

Audit to be reviewed in public hearing Friday

A report on the audit that has been recently conducted into county governmental operations will be made public in a 5:30 p.m. Monday, Jan. 15, public meeting in the 132nd District Court courtroom, on the fourth floor of Scurry County Courthouse.

Accountants from the national accounting firm of Coopers & Lybrand will be present to discuss their report and answer questions from the public, District Judge Gene L. Dulaney said Monday.

Three Coopers & Lybrand accountants from Lubbock and Oklahoma City finished their work in Snyder during the week after Christmas, and Dulaney had said that their report would probably be written within two weeks after that.

He said Monday that no details of the report will be released prior to the meeting, which will be conducted as a public forum.

Coopers & Lybrand accountants Steve Kern and Terry Nix from Lubbock and Daniel Winders of Oklahoma City will be present to discuss their report and answer questions from the public, Dulaney said.

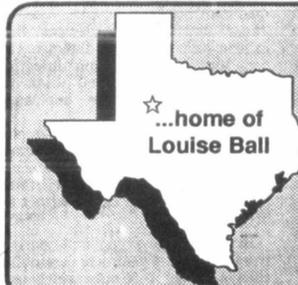

Saying that he wanted to learn if there were any more ways in which the county government might save money, the judge announced in October that he was interested in having an operational audit performed and would order a preliminary audit. An operational audit focuses on the overall operational scheme of a governmental entity.

The accountants recommended that they be allowed to perform a full-scale audit following their preliminary examination of county records and interviews with various county officials and officials of county-affiliated operations.

County commissioners objected to the audit, they said, because it was unnecessary and because of its cost, about $22,000.

They said they had been told that four areas of the auditors' interest would be the county-owned Cogdell Memorial Hospital, the hospital's agreement with the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, the Board of County Development and the county airport.

City Council passes ordinance to restrict Austin Ave. parking

City councilmen Monday night passed on first reading an ordinance that would restrict parking on the east side of congested Austin Ave. adjacent to Snyder High School to one vehicle in front of each residence. After a lengthy discussion, Councilman Ralph Williamson moved to have a 20-foot parking space centered between driveway curbs, with a 10-foot space painted yellow back from each curb to the parking spaces.

City legal consultant Ernie Armstrong noted that the action would reduce the number of parking spaces on the street from 38th St. to 40th Sts. from 26 to 13. Williamson's motion passed by a 3-to-1 vote, with members Vernest Tippens and Jack Green Jr. voting with him, Joe Coronado voting "no" and Paul Zeck abstaining. Councilman Mike Thornton was absent. Mr. and Mrs. Max Williams of 3732 Austin had appeared at last month's council meeting with a petition they had organized from 10 of the 13 homeowners along the contested area, seeking a total prohibition of parking on the east side of the street from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. on weekdays.

The Williamses argued in favor of their petition again Monday, while one of the opponents, Rick Hopper of 3728 Austin, offered general comments on the subject. The Williamses contended that high school students who park in the newly restricted areas will simply ignore parking citations from city police, as they have in See CITY COUNCIL, Page 8

Columbia blasts off

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Space shuttle Columbia rocketed into orbit today on a daring 10-day mission to chase down and bring back a satellite as big as a bus before it falls to Earth.

The 115-ton winged spaceship lifted off with a crew of five at 7:35 a.m., riding a 700-foot column of flame out over the Atlantic on the start of the second-longest shuttle flight yet.

Two minutes after liftoff, the two solid fuel booster rockets burned out and dropped away on schedule, and the shuttle continued toward orbit under the thrust of its three liquid fuel main engines.

Skies were partly cloudy as tens of thousands watched the start just after dawn of the 33rd shuttle mission, during which the astronauts will put a Navy communications satellite into orbit on Wednesday and retrieve an 11-ton orbiting science laboratory on Friday.

"We have liftoff. A decade of spaceflight begins," said Lisa Malone, launch commentator.

The flight is the first of 10 shuttle missions planned in 1990 as NASA continues its recovery from the Challenger explosion that killed seven astronauts four years ago this month.

Liftoff was three weeks behind schedule, delayed last month by launch pad problems and on Monday by low-lying clouds. The launch was timed to put Columbia on the orbital path followed by the satellite the astronauts are tracking.

Commander Dan Brandenstein and pilot Jim Wetherbee will guide the shuttle through a series of intricate maneuvers to close in on their quarry, which has been orbiting the Earth for nearly six years.

In Brief

Tests planned

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The world's first recipient of a heart-liver transplant, Stormie Jones, is undergoing tests at Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh.

The 12-year-old girl was in serious condition today, three days after being admitted, said hospital spokeswoman Margy Buczynski. Doctors were awaiting the results of a liver biopsy, expected later today.

Stormie, who lives in the Fort Worth suburb of White Settlement, has been treated off and on over the past six years for mild episodes of organ rejection. Last year, she began receiving a new Japanese drug known as FK-506 that is believed to be 50 to 100 times more powerful than the anti-rejection drug cyclosporine.

Two eruptions

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Mount St. Helens had its biggest volcanic outburst in nearly four years and Alaska's Redoubt Volcano had its largest eruption since it reawakened nearly a month ago.

Despite Mount St. Helens' eruption and renewed earthquake activity, scientists said Monday they do not believe the volcano is entering a more explosive phase.

Seismic levels rose Monday afternoon at the Washington volcano for unexplained reasons and continued to increase and subside for about three hours, said Chris Jonietz-Trisler of the University of Washington Geophysics Center.

WTC trustees...

Athletic programs probed

Western Texas College board of trustees, noting athletic expenditures of $227,524 and revenues of only $27,329 last year, discussed ways to turn the program around — from boosting attendance to discontinuing some sports — in their monthly board meeting Monday evening.

No action was taken, but trustees indicated their desire to have figures broken down by sport so that they might study each individually. It was pointed out that the rodeo program, which has some 50-60 students, may be carrying too much of the overall load. Intercollegiate athletics at Western Texas consists of men's and women's basketball, men's golf and rodeo. Also discussed were the golf shop and golf course.

Dr. Harry Krenek, WTC president, opened the discussion by noting that five other athletic programs in the conference were studied and "ours are the lowest paid coaches and athletic director of all of them. Our (coaching) staff has done everything we've asked them to. They've tried to recruit locally and regionally. I don't believe we can cut our budgets anymore and compete in this region."

Krenek also said he believes Western Texas College has the "finest coaching staff" since he came to the college, two years after it opened.

He also pointed out that the men's basketball budget is actually $13,000 less than it was in 1984-85. The budget for the women's program is up only $4,000 from that school year while the golf program is up by $700.

Following discussion which centered around the lack of attendance at basketball games, Trustee Roy Baze noted, "I think the basic question is do we keep it or don't we? This is an educational institution, not an athletic institution. The students don't support it. Why keep it? We can't ask the coaches to take less. In fact, I think they are due more than they've got."

Trustee Bob Hargrove, a long-time supporter of WTC athletics, said he was not in favor of dropping sports.

"As far as I am concerned athletics are the showcase of the college. If we didn't have them...we would start resembling Hardin-Simmons University. Hardin-Simmons dropped football and lost a lot of national exposure...Now they are getting back into football and I can understand why. That's your showcase," Hargrove stressed.

"As far as $100,000 or $150,000 out of a budget of $6 million, that's pretty small," he added. "In my mind those (sports) are not the showcase," countered Baze. "The showcase is we are See WTC, Page 8

Grand jury indicts 6 on felony counts

County grand jurors indicted six people on felony charges Monday, including two men accused in recent stabbings.

Daniel A. Perez, 29, of 2011 Ave. K, was indicted in connection with the Christmas Day stabbing of Frank B. Alarcon, 49, of 2707 Ave. L.

Both men were hospitalized with stab wounds following the incident in the 2000 Block of K, and the panel passed, or declined to act this month, on a possible aggravated assault charge against Alarcon.

Gerardo Luna Jr., 17, whose address was unavailable because he had not been arrested, was ordered to stand trial for aggravated assault in the stabbing last Friday of 21-year-old Kenneth Kenly of 2007 Ave. N.

Kenly was still hospitalized to day at Cogdell Memorial Hospital, in good condition with a wound in his left abdomen.

The incident took place about 10:40 p.m. Friday in the 2000 Block of N. Gale E. Bly, 44, of 202 Birch St.

was indicted for indecency with a child in connection with an alleged Dec. 9 fondling incident involving a girl younger than 17 years of age.

Mark A. Cullins, 37 of Coleman, was true-billed for possession of a controlled substance, less than 28 grams of methamphetamines, on Dec. 2.

Steve B. Rose, 17, of 2506 Ave. C was indicted for burglary of a habitation in connection with an alleged Nov. 5 break-in at the home of Sally Perez.

Brent A. Hinshaw, 30, of 4515 Garwood Ave. was indicted for felony DWI in connection with his Nov. 30 arrest on the charge.

In connection with a Dec. 1 incident in which one Hermleigh man shot another's expensive sheep, grand jurors passed on a possible theft charge against Jim Townsend and declined to indict him for criminal trespass. Townsend was reportedly hunting when he shot a sheep belonging to Hermleigh area rancher Weldon Beck.

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "One good thing about mistakes—pointing them out gives people something to do."

1990 is a census-taking year for the U.S. government, and an accurate count is said to be important for such things as political redistricting and spending of federal funds, etc.

The Census Bureau has an on-going effort to collect data, and we suspect it would dismay most to learn what Big Brother already knows.

Recently published is a 956-page edition of the Statistical Abstract of the U.S. What it reveals is that Texas has more people than all but two states and has grown by 27 percent in the past eight years—the eighth fastest in the nation. By the year 2000, Texas is expected to surpass New York and become the nation's second most populous state.

There are 16.9 million Texans, but 81 percent live in metropolitan areas. By the turn of the century, there will be 20 million of us. A lot of those 20 million will be native Texans. The birth rate in the Lone Star state is fifth highest in the nation—18 births for every 1,000 people. Of those births, 15.2 percent are to teen mothers and 17.7 percent are to unwed mothers.

Texans live just about as long as the average American with an average lifespan of 73.6 years compared to the national average of 73.8. Hawaiians live the longest, 77 years. But it has nothing to do with warm weather as Minnesotans rank second, living an average of 76 years.

In Texas it's easier to get a lawyer than a doctor. There are 165 doctors for every 100,000 residents, below the national average of 205 doctors for every 100,000.

But in Texas, there's a lawyer for every 410 people while the national average is one for every 360. Lawyer heaven is Washington, D.C. where one of every 22 people has a law degree. Guess who's paying for all those lawyers...

Gunman surrenders...

5 hostage children released

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Saying he was tired and hungry, a 30-year-old gunman who held five children hostage in a barricaded apartment gave himself up after a 14-hour standoff with police.

Authorities said the standoff started early Monday after police went to the man's northwest San Antonio apartment just after midnight to quell a domestic dispute.

The man, Gabriel Herrera Jr., 30, was armed with a shotgun.

Police negotiated with him periodically by telephone and with bullhorns.

"It was a slow process, but it was successful," deputy Police Chief Robert Johnston said after the man surrendered about 2:30 p.m. and released the children unharmed.

One shot was heard inside the apartment during the standoff, but that occurred when Herrera dropped the shotgun and it accidentally discharged, according to Sgt. Paul Buske, police spokesman.

Herrera was charged with aggravated assault and possession of a prohibited weapon. He was ordered held in the Bexar County Jail in lieu of bonds totaling $110,000 following an arraignment before Night Magistrate Quon Lew.

All of the children taken hostage were related to Herrera, police said. They included a 9-year-old son and an 18-month-old son, a 9-year-old niece and two nephews, ages 10 and 11.

Johnston said the man made several demands, but finally gave up and said he was tired and hungry.

"Whenever you're negotiating, it's a matter of give and take," the deputy chief said. "He just wanted us to kind of leave him alone, but that was not going to be the case."

About 11 a.m., Herrera handed over two children — the 9-year-old niece and 10-year-old nephew — to police in exchange for a pack of cigarettes, authorities said. He held the remaining three children until he gave himself up.

At one point officials said they heard the sounds of furniture being moved and said it appeared to be an attempt to form a barricade near one of the apartment doors.

Officials encourage seatbelts to be used

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — The Texas Highway Department is appealing to drivers' curiosity in a campaign to persuade Odessans to use their seatbelts.

The department is erecting 24 traffic signs that are partly obscured by a black panel emblazoned with a white question mark. The upper third of the 18-by-24-inch sign reads: "7090."

The lower two-thirds of the new sign is hidden by the black panel. The sign was the idea of Highway Department spokesman Richard Phillips and a traffic engineer who want 70 percent of Odessans to comply with the state seatbelt law the end of 1990, Phillips said, explaining the meaning of "7090."

Next month, during National Child Passenger Safety Week, the rest of the sign will be revealed to say: "Buckle Up Odessa."

According to a 67-city study by the Texas Transportation Institute of Texas A&M, 48 percent of Odessans obey the law that requires drivers and front-seat passengers to use seatbelts. In Odessa's sister city of Midland, the figure is 70 percent, according to the study.

Odessa passengers and drivers had the fifth-lowest percentage of seatbelt use in the survey. Midland ranked 34th.

"We think we can make a difference," said Phillips. The signs cost $25 each.

It can be difficult to decide whether to ticket someone for not wearing a seatbelt because some drivers unbuckle them after they are pulled over but before the officer approaches the car, said John McAhon of the Odessa Police Department.

He said the signs might fair better than enforcement to raise compliance.

CRMWD gives summary of weather projects

Since 1971 the Colorado River Municipal Water District has sponsored a weather modification (precipitation enhancement) program. In 1989, the district did not conduct cloudseeding activities; however, the district did participate in the Southwest Cooperative Program (SWCP).

The SWCP has been conducting randomized cloudseeding research operations on convective cloud cluster systems since 1986. In 1988, the SWCP did not research any randomized cloudseeding flights; however, this year the SWCP conducted randomized flights on cloud systems occurring in August.

The SWCP season occurred from August 1-September 15, 1989. Five randomized cases were obtained in August while, due to uncooperative weather conditions, no randomized cases were obtained during September. The recording raingauge network was operated 6½ weeks. The 1989 SWCP is discussed in detail in the 1989 SWCP Operations Summary.

Dr. Gott

Peter Gott, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: As the result of an automobile accident in 1984, I lost a kidney and my spleen. I was given a Pneumovax injection and was told it should be repeated every five years. This is contrary to the practice of a once-in-a-lifetime pneumonia shot.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Pneumovax, the pneumonia shot, should be given to any adult who is at risk of pneumonia; such people include those with lung disorders, chronic diseases, a history of recurrent pneumonia, immune deficiency and — as in your case — loss of a spleen.

The spleen acts as a bacterial filter; patients without spleens are more susceptible to serious infection. Pneumovax is administered in a single shot which, according to the manufacturers, should not be repeated.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Can you provide information on halitosis? Could it be caused by bromide poisoning, and is there a cure?

DEAR READER: Halitosis is bad breath. It is one of the foremost health concerns of modern adults, outranked only by constipation, dental plaque, menstruation, intestinal gas and ring-around-the-collar. Actually, judging from the thrust of toothpaste and chewing-gum ads, halitosis may be the No. 1 concern.

It has many causes. The most common is the breakdown of material within the mouth. For example, tiny bits of food that are wedged between teeth can become malodorous as bacteria digest and destroy them. Similarly, the residue of saliva on teeth (as well as dentures), can undergo bacterial decomposition yielding foul breath. Frequent brushing and flossing can prevent halitosis in these circumstances.

Dental infection, such as abscesses and gingivitis, also leads to "bad breath." Eating certain foods, notably onions and garlic, also causes breath odor. People with halitosis due to mouth problems can often be helped by their dentist.

Halitosis can also be caused by medical conditions and diseases. These include lung abscesses, liver failure, kidney disease, diabetes, cancer, tonsillitis and sinus infection. People who smoke and drink too much frequently have unpleasant breath odor.

Intestinal conditions, such as poor digestion or constipation, do not cause halitosis. These disorders are sometimes associated with foul eructation (belching), but they do not affect the breath.

Bromides are compounds derived from bromine, a chemical resembling chlorine. They were once widely used in sleeping pills and are still added to some over-the-counter preparations. However, they should not be taken internally because, over time, they cause serious side effects, such as acne, headache, drowsiness, weakness and liver damage. To my knowledge, bromides do not produce halitosis.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Help I — Physical Illness." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

CRMWD reports gain in area water deliveries

Water deliveries to municipalities served by the Colorado River Municipal Water District showed a 7.13 percent gain for December, but broken water mains accounted for part of the increase.

Total deliveries stood at 1,117,660,838, of which 1,000,155,050 gallons went to municipalities and 117,505,788 gallons to oil companies.

Municipal gains amounted to 66.57 million gallons more or 7.13 percent, but the near-record pre-Christmas freeze wrought havoc on city distribution systems. For instance, demands by the four principal municipal users increased in the five days starting with Christmas by 36.8 million gallons over the preceding five days. Take this out, and the percentage of gain for the cities would be 3.21 for the month. Oil company deliveries dropped 26,092,000 gallons, of 18.71 percent from December a year ago.

By cities, Big Spring received 236,397,250 gallons, a gain of 7.59 percent, but it had by far the biggest post-freeze jump; Midland 276,956,000 gallons, down 44 of one percent (Midland was pinching down to stay within its contract quantity); Odessa 404,035,000 gallons; up 11.80 percent; Snyder 71,536,000 gallons, up 9.56 percent; Stanton 7,472,000 gallons; up 87.36 percent. Robert Lee took only 1,568,000 gallons as against 4,932,000 a year ago, and San Angelo took 2,190,000 gallons whereas it used none in December of 1988.

For the year deliveries amounted to 17,274,906,032 gallons, up nearly a billion gallons over 1988 or 5.94 percent. Cities used 15,790,338,000 gallons, up 1.1 billion gallons or 7.59 percent; oil companies 1,484,062,192 gallons, down 8.89 percent.

classes at the University of Houston.

But that hasn't stopped the 22-year-old Polish student who came to the United States from Poland in 1986 from getting ready this spring to be awarded four bachelor's degrees and an associate degree in economics.

"I know that sounds crazy," said Ms. Klich, who came to the United States in 1986 to attend the university. "But I like finding out about things."

At the end of May, the ambitious student hopes to complete degrees in radio-television, journalism, history and Russian history at the University of Houston and the economics degree at Houston Community College.

James Pipkin, associate dean of the university's College of Fine Arts and Humanities, said Ms. Klich is the first student he has known to earn four degrees simultaneously.

"Clearly, she must be an extremely intelligent student," Pipkin said. "She also is doing all of her studies in what is, in her case at least, a second language. It would be a remarkable achievement for one of our native American students. But for an international student to do that in English... extraordinary."

To accomplish her feat, Ms. Klich will take seven classes at the university this spring, a class at the community college and keep her part-time job at Texas Paralegal School.

The seven classes amount to 21 semester hours. Twelve hours, or four classes, is considered a standard, full-time student's workload.

"If I have a lot to do at school, I can do better," she said. "It may sound like some master design, but it just came out that way."

Sealy presents musical program

Marge Sealy presented musical entertainment of religious origin at the Jan. 4 meeting of the Deep Creek Chapter of American Business Women's Association.

Mrs. Sealy first presented "I am a Child," with lyrics from the viewpoint of a child telling what children need to have: time, love and care. She also sang "People Need The Lord," "It's a Miracle," and "The Old Rugged Cross."

A resident of Snyder since October of 1973, she is the mother of two grown children. She works for the county as Director of Scurry County Welfare. She is also employed part-time by Western Texas College in dormitory security.

spades, the contract would fail. The defense would come to a club, the spade queen and two diamond tricks. (West would ruff in as soon as South led the club queen.)

The solution to making the contract was based on the informative two-diamond opening. If West held five hearts, they should include the Q-J. So declarer played a low heart. When West followed low, he put in dummy's 10. He now played K-A of spades, followed by A-K of hearts, throwing a diamond, and then played the eight of hearts, throwing his other diamond. West won the trick and led a diamond. Declarer ruffed and led the spade jack. West could take the spade queen, but that was all. Zilic was able to regain the lead to draw trumps and make his contract.

Informative opening

By James Jacoby

John Zilic, manager of a Houston bridge club, played the South hand well at last November's Dallas regional tournament. West opened with a Flannery two-diamond bid, showing four spades, five hearts and a minimum in high cards. North bravely overcalled two no-trump with only 15 high-card points. Perhaps South should have jumped right to four spades, but he got there anyhow when North persisted with three no-trump.

West opened the club ace and switched to the diamond four. Zilic won the ace. Apparently West had started with a singleton ace of clubs. Even if declarer played a spade to dummy's eight, cashed the king of spades, played A-K of hearts and ruffed a heart, and then played ace of

Snyder cage teams to face Lake View

Snyder's Lady Tigers will finally get to play at home as they host the Lady Chiefs of San Angelo Lake View in a District 4-4A contest tonight at 7:30 in the SHS gym.

The boys will travel to San Angelo to square-off against the Chiefs, also at 7:30 p.m.

The Lady Tigers, 9-7 on the year and 2-3 in loop play, are coming off a confidence-building 62-31 mauling of the Ft. Stockton Prowlers last Friday.

Teena Braziel was the leading scorer for the SHS girls tossing in 21 points off eight hoops and a 5-5 performance from the charity stripe.

The Snyder boys are heading to San Angelo after a 40-31 win over the Panthers of Ft. Stockton that head coach Larry Scott called "ugly."

The Tigers' defense came to the rescue of the offensive game and allowed just 14 points the entire second half.

Tracy Braziel scored 15 points for the Tigers and Hayward Clay added 12 in the win.

When asked about Lake View's tendencies, Scott said, "They are a lot like we are. They have a good defense and they press a lot. They'll use a good bit of zone Snyder's freshmen boys held on for a 51-49 win in Big Spring Monday after taking a 40-31 lead into the fourth period.

The Snyder freshmen, 7-3 on the season, were led by Stephen Bollinger who scored 15 points.

Tory Garza hit for 11 on the night.

Oscar Cenantes paced Big Spring with 19 points, 12 in the fourth quarter.

Oilers interview UH coach Jack Pardee for head spot

HOUSTON (AP) — The Houston Oilers' search for a new head coach made its first stop at the University of Houston, home of Coach Jack Pardee and the "run-and-shoot" offense that won a Heisman Trophy for quarterback Andre Ware.

Pardee, who rebuilt the Cougars program in three seasons, confirmed Monday that he had been interviewed by Oilers owner Bud Adams and that he was interested in the position.

Pardee is the first coach interviewed by Adams, who announced late Saturday that Coach Jerry Glanville would not return, by mutual agreement.

"I certainly have an interest but I don't know what their interest is. I guess it was enough to talk," Pardee said.

"The Oilers have some good players. If they weren't there, we really wouldn't have interest at all. The cupboard isn't bare. They've had success."

The Oilers reached the playoffs the past three years, but Glanville stepped down Saturday after three straight losses ended the season.

Pardee said he talked with Adams by telephone and considered it a formal interview.

"We talked about the parameters of the job and what it would entail," Pardee said. Houston athletic director Rudy Davalos returned early from the NCAA meetings in Dallas after talking with Pardee by telephone.

SPORTS

"I think there is genuine interest both ways and when you're in competition with a pro franchise in the same town, they have the financial resources that make it easier for them to be more attractive," Davalos said.

Pardee was coach at Chicago and Washington, leading both into the NFL playoffs. He also coached the Houston Gamblers in the USFL.

The Cougars finished 1-10 in 1986, Bill Yeoman's last year as coach. Pardee installed the run-and-shoot offense in 1987 and, after a 4-6-1 record that year, Houston posted records of 9-3 and 9-2 the past two seasons.

Pardee said he would need to know of a decision this week because he had to get back to recruiting if he were going to remain with the Cougars.

"If I were to leave here, the University of Houston is still important," Pardee said. "This needs to be a stable situation by next week."

Pardee said he didn't think his departure would affect Ware's decision to remain in school for his senior season.

NBA roundup...

Orlando upsets San Antonio

by The Associated Press
First, there was David, whose victory over Goliath will stand forever as the greatest upset in history. Now there is the Orlando Magic, giving new meaning to the term giant-killer.

The NBA expansion team has won just 10 games. But five have come at the expense of division leaders.

The latest, a 111-102 victory Monday night over the San Antonio Spurs, had some of the Magic laughing about the absurdity of it. But Spurs coach Larry Brown doesn't think of the Orlando entry as a joke.

"We've got to line up more of those division leaders," Orlando's Mark Acres said after San Antonio joined New York, Chicago, Utah and the Los Angeles Lakers on the list of fallen behemoths.

"We can beat those teams," Acres added with a laugh.

Brown, whose Spurs lead the Midwest Division, said Orlando is winning games against difficult opposition by remaining competitive even in the later stages of its losses.

"We didn't have an off-night," he said. "They just outplayed us. It doesn't surprise me one bit."

The Spurs' David Robinson said winning in Orlando, where the Magic is 7-9 despite an overall 10-23 record, is not an easy task.

"The crowd was a factor," he said of the 15,077 who saw the game in the sold-out Orlando Arena. "Usually, we play well on the road. But they really got pumped up."

Elsewhere, it was Dallas 110,

Vasquez wins in Stockton

Gabriel Vasquez, 10-year-old boxer from Snyder, won first place in the 70-pound division of last weekend's Ft. Stockton Tournament.

Young Vasquez, who defeated Ft. Stockton's Brian Fish for the title, will be among the participants in the Jaime Baldwin Jr. Memorial Boxing Tournament in Big Spring Jan. 13-14.

The Snyder boxer, coached by his father Johnnie, is slated to fight Eddie Ramirez in his first bout.

Seattle 96; Milwaukee 126, Charlotte 113; Portland 108, Sacramento 96; Philadelphia 120, Indiana 116, and Golden State 139, Denver 122.

Orlando's Scott Skiles hit a key 3-point shot and Otis Smith sank five free throws in the final 1:09 as the Magic ended an eight-game losing streak. The victory was only the third — all over division leaders, of course — in the last 19 games.

Reggie Theus led Orlando with 23 points and Smith, averaging 19 in his last 13 games, came off the bench to score 21. Acres had 14 points and a career-high 15 rebounds to lead Orlando's 51-35 domination of the backboards.

Robinson scored 32 points and Terry Cummings added 20 for San Antonio.

Mavericks 110, SuperSonics 96

Just to make sure his team didn't forget a 47-point loss in its last meeting with Seattle, Dallas coach Richie Adubato played a tape of the game. The Mavericks got the message.

After that 117-70 blowout on Nov. 25 — the Mavericks' worst-ever defeat at home — Coach John MacLeod was fired, to be replaced four days later by Adubato.

Seattle lost leading scorer Dale Ellis when he was assessed two technical fouls in the second quarter, bringing to an end a 256-game streak in which he reached double figures in scoring. Ellis left with six points.

Rolando Blackman led Dallas with 21 points. Xavier McDaniel paced Seattle with 19.

Bucks 126, Hornets 113
A season-high 28 points by Greg Anderson kept Charlotte winless on the road.

Ricky Pierce scored 23 points for the Bucks, who won their fifth straight home game. Anderson came off the bench to score 20 points in the first half.

Armon Gilliam led the Hornets with 25 points and J.R. Reid added 21.

Trail Blazers 108, Kings 96
Kevin Duckworth had a season-high 26 points and Clyde Drexler added 25 for Portland.

The Blazers had a decisive 11-0 run midway through the fourth period. Danny Ainge, who led the Kings with 24 points, had 11

Kansas tabbed No. 1 Jayhawks earn top spot after Syracuse loss

by The Associated Press
Rick Calloway has been there before, so he's not very excited about being No. 1 right now.

Kansas (16-0) was voted No. 1 in The Associated Press college basketball poll released Monday, the first time at No. 1 since the Jayhawks fielded a lineup with Wilt Chamberlain in 1956-57.

Calloway, who played for Indiana's 1987 national champions, said he doesn't think the Jayhawks deserve the lofty rating.

"I think Georgetown should be No. 1," he said Monday night after Kansas overcame a 13-point deficit in the second half to beat Nebraska 98-93.

Kansas senior guard Kevin Pritchard, who sparked his team at Nebraska with 18 second-half points, also downplayed the No. 1 ranking.

"There's not much difference between No. 1 and No. 2, if you ask me," he said.

Kansas, which was unranked in the preseason poll, fourth for a week and second in the next five polls, received 45 first-place votes and 1,568 points from the nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters.

Georgetown moved from third to second in this week's poll. The Hoyas were named No. 1 on 16 ballots and received 1,532 points.

Kansas gained the top spot after Syracuse, which had been No. 1 for the first six regular-season polls, lost at home to Villanova over the weekend.

Most of the Jayhawks are used to winning. Pritchard, Mark Randall, Jeff Gueldner and Mike Maddox were on the 1988 national championship team.

Kansas coach Roy Williams was an assistant at North Carolina when the Tarheels won the NCAA title in 1982.

"I think we're all used to winning," Williams said. "But we need to be able to keep on winning. That's the most important thing — and the hardest thing."

Michigan (10-1) moved from fifth to third and was followed in the top five by two other Big Eight teams, Oklahoma and Missouri, each improving two places in the voting. Each had one first-place vote.

The Wolverines, who have won 10 straight, had 1,405 points, 27 more than Oklahoma (10-0) and Missouri (13-1) had 1,280.

Syracuse (10-1), which lost to Villanova 93-74, dropped to sixth with 1,273 points. UNLV, Illinois, Georgia Tech and Duke rounded out the Top Ten.

The Orangemen were one of four teams to fall from the ranks of the unbeaten last week, joining Illinois, Indiana and La Salle. Kansas, Georgetown, Oklahoma and Georgia Tech (10-0) are the only unbeaten Division I teams.

UNLV (9-2), which was No. 1 in the preseason poll but lost to Kansas in the preseason "NIT," had 1,156 points, 29 more than Illinois (11-1), which fell from fourth and was knocked from the ranks of the unbeaten by Minnesota.

Georgia Tech, in the Top Ten for the first time this season, had 1,098 points. Duke (10-2) had 953, four more than Louisville (10-2), which led the Second Ten, falling from eighth after losing at home to Cincinnati.

Following Louisville in the Second Ten were Arkansas, Indiana, Louisiana State, St. John's, Minnesota, North Carolina State, Arizona, UCLA and Memphis State.

The final five ranked teams were La Salle, Oregon State, Loyola Marymount, Alabama and Xavier, Ohio.

Xavier (9-1) joined the poll for the first time since the final three weeks of the 1987-88 season.

JUSTIN HOOD — Recently named All-Centex Honorable Mention team as a tight end and All-District first team at tight end and second team at outside linebacker was Justin Hood, son of Bruce and Paula Hood of Thorndale, formerly of Snyder. Hood was a two-way starter for the state 1A champion Thorndale Bulldogs as well as a punt returner. He returned three kicks for TD's in the '89 campaign. The junior at Thorndale High School is the grandson of K.R. and Joyce Smith and Bill J. Hood and the great-grandson of Ray and Opal Smith, all of Snyder. (Contributed Photo)

Cases could affect affirmative action programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — All federal affirmative action programs, from education to employment, could be affected as the Supreme Court studies special preferences given to TV and radio stations owned by women and minorities.

"We can count heads at the Supreme Court, and we're confident these FCC policies will fall," said Alan Shurberg, a computer consultant involved in one of two cases the court accepted for review Monday.

"Government will be left with a colorblind standard," Shurberg said.

The justices said they would use a Florida case to review the Federal Communications Commission's policy of treating ownership by women and minorities as a favorable factor when awarding licenses.

The court also voted to review, in a Connecticut case, the commission's policy of allowing any station facing a license revocation to sell its license, at a reduced price, to a minority-owned company.

Different three-judge panels of the U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here upheld the licensing preferences policy, but struck down the so-called distress sale program.

"Those of us concerned about diversity in society are concerned about what the court may do with these cases," said Andrew Jay Schwartzman of the Washington-based Media Access Project.

The court's decisions, he said, could be worded broadly enough to affect government programs beyond the broadcasting industry.

"But exploring the importance of minority ownership in the mass media — and the significant role diversity in the media plays — is a good way for the court to review those issues," he said.

Injuries occur in wreck here

A 30-year-old city man was injured in a two-vehicle collision at 6:37 a.m. today in front of Pool Well Servicing on the Lamesa Hwy. in western Snyder.

Libario Oliva of 1204 30th St. suffered a laceration to his forehead and possible shoulder and arm injuries, and was being examined at mid-morning at Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

The other motorist, 27-year-old Patricia L. Applin of Rt. 2, appeared to have been injured but declined medical attention, a city policeman said.

Oliva, a Pool Well Servicing employee, was westbound on the Lamesa Hwy. and was turning into his place of employment when his 1970 Ford pickup was in collision with Applin's eastbound 1978 Oldsmobile, the officer said. Both vehicles had to be towed.

Shurberg, of Rock Hill, Conn., said he hoped the high court would use the two cases to "put an end to all affirmative action."

He said his confidence was boosted by recent Supreme Court decisions that have curtailed what steps governments may take to make up for past discriminatory practices.

Decisions in the two cases are expected by July.

In other action, the court: —Agreed to decide in a Minnesota case whether governors may withhold National Guard troops the federal government wants to send on training missions in foreign countries.

—Refused in a case from New York to force a revival of the "fairness doctrine," under which the federal government could require radio and television stations to present all sides of controversial issues.

an educational institution first and always. I don't think we would lose more than two-dozen students (if basketball were dropped) — mainly the athletes themselves."

Trustee John Fagin said, "I think the whole problem here is to look at each sport individually and try and devise ways for more attendance. We've all got opinions but we need more facts and figures."

Also under discussion was the golf course and pro shop, which showed a loss of $61,621.

"I haven't said close the golf course down but I think we need to look at it and see what can be done, maybe a six-month sale of reduced memberships or whatever," said Baze.

Membership at the course has fallen from 247 in 1984 when the course showed a $32,785 profit, to 95 at present.

Golf Course and Landscape Technology Director James Eby said he would welcome a committee to study the golf course and pro shop.

"I think there are some things we can do to make it more profitable," he said.

Prior to ending the meeting, board president Bill Wilson Jr. appointed Hargrove and Fagin to work with Eby, Bill Mitchell, director of golf course maintenance; Dave Foster, athletic director and golf coach; and Gay Hickman, vice-president of business and finance; to meet and discuss the golf program.

In later discussion, the board briefly reviewed information from the Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board which showed that average faculty salaries at Western Texas — amounting to some $27,053 for 1989-90 — ranked 46th out of 49 community colleges in the state.

"It's not something we're proud of," said Krenk. "We have a very, very high quality faculty." He told the board that administrative salaries at Western were also lower than the average throughout the state.

In one other item of review, trustees indicated they would not be interested in joining a political action committee.

Trustees absent were John Gayle and Howard Sterling.

City Manager John Gayle said, however, "I think if they get ticketed enough times, we will get their attention."

Gayle said the cost of subsequent citations would keep doubling, approximately.

Other business in the two-hour and 45-minute meeting, which began at 6:30 p.m., included a recommendation by engineer Terry Bilderback of Parkhill, Smith & Cooper in Lubbock that a 6,000-foot, 12-inch pipeline be laid from the city water treatment plant on Ave. M in central Snyder to the 32nd St. and Ave. Z water tower.

Bilderback said the project, expected to cost between $175,000 to $200,00, is his firm's principal recommendation stemming from its partially completed computer analysis of the municipal water distribution system.

Bilderback said the system basically "needs a lot of pipe," to replace old and leak-prone piping, and the new pipeline "is a first step" toward eliminating leaks and improving water pressure.

He said City Engineer Don Osborn's proposed raising of four elevated water storage tanks around the city over the next five years would also be useful.

Osborn commented in his departmental report that leaks are constantly being repaired by city crews but the city's monthly "line loss" of water is running at about 20 million gallons.

Other departmental reports included Police Chief Bill Stone's report that four of the five burglaries investigated in the last quarter of 1989 have been solved.

Of his department's 40 theft cases in the past quarter, Stone said, 27 have been solved and 13 are still being investigated.

Fire Chief Terry Don McDowell said firemen answered 61 calls in October, November and December, including five blazes in dwellings, two in businesses, six in vehicles, five in grass or trash, seven smoke scares, 34 public service calls and two miscellaneous alarms.

Utilities department head Carolyn House reported that the city had 59 fewer water service customers for the last quarter of 1989 than it did the year before, and finance department head Jeanne Johnson said the city is on schedule with the new budget it began operating under in Oc-

Divers recover weapon from river

BOSTON (AP) — Divers searching for the revolver used in the wounding of Charles Stuart and the killing of his pregnant wife found a gun today in the river where Stuart's brother said he dumped it, police said.

"But it's not clear whether it was the weapon being sought," said Sgt. David Thompson.

Police had searched for the gun since Charles Stuart, 29, committed suicide Thursday. Stuart jumped from a Boston Harbor bridge after his brother Matthew implicated him in the death of Carol Stuart, whose premature baby died 17 days later.

Stuart, who is white, originally told police he and his wife were shot by a black mugger who forced his way into their car Oct. 23 as they left a childbirth class. Police listening to Stuart's pleas for help over his car phone found him and his dying wife by listening to their sirens over the phone.

Matthew Stuart, 23, told authorities last week that he took Mrs. Stuart's handbag, which contained personal items and the gun, from the scene of the shootings and threw the items separately into the Pines River in Revere.

Police found the bag Thursday, but the gun had remained a missing clue in the effort to unravel

Richardson has a bachelor of science degree in agricultural economics from Texas Tech University. He has also attended Texas Tech University School of Banking, Southern Methodist University School of Trust Banking, and American Institute of Banking.

tober, with about 25 percent of its scheduled expenditures having been made.

Other business included the acceptance of a bid from West Texas Equipment of Amarillo for the purchase of a new Caterpillar bulldozer to be used at the city landfill east of town.

The city is trading a used bulldozer and roadgrader and will make four annual payments of $18,826 for the new machine.

An ordinance was approved on second reading to continue a maintenance agreement with the state highway department, and the city staff was authorized to contract with Scurry County Appraisal District for the identification and mapping of hazardous material areas.

the baffling and racially inflammatory case.

Jay Kakas, co-owner of the fur store where Charles Stuart worked, told police a revolver was stolen from the shop's safe, a representative of the store, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Monday. Investigators refused to comment on that report and on rumors of insurance or a romantic relationship as motives.

A brother of Mrs. Stuart said he was appalled that the Stuart family might have joined his family in grieving while keeping secret their knowledge of a murder scheme.

"Can you believe that they came to our house to comfort my parents? That is just mind boggling, that they could sit with us, or allow us to visit Chuck," Carl DiMaiti, Carol Stuart's brother, told WLVI-TV.

Dear Abby

Woman Tries to Uncover The Lure of Topless Bars

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1990 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Why do men go to topless (and in some cases bottomless) bars? The man I have been seeing for the last six months is basically a nice guy. I am an attractive 27-year-old woman; I'm 5 foot 6 and weigh 120 pounds. He is 31, and we have a great relationship going emotionally, physically, etc. We seem perfect for each other.

What bothers me is that he goes to these places during working hours and drinks only coffee. He is a police officer. He never goes to these places when he's off duty. It makes me feel like I'm not good enough. He says that's not it—I'm fine, and he doesn't compare me to those topless girls.

He says all police officers stop in those places for coffee while they're on duty. I know it's true, because when I drive by, I always see two or three police cars outside. (Once I counted five!) Why do men go to those places? And should I let it bother me?

CONFUSED IN OREGON

DEAR CONFUSED: They go because most men like to look. (So do some women.) Should you let it bother you? Try not to. Your boyfriend was being honest when he told you he wasn't comparing you with "those topless girls," so you have no reason to feel insecure.

Mature men do not need peep shows. Perhaps your police officer is still in a phase of arrested development.

DEAR ABBY: In regards to "Teacher in Laramie" and the pain of unjust punishment meted out by teachers, I had a problem in high school when my dad was building a garage during hunting season. He needed my help in bricklaying and I asked to be excused from two classes in order to help him.

I received an "F" for that day in each class while other students received a passing grade when they went hunting with their dads to kill deer or whatever.

I always felt cheated for being punished for doing something constructive while others were excused to be destructive.

Thanks for letting me get this off my chest, Abby. It's been 20 years and I'm still resentful.

JIMMY IN PORTLAND

DEAR JIMMY: For some reason, the hurts suffered in high school stay with us all our lives. It's not healthy to harbor such negative thoughts. But it's human.

DEAR ABBY: I have an interesting story to tell, and it may help others.

I got a call in my office: "This is Sergeant Cummings from the New York State Police. We got your name from the church you belong to. We have an Egyptian family here in Newburgh, N.Y. (I am Egyptian.) Their car has broken down on their way back to Boston from Toronto, and because they just moved to the states, the garage will not accept a check from their out-of-country bank."

To make a long story short, I offered my help. He suggested I call Western Union and wire $424 to him. Thanks to the woman at Western Union, I was alerted that this may be a hoax.

We called the barracks at Newburgh and were told that they have nobody there by that name. I then canceled the order at Western Union. The man never called back after we told him that we were going to verify his identity with the police.

Please alert your readers to this scam. You may use my name and town. Thank you.

DEAR DR. KADDIS: Thanks for the tip-off. Forewarned is forearmed.

Former drug agent disagrees...

Miniseries' portrayal is not accurate

LAREDO, Texas (AP) — A former Drug Enforcement Administration agent depicted in a three-night NBC miniseries about Enrique Camarena's torture-slays says agency administrators did not earn their heroic portrayals.

James "Jaime" Kuykendall, who was Camarena's immediate supervisor when the agent was slain by Mexican drug traffickers in Guadalajara, Mexico, in 1985, said the film's producers credit top DEA officials with trying to uncover the truth of the torture-slays of Camarena and a Mexican pilot.

In fact, top agency administrators had no idea what was happening in the Mexican drug war, Kuykendall told the Laredo Morning Times.

Following the grisly killings, Kuykendall was transferred to the Laredo DEA office. After three years as resident agent-in-charge, Kuykendall was transferred to a Washington, D.C., desk job he said really didn't suit him.

Kuykendall retired in June 1989, after more than 30 years of service.

Camarena was kidnapped on Feb. 7, 1985, in Guadalajara. A few days later, a Mexican pilot who had worked with DEA agents there, Alfredo Zavala Avelar, also was kidnapped.

Authorities found their bullet-riddled bodies, showing signs of torture, on March 5, 1985. They were wrapped in plastic bags and dumped on a ranch 60 miles southeast of Guadalajara.

The final installment of the miniseries "Drug Wars: The Camarena Story," airs tonight on NBC. In it, Kuykendall is portrayed as Harley Steinmetz, played by actor Craig T. Nelson.

Kuykendall said that he had been given a copy of the original script to review before the miniseries.

"I don't have anything personal against anybody, but it's not improper for me to say that the administration didn't know anything about what was going on beforehand or afterwards," Kuykendall told the newspaper.

The network has already agreed to modifications in the miniseries that were requested by lawyers representing a man charged in the case.

Alamo cannon search starts

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Historians and volunteers are digging up an area along San Antonio's Riverwalk to search for one of the cannons used in the futile defense of the Alamo.

The searchers used diaries and historical records to determine that the cannon may have been dumped into the San Antonio River near what is now the San Antonio Hyatt Regency.

Searchers found the hammer from a pistol, an arrow point, shards of glassware and signed, hand-painted British dinnerware on Monday, but no trace of the cannon they were searching for.

They also discovered more recent items such as pocket knives, jewelry, marbles, cartridges, tokens and many pennies. Alton Briggs of Lone Star Archaeological Services said authorities are not certain whether the hammer is from a cap pistol or a derringier circa 1850.

Immunization age lowered due to measles outbreak

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas County health officials have lowered the age from 15 months to six months for infants to be immunized against measles in the wake of an outbreak of measles.

Dr. Charles Haley, the county health department's chief epidemiologist, said experts usually recommend measles immunization at about 15 months, but they are now dropping the age because measles are showing up in younger children.

"We're dropping the age because a lot of our cases are 8-, 10-, 12-month-olds," Haley said. "We've had at least a dozen children hospitalized."

Haley said officials have confirmed 42 cases of measles in Dallas County and are investigating another 43 cases. No deaths in Dallas have been attributed to measles, but officials reported 175 cases last spring.

Officials at Children's Medical Center of Dallas said two children, both younger than 2, have been placed on respirators in the intensive care unit because of complications of measles.

More than 162,000 people had measles in the United States last year, according to the Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta. At least 42 died, including 11 in Texas. There were 10 deaths in Houston and one in the Midland area last year.

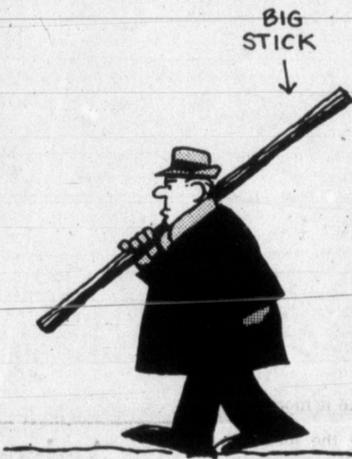

The outbreak in Houston has dwindled and will be officially termed over this week.

"The hot spot is now the Dallas-Fort Worth area," Wes Hodgson, epidemiology coordinator for the state health department said Monday.

Some of the early symptoms of measles can be mistaken for influenza, so children may not receive proper medical care immediately, Dr. Haley said.

"Both of them have high fevers and runny noses and coughs," he said. "But with the measles, you'll eventually get a very red rash."

CRMWD plans Thursday meet

BIG SPRING—Water rates for the year 1990 will be established by Colorado River Municipal Water District directors in their upcoming Thursday meeting.

Rates will be fixed for member cities Big Spring, Odessa, and Snyder, but all other rates are geared to these. Indications are that there will be no major changes from 1989.

Also on a crowded agenda are authorization of fund transfers from the Water Rate Stabilization Fund to overruns in the O. H. Ivie Reservoir account. This would run slightly over a million dollars for the district and slightly less for West Central Texas Municipal Water District (Abilene), San Angelo and Midland combined as contract cities.

Final adoption of rules and regulations for the three CRMWD reservoirs is up for consideration, along with tentative plans for limited recreational use at Lake O. H. Ivie while it is filling initially.

Possibility of refunding part of the 1985 (Ivie reservoir) issue will be considered. Authorizations are due for providing cathodic protection on a stretch of 36-inch pipeline spanning Buzard Draw west of Big Spring; $50,000 to cover water royalty payments in Ward County; consideration of changing trustee for the Employee Pension Trust and Retirement Fund; employment of a consultant to review all district insurance coverage. A management plan for lands acquired for terrestrial mitigation (wildlife management) has been cleared by the U. S. Corps of Engineers and is due for adoption by the district. Besides reports from legal counsel and management, the Employee of the Year will be recognized.

Analyst says finance reform will cost more

AUSTIN (AP) — It's "almost impossible" to reform public school finance without additional money, said an education analyst who predicted the Texas funding system will be under court oversight for years.

"One thing you can be sure about, regardless of what you do as a state, the court will retain jurisdiction just as they've done in these school desegregation cases," said Kent McGuire.

McGuire is on leave from his job as senior policy analyst with the Education Commission of the States to teach at the University of Colorado at Denver.

"You're going to talk to the courts for the next five years, no matter what you do," he said after a work session Monday with the Governor's Task Force on Public Education.

The Texas Supreme Court ruled the school finance system unconstitutional in October, after finding glaring disparities between property-rich and -poor school districts. The court set a May 1 deadline for legislative action, and Gov. Bill Clements has said he will call a spring special session on the issue.

School finance reform "is an expensive proposition" in most states, McGuire said.

"You could change the system, technically, on paper ... and improve the equity of your financing system without spending a dime in new money," he said.

"But it would invariably mean taking money away from some school districts and giving it to others, which politically is not something that's likely to happen," McGuire said. "I haven't seen a state where that happened yet."

Clements, who created the task force to make legislative recommendations, has ruled out new taxes to pay for reforms but has not rejected the idea of additional revenue, said his press secretary, Rossanna Salazar.

"First and foremost, the governor would like the emphasis placed on improving the efficiency and the effectiveness of our public school system in Texas, before we start talking about what kinds of additional revenue we might need," she said.

McGuire said a "thoughtful plan" that includes immediate remedies and outlines future action likely would pass muster with the court.

In the 1988-89 school year, the state spent $4.9 billion on public schools, and local districts spent $5.5 billion through local property taxes, according to the Texas Education Agency.

There have been several proposals to address the Supreme Court ruling, including by a State Board of Education committee that would raise public education spending about $5.2 billion annually by 1995. The plan would increase funding by about $1 billion next school year.

A one-year plan suggested by state Comptroller Bob Bullock proposes a $600 million increase, while a five-year proposal by a coalition of poor school districts ultimately would raise spending by $10.5 billion.

School religious issue is due hearing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Bush administration is urging the Supreme Court to uphold a 1984 law requiring public high schools to give student religious groups the same access to facilities as they do to students who belong to such organizations as chess and scuba diving clubs.

The justices were to hear arguments today in a Nebraska case that some say could mean returning religion and prayer to public schools.

Solicitor General Kenneth W. Starr, the administration's chief courtroom lawyer, said equal access for religious clubs does not violate the separation of church and state mandated by the Constitution's Establishment Clause.

"Exclusion of religion, and the message it conveys, would itself contravene the Establishment Clause, by sending the clear message that the state favors irreligion," Starr said in a legal brief filed with the court.

The justices have agreed to decide — with a ruling likely by July — whether a student Bible study group must be allowed to meet at Westside High School in Omaha after school.

School officials barred the group despite the 1984 Equal Access Act that says public high schools accepting federal aid must not discriminate against groups based on "the religious, political, philosophical or other content of the speech at such meetings."

The act requires access for religious clubs if other "non-curriculum-related student groups" are allowed to meet.

Numerous religious, educational and civic organizations have lined up on opposing sides.

The National School Boards Association, for example, said the aim of the 1984 law is "to bring religion and prayer back to the public schools." The association opposes the statute as unconstitutional.

But the Campus Crusade for Christ said "a voluntary student club in which ideas with religious content and significance will be spoken" should not be discriminated against by school officials.

Students at Westside High sought in 1985 to organize a Christian Bible study club. Officials refused to approve it and suggested the students meet instead at a church next door.

The student group was led by Bridget Mergens, now married and the mother of a 13-month-old girl. Mrs. Mergens Mayhew planned to be in court today to hear arguments in the case she triggered.

The 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals last year overruled a federal judge and said the club must be allowed to meet on school premises.

The appeals court noted the high school has approved some 30 other extracurricular organizations for such activities as chess, scuba diving and community service.

The clubs meet on school grounds after class hours with a faculty member helping supervise.

The Supreme Court, which banned organized prayer in public schools in 1962 and 1963 rulings, said in 1981 that state-run universities cannot ban student groups from using campus facilities for religious worship and study.

The justices have never decided whether the same rule should apply to public high schools.

Buchwald happy with ruling

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Art Buchwald's victory over Paramount Pictures about rights to "Coming to America" was hailed as a triumph for writers, but the studio feared the court decision could mean a rash of bogus lawsuits.

"I am very, very happy," Buchwald said in a telephone interview after a judge ruled Monday that Paramount must pay him for the script idea he claimed was the basis for the hit Eddie Murphy movie "Coming to America."

"This thing is not only an important thing for me," Buchwald said. "I think it's really important for writers."

Superior Court Judge Harvey A. Schneider ruled that "Coming to America" was "based upon a material element of, or was inspired by" a synopsis Buchwald wrote entitled "King for a Day."

"The evidence is overwhelming that for two years Paramount considered 'King for a Day' to be a project that was being developed for Eddie Murphy," the judge ruled. Monetary damages in the $5 million lawsuit were not decided, but the judge disallowed any punitive award.

Paramount promised an appeal, while writers predicted their battles would be a bit easier against Hollywood studios.

"I am delighted that the little man kicked the big guy," said Billy Wilder, a Buchwald ally and the director and co-writer of Paramount's 1950 classic "Sunset Boulevard."

"It's a very important decision for all writers," said David Rintels, an award-winning screenwriter ("Day One," "Sakharov") who served as an expert witness on Buchwald's behalf. "It upholds the sanctity of contracts and it affirms that a writer's original ideas have value."

Buchwald's story, like 1988's "Coming to America," was about a member of African royalty who comes to the United States, lives in a ghetto, works at a fast-food restaurant and finds a bride to take home to his native land.

The Pulitzer Prize-winning columnist filed the lawsuit last year, alleging the studio breached a 1983 contract to purchase his script idea.

Buchwald's attorney, Pierce O'Donnell, said that his client and Buchwald's writing partner, producer Alain Bernheim, stood to receive between $5 million and $10 million.

The judge's decision allows an inspection of Paramount's financial records on the movie, O'Donnell said. Paramount claims the film, which has gross profits of more than $300 million, has no net profits.

"If you believe that," Buchwald quipped, "then there's a wonderful S&L I'd like to sell you."

Paramount, meanwhile, began preparing for another round in court.

"We don't agree with the judge's decision on the contract claim. However, we are pleased he threw out the claim for punitive damages," it said in a statement. "We are confident that the appellate court will find that 'Coming to America' was created without any contribution from Art Buchwald."

Robert Draper, an attorney for Paramount, said Buchwald's script idea and Murphy's movie were entirely different: "It's like 'Godzilla' and 'Cinderella.'"

The only similarity, he said, was that the main characters in each version were black.

Draper said that the judge's interpretation of the "based upon" concept — a crucial point in the ruling — was too broad.

"Under the interpretation of 'based upon' that was adopted, just about anything could be found to be based upon anything else," Draper said.

Paramount's lawyers had said during the court proceedings that a ruling in favor of Buchwald could trigger an onslaught of groundless lawsuits.

Neither Murphy nor his manager, Bob Wachs, responded to telephone messages for comment.

A spokeswoman for Arsenio Hall, who developed the movie with Murphy and co-starred in it, also did not respond to a telephone request for comment.

Inventor Dr. Peter Goldmark of CBS Laboratories demonstrated the first long-playing record in 1948.

In 1963, Cardinal Giovanni Battista Montini was chosen to succeed the late Pope John XXIII as head of the Roman Catholic Church. The new pope took the name Paul VI.
