Stenholm previews Farm Bill

Congress writes a farm bill only once every five years and may have the latest, the 1990 Farm Bill, ready for presidential consideration by August, U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm said here Monday.

The Stamford Democrat told his "Ag Day" audience at the county coliseum that he is concerned the Bush Administration may want to use agriculture to bear a disproportionate burden of cost-cutting, and he said he will work to retain target prices and other successful features of the 1985 Farm Bill.

He said one success of the '85 bill was that it has resulted in taking 34 million acres out of production for 10 years, remarking that agriculture is no different from other industries in that it must "control its inventory," or limit how much it keeps on hand for sale.

Referring to recent governmental changes behind the Iron Curtain, Stenholm said, "The same country that Nikita Khrushchev said would bury us is itself being buried, and the main reason is that they couldn't feed their own people."

The congressman said House sub-committees are at work on the 1990 Farm Bill and will move to get a bill to President Bush this late summer, although the task has traditionally taken until late in the year.

The second annual Ag Day was sponsored by the agricultural committee of the chamber of commerce, and it was estimated that 400 people ate barbecue and heard Stenholm at noon.

No opposition for proposed $3.6 million treatment plant

A public hearing concerning a proposed sewage treatment plant passed uneventfully here Monday as only a handful of citizens attended and none expressed opposition.

John Kelley of the Lubbock engineering firm of Parkhill, Smith & Cooper made the presentation on the project, which is estimated to cost $3.6 million. The project would be paid for through a low-interest loan from the State Revolving Fund.

Kelley estimated that the average monthly residential sewer bill could increase by $4.83.

Kelley said the original plant was constructed in 1950 and its condition has deteriorated to the point where many of its mechanical parts need to be replaced.

The engineer also told those in attendance that upgrading the existing plant would cost more in the long term because of recently modified stream segment standards and more stringent effluent limitations imposed by the Texas Water Commission. The proposed project would meet specifications into the future and would result in a much better quality of effluent discharged to Deep Creek, he said.

The proposal would call for abandonment of the existing plant, but locating the new plant immediately south of the same site.

"There will be some short-term environmental impact, but it will be limited to the construction itself," said Kelley. "The long-term effects are largely positive, including a better effluent quality discharged to Deep Creek, which is a concern of residents living downstream."

He said construction would be limited to the existing plant site and the remainder of the land could be restored to its original form.

"The negatives to the environment are limited to noise, traffic and disruption of the soil," he said. "These are all temporary."

He concluded by telling the small audience that the firm is recommending the new plant (see PLANT, page 8)

Walton files for another term on board

Snyder public schools board of trustees District 5 incumbent Ann Walton Monday afternoon became the fourth person to file as a candidate in the school and college board elections and city council election coming up May 5.

Walton will be running for a second term. She joins District 4 incumbent Billy Bob McMullen as two of three school board trustees who have announced their intentions to run for a second term. Ygnacio Benitez, who represents District 1, had not yet filed this morning.

Monday was the first day to file in the board elections. The filing period ends March 21.

Two men, Bill Wilson Jr. and Roy Baze, are seeing their six-year terms on the college board (see CANDIDATES, page 8)

Scurry County paid $80,560 for housing federal inmates

Scurry County Commissioners today learned that the county has received payment for housing federal inmates in the local jail and that the Jayton-Girard school district disapproved a boundary change in which it would gain some Snyder ISD property.

Jayton board of trustees last month unanimously voted to disapprove a detachment annexation petition which asked for the portion of Snyder Independent School District lying inside Kent County to be annexed into the Jayton-Girard district.

The District of Columbia Department of Corrections has sent two checks, totalling $80,560.38 for payment of services rendered by the sheriff's office for keeping federal prisoners in the county jail.

One check was for housing, while another was for medical expenses during October and November. County Judge Bobby Goodwin said that Sheriff Keith Collier reported that payment for December and January medical expenses should follow now that the D.C. Department of Corrections is in the "paying mode."

Goodwin suggested to commissioners that they consider a plan of action for the county swimming pool located in Towle Park.

The commissioners decided to close the pool at the end of last summer.

Goodwin suggested that one commissioner design a plan stating what the county should do with the pool. C.D. Gray Jr. was chosen for the task. It was suggested that the pool may be leased by an individual and that the individual would be responsible for paying liability insurance which will cost in the neighborhood of $1,200 yearly, according to (see PAYMENT, page 8)

Winter storm moves through the state; some snow expected from local, wire reports

As much as 6-12 inches of snow may fall across the Texas Panhandle as a winter storm moves through the area, the National Weather Service says.

Forecasts for the Snyder area were not as drastic, but area residents are advised of a 50 percent chance of showers today, possibly turning to snow near morning. The area low is expected in the mid 30s with north winds of 10 to 20 miles per hour.

A winter storm warning was issued for the Panhandle through tonight and a snow advisory was issued for the South Plains, where forecasters say as much as 3-5 inches of snow may fall.

Rain, ice pellets and sleet fell in the Panhandle early today as the storm approached. It was expected to turn to snow later in the day as the storm moves in West Texas from New Mexico.

Showers and thunderstorms were expected to be on the increase across the rest of West Texas. The showers and thunderstorms will be spreading into North Texas this evening. There is a slight chance of some freezing precipitation late tonight in western portions of North Texas.

Clouds will be increasing from the west across the state tonight.

Highs Wednesday will be mostly in the 40s and 50s, ranging from the 30s in the Panhandle to the 60s in extreme South Texas. The Snyder area forecast calls for cloudy skies for a high near 50 and continued blowing winds.

Q—When will they begin filling O.J. Ivie Reservoir with water?

A—March 15 is the date approved by the Texas Water Commission.

In Brief

Truck mishap

BIG SPRING, Texas (AP) — Two I-20 bridges remained closed Tuesday after a gasoline tanker truck plunged off one bridge and exploded, killing the driver and seriously damaging the overpasses.

Department of Public Safety officials say driver Mike Stovall, 37, of Big Spring had just filled the tanker with gasoline from a Fina refinery Monday when he lost control of the rig as he tried to avoid a car. The rig ran along a guardrail in the westbound lane for about 300 feet before the rail collapsed and the truck went over the side.

DPS officials have closed both lanes of the bridge and have detoured traffic around the Birdwell Street overpass.

Stink bombs

HOUSTON (AP) — Family planning administrators believe anti-abortion groups are using stink bombs to disrupt clinic services, but at least one pro-life group has denied the claims.

Planned Parenthood spokeswoman Susan Nenney said clinic employees smelled a foul odor at the facility Monday morning. Later in the day, they complained of headaches and scratchy throats.

Administrators said they believe the stink bomb was set off between Friday evening and early Sunday. Similar incidents have occurred three other times each at two area clinics since last June.

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "You can always spot us West Texans—eating with our fingers and talking with our forks."

We tried to make up a convincing story about why the Snyder newspaper guy was invited to be on a selection panel with some big-names in the sports world.

The argument that only macho-types were invited didn't work, and nobody bought the notion that we were representing the world of golf. Now, we'll have to settle for the truth.

Today, we're serving on a panel to select the Fina All-State Scholar-Athlete. Two non-athletes are on the panel—the president of the Texas Press Association and Jack Bell, president of Texas Broadcasters.

The other names you'll probably recognize: Tom Landry, former Dallas Cowboy coach; Warren Moon, Houston Oilers quarterback; Louise Ritter, Olympic gold medalist; Mary Schremph, West German hurdle record-holder and wife of Indiana Pacers cage star Detlef Schremph; Cliff Harris, former Cowboy griddler; Earnest Roberts, assistant commissioner of education; Fred Jacoby, SWC commissioner; Forrest Gregg, SMU head coach; and Brad Sham, voice of the Dallas Cowboys.

The selection was to occur today at the Fina corporate headquarters at Campbell Centre in Dallas. Following the selection process, Roy and ole what's-her-name will have dinner with the other panelists at the Energy Club. It will be interesting to view these folks up close—and maybe we won't knock over the iced tea.

In the small world department, the panel will be hosted by Fina President Ron Haddock. The Fina CEO was a trainee of Snyder's Roy Baze when Baze was a senior vice president with Exxon.

Despite urging from the guys in the coffee shop, we're not gonna ask Landry that question: "Did Tom send a Christmas card to Jerry Jones?"

NEW IN SCHOOL—Malcolm Crawford's sixth grade homeroom at Central Elementary presented a short play during last week's "Super Kids" assembly. The play, titled "New In School," deals with peer pressure which tempts students to use drugs and how to say no. The play culminates three months of work and is tied in with the DARE program that ended at the school last month.

Latest product in candy war will be produced in Texas

WACO, Texas (AP) — The next product in the candy marketing war between Hershey's and M&Mars, Peanut Butter Snickers, will be produced in Texas, but Texans with a hankering for them will be out of luck for the time being.

Snickers Bar is the nation's top selling candy bar. M&Mars hopes that brand loyalty will further increase its market share and melt the share held by Reese's Peanut Butter Cups.

The bars will be made in Waco and are scheduled to hit the market in May, but they will be sold only on the East Coast at first. The market will gradually be expanded nationwide, a company official says.

Officials of Hershey's Food Corp., which owns Reese's Peanut Butter Cups, did not return calls to the Waco Tribune-Herald for comment Monday.

Stan Madden, a marketing professor at Baylor University, said the introduction of the new bar represents the next step in a marketing war between Hershey's and M&Mars.

Hershey's took a shot at the M&Ms candy market with its Reese's Pieces. With Peanut Butter Snickers Bars, M&Mars is retaliating against Hershey's, Madden said.

"It's a time-honored strategy to clone off an existing product that will have immediate widespread acceptance," Madden said. "The most recent classic example would be the creation of Diet Coke."

"This has rarely been done in the candy industry, however," Madden added. M&Mars cloned Peanut M&Ms from plain M&Ms 30 to 35 years ago to form an entire new product line, Madden said.

The Waco plant will be the only M&Mars plant to initially make the bar, according to plant manager John Keating. The plant, which makes millions of Snickers Bars a week, will hire more people, but Keating declined to say how many.

"We are adding more people now, and we'll be hiring part-timers," he said. The candy plant presently employs between 850 to 900 people.

"We believe the time is right for Peanut Butter Snickers Bar," said Mary Ellen Dougherty, public affairs counsel at M&Mars headquarters in Hackettstown, N.J. "Our research of consumer taste patterns has consistently demonstrated the immense popularity of peanuts and peanut butter with the American public."

The Peanut Butter Snickers Bars will be the same size and price of regular Snickers Bars.

The package design is in its final stages.

Texas girl undergoes liver transplant

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A team of surgeons worked to replace 12-year-old Stormie Jones' diseased liver today, almost six years to the day after the suburban Dallas girl became the world's first recipient of a heart-liver transplant.

Stormie and her mother, Lois Purcell, arrived at Pittsburgh's

Children's Hospital early Monday night from their White Settlement, Texas, home for Stormie's second transplant operation.

As she was wheeled from her plane to a waiting ambulance, Stormie joked, "I feel like I'm in a straight jacket" because of the stretcher's confining straps.

Doctors said Stormie was in good shape since a donor liver was found only a week after her name was placed on the nationwide transplant list. The success rate of a second liver transplant is estimated at 65 to 70 percent, hospital officials said.

Hepatitis damaged Stormie's first transplanted liver and the organ no longer functions normally, said Liz McMahon, a spokeswoman for Children's Hospital in Pittsburgh.

Hepatitis, which is caused by a viral infection, inflames the liver.

"She was last hospitalized here in January," McMahon said. "The doctors suspected a virus or hepatitis at that time. They feel at this time their only option is another liver transplant."

Lead surgeon Andreas Tzakis and six other doctors started the operation at 3:15 a.m., about 8 hours after her 7 p.m. hospital arrival. Transplant pioneer Dr. Thomas Starzl was present for part of the procedure, expected to last at least 12 hours.

Hospital officials declined to identify the liver donor. A news briefing was planned today to supply additional details.

Homeport still coming to Texas coastal town

INGLESIDE, Texas (AP) — Despite defense spending cuts, Homeport is still coming to the Texas coastal town of Ingleside, the base's second-in-command says.

Deane Gibson, second-in-command, said Monday night that Capt. Michael J. Marchetti, who will be commanding officer of Naval Station Ingleside, will arrive in November.

Marchetti is currently commanding officer of Naval Station Guam. Ms. Gibson will officially become the naval station's executive officer after Marchetti's arrival.

Ms. Gibson, 42, responded to recent fears about the effects of trimmed defense spending in an era of reduced world tensions, saying she knew no more about the future of Naval Station Ingleside than anyone else.

But she said she had been watching the news with interest for personal reasons.

"Unless I hear something to the contrary, I presume things are on track. Homeport is coming," she said.

At a welcoming dinner Monday night, Ms. Gibson praised the people who have worked hard to bring the naval station to Ingleside.

"Coming to Naval Station Ingleside is a big honor for me," she said.

"To borrow a phrase from the American president, the party is in DEEP DOO-DOO!"

Dr. Gott Peter Gott, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My 57-year-old husband has been prone to high blood pressure. His doctor requested he eliminate salt from his diet, and I carried it further by cutting out pork, sausage, bacon and meats with high fat content. Recently, he developed hypoglycemia. The diet his doctor placed him on recommends that he eat butter, sausage, bacon and the like to meet his fat quotient. Help!

DEAR READER: This is a complicated issue, which I'll categorize for simplicity.

• Salt: Most Americans eat too much salt. However, salt is dangerous for only a few — those with high blood pressure.

Mild hypertensives can usually lower their blood pressure readings by eliminating the salt they add to their diets. I advise such patients to put away the saltshaker (or use potassium salt in place of table salt) and avoid salty foods, such as potato chips, pretzels, salted nuts, anchovies and so forth.

More stringent salt restrictions — such as avoiding processed meats and frozen foods — are not necessary. You needn't carry your husband's salt restriction to extremes.

• High blood pressure: Often termed the "silent killer," hypertension is a dangerous disease that should be treated. Many years ago, the only useful therapy was bed rest and strict restriction of dietary salt.

However, new therapies are so effective in controlling high blood pressure that prolonged rest and elimination of salt are no longer the sole treatments for hypertension, although some mild hypertensives may choose salt restriction as a first step.

Medicine — such as beta-blockers (Inderal) calcium channel blockers (Calan, Isoptin) and angiotensin converting enzyme inhibitors (Vasotec, Capoten) — consistently lower blood pressure without dietary restrictions.

I believe your husband's doctor should consider anti-hypertensive medication, rather than relying solely on salt restriction. You might be interested in learning that some hypertensives can be helped by eating additional calcium (low-fat milk and milk products) and potassium (dried fruits and bananas).

• Hypoglycemia: Low blood sugar is a much rarer condition than previously believed. It can be helped by eating frequent small meals containing starches (pasta, potatoes, rice) fresh fruit and protein — and eliminating sugar, alcohol and fats.

I completely disagree with your husband's doctor, who recommended butter, sausage and bacon. Not only do these foods have salt, they are high in cholesterol; such a diet will do little to improve hypoglycemia and may actually lead to accelerated hardening of the arteries (arteriosclerosis).

I advise your husband to obtain a second opinion from an internist, a doctor trained in the diagnosis and treatment of medical illnesses. Such a specialist should be able to clarify treatment and sort out the contradictions that trouble you. Also, the internist may refer your husband to a dietician for some much-needed dietary counseling.

Because of your interest in hypertension, hypoglycemia and prudent diet, and your need for a specialist's advice, I am sending you free copies of my Health Reports "Understanding Cholesterol," "Eating Right For A Healthy Heart," "Hypoglycemia," "Hypertension" and "Medical Specialists." Other readers who would like copies should send $1.25 for each report to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

McAnelly discusses cholesterol and sodium in diets with ABWA

Deep Creek Chapter of American Business Women's Association met Feb. 1 for their regular monthly meeting at The Shack. Wanda McAnelly, food service director at Cogdell Memorial Hospital for eight years, was the guest speaker.

McAnelly worked in the school cafeterias for 11 years. She spoke on cholesterol and sodium in diets. She stated that she plans and prepares five or six special diets a day at the hospital. The patients have a selective menu to choose from. She said that dietary cholesterol which is supplied by foods of animal origin, must be restricted. Egg yolk and organ meats are very high in cholesterol.

They also restrict saturated fats which are generally of animal origin. Saturated fat is present in such foods as butter, cream, whole milk and cheese made from whole milk or cream. She also explained which foods are allowed and not allowed on a low cholesterol diet.

Penni Coffee gave the vocational speech. She is employed with the Texas Department of Human Services as a secretary in adult protective services and medical eligibility for the elderly. She takes cases of abuse. She assists clients with applications and answers any questions they may have regarding different programs that could assist them in their particular situation. She performs general secretarial duties.

Stella Bailey was nominated Woman of the Year. Penny Cochran and Wanda McAnelly won the honey pot drawing.

Touchy combination

By James Jacoby

Here is another deal involving octogenarian Boris Schapiro, albeit a few decades earlier in his career. If you would like to test your declarer play, cover the East-West cards and plan your strategy based on today's bidding and the opening lead.

Of course the bidding virtually guarantees that the spade ace will be in the opening bidder's hand. Furthermore, East needs only moderate ability to duck if you win the opening diamond lead and play a spade up to the king. Does this remind you of a theme from a book on play? When an opponent is certain to duck the first trick in a suit you are trying to set up, thus depriving you of transportation, the counter is simply to play low from both hands when first attacking the suit. But there is a problem even with that approach. Suppose you do play a low spade, and West plays the eight-spot. If you play low from dummy, East will let West hold the trick, and West does not need to be a genius to find the switch through dummy's A-Q of hearts.

Schapiro knew better than to rely on a defensive error. He also knew enough to find the layout of the cards that would let him make the contract. So he won the jack of diamonds and led the 10 of spades from his hand. When West played low, declarer played low from dummy. East had to win the jack. Declarer's next spade play cleared the spade ace while the ace of hearts was still a secure entry to dummy, and the 3-3 spade split brought in enough tricks to make the contract.

Snyder plays Pecos in Midland for title

Snyder will face the Pecos Eagles one more time.

Tonight at 7:30 at Midland Greenwood gym the two squads will lock horns and decide who will represent District 4-4A as champion in the schoolboy playoffs.

Each team finished the year with a 12-2 record in loop competition.

The Tigers won their first meeting in Scurry county Coliseum 62-59 on Jan. 26.

The Eagles clawed to a 57-54 victory in Pecos last Friday on the strength of seven three-point buckets.

Snyder coach Larry Scott feels that the neutral court will be to Snyder's advantage.

"I think the site will help us out. They just shot two three's against us in our place and I don't think they had one in their loss in Andrews."

Scott feels that the Eagle squad needs to be comfortable to be able to perform at their peak.

Junior Ed Rios was the man of the hour for the Tigers in Friday's loss to Pecos.

He scored 17 points, most from under the basket where Pecos' 6-1 senior post Chris Granado was patrolling and banging bodies.

Senior Ricky Flores tossed in 21 points for the Eagles Friday including six baskets from the field, two of which were for three points, and a 7-8 performance from the free-throw line.

Following Rios' 17 was Snyder's Hayward Clay with 15, Tracy Braziel with 11 and Lee Hamilton with 10.

Each of the squads lost to each other once in the season and to Andrews on the road.

The winner of the rubber game will advance to the post-season as district champion and the loser

'Lopes claim practice win

The Abernathy Antelopes scored a 67-60 win over the Abilene Wylie Bulldogs in a practice game in Snyder High School's gym Monday night as both squads prepare for the post-season.

Wylie jumped out to a 16-8 lead in the first quarter but the Antelops narrowed the advantage to just six points after a 17-15 second period.

Abernathy scored 21 points in each of the last two quarters to Wylie's 16 and 13 to snatch the win.

Jody Myatt was the leading scorer for the 'Lopes with a 23 point night including five three-point buckets.

Dan Parker scored 26, counting three treys, to pace the Wylie squad.

ABERNATHY — Prather 3 0-17, Myatt 7 4-23, Haney 3 1-4 7, Peoples 1 5-6 8, Cannon 3 4-7 10, Shadden 1 0-0 2, Norris 3 2-4 8, Forbes 0 2-2 2, TOTALS 21 18-30 67.

WYLIE — Hansen 1 0-0 2, Parker 11 1-2 26, Garner 4 1-2 8, Belt 4 4-13, Blackman 2 4-4 8, Ervin 1 0-0 2, TOTALS 23 10-32 60.

3-point goals: AHS 7 (Myatt 5, Prather 1, Peoples 1); WHS 4 (Parker 3, Belt 1). Total fouls: AHS 13, WHS 18. Fouled out: none.

Abernathy 8 17 21 21 67
Wylie 16 15 16 13 60

Erik McMillan of the Jets and Carl Lee of the Vikings each had two touchdowns on pass interceptions in 1988 to tie for the NFL lead.

BANGING THE BOARDS — Low Don Cannon, 34, of the Abernathy Antelopes, fights off the Wylie defense for a bucket in fourth quarter action of the Antelopes 67-60 win Monday night. The game, a will be in the playoffs as the runner-up.

To get to Midland's Greenwood High School follow I-20 to the Stanton exit. Go through Stanton and turn left on the Big Lake Highway, Highway 137, for about seven miles.

Turn right at the Greenwood sign and drive about seven more miles.

Admission to the contest is $2 for adults and $1 for students.

WTC women take Lady Texans to buzzer

LEVELLAND — The Western Texas College Lady Dusters gave South Plains all they wanted but in the end fell to the Lady Texans, 70-68 Monday night.

With Tami Wilson back in the lineup for the Dusters, WTC eased out to a 31-30 lead at the half but lost it in the second half.

Wilson, a sophomore talent from Seagraves, had been out for several games because of a deep thigh bruise.

She returned to form Monday night in Levelland with a 16 point game.

Wilson hit seven buckets from the floor and was two-of-four from the charity stripe.

Three WTC cagers scored in double figures on the night.

Bobbie Brown, sophomore forward from Jayton, was good for 19 on the evening on seven hoops, including a three-pointer, and a four-for-four free-throw performance to pace the Western Texas women.

La Grange freshman Tracey Rome, who has filled in admirably in Wilson's absence at post, scored 13 for the Dusters.

Wilson tossed in five baskets from the floor and three of four freebies.

Vicky Jones and Kelsey Koester each had eight against South Plains.

In all, WTC hit 19-25 from the free-throw line for 76 percent on the night.

The Dusters sent South Plains to the line just 12 times in the Western Junior College Athletic Conference battle.

"We really deserved to win," said coach Kelly Chadwick.

"We outplayed them and we had the lead until the last three minutes of the game."

"We just had too many turnovers and we didn't get back on defense during about a three or four minute stretch in the second half."

Chadwick praised his defense's overall effort and pointed out some standouts for the Dusters.

"Vicky Jones played exceptionally well at point guard," he said, "and Tracey Rome and Kelsey Koester both had real good games."

"Tami (Wilson) and Bobbie (Brown) were both out there at less than 100 percent or we could have beat this team by 12 or 14 points."

Wilson is still hobbled with the thigh bruise and Brown was playing Monday with a flu-induced fever.

South Plains was led by All-America candidate Sheryl Swoopes.

The Brownfield freshman scored 21 Monday night followed by Charlotte Benford with 16.

Western Texas falls to 2-7 in WJAC competition after Monday's loss and 15-10 overall while the Lady Texans move to 21-5 in all games played and 6-3 within the league.

The Lady Dusters will hit the road again Thursday, travelling to Hobbs, N.M. for a battle with New Mexico Junior College.

The Lady Thunderbirds fell to Clarendon College Monday, 77-58, to remain winless in conference play in nine tries.

WTC has one home game left as the Dusters host No. 13 Howard College Monday Feb. 26.

WTC is victimized by SPC cage squad

LEVELLAND — Pay back is heck.

When the South Plains College Texans came to Snyder to battle the Westerners Jan. 18 WTC upset the visitors, 74-72, so the contest here had special meaning for the Texans.

Revenge was exacted Monday night in a crucial game for the Westerners, 93-62.

"It was one of those games where we just couldn't get anything going," said WTC coach Tony Mauldin.

"We would get a rebound on a three-on-one break and miss the easy lay-up or a tip-in."

"To their coaches' credit," said Mauldin, "he really had them ready to play."

"One thing that really messed us up was the fact that they were shooting so well from the outside. They hadn't been doing that since a month into the season and it fouled up our defensive scheme," he reported.

"They played a very aggressive game, pushing and shoving and when we'd push back we'd be called for the foul," Mauldin continued.

"We just had a bad night."

South Plains opened up a 56-30 halftime lead and coasted to the Western Junior College Conference win.

The Westerners fell to 7-6 in league play, remaining in fifth place and in a very tenuous position as far as making the cut for the regional tournament to be held here in March.

The top four squads in the WJAC will advance to the tourney.

Freshman Allen Smith was the leading scorer for the Westerners tossing in 16 points on six baskets and a four of five night from the line.

Dominick Byrd, a freshman also, and sophomore Kenneth Critton were both in double figures at the end of the game scoring 11 and 10 points respectively.

The Texans were paced by 6-5 freshman forward David Diaz with 19 points on the night, including four three-pointers.

Levelland's Russell Harrison scored 15 in the SPC win followed by Tyrone Maxey with 13 and 6-7 Charles Outlaw with 11.

In other WJAC action Monday NMJC beat Clarendon 108-86, Odessa slipped by the Chaparrals of Midland College 79-72 and Howard beat New Mexico Military Institute 109-81.

Western Texas travels to Hobbs, N.M. Thursday as the Westerners face the conference's fourth place team the New Mexico Junior College Thunderbirds in a game with playoff implications for both teams.

Golden Retriever shot while protecting owner, neighbor

Houston (AP) — A 2 1/2-year-old Golden Retriever is being credited with saving the lives of its owner and a neighbor by taking a bullet to the shoulder during a would-be robbery.

"There's no question she saved our lives," Chris Dittmar said Monday of his dog, Chelsea, a normally docile pet who courageously intervened when two gunmen appeared outside his house.

"She just leaped between our feet and went after both guys holding guns," Dittmar said. "They lowered the gun from our heads and aimed for her instead. I saw her get hit in the shoulder — I could see her take the slug."

"She is normally this wonderful, sweet dog but when it counted, she leaped for the throat and took a bullet in the process," co-owner Kathy Page said.

Dittmar was standing near his house chatting with neighbors Bill and Jeannie Riddlehuber last Thursday night when four young men began walking up and down driveways. Dittmar told Mrs. Riddlehuber to call the police. The next thing he knew, two of the men pulled pistols on him and Bill Riddlehuber.

"They had two guns pointed toward our heads and they told us to step out into the street," Dittmar said. "And at that moment Chelsea sensed something wasn't right. She could smell our fear."

That's when the 60-pound dog sprang into action.

After firing at the dog, the gunmen fired three more shots at Dittmar and Riddlehuber, who ran into a garage and shut the door.

Dittmar grabbed a shotgun from his house and went out in search of Chelsea, who had disappeared.

"I called her name and she came limping out of the shadows," he said. "She was scared but she came to me. She just put her head on my knee and I looked at her and she had blood coming out of her shoulder and I cradled her underneath the shotgun and took her home."

An emergency run to an animal clinic revealed the .38-caliber slug had traveled beneath the dog's skin and had lodged along the chest wall, missing bones and internal organs. Veterinarians will remove the bullet later this week.

Presently living in Holland...

Locals' daughter recounts life in the Azores

By Shirley A. Gorman
SDN News Editor

There's no place like home. Those words have special meaning to Mrs. Eric (Jean) Anderson Whitmore who is presently living in Holland and before that spent two years in the Azores.

But while Whitmore finds living outside the U. S. fun and challenging she said Snyder and West Texas "will always be home to me."

Recently she returned to Snyder to attend the funeral of an uncle, to visit both hers and her husband's family and to get reacquainted with her roots.

Whitmore's husband, a broadcaster, is a sergeant in the U. S. Air Force and primarily works in radio and television production. They have one daughter, Victoria, who is 13 months old and another child is due this summer.

Victoria has dual U. S. and Portuguese citizenship since she was born in the Azores and the new baby will have dual U. S. and Dutch citizenship. Once the children are grown Whitmore said they will decide for themselves which countries they want to be citizens of.

Whitmore's sister will be getting married this summer but Whitmore said she won't be able to attend because traveling with two babies would be very difficult for her.

They lived in the Azores from September of 1987 until September of 1989 before being transferred to Holland. The Azores, a group of nine semi-tropical islands located in the middle of the Atlantic Ocean, proved a boon to the Whitmores who settled into the islands' routine rather easily.

They lived on Lajes Field, a U.S. air base located on the island Terceira.

"Americans either love or hate the Azores," she explained. "It was difficult at first but once we became acquainted with the islands and their inhabitants we just fell in love with it and really hated to leave," Whitmore explained.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs.

Larry Anderson, visited them in December of 1988 and June and July of 1989. Whitmore said that before her husband's enlistment comes to an end they all hope (including her parents) to be able to visit the Azores one more time. This time they would like to concentrate on seeing as many islands as they could. She added that she also wants to show her daughter where she was born.

"A lot of Americans don't like the Azores because they seem to be 50 years behind the time and are so remote," she explained.

"Our first house was located off the base and we were surrounded by animals. I loved it but Eric, who is more urban, took longer to get used to it," she said.

Portuguese is spoken by the islands' inhabitants and Whitmore said she had difficulty "picking up the language" but that learning a new language came easier to her husband. However, she said she was able to manage by learning a few words of the language and because many people she encountered spoke some English.

While living in the Azores, Whitmore said they became involved with an English-speaking Baptist church located off base. She taught a Sunday School class and her husband served as church treasurer.

"They became our family and when we first left the Azores we both experienced withdrawal symptoms," she explained.

Whitmore said the islanders were predominantly Catholic. A favorite "sport" seemed to involve chasing a bull along the beach, an event that everyone usually turned out for.

Whitmore described the people of the Azores as "quiet and family-oriented."

"It took us a while to get used to them, but it was wonderful after we did," she said.

Whitmore said it was possible to hire a baby sitter for as little as $1 an hour. The islanders raised dairy cattle and produced their own beef, cheese and fish.

Eating out was very economical and she described the food as "delicious." A "bread man" usually came by every day to sell fresh baked bread and milk was often transported and delivered by cart she said. It was also not unusual for them to see people riding donkeys.

While her parents visited, Whitmore said they were able to visit many of the other islands by ferry. They were "enchanted" by the beauty of each island they visited and prices were usually reasonable.

Rustic farms dominated the Azores in part and while the summer months were "fantastic" she said the winters "were not too much fun."

Whitmore said flowers in the summertime in the Azores were "gorgeous" and that some hydrangea grew as tall as 20 feet. Wintertime in the Azores was another story though as winds clocked at 100 mph were not unusual. For this reason, buildings were constructed with cinder blocks.

The countryside was usually lush and green during the summer also and even though the islanders were poor she said they did not live in abject poverty.

While living in the Azores, she said they experienced three earthquakes. The first time it happened she said she was in bed and everything just started rattling and shaking. The movie "The Exorcist" immediately came to her mind. She was relieved that her first experience with an earthquake was just that, an earthquake, and not something out of "The Exorcist."

The island they lived on also had a volcano which measured 18 miles in diameter, but had not been active in many years.

The island basically consisted of one "tiny beach and the rest was all cliffs."

Since the base is considered MAC or Military Airlift Command, Whitmore said it was very easy and economical ($10 per person) to catch military transportation to various destinations.

While in the Azores, Whitmore worked as an assistant education counselor whose job responsibility was to get people into college.

She has a degree in counseling and since she "likes the academic environment" she said she would like to continue in that position. However, she said she did not plan to teach.

Whitmore said her husband is also pursuing his degree and if he has it completed by 1991 she hopes they will be able to return to the states after her husband's assignment ends in Holland.

While Whitmore said she had some trouble getting used to the Azores it was nothing to compare to the "culture shock" she had when they arrived in Holland.

"Holland is so different from how I was raised," she said.

"Pornography is more open than I realized and it is not unusual to see topless women at the beach. Even their television programs are much more blatantly sexual," she said.

But in spite of the drawbacks, Whitmore said they are concentrating on enjoying the things they like about Holland and ig-norning the rest as much as possible. She emphasized that Holland is a very pretty country.

"I have to keep reminding myself that I didn't like the Azores at first either and I think I will grow to like Holland more in the future," she said.

She described Holland as "not as bad as other European countries" and said it was "clean and safe" in spite of its drawbacks. But, according to her, Europe has "really changed" since her father was there 35 years ago.

One drawback to Holland is that the base they are now living on is a SAC or Strategic Air Command base and that means that the only transportation available on base is jets and they do not hold very many people at one time.

To catch a MAC flight she said they first have to fly to Germany. But this trip rather than be delayed she said she arranged for a commercial flight back to the U.S.

Whitmore believes "things will get easier as they get used to the fast-paced and hectic European lifestyle." At present, they are both involved with a chapel located off base where each teaches a Sunday School class.

Whitmore said her husband is presently doing some freelance work for a Dutch Christian TV station and someday when he is out of the Air Force she said he hopes to find a position in Christian broadcasting.

"My perspective about Snyder started to change after I began to live elsewhere in the world," Whitmore said. "I really like living in the Bible Belt and being around people who believe as I do," she said.

Whitmore has traveled outside the U. S. several times, visiting England four times and Africa twice. Her mother was raised in Southern Africa.

As a college junior she also taught English and Bible classes in Japan for one semester.

But no matter where she lives Whitmore said she will always call Snyder and West Texas home.

Natural risks said to outweigh man-made dangers in our food

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Nature's own cancer-causing chemicals that are an unavoidable part of everything from pot roast to peanuts represent a greater health danger than pesticides and other pollutants, a health official warns.

A new estimate by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration concludes that more than 98 percent of the cancer risk in the diet results from ordinary foods — not from additives, poisons or other man-made contributions to the food chain.

"The risk is from natural carcinogens in the diet because they overwhelm all the others," said Dr. Robert J. Scheuplein, director of the Office of Toxicological Sciences at the U.S. Food and Drug Administration.

This does not mean that all food is dangerous or even that people can do much about the hazard. Instead, Scheuplein's analysis was intended to focus attention away from what he sees as a largely bogus health issue — the hazards of chemical contamination.

Dr. Frank Young, a former FDA commissioner who now is deputy assistant secretary of health and human services, agreed.

"The headline should not be, 'All Foods Cause Cancer' or 'Drop Dead. Don't Eat,'" Young said. "The good news is, let us not as a nation focus just on the technological food additives. We ought to focus on the big issues as well."

Instead of worrying about the vanishingly small risk of Alar in apples or dioxin in milk, Scheuplein said food scientists should be exploring ways to remove the important toxins in ordinary foods.

"Even a modestly effective attempt to lessen the dietary risk of natural carcinogens would probably be enormously more useful to human health than regulatory efforts devoted to eliminating traces of pesticide residues or other specific trace-level chemicals," Scheuplein said.

He presented his findings Monday at a meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Scheuplein based his conclusions on a statistical analysis of the quantity of cancer-causing toxins found in various parts of the diet.

He said that the risk of dying from cancer from dietary exposure to all kinds of carcinogens, or cancer-inducing substances, was 7.7 percent. The risk from traditional foods alone was 7.6 percent.

"Most of the risks are people's personal choices," Scheuplein said. "They are not imposed on people by corporations. Apparently that's a hard lesson. People want to blame somebody."

The clearest cancer-causing agent in ordinary food, he said, is fat, which has been linked with several kinds of tumors. However, most foods now eaten would not pass safety tests required for new food chemicals and additives.

He estimated that carcinogens make up one-tenth of 1 percent of the food people eat. Among concerns he cited were:

—Well-cooked, high-protein foods, such as meat and eggs, contain bacterial substances that can cause genetic mutations. An ordinary day's protein can be as damaging to the genes as five cigarettes.

—Hazardous urethane is a natural product of fermentation. It is present in beer, yogurt, bread and other foods.

—Mycotoxins produced by molds are common in many foods, especially when stored in warm, humid conditions. Aflatoxins occur in corn and peanuts, zearalenone in soybeans and luteoskyrin in yellow rice.

—Smoked or salted fish and pickled vegetables may cause digestive cancers. This is attributed to nitrates and fungus.

—Grilling and charring fish or meat can produce potentially hazardous substances, such as nitropyrenes.

—Many spices contain questionable substances. There is estragole in tarragon, eugenol in cloves, cinnamaldehyde in cinnamon, myristicin in nutmeg and anethole in fennel. Several spices, including oregano, majoram and bay leaves, may cause genetic damage.

Roman Catholic nun reunited with her sister after 42 years

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A Roman Catholic nun will not have to celebrate her birthday alone for the first time in 42 years thanks to the changing political climate of East Germany that allowed her sister to come to Texas for a visit.

Sister Mary Elfonsis will be able to celebrate her 60th birthday today with her sister, Waltraud Dittmer, who flew in from East Berlin this week to share in the festivities.

"It's been a very long time," Sister Elfonsis said Monday in the visiting room at the Blessed Sacrament Chapel. "We've been waiting the past 40 years."

The two chatted about the old days and changes that have taken place since they've been apart. They had a lot to talk about.

The faces of both cities, East and West Berlin, have been rebuilt over the years since World War II.

Sister Elfonsis turned to a page in a book about Berlin that showed a large outdoor clock, located in Alexander Platz in East Berlin, that displays the time of different cities of the world.

Ms. Dittmer said when she walks by the clock she always looks to see what time it is in Texas.

"We have some good things too," she said.

The sisters and their family lived in Germany through World War II. Sister Elfonsis was evacuated to Bavaria, with about 200 other girls, to finish school. The rest of the family, including Dittmer, was moved to east Prussia as the Allied forces closed in.

After the war, the family moved back to Berlin and Sister Elfonsis joined them.

Sister Elfonsis began preparations to become a nun in 1946. She was accepted in 1948, she said, the same year the Mother Superior of the convent in West Berlin was transferred to America.

"She took me along with her," Sister Elfonsis said.

That was the last time she saw her family.

Dear Abby

Grandmothers by Marriage Are Known by Many Names

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1990 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: You need some education regarding the politics of remarried families.

The terms "grandmother" and "grandfather" are titles of honor. In the remarried family, the "new wife" and the "new husband" are just that — they do not have any claim to grandparenting because they are not biologically connected to the grandchild. "Grandmother" and "Grandfather" are titles that belong only to the parents of the biological parents. They are not only titles of honor, but of respect for the historical and biological ties that have come down through the generations. They cannot be broken by divorce and remarriage. Biological ties remain from generation to generation.

In a world where divorce and remarriage leave children wondering who they really belong to, and where adults change spouses with frequency, let's keep the place of grandparenting as an anchor for all concerned. The "new wife" and "new husband" would be wise to realize all this and back off — and quietly ask their grandchildren to call them by their first names.

NANCY THOMPSON CLOSE,
ATLANTA

DEAR NANCY: You are, of course, entitled to your opinion — as is Kay Crenshaw. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: You had a letter in your column in The Dallas Morning News that I must comment on because the subject is very close to my heart: What should grandchildren call their stepgrandmother?

As a stepgrandmother, my advice is to let the grandchildren call you whatever they choose. When I remarried, we had five teen-agers between us. After his two sons married and had children, they called me by my first name — Kay — because that is what their parents called me.

When I read the letter in the column concerning what grandchildren should call a stepgrandparent, two thoughts came to mind proving that what they call her really doesn't matter. First, my stepgrandson is the only left-handed person in that family. I am also left-handed; therefore, he tells people that he "takes after" Kay. Quite a compliment, because he's not concerned with whether I am his biological grandmother or his grandmother by marriage.

Second, two years in a row, one of my little granddaughters has crawled across her "real" (biological) grandmother and grandfa'her (my husband) to hop up in my lap to rest and be cuddled in my arms.

So good luck to that stepgrandmother who doesn't know what her husband's grandchildren should call her. May her children be as great a blessing to a second marriage as mine are to me.

KAY CRENSHAW, DALLAS

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the stepmother who was about to become a stepgrandmother — this is the way our family solved the problem 20 years ago. Before the birth of our sons, my wise stepmother came to us and requested that the children call her "Nana." We then had Grandma Jones, Grandma Smith and Nana. She's still Nana.
