

Blacks Blast Seymour In Opener Friday

Blacks of Haskell County blasted a combination of offensive power and defense in the game of the week when they defeated the Seymour Panthers in a non-conference game Friday.

The wet field which had been the cause of the game being postponed to Friday, gave the Blacks a prelude to a pregame in flashing runs. James Brown, a 40-yard TD, and a 40-yard TD by Sammy Larned, and Joe Thigpen, the senior for the eve-

Cancer Center Workroom Now In Hotel Bldg.

The Cancer Center workroom, formerly located in the Barnes Building on the west side of the square, has been moved to new quarters in the Hotel Haskell Building, in the space formerly occupied by Christine's Beauty Shop. The move was made necessary because of planned remodeling of the west side building.

New quarters in the hotel building were made available through the courtesy of Stanley Furrh who has the hotel under lease. The new location is admirably suited for the work center, and also affords more parking space.

Workers are needed at the Center each Thursday afternoon and all women who will help are urged to come as often as possible.

Farm Tractor Demonstration Being Planned Here September 22

A Tractor Demonstration in which all local tractor and farm equipment dealers will take part, has been scheduled Saturday, Sept. 22, on what is known as the old Jaeger Farm one and one-half mile west of Haskell on the south side of the old Rayner Road. The farm is owned by Clay Smith and B. C. Chapman.

The demonstration is being arranged by the agriculture committee of the Chamber of Commerce.

Tractor dealers will have tractors and farming equipment which will be demonstrated throughout the day.

All local tire dealers who handle tractor and heavy equipment tires have been invited to have displays at the demonstration.

It is possible that other heavy equipment for dirt moving, tank and terrace building, etc., can be brought here and demonstrated.

Tractor dealers who are co-operating in plans for the demonstration include the following: John Deere, Farmall, Allis-Chalmers, Ford, Case, Minneapolis-Moline.

Further details concerning the day's program will be published next week.

All residents of Haskell County, old and young, are being urged to avail themselves of the Sabin oral vaccine against polio to be given Sunday in a county-wide program sponsored by Haskell Jaycees with the cooperation of all physicians in the county.

Through this program health authorities hope to eventually stamp out the dreaded disease, which knows no age limits. A supply of the vaccine sufficient for 11,000 persons has been ordered and will be dispensed at stations set up in Haskell, Rule, Rochester, O'Brien and Weinert.

The vaccine is easily taken and will be given in a small sip of distilled water. It is safe for all ages, from six weeks up.

There will be no charge, and no one will be denied the vaccine. However, cost of the program will be approximately 25c per person, and to cover this expense there will be a contribution box at each station where donations can be left.

The vaccine will be given during the hours from 2 to 2 p. m.

In Haskell, the dispensing station will be in the courthouse corridor with entrance through the east door.

In Rule, Rochester, and O'Brien the stations will be located in the school lunchroom at each place, and in Weinert at the community center.

Transportation
Persons desiring transportation to and from the dispensing centers should call the Sheriff's office in Haskell, and the High School in Rule, Rochester, O'Brien and Weinert.

Tanks and surface ponds were filled to overflowing, and run-off sent Lake Stamford on Paint Creek to a record high and threatened to flood The Anchor, headquarters building on Scott Memorial Park at the lake.

Monday, level at the lake stood at 1416.75 feet above sea level, with almost three feet of water pouring through the lake spillway.

At The Anchor, Mr. and Mrs. Randy Ballard reported that rising waters lacked only about four inches reaching the building. By Wednesday morning the level had dropped an estimated six inches as water poured through the spillway.

The Haskell County program coincides with similar immunization projects scheduled Sunday throughout a wide area of West Central Texas extending from Abilene northward.

Wayne Preston of Quanah, owner and operator of Preston's Foodliner store in Quanah and a large food store in Altus, Okla., has purchased Bradberry's Super-Save food store in this city, established two years ago and owned by Bud and Wanda Bradberry and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bradberry.

Change in ownership of the popular food store was effective the first of this week.

There will be no change in the policy of the store which will continue in operation under the name of Bradberry's Super-Save for the time being.

However, the new owner plans a Grand Opening for the store within the next few weeks in observance of the change of ownership and management.

In announcing sale of the Haskell store, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Bradberry and Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bradberry said: "We wish to thank everyone from the bottom of our hearts for the wonderful association and friendship we have found here in Haskell for the past two years. Our store has been purchased by Wayne Preston of Quanah, Texas, and we feel that the store will progress superbly under his ownership. We wish him all the success and happiness in the world. Again we want to say 'Thank You' for your patronage and friendship."

Conquering Time and Space

Near the end of June, 1939, 22 passengers filed aboard a flying boat at a Long Island pier. Some 5,000 spectators cheered and a brass band played. The plane, capable of the then notable speed of 150 miles an hour, took to the air. Just under 30 hours later it reached Marseille, having gone via the Azores and Lisbon.

This was history's first transatlantic flight of paying passengers. The international air age was born.

Pan American World Airways operated that flying boat, named the Dixie Clipper. A short time ago another Pan American aircraft, the Jet Clipper America, soared off from New York's International Airport, bound for London and Frankfurt, and then on around the world to San Francisco. The American, with a capacity of 161 passengers, cruises at about 600 mph. This particular flight was Pan Am's 100,000th across the broad Atlantic. But it was just one of the 204 transatlantic passenger flights the airline operates on clockwork schedules every week. Since the Dixie Clipper's flight, Pan Am has carried 3,590,000 passengers across the Atlantic.

It has been only 23 years since the Dixie Clipper made history. In that brief span, time and space have lost the greater part of their past significance.

People, Places & Things

By A. PATE

The J. M. Crawfords believe and practice the oft-heard suggestion for giving "flowers to the living" and carry this out in their every-day life as many Haskell people can attest.

A card to the Free Press from the Crawfords reads: "This is just to say we enjoy your 'Prattle' and 'People, Places and Things' but this week we 'put ne'er' fell off our chair when reading them. Accept our thanks for good columnists."

Also comes an interesting and complimentary letter from French M. Robertson, Abilene oil man attorney, and University of Texas regent, a former resident here.

He writes that Bob Edwards' comment in a recent column about early-day Weinert recalled many facts he remembered firsthand while living in Haskell and Weinert. Because we believe it will be of interest to people of this section, his letter will appear in another column when space permits.

Sgt. Frank Jirick of the State Highway Patrol was confronted with a new angle the other day in making an arrest.

Sheriff Garth Garrett had received a call about a disturbance created by a group of drunk Mexicans at a farmhouse near Sagerton, and Sgt. Jirick accompanied him to the scene.

As the sheriff's car was seen approaching, members of the drinking party who could still navigate, scattered.

Too "soused" to make their getaway were two women and a man, all Mexicans.

Sgt. Jirick took one of the women in tow, while Sheriff Garrett took over the other Mexican woman and man.

Sgt. Jirick's "customer" started remonstrating, wanting to know if the officer "had permission" to arrest her, and demanding to see the "permit" for her arrest.

Almost too drunk to walk, the women slipped in the mud and fell. Told to get up and go to the officers' car about 50 yards away, the woman stubbornly refused unless shown the "permit" for her arrest.

A man who doesn't argue, Sgt. Jirick took hold of the collar of the woman's dress and started dragging her to the car. Seeing that the officer meant business, the recalcitrant drunk partly stumbled and fell the 50-yard distance to the officer's car. Arriving at the county jail, the woman still wanted to know who gave "permission" for her arrest.

"First time in my life I was ever told I had to have a 'permit' to arrest a law violator," Sgt. Jirick commented wryly as he attempted to scrape most of the mud from his uniform.

In the early development of this section an "inland" town without a railroad had little future.

Building of railroads sparked the settlement and development of vast areas and the coming of a railroad into new territory was an event of the first magnitude.

Oldtimers say that when the Wichita Valley Railroad built into Haskell, the coming of the first train was the occasion of a big celebration.

Whether true or not, one yarn is told in connection with the first train into Haskell that is worth repeating. Virgil Hudson, Wayne Perry, and possibly others, might be able to vouch for its authenticity.

Huge crowds had gathered at the "depot" to welcome arrival of the first train.

As it rolled to a stop, the engine was soon surrounded by "inlanders" attracted by the escaping steam from the driving boxes, and smoke boiling from the stack.

The engineer and firemen were besieged with questions, as they walked about the engine with long spouted oil cans, oiling and wiping grease from the engine.

Then after the trainmen had climbed back into the cab, the engineer leaned out his window and called out to the crowd surrounding the engine: "All right, folks, please move back now and give us plenty of room, we're going to turn around."

The crowd dutifully backed up a safe distance to await the maneuver, as the engineer and firemen convulsed with laughter over their joke on the "inlanders."

Although Haskell was one of the oldest established towns in this part of the State, the first permanent settlers having come here in the late 70's, it was not until 1907 that the town secured a railroad.

This, despite the fact that pioneer citizens worked diligently to secure a railroad, offering land and cash bonus to the first rail line into the area.

Then, after the Wichita Valley started building from Wichita Falls to Abilene, all was not smooth sailing.

Some landowners objected to the railroad crossing their land, necessitating court procedure and condemnation proceedings.

In one instance physical resistance occurred, with a strong-willed landowner defying surveyors and grade builders to enter his property, until a court order forced him to give in.

Then, when the line was built and the first train scheduled over it, the man's wife entered the picture.

Early on the morning the first train was due, the woman took a shotgun with her and sat down squarely in the middle of the track.

As the train approached, the engineer whistled, but the woman stayed put. When the train rolled to a stop, members of the crew tried to reason with the determined woman, but she ordered them to keep back.

Word was sent to Sheriff J. W. Collins at Haskell. Sheriff Collins had had his eye on a young cowboy as a potential deputy, and he saw this as an opportunity to try out the young man.

He summoned the cowboy, the late Al Cousins, told him the situation and asked if he could handle it.

Cousins, who later was to become one of the area's best known peace officers, allowed as how he could, and took off for the scene, on horseback.

Arriving, he calmly walked up to the woman, spoke politely and remarked, "I imagine you're tired of sitting there, ma'am, let me help you up," as he took her arm firmly.

Without a word, she arose, with her shotgun in one hand, and accompanied the young officer as he led her from the track and the railroad right-of-way.

Then, after waving the train crew to go ahead, the young cowboy mounted his horse and rode back to Haskell.

Thus began the career of Al Cousins as a peace officer, a career which he followed with a few interruptions during the remainder of his lifetime. In subsequent years he served two terms as Sheriff, as an officer in several larger cities as well as locally, as an assistant warden of the State Prison, and turned down proffered appointments as a Deputy U. S. Marshal, and as a Texas Ranger.

It now appears that early-day records cornerstones of the jail now being done be a "water haul." Brickwork has been from above the cornerstones, and there be no more that block of stone on lettered the year of built and names of judge and coming the time. So, a matching Eastland horned frog which years in the courthouse cornerstones, a Bible, etc. will have great historical value.

Along this same list of Austin school which was placed cornerstone of the building at Austin when in 1888.

He is Albert Eng Haskell Courtland, that school was in the cornerstone of the Capitol, and that children marched res Avenue to state money.

From A Pastor's Study

By DOUGLAS B. FINCH
Pastor, First Presbyterian Church
Haskell, Texas

Mr. Finch has been on vacation, and his copy was not turned in last week in time for the publication deadline. Therefore two of his columns appear in this issue of the paper.

There are many words in the Old and New Testaments which have been transliterated instead of translated from the original Hebrew and Greek languages. The word "Adam" in the Old Testament is one such word. It has been transliterated into a proper name. If it had been translated from the Hebrew, it would read "mankind." The same is true of the word "Eve." The word would have been translated "life." The study of the Bible in the ancient and original languages is one of the most wonderful experiences of my existence. It greatly increased my love and esteem for the Holy Writ.

The same transliteration process has taken place in the New Testament. The word "baptism" is an example. If the word had been translated from the original Greek instead of transliterated it would read either "immersed," "dipped," "cleansed," "washed," "dip oneself," "plunge," "sink," "overwhelm," and other meanings in both Christian and non-Christian literature. Transliteration is a process of anglicizing a word which is either so broad in meaning that it is difficult to find a suitable word for translation, or it is so obscure that the correct translation is hard to come by. In the case of "baptism," it is most likely the former. In other words, there are no English words which adequately describe the act of baptism. It is understandable when we realize that the act of baptism as we know it in our limited understanding is an act of God which escapes our full comprehension.

If we were to try to arrive at the meat of the matter in Romans 6:3 and 4, for example (which reads: "Do you know that all of us who have been baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into His death? We were buried therefore with Him by baptism into death, so that as Christ was raised from the dead by the glory of the Father, we too might walk in newness of life.") we would have our comprehension enhanced by reading it: "Do you know that all who have been immersed into Christ Jesus...?" or "Do you know that all who have been cleansed in Christ Jesus...?" The little Greek word translated "into" (the same word used when Christ went "into" the water) can also be translated "in," "Toward," "to," "in the vicinity of," and "near." (plus others). To be immersed into Christ is an experience which is almost indescribable. It means for us that we are united with Him in heart and will and mind. It means that we have become ingrafted into Christ. It is a natural development of the imagery which Christ used of himself as the vine and of us as the branches. The phrase "in Christ" is a favorite one of Paul's and its significance cannot be too narrowly or rigidly defined. But Christians die with Christ (i. e. they die to their old life and existence) and are raised again to a new life. It is by the grace of God that such new existence comes to man, and there is no contribution that men can make except to respond to the love of God and to walk in the newness which he gives us.

The tense of the Greek verbs indicate that the believer has already been united with Christ in a death like his, but that the living with Christ is still in the future. This suggests that salvation is essentially a hope—although a hope already beginning to be fulfilled, for Paul says in Romans 5:5 that "hope does not disappoint us, because God's love has been poured into our hearts through the Holy Spirit which has been given to us." This out-pouring of the Holy Spirit is essential to the cleansing in Christ, without which it is ineffective.

The essential fact about the believer is that he is no longer "in Adam" (i. e. a "natural man") but is "in Christ" (i. e. a "spiritual man"). Thus Paul can speak of the Church of Christ as those who have been baptized (or immersed) into Christ. Our literalism too often plays havoc with the real meaning of the Holy Scriptures. May God bless us all in our stumbling efforts to lay hold of the eternal verities.

From A Pastor's Study

Pastor, First Presbyterian Church

Persons who seek to alleviate and banish from our thinking some of the factors which cause disunity among the various Christian Churches certainly find common cause with the Apostle Paul. In most of his letters he is setting himself to the often discouraging task of trying to remove some of the old practices which the new Christians insisted on hanging onto. It appears very evident that the matter of baptism was a problem for Paul, especially in the church at Corinth. We need only read the first chapter of I Corinthians to realize that his situation and concern was not much different from ours today. Our problem today is that some persons try to take Paul's words out of their proper context, give them a literal interpretation to suit their own prejudices and preconceived notions, without making an effort to understand what the Germans call the "sitz im leben", i. e. the setting in life... the actual conditions under which the words were originally written. Only so can we really understand what Paul was trying to say to a particular situation at a particular time in history. Only by such understanding can we make an honest application of the Scriptures to the problems and concerns of our day. Our failure to be this exact and honest with the Scriptures is the reason we can prove anything by the Bible as the old saying goes. Unfortunately, the old saying is true!

The Bible speaks to every age of mankind... but it does so only as we first make an effort to understand what it was saying to its setting in life. One thing more needs to be said about Paul. He was a peacemaker, not a controversialist. Yet, in this role he stirred up more beehives of resistance than any other Bible character.

Paul himself was concerned with the fact that people still looked for salvation through some ritual or practice that men might perform. This again was obviously his concern with the Corinthian church. The church there was evidently divided into little factions. Baptism was certainly one of the problems.

What Paul is trying to say is that it is Christ who baptizes people. We would have to object, as Paul himself objected, to those who would state that salvation is not possible without the man-conducted act of immersion in water. It is immersion in Christ... or cleansing or washing by Christ... an act that only Christ can perform, that saves. This is why we say that we should not confuse form with reality. It is Christ who makes baptism valid—never men.

Baptism is holy and hallowing, though we have yet to see why and how far. It bears witness to the living Christ, and to the fact that God in Christ makes a man his child, regardless of his age, and a member of His covenant, calling a man to life in His Church. Baptism testifies to man that this event is not his fancy or his decision, but is objective reality which no power on earth can alter or make valid and which God has pledged himself to maintain under all circumstances. It testifies to man that God has directed all his words and works toward him and does not cease to do so. Baptism is an act in which man is never the most important figure... but is always the second most important figure.

One does no honor to baptism by interpreting it as if it were no more than the representation of sacred history... doing it one way or another because the primitive church did it one way or another. What is important is what comes to pass between God and man.

The power and potency of baptism consists in this... that as an element of the church's message, it is a free word and deed of Jesus Christ himself.

We would not make light of any church's method of baptism. We recognize (and so does the Bible) that all forms are valid. We would only ask that Christians look upon the real meaning and not the method. The power of Jesus Christ, which is the only power in baptism, is not dependent upon the carrying out of baptism. This was Paul's message. Many of us have perpetuated the error Paul was trying to correct instead of his message of correction.

Baptism is the seal, the sign, the copy, the symbol of our redemption wrought in Christ. It is no more the cause of our redemption than is our faith or our decision. The meaning and intention of baptism is the glorifying of God in the building up of the Church of Jesus Christ through a pledge given by God to man... not man to God. A man can even grow in his baptism... even as infants do... in the process of sanctification. It requires of man that he walk in the newness of life which is purchased for him by the sacrifice of Jesus Christ on the cross.

If we think otherwise, then our God is too small... and our men are too big!

Three Explorer Scouts Attend National Conference in Michigan

Three Haskell County Explorer Scouts, Barry O'Neal, Eddie Hester, and Brent Davis, attended five days of activity at the First National Explorer Delegate Conference on the campus of the University of Michigan. All parts of the nation were represented at the conference which began on August 26 and was the first of its kind.

During the conference, the Explorers had an opportunity to participate in 54 skill events covering the fields of social citizenship, vocational service, physical fitness, and outdoor skills. The events included such activities as music, square dance calling, oratory, safe driving, electronics, art, first aid, marlin spike seamanship, swimming, gymnastics, and a loggers' field meet.

An "explorador" was one of the many features of the conference with several hundred outdoor demonstrations of exploring in action. In the skill events O'Neal competed in the archery contest, and Hester competed in the oratory on citizenship, and Davis had a humorous reading skit. Davis came out first in the semi-finals, and fourth in the finals.

The Haskell trio left Austin at 7:15 on Aug. 23 after meeting other boys there and took a chartered bus on to Little Rock. Forty boys represented the Southwest Range Contingent. They spent their second night at Scott Air Force base at St. Louis, Mo. In Springfield, Ill., they toured Lincoln's home. In Chicago the boys went on a planned tour of the city by the Gray Line Sight-seeing Co., to include: The Museum of Science and Industry, Chicago Museum of Natural History, and Shedd Aquarium. The group stayed at Ann Arbor, Mich., for the next five days—studying, discussing and competing in sports and activities. Hester studied marksmanship and firearms; Davis studied Philmont Scout Ranch and medicine; O'Neal studied medicine and visit to another country. The conference was planned by a committee composed of Explorers elected from each of the 12 regions of the Boy Scouts of America.

Principal speakers were: Donald W. Douglas Jr., president of Douglas Aircraft Co.; Dr. Walter Kerr, a minister and youth authority; Dr. Warren Guild, a medical doctor, marathon runner and humorist; and Joseph A. Brunton, chief scout executive of the Boy Scouts of America.

At the end of the conference, a tour was made of the Henry Ford Museum where they saw outstanding examples of early American Art and Antiques. In the Mechanical Arts Hall, they saw 175 beautifully restored antique automobiles, full-sized locomotives, historic airplanes, old carriages, plows and much more, arranged to tell the unparalleled story of American industrial progress.

In the outdoor museum of Greenfield Village, which covers 200 acres, they strolled along shaded lanes and saw early shops, stores, Thomas Edison's Laboratory, the Court House where Lincoln practiced law, the Wright Brothers Shop. They also visited the Ford Engine Plant and Ford Steel Plant, where they saw the processes of making sheet metal. After leaving Ann Arbor, they took a tour to Windsor, Canada. They stopped next at

USDA Cotton Classing Office Opens in Munday

To give cotton farmers in this area more convenient and faster classing service, the U. S. Department of Agriculture has opened its Munday cotton classing office. Operating now for the fifth season, the Munday cotton classing office serves 31 gins in Baylor, Haskell, Knox, Jack, Throckmorton and Young counties.

A. D. Peebles, who has been with the cotton division of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service for seven years, is in charge of the Munday office again this season.

During the peak ginning season, the Munday office has facilities for classing about 2-500 bales per day.

Cotton is classed without cost for farmers belonging to organized Smith-Doxey cotton improvement groups.

Farmers who know the grade and staple of their cotton are in a good position to get the best market price for it.

"That is why farmers in this area have nearly all of their cotton classed by USDA," Mr. Peebles says.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS ON ORAL POLIO VACCINE

Q. What are the advantages of oral polio vaccine over other types?

A. The ease with which the vaccine can be given—by mouth, instead of by an injection needle, is a big advantage.

Another advantage is that this oral polio vaccine provides what doctors call "intestinal immunity" against polio. Thus, unlike some other polio vaccines, the individual is not only immunized against polio by being provided with antibodies in his blood, but he is also less likely to be a carrier of the disease, and therefore may not transmit it to other unimmunized people via the digestive tract.

Q. How is the vaccine administered?

A. The vaccine is taken orally from paper cups or—if a concentrate is used—on sugar cubes.

Q. Are there any harmful after-effects, such as fever or slight illness, as a result of taking the vaccine?

A. Oral polio vaccines have been administered to millions of persons, with little or no after-effects directly attributed to the vaccine.

Q. How does the vaccine work?

A. After it is swallowed, the vaccine particles multiply in the digestive tract to work building up what doctors call "antibodies". These are what provide protection against polio.

Q. How long does immunization from polio last after a person takes the vaccine?

A. Experts believe it will give you long-term immunity against polio, similar to that provided by smallpox vaccine, which needs a booster dose only every three or four years.

Q. How long after a person takes the vaccine does it become effective in providing immunity?

A. From two to three weeks.

Q. Can a person contract polio as a result of taking the vaccine?

A. No. Even though the vaccine includes live polio virus (in a very weakened form), there have been no confirmed

"Hut" Hutson Lions Speaker; District Governor to Visit Here

"Hut" Hutson, well-known West Texas cartoonist, and lecturer, spoke to members of the Haskell Lions Club Tuesday noon, and illustrated his very interesting talk with caricatures and cartoons.

President Al Hinds was in charge of the program, and introduced the guest speaker. Hutson used as his background the cartooning practitioners from the 1880's to the present. He told of the creators of symbols and characters that have shaped our nation politically and economically.

The guest speaker expressed his own opinions as to the basic reasons why some famous Americans were presented in caricatures more often than others.

"The constructive thinking of several cartoonists resulted in political clean-ups as well as wildlife conservation through the capacity to expose the existing situations without hate toward the individuals involved, resulted in correcting favorably the practices," Hutson said.

It was Mr. Hutson's theory that the facial characteristics of the famous people contributed greatly to the publicity given the individuals in their various fields by the cartoonists.

"The place cartoon reporting played a part in forming public opinion in the past and present, along with the adaptability of cartoons to every phase of human relations," Hutson said.

The guest speaker pointed out that education, religions, sports, politics and advertising since cartooning is actually the expression of an idea, in as few lines as possible, and the simplicity make clear and attractive attention getters, contributing to our amusement and information. Hutson pointed out.

A short approach to animated cartooning was displayed in closing the program, and Hutson answered several questions of Lions pertaining to his subject.

Rev. Douglas B. Finch, pastor of the local Presbyterian Church, was introduced as a new member, and Buddy Herren was a guest at Tuesday's session.

Pilot Schools Of Region VI Elect Officers

An organizational meeting for the Pilot Schools of Region VI was held in Weinert on the afternoon of Sept. 5. Superintendents Connor Horton of Rule, Moody Galbreath of Girard, Oliver M. Barker of Valley View (Wichita County), Douglas Myers of Weinert, and Wayne Hales of Newcastle were present. Also present was Charles Bitters, of the Texas Education Agency, who is the state co-ordinator of pilot schools.

All officers of the organization were re-elected: Connor Horton as chairman; Wayne Hayes, vice-chairman; and Miss Jessie Vick, Haskell County Supt., as recorder; with Mrs. Mary Abbot, Weinert teacher, as assistant. It was announced that the services of Dr. Dickerson, head of the Department of Education at Midwestern University, had been secured as consultant for Region VI.

Programs for the year will be planned by a committee of two teachers from each school, with Mr. Hales as chairman. This committee will meet at Rule on Sept. 20 at 10:30 a. m. to plan the year's activities. All teachers will be asked in the meantime to indicate the type of program they think will be most useful.

All teachers from the pilot schools will be urged to attend and the time has been set at 6:00 to 8:00 p. m. At least some of the meetings will be divided into study groups, and sessions will be planned specifically for school board members.

Mr. Bitters announced that there are now 58 pilot schools in the state program—all of them high schools that are attempting by various experiments to improve the quality of instruction and increase the number of subjects offered. This is the third year of the proposed five-year project.

Salvation Army Aids 175 Persons In Haskell County During 1962

(This is one of a series of articles on agencies participating in the Haskell United Fund Budget for 1962-63. Purpose of the series is to better acquaint the public with the work being done by United Fund agencies.)

THE SALVATION ARMY
An unheralded but vital service provided by the Salvation Army is hospitalization for unwell mothers-to-be at one of the Salvation Army's Home and Hospitals in San Antonio or El Paso.

These are dramatic examples of three of many services of committees working through the Texas division of Salvation Army. On less spectacular, but equally important levels, Service Unit Committees work quietly from day to day, meeting the needs of cases in their community which may not fit into other locally established welfare programs.

Among their emergency and supplementary welfare services are food and lodging for transients; financial assistance in cases requiring medical, dental, ear and eye aids and minor surgery; shoes, clothing and lunches for needy school children; and occasionally, temporary assistance in meeting rent, utility and grocery bills for a local family.

Regulations regarding government assistance to the homeless on county, state and national levels, require a residence period of one year in Texas and six months in the county. Because the Salvation Army does not have this residence requirement, they are almost unique in the field of the care of transients.

Many Persons Helped
Jimmy Turner, chairman of the local Service Unit Committee has furnished information to the effect that the Haskell Salvation Army Service Unit Committee cared for 35 transients during the past year. Transient travelers, which included individuals and family groups, were given 12 meals, and lodging was provided for one.

A member of the Haskell

United Fund, the committee also furnished three pairs of shoes and five garments. Groceries were provided for 125 persons, and transportation for 19.

In all, the Salvation Army aided 137 persons in Haskell in 1962, and 172 in Haskell County.

One of County's Early Farmers Dies at Stanton

Death of an earlyday Haskell County farmer occurred recently at Stanton, Texas, in the passing of John Atchison, 95.

A native of Illinois, Mr. Atchison moved to Comanche County, Texas in his youth. Mr. Atchison moved his family to Haskell County in the early 1900's and lived here until 1907 when he moved to Martin County and was a pioneer farmer there. He later served as County Judge for two terms.

He is survived by two sons and eight daughters. Also surviving are 50 grandchildren and 150 great and great-grandchildren.

VISIT PARENTS

Colonel and Mrs. Lee J. Stewart and daughter, Jo Ann, of Fort Monroe, Virginia, have been visiting in the home of Mrs. Stewart's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Maples for the past several days. While in Texas the Stewarts also visited Colonel Stewart's mother, Mrs. Aura Stewart, and other relatives in Temple. Jo Ann, after graduating from high school in Hampton, Va., has enrolled as a freshman in Baylor University, Waco, and will commence classes this week. She is living in the new dormitory for girls which has just been completed at Baylor.

Breaking of Traffic Laws Easily Becomes 'Habit,' Rotarians Told

Violation of traffic laws can easily become a habit, and does with many motorists, members of the Rotary Club were told Thursday by R. C. Smith of Wichita Falls, district safety education director for the State Department of Public Safety.

Mr. Smith, a member of the State Highway Patrol for six and a half years, said that most persons considered themselves "good citizens who believe in law enforcement." But to see many of these people in a car on the highway, he said, "you would think they had never heard of traffic laws."

Crash Kills Nine
"At first, a motorist finds it convenient to barely slow down at a stop sign," the speaker explained. "Nothing happens, he doesn't get a ticket, and soon he develops the habit of ignoring the stop sign altogether. He doesn't realize the sign is there."

The speaker told of a recent traffic tragedy in which nine persons were killed, which resulted from just such a situation. One motorist involved had been "running" a stop sign at the wreck scene for years, he explained.

"If you are unfortunate enough to receive a traffic ticket, remember that the officer is trying to save your life - he is trying to prevent what might be a fatal accident," he advised.

2,314 Killed in Texas
The speaker pointed out that 86 per cent of all accidents involved violation of traffic laws, leaving only 14 per cent resulting from mechanical defects, blow-outs, weather conditions, etc.

In Texas last year there were 324,000 traffic accidents in which 132,500 persons were injured and 2,314 killed. Economic loss from the wrecks amounted to $677 each minute during 1961, he said.

The speaker was introduced by Henry Withers, substituting for program chairman Dixie Maltzberger who was out of town.

Members gave Rotarian Tom Roberson a rousing welcome on his return to the club after being out several weeks due to illness and surgery.

Bob Herren led the singing, with Mrs. Ruthie Withers pianist.

Out-of-town guests present Ralph Sunday of Abilene, Jim Scott of Fort Worth and Hollis Haynes of Stamford.

WASHINGTON AND "SMALL BUSINESS" BY C. WILSON HARDER

Millions once laughed as Fibber McGee's catchall closet door opened to spill the helterskelter mess hidden inside.

While causing no mirth, today's Fibber McGee closet is becoming the Social Security system; the catchall for vote-seeking politicians.

This is a reason 77% of the nation's businessmen, voting through the National Federation of Independent Business, disapproved additional Social Security taxes for aged hospital care.

C. W. Harder

By 1969, if no further frills are added, the combined SS rate paid by employers and employees will be 9 3/4%. Rep. Herlong has introduced a resolution for a constitutional amendment to freeze the maximum permissible tax at 10%.

While this measure is probably better than no limit at all, there is a question if the limit should not even be lower.

SS tax increases poses an economic paradox apparently obvious to all but to the socialistic element of lunacy along the Potomac.

Every time the employer half of SS taxes are raised, labor cost increases. This increases his costs and prices at a time when inflation at home, non-competitive pricing abroad, are pointed out as grave national problems.

Yet, a strong case can be made for SS benefits for employees. Millions of employees, either unable or unwilling to make provisions for their future, are thus kept from being eventual burdens on society. In addition, that part of their earnings paid in SS taxes is not being spent now on goods, increasing inflationary pressures. Thus, employee contributions are anti-inflationary, while employer taxation increases inflation.

It also seems obvious that a pool of employees would find majority hearty in favor of Social Security. They would say it is good for them, a point of view which is logical.

Thus, why is it not logical for employees to pay entire amount for their future security payments. After all, employers are not expected to pay half their fire insurance, auto insurance, other life insurance.

In fact, if the employees of the nation were permitted to vote in a nationwide referendum, on the subject, there could be interesting results, especially if it were made plain and clear that from that point on, the full Social Security tax would be paid by the employee. It is quite possible that the employees of the nation would vote an even higher tax on themselves to finance larger benefits.

But continual increases in SS taxes on employers is merely increasing inflation, eroding through higher prices the benefits that employees expect to receive. Actually, if politicians were honest employees would undoubtedly realize that instead of Peter being robbed to pay Paul, Paul is being hijacked, too.

respect for one's self. Good manners spring from kindness, call out gentleness, make for unselfishness.

Good manners are the outward signs of inward grace. Life must be shared, nobody can live, or does live alone. We must know that life is linked to life throughout the world, and also must know that anything we get in this world has to be paid for in terms of human experience, of friendship, of hate, of helpfulness, or hindrance, or joy, or sorrow. Those who love their neighbor as themselves are essentially good mannered people. Who is your neighbor?

Experts say that most accidents happen in the kitchen, but wise husbands eat them anyway.

It is said that Noah's Ark was built of gopher wood. That must have been the kind of wood I was using the other day. Every time I would drive a nail into it, the blasted board would split and I would have to (go-fer) another piece of wood.

Just as I swore I would quit using puns, I read where a Judge sent a girdle thief up for a long stretch!

I have no fear but what the 1962 Indians will go a long way in district play, for this year Haskell has the coaches, the team and the spirit and this scribe believes that barring accidents, or some unseen catastrophe, the Indians will go!

What makes a winning football team? There are a number of things which enter into producing a sound and solid club. Of course there has to be a certain amount of material... the school and town must be behind the team... but most important of all are the coaches. Haskell is fortunate in having such men as Ray Overton, A. J. Viertel, Carlos Berry, David Middleton and Bill Blakely.

Do unto others as you would have them do to you. Good manners stimulate good character because they express consideration for others and

An exasperated father quipped to his somewhat unambitious son, "When Abraham Lincoln was your age he was splitting rails" to which the son replied: "Yes, Dad, and when Abe was your age, he was President." So, you see, you certainly got to get up early to get ahead of today's youth.

Today's Food for Thought: All work and no play may make Jack a dull boy... but then on the other hand, all work and no play does make "Jack."

I often hear the expression: "The early bird gets the worm" but would someone please inform this scribe what the worm gets?

For most of us, life is what we make it. But for some pedestrians, it's IF we make it!

IT REALLY WAS: Making my rounds Friday afternoon, County Clerk Bill Reeves quipped: "Say, Al... it's too wet to plow." The old saying used so frequently, definitely held true at least for this time, following more than 7 inches of rain received here.

Children Bitten By Squirrel Get Rabies Shots

Three teenage children of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hodge are taking anti-rabies shots after being bitten last week by a squirrel the children had caught.

Taking the shots are Nancy, 17, a senior in Haskell High School; Hazel, 16, a junior, and their brother, Harold Jr., 14, a freshman student this year.

In catching the squirrel, which they believed was a pet, all three children were scratched and bitten by the animal. Later the squirrel was killed and its head sent to Austin for examination when it was feared it might have been rabid.

Although no definite report could be made due to condition of the head, anti-rabies shots were recommended as a precautionary measure. The trio began taking the shots Saturday.

New Gin--

Ease of operation permits the suction operator to pick up a lock of cotton from the ground, or skim across the top of a 12-foot-high trailer load of cotton with the delicately balanced suction lift.

The plant is equipped with all new machinery throughout, all operated from a central control panel located near the center of the building.

At present, there are three stands, with space allotted for installation of a fourth stand later if needed. Each stand has a maximum capacity for ginning four bales of cotton per hour. It is estimated that at the peak of the season the gin can easily process an average of nine bales of cotton per hour. This is almost double the capacity of the former plant, which had a maximum capacity of five bales per hour.

Lint Cleaners, Dryers

Each stand has two Lummas lint cleaners through which the cotton passes before reaching the stand.

Other equipment includes two dryers of the latest type, making possible the processing of cotton regardless of moisture content, an air line cleaner, and even-flow equipment to assure a steady flow of cotton to each stand.

All of the machinery is designed to thoroughly clean the cotton of all trash and foreign particles before it is baled.

Final stage of processing comes when the cotton reaches the automatic dual press, where it is compressed into bales, wrapped and baled. The two-bale press permits continuous operation, with one bale being tied out while another is being compressed.

An automatic sampler operates in connection with the press, taking a sample from each bale which is neatly wrapped. This eliminates cutting into the bale after it is ginned to secure a sample.

Central Control Panel

Each unit of machinery operates independently, under control of the central panel. If trouble develops at one unit, operation of all other equipment continues unaffected.

Thirty-four individual motors are required to power the plant equipment, and they develop a total of more than 700 horsepower.

Only part of the former gin which still will be in use is the large cotton seed warehouse, a sheet metal structure located south of the new plant. Operation of the new gin
