Columbia mission...

LDEF satellite snared

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Columbia's astronauts salvaged a valuable space laboratory today, snaring it with a 50-foot robot arm and saving it from a fiery doom in the atmosphere.

"You've made several scientists quite happy," Mission Control told the space shuttle crew. "LDEF is finally coming home."

The astronauts rescued the Long Duration Exposure Facility by steering Columbia alongside it and having mission specialist Bonnie Dunbar reach out and grab it with the wire fingers of the spaceship's mechanical arm.

The capture occurred 201 miles above the Earth as the two spacecraft raced in formation at more than 17,400 mph.

While commander Dan Brandenstein held the shuttle steady, Dunbar used a television camera on the end of the robot to gingerly guide the fingers to a grappling device on the side of the bus-sized satellite.

The television pictures, beamed to Earth, showed the tense final minutes but Columbia's position kept it from showing the actual capture.

Astronauts have recovered orbiting satellites before, but never one as big as LDEF, which is 30 feet long and weighs 11 tons.

Had they failed to rescue LDEF, trackers said the 57 experiments on board would have been lost as gravity pulled the satellite to a flaming re-entry into Earth's atmosphere about March 9.

Dunbar reported that some experiments had suffered wear and tear from their six years in space, being pounded by micrometeoroids, blasted by cosmic rays and corroded by atomic oxygen.

"Looks like a couple panels have some loose foil — loose foil pulled away from the side," she said. "A lot of coatings look like they may be gone."

That's exactly what scientists and engineers want to know. How many of the materials and experiments withstood the long exposure will help them design America's space station Freedom and other future long-duration spacecraft.

At the control center, flight director Al Pennington said the loose foil over an experiment to measure heavy ions in space appeared to be the only damage, based on a preliminary look at the TV pictures.

"It's a good-looking spacecraft," he said. "The scientists I've talked with are very, very pleased. It looks like we have a very valuable piece of science there in our grasp."

The successful retrieval ended a celestial chase that began with Columbia's launch on Tuesday and covered 1.3 million miles during which the astronauts circled the globe 50 times.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "A democratic society is one in which everyone has a right to voice an opinion—and luckily, no one is forced to listen."

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

These are fractious times, according to James Roberts in the Andrews County News. In that West Texas city, there is a simmering feud over operation of the county-owned Permian General Hospital, and possible creation of a hospital district. Roberts said:

"Andrews is not the only community beset by feudin' and fussin' over real or imagined ills."

"It's probably the time of year but Denver City is engaged in a bitter fight between local oil field contractors and Shell Oil Company. Shell has applied for a tax abatement on Shell property being annexed into the city, and citizens and contractors lined up to fight the proposal."

"In Seminole, somebody mysteriously burned down a mobile home that had been raided by Gaines County officers to discover the operation of a methamphetamine lab.

"In Lamesa, another petition drive is underway to get a local option election scheduled to make all of Dawson County and Lamesa wet in addition to the wet area, Los Ybanez."

"And a group of citizens in Scurry County, upset with an increase in county taxes, have an election set for the 20th of this month to rollback the taxes—and the charges and countercharges are overshadowing the fact that the new prison could double in size."

"In Monahans, everything hit the fan because the band boosters scheduled a meeting on the same night as the football banquet. The band people later rescheduled."

"And in Colorado City, members of LULAC have filed suit against the city, the mayor, and the council over the way council members are elected at-large rather than from single member districts."

"Like our neighbor claims, most of the fractiousness could be eased with a good, soaking three-inch rain—and a mandatory weight reduction program for everyone."

School board okays contract extension, placement program

June 30, 1992.

Trustee Sam Robertson was the only dissenting board member. Voting for the contract extension were Mike Jordan, Luann Burleson, Terry Martin, Billy Bob McMullan, Ygnacio Benitez and Ann Walton.

In other personnel-related action, the board approved hiring Donna Griffin to teach fourth grade at East Elementary and Triesta A. Lilly to teach fifth grade at Central Elementary.

Griffin, a graduate of Southwest Texas State University, has seven years experience, while Texas Tech University graduate Lilly has four years in the field.

The 40-minute meeting was preceded by an hour-long executive session which dealt with personnel. Trustees later approved a one-year extension on Scannicchio's two-year contract. His contract is now updated through the 1993-94 school year.

Trustees also accepted the resignations of Jerry Brem, high school industrial arts instructor, and Jennifer Tate, fourth grade teacher at East Elementary.

Jayton disapproves annexation petition

JAYTON — Jayton school board trustees Thursday voted unanimously to adopt a resolution disapproving a detachment annexation petition which asked for the portion of Snyder Independent School District lying inside Kent County to be annexed into the Jayton school district.

According to Superintendent

Gary Harrell, there were no guests at the meeting who supported the petition, despite the fact that a majority of registered voters who reside in the area signed it. Several people did attend the meeting to voice their disapproval of the petition, however.

Twenty-two residents of the portion of Kent County lying within the Snyder school district had signed the original petition, which forced Thursday's public hearing.

Harrell referred to the board's statement regarding the petition which read, "After the conclusion of the hearing, the board made a determination as to the educational interests of the students and the affected territory and in the affected districts and made a finding as to the social, economic and educational effects of the proposed boundary change and based on their findings adopted a resolution disapproving the petition."

The area involved includes some 55 square miles with property valued at $12,496,718. At $1.04 tax rate set by Snyder ISD, the Snyder school system stood to lose $129,966 if the property was annexed to Jayton.

Had the petition been supported by Jayton ISD, it would have been forwarded to Snyder trustees for their action. If Snyder trustees had denied ap-

Frosted pipes steam Price Daniel inmate

Frosty weather steamed a Price Daniel inmate enough to file a personal injury suit against the City of Snyder.

Claiming physical discomfort and mental anguish, a state penitentiary inmate this week filed a suit against the city in what he says were recent frozen pipes at the Price Daniel Unit.

In a hand-written petition filed in 132 District Court, Victor E. Haley asks damages of $10,000 for each two hours that water and sewer services were off, although the petition does not say how long they were off.

Haley alleges that city utilities to the prison were disrupted on Dec. 22, 1989.

City officials said today that they had not been served with the suit and therefore could not comment on it.

Ask Us

Q. If someone becomes intoxicated in one of the clubs in town, can they call the police department for a ride home without fear of being arrested for public intoxication?

A. A police department spokesman pointed out that being intoxicated on licensed premises is against the law. Therefore, a person should not be caught in such a situation. A suggestion for those who do not feel comfortable driving themselves home would be for them to call a family member or a friend since Snyder does not have taxi service.

Plan dropped

EAST BERLIN (AP) — East Germany's Communist premier today bowed to opposition demands and dropped a plan to form a new secret police force before the nation's first multiparty elections in May.

"Through May 6, no offices will be created in this area," Premier Hans Modrow said, referring to election day and the controversial plan. Members of East Germany's 500-member Parliament responded with a round of applause.

Elections set

PRAHA, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Opposition leaders and Communist officials have tentatively set national elections for June, government television reported.

"According to unofficial information, the first round of (parliamentary) elections should take place on June 8," Czechoslovak TV said Thursday.

The report came as the Communists, other political parties and the opposition Civic Forum met to review procedures for the elections and the status of independent political parties.

Amarillo officials: plant will likely avert more layoffs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pantex could avert another round of layoffs if Congress decides to spend $12 million this year to begin correcting safety and environmental problems at the nuclear weapons assembly plant in Amarillo, city officials say.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, says the Energy Department would be asking Congress to reprogram $40 million in current funding for cleaning up its nuclear weapons plants — including $12 million to $13 million for Pantex.

The only final assembly point for the nation's nuclear weapons, Pantex has been criticized by two independent groups for safety, environmental and health deficiencies.

A report by one group — DOE's "tiger team" — prompted Secretary James D. Watkins to order the plant to move immediately to ensure workers are protected from emergency and routine exposures to radioactive releases.

The tiger team found the plant's radiation protection program was "generally inadequate" and that Pantex was not adequately monitoring its impact on the underlying Ogallala aquifer, practically the only source of usable water for Texas' largest irrigated farming region.

Pantex, Amarillo's second-largest employer after the local school district, recently announced layoffs of 138 workers. Officials said at the time that more jobs could be lost as the plant attempts to address those concerns and others.

That scenario, however, could be averted if Congress allows the Department of Energy to reprogram $40 million, including $12 million for Pantex, said Amarillo Mayor Keith Adams. The $12 million would be in addition to the plant's budget of $127 million this year.

Adams, City Manager John Ward, and City Commissioners Kel Seliger and John McKissack, concerned about the plant's future and potential job reductions, met with congressional and DOE officials to discuss Pantex on Thursday.

After those meetings, Adams said he does not believe the lost jobs could be salvaged — given the budget situation — but was confident more layoffs could be avoided. The plant employs 2,500.

Adams said taking care of safety and the environment could actually create additional jobs and "result in some other economic benefits for the Amarillo area."

Gramm, who met with the Amarillo delegation, said the plant's ability to address environmental and safety problems would be key to its survival as a part of the nation's nuclear weapons complex.

State education board members endorse school finance plan

AUSTIN (AP) — A school finance reform plan that would increase spending by $945 million next school year and $5.2 billion in five years was endorsed with an 11-3 vote by State Board of Education members.

The board, which met as a committee Thursday, developed the plan after the Texas Supreme Court ruled the current finance system is unconstitutional.

The plan, which has a five-year price tag of about $15 billion, will be considered again by the board Saturday before a recommendation is made to the Legislature, which convenes in special session Feb. 27.

"I don't think that we realistically can ask for everything that we have in our plan today and expect the Legislature to feel like it's realistic to ask for it," said board Chairman Monte Hasie of Lubbock, who voted against the plan with Jane Nelson of Lewisville and John Shields of San Antonio.

Board member Will Davis of Austin said new funding is essential to address the ruling by the Supreme Court, which found large disparities between property-rich and poor school districts. The court gave lawmakers a May 1 deadline for action.

"We can either put money into the low-wealth districts and raise them up to an acceptable level, or you can lower the level of those districts that are spending in excess of a substantially equal program," Davis said, calling the latter choice "disastrous."

The simplest application of suit

No new trial

SHERMAN, Texas (AP) - A district judge has ruled that death row inmate Lester Leroy Bower Jr. should not get a new trial in the slayings of four men nor a stay of his scheduled Jan. 31 execution date.

District Judge Jim Fry made the ruling Thursday in the case of Lester Leroy Bower Jr., who is scheduled to die by injection Jan. 31 in the shooting deaths of four men found slain in an ultralight hangar in Grayson County Oct. 8, 1983.

The victims were Phillip H. Good, Jerry Mac Brown, Ronald H. Mayes and Bob G. Tate. Tate's widow and son discovered the bodies in the hangar at the B&B Ranch northeast of Sherman.

The judge ruled that Bower's defense team had failed to make "a reliable claim that a new witness could produce evidence which would clear Bower."

In a letter to defense and prosecution attorneys, Fry said that he would recommend the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals deny Bower's request to be freed.

In a death row interview with the Sherman Democrat Dec. 17, Bower said even he didn't know the identity of the witness. The defense attorneys had told Fry the witness' life would be jeopardized if identified.

preference occurs when a defender is leading a suit that he expects his partner to ruff. In that circumstance, leading a high-ranking card asks partner to return the higher-ranking suit for communication purposes; leading a low-ranking card suggests that the lower-ranking suit will provide the needed entry for another ruff. But there are other applications of the basic concept.

Against two hearts, West led the king of diamonds. When East played the deuce, West next led the club ace. East played the eight and declarer followed with the queen. West played another club; dummy's jack won the trick, and East followed with the 10. Now came the 10 of hearts from dummy, and West won the king. Just in case his partner had started with a singleton diamond, West now plunked down the diamond ace. East played the eight as South followed with the queen. Having read somewhere that it is dangerous to lead away from a jack, West now continued with a third diamond. South drew trumps and gave up a spade, making two spades.

Of course, West's defense cannot easily be excused, but the point of the deal is that there are times when a defender to suggest a suit when a higher-ranking card, and a partner can make in clubs.

"Parfond State and Defense believe the ace of clubs," said East's declarer. "So I led the king of diamonds, and he had to play the 10 of hearts. That was the end of the deal."

State district judges...

Officials: elections to proceed

AUSTIN (AP) — State officials say they will proceed with regular, at-large elections of state district judges, including the 115 in nine counties where a federal judge earlier ruled such voting racially discriminatory.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals on Thursday blocked a plan for nonpartisan special judicial elections in the nine counties, which previously had been ordered by U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton of Midland.

The appeals court said the Legislature deserves more time to consider changes in the current countywide election system.

State leaders praised the New Orleans appeals court's action.

"This (decision) gives the people and their elected representatives an opportunity for a full and thorough debate on how judges should be selected," said Chief Justice Tom Phillips of the Texas Supreme Court.

Gov. Bill Clements has called the Legislature into a special session Feb. 27 to consider judicial selection and public school finance.

The appeals court blocked special, nonpartisan elections in May that had been ordered by Bunton for Bexar, Dallas, Tarrant, Harris, Travis, Midland, Ector, Lubbock and Jefferson counties.

Bunton ruled last year that at-large judicial elections in the counties diluted the strength of black and Hispanic voters and violated the U.S. Voting Rights Act.

The League of United Latin American Citizens called the appellate ruling a setback. But LULAC President Jose Garcia de Lara said it is part of the due process of law.

"We are very optimistic," he said. "This is not a point of despair or devastation, (but) we feel we have taken a couple of steps backward on the issue."

LULAC and other minority groups filed a lawsuit challenging the at-large system in 1988.

De Lara said LULAC doesn't believe lawmakers will solve the judicial elections dilemma in the next session. Even if they do, there's no guarantee Clements would go along, he said.

"Quite frankly, the governor has demonstrated that he is thoroughly against the people of the neighborhoods voting for their own judges," de Lara said.

LULAC will consider seeking an injunction to halt the March elections, he said.

Demo candidates unveil plans for school financing

AUSTIN (AP) — Two Democratic candidates for governor blasted Gov. Bill Clements over public school finance, but declined to predict how much money will be needed to fix the school funding system that has been declared unconstitutional.

Although public school experts say billions of dollars more will be needed to equalize funding between rich and poor schools, State Treasurer Ann Richards said, "It's premature for us to extrapolate what the costs will be."

Texas Attorney General also criticized high-dollar proposals by education officials and the Equity Center, which represents poor school districts.

"They are plans that are a wish list. We're not going to solve the education problems in the state by just throwing money," he said.

Mattox, Richards and former Gov. Mark White are vying for the Democratic nomination for governor in the March 13 primary.

Mattox said a lottery, merging of some state agencies, attracting more federal dollars and using oil overcharge monies could provide enough funds to narrow disparities between rich and poor school districts.

Richards said her education plan would produce $600 million to $800 million and serve as a temporary solution before lawmakers could meet next year in a regular legislative session.

She would pay for her plan by taking $154.4 million from the Capitol restoration project and seeking voter approval to finance the project with bonds. Her plan also dips into the state's rainy day fund and oil overcharges and counts on $100 million to $300 million from economic growth.

Both Richards and Mattox called for pay raises for teachers, improving health insurance benefits and giving teachers more say in school operations.

Mattox's education plan also calls for extending the school year and more emphasis on preschooling.

Mattox said the lottery would provide $700 million per year and take only five to seven months to implement, but Richards criticized this proposal, saying a lottery would be "an unstable source of revenue."

As an example of streamlining state government, Mattox said the Treasurer's Office and Comptroller's Office could be combined, although he added that he wasn't advocating that position.

In response, Treasurer Richards said: "I would suggest to you that consolidation of agencies, or responsibilities, does not always produce the most effective management. I couldn't give you a better example than the attorney general's office in the collection of child support."

LAFF-A-DAY

"Yes, the special effects were great, but no more 'Show and Tell' for you!"

Dr. Gott

Peter Gott, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTTL: I'm a 63-year-old and have taken various medications for high blood pressure over the past 10 years. Lately, I've noticed a slight puffiness around my ankles at the end of the day. My doctor says this is "tired" or "aging" veins and there is no indication of heart failure. Should I seek a second opinion?

DEAR READER: Ankle puffiness (edema) usually indicates the presence of excess fluid in the tissues. It's more noticeable at the end of the day because, in people with this condition, gravity draws the fluid downward. Ordinarily, by morning (or after elevation of the feet), the swelling disappears, only to return again during the day.

Ankle edema does not necessarily reflect heart failure, the buildup of extra fluid from a weak heart action. It is common in hot environments (where people naturally retain more salt and water) and can result from faulty blood flow in leg veins (causing pooling of fluid by gravity).

In addition, certain medicines (such as beta-blockers) for hypertension can cause a small degree of ankle edema.

If you have no symptoms of heart failure (difficulty breathing during exercise or shortness of breath when lying down) and your doctor has examined you and pronounced your heart fit, I do not believe you need a second opinion.

Nonetheless, if you feel below par or continue to be concerned, a second opinion is in order. Or perhaps your doctor would consider changing your medicine to another type that is not associated with ankle edema.

To give you more information on your condition, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Hypertension." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTTL: Why are some women so small-busted? Could this be caused by a defect in the genes? While working with learning-disabled children, I've noticed that many of their mothers were very small-busted, and that some of their mothers had physically handicapped children. Is there a connection?

DEAR READER: Breast size is genetically governed, but I am not aware of a relation between small breasts and physical/mental handicaps. Although some handicaps are hereditary or congenital, the affected genes are different from those that control breast growth.

To answer your first question, some women have small breasts because they were born that way — in the same fashion some men inherit small penises. That's OK. It's normal for people to vary in size and shape.

Bentsen to hold trade talks in Soviet Union

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, the chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, will conduct trade talks with Soviet officials in Moscow next week, his office says.

Bentsen, D-Texas, whose committee has jurisdiction over international trade matters in the Senate, was invited by Soviet government officials.

Under current law, a U.S. trade agreement with the Soviet Union would come before the Finance Committee for approval, according to Bentsen's office.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III told Bentsen's committee at a hearing last fall that the United States could see restrictions on Soviet trade lifted within the year, if Moscow writes its new emigration policy into law.

"I think it is important that we actively explore increased commercial relations as one way to encourage this (improvements in emigration law)," Bentsen said.

Bentsen said the United States needs assurances that U.S. firms would have access to Soviet consumers.

CHRISTMAS VACATIONMinisters, rabbis...*Many favor women's abortion right

AUSTIN (AP) — Dozens of local ministers and three rabbis are publicly supporting women's right to abortion, saying life and freedom of choice are two divine gifts.

Clergy for Responsible Reproductive Choice purchased a newspaper advertisement to air that views because it's time to "end the silence of the mainline churches" on the issue, said the Rev. Jim Rigby, a Presbyterian minister.

"No one here is pro-abortion. We all believe in preserving life whenever possible," Rigby said at a Thursday news conference.

However, he said, "Many people get in situations where pregnancy takes a woman beyond her resources ... We believe that women are capable of making their own ethical choices."

Denominations represented by 77 clergy signing the half-page ad to run in Friday's Austin American-Statesman include Episcopal, Methodist, Jewish, Presbyterian and United Church of Christ, Rigby said.

The matter of abortion inevitably involves a conflict between the gift of life and the gift of freedom to choose, regardless of the precise point when one believes a human embryo becomes a human being," says the statement by the group.

Making such ethical decisions for another person is not "in keeping with the message of the Bible as a whole, nor in harmony with God's gift of freedom that is inherent in the sanctity of human life," it says.

The statement sets boundaries on the group's support of the right to abortion, saying it is not ethical to choose abortion to select a child's sex or as a primary means of birth control.

It says that "the gift of life should take increasing primacy over the gift of freedom" as a pregnancy comes closer to term, and gives support to legislation that restricts abortion after viability, when the fetus is able to survive outside the womb.

Unwanted pregnancy, and the accompanying conflict, "may usually be prevented by the prudent use of birth control," the statement adds. It supports sex education and the availability of birth control.

Farm assistance guidelines released

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rio Grande Valley farmers whose crops were devastated by last month's cold snap are eligible for federal disaster relief if they lost at least half of production and intended to harvest the produce by year's end, according to the Agriculture Department.

But farmers who did not expect to harvest crops until this spring would not qualify for disaster relief, although they would be eligible for lesser assistance from USDA, according to the guidelines, which were provided to House Agriculture Committee Chairman Kika de la Garza.

A congressional source said a "significant number" of producers could be affected if USDA decides not to cover crops that would have been harvested later this year, although officials were still attempting to determine the precise impact.

In the guidelines, released

Thursday to de la Garza by Agriculture Secretary Clayton Yeutter's office, USDA said oranges that matured in November and December would be considered a 1989 crop even though the producer intended to pick only half the produce in 1989 and the remainder in 1990.

USDA said it also would help commercial tree growers who experienced losses last year due to the freeze. Assistance would be provided to help them remove dead trees and with site preparation and stand re-establishment. Emergency assistance for livestock producers would also be available, to help with feed grain purchases, the guidelines said. The help is available through the Disaster Assistance Act of 1989.

De la Garza, a Democrat whose district includes part of the Rio Grande Valley, said he intended watch to closely USDA's efforts to assist affected farmers.

"I intend to monitor the delivery of assistance to the people in our area to ensure claims are processed as quickly as possible and to determine if additional measures are needed," de la Garza said.

Gays welcome AG's ruling

AUSTIN (AP) — Gay leaders are hailing an announcement by Attorney General Jim Mattox that the Texas Department of Health may not deny funds to gay and lesbian organizations.

"It would be an incredible waste of taxpayers' money to not use frontline AIDS organizations," said Dallas Gay Alliance spokesman William Waybourn Thursday. "Gay agencies were the first to respond to this epidemic."

The AIDS Resource Center in Dallas, under the rules, was denied $53,000 in funds for a food pantry that serves AIDS patients.

More than 400 AIDS patients in Dallas County receive food from the AIDS Resource Center's food pantry, which has a $180,000 budget for 1990.

The state had previously helped finance some center programs, but health department guidelines denied money to groups with homosexuals on their governing boards or trying to change state sodomy laws.

"The attorney general has said the Texas Department of Health guidelines on funding were wrong," said John Thomas, executive director of the AIDS Resource Center in Dallas.

"We're hopeful we'll have full funding to operate the food pantry," said Thomas, who was not sure when a decision on funding would be made by the Texas Department of Health.

In a seven-page opinion, Mat-tox said Thursday Texas law is clear in denying grants "to entities that advocate or promote conduct that violates state law." However, he said, lobbying governmental bodies to change laws is not advocating illegal conduct.

"Lobbying activity, identified in the proposed (health department) guidelines as activity that disqualifies an organization from receiving grant funds, is a ... protected form of free speech," the opinion said.

Embassy report: U.S. could learn from Dutch approach

WASHINGTON (AP) — American diplomats in The Hague say the United States might learn something about drug policy in Holland — where some bars attract customers with marijuana-leaf signs but where drug abuse appears sharply limited.

A report from the U.S. Embassy said American officials should examine more closely the Dutch system in which some "soft" drugs such as marijuana are tolerated and drug abuse is treated as a health problem.

"In light of our own problems, a ... goal for U.S. policy-makers might be an educational" approach, said the report, dated May 26 and made available this week to The Associated Press.

"It is unlikely that many elements of Dutch drug policy successfully could be wrenching out of their social and cultural contexts," the report said. "However, certain of the mechanics such as low-threshold therapy, mobile treatment units, and needle exchange might well be adaptable to the American reality."

Decriminalization of some drugs has been a growing issue in the United States as drug abuse — and related violence — has grown, especially in inner cities. Former Secretary of State George Shultz and U.S. District Judge Robert W. Sweet of New York are among prominent officials who have said the idea should be seriously studied.

William J. Bennett, the U.S. drug policy coordinator, adamantly opposes any move toward decriminalization, calling it "stupid and morally atrocious." He says providing clean needles to addicts "muddies the message" even though medical experts have said the sharing of dirty needles has contributed greatly to the spread of AIDS.

The Netherlands strictly enforces laws against drugs such as cocaine, heroin, LSD and amphetamines, but tolerates use of drugs such as marijuana and hashish.

"We just don't push people underground," said Eddy Engelsman, the director of drug policy in the Netherlands. "That's why in Holland, you see coffee shops where you can buy small amounts of hashish."

The result, Engelsman said in a telephone interview Thursday, is a very low rate of drug use. A study done in December 1988 showed that in the 10-to-18 age bracket, only 1.8 percent said they had used cannabis in the previous month, he said.

By contrast, a recent survey of almost 400,000 U.S. students in grades six through 12 by the National Parents' Resource Institute for Drug Education Inc. found 9.1 percent of students had smoked marijuana in the previous month.

"We think the drug problem is a normal problem, like a lot of other social and health problems," said Engelsman, who heads the Dutch Ministry of Health's Alcohol, Drugs and Tobacco branch. "That's why I'm also responsible for alcohol and tobacco policy."

Traffic congestion frustrating and expensive, survey reveals

DALLAS (AP) — Sitting in traffic is more than frustrating. It is also expensive, according to a survey by the Texas Transportation Institute, which concluded traffic jams in 29 cities cost drivers more than $24 billion — and that didn't include such notoriously gridlocked cities as New York, Chicago or Boston.

A companion survey of business leaders in 13 of the cities found 51 percent who said traffic affected their business, and of those 88 percent said the impact had been negative.

"Traffic congestion, expected during the 'rush' hour, can now be encountered much of the day on one or more major freeways in almost all large urban areas," said the study, funded by state and federal highway departments.

"Traffic congestion has emerged as an important urban issue at a time when varying amounts of funds are available to address the need for expanded transportation infrastructure."

The congestion survey by the institute based at Texas A&M University reviewed existing traffic data for 1986 in seven Texas cities and 22 outside the state.

New York, Chicago, Boston and Washington, D.C., were left out because researchers were looking for "automobile-based cities" comparable to those in Texas.

"Mobility, for almost all Americans, is defined by the automobile," the study said. "In many cities with significant population growth since 1950, interstate freeway construction and other federal and state projects provided excellent urban mobility during the 1960s and 1970s."

"Many urban areas can attribute the rapid increase in population and economic development, in part, to the good transportation system provided ... in newer, less dense cities," the study said.

"A relative slowdown in roadway construction in Texas, and other states, during the 1970s, however, did not allow street and freeway supply to keep pace with increasing demand."

Los Angeles was the most congested city in the survey, followed by San Francisco-Oakland, Houston, Phoenix and Atlanta. The least congested were Kansas City, Mo., Oklahoma City, Okla., Corpus Christi and El Paso, Texas, Memphis, Tenn., and Salt Lake City, Utah.

The rankings were based on a congestion index, which takes into account the number of miles traveled daily compared to the available highways.

A separate congestion cost index figured in such things as delays — based on $8.20 an hour in salary, plus increased fuel costs and higher insurance costs in the congested areas.

Again Los Angeles topped the list, costing $9.44 billion, more than a third of it in higher insurance premiums. Next came San Francisco-Oakland, $2.69 billion; Houston, $1.67 billion; Miami, $1.3 billion; and Dallas, $1.1 billion.

At the bottom were Corpus Christi, $20 million; El Paso, $40 million; Indianapolis, $65 million; Salt Lake City, $70 million; and Albuquerque, N.M., $15 million.

"The study was performed in order to help planners and city administrators, to give them some information they can use," said researcher Diane Bullard. "It's easy to talk about congestion, but if you don't have any hard figures, it is more difficult to do something about it."

"We've known that there was a problem for a long time," said researcher James Hanks Jr. "This points out how important the infrastructure is."

"History," said Henry Ford, "is more or less bunk."

Snyder boys, girls to battle Monahans

The Tigers host Monahans tonight, putting their undefeated, 4-0, district basketball record on the line while the Lady Tigers travel to Monahans to battle the Lady Lobos.

Snyder's boys are fresh off a 52-34 win over San Angelo Lake View Tuesday.

All-District wingman, Tracy Braziel, was the leading scorer in the Snyder win with 18 points.

The Chiefs kept the game close the first half but the Tigers pulled away in the third and bolted to the finish with a 17-8 advantage in the final period.

Monahans, 10-9 on the season and 1-3 in loop competition, is currently tied for fifth place in District 4-4A.

They boast seven returning lettermen from last season's 8-19 squad including four starters, one of which is 6-2 sophomore Craig Abercrombie.

Abercrombie was tabbed by the Texas Association of Basketball Coaches as a preseason pick to win all-district honors at the end of the 1989-90 campaign.

Other returning starters include 5-9 junior Steve Ward, 6-3 sophomore Sal Sanchez and Danny Reeves, a 6-2 senior.

The Lobos' last outing was a 69-62 loss to Andrews Tuesday.

The Lady Tigers, 11-9 over-all and 3-3 in district games, will face a Monahans team that is resting in the 4-4A cellar.

The Lady Lobos are winless in six tries in district play and are 6-15 in all games played.

They were slaughtered by Andrews Tuesday, 61-36, in their last game.

Snyder, on the other hand, is coming off one of its best efforts of the season in a 58-50 victory over the Maidens of Lake View.

Anne Osborn slipped in 17 points and Robbie Braziel scored 10 to pace the SHS girls in the win.

Snyder held a six-point lead at the half against the Maidens.

Lake View battled back to within a point after three periods when Snyder went to work picking the LVHS full-court press apart scoring on several easy buckets after beating the pressure downcourt.

The varsity boys will play Monahans at the Scurry County Coliseum at 7:30.

The girls varsity will also tip-off at 7:30.

Both JV battles will begin at 6 p.m.

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Two years ago, owner Al Davis of the Los Angeles Raiders said if Pittsburgh Steelers fans didn't quiet down during the Pro Football Hall of Fame induction

Last year, Davis patched things up by telling Steelers fans, "You showed me. You moved the Hall of Fame to Three Rivers

Stallings is named 'Bama head coach

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP) — Gene Stallings, who played and coached under Alabama legend Paul "Bear" Bryant, Thursday was named head coach of the Crimson Tide with a promise to "carry on the tradition."

Stallings, who coached at Texas A&M and in the NFL as a Dallas Cowboys assistant before being fired last season as head coach of the Phoenix Cardinals, was joined at a news conference by a gathering of former Alabama stars, including former Dallas Cowboy Lee Roy Jordan and Bart Starr of the NFL Green Bay Packers.

The news conference was called to introduce Stallings, who was picked to succeed Bill Curry and restore Bryant-style unity to the football program, which Curry left Sunday to take the reins at Kentucky.

"You know, I'm not Coach Bryant," Stallings said. "Everybody has to coach their own personality."

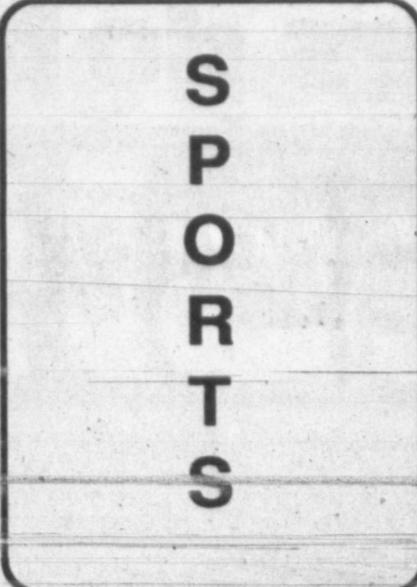

But he recounted the strong influence Bryant had on him as a player and coach, and he said that moving into Bryant's old role is "dream come true."

Alabama President Roger Sayers and Athletic Director Hootie Ingram called the news conference to end a four-day guessing game over who would step into the role once held by Bryant, who won five national titles during his 25 years as the Alabama coach, 1958-1982.

Some Alabama people were unhappy that Curry, who coached the Tide for three seasons, had not played for or coached under Bryant, and insisted that his successor have a Bryant tie-in. Curry resigned despite leading Alabama to a 10-2 record, a share of the Southeastern Conference crown and winning SEC Coach of the Year honors himself.

"This is a time to look to the future instead of trying to second-guess the past," said Sayers.

Stallings did not mention Curry by name, but he commended

Dusters drop 72-59 conference contest

ODESSA — WTC's Lady Dusters were dealt their second conference loss in three tries Thursday as they fell to last year's co-champion Lady Wranglers, 72-59.

The first half was a close affair, ending with the score set at 32-29 in favor of Odessa College.

The Lady Wranglers caught fire in the second half outscoring WTC, 40-30, in the last 20 minutes.

Tami Wilson was the offensive leader for the Dusters pouring in 23 points in the loss.

Wilson hit 10 hoops from the field and three of four free throws for her tally.

Carla Gladden contributed 17 points followed by Bobbie Brown with 10.

Patricia Rivers paced the OC women with 17 points. Twanda Wilson registered 16 for the Lady Wranglers.

Western Texas is now 13-5 on the season and 1-2 in Western Junior College Athletic Conference games.

Odessa is 18-3 and 2-1.

The Lady Dusters have precious little time to worry

WTC loses to Odessa Wranglers allow Westerners just 76 points

ODESSA — The Westerners of WTC had been averaging well over 100 points per outing. Somebody forgot to tell the Odessa College Wranglers about that.

The OC crew held WTC 30 points under their per-game average in a 92-76 Western Junior College Athletic Conference win.

The Westerners, now 13-5 and 2-2 in conference play, were down by just eight, 43-35, at the half before Odessa put the game away with a 49-point second half highlighted by six three-point buckets by sophomore Pat Nash.

Jeff Shelley, Kenneth Critton and Ray Johnson all contributed 13 points to the Westerners' cause followed by Dominic Byrd's 11.

Western Texas hit for five three-point goals, including two from Cedric Mason and one each from Shelley, Johnson and Alfred Porter.

The Westerners shot a barely respectable 60 percent from the free-throw line Thursday, hitting 15 of 25 attempts. Odessa hit 19 of 25 for 76 percent.

Nash had 35 points for the Wranglers on 12 hoops and a five of seven performance from the line.

Lynn Collins added 17 for Odessa.

The Westerners are on the road again Monday as they travel to Roswell, N.M. for a 7:30 MST battle with New Mexico Military Institute.

The Dusters resume WJCAC competition next Thursday as South Plains College comes to Snyder.

Fresh cagers fall to S'water

Snyder's freshmen boys dropped a tight battle to Sweetwater, 55-51, in their opening round game at the Big Spring Tournament Thursday.

Sweetwater took a 30-22 lead going in at the half and extended the difference to 44-35 after three quarters.

The Tigers came on with 16 points in the fourth period, including nine by Stephen Bollinger but the Mustangs held on for the win with 11 points of their own.

Bollinger was high scorer for the Tigers with 26 points on the evening. He hit 10 buckets from the floor, including a three-point goal, and went 5-11 from the free-throw line.

The freshmen will play Saturday morning against the loser of the Andrews-Stanton JV contest.

The game will begin at 8:30 a.m. starting competition on the last day of play in the tourney.

Administration derides Democratic tax cut for Social Security program

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush is opposing a proposal sure to prove politically appealing in this congressional election year — a cut in Social Security payroll taxes.

White House rejection of a plan by Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., to roll back Social Security taxes is drawing criticism from business and conservative groups, traditional sources of support for the administration.

Bush is traveling today to Cincinnati to address the local Chamber of Commerce in a speech that aides said would highlight his unfinished agenda, including his battle for a lower capital gains tax rate.

The parent organization, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, has been a longtime Bush ally on the capital gains cut. But the group said Thursday that it would also welcome lower Social Security taxes — despite Bush's objections.

Don Levin, director of federal budget policy for the national business organization, called the Moynihan proposal "a positive first step" toward strengthening the Social Security system.

Although the chamber has concerns about paying for such a tax cut, Levin said the administration and "Republicans in general" would be "missing a golden opportunity" by not backing it.

"How can you go against such a good idea? It's a populist idea. And it will do a lot of good for economic growth," Levin said.

Bush was not expected to address the Social Security issue directly in his speech today, aides said.

While in Cincinnati, the president also planned to visit a high school and speak with students.

On Thursday, Bush spokesman Marlin Fitzwater was asked about the Moynihan proposal — in light of Bush's repeated opposition to higher taxes.

"We don't anticipate any changes in Social Security. Democrats seem to want to fiddle around with the Social Security system; we do not," Fitzwater said.

"Mr. Moynihan's got a lot of ideas, and we'll let the Democrats have those ideas."

Moynihan would cancel the Jan. 1 increase that raised the Social Security tax rate to 7.65 percent from 7.51 percent. The tax covers both retirement and Medicare programs.

The rate would then decrease even further, to 6.55 percent, on Jan. 1, 1991. Moynihan says large surpluses in the Social Security trust funds justify the rollback, which he calls a "$55 billion tax cut for working people."

Moynihan's proposal would reduce the rate paid by both employees and employers.

Social Security taxes jumped this year by as much as $320 — the increase paid by Americans with salaries of $51,300 or more. At $48,000 and below, the increase is 0.14 percent, or $67 for someone earning $48,000; $42 for someone earning $30,000, $28 for someone earning $20,000, and so on.

"So the president doesn't like our tax cut?" asked Moynihan aide Ed Lopez when asked about the negative White House response.

Lopez said Moynihan intends to introduce the legislation Jan. 23, when Congress returns from its winter recess.

high school principal Rueben Gillespie, trustees also approved the implementation of the Advance Placement Program and $2,000 to fund it.

The program allows exceptional students to take college-level courses in the high school classroom. Upon successfully completing the course, a student would receive high school credit. The student could then take a test which, upon passing, would earn college credit. The courses are currently transferable to about 40 colleges in the state.

Gillespie asked for and received approval to institute Advanced Placement courses in biology, calculus and English beginning next school year, and to send three teachers to two-day preparatory workshops. The teachers are Thomas Strayhorn (biology), Sharrylon Vestal (English) and Jamie Hall (calculus).

Attending the meeting was Western Texas College President Dr. Harry Krenek. He told the board that WTC does not currently accept Advanced Placement courses for credit but noted "we're pretty much obligated to do what other colleges do" and said he believes the college will accept them in the future.

Under the topic of informational items, Superintendent Dalton Moseley advised the board of a teacher workshop on Friday, Jan. 19 which will be a student holiday, and of a 7:30 p.m. financial aid workshop on Feb. 1 for parents and students.

Arrest made

A 20-year-old Snyder man was arrested at 9:49 p.m. Thursday in an apartment in the 100 block of Ave. U on a misdemeanor charge of intent to commit a child abuse offense.

Wreck leaves men injured

Two young Grand Prairie men were injured when a late model GMC van went out of control and clipped numerous times at 9:50 a.m. today a mile north of the Bobo Hwy off U.S. 84.

Jimmy D. Moore and Todd Fischer, both 19, were taken by ambulance to Cogdell Memorial Hospital and were being treated in the hospital emergency room near midday.

Moore was reported to have been driving the southbound van, which went off the right side of the road and finally came to rest on its right side against a barbed wire fence well off the roadside. A Texas Department of Public Safety trooper was investigating the accident.

Griffin at home with First Christian family

The model of small churches is family, and Dr. Tim Griffin, pastor of First Christian Church, is proud of his family, a congregation of some 160 members.

Dr. Griffin said he rather likes preaching to basically the same group of people each Sunday. "We often have to call on the same people to do things, but we also get to know each other pretty well," he said.

The family model is the most important model for the human race. When we start regarding one another as family, therein lies hope for the human race," he added. Thinking of the world as a family, Dr. Griffin said learning to live with different ideologies, religions and political preferences is a key factor, just as in the biological family.

"Families learn to make due with their differences. As we move into the third millennium, I hope to see more nations acting with a greater degree of maturity toward one another," he said.

Dr. Griffin is proud of "excellent high school education," in Corpus Christi. He attended Texas Christian University and received a bachelor's degree in religion from the University of Chicago in 1967. He received a doctorate degree from Baylor University in December of 1988.

Chicago provided Dr. Griffin with an entirely different situation than he was used to. He had highly recognized teachers and a look at different religions. Students and teachers were from all denominations as well as Buddhism and Hinduism. He said he treasures the broadness of his education.

Dr. Griffin's first pastored a church in Birmingham, Ala.

He met his wife, Donna, in San Angelo, and they lived in Waco where he pastored a church, before moving to Snyder. Dr. Griffin was the interim preacher at First Christian for a year before taking the position of full-time pastor. He commuted each weekend from Waco, and never had trouble with the weather.

"I am profoundly grateful that the weather just fit right in with my commutes," he said. Winter storms came during the week and the roads were clear for his weekend drives to Snyder.

Dr. Griffin explained his ecumenical vision of the church as being somewhat like a family.

The church is basically one, made up of many members. We are one small part of the great church and we want to work with other churches in Snyder," he said.

The Griffins have two daughters, Marcie, a freshman at Snyder High School, and Lindsey, a sixth grader at West Elementary. Mrs. Griffin is a fourth grade teacher at East Elementary.

Gospel singer has her fourth child

ANDERSON, Ind. (AP) — Sandi Patti, the 1989 female gospel singer of the year, has given birth to her fourth child, a baby girl.

Erin Michelle was born Thursday morning, weighing 8 pounds, 11 ounces, a family spokesman said.

Patti has repeatedly won Gospel Music Association awards as one of the nation's leading gospel singers. She plans on spending some time at home and has not scheduled a tour until the spring of 1991.

"It's not that I'm just saying 'no' to everything this year, it's just that I need to say 'yes' to my family right now," said Patti.

Jet apparently struck by rifle shot on training run

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A rifle shot apparently struck an Air Force jet during a training mission earlier this week, officials at Carswell Air Force Base said.

A bullet hole was discovered during a post-flight inspection of a jet that had traveled from Fort Worth to Air Force bases near Shreveport, La., and Oklahoma City, said 2nd Lt. Nori LaRue-Musgrave.

We're assuming it was a high-powered rifle of some sort, Ms. LaRue-Musgrave told The Dallas Morning News on Wednesday. There was a portion of a bullet, but it's a small portion, a little bit smaller than a dime.

The two men aboard the flight on Tuesday did not know the plane had been shot until the hole was discovered, Ms. LaRue-Musgrave said.

Dear Abby

Alzheimer's Disease Hurts Spouse as Well as Patient

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1990 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Our mother has gone from a loving, caring wife, mother and grandmother to a mean, vindictive, bitter woman. I am one of five children. Our parents raised us all in a loving home, not poor, not rich. All five of us are healthy and successful and have wonderful families. One would think our mother would be proud and grateful for such a loving family. She's not. There is nothing good about life now.

The problem: Our father was diagnosed eight months ago with Alzheimer's, and although he still has most of his faculties, the disease is starting to progress. This has been a terrible blow to all of us, and we realize that it has been a strain on our mother.

Mother's attitude toward Dad frightens us. She resents him and treats him badly — refusing to take him places when she knows he can't drive; refusing to take walks with him when she knows he needs the exercise; refusing to prepare the foods he likes and criticizing everything he attempts to do.

We have offered to hire someone to come in and help, but she refuses our offers. We have offered to stay with Dad so she can get out, but she refuses to leave the house. When our father's illness was diagnosed, we prepared ourselves to deal with him. But how do we deal with her? Have any of your readers found that the caregiver sometimes needs more help than the Alzheimer patient?

THE KIDS

DEAR KIDS: You are right — it's possible that your mother needs more help than your father. To find an Alzheimer's support group in your area, or to get a free informative booklet, send a postcard with your name and address to: Alzheimer's Disease and Related Disorders Association, P.O. Box 5675, Department DA, Chicago, Ill. 60680-5675.

A final thought: When a loving, caring person suddenly becomes mean, vindictive and bitter, there could be a physical reason. I urge you to put your mother in the hands of a physician.

cian — if possible, one who specializes in geriatrics. Good luck!

DEAR ABBY: Please clear up a family disagreement for me. I am the mother of identical twins. My husband's great-aunt had twins, and my in-laws are sure that it is the male that determines twins.

I have always been under the impression that the female determines the number of children in one pregnancy.

Abby, being a twin yourself, maybe you can set me straight so I can explain this to my twins when they are older.

TWICE AS CONFUSED

DEAR TWICE: According to Dr. Ronald S. Ostrowski, our genetics expert, the male determines the sex of the child, but in the case of multiple births (twins, triplets, quadruplets, quintuplets, etc.) the credit goes to the maternal side of the family.

Interestingly enough, sisters of twins are more likely to produce twins; brothers are not — but their daughters are more likely to have twins. (Are you still with me?) The bottom line: Multiple births are hereditary on the mother's side.

CONFIDENTIAL TO YOU: "The ultimate in bad manners is to look at your watch while someone is talking." (Forbes magazine)
