thing as a bad assignement!) Regardless of the assignment, we are each happy to be wearing the wings of an Air Force pilot. We have traveled far in our journey for wings, but our journey does not end here. Whatever the mission, we must strive to be the best Air Force pilots possible, as the true history of Class 86-05 will be determined by its future success. Fly Safe!

Maj. Gen. Hamm to speak at graduation

Maj. Gen. Charles R. Hamm

Major General Charles R. Hamm is vice commander, Air Training Command, Randolph Air Force Base, Texas.

General Hamm was born Dec. 23, 1933, in Little Rock, Ark., and graduated from Kemper Military School, Booneville, ;Mo., in 1951. He graduated from the U.S. Military Academy, West Point, N.Y., in 1956 and received his master's degree in political science from Auburn (Ala.) University in 1969. The general has completed the Air Command and Staff College in 1969, at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala., and the National War College in 1972, at Fort Lesley J. McNair, Washington, D.C.

After completing pilot training at Malden Air Base, Mo., and Laredo Air Force Base, Texas, in August 1957, General Hamm attended F-86 gunnery school at Williams Air Force Base, Ariz. In February 1958 he transferred to Nellis Air Force Base, Nev., for gunnery training in F-100s.

From May 1964 until January 1966, General Hamm was a member of the U.S. Air Force Air Demonstration Squadron, the Thunderbirds, at Nellis Air Force Base flying the left wing position with the team. He was next assigned to Tan Son Nhut Air Base, Republic of Vietnam, in March 1966 as aide to the 7th Air Force commander. From July to November 1966, the general was a flight commander with the 416th Tactical Fighter Squadron at Bien Hoa

Air Base, republic of Vietnam. While there he flew 103 combat missions.

In August 1969 General Hamm was assigned to the Air Staff at Headquarters U.S. Air Force, Washington D.C., as a staff officer for the assistant chief of staff for studies and analysis. In June 1970 he became the assistant executive to the chief of staff of the Air Force.

July to November 1966, the general was a flight commander with the 416th Tactical National War College, gradustighter Squadron at Bien Hoa at Ing. in June 1972. He then served as deputy commander for operations, 4th Tactical Fighter Wing, Seymour Johnson Air Force Base, N.C. from June 1972 to June 1973.

In March 1976 he served a second tour of duty with the Air Staff. General Hamm was appointed deputy director for readiness development in the Office of the Deputy Chief of Staff, Plans and Operations.

The general is a command pilot with more than 3,700 flying hours. His military decorations and awards include the Defense Superior Service Medal, Legion of Merit, Distinguished Flying Cross, Bronze Star Medal, Meritorious Service Medal with one oak leaf cluster, Air Medal with four oak leaf clusters, Air Force Commendation Medal and Combat readiness Medal.

He was promoted to major general April 1, 1984, with date of rank Sept. 1, 1980.

General Hamm is married to the former Jane Strawn of Little Rock, Ark. They have two children: Charles Jr. and Rebecca.

grity is demanded of us

By Lt. Col. John F. Mauss Clark AB, Republic of the Philippines

Many years ago, I found myself in the unenviable position of flying a large, slow airplane while another man chased me in a small, fast airplane equipped with guns and mis-

This was not an exercise, but real life, and the memory is still vivid for me. I took the only option available and dove toward the relative safety of the mountains below, where we would be masked, I hoped, from our pursuer's radar. This maneuver involved its own dangers and I asked my crew for nice to know information like, "How high are the mountains?"and "How fast can we go before the wings come off?"

Unfortunately, one of my crewmembers didn't answerhe was off interphone, putting on his parachute. He was performing the action he felt most increased his chances of survival. His reasoning, under the circumstances, was fairly logical although I thought, highly disloyal.

This leads me to the point of the story. What this crewmember lacked was integrity. The rest of us depended on him and he wasn't there when we needed him. We might have paid dearly for his lack of integrity.

Some professions demand more of their practitioners than simply showing up at the appointed hour and doing a job to an acceptable.standard.

Congressional cuts undermining readiness

WASHINGTON D.C. - Congressional budget cuts are already having a dramatic impact on America's defenses as Air Force officials confirm an erosion in retention rates among pilots and Non-Commissioned Officers.

Air Force studies show that pilot retention rates have fallen from 72% in 1984 to 59% in 1985. Mid-level NCO continuation has also fallen off substantially.

To stem this downward trend and maintain combat readiness, the Air Force needs to recruit 66,900 enlists ed personel and more than 3,900 officers, costing in excess of $3.5 billion at a time when the General Accounting Office (GAO) and Chairman of the House Armed Services Committee Les Aspin are calling for cuts in manpower.

Cited for causing decreases in retention is the recent military Cost-of-Living Adjustment (COLA) freeze and Congressional pressure to change the military retirement system and discontinue the New G.I. Bill.

"Continued Congressional changes to military pay and incentives are forcing service members to seek job stability and comprehensive benefit programs from the private sector," stated Rudy Clark, director of Government and Military Relations and lobbyist for the Air Force Sergeants Association.

Obviously we expect a high level of integrity from our ministers and priests - we rely on them to provide spiritual guidance which forms our morale fiber, strengthens our part of us we call our souls. You've probably guessed by now that I include the profession of arms in the company of those from whom we demand the highest standards of integrity.

If you fly, as a crewmember or passenger, you are trusting the integrity of hundreds families and ministers to that · of people. Did the flight exam-

In today's world of international terrorism, the battlefield is not so sharply defined. We are all soldiers, regard-

But more is asked of us for other reasons as well. We are charged with defending our national way of life-A truly awesome responsiblity.

We must bring a total commitment to our jobs. If we fail, the penalties are far more serious than red ink on the bottom line of the corporate report. The nation demands integrity from us. (Courtesy of PACAF News Service)

The women's varsity softball team split a double-header with the Cannon AFB, N.M. women's varsity team, Sunday, at Cannon AFB. Reese won the first game 18-3, and dropped the second game 13-11.

Cannon's Roadrunners went down one, two, three in the first inning of the second

The Rattlers' first two hitters both flied out, but Lori Cabasag singled. Kim Hudak walked, and then Kim Wall's hit to second enabled Cabasag

The top of the second was a repeat for the Roadrunners, and it looked as though Reese would go down one, two, three, but Bobbie Johnson hit a grounder to short and made it to first. Vickie White scored a run on errors bringing Johnson home, giving Reese a 3-0 Cannon's Kim Tate singled. Ginger Harris' single sent Tate sprinting to third and just making it by sliding. Viv Van Etten brought Tate home and advanced Harris to se-cond, giving Cannon its first run of the game.

Reese's Lisa Ronfeldt started off the bottom of the third with a hit to left field, and made it to second on an error. Cabasag's sacrifice fly to left field enabled Ronfeldt to score, making it 4-1.

Scoring five runs in the top of the fourth, the Roadrunners leaped from behind beginning with Cindy Sonich's single by Carol Browning loaded the bases, and a double to left field by Nancy "Scoop" Caravana drove Sonich and Kuchar home, making it 4-3.

Julie La Cross' single brought Browning and Caravana home, giving the Roadrunners a 5-4 lead. Harris' single moved La Cross to third and Van Etten's single to right field brought La Cross home. Cannon took a 6-4 lead.

Reese quickly regained the lead as they loaded the bases, and Jennifer Williams' sacrifice scored Wall who was on third. White picked up two runs batted in, and Laura Lautzenhiser walked.

With White and Lautzenhiser on second and third, Ronfeldt singled bringing White home, making it 8-6. Lori Padgett doubled and Cabasag brought them both home with another double, making it 10-6.

Sonich sparked another scoring drive by making it to third on an error, and Candis Frederick brought her home with a double to left field. Kuchar's grounder to left field brought Frederick home, making it 10-8.

Dorothy Kinney's hit tied the score by bringing Browning home and Tate's hit to center brought Caravana and Kinney home. Cannon led 12-10. Harris brought Tate home by hitting a single, giving the Roadrunners a three-run lead.

Wall started off the bottom of the fifth by walking and Sandy Folino followed her by walking too. Georgia Phillips hit to Caravana at third and she tagged Wall on her way to Williams hit to Caravana and she tagged Folio at third, preventing another possible run. Johnson walked and with two outs, White hit to Jennifer Hopkins at second and she tagged Johnson at second.

Reese scored its last run of the game as Padgett scored from second on Hudak's hit to center. With bases loaded, White hit into a force play at third and ended the inning.

Though Cannon had two on in the seventh, the Roadrunners couldn't bring them home. The Rattlers could only get one batter on in the bottom of the seventh before the
