SHS advances to area one-act

BIG SPRING — Amber Adams was selected Best Actress and three other Snyder High School students were chosen to the All-Star Cast as Snyder's production, "Taming of the Shrew," advanced in District 4-4A one-act play competition Thursday.

Snyder will join co-winner Big Spring, which performed "The Rimers of Eldritch," in area competition, scheduled for April 6 in Worsham Auditorium on the Snyder High School campus.

Also competing at the district level were Andrews, which will serve as the alternate to area competition, and Monahans.

Thursday's recognition was the second time in a week Adams has won Best Actress. She was honored as the best actress in Monday's East Zone competition in Snyder.

Coy Berryman, Casey Franks and Kristi Mize were selected to the District 4-4A All-Star Cast on Thursday while Grant Jordan and Lei Holcomb were honorable mention.

Josh Free of Big Spring was chosen Best Actor.

Berryman had been selected as Best Actor in zone competition and Mize had been named to the All-Star Cast, while Jordan was honorable mention.

Critic judge for Thursday's meet was Kathleen Durapau of Texas Woman's University in Fort Worth.

"She is probably the best critic judge we've ever had," said Jerry Worsham, drama instructor at SHS. "She gave us a lot of help on ideas that would help us make it even better."

Judging the area competition next week will be J.D. Masters, director of the production "Texas," held annually in Palo Duro Canyon.

It's been a long climb from the high school gyms of El Paso to McNichols Arena in Denver, Colo. where college basketball's Final Four begins Saturday, but Arkansas Coach Nolan Richardson still has fond memories of where he won his first national title. Snyder provided the initial step in what Richardson calls the "Triple Crown" of college basketball.

"Whatever I have accomplished, believe me, Snyder had a lot to do with it. I've always called Snyder my town and it will always be," said the former Western Texas College coach. Richardson took time out from a torrid schedule this week for a

His Razorbacks face Duke University at 4:43 p.m. CST in one of two NCAA National Tournament semifinal games Saturday. The University of Nevada at Las Vegas battles Georgia Tech in the other game at about 7:15 p.m. The semifinals winners clash Monday (see RICHARDSON, page 8)

4-4A UIL literary meet set Saturday

BIG SPRING — Snyder High School students will compete against other District 4-4A schools in district UIL literary competition Saturday in Big Spring.

Snyder students are entered in speech and debate, journalism, ready writing, spelling, calculator applications, number sense, science, keyboarding, accounting and literary criticism.

They will be competing against students from Sweetwater, San Angelo Lake View, Monahans, Andrews, Big Spring, Fort Stockton and Pecos.

Students representing Snyder include Tom Galyean, James Beauchamp, Grant Jordan, Casey Franks, Kristi Mize, Amy Hodges, Emily King, Sara McDonald, Jennifer Purcell, Melissa Huddleston, Kim Wilson, Angie Buchanan, Shawn Bogard, Pam McGhee, Jason Grantham, Toni Evans, Justin Baize, Kathy Armstrong, Derek Hollingsworth and Julie Zeck.

Others are Holly Barkowsky, Michael Patterson, Felicia Perry, Ken Gartman, Chris Gober, Shawn Cowan, Chris Cunningham, Sam Shifflett, Felicia Perry, Sid Brooks, Eric West, Sherry Buchanan, Marcus Best, Bill Vestal, Coy Berryman, Lisa Sandoval, Dayla Church, Gina McWhirter and Wendy Wadkins.

The top three students in each category will advance to regional competition, with the fourth place student to serve as an alternate. Region is scheduled for April 19-21 at Angelo State University in San Angelo.

Chamber banquet Saturday Former Miss Texas to entertain

Tickets are still available for the annual Snyder Chamber of Commerce Banquet, scheduled for 7 p.m. Saturday in Scurry County Coliseum.

Tickets are $12.50 each are may be purchased at the chamber office today.

Gloria Gilbert Barron, ventriloquist and former Miss Texas, will be the featured entertainment for the night. Barron has served as the opening act for a number of well-known entertainers, including Bob Hope, Willie Nelson, Lee Greenwood, The Fifth Dimension and Floyd Cramer.

Master of ceremonies will be

Max von Roeder.

Six awards are presented annually at the banquet — the Vestal Award, McLaughlin Award, Winston Award, Sizemore Award, Educational Excellence Award and the President's Award.

A new award this year will be the Sparkler Award.

The Vestal Award, also known as the Mayor's Award, was established by the City of Snyder in December of 1976. It is dedicated to the memory of the late William A. Vestal, a former city mayor. The award recognizes individuals who have made significant contributions to the local development of Snyder through cultural, economic or governmental activities. It will be presented by Mayor Troy Williamson.

The McLaughlin Award was begun in 1977 by the family of the late C.T. McLaughlin, an oil man, rancher, political figure, art collector and philanthropist. The award is presented to individuals who make significant contribution to the oil industry in Snyder and Scurry County. Presenting (see BANQUET, page 8)

WTSB charts successful '89

Shareholders of West Texas State Bank Thursday afternoon heard 1989 described as successful during the bank's annual meeting at which all officers and directors were re-elected.

President Bill Parker said 1989 was successful in "both performance and conservative growth." He said the bank had net earnings of over $1 million after taxes and that assets grew by more than $6 million and deposits increased by over $5 million.

In addition, Parker announced that shareholders' equity grew by more than $500,000 and that almost $250,000 in previously charged-off loans were collected. During the past year, more than $400,000 in cash dividends were paid.

Parker told stockholders that the results of the annual examination conducted by the FDIC were excellent.

Directors re-elected include H.W. Cargile, senior chairman of the board; Martin Brooks, chairman; Dan Cotton, Harold Denson, Bill Eiland, John Greene, Charles Henderson, Parker, R.C. Patton and Dale Stuard.

Officers re-elected in addition to Cargile, Brooks and Parker were Greene, executive vice president; Mark Estes, senior vice president, Bill Eiland, vice president (in-active); and vice presidents Charles Henderson, Syble Bley and Forrest Pendleton.

Other officers re-elected were Derwin Thompson, senior vice president and cashier; assistant vice presidents Betty Lou Fleming, Barbara McGee, Shirley Miller, Shawn Ragland and Dale Williamson; assistant cashiers Betty Atkinson, Bobby Beard, Rosemary Kohl, Joyce Pace, Reece Orsburn, Pat Kelley and Anita Clinkinbeard.

The SDN Column By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "You know the honeymoon's over when he trades the belle of the ball for the bowl of the ball."

Keeping tabs on our neighbors: O.G. Nieman, in the Hereford Brand, observed that during the recent campaign for governor that candidates of both major parties seemed to be campaigning for improvements in education. "After you look them over and listen to them for a few minutes, you've got to admit it's needed."

Wacil McNair, former SDN editor now toiling for the Gilmer Mirror, noticed that TV weather forecasters learn to hang in there until they achieve success.

McNair said it is like the advice that a banker gave a young fellow who asked, "How do you make money in the stock market?"

"It is quite simple," the banker explained.

"You just buy when it's low and sell when it's high."

"But what if you buy and it stays low?" the young man asked.

"Then you just keep holding it until it goes up," said the banker.

"And if it never goes up?" the young man quizzed.

"Then you've got a recession on your hands," added the banker.

McNair compared weather predictions to the banker's advice. "If they keep predicting rain long enough, they are bound to hit it eventually. Otherwise, they have a drought on their hands."

Larry Crabtree, in the Vernon Daily Record, is known for his hearty appetite, but Crabtree says he has a friend who is a world class connoisseur of Mexican food.

"In fact, he likes Mexican food so much friends call him the Gulp of Mexico."

'Troops' prepare for kickoff drive

Saturday's American Cancer Society drive kick-off at the National Guard Armory will be in the form of "battle training," with dog tags to be issued, an armored personnel carrier to be inspected and motivational speeches to be made to the volunteers.

ACS chapter president Darryl Calley will open the two-hour event at 10 a.m. with a "Call to Order and Welcome of the Troops," and Staff Sgt. Jessie Pierson and residential drive chairman Karon Keller will issue dog tags.

Sgt. Steve Bell will take participants through the armored personnel carrier, and Mayor Troy Williamson and state representative candidate John Pennington of Sweetwater will discuss "The Troop Needs."

Keller will present door prizes, Silver-Haired Legislature Rep. Delbert Downing will give a motivational speech, and the event will end with a food fight with food that has been donated by local restaurants and grocery stores.

LaVada Cates, group vice president, will give the "Farewell to Troops" as the kick-off ends about noon.

In Brief

More fighting

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Rival black factions traded gunfire for a fourth day today and thousands of refugees fled Natal Province townships after savage fighting left at least 36 people dead and hundreds wounded, police said.

President F.W. de Klerk warned that political violence was becoming a threat to stability and the government would use force to restore order. He said a growing wave of violence and demonstrations was getting out of hand.

Will negotiate

DALLAS (AP) — Despite a top executive's contention that a four-week-old strike is losing its impact, Greyhound Lines Inc. and its bus drivers' union say they will return to the negotiating table next week.

Greyhound broke off talks with the Amalgamated Council of Greyhound Local Unions on March 18, citing continued violence since the drivers walked out March 2.

Although the company's own records indicate the violence is continuing daily, with more than 200 incidents overall, it has agreed to resume negotiations Monday in Tucson, Ariz.

Police blamed for botched rescue

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Army officials who investigated a botched mountain rescue of a girl want military airlift medics nationwide to take note of the accident, which they partly blamed on city police.

The Army investigative board said in a statement Thursday the police Mountain Rescue Team did not properly assemble a rescue litter and did not completely secure Debbie Baisa, 9, when they tried to hoist her to a military helicopter last year in the Franklin Mountains.

The girl was hiking with relatives Dec. 9 when she sprained her ankle. The helicopter and the police rescue team were called to rescue her.

As Debbie was being hoisted into the helicopter, the litter began to spin wildly. She slipped from the litter and plummeted 30 feet. She was treated for a head injury, fractured ribs, a broken hip, a damaged lung and a damaged liver. She remains in a full body cast at home, her mother, Letty Baisa, said.

Mrs. Baisa would not comment on the Army's conclusions. Her attorney, Sam Dwyer, said he would like the city and Army to pay a combined structured settlement that would cover Debbie's medical costs. He said he is awaiting medical results to determine what would be a fair amount.

The family has filed a complaint against the city. Lt. Ed Ortega, police spokesman, was out of the office when called for comment. City officials contend the rescue team is not at fault and is conducting its own investigation.

Army investigators found the rescue team did not use a tag line recommended by the manufacturer to control spinning of the litter and told Army medics she was properly secured.

The Army also concluded that the flight medic of the Army air ambulance was partly at fault for accepting a patient on a litter the medic was not familiar with. The Army did not identify the medic.

However, the Army determined "that the medic acted correctly in light of her training, experience, the situation and the assurances by the mountain rescue team that the patient was ready for the lift."

The investigation is likely to bring changes and improvements in military medical rescue missions.

The investigating board recommended:

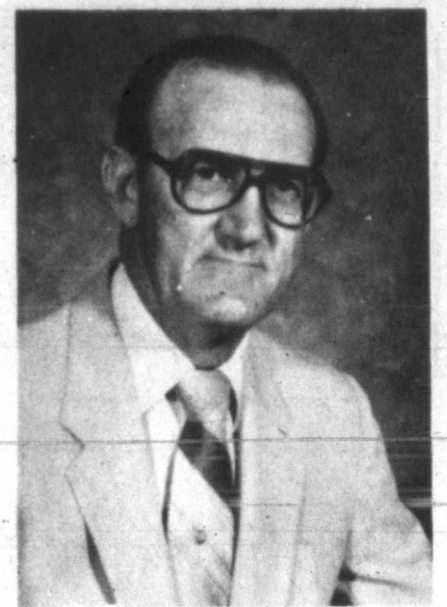

—the accident be publicized in the military medical community and that the Academy of Health Sciences of Fort Sam Houston improve training of flight medics.

—helicopter crew members not use civilian equipment unless they are familiar with it.

—a draft field manual on medical evaluation procedures be adopted and distributed by the Army.

—more realistic training for flight medics.

—helicopter flight crews and civilian law enforcement and medical agencies get compatible radio equipment.

JIM MOSLEY

Mosley likes to talk about the Lord

A few people just don't like to talk about themselves. "I'm not much on talking about myself. I would rather talk about the Lord," said Jim Mosley, Union Baptist pastor.

And that is just what he has been doing for the last 30 years. "I'm proud of the fact that the Lord has let me pastor for 30 years."

Mosley is just plain fond of people, children and adults. He is happy at Union because the people are "warmer." Although he has pastored at about 20 churches in his career, he said, "The last five years have been the sweetest of my ministry," about his time at Union.

He has seen alot of ups and downs in his 30 year career. But he doesn't seem to mind. "You have to have valleys before you can appreciate the mountain tops."

In addition to his pastoring duties, Mosley and his wife drive a school bus on the special education route and if he is reluctant to talk about himself; he is anxious to talk about the children on his bus route. "I could talk about them all day."

Mosley enjoys a special relationship with the children. "Those kids can really touch your heartstring." He tells of one such child that touched his "heartstring."

"Sometimes when one of the kids says something to me, I will reply with 'Hallelujah!' We had one rider who we knew was able to talk but we had never heard him say anything. Then one day, he said 'Hallelujah!' It was the first word we had ever heard him say. Now we can't get him to shut up."

Mosley tries to keep an "up tempo" attitude although he admitted he sometimes has to "fake it." "I have learned that your people are an extension of what you are. If you are down, your people are down."

He has pastored all over the state and even had a very short stay in California. He discovered he wasn't cut out to be a California dude. "We were there for only three months. We're just ole country folks."

Mosley has studied Bible at the University of Corpus Christi and at Howard Payne University. "I graduated from the school of hard knocks."

He and his wife, Jimmie Sue, have three married children; Gay of New Orleans and David and Laurie, both of Abilene.

Some Soviet scholars regard Ivan the Terrible — an able, if ruthless, statesman — as the real founder of the centralized state.

Deficit lower, chairman claims

AUSTIN (AP) — Democrats were released by agency board chairman Rob Mosbacher, the Republican nominee for lieutenant governor.

Mosbacher said Thursday "the sky is not falling" and announced new figures showing a projected budget deficit of $550 million, rather than the $851 million deficit officials stated last week.

Mosbacher said the shortfall can be covered without cutting services to thousands of needy Texans and without a tax increase.

But the newly adjusted figures sparked quick outrage from Mosbacher's critics.

Sen. Gonzalo Barrientos, D-Austin, said the Human Services Department, led by Commissioner Ron Lindsey, a former budget director for Republican Gov. Bill Clements, manipulated the budget figures "to set a partisan trap for Democrats and damage control for (Mosbacher's) candidacy."

Tony Proffitt, a spokesman for Mosbacher's Democratic opponent, state Comptroller Bob Bullock, described the figures as "wheel of fortune numbers."

In another development Thursday, the Human Services Department was sued in federal court for allegedly failing to reimburse nursing homes for the cost of caring for Medicaid patients in their facilities.

But Mosbacher said the Human Services board will reverse last week's decision that froze reimbursement rates.

Mosbacher said the $550 million shortfall for the two-year budget period ending Aug. 31, 1991, reflects lower than expected projections on pregnant women and children applying for aid and other cost changes than were figured to come up with the original $851 million figure.

Devout and Pious Co-Worker Fails to Practice Her Faith

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1990 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I work in the medical profession where the professionals are supposed to be sympathetic and caring, right? Well, as I write this letter, a co-worker is cursing and complaining about the blankety-blank patients, the working conditions, the shortage of help, space, telephones, etc. But what really bugs me most about this woman is the fact that she is a devout churchgoer. Her conversations are peppered with "the Lord this" and "the Lord that." I have great difficulty understanding the inconsistencies between her professed faith and her actions. Although I am not an active member of my church, I wouldn't treat a dog the way this pious churchgoer treats people.

She is not an isolated case by any means. In my experience, I have usually found that those who thump their Bibles the loudest would benefit more by being thumped by them.

UP TO HERE IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR UP: We all know people who are faithful churchgoers but fall short when it comes to practicing their religion. But what better place for them to be? As I have said before: A church is not a museum for saints — it's a hospital for sinners.

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing in response to a recent letter from an elderly Ohio widow who wanted to be fair in the distribution of her estate. She had two grown children. Her daughter is married to a very successful businessman and they have no children. Her son is a struggling schoolteacher with three children to educate. The well-to-do widow had originally planned to leave her daughter and son equal amounts in the interest of fairness.

Now she is having second thoughts, so she asked you. You simply told her, "It's your money, so do whatever gives you the most pleasure."

Your advice wasn't very helpful, Abby. I would have suggested that she divide her estate in thirds. Leave one-third to her childless daughter, one-third to her struggling son and the other third in a trust fund to educate her grandchildren.

BEEN THERE IN OREGON

DEAR BEEN THERE: Thanks, I needed that. Also, the Ohio widow would be wise to seek the advice and counsel of an attorney who specializes in estate planning and trusts.

***

DEAR ABBY: Greetings from Rhein-Maine Air Base, West Germany! This is the first year for us to be involved in the Operation Dear Abby-America Remembers Campaign, and I must tell you that we were overwhelmed with more than 125,000 pieces of mail! The warmth and sincerity of the goodies and greetings, the time and effort invested, and the love shared by Americans back home deeply touched me and the people in my command. The outpouring of genuine concern is truly a morale and confidence booster. Our heartfelt thanks to you and all of your readers for bringing holiday cheer to the Air Force in Frankfurt, West Germany.

COL. JOHN W. HANDY,
USAF COMMANDER

Mexico's president breaks ground for international bridge

COLOMBIA, Mexico (AP) — Bonifacio Ramos, a lifelong resident of this border village, says a new international bridge will end the remote settlement's poverty and obscurity.

"At long last they remembered us," the 89-year-old Ramos said Thursday after President Carlos Salinas de Gortari waved a white flag signaling two bulldozers to start moving dirt at the edge of the Rio Grande. "Most of my life it seemed like we were out in the brush and nobody knew we were here."

The bridge, about 20 miles northwest of the sister cities of Laredo, Texas and Nuevo Laredo, Mexico, will link undeveloped rural areas when it is complete in 1991. A railroad bridge may be built later.

Ramos' sister, Petra Ramos Espinoza, 75, said the bridge will improve life there "in all ways. It will bring so much progress."

Dubbed the "Solidarity" bridge, it will be the first span between Texas and the Mexican state of Nuevo Leon, which share a border only 10 miles long.

Some critics have called the $18.5 million project a "bridge to nowhere."

But Salinas said new jobs would be created in Colombia, an unpaved town of about 300 residents. He said the town could become a new center for "maquiladoras," the twin plants of foreign companies that employ inexpensive Mexican labor.

"We want Mexicans to work in Mexico, not in the United States, and to generate jobs for our country, so that what we export are products, not laborers," Salinas told a crowd of about 500 at the bridge site.

Aldo Tatangelo, mayor of Laredo, said the new bridge would relieve some of the traffic congestion in his city, which already has two automobile bridges and a railroad span across the Rio Grande.

"It takes the traffic out of the city proper and brings it to another area away from the city," Tatangelo said.

Cargo truck traffic on the two automobile bridges in Laredo has increased over the past five years from 300 trucks a day to 1,400 a day, Tatangelo said.

Laredo last year extended its extraterritorial jurisdiction to include the area of rural Webb County where the new bridge will cross the border.

Damages are set by fed court

AUSTIN (AP) — A lawsuit between Motorola and Hitachi resulted in each giant computer company receiving an award and a lecture from a federal judge to not waste the court's time.

U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton said Thursday in his 45-page opinion, "The parties would have saved time, money, feelings, and relations had they curbed their emotions and sat down to settle their difference out of court."

Under Bunton's order, Hitachi Ltd. will pay $1.9 million to Motorola Inc. for infringement of patents, and Motorola will pay $500,000 to Hitachi for a patent infringement.

The order prohibits the companies, allies since 1975 in sharing technological and manufacturing advances, from marketing or selling various lines of microprocessors.

Motorola, based in Schaumburg, Ill., sued Tokyo-based Hitachi, claiming the company was using Motorola secrets in development of a series of micro controllers — thumb-sized devices central to information-processing devices used in computers. The micro controllers were designed and manufactured in Austin.

Hitachi filed a countersuit, claiming Motorola infringed on some of Hitachi's patents.

The complex case was packed into a three-day trial in January. In his opinion, Bunton said he was perplexed because both companies dealt personally with each other for years and yet suddenly "expected this court to ferret out the wrongdoings of which each is accused."

West must have thought that Christmas had come early. With stacks in both of declarer's suits and a partner who was bidding, he was quick to double and lead his partner's suit. Little did he realize that the lead would give declarer the opportunity to bring home a nearly impossible contract.

Declarer won the diamond ace but spurned the club finesse. Instead he led to dummy's ace and discarded both his remaining clubs on the queen and jack of diamonds. West ruffed the third diamond and played a club, declarer ruffing East's king. Spades were next. With no way to get to dummy, declarer simply led a low spade from his hand. West won the queen and, needing an exit, continued with the ace. Declarer ruffed in dummy and played a heart to his hand, disclosing the anticipated bad trump break, but declarer had the situation under control.

Declarer played out his winning spades. West had to follow until only three tricks remained, and he was reduced to the Q-J-7 of hearts. When declarer led his last spade to the 11th trick, West had the choice of ruffing low and being overruffed in dummy, or ruffing high and leading from Q-7 of hearts back into declarer's K-10. Either way the defense could only take three tricks.

West was done in by his partner's frisky overcall on a long but headless suit. If West had made any reasonable lead other than the diamond king, the contract would surely have been defeated.

Crew members included Rebecca Hermosillo, Karen Olsen, Joey Matthews and Mandy Olsen. Thelma McGhee was the director.

Austin man registers to vote 37 times using various names

AUSTIN (AP) — Michael Taylor must have planned to vote early and vote often in the recent Texas primary election.

Taylor, 25, was indicted Thursday by a Travis County grand jury on two misdemeanor counts of making false statements on an application for a voter registration card.

Travis County prosecutors say Taylor registered to vote 37 times under 37 different names. And he used the names of people who wouldn't have voted. They were all dead.

A computer and the good memory of some county employees proved to be Taylor's downfall, authorities say.

Taylor told the Austin American-Statesman he didn't even plan to vote.

"I had some problems in my life," he said. "I wasn't going to use it."

Tigers edge Steers for first in district

BIG SPRING — The Snyder Tigers upped their baseball season mark to 10-3 yesterday with a 5-4 win over the Big Spring Steers in a make-up of last Tuesday's weather-related postponement.

The win places the Tigers atop the District 4-4A standings with a 2-0 record against loop opponents.

"We beat a good team," said Snyder coach Albert Lewis.

"The kids had a good team effort."

Snyder's Jamey Morton claimed the win going the full seven innings, striking out nine and scattering five hits.

Morton is now 6-0 on the season and has fanned 40 batters in his last three starts.

The Tigers broke out on top with two runs in the second and two in the third for a 4-0 lead.

Morton started Snyder's offensive thrust in the top of the second inning with a single.

He was followed by a Terry Stephens walk and a two-RBI triple from Jason West to put SHS on top.

In the Tigers' half of the third, Willie Garcia, leading off, was put aboard by Big Spring hurler Shane Myrick via the walk.

Designated hitter Chad Fox stepped in next and smashed a double that scored Garcia from first base.

Morton, who wound up the night two-for-two with a sacrifice, rapped a base hit that moved Fox across the plate.

Big Spring scored three in the bottom of the inning to close the gap to 4-3.

"Jamey had struck out the side in the first and they adjusted and moved back at the plate to get a better look at his curve," said Lewis.

"They had four hits that were just looped out of the reach of our infielders."

Neal Mayfield of the Steers punched a single and moved to second on a passed ball and scored on an Eric Torres single to right field.

Torres was moved around on a ground out by Freddy Rodriguez and an infield hit from Robert Perez and scored on a single to short right field from DH Jon Downey.

Both teams knuckled down defensively and no runs scored until the Snyder portion of the sixth stanza when Mark King touched home.

King reached on a single to left, moved to second on a sacrifice fly from Morton and came home on a hit by Justin House.

Big Spring scored one more in their final at-bat as center fielder Mike Hilario walked and scored on an error and a tag-up from third on a foul ball from Marvin Rubio that was caught for the second out of the inning.

Downey ended the game with a grounder at Toby Goodwin at third base who converted the roller into the game's final out with a toss to John Wright at first.

Myrick, now 3-2 on the season accepted the loss for the Steers.

The Tigers continue their district schedule with a trip to Andrews tonight, weather permitting.

Snyder will pitch Garcia, 1-1, at the Mustangs and AHS will counter with Jesse Armendariz.

Andrews is 9-5 on the year and 1-1 within the district.

Calhoun wins college honor

DENVER (AP) — Connecticut's Jim Calhoun, who led the Huskies from preseason also-rans to the Big East title and within one game of the NCAA tournament's Final Four, was named college basketball coach of the year today by The Associated Press.

Calhoun, the first Big East coach to win the award, received 194 votes in nationwide balloting conducted before the NCAA tournament. He easily outdistanced Kansas' Roy Williams, who received 83 votes, and Michigan State's Jud Heathcote, with 80.

Connecticut was picked eighth in preseason voting by the Big East's nine coaches as Calhoun began his fourth season with the Huskies.

Calhoun, who coached at Northeastern for 14 seasons before moving to Connecticut, has a career mark of 326-189.

Indiana's Bob Knight won the award last season for the third time.

Golf teams resume district competition

Snyder's golf teams resume district competition Saturday as the boys travel to San Angelo and the Lady Tigers visit Monahans.

Snyder's girls carry a 363 into tomorrow's second loop tourney, seven strokes behind first place Andrews.

Snyder's Amy Armstrong finished as second medalist in the Snyder tournament two weeks ago with a score of 85.

Kim Duncan and Jacy LaRoux wound up in the top ten of the event as Duncan carded an 89 to place fourth and LaRoux registered a 94 to tie for tenth.

Tee-off time for the girls is 9:45 a.m.

The Snyder boys came in eleventh in their first district tournament.

They were led by Ron Baker's 82 and 89's from Chad Jacobi and Kenny Gambrell.

The SHS golfers haul a 343 score into Saturday's meeting at San Angelo's Riverside Golf Course.

The boys are to tee-off at 8 a.m.

Simmons is named Player of the Year

DENVER (AP) — Lionel Simmons, the third-leading scorer in Division I history, was named college basketball Player of the Year today by The Associated Press.

The 6-foot-7 senior forward from La Salle received 135 votes in nationwide balloting conducted before the NCAA tournament, outdistancing runner-up Gary Payton of Oregon State by 35 votes.

Derrick Coleman of Syracuse was third with 63 votes. Loyola Marymount's Hank Gathers, who died on March 4 after collapsing on the court during a game, was fourth with 42.

Simmons' emotional reaction during a game to the news of the death of Gathers, a close friend since their boyhood days in Philadelphia, allowed the nation to see the human side of one of the game's most consistent players.

He averaged 26.5 points per game this season to follow seasons of 20.3, 23.3 and 28.4. He led the Explorers to the country's

Arkansas and Duke play in NCAA semis

DENVER (AP) — Since Duke is favored to beat Arkansas in Saturday's national semifinal game, an Arkansas victory should be considered an upset, right?

Not so fast.

"I honestly believe there are no upsets in these tournaments," Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson said. "I've said all along that parity is here."

During this year's NCAA tournament, 23 of the games have been decided by three points or fewer, and Arkansas has been involved in two of them — 88-85 over Texas in the Midwest Region final and 86-84 over Dayton in the second round.

The Razorbacks (30-4) also held off Princeton 68-64 in their first tournament game.

"I think if you tossed it all up again, you might have a different four teams here," Richardson said. "To me, that's what college athletics is all about. It's a chance for the teams who could not dream of being in the Final Four to get there."

Richardson has had dreams about getting here, but he didn't expect them to come true so soon. With four sophomores among his top eight players, he figured the Razorbacks were a year or two away.

Arkansas started the season with five straight victories before losing to Missouri. The next loss came two weeks later at UNLV. Then came a 12-game winning streak that lifted the Razorbacks to No. 3 in the rankings.

After consecutive Southwest Conference losses, to Baylor and Texas Christian, Arkansas set out on another winning streak that brought them the SWC regular-season and tournament titles. It now stands at 10.

"We certainly felt we had a chance (to reach the Final Four), regardless of what school we had to play against," Richardson said. "That's what makes basketball all the more fun — to feel like they have a chance."

Richardson figures his best chance against Duke will come if the Razorbacks can get the tempo to their liking — fast. Arkansas averaged a school-record 97 points a game during the regular season.

The Razorbacks showed they could play a slowdown game with the victory over Princeton, but they clearly prefer running to walking.

"We're just trying to play 94 feet," Richardson said. "When you start playing 94 feet you're hoping you're not in a halfcourt game playing a chess match."

Duke, which averages 89 points a game, doesn't figure to slow things too much. Mike Krzyzewski's team will have a size advantage, although Richardson says his team doesn't match up well against anyone.

"It won't be so much the matchups as how well we play," he said.

His main concern is Duke's ability to rebound. Arkansas' top rebounder is reserve Oliver Miller with 6.3 per game. Duke has two starters who average more than that.

The Blue Devils impressed Richardson with a strong half-court defense.

"I want our kids to be aware of what's going on, but we prepare for the best we can play," he said. "We never have a scout team. I never run the other team's offense. In every game, we're going to see something we do in practice every day."

Obsessed fan with rifle holes up in actress' home

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An obsessed fan who once threatened to kill herself in front of actress Sharon Gless was holed up in the "Cagney and Lacey" star's home today.

No shots were fired and no injuries were reported, police Officer C.R. Witkamp said. He said Miss Gless, 46, was not home but he did not know where she was.

Sgt. George McCormick identified the woman as Joni Leigh Penn, 30, who in November 1988 was ordered to keep 200 yards away from the Emmy Award-winning actress. A judge issued the order after Ms. Penn threatened to shoot herself in front of Miss Gless.

A police special weapons and tactics team was dispatched to the North Hollywood home after a neighbor called police about 3:20 a.m. today, Witkamp said.

The woman locked herself in a bathroom when police arrived and officers were trying to coax her out, said McCormick.

Ten neighboring homes were evacuated as a precaution, police said.

In the November 1988 ruling, Ms. Penn also was ordered to keep 200 yards away from any of Miss Gless' family members and to stay 1,000 yards away from homes of the actress and her relatives.

During 1988, Miss Gless had received 20 letters from Ms. Penn, a self-described fan, in which she threatened to commit suicide in front of the actress, according to a letter that Ms. Penn's psychiatrist, Hubert Nestor, submitted in Superior Court.

On Oct. 25, 1988, Ms. Penn reportedly went to Miss Gless' home and told the actress' secretary she had a gun. Police were called, but Ms. Penn left before they arrived.

Miss Gless played the tough police detective Christine Cagney on the "Cagney and Lacey" TV series. She won the Emmy for outstanding actress in a drama series in 1987.

Democrats tempt veto with ambitious child care plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats are tempting a presidential veto by rejecting the White House version of a child-care bill in favor of their own more costly and ambitious plan.

The House approved the measure, estimated to cost at least $27 billion over its first five years, just hours after a spokesman for President Bush issued a fresh veto threat Thursday.

"Rather than waving his veto pen, our president should match his warm words with good deeds and agree to sign our child-care bill," House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., said after the vote.

The bill still must go to a House-Senate conference to resolve differences with the Senate. But Democrats hoped the ultimate version would mirror the House bill and that election-year pressures would make Bush back down from his threat.

The House plan would expand tax credits for poor families to offset the cost of child care and would provide federal money for local governments to set up new day-care programs in public schools.

It would create a system of state-issued subsidy vouchers for parents who want to use religious day-care centers, expand the Head Start program for poor children, and establish minimum standards for day-care centers.

Both parties embraced the cause of day-care assistance during the last presidential campaign, and Democrats were trying to seize the political advantage on the popular issue. Less than a week ago, Democrats reported being close to a bipartisan agreement on the issue in White House negotiations that ultimately collapsed.

"I think President Bush, as he examines the bill, will find a lot more to be comfortable with than not," said a sponsor, Rep. Thomas Downey, D-N.Y.

"I think it will go down as a landmark bill, one of the great achievements of the Congress and this era in American government," said House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash.

To offset part of the new child-care costs, the House plan would take away the income tax credit that more affluent families now receive for child care. That credit would be reduced for families earning $70,000 a year and eliminated for those earning more than $90,000.

It also would make permanent the 3 percent telephone excise tax due to expire this year. But both revenue sources would not cover the full cost.

The House approved the bill 265-145, after voting more narrowly to reject the less costly alternative that Bush had endorsed. That version's five-year cost was put at nearly $20 billion.

The White House's budget office issued a statement calling the Democratic version "an exercise in fiscal irresponsibility."

Just hours before the vote, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater warned that Bush would veto the Democratic version if it reached his desk.

The White House alternative was sponsored by Reps. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, and Clay Shaw, R-Fla. It was defeated on a 225-195 vote that largely followed party lines.

Fourteen Democratic governors and one Republican, Gov. John R. McKernan Jr. of Maine, signed a letter to Foley endorsing the Democratic version of the child-care bill and opposing the conservative alternative.

Republicans attacked the Democratic version because it instructs states to set minimum standards for day-care centers, including a requirement that day-care workers receive 15 hours of training a year.

The Senate's version, passed last year, would cost about the same as the version backed by Bush, though it would provide smaller tax credits. Like the House version, the Senate plan would provide vouchers for church-run centers, but it would place less emphasis on school-based programs.

Engineer says cooperating in sting was right thing to do

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The president of a U.S. defense contractor says he cooperated with a sting that averted shipment of 40 nuclear detonators to Iraq because he feared nuclear weapons in the hands of "irresponsible" countries.

The sting came as part of an 18-month investigation by U.S. and British customs agents that culminated in a federal indictment against five people and two British companies.

Jerold Kowalsky, an engineer and president of CSI Technologies Inc., said he alerted U.S. agents in 1988 to inquiries from alleged representatives of Iraq into his company, which makes electronic triggers to military specifications.

He said Thursday that the possibility of the devices falling into the hands of the Iraqi government disturbed him.

"I had no qualms in cooperating with the government from the beginning," Kowalsky said. "I felt like I was doing the right thing and I would hope anybody in my shoes would have done the same thing."

Iraqi officials deny their government is seeking to develop a nuclear arsenal.

Two of the five people named as defendants in the Feb. 23 indictment, unsealed Thursday in San Diego, were arrested Wednesday in London. The three others, believed to be in Iraq, were identified as engineers for Al-Qaqa State Establishment, a weapons development unit of Iraq's Ministry of Industry and Military Industrialization, U.S. Customs officials said.

The indictment alleges that Euromac (London) Ltd. and Atlas Equipment (U.K.) Ltd. acted on behalf of the Iraqi government to illegally obtain the devices.

Customs officials said Euromac was an official purchasing office of the Iraqi government and had done millions of dollars in business in procuring materials for the Iraqi government at the height of its war with Iran.

CSI Technologies is a U.S. defense contractor. Kowalsky said he felt obliged to cooperate in the investigation.

"We can't afford to have nuclear weapons in the hands of countries that are irresponsible," he said.

Among those charged in the indictment were Ali Daghir, identified by British authorities as the leader of the alleged smuggling operation, and Jeanine Speckman, a French woman released on bond Thursday.

Daghir was identified in the indictment as managing director of the two companies, which allegedly acted as agents for Al-Qaqa.

Speckman was named in the indictment as an export executive for Euromac and secretary of Atlas Equipment. The indictment alleges that she suggested the triggers be shipped in boxes labeled as components for air conditioning in computer rooms.

Customs officials said it was unlikely the three Iraqi engineers will ever be arrested. The indictment identifies them as Karim Dhaidas Omran, Dafir Al-Azawi and Wallid Issa Ahmad.

Obituaries

Max Lochabay

Graveside services for Alfred Max Lochabay, 84, of 2907 Ave. W will be 11 a.m. Saturday at the Fairmont Cemetery in San Angelo.

He died at 6:15 p.m. Thursday in St. Mary of the Plains Hospital in Lubbock.

Lochabay was born Feb. 16, 1906, in Llano. He married Reba Dec. 31, 1939, in Corpus Christi. He was retired from the restaurant business, a Snyder resident since 1962 and a Presbyterian.

He is survived by his wife Reba; one sister, Lois Flanagan of Austin and one brother, John Lochabay of Snyder.

Suspect identified

Police Thursday said they had identified a suspect in a reported sexual assault case involving a 12-year-old girl in the 1400 Block of Ave. R.

A city detective reported at 10:40 a.m. that the case had been referred to the district attorney's office.

He said the case was investigated as an aggravated sexual assault of a child.

Banquet

The award will be Mairi McFaul. The Winston Award was established in 1974 to honor county land owner Harrie Winston, who died that year. Winston and his brother Wade were active community supporters, and donated the land for Winston Field airport. The award is presented to people engaged in farming or ranching and who demonstrate leadership and progressiveness. Terry "Butch" Nachlinger will present the award this year.

The Sizemore Award, formerly known as the Goldcoater of the Year award, is named after the late Paul Sizemore. It is presented to the Goldcoater who tallies the most points according to a Goldcoater bylaw point system. Sizemore was a past president of the chamber and the Scurry County Industrial Foundation. The award will be presented by Jack Smartt.

The Sparkler Award, established this year, is presented to the Sparkler who tallies the most points according to a bylaw point system. Sparklers are the women's "working arm" of the chamber. Fran Farmer, chamber president, will present the award.

The President's Award recognizes a member of the chamber who has made significant contributions to the organization during the past year. It was established in 1985, and will be presented this year by Herbie Figueredo.

The Educational Excellence Award was established in 1988 to recognize lifetime achievement in the field of teaching at Snyder public schools. Florence Lewis will present the award this year.

Richardson eyes Final Four

day at 8:14 p.m. for college basketball's biggest crown. The games are being televised on CBS, local cable channels 5 and 13.

"It's a real honor," said Richardson. "I've been blessed."

Although it hasn't been officially confirmed, it appears that a trip to the winner's circle Monday would make Richardson the only basketball coach to win the NJCAA, NIT and NCAA tournaments.

"That's what they tell me. So far, nobody has ever done it as far as anybody can tell. That's the Triple Crown," he laughed. "It's something that very few if any have done. It's certainly been a great honor for me to be in this position."

Richardson was hired by Western Texas out of Bowie High School in El Paso to replace a highly successful Mike Mitchell at the beginning of the 1977 school year. He took WTC to three straight NJCAA National Tournament appearances, winning the crown in 1980 with a perfect, 37-0 record.

The following year, he became one of only a handful of black Division I head basketball coaches when he took over at Tulsa University. Keyed by four former WTC players and a transfer from Jefferson State (Ala.) JC who is now one of his assistants, Richardson won the National Invitation Tournament (NIT) championship in 1981.

In 13 years as a college basketball coach, Richardson has directed his teams to 12 post-season tournaments. It's laid the groundwork as he prepares to assault the famed Final Four.

"It's the same as the junior college tournament — this is just twice as big. As far as the games, the strategy, the three times we went in Snyder and the one we won prepared me for the NIT and the NIT prepared me for the NCAA. We were

Some DHS workers receive big bonuses

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Department of Human Services, facing a $550 million shortfall for the two-year budget period that ends in August 1991, awarded selected employees more than $923,000 in bonuses over the past seven months, an Austin newspaper reported.

The Austin American-Statesman reported in a copyright story today that the DHS bonuses amounted to far more than the 29 other state agencies that gave similar bonuses under a new state law. In all, the agencies have spent more than $1.7 million.

DHS Commissioner Ron Lindsey defended the bonuses but acknowledged the timing was poor in light of the department's budget problems. DHS officials confirmed Thursday they face a $550 million shortfall for the two-year budget period that ends Aug. 31, 1991.

The bonuses, Lindsey confirmed, were part of an administrative mistake in which DHS gave early raises last fall to hundreds of employees.

The raises totaled more than $1 million, although that figure included some of the bonuses, Lindsey said.

"If I had known the full budget situation, I would never have approved (the bonuses)," Lindsey said. "I know how it looks. I'm responsible. I made the decision."

Lindsey said he stopped giving bonuses when the DHS budget crisis exploded last month.

But records obtained by the Austin newspaper under the Texas Open Records Act revealed that DHS awarded bonuses to 934 employees between Sept. 1, 1989, and Monday.

The lump-sum bonuses were allowed for the first time under a new state law, designed as an incentive to hard-working state employees who had reached the top of their pay scale and were not eligible for other raises.

Under the law, only one bonus a year can be awarded to any classified employee. Supervisors must document the recipients' top-flight job performance.

Bonuses cannot exceed 6.8 percent of the employee's annual salary. At DHS, officials said, each bonus was 3.4 percent of the worker's salary.

"There are eight steps on the pay scale, and only those employees who are at the top step were eligible for the bonuses," said Tom Phillips, personnel director for DHS.

The bonuses are a "two-edged sword" for the 14,000-employee agency, according to Burton Raiford, the department's budget chief.

"If we don't give out bonuses, we take the chance that our hardest-working employees may leave the agency for better pay — and they are the ones that have the best potential to do that," he said.

"If we award them, then we have to explain how we could do that when we are so short of money," he said. "That's a tough question."

The bonuses, according to state records, ranged from $529 to $1,662.

Most of the DHS bonuses were handed out in October, November and December — but $12,600 was awarded this month.

AP analysis: Bush steers clear of Moscow

WASHINGTON (AP) — Most of the allies are supportive, but President Bush is getting it from left and right here at home over his gentle approach to the Soviet Union on Lithuania.

While the president has his congressional supporters — most notably Democratic House Speaker Thomas Foley — his critics are concerned that Bush's refusal to confront Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev could undercut Lithuania's chances of attaining independence.

The opportunity is unique. Lithuania and its sister republics of Latvia and Estonia were incorporated into the Soviet Union in 1940. This is the first real chance they have had to get away.

By all indications, Bush and others in the administration are sympathetic. They do not recognize the incorporation as being legal and they support independence in principle.

But they are not being very tough about it.

"Bush would sacrifice Lithuania," the conservative Washington Times said in a banner headline Thursday after a congressional delegation had visited Bush at the White House to complain about his policy.

Nor is the consternation on Capitol Hill confined to Republicans.

"He's decided to stick with Gorbachev," said Rep. Bill Sarpalius, D-Texas, part of the group that met with Bush.

"There's a genuine concern ... that the U.S. faces a choice of political survival of Gorbachev and survival of Lithuania," said Richard Durbin, D-Ill., the delegation leader.

The criticism cuts across the political spectrum. Liberal and conservative columnists are hammering away at Bush. Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., called on the administration to challenge the Soviet Union's claim on Lithuania in the International Court of Justice in The Hague, Netherlands.

Others are reluctant to criticize Bush.

"I don't criticize the president at this moment in recognizing that circumstances are very delicate, very serious," Foley said. "I think he should be given the benefit of the doubt as he deals with this."

Through it all, the president and his spokesmen have not wavered, though the weariness is beginning to show.

"We no longer find it beneficial to comment on every daily episode and contribute to what was an upward spiraling of the rhetoric," White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Wednesday. "We want to level off, if you will."

From the start, Bush and Secretary of State James A. Baker III have taken a consistent tack: the Soviets and the Lithuanians should settle their differences peacefully. If the Kremlin applies force it could backfire.

This is the policy Baker is conveying to Moscow through diplomatic channels. It is the same policy the administration is voicing in public.

Critics find it too soft, too solicitous of Gorbachev, too concerned that U.S.-Soviet relations could suffer if the administration put more starch into its public and private statements.

But Bush and Baker have concluded that a good relationship with Moscow under Gorbachev has produced dividends for the United States. Tensions have been reduced. The Soviets have agreed to pull tens of thousands of troops from Europe, along with tank divisions and other weapons.

Ouster of cadets draws fire from Congress

WASHINGTON (AP) — One semester away from graduation at MIT and a commission in the Navy's prestigious Nuclear Propulsion Program, Cadet Robert Bettiker looked across the desk at his superior officer and said: "I'm gay."

The officer, R.W. Sherer answered without hesitation.

"Well then, we will consider the date of disenrollment," he said.

That quickly, the military career of a cadet with nearly four years of government-financed education at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology was finished, a casualty of the Pentagon's policy of excluding homosexuals.

Now Bettiker's case, and another like his, have drawn congressional attention. A Pentagon move to require Bettiker and Harvard cadet David Carney to pay back their tuition drew a letter of protest from two dozen House members Thursday.

"We believe that to compel these men to repay this money would not only be fundamentally unfair; it would also reflect an appalling mean-spiritedness which has no place in the Navy," the lawmakers said in a letter drafted by Rep. Gerry Studds, D-Mass., an acknowledged homosexual.

The Navy is showing no signs of wavering.

Both Carney and Bettiker have been asked to sign one-page forms acknowledging their debt but have refused. For Carney, that translates into a $50,687 tab. For Bettiker, the bill comes to $38,612.

Carney, 23, graduated from Harvard last spring after the Navy covered all his tuition and some fees. He spent the past year studying at Oxford University in England.

Bettiker, 22, is to graduate from MIT this spring. The Navy stopped paying his tuition after the fall semester.

Both men say they are balking at repaying the Navy because they are not trying to avoid their five years of obligatory military service and want to become commissioned officers.

"In my view, the U.S. Navy broke its contract with me, not vice versa," Carney said in an interview.

Although Bettiker and Carney know one another and had the same commanding officer, the similar timing of their cases was coincidental, Bettiker said. Both told their ROTC superior that they had recently discovered their homosexuality. They said they had not concealed their circumstances from the ROTC and were not aware they were gay when they entered the service.

Last month Studds, in a letter also signed by 23 congressmen, complained about a similar policy move by the Army ROTC against James Holobaugh, 24, who attended Washington University in St. Louis. In the Holobaugh case, a preliminary board recommended he repay his tuition.

But in the Carney and Bettiker cases, the lower-level board called for no repayment. That recommendation was overruled by Navy Secretary H. Lawrence Garrett III, who routinely reviews such cases.

Navy spokesman Jim Turner declined to comment in detail on the Carney and Bettiker cases but provided a written explanation of the Pentagon's policy excluding homosexuals.

It said the Defense Department views homosexuality as "incompatible with military service," for reasons of morale, chain of command, discipline and securi-

Americans support Lithuania

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush may be reluctant to recognize Lithuania's new government, but customers at a colorful stand in Union Station's Main Hall are eager to wave the flag.

They're so eager that there's been a run on Lithuanian flags, patches, key chains and lapel pins at Alamo Flags, where manager Dante Payne's order book amounts to a weathervane of world events.

"People will come by and say, 'I heard about it on the news. Give me one.' They think freedom is great," Payne said.

In the past week, Payne has sold about 100 of his 4-by-6-inch flags at $3.99 each, and 25 of the demonstration-size 3-by-5-foot banners for $35.

"I have to order at least twice a week," Payne said from his stand in Washington's elegantly renovated main train station. "You can see we've almost sold out of patches. There's just one left."

Patches sell for $4. For Lithuania supporters who want to show the yellow, green and red colors more discreetly, key chains and lapel pins are priced at $3.99 each.

Payne said many of his customers are Americans with Lithuanian roots, others buy in bulk for demonstrations and the rest are mostly curious passers-by.

Dan Raber, a 17-year-old high school student from Kingsport, Tenn., falls into another category: the motivated collector.

"I collect flags from different countries," he said. "With all this going on and Lithuania becoming a brand-new nation, I thought it would be interesting to get a flag of theirs."

While he was at it, Raber picked up little flags from Estonia and Latvia in case Lithuania's Baltic neighbors follow it down the tricky path toward independence from the Soviet Union.

Some other Washington-based flag outlets reported no special increase in Lithuanian flag sales.

"I have had some calls, I wouldn't say dozens by any means," said Diane Wolter, a saleswoman for Betsy Ross Flag Girls Inc.

But she said political currents do affect the flag business.

"Since the Berlin Wall came down, there's been a lot of interest in Eastern Europe," she said. "When we had this flag-burning thing, that increased business tremendously."

The extra sales were to flag supporters, she hastened to add, not to people wanting to set the stars and stripes ablaze.

Passage of pollution bill appears on track

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate appears on track to approving a sweeping air pollution control bill next week after narrowly rejecting $500 million in aid to coal miners who could lose their jobs because of tougher environmental standards.

By a 50-49 vote Thursday, senators defeated a proposal that Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., called only a matter of "fairness ... and justice" because thousands of miners will be thrown out of work.

The majority heeded warnings from Senate leaders that the amendment would prompt a presidential veto of the overall bill.

The three-year, $500 million assistance program was considered to be the last major obstacle to Senate passage of the clean air bill. A vote on the legislation is scheduled for next Tuesday. A House version is in committee.

Working into the evening Thursday, the Senate agreed to a provision that would require the increased sale of a cleaner blend of gasoline by 1993 in cities facing the worst smog problems. The measure was approved by voice vote after attempts to reject it failed, 69-30.

Meanwhile, the House Energy and Commerce Committee late Thursday adopted a proposal in its clean air bill that also would require the use of a cleaner blend of gasoline by 1995 in the same cities, although rejecting a plan to broaden the requirement from nine to as many as 40 cities.

Thursday's vote on the Byrd amendment was as dramatic as the final tally would indicate.

Byrd, who wields considerable power and respect as a former Democratic leader and now chairman of the Appropriations Committee, had visited dozens of senators to plead for support.

He thought he had enough votes to win as the count began, although a number of senators had not yet made firm commitments to either side. Sen. Spark Matsunaga, D-Hawaii, a staunch Byrd ally who suffers from cancer, arrived for the vote in a wheelchair.

But the pressure was just as intense from the other side. The White House unleashed a final round of telephone calls to key senators, including some calls as the vote already was under way.

The Senate leaders of both parties — George Mitchell, D-Maine, and Bob Dole, R-Kan. — used every means of persuasion to line their senators up against the amendment. And the White House passed the word that President Bush would veto the bill if it contained the miner aid provision.

"I know how hard it is to say no to the president of the United States," Byrd said later. "Three of my votes took wings," he lamented, alluding to three senators who changed votes in the final minutes.

The administration had strongly opposed the coal miner aid package, arguing that it was too expensive and singled out one industry while workers in other fields also might lose their jobs but not have special benefits.

But Byrd urged colleagues to "hear the cries of people" and maintained that helping the miners was no different than the federal assistance given to victims of a hurricane or earthquake, who suffer because of no fault of their own.

The government estimates as many as 5,000 miners of high-sulfur coal, primarily in Appalachia and parts of the Midwest, will lose their jobs because of new controls on sulfur dioxide emissions required by Midwest electric power plants.

The utilities are likely to shift from using high-sulfur coal to a cleaner fuel such as low-sulfur Western coal or natural gas, causing some Eastern mines to close.

Under Byrd's proposal, miners of high-sulfur coal, who lose their jobs because utilities switched fuels, would have received up to 70 percent of their salaries for three years and additional funds if they participated in a retraining program.

The benefits would have been available as long as the miner was unemployed during the three years.

Two countries break barriers

AUSTIN (AP) — Economic opportunities are developing in Mexico so quickly they rival those in Eastern Europe, a participant in the eighth annual Border Governors' Conference said.

Nearly 1,000 government officials and businessmen from the two countries today conclude a two-day meeting to try to break down barriers and create new opportunities on both sides of the border.

The conference is co-chaired by Texas Gov. Bill Clements and Gov. Americo Villarreal Guerra of the Mexican state of Tamaulipas and sponsored by the Texas Association of Business.

Participants praised the new openness in the Mexican economy, which has produced fresh opportunities for American investors.

"I'm not so sure some of the East European countries that are getting so much of our attention have even moved so fast," said Don Hagans, chairman of the Texas-Mexico Authority and moderator of a discussion on trade and co-investment.

He cited Mexico's removal of trade obstacles such as a limit on the number of U.S. cars that can be imported.

But others warned health problems that still threaten border residents are could hurt development.

Jerry Keys, who moderated a discussion on health concerns, said shortages of drinking water and waste problems must be solved.

"One of the fundamental problems we have along the Texas border is that the water is crucial to the whole area, and yet the water that is available is being polluted by various contaminants," Keys said.

Robert Bernstein, commissioner of the Texas Department of Health, called for a binational commission to invest funds needed to address border health and sanitation problems.

Leaders from the two countries also stressed the need to forge stronger links between the two nations in trade, industry, agriculture, education, health and tourism.

Asbestos lawsuit...

Federal jury rules in favor of plaintiffs

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — A federal court jury has found four asbestos manufacturers and suppliers guilty of gross negligence and awarded more than $3.5 million in compensatory damages to nine of 10 class representatives in a class-action lawsuit.

The verdict was returned Thursday in a complex suit that will involve three phases, with the other two phases to be heard in federal court later this year.

"We based it strictly on the evidence that we had, not necessarily on our emotions," said jury foreman Ed Vogel Jr., 48, a maintenance supervisor at the Goodyear Chemical plant. "We didn't let our emotions get in the way. I'm going to say, from my part of it, we probably made some of the hardest decisions we've ever had to make in our lives."

The $3.5 million figure does not include punitive damages.

It will be up to U.S. District Judge Robert Parker of Tyler to apply the jury's multipliers to punitive damages, the total amount of damages awarded to the class representatives could total as much as $27 million.

The jury assigned a multiplier to each defendant, based on each company's degree of gross negligence.

Pittsburgh Corning Corp. was assigned the highest multiplier.

Lawyers with the law firm Umphrey, Swearingen, Eddins & Carver, who helped represent the plaintiffs, had argued that assessing punitive damages would establish a "corporate code of conduct."

The $3.5 million figure also is subject to reduction by the judge because some of the class representatives settled with other defendants who did not go to trial.

The issue of punitive damages presented the thorniest issue for the jury, Vogel said, but jurors spent most of their time deciding compensatory damages for the class representatives.

Vogel declined to comment on the jury's reason for finding against class representative Malcolm Brunet's estate and survivors.

The case is a consolidation of 3,031 asbestos personal injury cases in the Beaumont division dating from Jan. 1, 1985, to Feb. 1, 1989.

Only 2,366 plaintiffs remained in the case by the time the case went to trial on Feb. 5. The others settled before the trial or were severed from the case.

The trial is the nation's second consolidated class-action asbestos case. All of the plaintiffs worked at South County refineries, and many have died since their suits were filed.

The five-man, four-woman jury also found that Carey Canada Inc., Celotex Corp., Fibreboard Corp., and Pittsburgh Corning Corp. knew their asbestos insulation products were defective and unreasonably dangerous.

The jury did not consider the case of the fifth defendant, Asbestos Corp. Ltd., because it is a Canadian-based firm. The judge will decide that issue.

Actual damages for the remaining 2,356 plaintiffs will be addressed in the third phase of the trial, which is scheduled to begin in June.

The second phase will resolve how long workers were exposed to asbestos and the degree of exposure involved with each job.

Body found in trunk of car

CROCKETT, Texas (AP) — The body of a woman who had been missing for 12 days has been found in the trunk of a car pulled from the Trinity River near Crockett, Houston County authorities say.

Houston County Sheriff Claudie Kendrick said Thursday the body of Misty Eslick, 18, of Crockett, was found in the trunk of her car that was submerged in the Trinity River west of Crockett.

The woman had been missing since March 18 when she went to an all-night gasoline station to buy cigarettes.

Kendrick said the body was found inside the locked trunk. He said the keys were in the ignition and the car was in drive.

Ms. Eslick was a student at Angelina College in Lufkin.

Her body was taken to Houston late Thursday for an autopsy, Kendrick said.

"We have a suspect or two, but we don't have enough to make an arrest," Kendrick said. "We expect to make an arrest in a few days."

Authorities began searching the river after a Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation employee who was working on a bridge found a piece of a grill that had broken off the car. The man said he was certain that the piece came from a 1980 Oldsmobile and matched the car of the missing girl.

Kidney stones need proper analysis

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a heart patient. My first bypass surgery was in 1975. I'm now bothered with kidney stones, in spite of being on a proper diet. Can you recommend a diet that would eliminate the stones?

DEAR READER: Kidney stones vary in their constituents. About 80 percent are made of calcium oxalate, 5 percent of uric acid, 2 percent of cystine and the remainder of magnesium ammonium phosphate.

Calcium stones are common in several diseases, including sarcoidosis (an inflammation of lymph glands), hyperthyroidism, multiple myeloma (a form of blood cell cancer), too much dietary vitamin D, malignancies and primary hyperoxaluria (a kidney condition marked by excess excretion of oxalate).

Idiopathic hypercalcaemia (an hereditary condition characterized by high levels of calcium in the urine) is a cause of kidney stones in more than 50 percent of calcium stone-formers. Prevention consists of treatment for any underlying disease, high fluid intake (more than a quart of water a day, to dilute the calcium in the urine) and thiazide diuretics (water-eliminating pills that lower urine calcium).

Uric acid stones are related to gout and are preventable using anti-gout medicine, such as allopurinol or probenecid. In addition, the use of bicarbonate of soda pills changes the urine's acidity, making stone formation less likely.

Cystine stones can be prevented by a high fluid intake and bicarbonate of soda.

Magnesium ammonium phosphate stones are usually secondary to chronic urinary infection. Because the stones themselves act as a source of infection, they should be removed. Antibiotic therapy will usually prevent formation of new stones.

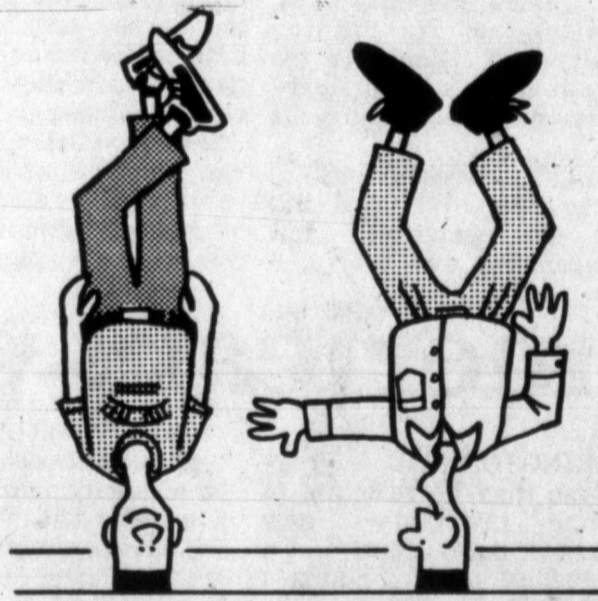

As you can see, the treatment and prevention of kidney stones depend on many factors. Diet is probably not an effective therapy, whereas a high fluid intake and certain medicines are.

Before advising you, your doctor must obtain one of your stones for analysis. This is easiest if, at the time you pass a stone, it is salvaged and later tested in the laboratory. Once the constituents of the stones are identified, therapy is fairly straightforward, as I mentioned above.

To give you additional information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Kidney Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Your Birthday

March 31, 1990

In the year ahead you are likely to put more emphasis than unusual on establishing material objectives. In your case, this may be wise, because it could substantially enrich your life.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Keep privileged information to yourself today, especially in matters that are pertinent to your career. If you talk too much, it could lead to your own undoing. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) A poor attitude will make responsibilities with which you have to contend today much tougher than they actually are. If you think positive, the opposite will be true. GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There is a fine line between friendship and business today that could work against you. Sometimes we can get a better deal from outsiders than we can from our pals.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Strive to think of yourself and make your own decisions today, because if you seek advice from associates, you might get conflicting opinions that will only confuse you more.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Do not make a big deal about it if you go out of your way to be of assistance to another today. Complaining about what you did will make the recipient sorry for asking for help.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Today if you get involved in something about which you know little, don't be afraid to admit it. You could do more harm if you lead others to believe you know what you're doing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's extremely important today that you do not play favorites where your friendships are concerned. Those who feel they are not being treated equally, could lose respect for you.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) We all have faults and it won't enhance your popularity today if you start dwelling on the shortcomings of your companions. In fact, behavior of this ilk could put a damper on everyone's day.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) In some cases you're likely to manage your resources rather skillfully today, but there could be others where you'll be extremely inept. Don't let your bad deals overshadow your good ones.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Try not to let yourself get put in the position today where others will have a greater influence over the direction you take than you will yourself. Avoid restraints.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Today you might have to deal with an individual who has caused you some difficulties in the past. If you are too influenced by old memories, you're not likely to handle things too well.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Companions will find you a pleasant person with whom to socialize today, but not necessarily a generous one. Do what you can to be equally attractive in both areas.
