Moisture may help trees battle effects from weekend cold

From local, wire reports
The weekend freeze may not have hit area fruit trees too hard because it was accompanied by moisture, said a landscape technology instructor at Western Texas College, but it's too early to tell.

"It's hard to say because we got some moisture and that insulated some of the trees. I would think that those directly exposed to the wind may be damaged," said Don Buckland.

"I have peach trees in my back yard and I'm sure they weren't hurt. They are still holding their blossoms real well. As long as you get moisture, you usually won't be hurt. But some of these that had begun to have buds, little 1/8-inch peaches, they'll probably drop off. Tomatoes that people might have already started growing will probably be damaged. It's just hard to tell. We'll have to wait and see."

County extension agents were attending a conference in Lubbock and were unable to comment on the effects of the sub-freezing weather, which dipped to 27 on Saturday and 28 Sunday. Sunday's high edged over the freezing mark with a 34-degree reading.

A slow warming trend was expected over the next few days, with temperatures struggling to reach the mid 40s today and 60s Tuesday, according to the National Weather Service. Cloudy skies with patchy areas of light rain, drizzle and fog persisted across the state this morning except in the northern Panhandle, which saw some clearing.

North winds continued to spread cool air into the state and as a result late morning temperatures were only in the 30s across most of North and West Texas with even a few 20s reported in the northern Panhandle. In South Texas temperatures were mostly in the 40s and 50s, however a few 60s could be found in the extreme southern portions of the lower Rio Grande Valley area. Extremes at 4 a.m. ranged from 28 degrees at Dalhart to 66 degrees at Brownsville.

The cloudy, damp weather was the result of weak upper level disturbances moving across (see MOISTURE, page 9)

In Lithuania...

Soviet soldiers seize schools

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Soviet soldiers with automatic weapons seized two schools in Lithuania as the Kremlin stepped up the pressure in its psychological campaign to halt the Baltic republic's secessionist drive.

In response, the Lithuanian leadership passed a resolution calling for prosecution of troops who "illegally" occupied the buildings. The resolution was published today but there was no indication the Lithuanians would attempt to arrest the soldiers.

There was still no evidence, meanwhile, that the Soviet army was attempting to round up any of the hundreds of Lithuanians thought to have deserted from the Red Army after the republic's leaders declared independence on March 11.

A deadline of Saturday had been set for their return and many, fearing arrest, took refuge in a psychiatric hospital. For days, President Mikhail S. Gorbachev and other Moscow oficials have squeezed the defiant Baltic state with displays of military strength and demands of fealty. But the Lithuanians have not budged.

Gorbachev ordered Lithuanians to surrender all firearms and told them not to sign up for volunteer units under the republic's government. State media sought to portray Lithuania as in a state of anarchy and, on Saturday, a convoy of about 100 Soviet tanks rolled through the Lithuanian capital of Vilnius.

At the same time, Soviet leaders said they will not use force in their bid to prevent Lithuanians from trying to restore the independence they lost in 1940 when their republic was forcibly annexed along with the two other Baltic states — Latvia and Estonia.

Court will review probation office request for space

County commissioners today said they would consider a request from adult probation director Jenny Peveler for more office space, which Peveler said is needed because of new state mandates requiring more probation officers.

"All I can say is, we'll take it under consideration," said Pct. 3 Commissioner C.D. Gray Jr., after which a motion was unanimously passed to table the matter.

Peveler said legislation approved last year tightens probationary supervision requirements from one officer to 100 probationers to one per 50.

She said a new officer who has been hired with funds provided by a grant from the state, Scott

Kesner, has been working in a temporary office in the county courtroom on the third floor of the courthouse.

Other adult probation offices are on the courthouse third floor. In other business, the court decided to schedule an auction of surplus equipment from county precinct barns, Western Texas College, Cogdell Memorial Hospital and the City of Snyder for Saturday, April 21, at Towle Park Barn.

Gray said a roadgrader, front-end loaders, a truck, trailers and other county equipment will be offered.

The court also voted to employ Bobby Traylor and T Enterprises of Snyder to conduct the auction, (see COURT, page 9)

Local students set to enter UIL competition Saturday

Snyder High School will send more than 35 students to the University Interscholastic League District 44A Spring Meet at Howard College in Big Spring on Saturday.

Snyder students are entered in speech and debate, journalism, ready writing, spelling, calculator applications, number sense, science, keyboarding, accounting and literary criticism.

They will be competing against students from Sweetwater, San Angelo Lake View, Monahans, Andrews, Big Spring, Fort Stockton and Pecos.

"Although the UIL is more often associated with athletic competition, each year more than a third of the total participation in UIL activities involved academic contests," said Dr.

Bailey Marshall, UIL director. "In fact, the League began as a debating league in 1910 and then later merged with a track and field association to form the basis for the current organization."

"Long before the development of other academic-based competitions, the UIL was sponsoring contests in writing, speaking, mathematics and science," added Marshall.

Current events and computer skills will be added to the program next year.

"A primary objective for League directors is to maintain a high correlation between what is taught in the classroom and what is required of students involved in extracurricular competition," said Janet Wiman, UIL academic director. "Consequently, as much emphasis is placed on the educational context of the contests as is placed on the contests themselves."

The top three students in each category will advance to regional competition, with the fourth place student to serve as an alternate. Regional competition will be held April 19-21 at Angelo State University in San Angelo.

Students who advance to compete at the state level in UIL literary competition qualify for Texas Interscholastic League Foundation scholarships. During 1988-89, the TILF awarded more than $460,000 in scholarship grants to 360 college students who competed at the UIL state academic meet. In 1989-90, TILF expects to award an estimated 380 new and renewed grants, valued at approximately $489,000. TILF funds are made possible through grants from foundations, individuals and families. The TILF has over $1,900,000 in endowed funds.

One-Act set today

SWEETWATER — Snyder High School drama department was to compete in East Zone One-Act Play competition here today, challenging Sweetwater, San Angelo Lake View and Big Spring for the right to advance to the district level.

Two of the four plays presented here will be selected to advance to UIL district competition Thursday at Howard College in Big Spring.

District UIL literary competition is scheduled for Saturday at Howard College.

Drama instructor Jerry Worsham's students were to present "Taming of the Shrew" today at about 2 p.m. Sweetwater's drama department will stage "The Dancers" while Lake View will perform "I Never Saw Another Butterfly" and Big Spring will present "The Rimers of Eldritch."

Mob arrests

BOSTON (AP) — FBI agents arrested two top members of New England's organized crime families this morning as part of a three-state dragnet targeting 21 accused mobsters on a total of 113 criminal counts.

Paul Cavanaugh, a spokesman for the FBI's field office in Boston, said alleged mob figures in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut were being arrested on unsealed indictments alleging a variety of crimes, including murder, racketeering, kidnapping, drug trafficking, gambling, obstruction of justice and witness intimidation.

Plans dropped

EAST BERLIN (AP) — East Germany today dropped plans to try disgraced former Communist leader Erich Honecker and three other ousted officials for high treason, saying there was no legal basis for the charges.

However, the chief prosecutor's office said the ailing Honecker, 77, and two of the officials remain under investigation on suspicion of massive corruption and abuse of power.

Bridge mishap

AUSTIN (AP) — A large piece of construction equipment today was ripped off its trailer after striking the bottom of an Interstate 35 overpass, causing one injury and damaging three other vehicles, police said.

The equipment, a sand-chopper used to make concrete pavement, also damaged the First Street overpass, officials said. Traffic on I-35 was being rerouted past the overpass, police said.

Mystery deepens around woman killed in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — The mystery surrounding the slaying of a Dallas woman deepened after the high-rise office of her husband — who is a suspect in the stabbing death — was ransacked.

Dallas police say a weekend burglar ransacked Dana McIntosh's office, allegedly stealing financial records and spreading pictures of McIntosh's children and wife across his desk.

McIntosh found his wife's body when he returned to their Lakewood home March 19. McIntosh, who was accompanied by an employee, found Susan McIntosh's body in the garage. She had been stabbed repeatedly.

Homicide detectives said the burglary may be connected to the slaying. McIntosh has been charged with investigation of murder and is free on $15,000 bond.

"We find it (the burglary) interesting," said Homicide Detective Cathy Harding, who is leading the police probe of Mrs. McIntosh's death. She declined to elaborate or discuss possible links with the ongoing homicide case.

Police previously have acknowledged that their investigation was turning up questions about McIntosh's finances. He is president of Aims Plus Inc., a computer software company.

McIntosh's attorney, Robert Hinton, said his client went to his office Saturday morning and found his office ransacked. Hinton speculated that the burglary may have in fact been police searching McIntosh's office.

"I don't know yet if this was a police search warrant," Hinton said. "Sometimes they'll (police) do that — bust in someplace with a warrant if it's locked. I'm not accusing the cops ... but I know they are desperately searching for evidence and a motive."

But an angry Deputy Chief Ray Hawkins, responding Sunday afternoon to Hinton's comments, said no search warrants were executed at the office.

"When the facts are sorted out we'll see who's desperate," Hawkins said.

McIntosh has repeatedly denied involvement in his wife's death and has said police have accused the wrong man.

Shortly after 9 a.m. Saturday, McIntosh and Aims Plus vice president Charles Williams went to the office and found it ransacked. Police reports note that Williams waited nearly three hours before contacting police. The reports also show that the men called Hinton before alerting authorities.

Hinton said the burglary puzzles him because no money or other valuables are kept in McIntosh's office. He said he believes the burglary might be related to Mrs. McIntosh's death.

"There's not a burglar in the world who would be interested in anything in his office, unless it's computer related," Hinton said. "It (the burglary) may be coincidental, but I don't understand why anyone would break in 'here.'"

Hinton said the burglary worries him because he believes McIntosh may be in danger. "It (the burglar) could be somebody out there who killed his wife and may do something to him now."

California tops again in farm exports

WASHINGTON (AP) — California was the top farm export state in 1989 for the fifth consecutive year, leading Nebraska, Iowa, Kansas, Texas and Illinois, according to Agriculture Department estimates.

Analysts in the department's Economic Research Service listed California at the top of the export chart for the first time in 1985, replacing perennial winners Iowa and Illinois.

The ratings included the top 15 states during the fiscal year that ended last Sept. 30, when export values totaled nearly $39.7 billion, up from $35.4 billion in 1988.

Author Conquers His Cancer By Choosing to Live, Not Die

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1990 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR READERS: Every day, I receive heartbreaking letters from people of all ages who have lost all hope because they have just been diagnosed with cancer. Frightened and devastated, they and their families resign themselves to the "inevitable."

They shouldn't. Cancer is not always a death sentence. People can conquer cancer. They can recover.

In 1984, Greg Anderson was diagnosed with lung cancer. He was 37 years old, married to the woman of his dreams and the father of a daughter. Four months later, the cancer had metastasized, and his doctor told him he had approximately 30 days to live.

Anderson decided not to give up hope, but to continue living his life, and he actually conquered his cancer!

First, he set about finding people who had lived after having been told that they were terminal. He wanted to find out why they thought they were still alive. A common thread ran through all their lives. It was more than just the power of faith and positive thinking. It was the power of positive living.

Greg Anderson put all he learned from his cancer experience into a book titled "The Cancer Conqueror, An Incredible Journey to Wellness." "In the heart of this book," says Greg, "lies the secret: When you discover you have cancer, you have a choice — you can prepare to die, or you can prepare to live. It is exactly when you start to make choices about your life and your treatment that your cancer no longer controls you."

"The Cancer Conqueror" is the first book I have ever read that gives a message of genuine hope to those who suffer from cancer, and to those who love them.

If your bookstore does not have this book, it is available in paperback and can be ordered by calling 1-800-527-7300 — this toll-free number is available 24 hours a day. Mail-in orders may be sent to Cancer Conqueror, P.O. Box 419150, Kansas City, Mo. 64141. Please enclose your check or money order for $9.45, which includes the cost of shipping.

And to those who read it — I welcome your comments.

DEAR ABBY: I need some advice about my coupon-clipping neighbor. She clips coupons for free offers, rebates, cash, etc. The problem is that she asked me to send in several from my home with different names on each. I did as she asked and gave the coupons to her.

I don't feel that this is right. She says she has eight or nine other people who are doing this for her.

Abby, is this illegal? Can she go to jail if she gets caught? Can I go to jail for helping her? Please advise soon before she asks me again.

NORTH OF DALLAS

DEAR NORTH: Your friend's scam is flat-out mail fraud, according to the U.S. Postal Service. It is a criminal offense, punishable by a hefty fine and a prison term.

My advice to you is to pass this advice along to your coupon-clipping neighbor before she gets clipped. And you should have no part of it!

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? Get it off your chest by writing to: Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

New study finds six 'flags' which may mean cancer

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — People with one or more of six characteristics run higher than normal risks of getting the deadliest form of skin cancer, a new study suggests.

Because of its high curability in early stages, and the ease in identifying likely susceptible people, "no one should die from melanoma," said researcher Darrell Rigel of New York University.

Melanoma is expected to kill 6,300 Americans this year, according to the American Cancer Society. Some 27,600 new cases of melanoma, caused chiefly by excessive exposure to the sun, are expected this year.

Rigel described the new study Sunday at a science writers conference sponsored by the cancer society. The work included data from 200 people with or without melanoma, and considered 43 possible factors that might have been found to contribute to the disease.

Six factors appeared to raise the risk of melanoma: blond or red hair; marked freckling of the upper back; the presence of rough red bumps on the skin called actinic keratoses that come from sun exposure; a history of other family members with melanoma; a history of three or more blistering sunburns during the teen-age years; and having spent three or more years at an outdoor summer job as a teenager.

Having any one or two of these factors gives a person a three to four times increased chance of developing melanoma, the study suggested. The combination of three or more factors gave an increase of 20 to 25 times, Rigel said.

The overall risk of getting melanoma for Americans is estimated to be about one in 120, Rigel said.

It was one in 250 in 1980 and is forecast to be one in 90 in the year 2000, he said. Scientists blame much of the trend on increases in the time people spend on the beach, and skimpier swimsuits.

Because melanoma takes 10 to 20 years to appear after damage from the sun, Rigel said, the behavior of people in the 1960s and 1970s has only recently begun to show up in melanoma rates.

Lawrence Garfinkel, the cancer society's vice president for epidemiology and statistics, said previous research gives "good evidence" to support the conclusions of Rigel's study of risk factors.

Rigel said people at high risk of melanoma should learn the so-called "ABCD" method of identifying melanoma early.

The "A" refers to the asymmetry of melanoma's mole-like growth, in which one half does not match the other. "B" stands for border irregularity, because the edges of the growth are ragged, notched or blurred.

"C" refers to color, which varies within the growth. And "D" stands for the growth's diameter of greater than six millimeters, about the size of a pencil eraser.

Rigel said research suggests that if melanoma is detected while the lesions are still thinner than about one thirty-second of an inch, the 15-year survival rate is about 98 percent. In contrast, if lesions are more than about one-eighth of an inch thick when the cancer is discovered, the survival rate is about 53 percent, he said.

Melanoma spreads to other parts of the body more quickly than many other cancers, he said. A melanoma growth that is the size of a dime has probably already spread cancer cells elsewhere, he said.

In a separate presentation, another researcher said experimental treatments that use the body's disease-fighting immune system show some promise against melanoma in early studies.

One approach uses a "theracine," an abbreviation of "therapeutic vaccine," so-named because it aims to fight cancer rather than prevent disease, said Malcolm Mitchell of the University of Southern California School of Medicine in Los Angeles.

Proponent: broccoli will sell very well

MILWAUKEE (AP) — President Bush's highly publicized distaste for broccoli will only increase consumption of the vitamin-rich vegetable, one proponent says.

"It's wonderful stuff. We sell tons of it," said William Quinn, produce manager for the Outpost Natural Foods supermarket.

Asked if Bush's move to ban the vegetable from Air Force One's larder might affect sales of broccoli, Quinn said: "Yes, among our customers, I think it will increase them."

"The man can't enjoy one of the best fruits of the earth," piped in Harriet Behar, whose Sweet Earth Farm near Gays Mills in southwestern Wisconsin markets about 15,000 broccoli plants annually.

Therapists in store are very popular

DALLAS (AP) — If the rising price of groceries or anything else that rubs you the wrong way, one Dallas supermarket has an answer: an in-store massage.

The Whole Foods Market has 14 male and female registered therapists who provide customers with neck and shoulder massages.

Marsh said many of his customers at the store take advantage of the service, which costs just $5 for a relaxing 10 minutes.

More control needed of U.S. diet programs

WASHINGTON (AP) — Losing weight is a growing business, and the $33 billion Americans spent to shed pounds last year usually brought poor and sometimes life-threatening results, a House subcommittee chairman and staff charged today.

Rep. Ron Wyden, D-Ore., said federal agencies have failed to provide adequate consumer protection or guarantee medical safety in the unregulated diet business — including popular liquid diets.

"The result has been a tidal wave of false and misleading advertising in a field already awash in gross over-promotion," he said.

Wyden was opening a hearing today on the issue by his House Small Business subcommittee on regulation.

The panel was hearing testimony from alleged victims of liquid diets. They include former dieters who suffered gall bladder damage as a result of the diet, and the wife of one man whose brain damage was attributed to diet-induced heart failure, subcommittee staff director Steve Jenning said.

Also testifying were officials of the American Dietetic Association and the American Board of Nutrition. Janet Steiger, chairwoman of the Federal Trade Commission, planned to appear as well.

Officials of major commercial weight-loss programs declined to testify, the panel said.

A subcommittee staff report on the diet industry said that despite optimistic claims, an estimated 90 percent of all dieters who lose 25 pounds in a diet program regain the weight within two years.

It said Americans spent $33 billion on weight loss in 1989, one-third of it for diet clinics alone. It cited a warning by the American Medical Association that some diet formulas could lead to complications and fatalities among dieters.

"The worrisome trend is away from exercise and toward liquid protein diets, virtually all of them sponsored by physicians and hospitals, and so-called fast diets, which ignore nutritional safety," the report said.

The first modern Olympic games were formally opened in Athens, Greece, in 1896.

Demos begin to aim at Bush

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — After months of appearing paralyzed by President Bush's high poll ratings, the Democrats have shifted into a campaign mode and begun to sound like a party ready to challenge Bush in the 1992 election.

During weekend meetings in New Orleans and Indianapolis, the Democrats took on the popular Republican president on a range of domestic issues including Social Security, the environment, abortion and education.

The party's newly aggressive stance was not arrived at easily. It exposed the differing approaches of state party officials hungry for effective campaign issues and the congressional wing, whose members must often search for compromises with their Republican colleagues and the White House.

Regardless of their differences on specific issues, the Democrats clearly agreed with party Chairman Ronald H. Brown's assessment that the president has been getting a "free ride" and that it was time to challenge him.

The party officials gathered in Indianapolis for a meeting of the Democratic National Committee, while the elected Democrats were in New Orleans for a session convened by the Democratic Leadership Council.

Brown attended both meetings and was instrumental in pushing his party to endorse Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan's proposal to cut the Social Security payroll tax — a plan some of Moynihan's fellow Democrats flatly oppose.

"I'm not concerned there is going to be a debate," Brown told a news conference on the closing day of the DNC meeting. "There ought to be a debate."

The chairman was asked if he would feel a little uncomfortable with the stand of his party if he were an elected official — say Sen. Lloyd Bentsen of Texas, who is decidedly unenthusiastic about the proposal by his New York colleague.

"I think I'd feel good that my national party was committed to winning elections," Brown replied.

That response reflected the dominant view in Indianapolis:

to win elections, the Democrats must make clear to voters what they stand for.

It was with that in mind that Brown also stepped up his attacks on the administration's record on the environment and education, issues the president threatens to steal from the Democrats.

Bush convened the governors for an education summit last fall and rarely misses an opportunity to proclaim himself the "education president."

He recently pleased environmentalists by endorsing legislation to upgrade the Environmental Protection Agency to a Cabinet department.

"We're not satisfied with sound bites and press conferences about education when children in Eastern Europe are outscoring American kids on standardized science exams, and 60 million Americans can't read at an eighth-grade level," Brown told the DNC.

He was equally scornful of the administration record on the environment. He recalled the Bush campaign commercials on pollution in Boston Harbor and chided the president for failing to clean it up.

Party officials recognized the risk of endorsing strong action on Social Security.

"I think it's a little bit of a dangerous issue," said Jim Ruvalo, Ohio Democratic Party chairman and president of the Association of Democratic State Chairs.

Army says wrong man was buried

CLEBURNE, Texas (AP) — After 17 years, the body of Army Sgt. Frank C. Parrish, who was killed in Vietnam, was brought to its proper resting place.

Last December, the Army told the Parrish family that the wrong remains were buried in the Cleburne cemetery in May 1973.

On Jan. 3, Parrish's remains — positively identified through dental records and confirmed by a panel of independent forensic anthropologists — were buried without ceremony at the family's request, said Army spokeswoman Maj. Lois Faires.

"The family did not want publicity at the time and are not pleased to have any now," she said. "They felt he had been honored in 1973."

He had joined the Army at 16 and stayed 21 years, winning the Bronze Star and a slew of other medals in Korea and Vietnam.

"This is extremely rare — that something of this nature occurred," Ms. Faires said. She told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram that the error had happened only once before, but didn't identify the other mixup.

Ted Sampley, chairman of the Homecoming II Project, a group that probes cases of servicemen missing in action, disputed Ms. Faires' comments. He said he knew of at least 10 body mixups.

Making six the hard way

By James Jacoby

My thanks go to a faithful reader from West Texas for today's deal. South became quite enamored of his hand after North had bid two clubs and then supported hearts, so he was off to the races, finally settling in six hearts. When the dummy appeared, declarer knew he needed some luck. He ducked the opening lead and happily won East's 10 with his queen. The ace of hearts now brought the queen from East. If that were a true card, it seemed likely that declarer would have to lose a trump trick and a spade trick for down one. But it wouldn't hurt to play the hand out.

He led the jack of clubs, playing low from dummy, and then led a club to dummy's nine and cashed the ace of clubs, throwing a spade. Then came ace of diamonds and a diamond ruff, followed by ace of spades and a spade to dummy's king. Declarer now played another diamond. West had followed with the seven and the jack on earlier diamond plays. So declarer decided that West was left with the king. He discarded his last spade, and West had to win the king and lead away from the 10 of hearts to give South his slam.

Very nice, faithful West Texas reader, but wouldn't it have been just as easy to trump the third diamond to make 12 tricks that way?

Virginia interested in 'Horns Penders

DALLAS (AP) — Virginia has joined the list of schools wanting to lure coach Tom Penders away from Texas, a Dallas newspaper reported.

Penders, whose Longhorns fell 88-85 to Arkansas Saturday in the NCAA Midwest regional final, will be asked this week to interview for the vacant head coaching position at Virginia, the Dallas Times Herald reported Sunday.

Penders said Saturday, however, that he hadn't heard from Virginia officials about possibly replacing Terry Holland as Cavaliers' coach.

"My policy is if someone wants to talk to me, I'll listen," Penders said. "Every coach has to do what is best for himself and his family. I love the University of Texas and plan to be here for a long, long time. We're working on (a new contract). Maybe I'll have an announcement before too long."

Holland resigned to become the athletic director at Davidson. Officials have met with Penn State coach Bruce Parkhill and Stanford coach Mike Montgomery, but have put off a decision in order to seek Penders and Xavier coach Pete Gillen, the source told the newspaper.

Stanford Athletic Director Andy Geiger confirmed that Montgomery met with Virginia twice and also said Virginia would like to talk to Gillen and Penders this week.

Xavier Athletic Director Jeff Fogelson said Virginia has not approached him for permission to talk to Gillen.

Asked if he has an interview scheduled with any school, Penders said, "I have no plans, nor have I ever had plans. If someone really wants to talk to me, I'll talk. It might be nice to see how other schools do things."

Texas Director of Athletics DeLoss Dodds and Penders have said that Florida Athletic Director Bill Arnsparger called seeking an interview with Penders about the vacant coaching position at Florida.

Atlantic Coast Conference Assistant Commissioner Fred Barakat called three weeks ago to tell Penders he had recommended him for the North Carolina State and Virginia positions.

Penders has taken the Longhorns to back-to-back NCAA tournament appearances, and is 49-18 in two years at Texas.

Final four decided

Arkansas earns berth with win over Texas

by The Associated Press

Loyola Marymount, the team that loves to run, was run right out of the NCAA tournament by UNLV, sending the Runnin' Rebels into the Final Four with Duke, Arkansas and Georgia Tech.

"The pace was perfect," Loyola coach Paul Westhead said. "We just didn't make enough key baskets, and they got a bunch inside that really hurt."

With Stacey Augmon scoring 25 of his 33 points in the first half, UNLV reached a season-high in points while holding the nation's highest-scoring team well under its 125-point average, defeating the Lions 131-101 Sunday to capture the West Regional at Oakland, Calif.

The loss ended Loyola's emotional postseason ride after its star and leading rebounder, Hank Gathers, collapsed in a game and died.

"Everybody thought that we played hard and played as well as we could," Loyola forward Per Stumer said. "Everybody was proud to be a part of this. I'm personally very proud of being a part of this group."

"Going out with class, that was the most important thing," said Bo Kimble, the nation's leading scorer and Gathers' close friend.

In Sunday's Southeast Regional title game, Georgia Tech defeated Minnesota 93-91. On Saturday, Duke beat Connecticut 79-78 in overtime to win the East Regional at East Rutherford, N.J., and Arkansas defeated Texas 88-85 for the Midwest Regional crown at Dallas.

Duke (28-8) meets Arkansas (30-4) and Georgia Tech (28-6) plays UNLV (33-5) in Saturday's Final Four semifinals in Denver, with the national title to be settled next Monday night.

Arkansas beat Southwest Conference rival Texas three times this season, although Texas cut the Razorbacks' lead to 82-78 with 1:37 left on a pair of free throws by Joey Wright.

The Blue Devils are in their third straight Final Four and seventh since 1963, although they have never won the national championship. They lost in the championship game in 1964, '78 and '86.

Duke beat Connecticut (31-5) on Christian Laettner's 15-foot jumper at the overtime buzzer, becoming the first school since Houston in 1982-83-84 to make three straight Final Four trips.

"It's great to be able to say I've been to the Final Four three of four years," said Duke's Alaa Abdelnaby, who had 27 points and 14 rebounds. "But we've never won one. That's the next step. We want to win one."

The play that put the ball in Laettner's hands for the final shot was called from the sidelines by Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski with 2.6 seconds to play. Laettner inbounded to Brian Davis, took a return pass and hit his shot.

Baseball exhibition season starts today

by The Associated Press

There will be major league baseball today, even though the balls and strikes will be called by minor league umpires.

Well, nothing's perfect.

Spring training arrives for real as 14 spring training openers are scheduled in Florida and Arizona. Because of the 32-day lockout, the exhibition games take on a greater importance than usual because only two weeks remain before opening day.

As a form of protest because they were not consulted when baseball rescheduled regular-season games postponed by the lockout, the umpires will not work spring training games. They say they will be back on opening day, however.

Commissioner Fay Vincent planned to attend today's exhibition opener between the St. Louis Cardinals and Pittsburgh Pirates at Bradenton, Fla.

"I've never had this kind of time frame before," Pirates center fielder Andy Van Slyke said. "When you have six weeks, you pretty much go at your own pace. With three weeks, you've got to set close to a record pace that you've never had to do before. That's going to be a challenge physically as well as mentally."

NBA roundup...

Mavs nudge Pistons in OT

by The Associated Press

Remember the Alamo? The Detroit Pistons probably don't care to remember anything about Texas right now.

The defending NBA champions hit the Lone Star State last week having won 12 straight games and 25 of 26. They trudged home Sunday night with a three-game losing streak, equalling their longest of the season.

On Thursday night, the Pistons dropped a 115-110 decision in Houston. On Saturday night, they fell 105-98 in San Antonio. Sunday night produced a 98-96 overtime loss in Dallas.

"The thing I liked was that we were able to match them man for man, fist for fist, on the inside," Dallas coach Richie Adubato said after the Mavericks won their fourth straight. "This was just a hard game. It was like playing two games, it was that emotional."

with 23 points and Harper added 21. Thomas scored 22 points for Detroit.

Timberwolves 110, Trail Blazers 105

Tyrone Corbin and Pooh Richardson each scored 20 points as Minnesota broke a 22-game road losing streak and became the first expansion team to beat the Trail Blazers.

Richardson scored nine points in the third quarter, six during a 15-2 run capped by Corbin's 15-footer that gave the Timberwolves a 73-60 lead with 5:15 left in the period. Sam Mitchell made five free throws in the final 10 seconds to ensure the victory.

Clyde Drexler had 21 points and Terry Porter 18 for the Trail Blazers.

Lakers 116, SuperSonics 94

Orlando Woolridge and Magic Johnson scored 18 points apiece as Los Angeles won its fourth straight.

Shawn Kemp scored 19 points for the Sonics, who missed their first 10 shots and lost their 12th straight game at the Forum. The Lakers built a 20-point lead through three quarters and put the game out of reach with a 15-6 burst in the first 4:04 of the fourth period.

Heat 105, Bucks 102

Sherman Douglas hit a tie-breaking jumper from the free-throw line with 7.5 seconds left and slapped away a Milwaukee pass at the 1.3-second mark as Miami snapped a five-game losing streak.

Douglas had 24 points, nine assists and five steals and Billy Thompson had 20 points and 13 rebounds for the Heat, who played their third consecutive game without leading scorer Rony Seikaly, who has a stomach virus. Milwaukee's Ricky Pierce scored 31 points and Jay Humphries added 23.

New York Yankees manager Bucky Dent is simply asking when pitcher Pascual Perez plans to show up. Dent would like to use Perez on opening day.

The Yankees expected Perez to be in camp today after he takes care of some legal paperwork in the Dominican Republic.

Tom Reich, Perez's agent, said his client was stopped at the airport in Puerto Plata on Saturday and served with legal documents stemming from a civil suit. As a result, the pitcher was prevented from leaving the country.

Reich said he sent legal help to Perez over the weekend to obtain a document that will clear him to fly to the United States. Once that is done, Perez will be accompanied by one of Reich's representatives from the Dominican until he reaches Fort Lauderdale Stadium.

The defending National League champion San Francisco Giants start their season in a nationally televised game this afternoon against the Cleveland Indians (3 p.m. EST, ESPN). Rick Reuschel, 40, was the starter for the Giants.

Agassi earns upset win in tournament

KEY BISCAIYNE, Fla. (AP) — Andre Agassi senses his reputation is improving among his peers.

"If the guys are going to beat me, they're starting to realize they're going to have to work," Agassi said after a 6-1, 6-4, 0-6, 6-2 victory over Stefan Edberg in the finals of the International Players Championships.

Agassi cited as an example Sunday's final set, which he dominated after losing the third set in 27 minutes.

"Last year, Edberg would have had serious confidence going into the fourth set because he would be thinking, 'All I have to do is hang in there and he'll get tired or careless or something,'" Agassi said.

"This year that's not the case. I'm a lot stronger, a lot fitter, a lot tougher mentally."

And still only 19. The title was Agassi's second this year and the 10th of his short career.

Andre Agassi earned an upset win in the final set of the International Players Championships in Key Biscayne, Fla., Sunday.

Edberg blew an easy volley, netted a forehand, netted another forehand and netted another forehand to lose the game at love.

"Why did he have so many unforced errors? That's the question you have to ask," Agassi said. "I think my playing well magnified the fact he was a little tentative and missed a few shots."

Agassi, the first American to win the tournament since Tim Mayotte in 1985, collected $179,000 and improved his record this year to 16-2. He reached the final by beating three players ranked in the top 20 — Jay Berger, Andres Gomez and Jim Courier.

Reuschel, already tabbed by Manager Roger Craig to start opening day, will be on a 25-30 pitch limit as the Giants and Indians renew the oldest spring training rivalry in baseball. Since 1934, the Giants are 270-239 against the Indians.

Other exhibition openers today had Atlanta vs. New York Yankees at Fort Lauderdale; New York Mets vs. Houston at Kissimmee, Fla.; Philadelphia vs. Detroit at Lakeland, Fla.; Los Angeles vs. Minnesota at Orlando, Fla.; Montreal vs. Baltimore at Miami; Boston vs. Kansas City at Haines City, Fla.; Milwaukee vs. Seattle at Tempe, Ariz.; Chicago Cubs vs. Oakland at Phoenix; California vs. San Diego at Yuma, Ariz.; Toronto vs. Cincinnati at Plant City, Fla.; Chicago White Sox vs. Texas at Port Charlotte, Fla.; and Philadelphia vs. Detroit at Lakeland, Fla.

Eagle gives Gamez one stroke victory

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Robert Gamez is having a rookie year to remember on the PGA Tour.

Gamez, who won the Nestle Invitational by a single stroke over veteran Greg Norman on Sunday, last won in Florida when he captured the University of Central Florida Classic here in his final year as a collegian at the University of Arizona.

"I can't wait for Disney now," said Gamez after a spectacular eagle-2 on the closing hole at Arnold Palmer's Bay Hill course gave him the $162,000 first prize.

The prize money matches the $162,000 purse he won in his home state in January: the first victory by a rookie playing in his first Tour tournament since Ben Crenshaw did it in 1973.

Gamez said he was just shooting to get into a playoff when he struck "a real solid 7-iron" at the pin on the 18th, considered the toughest finishing hole on the Tour.

The ball traveled 176 yards, hitting the green and jumping into the cup as Gamez and his caddy did a dance out on the fairway.

"To win an invitational — they've got the best players in the world here — I proved to myself as well as to everybody else that I can play with the best," Gamez said.

Norman, who had a one-stroke lead and was on the 17th tee, said, "I knew exactly what happened ... I didn't know it was Gamez or who."

Norman said he was "unhappy I didn't win the tournament but I'm happy for him. He hit a great shot."

MIDWEST
No. 7 Arkansas 88, Texas 85

The regional championship not only sent Arkansas to the Final Four, but gave the Razorbacks their first 30-win season since 1978. Lenzie Howell was the regional MVP, scoring 25 points against North Carolina and 21 against Texas (24-9).

"Lenzie Howell has come to his hometown time and time again and proven he is probably one of the best players in the country," Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson said. "Not in the Southwest Conference — in the country."

Arkansas had to get by without Howell for part of the game. He was poked in the eye with 18:17 to play and the Razorbacks leading by four. In the next seven minutes without Howell, Arkansas stretched its lead to 70-54.

U.S. policy focusing on the latest situation in El Salvador

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Nicaragua and Panama added to the democratic column, U.S. policy in Central America is focusing anew on the hottest remaining trouble spot: tiny, war-torn El Salvador.

A shadow version of El Salvador's conflict is being played out in Washington, between supporters of the current government who argue for more time to resolve the country's decade-old civil war, and opponents who want to immediately cut or attach strings to U.S. military aid.

The issue has been taken to the streets as well as the halls of government.

About 10,000 people calling for a halt to military aid marched in front of the White House on Saturday and 5,000 participated in a similar demonstration in San Francisco. Police arrested 83 protesters at the Washington march for demonstrating without a permit and blocking traffic.

The clash over aid is occurring at a particularly delicate time in El Salvador. The two warring sides have agreed to come together for peace talks under United Nations auspices, and as a scheduled trial approaches for the military officers accused of murdering six Jesuit priests.

In addition, the leftist FMLN rebels are under pressure as never before to make concessions. The electoral defeat last month of the Sandinista government in neighboring Nicaragua is expected to close off their most reliable military supply line.

"I honestly believe conditions have never been better in the history of this conflict than they are right now," Bernard Aronson, assistant secretary of state for inter-American affairs, said last week. "I think we can end this war this year."

But Aronson added: "If it becomes politicized ... we will once again screw it up."

Liberals on Capitol Hill claim broad support for an effort to impose strict new conditions on U.S. aid to El Salvador, which is among the largest per-capita recipients of American largesse. Military, economic, development and food aid total $315.4 million this year to the nation of 5 million, and President Bush has asked for about $375 million next year.

Opponents contend that nearly $4 billion in aid over the past decade has not bought an end to the war that has claimed some 70,000 lives, and that the Salvadoran military remains beyond the control of the civilian government and prone to human rights abuses and death-squad activity.

House supporters of aid restrictions are drafting legal language that would withhold half of the money that goes to the Salvadoran military — $84.6 million this year, an expected $90 million next year — and make its release dependent on both sides' behavior.

The provision, a variation of legislation introduced in the Senate by Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., is aimed at adding pressure to keep both sides at the bargaining table and to minimize hostilities in the field.

Those who would restrict the military aid see the potential for strong leverage with Bush if they succeed in adding their proposal to an $870 million supplemental appropriations bill the president is seeking to reward new democracies in Panama and Nicaragua.

The administration believes that the new governments of President Guillermo Endara in Panama and President-elect Violeta Chamorro in Nicaragua could falter unless they are able to quickly demonstrate tangible benefits of democracy to their people. The aid would go to revitalize Panama's private sector and to plant spring crops and create jobs in Nicaragua's devastated economy.

Countdown to space center said 'on hold'

HOUSTON (AP) — The spring 1991 opening of a $70 million hands-on visitors' center near Johnson Space Center is being scrubbed.

Ground will be broken for Space Center Houston this spring and it will be complete by fall 1991, officials said.

Vance Ablott, the center's general manager, said the main reason for the delay was an increase in the projected cost from $64 million to $70 million after the design was completed.

The final design increased the size of the center from 120,000 square feet to 180,000 square feet and boosted the technological expenses.

"When we started designing we realized what it took to communicate some of these stories," Ablott said. "There were more shows, more stories to be told."

The higher costs led Citicorp Bank, which originally signed a letter of credit backing up $64 million in taxable revenue bonds for the project, to take a closer look. Ablott said he is confident the deal will go through, however.

The Disney-designed center is projected to attract 2.3 million tourists during its first year.

"We'll open in the slow season, pick up a peak season at Christmas and then be ready for the summer peak season. It's the best of all worlds," Ablott said.

Space Center Houston will offer tourists hands-on experiences, such as computer displays simulating shuttle flights, simulations of weightlessness and opportunities to touch a moon rock or put on a space glove for a feel of objects in the vacuum of space.

Several theaters will offer exhibits and films, such as how astronauts train for space. And visitors will be able to tour a space shuttle mockup.

In the mission status center, live cameras will show what is happening in Mission Control or at the Kennedy Space Center launch pad or aboard a shuttle during a flight.

Promoters say it will take about four hours to take in all the center will offer.

In hopes of keeping tourists out of rush hour traffic, presentations by astronauts and Johnson Space Center faculty will be scheduled in the late afternoon.

The Manned Space Flight Education Foundation has 123 acres just west of the Johnson Space Center that was licensed to the foundation by NASA.

'Pretty Woman' succeeds because of Julia Roberts

By The Associated Press

Q. How many times can the Cinderella story be told? A. As often as "Hamlet" can be staged — as long as it's done with talent and imagination.

Happily, that has been accomplished with "Pretty Woman," in which Cinderella turns out to be a novice hooker and Prince Charming is a ruthless corporate raider. During their one-week romance, they reform each other and achieve a happy if illogical ending.

What makes "Pretty Woman" so palatable is a star-making performance by Julia Roberts, whose glowing smile will grace many a future film. Already impressive as a dramatic actress in "Steel Magnolias" (and the only member of the stellar cast to win an Academy nomination), she is stunning in comedy.

The film also benefits from an airtight script by J.F. Lawton, an expert in one-liners and sight gags, and from the surehanded direction by Garry Marshall. A veteran of the sitcom wars, Marshall knows how to milk laughs out of any situation. He can polish a throwaway gem, such as a convertible gliding down Rodeo Drive with the driver on a telephone and a youngster talking on his own phone.

Credulity is strained at the beginning when Julia Roberts is seen in the snake-pit milieu of Hollywood Boulevard, wearing a Dutch-boy wig and a come-on look. Richard Gere comes along, seeking directions and needing someone to drive a stick-shift car borrowed from his lawyer. Roberts and Gere drive to the Regent Beverly Wilshire Hotel and use his penthouse suite in pursuit of her profession.

The multimillionaire is amused by the ingenuous hooker and engages her as his companion during a week of maneuvers for a takeover of a shipbuilding corporation owned by Ralph Bellamy. The arrangement puts Roberts in hilarious situations, some baldly lifted from "My Fair Lady." Instead of Ascot racetrack, Roberts mixes with the swells at a polo match.

"Pretty Woman" has its flaws. The saccharine ending is a let-down, and the villainy by Gere's lawyer, Jason Alexander, becomes overwrought. But during most of its length, the film fascinates, largely because of the incandescent Roberts. Her tussle with escargot in a posh restaurant is a screamer.

Gere is in splendid form as well, underplaying his role as the financial shark whose life is changed by the Hollywood hustler. Hector Elizondo is marvelous as the hotel manager who befriends his unwanted guest, and Laura San Giacomo again impresses as Roberts' roommate.

The Touchstone Picture was produced by Arnon Milchan and Steven Reuther and is rated R for language and theme of prostitution. Running time: 97 minutes.

Motion Picture Association of America rating definition:

R — Restricted. Under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.

Actress stars as cop even though she is against guns

LOS ANGELES (AP) — For someone who dislikes guns and supports gun control, Jamie Lee Curtis certainly handles a lot of artillery in her new film, "Blue Steel."

The second-generation film star plays a rookie New York City police officer who kills a suspect on her first assignment and then is stalked by a serial killer, Ron Silver. Despite her qualms, she handles her .38-caliber Smith and Wesson with the same skill that Sigourney Weaver displayed with a laser blaster in "Aliens."

"I don't like guns," Curtis said, "but I was sort of fascinated by them during the making of the film, only because target-shooting became a sport for me. If you're trying to perfect a shot, to make a minuscule adjustment on a long-range target, then it actually became fun...."

"But I'm not a gun advocate; I don't belong to the NRA. I support gun control."

For "Blue Steel," she practiced gun handling at the Los Angeles Police Department and went through the NYPD's "fun house," which simulates real-life dangers for rookie police. The fun house is depicted in the movie.

"Blue Steel," which drew mixed reviews and decent business in the first week of release, marks another milestone in the career of Jamie Lee Curtis, 31. It's the first time she has solo-starred, and it's her first action-adventure. The star as well of a TV sitcom, "Anything But Love," she has come a far piece since she was known mostly as chief screamer in horror flicks and daughter of Janet Leigh and Tony Curtis.

After appearing as the girl-in-distress in "Halloween," "The Fog," "Terror Train," "Prom Night" and other horror films with low budgets but high attendance, she realized it was time to cut out.

Her subsequent films have ranged from hits ("Trading Places," "A Fish Named Wanda") to misses ("Perfect," "Grandview USA"), together with the earnest but overlooked "Amazing Grace and Chuck," "Dominick and Eugene."

Just when Curtis scored in "A Fish Named Wanda," she surprised the trade by undertaking an ABC series, "Anything But Love," co-starring with stand-up comic Richard Lewis. The show has been struggling — No. 50 in the recent Nielsen — but she is confident of a renewal for a second season.

"I'm an actress; I look at my series as an opportunity to do a wide range of things," she said.

"Anything But Love" also allows her to schedule months of at-home time with her husband, Christopher Guest ("Saturday Night Live"), and their 3-year-old daughter, Annie.

"I love the time with my daughter," Curtis said, beaming. Annie will grow up with famous parents, just as Curtis did. But Annie's mother is determined to make sure that her daughter avoids the usual pitfalls of Hollywood children.

"I think my mom did a very good job of raising my sister and me," she observed. "She isolated us from the spotlight as much as she could. I will choose to isolate Annie totally; it's my belief that it's no business for her."

What if Annie announces she wants to follow the family trade? "I will tell her to first go to college, then she can decide for herself. That's what my mother told me. Of course, I didn't listen."

Curtis, a one-year dropout at the University of the Pacific, laughed.

Missing car salesman's body found

HOUSTON (AP) — Authorities will extradite an Ivy League college student to Houston this week after the body of a car salesman missing for more than two months was discovered by a relative.

Roy McIntyre, 46, disappeared from the Mike Calvert Toyota dealership on Jan. 20, sometime after he reportedly took the keys to a demonstration car for a customer test drive at 6:35 p.m.

Mark Griggs, McIntyre's nephew who was among 360 volunteers searching a swampy area behind warehouses near the dealership, found McIntyre's body Sunday.

Authorities arrested a 22-year-old man on Feb. 13 in South Hackensack, N.J., after the Brown University student was found driving the demonstration car. The suspect, whose parents live in Houston, has told police he bought the car from someone in College Station.

"He knows more than what he's telling us," said Houston homicide Sgt. Eric Mehl said. The suspect has been charged with falsifying a police report, possession of a firearm and possession of a stolen vehicle, and he has waived extradition to return to Houston, Mehl said.

Last week, McIntyre's family, who had resigned themselves to the possibility he was dead, decided to organize a search party to comb the brushy area around the dealership.

Fadallah cites 'positive elements'

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Sheik Mohammed Hussein Fadallah, the nation's most influential Shiite Moslem cleric, was quoted today as saying "elements of a solution" exist in the dispute over Western hostages in Lebanon.

But Fadallah, spiritual guide to the Iranian-backed Hezbollah, or Party of God, said there was no truth to reports he was asked to help find a solution to the hostage crisis. Most of the 18 Western hostages in Lebanon are believed held by groups linked to Hezbollah.

Fadallah made his remarks in an interview with the pro-Syrian Ash-Sharq newspaper.

"There are positive elements, within the context of what we detect through media reports in more than one place, that suggest elements of a solution exist in the hostage crisis," Fadallah said.

Asked whether he was contacted about the hostages by Jimmy Carter during the former U.S. president's recent Middle East peace mission, Fadallah said:

"There is no connection at all ... because I am not involved directly or indirectly in the core of the problem."

Broccoli is headed for White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Broccoli may not be welcome on the president's plate, but three cases of the vegetable are getting a warm reception at the White House today from Barbara Bush.

A gleaming white tractor trailer with 10 tons of the vegetable President Bush loves to hate rolled down Pennsylvania Avenue by the White House on Sunday.

California growers sent the produce as a good-natured protest against the presidential snub of the green, flowered brassica plant.

Most of the broccoli will find its way to soup kitchens and shelters in the nation's capital, but broccoli-loving Mrs. Bush arranged to accept three cases for the White House from officials of the United Fresh Fruit and Vegetable Association.

Bush set the wheels in motion for the protest when it became known that he ordered stewards aboard Air Force One to stop serving him broccoli.

He stood his ground at a news conference last Thursday, with words a recalcitrant child could only envy: "I do not like broccoli and I haven't liked it since I was a little kid and my mother made me eat it and I'm president of the United States and I'm not going to eat any more broccoli."

Bush has called his wife "a total totalitarian" when it comes to broccoli.

Henry Cisneros to host talk show

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Former Mayor Henry Cisneros will be host of a new syndicated series of TV specials featuring interviews with Texas celebrities.

Cut your own taxes and save

Income from interest must be reported

By George W. Smith, CPA

(Seventh of 14 parts)

As always, you must report all interest income on your tax return. If your taxable interest is $400 or less, simply report the total amount on line 8a of Form 1040 and Form 1040A, or line 2 of Form 1040EZ.

If taxable interest exceeds $400, it must be reported in detail on a separate schedule and attached to your return. On Form 1040, use Schedule B, and on Form 1040A, use Schedule 1, Part II. If individuals receive more than $400 in interest income, Form 1040EZ cannot be used.

Most institutions will send you Form 1099-INT, which reports how much interest you earned. Be sure to save the forms for your records, even though you do not have to attach them to your income tax return.

For some types of interest, such as on a personal loan to a friend, you must keep track of the amounts received.

Here are some common sources from which you might earn interest income:

- Savings accounts at banks, savings and loan associations, and other financial institutions. Many credit unions and cooperative banks call the interest they pay a dividend, but it must be reported as interest.

- Corporate bonds.
- U.S. government bonds, Treasury bills and notes.
- Certificates of deposit.
- Personal loans you grant to acquaintances.

• Interest on U.S. savings bonds. You may earn interest on U.S. savings bonds in one of two ways. On some bonds, interest is paid at stated intervals by interest checks or coupons. Other bonds are issued on a discount basis and the interest is the increase in their value over stated periods of time.

• Series HH bonds: These bonds are issued at face value. Interest is paid twice a year by check. If you are a cash method taxpayer, you report interest on these bonds as income in the year you receive it.

Series HH bonds were first offered in 1980. Before 1980, Series H bonds were issued. Series H bonds are treated the same as Series HH bonds. If you are a cash method taxpayer, you report the interest when you receive it.

• Series EE bonds: These bonds are issued on a discount basis. The face amount is payable only at maturity. The difference between the purchase price and the redemption value is taxable interest.

Series EE bonds were first offered in 1980. Before 1980, Series E Bonds were issued. If you own either Series EE or Series E bonds and use the cash method of reporting income, you may defer reporting the interest until the year you cash the bonds or the Most corporations use Form 1099-DIV or a similar statement to report dividends that were paid to you during the year.

If a broker holds several different stocks for you in his "street name," you need not report dividends from each stock separately; simply report the broker's name and the total dividends disbursed. Your broker will send you an information report, Form 1099-DIV, that spells out what you must report as income.

Ordinary or taxable dividends are the most common type of distribution from a corporation. They are paid out of the earnings and profits of a corporation and are reportable as ordinary income. You can almost assume that any dividend received, whether from common stock or preferred stock, is an ordinary dividend unless you are otherwise informed.

Another type of dividend you might receive is a non-taxable dividend. So-called non-taxable dividends are actually the return of a portion of your own money that had been invested in the stock of the company. Since it is your own money coming back to you, it is, of course, not taxable. You already paid tax on that money.

But this also calls for another book-keeping entry, not on your income tax form, but in your own records. Since you are receiving a part of the capital that you had invested in the company, you no longer have as much invested in the shares of the company's stock. (Next: Employee business expenses)

As Oscars near stars remain calm

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Tom Hanks brought his kids, Dan Aykroyd wore shorts and Paula Abdul couldn't stop giggling.

Tonight's 62nd Annual Academy Awards were a day away, and the pressure was mounting. Yet the final rehearsal Sunday for the Oscar ceremony had all the gravity of a frog-jumping contest.

With overcast skies in the forecast and overanxious fans settling in the bleachers outside, Oscar presenters Hanks, Aykroyd, Abdul, Tom Selleck, Gregory Peck, Jane Fonda, Jeff Bridges and Jessica Tandy playfully practiced their corny award introductions.

About 500 family, friends and related hangers-on settled into the Dorothy Chandler Pavilion to hear the patter.

Chevy Chase joked with a round Aykroyd that Chase should have been nominated for his work in "National Lampoon's Christmas Vacation."

And so it went. One camera operator was so bored by the proceedings that he spent the better part of an hour scanning the Sunday comics. Other technicians collapsed on a couch to watch NCAA tournament basketball.

The producer of this year's Oscar show is Gilbert Cates. He has been asked to avenge the legacy of last year's Las Vegas-like celebration of Oscar glitz.

This year's show will feature muted tones and conservative production numbers. In one of the most daring departures from tradition, Bugs Bunny will present the Oscar for best animated short film. "I hope the outfits people wear are more spectacular than the sets," said rehearsal watcher Linda Alexander.

An estimated 1 billion viewers in 90 countries will tune into the ABC telecast to see if "Born on the Fourth of July" can triumph over its own hype and four other acclaimed films.

The world will be watching, too, to see if "Fourth of July" star Tom Cruise is more popular than Daniel Day-Lewis from "My Left Foot."

All of the advertising, primping and interviewing is over. The only drama that remains — outside of what Cher will wear — is whose names are hiding in the envelopes.

The Academy Awards are wrapped in fancy clothes, ornate parties and elaborate production numbers. But the glitz only obscures a common, rather artless pursuit: winning.

In an industry where good accounting often is more important than good acting, the Oscars now represent the ultimate marketing tool. The motion picture studios spend combined millions on Academy Award vote campaigns, and not because acceptance speeches are fun to watch. Oscar trophies mean money.

After winning last year's best picture prize, "Rain Man" went on to make $36 million more in theaters. In four of the last seven years, the best picture winner has been one of the top five highest-grossing films of the year, according to Entertainment Data Inc.

Dr. Gott Peter Gott, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I had my gall bladder removed about a year ago. After the surgery, I was aware of a "strain" feeling in the area of the incision. Eventually, it popped, causing the tissue to balloon out. I now have a squishy bump about the size of an orange under the skin of the incision. I have no pain now. I can eat regularly and exercise without discomfort. However, I look like the "Hunch Belly of Notre Dame, Quasi Bloato." My internist says I have a ventral hernia. Please explain what this is and how to fix it.

DEAR READER: A hernia is an opening through which something (that shouldn't be there) pushes. A ventral hernia is a defect in the abdominal wall; it's a relatively common consequence of surgery.

When the surgeon removed your gallbladder, he or she had to cut through the abdominal muscles to reach it. After taking out the gallbladder, the surgeon sewed the abdominal muscles back together. Ordinarily, the muscle incision should have healed completely, leaving you as good as new.

In some cases, however, the stitches don't hold; rather than healing, the muscular incision gaps open. This causes a permanent hole in the muscle through which portions of bowel (or of the bowel covering) herniate. A soft mass or lump may appear under the skin. This lump will enlarge when abdominal pressure is increased (during straining or standing) and will decrease or disappear when a person reclines.

Ventral hernias, like hernias elsewhere in the body, are usually not a health problem — with one exception: a condition called strangulation. If a loop of bowel pushes through the hernia and can't be retracted (either naturally — by gravity — or by gentle manual pressure), it may swell. This causes pain and, eventually, lack of circulation, leading to tissue damage, such as gangrene. In such cases, corrective emergency surgery is necessary.

Therefore, physicians recommend elective repair of most ventral hernias, depending on their size. The procedure is quite straightforward. The defect is repaired by re-closing the hernia, using sutures or a mesh similar to material used in window screens. The mesh is used for large hernias that need more support than that provided by sutures. The operation can be performed by a general surgeon and is almost always permanent and successful.

To give you additional information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "An Informed Approach To Surgery." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 51369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Feds spoil prisoner's jail break plan

HOUSTON (AP) — A convicted cocaine dealer who thought he'd pulled one over officials after allegedly altering computer records walked out of the Harris County Jail only to be rearrested, the U.S. Marshals Office said.

Law enforcement officials allowed David Phillip Ischy, 36, to believe his escape plot was successful when he walked out of the jail early Sunday morning.

But they arrested him shortly after he left the jail. His girlfriend was also arrested. Officials said she tried to help. Both are scheduled to be arraigned today.

According to the release, a jail source revealed that Ischy discussed using falsified computer records to show the federal charges had been dismissed.

Legal cleanup in Exxon disaster is ready to begin

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Former Exxon Valdez skipper Joseph Hazelwood has left town and the voices of protest that marked the first anniversary of the nation's worst oil spill have quieted. Now, the legal cleanup begins.

With more than 150 lawsuits on file against Exxon Corp., Hazelwood and others, Alaska's court calendars will be clogged for years to come.

Exxon and its shipping subsidiary, Alyeska Pipeline Co., also have been indicted by a federal grand jury on five criminal counts stemming from the grounding of the Exxon Valdez.

The tanker hemorrhaged nearly 11 million gallons of Alaska crude oil into Prince William Sound on March 24, 1989, killing countless birds, fish and other wildlife and fouling the rocky shore for hundreds of miles.

As many as 75 people marked the anniversary Saturday with a protest outside Alyeska headquarters in Anchorage. Someone splattered the building with a plastic bag filled with chocolate syrup — intended to symbolize spilled crude.

Environmental groups held low-key events to raise money for spill-prevention efforts and to pursue Valdez-related lawsuits.

Gov. Steve Cowper called on Exxon to settle quickly the flood of lawsuits filed by environmental groups, fishermen, native Alaskans and the state.

The lawsuits are not scheduled for trial until 1992. If Exxon does not settle all valid spill-related lawsuits, litigation could drag on into the next century, Cowper said.

A lawyer coordinating the lawsuits said he wants to set a precedent.

"We have to make it unprofitable to pollute," said attorney Macon Cowles of Boulder, Colo.

The National Wildlife Federation, Natural Resources Defense Fund and other plaintiffs want Exxon to set up a fund to pay for environmental damage assessment, restoration and the purchase of wildlife preserves.

Cowles said he might even try to collect damages on behalf of plants and animals.

"We're trying to come up with a way to put a value on the devastation to life," he said. Cowles said it might take 10 years to assess that damage.

Hazelwood, the only individual charged criminally in the spill, was acquitted last Thursday of state charges of being drunk and reckless but was convicted of the misdemeanor of negligent discharge of oil.

In an emotional hearing on Friday, Superior Court Judge Karl Johnstone sentenced the skipper to spend 1,000 hours helping to clean up oiled beaches. He also ordered Hazelwood to pay $50,000 in restitution.

Hazelwood's lawyers said they would appeal the conviction and the highly unusual sentence, which they asserted was harsher than the law allows.

Alexander's offers termite protection

PEST CONTROL - Call Craig Alexander, owner of Alexander's Pest Control, for professional pest control and extermination.

You can't escape from termites. They are hard at work in every area of every state, and they may be busy devouring somebody's home right in your neighborhood—maybe even yours.

You can't afford to take chances with costly termites. Your home is your largest dollar investment. It can be protected efficiently and scientifically at a pittance of the cost compared to the damage termites can do.

Call Alexander's Pest Control for professional protection, just to be sure.

By the time termites are discovered, the cost of repairing damage done by the termites could result in thousands of dollars. Once termites gain entry to your home, they spread rapidly through joists and floors. Wily termites are careful not to break through the surface of the wood—so your first clue of termites may come when a piece of furniture sinks into soft wood. Replacing floors and supporting frame work could amount to as much as 10 times their original cost.

After getting inside, the appetite of termites is insatiable. They often follow the wooden framework of the house to upper levels and floors, creating havoc as they do. Once inside the house termites keep on with their destructive job until either the house is destroyed or until treated.

Just because your house is made of brick or concrete doesn't mean that it's safe from termites. The insidious insects are crafty and cunning in gaining access and getting to the wooden construction inside.

Voracious termites will eat anything containing wood or cellulose. They frequently damage valuable papers, books, expensive rugs and items in storage. Besides feeding themselves, worker termites carry food back to the colony for the queen, king, secondary reproductives and soldier termites. With this large family to feed, the worker isn't the least concerned about the value of your property.

A concrete foundation doesn't stop termites. Termites must return to their nests every 12 to 24 hours for moisture and to feed the non-workers. Termite tubes under your foundation are a sure sign of infestation.

Mature termites develop wings and on a warm, moist day emerge from the colony as a swarm. This usually happens in the spring and sometimes in the fall. After flying a short distance, the wings drop off and new colonies are formed. If you see swarming termites, you had better call for an inspection.

Professional chemical treatment is the only way to be sure you are safe from termite damage, and this treatment is far more economical than repairs. Using proven methods, the soil around and under your house is treated to create a chemical barrier that stops subterranean termites cold. Alexander's makes sure every possible point of entry is blocked. Prevention is cheaper than costly repairs. Call today for an inspection and estimate.

Muhammad Ali signs autographs

HARVEY, III. (AP) — He fought his last fight in 1981, but to many of his followers Muhammad Ali will always be the champ.

Five hundred people lined up Saturday to get an autograph from the former heavyweight champion for a $20 fee.

"I'm still the greatest," the 48-year-old Ali said as he feigned a punch at a 10-year-old boy.

"I'm getting back into the game," he said in the autograph signing session at the Holiday Inn-Expo Center in suburban Chicago. "George Foreman is going to beat Buster Douglas. Then I'm coming back and I'm going to take care of Foreman again."

Ali, dressed in a black silk suit with white pinstripes, said he is still on the go as a goodwill ambassador.
