Smith files School, college and city board roundup

Carl Smith has filed for Place 3 on the Ira ISD board of trustees. Smith was one of only two people to file as a candidate for the May 5 school, city and college board elections last week. Thursday, Carl Williams filed for Place 2 on the Western Texas College board.

In running for Place 3 on the Ira school board, Smith is presently unopposed. Current trustee Jim Wilson has indicated he will not seek the office again.

Place 2 incumbent Kirby Sterling has also filed for another term. Place 1 on the Ira school board is also up for re-election. Incumbent Bo Robinson has yet to announce his intentions.

Of the five boards experiencing elections — the WTC college board, Snyder City Council and the three school boards — only one has a contested race so far. Williams will be facing William R. "Bill" Hibbs for Place 2 on the (see FILINGS, page 13A)

307 vote absentee so far in March 13
primary elections

With less than a week left, 307 registered voters in Scurry County have opted for the absentee method of voting for the March 13 primary election.

In-person absentee voting ends on Friday, March 9. The county clerk's office has also stressed that March 6 is the final day to request an application to vote by mail.

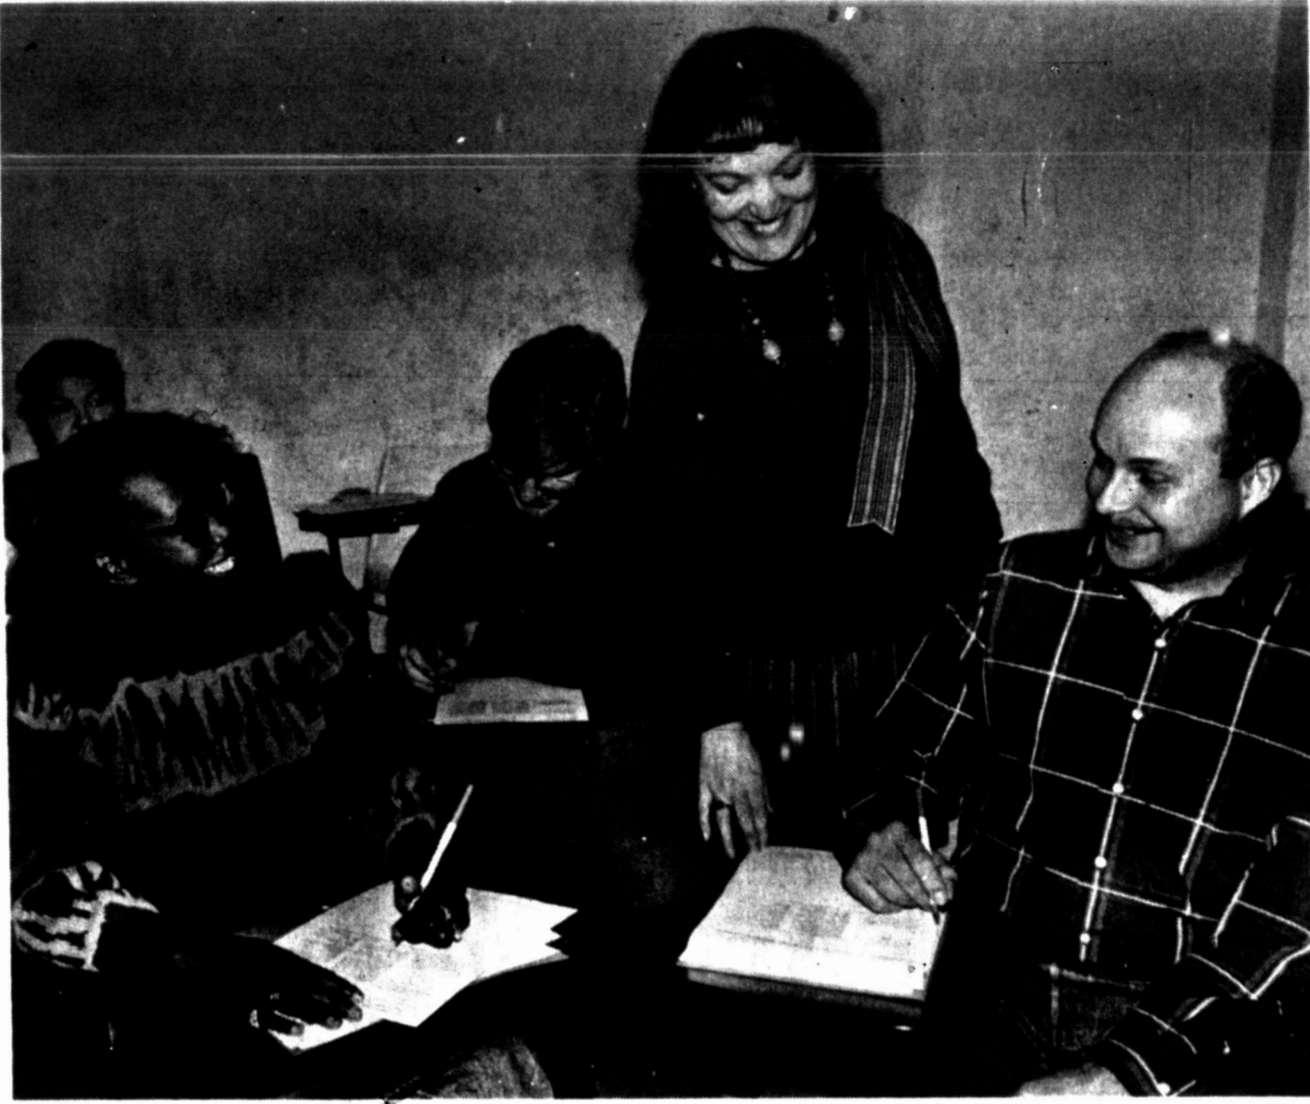

Anyone registered to vote in the state-wide election can do so by the in-person absentee method at the county courthouse. Those voting by mail must meet age or handicapped requirements.

To date, 247 of the 307 who have voted have done so in the Democratic primary. Of the 247, 219 used the in-person method and 28 were by mail.

Sixty have voted in the Republican primary, including 57 by the in-person method.

Incumbent Bobby Goodwin is running against Marlin Terrell on the Democratic ticket for county judge. Running for the post in the Republican primary are Greg Crawford and Bob Doolittle.

Snyder will host Region V college basketball tourneys

Western Texas College will host this year's National Junior College Athletic Association Region V men's and women's basketball tournaments Tuesday through Saturday, March 6-10, in Scurry County Coliseum.

The women's tournament will begin Tuesday with the championship contest scheduled for 7 p.m. Thursday.

Thursday also marks the start of the men's event with the champion to be crowned following Saturday's title game.

Teams participating in the regional tournament come from the Western and Northern Junior College Athletic Conferences with the top four teams in the end-of-season standings from each conference making up the field.

Tickets for the tournament will be available at the door for $5 per two-game session. A $25 tournament pass is available by calling Fran Bowden at 573-8511, ext. 283.

In the women's division, teams from the WJCAC coming to Snyder for the tourney include first-seed Frank Phillips College, which comes into the fray with an 11-1 conference mark, followed by second-seeded and nationally ranked No. 15 Howard College at 10-2, Odessa College at 8-5 and South Plains College with a 7-5 (see HOST, page 13A)

Local, area residents could have cash waiting for them

A number of Snyder and area residents or former residents may have $50 or more coming to them, according to the Texas Treasury.

Each year, banks and other businesses report to the treasury names of people with accounts that have been inactive for three years or more.

This year, more than $99 million has been reported to Ann Richards, state treasurer. The list includes cash amounts of $50 or more and accounts for missing owners of stocks and safe deposit boxes regardless of value.

Those who locate their name on the list may call toll free 1-800-654-3463. They should be able to give the address where they were residing three or more years ago and have their social security number available for verification.

Anyone calling is asked to be patient. Last year, treasury operators handled over 200,000 calls.

Below is a list of names from Snyder, Ira and Hermleigh.

sentenced

A 28-year-old Snyder man pleaded guilty to delivery of a controlled substance, methamphetamine, last week in 132nd District Court and received a 20-year sentence in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

Steve D. Dillard of 1912 Towle Park Rd. entered his plea in connection with an offense last June 3.

He was accused of delivering less than 28 grams of methamphetamine, or "speed," to an undercover narcotics officer.

In other court action, 22-year-old Billy J. Collins of 2605 Ave. U pleaded guilty to a Jan. 23 forgery by passing offense and was assessed an eight-year probation term in addition to being ordered to pay $1,075 in restitution.

TDH office to reopen
Monday near hospital

The Texas Department of Health here will reopen Monday after moving into offices at Cogdell Center near the hospital.

The facility is directed by Mary Ward, RN, who has been a nurse for over 28 years. She has been with the TDH for five and a half years.

Last year, some $240,000 worth of WIC cards were issued through the Scurry County office. WIC stands for Women, Infants and Children, and those eligible receive a monthly supply of nutritious foods, including milk, eggs, fruit juice, iron-fortified cereal and iron-fortified infant formula. Participants are given cards that can be redeemed at local grocery markets.

Ward provides pregnant women and girls with vitamin supplements and iron as part of a pre-natal care program offered by the Texas Department of Health. She said that many of the cases she sees are eligible for Medicaid. If not, they may be eligible for one of the many funding programs.

Ward considers herself kind of a "traffic director" for people, stating that she often refers patients to one or more of many state and federal-funded facilities.

She said it is not necessary

The SDN Column By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "An opportunist is somebody who does what you were going to do — one of these days."

Back during the holiday, we took home a pile of material in hopes of catching up on some needed reading. Included in the stack was a weekly publication dealing with the newspaper industry.

Ole what's-her-name obviously was bored, too, and she picked up the magazine and began to thumb through it. Before long, our roommate exclaimed, "I love it!"

She had turned to a story on a panel discussion held at an editorial writer's conference. The subject dealt with reporters and editors whose spouses hold down public jobs — and it discussed problems encountered at home.

The solutions seemed just like home — no pillow talk, a hands-off approach, etc.

But ole what's-her-name was most impressed by a wife's statement whose husband was an editorial writer for a major newspaper. She said, "What I most resent about my spouse is that everyone assumes I share his stupid opinions."

Working spouses are not the only ones with a little stress in their marriage relationships. The year-end signals a lot of retirements, and about this time of year the housewife is having second thoughts about the benefits of having the husband around most of the day.

Pop Kidd and Buck Rambin, long-time golfing buddies, retired at the end of 1989. Kidd spent 43 years as a veterinarian in Snyder and Rambin spent 38 years at the Diamond M gas plant.

Now, unless they are on the golf course, they are "under-foot househusbands."

With so many people retiring younger, there may be a possibility for a new industry in Snyder — marriage counseling.

Record number of applicants:
A New York employment agency not long ago ran an ad for a "mediocre company" needing manager with "little ambition and marginal talent."

Q—After a person has been in the penitentiary, how long do they have to be out before their rights as a parent are given back?

A—Whether or not a person has served a penitentiary sentence has no direct bearing on his or her rights as a parent. Parental rights are determined by divorce proceedings or other court actions, independent of criminal proceedings.

Snyder, Scurry County...

Anderson to publish 3rd history book

Charles Anderson, retired teacher and administrator, will soon publish his third book dealing with the history of Snyder and Scurry County.

Anderson has written and edited the 450-page pictorial history—Reflections, One Hundred Fifty Years or More—to be published by Snyder Publishing Co. Inc.

Anderson said the book will be about the same size as Footprints but will have larger print and larger pictures. "This is primarily a pictorial history with a few short stories and captions to relate the history contained in the pictures."

The book will contain 19 sections, including the early history of West Texas. There are also sections on the military, education, law and order, ranching, farming and numerous other areas.

Lu Bright, former Snyder resident now living in Abilene, has drawn more than 20 illustrations, all depicting historical scenes of people or events impacting the history of the area.

The book is sanctioned by the Scurry County Historical Commission and the commission will help sell the book. A portion of each sale will go to the Historical Commission's project such as the Dermott school.

The book will contain over 700 pictures, and most photos have been obtained from the Scurry County Museum and Colorado City Museum. Several individuals have also contributed pictures.

Original printing calls for 1,500 copies, all limited number edition. The first numbers will be reserved for the genuine leather edition and will sell for $58, plus tax and mailing. A less expensive book, still hard-cover, will sell for $35. All books must be reserved in advance.

Anderson's two previous books included "In Search of the Buffalo, the Story of J. Wright Moorar," and "Deep Creek Merchant, The Story of William Henry "Pete" Snyder."

Anderson has written for Good Old Days magazine, The American Bard, Texas Outlook and Texas Scenes. He won first place for a short story in 1980 in competition by the Abilene Writers Guild.

Anderson retired as junior high principal in 1989 after 32 years with the Snyder ISD. He presently does substitute teaching at WTC and Windham Schools. He also works part-time for Westat Testing Corporation.

A member of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, he is past chairman of the Historical Commission and active in numerous educational organizations.

He and his wife, Margie, are members of the 37th Street Church of Christ. They have two sons, Dr. Chuck Anderson and wife, Sherry; and Marcus Anderson and wife, Karen, of Abilene. They also have two granddaughters, Miriam and Rachael.

Books will be available in late summer with special emphasis on having it ready for the 1990 Christmas season.

Man may not have known Bush was in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A skydiver who was fired at by a Secret Service agent after parachuting into the parking lot of the hotel where President Bush was staying may not have known the president was in town, authorities said Friday.

Bush was inside the Century Plaza Hotel during the episode Thursday that ended with the arrest of Charles Sweeney, 47, of the Los Angeles suburb of Santa Clarita.

Sweeney, arrested at his home hours after the incident, was booked for investigation of assault with a deadly weapon on a law officer, said police Lt. Al Moen. He was freed on $3,000 bail on the charge, which stemmed from alleged attempts to run down officers in the getaway car.

"There was no threat to the president. He didn't know the president was in town," said

Secret Service Agent Jim Miller. He said his information was based on a Los Angeles police interview with Sweeney attended by a Secret Service agent.

Miller said he didn't know if anyone told Bush about the incident.

A Secret Service agent fired two shots at the car as the man sped away after jumping from a 36-story building under construction near the hotel about 6 a.m. Thursday.

After landing, Sweeney packed up his parachute, jumped into a car and sped through the parking lot, ignoring orders to stop, Miller said.

"I'd estimate there was about 60 feet of rubber. Then he made a U-turn and headed right for the officer," he said. "The agent fired two shots and the vehicle swerved to the right and missed the officer."

The parachutist, who was alone in the car, was uninjured.

Miss USA named

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Miss Michigan, won the Miss USA title Friday during a broadcast expected to be seen by up to 400 million television viewers in 30 countries.

Carole Gist, 20, of Detroit was chosen from six semifinalists, who in turn were culled from 51 contestants gathered at the Century II convention center in Wichita. The other semifinalists were: Brenda Leithleiter, 22, Smyrna, Ga.; Tiffany Tenfelde, 22, Lakeside Park, Ky.; Karin Hartz, 24, Voorhees, N.J.; Karin Meyer, 20, Anchorage, Alaska; and Gina Tolleson, 20, Spartanburg, S.C.

The field earlier was narrowed to 12 quarterfinalists. Judges awarded scores Tuesday in the gown and swimsuit categories. The other third of the scores used to select 12 quarterfinalists came from personal interviews each contestant had with an 11-judge panel.

Manager also raised hogs for slaughter

ATHENS, Texas (AP) — The manager of an East Texas ranch operated by the Fund for Animals Inc. also ran a farm on which hogs were raised for slaughter with the knowledge of the national animal protection agency, published reports said Friday.

But the Fund defends the Black Beauty Ranch's manager against allegations that he sold animals from the sanctuary at livestock auctions and used the Fund's equipment to assist his hog-raising operations.

The Athens Daily Review reported in a copyright story that Fund for Animals founder and president Cleveland Amory of New York was aware that Billy J. Saxon, ranch manager, raised hogs and other livestock and only attempted to stop the practice three months ago.

But an attorney representing the wildlife organization said Saxon's ranching operation was separate from the Fund ranch.

"My client tells me that there has never been an animal raised at the ranch that was later slaughtered or sold for slaughter," said Edward J. Walsh. "Mr. Saxon is a rancher in Texas and he probably engages in other kinds of livestock operations for his livelihood."

Saxon told the newspaper that his cattle and hog raising operation was kept separate from his management of the ranch, located about 10 miles northeast of Athens and north of the Murchison community in Henderson County.

Walsh said Saxon receives about $1,200 a month to manage the 600-acre ranch, one of three animal rescue facilities operated by the fund, based in New York and Silver Spring, Md.

"We had in the past tried a couple of humane (association) people to manage" the Black Beauty Ranch, said Walsh. "But you can't take care of animals on a ranch unless you know something about ranching. You can't run the facility economically unless you are familiar with ranching, so the judgement was made to hire a rancher to run the ranch for us."

Amory said the ranch, which was acquired starting about 1980, shelters about 600 animals. They include horses, burros and even elephants, many of which are "cruelty cases" which others would not adopt.

The fund is known for its highly publicized rescues of burros from the Grand Canyon and Death Valley.

Final rites slated Monday

AUSTIN (AP) — Funeral services for Texas Court of Criminal Appeals Judge M.P. "Rusty" Duncan III, who died in an auto accident earlier this week, will be held Monday with burial following at the State Cemetery.

Duncan, 43, died Wednesday in a head-on collision on Texas 71 near Smithville while he was en route to his father's funeral in Houston. Duncan's mother died in October.

Duncan was elected to the state's highest criminal court bench in 1986. Before joining the court, he had been a trial lawyer in Denton. He received his law degree from South Texas College of Law at Houston in 1971.

Bastrop County Justice of the Peace Katie Warnke said the car that struck Duncan's was traveling on the wrong side of the road and did not have its headlights turned on. The driver of that vehicle, Lane Patterson, 33, of Giddings, was killed instantly, according to the Department of Public Safety.

A passenger in Duncan's vehicle, Kara Carter, 23, of Austin, suffered a fractured wrist.

Duncan's funeral service will be held at 3 p.m. at Weed-Corley funeral home, 3125 N. Lamar Blvd. in Austin. His family said memorials may be made to a scholarship fund established in Duncan's name at St. Edwards University.

College plans 2nd annual tournament

Western Texas College will host the second annual Brock Speech Tournament on March 10 with area high school students invited to participate.

Registration will be held from 7:30-8:30 a.m. in the lobby of the Fine Arts Theatre, with a general assembly in the theatre at 8 a.m. Events will begin at 8:30 a.m. and conclude with an awards assembly at 4:30 p.m.

The tournament is named for the late Dr. Ben Brock, WTC's first vice president who was a patron of the college Fine Arts Department.

WTC students plan survey

Western Texas College Management students will be conducting a survey of local consumer purchasing habits in March, Jack Price, Management instructor, said.

The purposes of the survey project are two-fold, Price added. One is to provide Management intern students with insight into the complexities of consumer behavior. The other is to provide the chamber of commerce and other interested parties with information that may contribute to a better understanding of local business issues and conditions.

Three groups of survey participants will be targeted. They include senior citizens, youth and family household members. An estimated 500 responses will be solicited. Students will accomplish a survey report during April to complete the activity, Price said.

Financial Focus

Tax-free municipal bonds, or "munis", traditionally have been one of the safest ways to invest your money. They still are, if, as with any investment decision, you exercise reasonable caution.

Munis offer the advantage of tax-free income because they are generally issued to finance public projects, such as highways, schools, hospitals and public utilities. Municipal bonds are not, however, issued by the federal government and should not be confused with government bonds.

A recent edition of Changing Times cited 123 municipal-bond issues valued at $1.1 billion that defaulted in 1987. According to the magazine's research, in 1988, 129 municipal-bond issues valued at $994.6 million defaulted, and an additional 33 issues worth $435.8 million defaulted in the first half of 1989.

Most of these problems involved high-risk issues. Investors who purchased munis on claims of "ultimate safety" could have saved much anxiety and probably some serious money had they read the prospectus on a new issue or the bond indenture of a bond already on the market.

The prospectus or bond indenture tells who's issuing the bond, what they money is used for, how it is paid and much more.

Additionally, if the bonds are rated by one of the major rating services (Moody's or Standard & Poor's), you get their professional evaluation of the risk in owning these bonds.

Here are some reasonable precautions to exercise when buying munis: (1) Make sure the bond you were sold is the same bond described in your official confirmation. When the bond is delivered, verify the description on the bond with the description on your confirmation. Pay particular attention to the name and description of the issuer, the interest rate and the date of maturity. Mistakes happen, and you want to be sure the proper bond was delivered to you.

(2) Read the bond indenture on the certificate. The indenture is your formal agreement with the bond issuer covering such considerations as the form of the bond, amount of the issue, property pledged, redemption rights and call privileges.

(3) A legal opinion on a tax-exempt bond is necessary. The legal opinion on the certificate is the opinion of counsel that these bonds are free of federal taxes. The legal entity rendering the opinion is identified, and the opinion is signed by an official of that firm.

(4) If your bond is registered, make certain the registration is in the name or names you requested.

(5) Finally, if safety is a major concern, consider investing in insured munis. These bonds are backed by the credit of the issuer and are insured as to the timely payment of principal and interest by one of several major municipal-bond insurance groups. The largest and most widely used are American Municipal Bond Assurance Corp. (AMBAC), Municipal Bond Insurance Association (MBIA), and Financial Guaranty Insurance Corp. (FGIC). Your broker can furnish you with information on these insurers and others.

Municipal bonds, when prudently bought, can offer years of tax-free income and security. They are excellent investments. But, as always, you should seek the help of a trusted broker to buy your bonds and make sure you do enough homework to protect your investment.

Health care plan criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bipartisan commission's plan to overhaul the nation's health care system would provide private or public insurance coverage to all Americans, regardless of whether they can afford it.

However, the plan already is drawing fire for failing to say how the $65 billion annual bill would be paid by taxpayers.

The proposals adopted Friday by the U.S. Bipartisan Commission on Comprehensive Health Care are aimed at providing universal access to health care and assuring that the elderly and disabled will be able to receive care — at home or in nursing homes.

Sen. Jay Rockefeller, D-W.Va., chairman of the commission, said the recommendations to Congress respond to a crisis in U.S. health care that leaves more than 31 million people without any health insurance and an additional 20 million with inadequate coverage.

Handicapped also need to fly

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Transportation Department told the nation's airlines Friday to end discrimination against the handicapped. One official estimated the cost at $20 million a year for the next 20 years.

The department put one caveat on the order: Blind people and some others may not be seated in rows with emergency exits.

The announcement brought strong criticism from the airline industry's Air Transport Association, which said it was considering a court challenge. The National Federation of the Blind blasted the exit-row rule as discriminatory and also threatened to sue.

In a set of directives officials said are aimed at opening the skies to more disabled people, the department required all new airliners with more than 30 seats to have moveable armrests on half the aisle seats. Wide-body planes must have at least one lavatory that can accommodate a handicapped passenger.

The rules also strictly limit airlines' ability to refuse service to handicapped people, prohibit any restriction on where they can sit except for safety reasons and prevent airlines from requiring handicapped passengers to be accompanied by an attendant unless the attendant is allowed to fly for free.

A second folded star class is planned in the center at 9 a.m. Wednesday. Anyone wishing to attend should pick up the supply list in the office at the center.

The Richburg Band will play for country and western dancing in the center Friday night starting at 7 p.m.

The ATA, which represents U.S. carriers, said the requirements would "diminish safety and service for air travelers and impose an unacceptable economic burden on the airlines and all their customers."

Government goal: reduce pollution

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The government intends to reduce pollution, not simply move it outside the capital, the Ecology secretary said. The secretary, Patricio Chirinos, told a meeting of government employees Friday that anti-pollution measures would not lead to unemployment as feared, the government said in a statement. Because of dangerous air pollution in Mexico City, the world's most-populous and one of its most-contaminated cities, many proposals have suggested moving smokstack industries outside of the capital. He said that the industries' pollution-control equipment will be made more effective.

AZT use widened

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration on Friday approved labels recommending that adults infected with the virus that causes AIDS be treated with the drug AZT even if they do not yet have symptoms of the disease. The drug has been used for three years to treat patients severely ill with AIDS and related problems. FDA approved new labels expanding its use after two federally-sponsored studies showed that AZT slowed progress of the disease when administered to infected patients with early symptoms or none at all.

"The studies and the change in labeling mean that better treatment can now be offered to thousands of people at earlier stages of infection with the AIDS virus before their health deteriorates critically," Health and Human Services Secretary Louis Sullivan said in a statement. AIDS, or acquired immune deficiency syndrome, is a contagious disease that attacks the body's immune system, rendering it incapable of resisting other diseases and infections. The incurable condition is believed caused by an unusual virus, now called human immunodeficiency virus or HIV.

The FDA move should make it easier for patients to obtain reimbursement under their health insurance policies, said Burroughs Wellcome vice president J.R. Whitehead, "since some payors look to the FDA labeling for guidance."

at track meet...

Ira's Bearden nabs two firsts

ROBERT LEE — Shane Bearden captured a pair of first place finishes to lead the Ira Bulldogs track team in their first meet of the season here Friday. Bearden's 2:11 in the 800 meter run and 5:02 in the 1600 meters paced the field. His accomplishment was even more phenomenal because of the fact that the Ira runner had not trained due to the extended basketball season for the 'Dogs and a trip to the Houston Stock Show. Mike Hughes, another late starter due to basketball, captured more points for Ira with a third place finish in the 200 meter dash and a fifth in the 400 meter dash. His time in the 200 was 26.09 seconds while he ran the 400 in 57.1. David Reyna claimed fifth position in the 200 meter dash with a 26.3 second time. The Bulldogs' Toby Haynes, though he didn't place in any event, drew special praise from coach Mike Holmes. "Toby did an excellent job for us. He gave a great effort and just missed placing in several events." Ira's girls were at the meet also with Emilee Taylor and Mauricia Rosas capturing third places in their respective events. Taylor's 14.7 second time in the 100 meter dash was good enough for third as was Rosas' 30.8 in the 200 meter dash. Misty Mathis grabbed fourth place in the 800 meter run with a 3:01 time. Margot Perkins finished just .8 of a second behind Mathis for fifth place in the event. Julie Williams finished in fifth place in the 1600 meters running the course in 7:36 and Kristi McMahan collected a sixth place with a 20.7 second time in the 100 meter low hurdles. Brandy Burleson and Amy Opegard also participated for the Lady Bulldogs. The Ira thinclads will take a small contingent to the Loop meet next Saturday. Ira's prom is also Saturday and several members of the track squad will miss Saturday's meet to attend the function.

Snyder tennis team in fourth position

SWEETWATER — Snyder's tennis team rested in fourth place after Friday's first round of play in the Sweetwater Tournament with 76 points in the team tennis format. Brandon Martin and Rocky Tubb, both from SHS, were to battle for first place in the boys' singles finals on Saturday. Snyder's John Griffin was to compete for twelfth. Kathy Ogburn was defeated in semi-final action and was to play for third place against Kim Ballenger of Sweetwater Saturday. Robin Cave, the other SHS entrant in girls' singles, was to have played for eleventh position in Saturday's final round. In girls' doubles teammates Gayle Henderson and Racheal Wilson went against Jennifer Harden and Cindy Srna, also of Snyder for third and fourth places in the tournament. Marcus Best and Bill Vestal, one SHS boys' doubles team, were to play Sweetwater's Daniel-Hoover team and Kevin McMillan and Damon Kennedy. Snyder's other doubles crew, were to have faced Hailey and Milholland of Abilene High for third and seventh place, respectively. Team standings after one day saw Sweetwater in first with 86 points.

Lady Tigers take top honors in Snyder Invitational event

The Snyder Lady Tigers captured first place in the Snyder Invitational Golf Tournament Friday, easily outdistancing second place Amarillo High and claiming the top three medalist spots in the process.

The SHS "A" team carded a 360 on the Snyder Country Club course for first place.

Amarillo's second place score was 396 followed by District 4-4A contender Big Spring with a 409. Andrews, another district foe, at 429 and Lubbock High with a 457.

The Lady Tigers "B" team

carded a 522 in the tourney. Jacy LaRoux was the tournament medalist with her round of 89 trailed closely by teammates Wendy Miller and Amy Armstrong who tied for second medalist with identical 90's.

Kim Duncan registered a 91 in the event and Amy Steakley scored a 113.

"B" teamers were led by Jennifer Kime with a 119 followed by Robin Phillips with a 130, Amber Kitchens' 135, a 138 from Kelli Lockhart and Ginny Fenton's 146.

The Snyder girls will return to the links next Friday as participants in the Abilene Invitational Tournament.

Tea-off time is set for 9:45 a.m. District golf begins for the girls March 17 as Snyder hosts the first loop tournament of the season.

'Hogs suspend player

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — A University of Arkansas basketball player has been suspended from the team after being accused of taking a $13.99 pair of shorts.

Forward Larry Marks is scheduled to appear March 28 in Fayetteville Municipal Court on a shoplifting charge. He was ticketed Friday afternoon for allegedly taking merchandise from a department store, the Arkansas Democrat reported Friday.

"Larry Marks has been suspended from our basketball team indefinitely, until I have the opportunity to fully investigate the matter," Coach Nolan Richardson said Friday morning.

Richardson apparently was not aware of the incident until informed by a reporter before practice Thursday.

NMSU student rescued from mine shaft

LAS CRUCES (AP) — A New Mexico State University student who panicked and fell while climbing into an abandoned mine shaft probably would have been killed if he had not caught himself on a wooden plank, officials said.

"The 2-by-4 is the only thing that saved his life," state police officer Steve Lopez said Friday. "If he'd fallen off that shoring, he'd be in a body bag," said Jeff Bauknecht of the Mesilla Valley Grotto, a caving group that assists with underground rescues.

Doug Hohle, 19, was carried from the shaft shortly before 7 a.m. Friday, nine hours after he fell, and taken to Memorial General Hospital where he was treated for a compound fracture of the leg, as well as cuts, scrapes and bruises. He was listed in good condition.

Bauknecht estimated Hohle was more than 250 feet into the abandoned mine on A Mountain, also known as Tortugas Mountain, when he fell. Hohle fell about 20 feet to a small ledge, tumbled down a steep incline for 25 feet, and then fell 10 more feet before landing on the plank, Bauknecht said.

The next drop was a free fall of about 50 feet, he said.

Ken Kissman, state police search and rescue team coordinator, said the rescue was difficult because of the depth, narrowness and instability of the shaft.

"He was somewhere between 200 and 250 feet down, best as we can figure," Kissman said.

University police said Hohle and four other students bypassed a security grate and entered the abandoned mine about 9 p.m. Thursday. An hour later, one of his companions appeared at a security building at the base of the mountain to summon help.

Hohle was the first of the five to descend into the mine. His companions had explored the shaft before, but it was Hohle's first trip, police said.

"He was 60 feet down the rope with a penlight when he just panicked because he couldn't see below," Lopez said. "He locked his arms, couldn't move up or down, and when he got tired, he fell."

Nearly 40 rescuers responded. Lopez said he and Hohle were alone in the shaft for about three hours. It took an hour working in tight quarters to move Hohle enough to splint his leg and another hour to get him off the shoring, into a litter and onto a small ledge.

The mountain is on NMSU property two miles east of the main campus. It is closed to public access because of classified military research conducted there. The NMSU observatory, a whitewashed letter A for Aggies and a shrine maintained by residents of the nearby village of Tortugas are on the summit.

NMSU Police Chief Jim Nelson said the state Bureau of Mines covered the mine entrance with a heavy wire grate last year, but someone reopened it. Rescuers pull someone from the mine every few years, and one NMSU student died in a fall there in the early 1960s, he said.

The mine, carved out of a fissure in the mountain, produced fluorspar — a crystalline mineral used in glass-making — from around the turn of the century and on into the 1960s. It is variously more than 1,000 feet deep.

Hohle and his companions could face criminal charges, said NMSU police Lt. Lou Cabot.

"There are possible trespassing charges involved," Cabot said. "The case could be referred to the university disciplinary process, or we could let the incident itself be a lesson."

"We'll talk about it on Monday," he said.

On May 24, 1844, Samuel F.B. Morse transmitted the words, "What hath God wrought!" from Washington to Baltimore as he formally opened America's first telegraph line.

Renaming of street sparks controversy in Portland, Oregon

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — City leaders had believed a street named after slain civil rights leader Martin Luther King Jr. would foster feelings of hope and pride, but now they worry the backlash will sully Portland's image.

The street name has been met with an organized opposition led by a conservative political veteran. A white supremacist leader joined the opponents, and they collected 52,435 signatures on a ballot initiative to reverse the name change.

A judge nixed their drive on Wednesday, but the opponents appealed Friday with the Oregon Supreme Court in hopes of meeting a March 15 deadline to put the initiative on the May 15 primary ballot.

A civic leader says that the controversy, combined with the 1988 beating death of an Ethiopian immigrant by a group of neo-Nazi "skinheads," may give blacks second thoughts about moving to the city. Three men have received long prison sentences for the beating death.

"Unfortunately, I think the city is going to take a bad rap over this, particularly as we try to attract other people of color to Portland," said Bernie Foster, a member of a citizens' committee that recommended the King street name. "You have to ask what kind of message are we sending."

If the story has a familiar ring, it is because the same drama has been played out in Seattle, San Diego, and Austin, Texas.

In Seattle, a 1983 decision to rename a street Martin Luther King Way was upheld by the Washington Supreme Court.

In San Diego, voters decided to strip King's name from a major street and return to the former name of Market Street. And in Austin, a court decision to overturn a 1975 street name change was upheld by a municipal appeals court. The King name was adopted in a separate action a year later.

Portland's Martin Luther King Jr. Boulevard is a 7-mile street on the city's east side formerly known as Union Avenue. It is a thoroughfare notorious for crime and prostitution.

Penrod attracts investors

DALLAS (AP) — A private bidding war could erupt over the sale of Penrod Drilling Corp., analysts say.

Penrod, which has one of the largest and most modern offshore fleets of drilling rigs in the world, is being shopped by a number of well-heeled investors ranging from Fort Worth investor Richard Rainwater to the Tisches of New York.

The company, owned by the Hunt brothers, has attracted considerable attention in the energy service industry. Offers for the Penrod's 89-rig fleet have ranged from $325 million to more than $500 million.

Penrod's sale may leave the Hunt brothers — William Herbert, Nelson Bunker and Lamar — with little or no interest in a company that was started by their late father, oilman H.L. Hunt.

The loss of Penrod would be a blow to both Herbert and Bunker, who emerged from bankruptcy protection in January after losing assets once worth billions of dollars.

A syndicate of 10 lenders, holding a 50 percent interest in the company, is trying to sell its interest in Penrod, unnamed sources familiar with the deal told The Dallas Morning News.

GUEST SPEAKER--Jayme Roemisch, assistant branch manager and loan officer of AmWest Savings, formerly Olney Savings, gave a short talk on mortgage loan programs available through AmWest to the Snyder Board of Realtors for their Feb. 13th meeting. Doris Beard, program chairman, introduced the guest speaker. TREPAC congratulated the board on 100 percent membership. Newly named board of directors are Claudia Sanchez, Bette League and Faye Blackledge. 21 members attended. (Realtors Photo)

'Brain drain'
plagues Mexico

MEXICO CITY (AP) -- Mexico is experiencing a brain drain because it cannot offer sufficient opportunities to its citizens, the director of Mexico's science council was quoted as saying.

The government news agency Notimex quoted Manuel Ortega, director general of Mexico's National Council on Science and Technology as saying Friday that other countries offer better economic opportunities for scientists. Most Mexican professionals who emigrate leave for the United States.

Perhaps you sent a lovely card,
Or sat quietly in a chair.
Perhaps you sent a funeral spray,
If so we saw it there.
Perhaps you spoke the kindest words,
As any friend could say.
Perhaps you were not there at all,
Just thought of us that day.
Whatever you did say to console our hearts,
We Thank You so much whatever the part.

Flying glass injures Greyhound passengers

By The Associated Press

Stranded Greyhound bus passengers were running out of money and patience waiting for buses to roll past lines of angry pickets after drivers went on strike against the only nationwide bus company.

The strike's first day was mostly peaceful, but in Chicago two people were slightly injured on Friday by flying glass when a sniper fired two shots at a Greyhound bus leaving the city, Illinois State Police said.

Dallas-based Greyhound Lines Inc. said it was operating 20 percent of its system with 700 newly hired replacement drivers, plus an unspecified number of union drivers who crossed picket lines.

Passengers on a bus arriving in Des Moines, Iowa, early Friday also said strikers fired four shots at their bus as it left a Chicago depot.

There were scattered reports of angry confrontations between strikers and replacement drivers in other cities. Union leaders appealed for calm.

The Amalgamated Council of Greyhound Local Unions, which represents more than 9,000 employees, including all 6,300 drivers and most maintenance and office workers, went on strike Friday after negotiators in Scottsdale, Ariz., failed to reach agreement on wage issues.

In all, the company said 1,100 union-represented employees came to work. Greyhound said it would increase operations as more replacements become available.

No talks were scheduled, and negotiators were planning to return home.

Passengers, meanwhile, tried to figure out how to get home. Some angrily denounced the company for not warning of the strike.

"I'm stuck here and I don't know what to do," said Alvira Sheffield, who left from Maine on Thursday and spent the night in the Port Authority bus terminal in New York City. "They knew about the strike. I don't know why they let me board the bus."

Greyhound spokeswoman Elizabeth Hale said: "Obviously we have not lived up to our expectations of making sure that our passengers were taken care of."

"I am sorry and it certainly was not intentional to leave anyone where they didn't want to be."

Greyhound serves 9,500 destinations, including 9,000 where it is the only intercity transportation available. The company offers the cheapest form of such transportation, including an advance purchase one-way fare of $68 anywhere in the country, and the strike stranded many poor people trying to leave or return home to smaller communities.

In Omaha, Neb., about 60 people — many passengers on coast-to-coast trips — filled the small downtown bus terminal, where babies sat on blankets, in car seats and in the arms of parents walking around luggage, bags and boxes.

Amtrak told agents to honor Greyhound tickets when buses are unavailable, railroad spokeswoman Sue Martin said. Clifton Lenoir, 37, a New Orleans truck driver stranded in Dallas, said he was down to his last 85 cents but he wasn't angry at the drivers.

"They just want better working conditions and benefits. I don't blame them," Lenoir said. Other passengers were less sympathetic.

"It's getting to the point where we're ready to go out there and fire one of the buses up, run over the strikers and say, 'See ya,'" said Frank Rzepski of Portland early (Friday) after noon for a job interview," said Margaret Huffstader of Eugene, Ore.

"I was supposed to be in Ore."

Father says wife is guilty in son's death

AUSTIN (AP) — The lawyer for Gerald Christopher Zuliani, accused in the brutal beating of his stepson, said his client contends the child's mother is to blame for the 2-year-old boy's death.

In the first public statement about the felony child abuse charge against his client, attorney Patrick Ganne offered a conflicting version of the events of the night Christopher Wohlers died. Ganne also disputed Robbi Zuliani's contention that she is a battered wife.

"He (Zuliani) is saying she did it," said Ganne. "(He's saying) she's a cold-blooded murderer."

Robbi Zuliani has said she and Chris Zuliani began living together in August, and married Dec. 10, three weeks before her son from a previous marriage was killed. She has since filed for divorce.

Chris Zuliani remains in jail in lieu of $50,000 bail. He was arrested Jan. 3 and charged with felony injury to a child. A week later, Robbi Zuliani was charged with the same felony — and accused of failing to intervene in the attack on Christopher. She is free on bond. The cases against the Zulianis are expected to be presented to a grand jury later this month.

Larry Sauer, an attorney for Robbi Zuliani, said he is not surprised that Chris Zuliani is blaming his wife for the child's death and that Ganne is "grabbing at straws."

Ganne said he can offer a contrasting story about why the Zulianis initially told police that Christopher, on the night of Jan. 2, fell unconscious. Robbi Zuliani told police that her husband encouraged her to say the boy was hurt while left alone in the bathtub.

But Ganne said Chris Zuliani's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Vic Zuliani, drove Chris and Robbi to the hospital where the boy had been taken. Ganne said the Zulianis heard Robbi school Chris on what to tell the authorities.

Robbi Zuliani's former boyfriend, Wayne Michael Hoffman, is serving a 10-year sentence for child abuse. Hoffman pleaded guilty to submerging Christopher in scalding bathwater last June.

Vic Zuliani said he has fielded threatening phone calls aimed at his son, and said perhaps it is best that he remains in jail. "He's safe where he's at."

"Regretfully, he's in a living hell."

month.

Other services provided by the TDH office includes the Early Childhood Intervention program (ECI), which offers help from children from birth to age 3 if they show a significant delay in motor skills, language or speech or social or emotional development. Children age birth to 6 who might be developmentally delayed are eligible for identification and follow-up.

The local facility may ask for minimum fees, but does not require payment. Ward said if someone needs their services, but cannot pay, they are still given the care they need.

Along with the WIC program, participants are urged to watch films. Classes are held twice a week at the office.

college board.

Bill Wilson Jr., incumbent Place 1, has filed for another term on the college board. Place 1 and Place 2 are the only spots coming up for re-election on the college board. Place 2 incumbent Roy Baze has said he will not seek another term.

To update the other boards: Snyder school board — Incumbents Billy Bob McMullan and Ann Walton have filed for District 4 and District 5, respectively. District 1 incumbent Ygnacio Benitez has not filed as yet.

Hermleigh school board — Incumbent Brian Blair has filed for another at-large term but no one has yet filed for the at-large spot currently held by Jimmy Hudgins.

Snyder City Council — Three incumbents out of four have filed for another term. They are Vernest Tippens, District 1; Ralph Williamson, District 2; and Jack K. "Jackie" Greene Jr., District 4. To date, District 3 incumbent Joe Coronado has not filed for a second term.

Candidates may file for office at the schools, city hall and the college through March 21.

record. Grayson County Junior College of Denison, ranked fifth nationally, leads the Northern Conference list of teams still in the running for the four post-season spots.

Cisco Junior College, McLennan Community College, Ranger Junior College and Hill Junior College were all, as of Saturday, still fighting for the remaining three berths in the women's bracket.

South Plains College's Texans, Howard College, Odessa College and New Mexico Junior College will be the men's entrants from the Western Conference.

Howard and South Plains, 12-3 and 13-2, respectively, will be the top seeds but the order won't be set until the results of their Monday meeting are determined. The Hawks and SPC will meet in Levelland's Texan Dome to play the last 10:05 of a game suspended earlier this season due to a broken backboard.

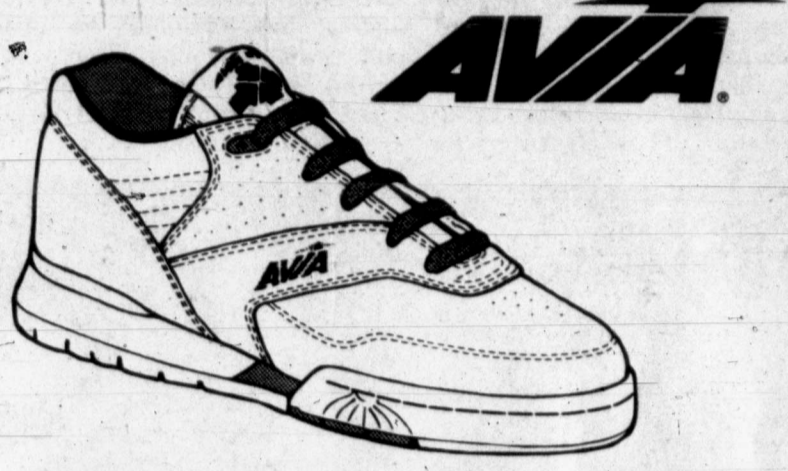

South Plains leads the contest, 73-70.

Odessa has wrapped up the third seed and NMJC will be No. 4 from the WJCAC in the regionals. Northern contenders still include McLennan, Hill, Grayson, Ranger, Weatherford Junior College and Texas State Technical Institute in Waco.

The women's games are set to begin at 1 p.m. Tuesday with the Lady Plainsmen of Frank Phillips meeting the fourth-place team from the Northern Conference.

Winners in the regional tournament will advance to the NJCAA national tournaments — in Tyler for the women and Hutchinson, Kan. for the men.

Grant funds must be repaid

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Officials with the U.S. Centers for Disease Control have ordered the director of an El Paso AIDS organization to repay more than $35,000 in grant money they say he misspent, a newspaper reported Friday.

The money was granted by the Atlanta-based CDC for AIDS education and had the potential of totaling $1 million in five years, but was stopped by the CDC last April.

Jaime Perez, director of the Rio Bravo Association, said he is appealing the order, which he claims is the latest in ongoing attempts by the CDC to take back the grant. Rio Bravo was organized to educate Hispanics about AIDS.

According to documents, CDC officials ended the Rio Bravo grant because Perez hadn't begun forming a regional consortium to educate Hispanics about acquired immune deficiency syndrome as required by the grant.

Perez appealed that ruling last summer and won. A U.S. Department of Health and Human Services appeals board said Rio Bravo "had made substantial progress in establishing a consortium."

But a federal audit released to the El Paso Herald-Post in a Freedom of Information request revealed other problems.

The audit showed Perez spent $500 for an "organizational party" at his home; $234 for men's clothes, shoes, music tapes and records; $10,000 for payment of salaries to Perez and a community specialist staff member that CDC officials said were overstated because at the same time the two were receiving salaries from a grant from the Texas Department of Health; and $8,153 for paving the parking lot outside Rio Bravo's office.

Were Texas cars targeted for stops?

DALLAS (AP) — Defense attorneys in Memphis, Tenn., say the sheriff has targeted cars with Texas license plates in his interstate drug interdiction program.

Some lawyers and the director of the American Civil Liberties Union in Tennessee contend that Sheriff Jack Owens has targeted cars with Texas license plates for random stops and searches.

"Texans better go around Memphis, don't go through Memphis. Maybe go through Mississippi," said Charles Baucum, a lawyer with the Shelby County public defender's office. "With a Texas license plate, you'd better be careful."

Owens, known as "Rambo Jack," said Friday that Shelby County deputies are only enforcing traffic laws. When they stop drivers, he said, deputies seek permission to search cars only when they have reason to suspect contraband. And if they find drugs, he said, "that's just a bonus."

"We have no more affinity for people who drive through here from Texas than we would for any other state in the union," he said. "No effort is being made to tag people from Texas."

Owens also denied claims by defense attorneys and ACLU director Hedy Weinberg that Texas cars with Hispanic drivers are even more highly prized targets.

"Somebody gets caught with a large shipment of drugs, and their defense attorney has to have something to work with," he said. "That's just something else defense attorneys are claiming."

But several lawyers said Friday that proof of Shelby County's war on Texans is evident in the county's felony courts.

Baucum said he has represented virtually all of the suspects charged with felony drug offenses through the interdiction program because he handles all felony court preliminary hearings for the public defenders' office.

"I can say that 95 percent of the cases resulting from that program are Texans," he said. "I guess they average three Texans a day. That's about 15 or 20 Texans a week. And about half are Spanish-speaking persons, Mexican-looking people with Texas cars."

"It makes real good publicity. 'Rambo Jack' looks good with all these drug cases," he said. "But it's not intended in the Constitution to allow stops without probable cause. Being Texan is not probable cause."

Bulgarian students demand no more rule by Communist party

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP) — About 15,000 students defied rain, cold and a ban on city marches on Friday to denounce the ruling Communists as a "mafia" and demand that they step down.

The students gathered near Vasil Levski Stadium, site of a rally by 70,000 Communists Thursday, and then paraded 2 1/2 miles downtown to a square in central Sofia, shouting their support for the democratic opposition.

Thousands of Bulgarians along the route cheered as the students marched past, chanting "Down with the BKP!" — the initials of the Bulgarian Communist Party — and "Then and now — the Communist Party a mafia!"

People waved and clapped from windows and balconies. Hospital nurses left their ward to watch the procession, punctuated by rhythmic jumping and chanting of "SDS!" — the Bulgarian abbreviation of the opposition.

The activists carried placards reading, "Freedom or Socialism," "Communism is a Drug for People" and "The Communist Party must go to the Belene jail" — an infamous prison for political prisoners.

Miners in 26 pits meanwhile went on strike Friday to press for a cut in working hours and that demands made in a miners' strike in January be fulfilled: The independent Podkrepa trade union organized the job action.

Scurry County Folks...

By Shirley A. Gorman

"We're just like one big family."

That's how Johnnie Pyburn recently described her position as houseparent to three men with mental retardation.

For the past 1½ years, Pyburn and her husband Nate, who is retired, have been living on Ave. W in a mobile home which was attached to the house next door about four years ago. Her husband does not share her responsibilities as houseparent, but is actively involved in the local Special Olympics program and is certified to coach bowling. He is also in the process of obtaining certification for track and field coaching.

Snyder's ARC, Association for Retarded Citizens, established the home on Ave. W a few years ago because there was and still is a need for a home for local men with mental retardation to live. The home has enough beds to house four men but only three beds are currently occupied.

The mobile home was later added so the houseparent could have a place to live, she said.

As houseparent, Pyburn said she has to supervise the men when they clean their home and when they do their laundry. If they cooked she would also supervise, but since she "loves to cook" she prepares all the meals and she and her family and the residents eat together.

In actuality, even though the house and the mobile home are separate entities joined by a common walkway, Pyburn manages the two homes "just like one big household."

Of the three current residents in the ARC home, one man works the evening cleanup detail for the highway department and two others work for Scurry County Work Center, which contracts for work to be done by citizens with mental retardation.

The men are capable of making their own decisions she said. Two of them like to go to church with Pyburn and her family, but the other one prefers to stay at home. She calls him a "homebody," explaining that being at home makes him happy.

Work center projects in the past have included such tasks as making humming bird feeders, she said. The work center provides vocational and functional daily living skills training and each worker receives a monthly salary.

Pyburn said "her boys" look forward to the 15th of every month because they know it is payday.

The Work Center is under the authority of the Abilene State School and is supervised by Debbie Cothran.

Pyburn assumed the houseparent role about 1½ years ago. At one time a daughter and her husband held the position. When the position became vacant, Pyburn was glad to have the job because it was "something she had always wanted to do."

Pyburn explained that "her boys" can be left on their own for short periods of time, such as during church services when one of the residents would prefer to remain home, but if she has to be gone for any length of time, such as vacation, she said another houseparent is always brought in. The residents are never left unsupervised for long periods of time.

Besides serving as

LIKES HER JOB—Johnnie Pyburn serves as the houseparent for three men with mental retardation who live in a home which is partially connected to the mobile home she and her husband, Nate, live in. In addition, she is also in charge of selling at the Association of Retarded Citizens' garage sale. Her husband has been involved with Special Olympics for years and has recently begun to acquire his coaching credentials. (SDN Staff Photo) houseparent, Pyburn is also in charge of selling at the ARC Garage Sale which is located across the street from the home and is open on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

Pyburn said they welcome all usable donations from clothes to kitchen items. Sometimes as many as five volunteers will be needed to help sort the donations; other times only two may be enough. Mondays and Wednesdays are usually reserved for sorting, pricing and arranging donations for display.

The garage sale is run by the ARC, of which Pyburn is a member. All proceeds support ARC projects such as the men's home, the mobile home she lives in and the building which houses the garage sale. All have been paid for through the ARC Garage Sale sales, a fact she is very proud of. She also notes that the Garage Sale would not be a success without the help and support of the community.

Pyburn said they will also pick up donations upon request.

She said Wanda Cody also helps her with sales sometimes, explaining that the woman came in to buy something one day and ended up becoming one of the volunteers.

"The garage sale is definitely a team effort," she said. "And it is our basic fund raiser."

Pyburn said the home is regularly inspected by a case manager and if a resident qualifies for case management services she said the case manager would take him to the doctor, for instance, if he had no other way to go.

The case manager is also employed through the Abilene State School.

Pyburn considers her job "real, real special" because the residents "are so appreciative of what anyone does for them and they never try to take advantage of anyone."

She and her husband like Special Olympics but she is unable to attend because as houseparent she could not leave the residents unsupervised for that length of time. But Nate has been involved with it for years and has recently begun earning various coaching certifications.

He said everyone should attend one of the meets because "they would be amazed by what they see."

He said it is not unusual for people with mental retardation and who are confined to wheelchairs to "come alive" and "do whatever they are capable of." Some are blind, but they compete to the very best of their abilities anyway he said.

"It's just wonderful what they can do," he said.

Nate Pyburn received his bowling certification by first attending a day-long school held in Abilene and then putting in practice time. He is following a similar program in order to earn certification as a track and field coach.

Johnnie Pyburn is originally from Graham and moved to California when she was 11 years old. During the 30 years she lived there she worked for many years as a teacher's aide. Pyburn said she started out just volunteering her time and eventually was hired as an aide after her children got older.

She was a widow with two children when she met and married, for instance, if he had no

In double-ring ceremony...

Sterling, Wilson say vows

Kara Michelle Sterling and Trey Wilson were joined in matrimony at 7 p.m. November 24 at the First Baptist Church of Ira. The Rev. G. Mark McMillan officiated the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy H. Sterling of Ira, The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. James P. Wilson, Jr. of Snyder.

The couple recited their vows in before a 15-branch votive candelabra covered with greenery and accented with burgundy ribbon. A seven-tiered votive candelabra trimmed with greenery, mauve roses and burgundy carnations stood on each side. The pews were adorned with burgundy roses, baby's breath and matching ribbon.

The windows and railing in the auditorium were adorned with votive candles accented with wedding fern and burgundy ribbon.

Ushers were Craig McMullen, brother-in-law of the bride, and Royce Hataway.

Cindy Nix sang "Let It Be Me" and "The Lord's Prayer." Debbie Smith played the wedding march and recessional on the piano.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown she designed. It was created by Lana Galloway of Snyder. The gown of white satin featured a fitted sheered bodice with full length sleeves and scooped neckline.

The bodice dropped to a diagonal waistline and featured a full skirt with a chapel-length train trimmed with lace edging. The full, puffed sleeves were tucked to the elbow; fastened with satin buttons and pointed to the fingertip. The neckline and sleeves were edged with string pearls. The bodice and sleeves were embellished with a string pearl design and scattered seed pearls.

Satin roses with silk centers topped the shoulder pearling and emphasized the slant-dropped waistline. An ankle length drape fell from the backwaist and was edged with string pearls. A satin rose with silk center topped the soft draping bow.

The bride wore a full-length veil of white double tulle on a garland of white braided satin cord entwined with string pearls and silk roses.

The bride carried a free form bouquet of white bridal roses, baby's breath and wedding fern. The bouquet was entwined with pearls and lace ribbon to complete the arrangement.

Following tradition, the bride wore a garter created by Lana Galloway, fashioned of lace and satin from the bridal gown. It was accented with burgundy roses and ribbon. She also wore a garter of lace, pearls and blue ribbon made by Anna Mae Perry. Something old was a gold wedding band belonging to the bride's late grandfather, R.C. Howard, which was tied to a garter with ribbon.

The wedding ring belonging to Eva Mae Howard, the bride's late grandmother, was used to create a unique diamond necklace borrowed from the bride's sister, Julie McMullen.

The bridal gown was new and birth-year pennies were worn in the bride's satin shoes.

Shonna Butler of Snyder, cousin of the groom, was matron of honor. Bridesmaid was Julie McMullen of Ira, sister of the bride. They wore tea-length dresses of burgundy velvet featuring a dropped gathered waist at the side, adorned with a fabric rosette and silk centers. A soft draping bow completed their attire.

Aleigh Sterling of Ira, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kirby Sterling, served as flower girl. She wore a tea-length gown of burgundy velvet, accented with a white crocheted collar and a sash tied in the back. She wore a white lace bow in her hair. She carried a white basket lined with satin and lace, adorned with burgundy roses and ribbon.

Seth Sterling, brother of the bride was ring bearer. He wore a black tuxedo with tails, a burgundy bow tie and cummerbund. He carried a white, heart-shaped pillow trimmed with lace and silk roses.

Jay Butler of Snyder served the groom as best man. Groomsman was Lance Wilson, brother of the groom. They were both attired in black tuxedos with tails, burgundy bow ties and cummerbunds. All male attendants wore boutonnieres of burgundy roses and baby's breath.

The groom was attired in a white tuxedo with tails.

Kaila Verfurth registered guests at a table covered with white lace. The bride's throw-away bouquet and baskets of rice roses complemented the table. Baby pictures of both the bride and groom also adorned the table.

A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church following the ceremony.

The bride's table was covered in white lace. The wedding cake, created by Reta Graham, was a three-tiered floating cake. It was topped with a miniature porcelain cowboy and bride. The cake was accented with roses and ribbon between the layers. Cascading roses adorned the floating arm.

White milk glass appointments included a punch bowl and candle holders belonging to the bride's late grandmother. They were also used at the bride's parents' wedding and her sister's wedding.

Banana-pineapple slush punch was also served. Handmade rose mints, made by the bride's sister, and nuts were featured at the table. The bridal bouquet served as a centerpiece. Dee Dee Dunn of San Angelo and Lynn Sterling of San Antonio, aunt of the bride, served at the table.

The groom's table was covered in burgundy cloth overlaid with white lace. The cake was a double-horseshoe chocolate cake with chocolate icing, trimmed in gold. Coffee was served from a brass service. Handmade chocolate boots and horseshoes were also served. A brass cowboy boot with burgundy roses served as centerpiece. Appointments at the table were of brass.

Tammy Williamson and Redonna Guynes served at the groom's table.

Tables in the fellowship hall

MR. AND MRS. TREY WILSON

were decorated with white cloths. Votive candles tied with burgundy ribbon adorned the tables.

Baskets of burgundy rice bags made by the bride's great-aunt, Ilene Kruse, were passed out by the bride's cousins Alison and Whitney Sterling of San Antonio. The parents of the groom hosted a rehearsal dinner at Reta's.

Following a wedding trip to Ruidoso, N.M., the couple will be at home in Snyder.

VEAL BURGERS

- 1 pound ground veal
- 2 tablespoons seasoned salt-free bread crumbs
- 1 tablespoon minced onion
- 1 tablespoon low-fat milk
- 1 large egg white
- 1 teaspoon dried parsley
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/4 teaspoon dried savory
- 4 slices Swiss cheese
- 4 hamburger buns, preferably whole-wheat

In medium-size bowl, combine all ingredients except Swiss cheese and hamburger buns; mix well. Shape into 4 patties. Grill 3 to 4 inches from hot coals, about 3 minutes on each side. Top each burger with 1 slice of cheese. Continue grilling 1 to 2 minutes.

To broil: Preheat oven to broil. Place burgers on rack in broiler pan. Cook 3 to 4 inches from heat source, about 3 minutes on each side. Top each burger with 1 slice of cheese and continue broiling 30 seconds. Serve on buns. Makes 4 servings.

Note: For 8 patties, double all ingredients, except egg white.

MACARONI AND CHEESE SALAD

- 1/2 pound elbow macaroni
- One 6-ounce package American cheese, diced
- 1 cup thinly sliced celery
- 1/2 cup thinly sliced radishes
- 1/2 cup grated carrots (2 small)
- 1/4 cup diced green pepper
- 2 tablespoons plus 1 teaspoon olive oil
- 1 tablespoon plus 1 teaspoon red-wine vinegar
- 1 1/2 teaspoons lemon juice
- 1/4 teaspoon dried dillweed

Ted Bigham
PHOTOGRAPHY
573-3622

- 1/4 teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 1/4 teaspoon celery seed
- 1/4 teaspoon garlic powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- Dash black pepper

Cook macaroni according to package directions but without salt. Drain and refrigerate until well chilled.

In large mixing bowl, combine macaroni, cheese, celery, radishes, carrots and green pepper.

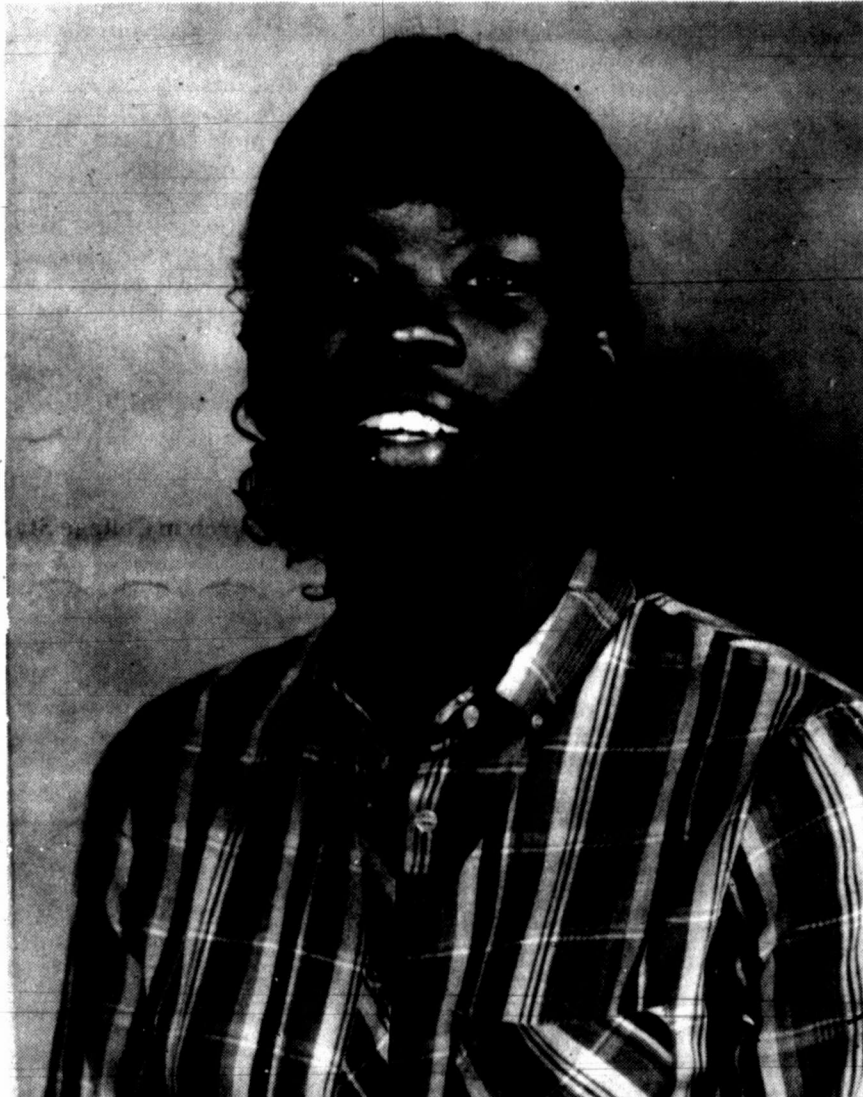

In small bowl, whisk together remaining ingredients. Add macaroni and toss to coat. Refrigerate at least 1 hour before serving. Makes sixteen 1/2-cup servings.

BROCCOLI-CAULIFLOWER SALAD

- 1/2 cup plain non-fat yogurt
- 1 large head fresh broccoli, trimmed and cut into bite-size pieces
- 1 large head cauliflower, trimmed and cut into bite-size pieces
- One 8-ounce package Muenster cheese, diced
- 3/4 cup finely chopped red onion
- 1/4 cup sliced black olives
- 2 tablespoons reduced-calorie mayonnaise
- 1 tablespoon red-wine vinegar
- 1/4 teaspoon lemon rind
- 1/4 teaspoon black pepper

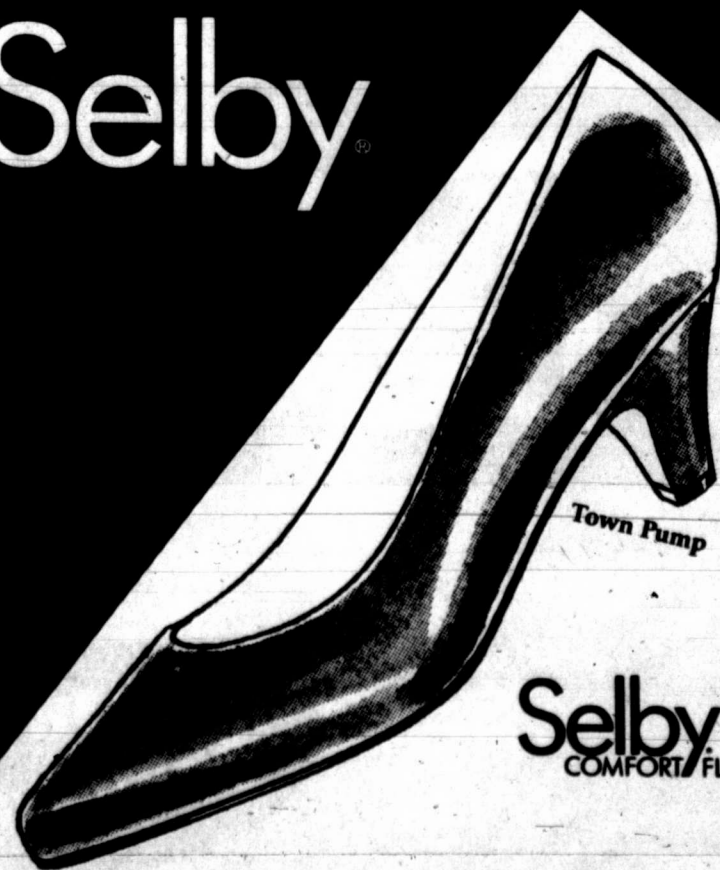

Place yogurt in small strainer and set over a bowl; set aside to drain. In large pot of boiling water, blanch broccoli 2 minutes; drain and rinse in cold water. Repeat with cauliflower. Place vegetables in large bowl; add cheese, onion and olives.

In small bowl, combine drained yogurt, mayonnaise, vinegar, lemon rind and pepper; stir to blend. Pour over vegetables and toss to coat. Refrigerate until well chilled. Makes ten 1-cup servings.

LAUGH MEDICINE
"A cheerful heart is a good medicine, but a downcast spirit dries up the bones," suggests the Book of Proverbs. Researchers are finding that laughter is truly good medicine. Laughter relieves stress, increases respiratory activity, oxygen exchange, and heart rate. It may stimulate the brain to produce endorphines (natural pain killers) - it can reduce depression and may increase your life span. A good laugh is free - and you don't need a prescription!

In home ceremony...

Clement, Carroll are married

Allison Renea Clement and Billy Jack Carroll, both of Snyder, were joined in matrimony February 9 at 8 p.m. at 2507 Ave. Z. Margie Magness officiated the double-ring ceremony.

Parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Clements of San Angelo. The groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Dale Turnbo of Snyder and Mr. Cecil Carroll of Andrews.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride chose a western style, tea-length dress of denim. She carried a bouquet of red silk miniature roses with baby's breath, adorned with white satin ribbon and red and white streamers.

Rachel Clement of Dallas served her sister as maid of honor.

Michael Carroll, brother of the groom, served as ring bearer.

David Carroll served his brother as best man.

A reception followed the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with a white lace table cloth. Her bouquet served as a centerpiece. The cake, designed by Reta Graham, featured white icing with red roses adorning the top. Wedding bells sat atop the cake. Susan Robbins, cousin of the groom, served at the bride's table.

The groom's table was also covered with a white lace table cloth from which Candy Turnbo, aunt of the groom, served a chocolate devil's food cake.

MR. AND MRS. BILLY JACK CARROLL

The couple plans a wedding trip in September. The bride is a senior at Snyder

High School. The groom, a 1985 SHS graduate, is currently employed by Patterson Drilling.

Big bucks spent on snacks

NEW YORK (AP) — Do you love to munch and crunch chips, popcorn or pretzels? According to the Snack Food Association, the "average" American spent $41 on snacks in 1988. Potato chips were the top salted snack-food seller, the SFA says, followed by tortilla chips, popcorn, nuts, baked and fried cheese crunch products, corn chips, pretzels, meat snacks (such as beef jerky) and pork rinds.

"Munching on snacks is a big part of the American culture," says association president Jim Shufelt. "Traditional meals and eating patterns are shifting to accommodate today's lifestyles and people's emphasis on convenience. Snack foods help fill that niche." The Snack Food Association, located in Alexandria, Va., is an international trade association of the salted snack industry. It comprises more than 700 snack food manufacturers and suppliers.

The association reports record retail sales of $10.3 billion overall in 1988. Popcorn showed the largest growth, with an increase in sales of 19 percent. This rise was led by a 28 percent increase in the sales of microwave popcorn. Ready-to-eat popcorn, spurred by the widespread popularity of white Cheddar cheese seasoning, posted a 23 percent sales increase.

WHO IS BUYING SNACKS? Consumers of snacks are young: one-third are under the age of 35; over half are under the age of 45. The average frequent buyer is 38 years old. Two-thirds of the buyers are married, and they buy snacks for other household members.

More than 20 percent are homemakers; 30 percent are of office workers, including professionals; nearly 50 percent have some college education. The average family income ranges between $30,000 and $50,000.

Consumers buy snacks, on the average, about 10 times in a 4-week period.

WHO EATS WHAT? Potato chips, popcorn and corn chips are popular with all age groups.

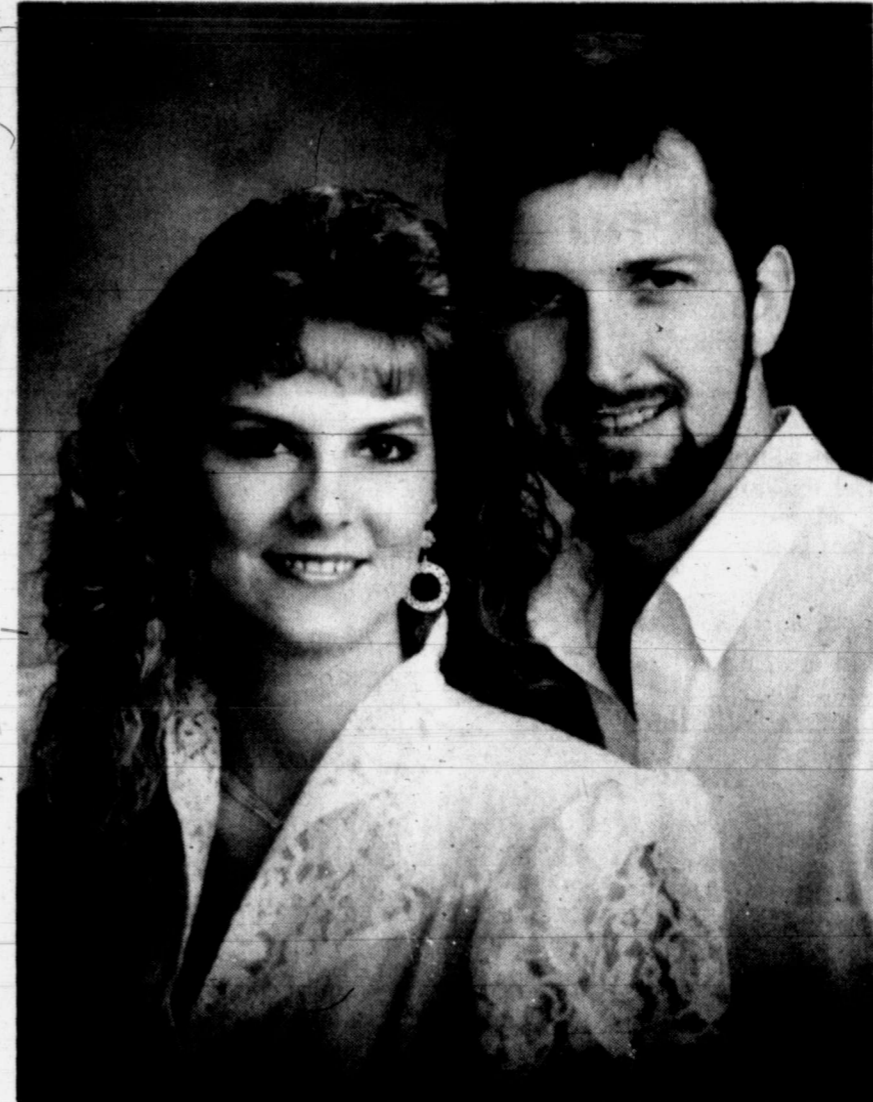

Pork rinds and nuts appeal to the over-35 crowd; children under the age of 13 prefer cheese puffs and cheese-filled products.

Tortilla chips and dried-meat snack consumers are most often between the ages of 13 and 34. Those under 13 and over 35 prefer pretzels and cracker sandwiches.

WHEN DO THEY EAT SNACKS?

The Snack Food Association says most people enjoy snacks while watching television. Other popular occasions include parties, between meals and with meals.

'Miss' contestants queried

WICHITA, Kan. (AP) — Many of the Miss USA contestants want to meet Donald Trump, and one lists bologna-wrapped pickles as her favorite food.

The likes and dislikes of the contestants are covered in detail in pageant-produced biographies.

The contest's 12 quarter-finalists will compete Friday to be Miss USA 1990. The winner advances to the Miss Universe pageant.

What was the worst thing that ever happened to them?

"When my skirt fell to the floor during a dance performance. However, I kicked it off and kept right on dancing," said Miss Arkansas, Kathryn Harris.

"When my Pekingese was stolen," said Miss Michigan, Carole Gist.

Their likes: Cosmopolitan magazine, football games and Meryl Streep.

Miss Indiana, Meri Lyn Buker, likes the bologna-pickle combo.

Falk candied

NEW YORK (AP) — Actor Peter Falk says he's terrified of taking risks, but a part of him yearns for adventure.

He said in an interview in Sunday's Parade magazine that he's overly cautious and friends refer to him as "the 2,000-year-old man" because he's slow to make a decision. Yet, he professes to having an opposite side.

The 62-year-old actor said he's tried to find adventure in a number of ways. Two examples: joining the merchant marine and applying for a job with the CIA.

QUALITY DAY CARE IS ECONOMIC ISSUE FOR PARENTS

One of the most important issues facing parents who work outside the home is child care. Parents are concerned that their child-care dollars be well spent. In addition to concern for cost, parents want quality and convenience in the child-care services they choose.

For many parents, purchasing child-care services presents an economic dilemma. Child-care costs constitute a big ticket item in many households. The average share of income spent on child care is about 10 percent, according to studies by the Urban Institute.

But the range of income parents devote to this cost varies. Wealthier parents may spend about 5 percent of their household income for services while poorer parents may spend in the range

Going legitimate

By James Jacoby

Declarer did not give his opponents much credit in the play of three no-trump. He won dummy's queen of hearts and played a diamond to his queen. West won the ace and woodenly played another heart. So South quickly rattled off five spade tricks, three hearts and one diamond.

West can do much better. It is a tip-off that declarer holds the ace of spades when he does not attack that suit at trick two. And West knows that declarer holds A-K of hearts and the queen of diamonds. He therefore cannot hold the club ace or he would have opened the bidding with a strong one-no-trump. So West should play clubs, and the right approach is to bang down the club king. That enables East to encourage with the club eight. A second club will be played to East's ace, and a club back goes through declarer's remaining 9-6 with West holding the J-7.

If declarer wants to force the defense to give him the contract, rather than rely on a defensive error, he can try running the spade suit after taking the first trick with dummy's heart queen. He can throw one diamond and two clubs away on the long spades. Meanwhile what can West do with his four clubs, since he has to make two discards on the spades? Sure, he can safely throw the 10 of diamonds. What next? Since a heart discard will make South's little heart a winner, West must shed a club. Now declarer plays a diamond to the queen as before, and West no longer has four clubs that can be run to set the contract.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1990 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: This concerns the kindergarten teacher who was teaching the children how to dial "911" in case of emergency, when one sharp little boy commented: "This would work a whole lot better if I was sure what a 'nine' looked like."

Abby, the boy makes an excellent point, but I have another concern. Teachers should teach children that the emergency number is "nine-one-one," and discourage saying, "Nine-eleven," because there is no number 11 on the telephone dial.

There are cases pending in courts across the nation because precious lives have been lost due to the time wasted while children tried to find number "11" on the telephone.

I should know — I work for the Winterville Rescue Squad.

DAWSON PAGE,
WINTERVILLE, N.C.

DEAR MR. PAGE: Too bad nobody thought of that when someone came up with "911" for emergency. The number "1-2-3" would have been less confusing and easier to remember.

DEAR ABBY: In my hometown, Chillicothe, Ohio, we were on a party-line telephone system (usually four families to a line) years ago. Are there places in the United States (or Canada) where such systems still exist?

One lady on our line was the wife of a World War II soldier, and she played around quite a bit with the 4-Fers she worked with at the shoe factory, if you catch my drift. I caught my straitlaced, righteous mother eavesdropping on this lady's conversations more than once — then repeating the conversation verbatim to the ladies at church. I wasn't adverse to listening in myself, being all of 8 or 9 years old.

Another subscriber on our line owned a mortuary. He got some strange and sad calls at all hours of the night. Those calls should have been private, but weren't. We had a large family, and somebody was always listening in.

Perhaps some of your readers who were on a party line still remember some of the things they heard.

CAROL LAW,
LEUCADIA, CALIF.

DEAR CAROL: If anybody reading this has ever heard anything on a party line worth repeating, I'm sure we'll hear about it. (City folks have probably never heard of a party line.)

DEAR ABBY: You really hit a

Privatization of industries likely

EAST BERLIN (AP) — East German authorities have taken another step toward the introduction of capitalism by announcing the nation's state-owned industries will be sold off to private investors starting March 15.

However, land and fixed assets will not be on sale to foreigners in what is seen as a move to prevent a huge sellout to West Germany.

Also Thursday, the East German Foreign Ministry proposed that experts from both Germanys meet soon to work out a common position on German unification for presentation to the World War II allies — the United States, the Soviet Union, Britain and France.

DEAR SCOTT: Great Scott! A hundred holes in one! I never would have believed it had you not enclosed positive proof: 1. A congratulatory letter from Jack Nicklaus (1983). 2. A reprint from the 1988 Guinness Book of World Records stating: "The greatest number of holes in one reported in one career is 98 — held by Scott Palmer of Los Angeles." (Since then, Palmer has added two more.) 3. A photocopy of "Ripley's Believe It or Not" (1984), which stated: "Between Feb. 17, 1983, and March 6, 1984, Scott Palmer of San Diego made 24 holes in one — 17 with the same ball."

By the way, Scott is not related to Arnie Palmer.

Read on for reactions from other golfers:

DEAR ABBY: As an avid golfer who has had two holes in one, I refuse to buy drinks for the golf population in the clubhouse. I will buy one drink each for those I'm playing with. My husband, who has had six holes in one at various clubs, concurs.

NANCY H. DIVOLL,
BELLOWS FALLS, VT.

DEAR ABBY: I think the custom of requiring a golfer who gets a hole in one to buy drinks for everyone is absurd. Two years ago, one of our members made a hole in one during a tournament, and it cost him more than $500. I had one last year and it was no big deal. On the way home, I asked my partner if he wanted a drink, and he said yes, so I pulled up in front of a market and bought him a Coke from the machine out in front.

HAROLD F. MOKLER,
SCOTTSDALE, ARIZ.

DEAR ABBY: I got a hole in one last November. The feeling was indescribable! I couldn't buy drinks for anybody because the club I belong to down here doesn't have a liquor license.

J. LESLIE ST. PIERRE,
BRADENTON, FLA.

DEAR ABBY: I've made five holes in one. The first one was such a thrill, I bought drinks for everyone. After that, a hole in one got to be "ho-hum," so I bought a badly needed sprinkler system for the golf club, telling those who asked, that's where their drink is!

MARGIE EMERSON,
CATHEDRAL CITY, CALIF.

DEAR ABBY: According to you, dropping in on people without calling first is a crime. We don't happen to feel that way. In fact, my husband and I lead guilty to that "crime," but let me explain our reasoning.

We figure if we call first to say we are coming, our friends will go to a lot of extra trouble, and we don't want that. If we get there and they are not all that glad to see us, we can always leave.

I know that you do not approve of dropping in, but I'll bet most of your readers feel as we do.

If you print this, maybe we'll find out.

"DROP-INS"

Ban of tobacco advertising would threaten publications

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Texas publisher says many Hispanic newspapers and magazines would collapse if the government bans tobacco and alcohol advertising, but a health official says the aggressive marketing is dangerous to Latinos' health.

For some Hispanic publishers, tobacco and alcohol advertising can sometimes make the difference between staying afloat and going under. That's not heresy — cigarettes and alcohol are legal products that many Hispanic readers choose to purchase. But that's not a reason for discrimination, Tino Duran told a House committee Thursday.

Duran, president of the National Association of Hispanic Publications, told the House Energy and Commerce subcommittee on transportation and hazardous materials that advertising targeting Hispanics reflects the Hispanic community's growing clout as consumers.

"You don't hear cries of outrage over housewives being 'targeted' by detergent makers, or yuppies being 'exploited' by exposure to American Express commercials. Why is that? Because, unlike Hispanics, nobody would dare suggest that those people need to be 'protected' from advertising," said Duran, whose organization represents more than 350 Hispanic newspapers around the country.

Duran's comments came at a hearing to consider legislation aimed at keeping tobacco companies from directing advertising campaigns toward women, young people and minorities.

Duran, who is also president of Hispanic newspapers in San Antonio and Fort Worth, testified a tobacco and alcohol advertising ban would "put thousands of people on the unemployment line and force many newspapers and magazines, especially Hispanic ones, to fold."

Duran, who began publishing more than three years ago, said he would not have survived without the benefit of his advertisers, who include several tobacco manufacturers and brewers. Duran publishes El Informador Hispano in Fort Worth and La Prensa in San Antonio.

But Helen Munoz, vice president for national programs at the National Coalition of Hispanic Health and Human Services Organizations, testified heavy restrictions on tobacco advertising were warranted.

"Cancer and cardiovascular disease are seen as among the leading causes of death among Hispanics, and as a result of increasingly aggressive and innovative advertising courting Hispanics, tobacco firms are expected to contribute significantly to a substantial increase in smoking related death and disease," Ms. Munoz said.

Approximately 41 percent of Hispanic men and 22 percent of Hispanic women smoke, she said, and research has indicated that smoking is prevalent among Hispanic youth and that this smoking begins at an early age.

Ms. Munoz said advertisers, including tobacco companies, are using sophisticated marketing analysis and techniques in selling their products to the Hispanic community, with its buying power estimated at $138 billion in 1990, up from $93 billion in 1980.

"For tobacco companies advertising is especially important in reaching the Hispanic consumer because of Hispanic tendencies to be much more 'brand loyal' than their non-Hispanic white counterparts," she said.

She said the increasing prevalence of Hispanic and youth-targeted advertising for tobacco products compounds health challenges facing the Hispanic community, such as lack of insurance and access to health care. At the same time, almost half of all Hispanic Americans are 18 or younger, 44 percent compared to 33 percent for non-Hispanic whites.

By Bill McClellan

It's closed up, confined, but before you animal rights activists jump and hollar, I have been letting it out regularly for the benefit of sunshine — on a chain leash, naturally.

I'm talking about the tumbleweed, of course. I stalked it for several evenings to learn its tendencies, snuck up on it and, with no regard to personal safety, captured it last week. After breaking it somewhat to control its rather nasty disposition, I confined it to a field. Phil Riddle, the sports editor, and I managed to wrestle it back to town on Thursday.

I won't go into all the details of how I caught it. Safe to say, however, I stayed within state law and the good conduct code. I grabbed it right out in the middle of an unfenced area. Two things were in my favor — the recent rain and calm winds.

Rain causes a tumbleweed to be heavier, though smaller, and it can't move as fast. Calm wind also causes sluggishness in a tumbleweed, although certain varieties in West Texas have been known to run along as fast as 15 miles an hour in just a five mile an hour wind.

I managed to subdue the thing with only a few scrapes and scratches, though for a minute I thought it was going to roll on top and hang on like a pit bulldog. If tumbleweeds get the upper hand, they can do a lot of damage. Getting it back was almost as much an ordeal. Straps wouldn't confine it. We had to chain it.

The problem, you see, is when you take off down the road with the tumbleweed in the back of a pickup, you're actually encouraging it to try to escape. It smells that wind blowing in its face and it goes nuts. It literally leaps right up into the wind and if it's not chained down, forget it.

Or as Riddle said, "We shoulda just put tails on the thing and flown it like a kite."

It would have worked, because the tumbleweed was trying to get out so bad it stood straight out against the wind. The only part of the chain touching the pickup bed was the end where it attached. Anyway, I've enclosed a picture because I decided not to hang its head on the wall in the living room or have it stuffed.

I'll take it out soon, and give it its' freedom. Tumbleweeds don't live long in captivity.

FRIDAY

March 2

Members of the chamber of commerce tourism and retirement committee began organizing efforts to accommodate the several hundred parents and children who will be here for the National Boys Little Dribblers Tournament next month.

There is nothing like a country silence to turn solitude into loneliness. You have to experience it fully to understand. It's more than just being alone, without radio or television or traffic. It's more than just an absence of noise.

Not that the country is ever completely silent. Usually a mournful wind keeps you company, a moody wind that can fill the night with an angry howl, or call a shy hello with a gentle rattle of the back screen door. When the wind sleeps, the birds awake, arguing among the Mesquites and gossiping along the powerlines.

Sometimes neighboring coyotes send up a song, causing a commotion as the farm dogs rip and tear after them, returning with a haughty set to the scruff of their shoulders. Occasionally the wind teases the dogs, carrying aloft the rumble of a distant tractor or the soft lowing of a cow for her calf. They look and bark but see nothing. They stay alert anyway, just in case.

You'd think the night would be the most lonesome time in the country. Actually, the night is a living thing. It breathes. Yucca dance in the moonlight. Tumbleweeds hulk against the fence and wander the bar ditches like sentinels checking the perimeters. Dogs telegraph messages from farmhouse to farmhouse, and coyotes yip and cry, backed by a full chorus from the wind. Coyotes like to call down the moon for a visit when it's fat and lazy and fills the nighttime pastures with a langorous light.

Mornings, too, are a busy time in the country. Horses race each other to the barn for their morning oats, thundering across the ground like Mustangs. Birds chatter and fuss, barn cats scamper and play, dogs wag and woof. Humans stretch and yawn and tend to the animals.

It's the long dry afternoons that can turn country solitude into lonesomeness. Most all animals everywhere doze then. Even the drone of a tractor seems disconnected and distant. If the wind is in a bad mood that day, it hurls dirt in the air, driving people who have the choice indoors. And if like the animals the wind sleeps, then the silence can truly be complete. Then the mind takes over and gives itself up to the mournful musing about how little money there is to go around and how dry it is and how sad the fields are looking. That's the time of day a body is best left alone, anyway.

The exception is that rare treat, a rainy day. You can stand in the barn and listen to the delicious rattle; smell the luscious earth as it greedily soaks up the moisture; feel the wonderful dampness against your skin and in your hair. Maybe you can sit on the porch swing and watch a curtain of water pour off the eaves while your children leap joyfully from puddle to puddle. Or you can cuddle under the covers with someone you love and drift off to sleep to the music of thunder. These are days when you think maybe everything is going to be all right after all.

And maybe, in the long run, that's the gift country silence give to us; a feel for the rhythm of life, a sense of the seasons... and the knowledge that not even silence will last forever.

Lights, noise and pets deter burglars

By the Editors of Consumer Reports

Every 10 seconds a home is burglarized in the United States, and in 25 percent of those cases the thief entered through an unlocked window or door. Obviously, a high-security lock on the front door is useless if you leave the window open when you're out. The first step in protecting your home is to make it an unappealing target.

Typically, a burglar is looking for a fast, easy way in. He (most are male, 14 to 21 years old) sizes up a house in a matter of seconds. How do you discourage him in that lightning-quick appraisal? The short answer: Make the house look occupied. Here are some ways.

Set the stage. If you're away for some time, stop the mail and newspaper or have a neighbor bring them in, so they don't pile up at the front door. Arrange for someone to mow the grass or shovel the snow. Leave a car in the driveway instead of in the garage, if possible. If you're away just part of the day, you might still want to do some stage-setting.

Timed switches for individual lamps can be set to turn lights on and off. Some are simple mechanical timers; others are computerized and can be set to go on and off randomly. Controllers that work outlets and switches throughout the house are also available.

One type of system (sold under various brand names, including Sears, Radio Shack and Black & Decker) uses what's called X-10 modules. The system includes on/off switch modules, computerized controllers, even wireless controllers that let you turn on house lights from your car. The system uses the house's electrical wiring as a communication device and can be arranged to turn just about anything on or off.

Outside, floodlights and door lights controlled by photo cells respond to levels of daylight and turn themselves on at dusk and off at dawn. There are also light controls that use infrared sensors to detect heat-emitting objects. Anything warm — car, person, or dog — triggers the light, which remains on for a set length of time.

Leave a radio or television set going. Make entering the house look hard. Extra locks on a door (even if you don't use them) may send away the thief who wants to enter with little effort. Just an alarm-system decal — not a system — may scare off an opportunist. (Decals are available from Radio Shack and other stores.)

Make it look like slim pickings. Don't flaunt what you have. Keep the computer and the hi-fi away from windows.

Don't make it easy. Put away the ladder and tools so burglars can't use them. Keep the shrubbery trimmed so it doesn't give a burglar privacy to work on opening windows or doors.

You might also consider getting a dog. When some 600 convicted armed robbers serving time in Ohio were asked what one thing they would do to protect their own home, most answered "get a dog."

Your Birthday

Your Birthday

March 4, 1990

March 5, 1990

Involvements you have with clubs or social organizations could work out very well for you in the year ahead. The more exposure you have, the greater your chances for beneficial happenings.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This is a good day to get in touch with a person you recently met you'd like to know better. Something constructive could develop through this relationship. Pisces, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Persons with whom you'll be associating today will be responsive to your needs and interests. If some type of assistance is required, politely express your desires.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Try to pal around with friends today whose ideas are compatible with yours. Conditions are both interesting and unusual, and all parties could gain something from the arrangement.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Events over which you'll have little or no control should work out to your advantage today. By the time the dust settles, your status or reputation could be enhanced in some manner.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you feel conditions warrant it, don't be fearful about taking a reasonable risk today in order to advance your self-interests. Your judgment should be reliable.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Projects or enterprises that require imagination and creativity should be your cup of tea today. If you get teamed up with someone equally as talented as yourself, look out world.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) A relationship in which you're presently involved could begin to take on new dimensions at this time. Each may start to see more to admire in the other.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Conditions that have a bearing upon your material well being are rather unusual, yet positive today. Through some type of mysterious maze personal gain is likely.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In your conversations with others today you will be gifted with the rare ability to say exactly the right thing at exactly the right time. Something fortuitous may result.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) A financial development that has been looking rather "iffy" lately could take a turn for the better today. Gains, rather than losses, appear more probable.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Yield to your restless urges today, particularly if they are directing you to get in touch with persons you've been neglecting lately. Make a list and start calling or visiting.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your insights and hunches in financial or commercial situations could be rather astounding today. Pay heed to urging that strongly direct you to do a specific thing.

Progress in the year ahead could be determined to a large degree by your ability to establish definite goals and stick to them. Avoid changes for change's sake.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Be very careful you don't inadvertently hurt a friend's feelings today by showing a preference for being in the company of someone else. The wound may not easily heal. Major changes are ahead for Pisces in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1.25 to Astro-Graph c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) If others aren't producing at levels you think they should, it might be your fault today. You must be certain to clearly define your expectations and objectives.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A failure to operate within the confines of your common sense could be a big mistake today. Don't ignore your better judgment for the sake of expediency.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Circumstances may force you to put the priorities of others above your own today. If you can't change things, don't add to your frustrations with a poor attitude.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In activities where teamwork is required be sure everyone involved has the same goal in mind. Success will be denied if there isn't harmony in the ranks.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If you hope to be productive today, you will have to be both methodical and consistent. Doing things in fits and starts won't cut the mustard.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) There's a possibility your social arrangements might be changed at the last minute today. Take matters in stride and don't demand that friends conform to your rigid program.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If you feel as though your back is up against the wall today, re-evaluate conditions. You may be the one who is placing obstacles in your own path.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Not everyone with whom you'll be dealing today will be as frank and forthright as you are. Be careful not to talk about things that can later be twisted and used against you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There's a chance you might be a bit too apathetic about your possessions today. This kind of attitude could create an environment where some type of loss is possible.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It could tarnish your reputation if you try to back out of a commitment today that you've recently made. It's best you bite the bullet and honor your word.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be mindful of your limitations today or else you might take on more assignments than you can comfortably manage and do a bad job with each in your haste to get them done.

Along border...

Mexico will agree to use private pens

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Phil Gramm says Mexican officials have promised to ease restrictions on Texas livestock exporters, possibly ending a lingering trade dispute that had prompted the Texas Republican to threaten retaliation.

At a minimum, Gramm said he was assured that Mexico would rotate livestock inspections between Texas-run and private pens along the Rio Grande used by exporters.

Gramm said Mexican Ambassador Gustavo Petricoli and Sen. Humberto Lugo Gil, chairman of the Mexican Senate's Foreign Relations Committee, assured him Wednesday that they would "communicate my concerns in the strongest possible way" to the government in Mexico City about the limitations on private pens.

Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari promised Gramm in October to "straighten out" the ban on the use of 24 commercial facilities, but Mexico had continued to insist inspections be limited to five Texas Department of Agriculture pens along the 1,000-mile border.

Gramm complains the TDA pens are open fewer hours than their commercial counterparts, cost more, and have caused bottlenecks for exporters seeking to move their livestock into Mexico.

"I feel strongly enough that if they are not willing to find some way to be more reasonable, I'm actively looking at retaliating against Mexico," Gramm said before receiving the ambassador's word this week that changes would be made.

Gramm had vowed Monday that if Mexico wanted to be a stickler for detail "they are going to be bigger losers than we are."

But TDA spokesman Andy Welch contends that of the 2,700 Texas ranchers who used state pens last year to ship livestock, only two complained about the facilities — a private pen owner and a hog producer.

Once-banished Indians seek comeback with Iowa casino

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Banished to a remote prairie 130 years ago, the Santee-Sioux Indians are rising again, this time with playing cards in their hands.

The tribe plans to build a $67 million hotel-casino in Council Bluffs that would dwarf all other gaming operations between Nevada and New Jersey.

"I'm tired of government handouts and dependency," said Don LaPoint, the tribal council's chairman. "One of the things we do have going for us is gaming. I'm very optimistic this is going to succeed."

The tribe has hired Harveys Resort and Casino near Lake Tahoe, Nev., to run the casino, which with a convention center and 450-bed hotel would employ up to 1,000 people.

Gov. Terry Branstad opposes the casino, and much legal wrangling lies ahead. But local officials said the 1988 Indian Gaming Act, a federal law providing preferential treatment for Indians, could help the casino become a reality.

"The governor feels there is sentiment among Iowans that we've gone far enough in gambling," said Dick Vohs, a Branstad spokesman.

Chuck Shearer, vice president of finance for Harveys, said the casino would push ahead with its plans "until we have exhausted all the legal opportunities available or until the city of Council Bluffs asks us to get out of town."

The Santee-Sioux have an option to buy a 50-acre tract for the casino in Council Bluffs, across the Missouri River from Omaha, Neb. Proponents expect the casino also would lure customers from Des Moines, 120 miles to the east, and Kansas City, 200 miles to the south.

"Other than that, nobody seems to have any problems with the manner in which the TDA pens along the border are operated," Welch said Thursday.

Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower was assured at a meeting with the Mexican secretary of agriculture last week that Mexico wants to use the TDA pens.

"That's not our decision, that's the sovereign decision of the Mexican government," Welch said. "Mexico is doing nothing different than what the U.S. Department of Agriculture has done — to designate certain facilities through which livestock entering the country can be exported through."

NRC grants Seabrook license; no white flag for plant foes

SEABROOK, N.H. (AP) — The Seabrook nuclear plant overcame two decades of protests, legal challenges, ballooning costs and the financial ruin of its chief investor to capture the ultimate prize: a license to operate.

The Nuclear Regulatory Commission voted 3-0 Thursday to grant the $6.5 billion reactor a full-power license. But the appeal process will hold up the license for at least two weeks, and Seabrook opponents pressed on.

About 125 anti-Seabrook demonstrators waved signs, chanted and blocked plant gates after the decision. More than 70 were arrested.

most hotly contested nuclear plant, became a symbol of the anti-nuclear movement, and its foes claimed a broader victory, contending that as a result of the long fight against Seabrook, no utility would risk the costs of trying to build and open another nuclear plant.

Conceived in 1968, it was proposed in 1972 as a twin-reactor plant costing less than $1 billion. Construction delays and cost increases forced the cancellation of one reactor in the mid-1980s and plunged lead owner Public Service Co. of New Hampshire into bankruptcy reorganization in 1988.

The plant was held up largely by concerns over whether the area could be evacuated in an emergency. The NRC ruling ratified recommendations by its staff and several lower-level boards that the plant is safe and that evacuation plans would work.

At the NRC meeting in Rockville, Md., utility executives hugged each other after the ruling, and maintenance workers at the 1,200-plus employee plant hoisted a sign reading, "Startup '90: We Have the Power."

"It's a milestone in the lives of our employees, more than just mortar and bricks," said Edward Brown, president of Seabrook operator New Hampshire Yankee.

most hotly contested nuclear plant, became a symbol of the anti-nuclear movement, and its foes claimed a broader victory, contending that as a result of the long fight against Seabrook, no utility would risk the costs of trying to build and open another nuclear plant.

Suspect monitored authorities

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Authorities want to know whether a man they arrested as he photographed federal agents during a drug bust has used surveillance equipment to interfere in other drug investigations.

In a six-count federal indictment, Jack Edward Thompson Jr., 31, is charged with possession with intention to distribute cocaine and interception of an electronic communication device.

Authorities say he intercepted calls agents made on cellular phones and monitored their activities.

When he was arrested Feb. 16, Thompson bragged to authorities about his electronics expertise and knowledge of several drug investigations, said Rey Sepulveda, agent in charge of the DEA in El Paso.

Sepulveda said Thompson apparently has been monitoring operations of the DEA and other authorities for several years.

"Drug traffickers often have a lot of firearms. When they monitor us and they find out that they are the target of a narcotics investigation, it can become very dangerous for the officers working the case," he said.

Books that list the frequencies used by law enforcement agencies are available on the market and sell for about $10, said Effren Flores, assistant manager of an electronics store.

"I think there should be some kind of a regulation that would require electronic equipment dealers to report to the various agencies when someone's seeking to buy equipment that would scan their frequencies," Sepulveda said.

Sepulveda said a scanner, two mobile telephones and numerous semiautomatic weapons were confiscated at the time of Thompson's arrest.

Officers also confiscated 86.2 grams of cocaine, electronic and manual balance scales, packages of a substance used for diluting cocaine, and $28,610, according to a criminal complaint.

Thompson told the DEA he sold about 50 kilograms of cocaine every two to three months, the complaint said.

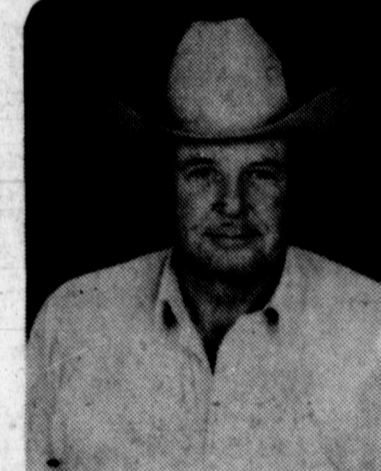

Communist Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung died in Beijing. He was 82.

Light therapy offsets winter blues

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My wife and I live in Canada, and every winter she becomes depressed. Is there any truth to the claim that "light therapy" can help her problem?

DEAR READER: Scientists now recognize a winter syndrome in humans, called "seasonal affective disorder," which mimics the hibernation pattern seen in wild animals. It is marked by fatigue (despite adequate sleep), weight gain (due to carbohydrate craving), diminished sex drive and social withdrawal.

Although many people experience decreased energy levels during the winter, experts estimate that more than 35 million adults in North America suffer significant symptoms from SAD. These symptoms are often so incapacitating that they interfere with normal daily functioning; they appear in the late autumn and last until spring.

The syndrome seems to be related to short winter days. It may be worsened by holidays (when a person's depression may appear magnified by a festive environment) and cold, inclement weather (making outdoor activity more difficult).

Traditional treatment for winter melancholy includes increased exercise, emphasis on hobbies and similar interests, psychological counseling and the use of anti-depressant drugs, under a doctor's supervision.

In the past few years, research has established that phototherapy (exposure to bright light) is effective therapy for SAD. The daily exposure to a specially built light box will help SAD patients feel more energetic, motivated and alert.

If your wife has been diagnosed with seasonal affective disorder, light therapy will probably make her feel more normal. This therapy should be administered only by qualified practitioners, preferably psychiatrists.

Self-treatment, such as staring at the sun or using tanning booths, can cause eye and skin damage. Ask your family physician to refer your wife to a health professional who is familiar with light therapy.

DEAR DR. GOTT: In a recent column, you mentioned that Cholacol, a digestive enzyme that acts as a laxative, is no longer commercially available. However, it is available by prescription through some health clinics.

Cholacol is manufactured by Standard Process Laboratories, Palmyra, WI 53196. Perhaps interested readers may wish to write the company to find out how they can purchase the product.

DEAR READER: Thank you for the tip. Cholacol is a safe, effective and natural medicine that patients used to be able to obtain without prescription. I doubt the manufacturer is permitted to fill orders for individual patients. However, perhaps Standard Process Laboratories can refer interested readers to retail establishments in their own communities.

To give you information on medication, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Consumer Tips on Medicines." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Messes of excess are everywhere

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

I'm in the throes of a personal and singularly unsuccessful war against whatever state official decides how roads are salt-sanded in the winter. The present system used by the highway department in my home state of Connecticut is so aggressively excessive that it is destructive to the environment, as well as to motor vehicles. It is, in a word, cockeyed.

Once again — as I do every season — I am going public to object to a practice that seems calculated to cause more problems than it solves. Those snowbirds who stay north in the winter know what I mean. For those readers in more temperate climates, let me explain.

A few years ago, when Reason dominated the thinking of highway authorities, cleaning thoroughfares of snow was a disarmingly simple task: Sometime in the middle of a snowstorm, state and local trucks plowed the roads. This procedure was repeated at intervals until the storm abated. Then road crews spread a thin layer of salt-sand to prevent ice-up. The approach was direct; it did the job and caused little, if any, residue.

This is no longer the case. Modern highway crews have chosen to indulge in an orgy of superfluity. When the first snowflake falls, trucks now spread a lavish coating of salt-sand. As the unplowed snow accumulates, it turns into thick brown slush that is readily transferred from the roadway — by the invariable 18-wheeler — to the windshields of hapless motorists.

The salt-sand mixture is repeatedly applied until the slurry is several inches deep. Then, at some prearranged signal that remains a mystery to the uninitiated, the state trucks deign to lower their plows and shove the gunk off the road onto lawns, gardens and trees. The only vegetation growing successfully along Connecticut roads is dune grass. The day following a storm, the streets appear as white salt-lanes framed by berms of sand.

Of course, come spring, the salt, minerals and sand are washed into streams, lakes and ponds, resulting in shameful pollution of groundwater and other aquatic resources. Meanwhile, pavement disintegrates, bridges rot, and our automobiles rust.

I have yet to identify a single favorable consequence of the present winter-road policy, with the exception that it permits some jackass to drive

50 mph in a snowstorm. My pleadings for a rational solution have fallen on deaf ears; highway authorities are just not interested. I think they probably all live in beach houses on the coast, so salt and sand pollution is undoubtedly a routine matter in their lives, whereas it isn't to those of us who live inland.

Immoderation and surfeit are not unique to a bodacious and arrogant state highway department. Exorbitance and profligacy have become commonplace in other segments of society, too, including televangelism, the savings-and-loan business and the medical profession.

For example, the cost of hospitalization has finally exceeded the limit of anything except what the very rich can afford. This is clearly due, in part, to the bone-breaking cost of high-technology. But it is also due to phenomenal waste and redundancy. Patients are overcharged, overtested and — in some instances — overtreated.

Hospital laboratories depend on volume to make a profit. Expensive designer-antibiotics are used in place of cheaper, more prosaic brands. The terminally ill are kept alive to generate income from a "utilized" hospital bed. Almost all hospital equipment is disposable, making it more expensive than re-usable products. I doubt there is a single hospital today that could not reduce its expenses by at least 10 percent without compromising patient care.

One place to start would be to eliminate some management jobs from an increasingly top-heavy administration. It could be done — but it won't be, because someone else, such as Medicare or Blue Cross, is paying for all the extravagance and glut — just as "someone else" is anteing up for the wasted tons of salt-sand being spread unnecessarily on the roads. Sadly, as in any enterprise, those people within the system are often the most reluctant to change it.

Maybe I should alter my tactics. Before my fenders cave in and my bumpers fall off, I'm going to complain to my state representative in hopes of getting some action from the top of the hierarchy. Perhaps I'll get lucky and find a kindred soul who still believes that prudence and parsimony are more than political promises.

Mall boycott is called off

DALLAS (AP) — A county commissioner, angered by reports that minorities were harassed at a shopping mall, has called off a threatened boycott of the mall after authorities agreed to investigate the allegations.

Under the threat of "selective shopping" at Red Bird Mall by minority shoppers, owners of the South Dallas area center also said they would review contracts and hiring practices to try to include more minorities.

Any harassment at Red Bird Mall was done without approval of the facility's owners, representatives of the Edward J. DeBartolo Corp. said Thursday.

The Ohio-based company said it was investigating complaints presented by John Wiley Price, including allegations of harassment of two public school teachers and an off-duty police officer.

Other complaints followed reports that mall security officers were indiscriminately ousting black and Hispanic shoppers from stores. Price said about 80 percent of customers at the mall are minorities.

"It (the complaints) frankly embarrassed us a great deal," Rudolph E. Milian, DeBartolo regional manager, said after a four-hour meeting Thursday with Price and other community leaders.

Price, a Dallas County commissioner, said he has received complaints that the mall's major retailers have lower quality, fewer choices and higher prices than chain stores at other shopping centers.

Retailers, however, have denied the accusations. Sears, J.C. Penney, Dillard's and Foley's are Red Bird's largest stores.

Two ad campaigns planned

DALLAS (AP) — Universal Belo, the new joint venture of Universal Press Syndicate and A.H. Belo Corp., will introduce and market what the venture is calling an unprecedented advertising campaign to increase general newspaper readership.

The campaign centers on the Universal Press features "Dear Abby," "Cathy," and "Ziggy," and will be developed for television, radio and print media, the venture said.

Through animation and live action, the television campaign will underscore the importance of reading the paper every day.

Universal Belo plans to introduce the new ad campaign at the International Newspaper Marketing Association convention in New Orleans in May. It will be marketing in various combination packages with custom taglines to U.S. metropolitan daily newspapers, company officials said.

"Universal Belo is responding to the mandate of the American Newspaper Publishers Association — to increase newspaper readership by targeting and attracting the occasional reader," said John McMeel, president of Universal Press Syndicate.

"Many papers across the country lack the resources to create their own campaigns, said Belo President Jim Sheehan.
