Meeting 'very beneficial,' says Mayor...

City leaders discuss future at retreat

SWEETWATER — Providing traditional city services in the face of declining revenues and increasing federal regulations was the focus of a two-day Snyder city council retreat.

"I think this was very beneficial for the entire council," said Mayor Troy Williamson at the noon Sunday conclusion of the workshop and long-range planning session. "It's the first time that the whole council has been able to sit down uninterrupted and talk about goals."

Held at the Holiday Inn in Sweetwater, only councilman Joe Coronado was unable to attend. Saturday saw presentations on a wide scope of city problems and projects by city department heads, and Sunday morning was dedicated to review and implementation.

Sanitation services dominated most of the discussion on Sunday as Snyder, along with cities and towns throughout the nation, wrestle with waste disposal questions.

It was noted that increased federal regulations are coming at a time when available revenues are on a decline.

One area of concern is a wastewater treatment plant. Estimated to cost $3.6 million, the council expects to fund the project with a low-interest loan through the Texas Water Development Board. The board has advised the city that "sufficient funds will be available to consider your project during this funding year," according to a letter from C.R. Miertschin, P.M., engineering division director of the board. The project is expected to result in a rise of monthly sewage rates for city utility customers.

The council discussed a variety of options — including a rate tied to the number of water fixtures in a home in an attempt to project the amount of sewage put back into the system.

The council asked city staffers to do projections on how gradual increases over a period of time would impact persons on fixed income. Sensitive to fixed-income customers, the council also discussed a lower monthly minimum.

Another area that drew more discussion on Sunday was the landfill and Snyder's response to tighter federal regulations. City (see SNYDER, page 8)

Jaycee of the Year and Distinguished Service awards, and Engle received a special award for his services as district director. (Howard Bigham Photo)

Elida Garza, others honored during Jaycees banquet here

Elida Garza received the Distinguished Service Award, honoring the Jaycee who has shown outstanding leadership in the local chapter, during Saturday's annual Snyder Jaycees Banquet.

Larry Latham, past Texas Jaycees president, informed the group that Garza is "probably the first Texas woman to receive the Distinguished Service Award."

Garza was presented with the award, as well as Jaycee of the Year award, by immediate past president Joe Hernandez during the banquet, held at Reta's Cake Shop and Texas Barbecue.

Outstanding first year Jaycees were Tommy Tullis and Steve Parker while Ruben Trevino was honored as the most improved Jaycee. Rudy Garza, newly-elected chapter president and the husband of Elida, was recognized as heading up the top project of the year. Rudy Garza was also presented an award by Latham from the United States Jaycees for outstanding recruiting efforts.

State President Richard Hernandez presented the Past President Award to Joe Hernandez.

Other awards went to Danny Engle for his service as district director, McDonald's as the outstanding community leader, to Roger Sullenger as boss of the year and to KSNY Radio, Kmart, Snyder Daily News, Snyder Cablevision, the Gay 20's and the Our Lady of Guadalupe Church youth group for their efforts to benefit the Jaycee movement.

Receiving the outstanding community leader award from McDonald's was Barry Bourgeois.

New officers and board members were presented to the audience. They were, Rudy Garza, president; Joe Hernandez, state director and chairman of the board; Tommy Tullis, membership vice president; Jackie Hall, management vice president; Ruben Trevino, individual vice president; James Wallace, director; Shirley Barzosa, director; Sylvia Colvin, treasurer; Elida Garza, secretary; Lori Hernandez, community vice president; Sylvia Trevino, director; and Diana Molina, director.

Others present at the banquet included Sarena Wright, current Miss Snyder.

Ranch Breakfast planned Tuesday

The Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District's Scurry County Ranch Breakfast — an annual event — is set for 7 a.m. Tuesday at the Leroy Key Ranch west of Snyder.

Ezell-Key Grain Co. will provide the breakfast. Anyone interested is invited to attend. Activities should be over by 9:30 a.m.

Jerry Baird will head up the cooking crew. The menu will include sausage, bacon, eggs, gravy, hash browns, cowboy coffee and juice.

On the program will be Dr. John J. McGlone with the Department of Animal Science at Texas Tech University; Gary Walker, manager of the Sandyland Underground Water Conservation District; and Kent Mills, sales representative for Ezell-Key Grain Co.

Signs will be posted to help attendees find their way. Anyone wishing further information can contact Mike Squires at the Soil Conservation Office, 573-1268, or Mills at 573-9373.

4-year-old registration is scheduled this week

Registration for the Snyder ISD program for four-year-old children will be held Thursday through Thursday this week.

The program is a half-day, held at North, Central and Northeast elementary schools. In order to attend the program, the following state guidelines must be met:

1. The family qualifies for food stamps, or;
2. The family is eligible for free and reduced lunches, or;

3. The child is proficient in a language other than English.

Parents should bring their food stamp number or verification of their income when they come to register the child. They must also have a valid birth certificate and immunization record for the child.

Pre-registration will be held at Central and West on Tuesday, East and Northeast on Wednesday, and North and Stanfield on Thursday.

Davis is authorized to seek ROW for prison access road

Pct. 1 Commissioner Duaine Davis was authorized in a commissioner's court meeting today to negotiate for right of way for the state to create a farm-to-market road on the west side of the Price Daniel Unit.

Davis said the state needs .66 of an acre at the intersection of Camp Springs Rd. and the paved county road that runs along the west side of the prison.

He said the road, connecting U.S. 84 from south of the prison to northern Snyder, will curve at the intersection, rather coming to a square intersection.

The right of way negotiations will be with Mr. and Mrs. J.C. Collins, he said.

Other business in the 10 a.m. meeting included approval of a request by Noah Project director Linda Scalf to apply for a $12,288 grant from the criminal justice division of the governor's office.

Scalf said the money will be used in Scurry, Nolan, Mitchell, Kent, Fisher and Stonewall counties.

She said the program received another governmental grant of almost $13,000 last year and that, coupled with strong support from United Way and private donors in (see COMMISSIONERS, page 8)

Polls open 7 a.m. Tuesday to decide winners of runoffs

Polls open at 7 a.m. Tuesday in the statewide runoff elections, which include a battle locally for commissioner of Precinct 4.

Absentee voting concluded last Friday with 307 voters — 296 Democrat and 11 Republican — choosing that method of casting their ballots.

Jerry Gannaway and Jack Greene Sr., Democrats, will determine the Pct. 4 county commissioner's race. There is no Republican seeking the office.

Polls will be open from 7 a.m. until 7 p.m. for the runoff, which includes a hotly-contested race for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination between Ann Richards and Jim Mattox.

For Tuesday's elections, Republicans will vote at the West Fire Station on El Paso Ave.

For the Democrats, Precinct 11 has been consolidated with 12 and both will be held at the south side of the county coliseum. Likewise, 15 and 16 have been consolidated and will take place on the north side of the coliseum. Also, Precincts 8, 17, 18 and 19 have been consolidated at Towle Park Barn.

Other precinct boxes include No. 5, Fluvanna Community Center; No. 6, Union Community Center; No. 7, Knapp Community Center; No. 9, Ira Community Center; No. 10, Dunn Community Center; No. 13, Hermleigh Community Center; and No. 14, Northeast Community Center.

Graham gets 3rd place in Regional Bee

James Graham, son of Clifton Yocom, finished third out of 13 Saturday afternoon during the Regional Spelling Bee at Monterey High School in Lubbock.

For his third place winning efforts, the Snyder eighth grader received a Random House Dictionary. He also received a Participation Trophy which was presented to all students who competed in the Regional Bee.

Graham was accompanied by Bobbie Combest who received the Educational Excellence Award at last month's Chamber of Commerce banquet.

Graham earned the right to advance to the Regional Bee by winning the Scurry County Spelling Bee last month. In the 15th round he correctly spelled "lecturn" and "licit" to win the 15th annual County Bee.

Snyder youth, 10 killed in accident

A 10-year-old East Elementary School student was killed in a car-bicycle accident at 3:25 p.m. Saturday, 1.5 miles east of town on the Roby Hwy.

A Department of Public Safety trooper said Rachael Garcia, daughter of Frank and Rudie Garcia, had been going east on the Roby Hwy., waited for a west-bound vehicle to pass and then crossed in front of an eastbound 1989 Dodge Ram Charger driven by 29-year-old Melissa Tatom of Albany.

The youngster, who suffered head and internal injuries, was pronounced dead at the scene at 4:10 p.m. by Justice of the Peace Dan Callaway.

The DPS investigator said Rachael had been to her family's mailbox on the Roby Hwy. to check the mail and was attempting to re-cross the highway when she was hit.

He said a friend had accompanied her (see YOUTH, page 8)

In Brief

More bodies

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Investigators picked through the charred remains of a residential hotel, looking for more bodies as the death toll in the fire rose to six.

Searchers using dogs and heavy equipment continued sifting debris in the charred hulk of the 39-year-old Fontana Hotel today after finding the fifth and sixth bodies Sunday.

The number of guests unaccounted for after the fast-moving fire swept through the 102-room hotel Friday dropped to eight.

More than a score of federal, state, city and county agency officials began their search at the top and along the sides of the gutted building.

Body is ID'd

HOUSTON (AP) — Authorities used dental records to identify a decomposed nude body found in an abandoned apartment complex as that of a Texas Southern University student missing since Valentine's day.

The body, found by a vagrant, was identified Sunday as Kimberly Owens, 23, of Cary, N.C., authorities said. The complex where Ms. Owens' body was discovered Saturday evening is about a block from the TSU campus.

She apparently had been shot once in the head, but autopsy results are not yet complete, he said. She probably was killed a day or two after she disappeared, officials said.

Houston homicide Sgt. H.L. Mayer said Ms. Owens was wearing only socks. Her clothes were found in another apartment, he said.

Agreement ok'd

NEW YORK (AP) — PepsiCo Inc. and the Soviet Union are expected to sign an agreement to trade Pepsi-Cola for ships and vodka, according to a published report today.

The deal — valued at more than $3 billion — would be the largest between a U.S. corporation and the Soviet Union, The New York Times reported.

The agreement would make Pepsi-Cola much more available in the Soviet Union; while enabling PepsiCo for the first time to take out its profits not just in the form of Stolichnaya vodka, but in oceangoing freighters and tankers.

Since 1974, the Purchase, N.Y.-based company has shipped its soft-drink syrup to the Soviet Union, where it is made into cola and sold in bottles. The company took its profits out in the vodka, selling it through a third party in the United States.

Advancing Age No Handicap In Pursuit of Advanced Degree

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1990 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I can top both Danny and Patricia, the college drop-outs who in their middle years went back to college, picked up where they left off and finally graduated.

At age 60, determined to graduate from college, I went to school evenings and during the summer. Shortly before my 65th birthday, I received my college degree and teaching credentials. (I had six grandchildren at the time. Now I have nine.)

I taught kindergarten until I was forced to retire because of age requirements. I immediately went to work as a medical insurance clerk. I will be 80 on my next birthday and I'm already looking for places to work as a volunteer when I retire.

Last fall I took a course in sign language at our local university because I would very much enjoy working with hearing-impaired persons.

Abby, please continue to encourage older people to keep on learning. It's never too late.

MARGARET M. HILL,
VICTORIA, TEXAS

DEAR MARGARET: With your energy, ambition and charitable attitude, you will never be "over the hill." (Sorry, I couldn't resist it.) Congratulations, Margaret. Better to wear out than rust out.

DEAR ABBY: Although I missed the letter that inspired all the others concerning tall women and their attitude toward shorter men, I have read many letters since then and can't understand the animosity some tall women and short men feel toward each other.

I am an average-sized man and, at one time or another, I've been outrun, outlifted, outswum, outtalked and outsmarted by a member of the opposite sex. I'll admit that at the time, I was humiliated, but as I grew older and wiser, I became fascinated by what remarkable creatures women are, and I finally had to recognize that women should be treated as equals. I must admit that my relationships with women have vastly improved since I came to this realization.

I have always been physically attracted to women who were stronger, faster, smarter or taller than I. My most memorable sexual experience occurred after my wife beat me in a long-distance foot race! Please let exceptionally tall women know that there are small and average-height men who would be honored to be in their company.

5 FOOT 9 IN N.Y.

DEAR 5-9: Thanks for the reaffirmation. I recently had a letter from a 5-foot-7 man who had a crush on a 5-foot-11 co-worker, but he was reluctant to ask her out because he felt sure she would turn him down. Well, she asked him out, and it was instant shooting stars, Roman candles and love in bloom!

***

DEAR ABBY: I am making a scrapbook for my son. I have a box full of newspaper clippings and pictures from his high school days.

He and his wife were divorced eight years ago, and I am wondering if it would be proper to include the clippings and pictures of his wedding, honeymoon, etc.

He doesn't have anything to do with his ex-wife now, except dealings concerning their daughter.

WONDERING

DEAR WONDERING: How wise and considerate you are to "wonder." I suggest you ask your son how he feels about it.

***

DEAR ABBY: I couldn't feel very sorry for "Nobody's Valentine," the woman who complained because in the three years they'd been married, her husband had never given her anything for St. Valentine's Day.

I wonder what she gave him? Nothing, probably.

As a veteran wife of six years, I can give lessons on how a wife can get what she wants. It's just like making love: Do to him what you want him to do to you.

SOMEBODY'S VALENTINE

Response time said improved

HOUSTON (AP) — The city's strained emergency medical service needs more ambulances and paramedics to meet an increasing number of calls and solve lower response times, which surpassed 20 minutes in some areas last year, officials say.

Houston Fire Department statistics show that there are extreme disparities in average response times in different parts of the city. A response time of eight minutes or less is nationally recognized as critical for saving lives.

In 1989, Houston ambulances responded to about 48 percent of their calls within eight minutes, according to statistics obtained by the Houston Chronicle through the Texas Open Records Act.

Some residents in the far northeast and western sections waited 20 minutes or more on the average for emergency assistance last year. Generally, ambulances took much longer to reach their destinations in outlying areas than in the inner city.

The city's EMS has 44 ambulances and 172 paramedics to serve the city. Assistant Chief Dennis Holder, who heads the EMS, said the service has received no new ambulances or personnel in at least two years.

Claude Beasley, a paramedic and ambulance supervisor who has been with the EMS for 12 years, said he has often wished that ambulance crews had reached an accident or heart attack victim just a little sooner.

"When you've got somebody who is unconscious or in cardiac arrest, their prognosis is not very good if it takes you 15 minutes to get there and then even more time to get to a hospital," Beasley said.

"There is no doubt that with more units and more paramedics the people on the streets would get quicker and better treatment."

Beasley said ambulances are distributed in a way that concentrates the greatest number in areas that generate the most calls for service.

The city's 27 advanced life support ambulances responded to emergencies, on average, in 9.7 minutes during the first six months of 1989 and 8.3 minutes in the second half of the year.

For the 17 basic life support ambulances, the average response time was 11.6 minutes during the first six months of 1989 and 10 minutes during the latter half of the year.

Benefit urges fans to message Congress

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Farm Aid IV mixed fund raising with Motley Crue's drummer injured

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Drummer Tommy Lee of the flamboyant heavy metal rock group Motley Crue suffered a mild concussion when he fell while swinging down a rope from on-stage scaffolding during a concert, authorities said.

The heavily tattooed Lee, who is married to actress Heather Locklear, was released Sunday from Yale-New Haven Hospital.

Hospital spokesman Tom Urtz said that he did not know how the 26-year-old Lee fell except that the rappelling stunt "was part of the routine" at the concert Saturday.

Motley Crue is scheduled to perform Tuesday in Binghamton, N.Y. Before launching its tour, the band pledged that even though all members had undergone drug rehabilitation, its concerts would be just as raucous as in the past.

"We don't just play rock 'n' roll, we live it," bassist Nikki Sixx was quoted as saying in People magazine earlier this year.

Expert gives pointers

MACON, Ga. (AP) — Pool expert "Fast Eddie" Parker, who claims a world record for pocketing 22 balls in one shot, doesn't mind passing on his pool-playing tips now that his hustling days are over.

Parker, 58, gave a few pointers to the crowd at Persnickety's Grill and Night Club in this central Georgia city Saturday night.

"We're old guys, we've had our day," Parker said. "Now it's time for the young guys to take over."

political lobbying in a 14-hour concert on behalf of the American family farmer. A sellout crowd of about 45,000 people at the Hoosier Dome heard more than 60 musicians — including Elton John, Bonnie Raitt, Jackson Browne and the band Crosby, Stills and Nash — perform in the Saturday night show.

"It would be nice if there wasn't a need for Farm Aid. It would be nice if our government's policies reflected a concern for families and for farming. There's all kinds of things in this world that would be nice. We have to fight to make this government responsive to our needs," Browne said.

Donations for the fourth Farm Aid concert were being tallied Sunday, and final figures were not scheduled to be released until today, said Farm Aid spokeswoman Linda Lewi. As of late Saturday, $1.3 million had been raised, she said.

The concert came two weeks before the nation observes the 20th anniversary of Earth Day, and Willie Nelson and other Farm Aid leaders took the opportunity to announce the forging of a coalition with farmers, environmentalists and consumers to work toward less use of pesticides and other chemicals in food production and more support for organic farming.

Postcards were distributed to concertgoers calling on Congress to pass a 1990 farm bill that will help family farmers use fewer chemicals and practice environmentally safe farming methods and to provide a pricing structure that covers the cost of food production.

Rock star John Mellencamp, who helped organize the event, indicated in an interview that federal farm policy has sacrificed the welfare of the independent farmer to promote corporate agriculture concerns.

"I'm not giving up. The face of this nation changes by the men that we admire, right, and I think that we haven't felt the backlash of the last eight years yet. I think the '90s will reflect that," Mellencamp said.

Legislators say Houston schools have to change

HOUSTON (AP) — Several state legislators are seeking changes in the city's huge school district, saying it is out of touch with parents and taxpayers.
 One proposed change calls for dividing the Houston Independent School District into smaller districts that would be more manageable. Another includes the creation of parent councils with extensive policy-making powers.
 Both plans have been outlined by a diverse coalition of Houston legislators. And although neither is expected to get serious consideration during this special Legislative session, the underlying message is hard to mistake.
 "The bottom line is, the system is broken," said Rep. Ron Wilson, a Houston Democrat.
 "We can't accept the way it is," said Rep. Roman Martinez, also a Houston Democrat.
 "We just feel like it's time to make a change," said Republican Rep. Brad Wright.
 The legislators see HISD as a huge, unwieldy district that cannot be managed effectively by one person. This year, HISD has 233 schools and 191,000 students, mostly minority and poor.
 The school system, the fifth largest in the nation, has grown out of touch with parents and taxpayers, the legislators said.
 Martinez blames HISD Superintendent Joan Raymond for an authoritarian management style that stifles true decentralization, which means shifting power to the schools, the teachers and the parents.
 "In my work with HISD, they thrive on closeness," Martinez said. "It's to the point of intimidation, where Joan Raymond puts out the word and it scares everybody into not wanting to do anything because they are worried about her coming down and bucking down."
 Ms. Raymond said she invites the legislators to sit down with her and discuss their concerns.

which she believes are perceptions not based on reality.
 In her 3½ years in the district, she said, she has been transferring more and more power to school principals and to district superintendents who oversee 14 geographical areas in the 312-square-mile system.
 The criticism that the school district is closed and uncaring comes as nothing new to HISD trustees.
 "We clearly hear that message, and you have people on the board who are dedicated to addressing it," said new trustee Rod Paige.
 Paige heads the task force that has begun work to restructure HISD to make it more accountable and open. Ms. Raymond said she heartily supports the move.
 Rep. Paul Colbert, vice chairman of the House Public Education Committee, said he sympathizes with his colleagues' frustrations but doesn't think the issues they raise are matters to be handled legislatively.
 Colbert, D-Houston, said he does not believe breaking up the district will solve the problem since the resulting districts would still be relatively large.

certainly contest for a part-score. The redouble by East described a good hand, particularly after an original pass. As the bidding proceeded, it was tempting for East to raise to three hearts. He decided instead to defend against three diamonds because he thought correctly that his diamond king was a wasted asset.

On the opening lead, declarer rose with dummy's heart king. East, Ron Rubin, won the ace. Sure that his partner had led from the jack (if South held that card he would have played low from dummy), he underled the queen and West won the trick. West, Michael Becker, knew why his partner had put him back on lead, so he played a low spade. Declarer South had little choice but to play low from dummy. East won the queen and switched to a club. South played low from his hand; West won the club king and quickly cashed the spade ace. So poor South was set one trick before he even came on lead.

This was a small pickup for the Rubin-Becker team, since at the other table, with less precise defense, three diamonds was allowed to make.

Teachers told racism has to be fought

DALLAS (AP) — One of the nation's leading Hispanic educators says teachers should have more freedom to develop diverse educational methods.

"In the teaching profession, there is no incentive, there are no rewards for growing and developing," said Arturo Madrid. "There are rewards for meeting some requirements... but not for being different or innovative or experimental."

The president of the Tomas Rivera Center in Claremont, Calif., Madrid spoke Saturday to about 200 educators attending the National Education Association conference in Dallas.

Madrid said teachers should have more ability to design their own educational policies. In return, he said, teachers must use that freedom to help students who deviate from the norm in their attitudes and learning techniques.

He also said educators should lead the fight against institutionalized racism, saying dramatic changes must occur in the educational work force.

WTC 'pokes ride to win

BIG SPRING — Western Texas College racked up another rodeo win with its 285 point performance at the Howard College event here.

The nearest competition for the Westerners was Odessa College's 235.

Vernon Regional Junior College captured first place among the women's teams entered with 200 points followed by Howard's 120.

Bullriders from WTC captured three of the top five spots in Sunday's short-go.

Darrin Cook took first for Western Texas with a 72 in the finals. That combined with his 77 in an earlier performance gave the cowboy a 149 total to win the event.

Michael Gafney's 140 score came from two 70's for third place and Buddy Reed finished in fifth for WTC after Sunday's 69 gave him a 136 on two-head in the event.

Troy Cattoor claimed third in bareback riding with a 69 score in the short-go on a horse named Pelican.

Cattoor held a 67 from Thursday going into Sunday's round to give him 136.

The WTC rodeo team will be in Hobbs, N.M. for the New Mexico Junior College event Thursday through Sunday and will host their own NIRA rodeo April 19-22.

Faldo claims Masters

Floyd blows 4-shot lead on final six holes

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — When golf's renowned front-runner flopped, Nick Faldo pounced.

Raymond Floyd blew a 4-shot lead on the final six holes of the 54th Masters on Sunday, allowing Faldo to become only the second man to win this storied event two years in a row.

The Englishman did it in similar fashion to last year's victory, winning on the second hole of a sudden-death playoff when Floyd's approach found the pond guarding the 11th green.

"It's the most devastating thing that's happened to me in my career," the distraught Floyd said. "I've had a lot of losses, but never like this. At this stage of your career, how many chances are you going to get?"

"When you have a guy that you know is a great front-runner, it sets your course," said Faldo, who won on the second hole of a playoff with Scott Hoch last year. "You've got to play positive-aggressive."

"Raymond's not the most fun person to chase," Lanny Wadkins said earlier in the day after finishing with a 68 and a third-place tie at 283 with John Huston, who shot 75 after starting the day two shots behind Floyd.

"He's an awful good front-runner. He has a lot of determination, lot of guts. He just doesn't want to turn loose. I'll be surprised if anything funny happens."

It did. The two finished regulation with 10-under-par 278 totals — a closing 69 for Faldo, 72 for Floyd.

Both had pars on the first extra hole, although Faldo had to come out of a bunker to save his. Both had excellent drives on No. 11 — Floyd 275 yards to the right of center, Faldo 300 yards to the left of center.

When Floyd's second shot found water, Faldo knew he just had to get it comfortably on the green.

He did. Faldo stopped it 18 feet from the pin, Floyd, lying 3, took his drop 45 yards from the hole.

"I've got to hole it for par," Floyd said. "The chances aren't good."

He didn't. Faldo then lagged his putt within a foot and tapped in for the par that sewed up the third major title of his career, the $225,000 first prize and the green jacket that goes to the winner.

He had beaten Hoch for his first

Masters title after Hoch missed a short birdie putt on the first extra hole. Floyd failed on a 15-footer on the first playoff hole.

Faldo thus continued the European domination at Augusta — six of the last 11 titles and three in a row have gone overseas. Sandy Lyle of Scotland won the 1989 Masters.

Floyd realized he may have cost himself a second Masters title by getting out of character. He started playing safe, hoping to par in for the victory that would make him, at 47, the oldest Masters winner in history.

Jack Nicklaus won this title for the sixth time in 1986, when he was 46. Nicklaus also was the only back-to-back winner, in 1965 and '66.

It would have made Floyd the first player with a major championship in four decades — he won PGA crowns in 1969 and 1982, the Masters in 1976 and the U.S. Open in 1986.

Floyd's conservative play on the back side of the 6,905-yard Augusta National course was the opening Faldo needed.

Nicklaus, a 50-year-old grandfather, had hopes of winning this crown for the seventh time when he started the day five shots behind Floyd.

Those hopes were drained by a round that included four bogeys on the back side, resulting in a 74-285.

Nicklaus finished sixth, one shot behind Fred Couples, who closed with a 69.

"Of course I'm disappointed," Nicklaus said. "At age 50, I'm not going to get that many chances to win the Masters."

Floyd doesn't figure to have many either, but Faldo does.

The 32-year-old Englishman gave up team sports for golf when he was a child after watching Nicklaus win a Masters on television.

Next year, he'll be trying for three straight, something not even the Golden Bear has achieved.

SHS girls maintain 2nd place standing

Peru's presidential election...
Candidate captures voters' sympathies

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Celebrated novelist Mario Vargas Llosa won the most votes in Peru's presidential elections, but a politically independent agronomist who surged from behind has forced a runoff, unofficial returns showed today.

This fragile democracy is wracked by economic crisis and the 10-year-old insurgency by the Maoist-inspired Shining Path, which staged attacks during Sunday's voting and in preceding weeks in an effort to thwart the election.

Soldiers armed with automatic weapons protected polling stations, several of which were attacked Sunday by guerrillas hurling sticks of dynamite. Police reported no injuries in those attacks and millions of voters turned out to vote for a president and new congress.

Unofficial returns early today showed Vargas Llosa, a 54-year-old advocate of free market reforms and economic shock therapy, leading with 33.9 percent of the vote — far short of the 50 percent required to avoid a runoff.

Alberto Fujimori, the 51-year-old son of Japanese immigrants, garnered 29 percent, pushing aside the candidate of the center-left governing party, Luis Alva Castro, who a few weeks ago held a solid second in the polls.

Fujimori, a former university rector, has in his shoe-string campaign stressed "honor, technology and work," qualities many associate with his Japanese ancestry. But he never provided a detailed plan of government.

He is one of about 100,000 people of Japanese descent in the country and many voters said they thought he could attract substantial Japanese investment to this country where 70 percent of people are underemployed or unemployed.

Independent pollsters gave Fujimori a better-than-even chance of defeating Vargas Llosa in the second round of voting, expected in late May or early June. The new president will be inaugurated on July 28.

The unofficial results showed Alva Castro to have won 16.4 percent of the vote. Six other presidential candidates split the remaining vote.

Official results were expected to take up to 20 days, as many polling stations were in remote villages. Voting is mandatory for those 18 and older.

Guerrillas staged attacks throughout the country on Sunday, but most of the country's 9.8 million registered voters appeared to ignore rebel threats for death for those casting ballots.

In recent weeks, the guerrillas have assassinated six congressional candidates and killed or wounded dozens of people in cent weeks, aiming to disrupt the election.

At least 28 people were killed and 44 wounded in weekend attacks, including 17 peasants massacred by rebels in Santo Tomas de Pata, a village near Ayacucho. Also, two rebels died when a dynamite charge blew up as they placed it on a highway bridge 100 miles east of Lima. A third was seriously injured.

The highest absentee ratio was registered in the Ayacucho, a Shining Path stronghold 235 miles southeast of Lima in the Andean highlands, where 38 percent of voters stayed away.

Three quarters of the votes cast in Ayacucho were blank or null, compared to about 10 percent nationwide, according to the respected polling firm Datum. Repression by the military is particularly severe in the region, and human rights violations are frequent.

Vargas Llosa's campaign often had the aspect of a crusade as he condemned the "collectivist" programs of President Alan Garcia and leftist candidates.

Many Peruvians blame Garcia, who is barred by the constitution from serving consecutive five-year terms, for the severe economic crisis and growing political violence tearing apart this country of 22 million.

They point, in particular, to his attempt to nationalize the country's banks after discouraging foreign investment by dictating his own terms for repaying outstanding loans.

Inflation is running at more than 2,000 percent annually and more than 18,000 people, most of them civilians, have been killed in 10 years of violence between the Shining Path and government security forces.

Vargas Llosa has repeatedly said he put aside his writing to help his country. But some of his former backers were turned off by the lavish campaign waged by the novelist's center-right Democratic Front coalition.

Appearing together in a downtown hotel, Vargas Llosa and Fujimori applauded the massive voter turnout, an apparent rejection of Garcia's governing Aprista Party.

Vargas Llosa invited Fujimori to join him in "frank conversation" to discuss a possible accord to avoid a second round. But Fujimori said he would not step aside.

"There has been in this first round two proposals for change," Fujimori said. "I believe a second round is necessary to debate our proposals. The verdict should be the public's."

Sunday's vote indicated the next president will face a divided congress. No party gained a working majority among the 60 senators and 180 representatives.

Places in the News

PERU
 Peru has a long history of involvement with Panama and the Panamanian Defense Force. Most of the PDF's leaders — including Manuel Noriega — were trained at a Peruvian military academy. Peru has given political asylum to 15 top PDF officers and their families.
 However, while Peru has loudly condemned the U.S. invasion of Panama, it has agreed to join with the United States in a major new anti-cocaine effort.
 Perhaps 60 percent of the world's coca leaf production comes from Peru's Huallaga River Valley. The government of President Alan Garcia wants U.S. help in subsidizing farmers to convert from coca to other crops. It is even willing to help U.S. forces try to stop the flow of coca base from the valley into Colombia, where it is processed into cocaine.

Peru's situation is complicated by its ongoing battle with two separate guerrilla organizations: the Maoist Shining Path, one of the world's most violent guerrilla organizations; and the Marxist Tupac Amaru Revolutionary Movement, which has close ties to Cuba.

The Shining Path, headquartered in the Huallaga River Valley, receives support from Colombian cocaine barons in exchange for helping them transport cocaine base from the valley. Despite the dangerous situation in the valley, Peru's government has entered into a 30-year deal with Mobil Oil to begin widespread oil and gas exploration there. Geologists believe the area could house major oil and gas reserves.

Competitor's bus shot in Texas...

Greyhound sues striking union

DALLAS (AP) — Greyhound Lines Inc. today said it filed a $30 million lawsuit accusing its striking bus drivers' union of violating federal racketeering laws by promoting violence.

There have been more than 30 shootings at buses and Greyhound facilities since the strike began March 2, the most recent the shooting of a competing company's bus near Fort Worth on Sunday. No one was injured in that incident.

Greyhound filed the lawsuit in Jacksonville, Fla., where seven passengers were wounded March 11 in a sniper attack. The lawsuit alleges picketing drivers bragged about the shooting and threatened drivers and passengers "You could be next."

"By coordinated criminal and extortionate means, the defendants have campaigned to cripple Greyhound financially in order to obtain what they cannot achieve through legal strike and labor activities," the lawsuit said.

The suit was filed today in U.S. District Court against the International Amalgamated Transit Union, the Amalgamated Council of Greyhound Local Union, two southeastern locals and 20 union officers and members.

Beside the damages, the company asks the court to appoint receivers for the two locals, based in Atlanta and Charlotte, N.C.

Union spokesmen in Washington said they would have no immediate comment on the lawsuit.

The company has said it won't negotiate with the strikers until a week passes without strike-related violence.

Sunday evening, two bullets struck an Arrow Trailways bus on a highway near downtown Fort Worth. The bus was carrying 11 passengers and the driver from San Angelo to Dallas, officials said. No injuries were reported.

Greyhound and Arrow have no business affiliation on that route, Greyhound said.

Spokeswoman Liz Hale said, however, that police notified Greyhound of the shooting. "People hear bus, they think Greyhound. Sometimes that's not the way it is."

Arrow Trailways' drivers are not on strike, said Greyhound spokesman Kevin Fry, in Dallas.

One bullet struck the passenger door near the front of the bus and another hit just behind the door. Both hit about six feet above the ground, Fort Worth police said.

"It sounds like the metal or glass stopped one from penetrating or it would have hit the driver in the head," Fort Worth Police Sgt. Jon Grady said.

There are no suspects in the incident, Grady said. Police did not say immediately what kind of weapon was fired.

The driver told police he heard two shots as he was driving onto a highway south of downtown. He pulled off less than a mile later to call authorities, Grady said.

Killeen-based Arrow Trailways belongs to an association of bus companies that uses the Trailways name, but is not connected to Greyhound Lines Inc., which purchased a large Trailways franchisee in 1987 and still carries the Trailways name on some of its buses.

In Washington Sunday, a Greyhound replacement driver was charged with carrying a dangerous weapon after he brandished a rifle during a confrontation with striking bus workers.

Also, a Boston-bound Greyhound bus rear-ended a Jeep Sunday afternoon

Snyder city council workshop

Manager John Gayle said the city has been contacted by area communities about becoming a regional landfill.

It was noted during the two-day retreat that existing landfill costs are currently $119,300 and providing a regional landfill would add an additional $487,000. Trash would be expected to increase from an average of 37 tons to 125 tons a day.

Should this happen, the city would have to determine if it is interested only in disposal or also in collection. Regardless, the city will likely soon begin some separation of refuse at the landfill site to conserve available space.

Gayle said one possible recommendation is a "tire shredder." The smaller pieces of rubber increase options — either a corresponding industry or collection point for someone using the product in industry. Another item would be a "chipper" for trees limbs. Fees for special disposal such as trees and limbs would be likely.

Gayle said one consideration of becoming a regional landfill would be using up available space in the present landfill, necessitating purchase of additional land for expansion.

Gayle said it would be his thinking to stay out of the collection business, and always look at the cost-benefit of handling refuse disposal for non-city customers.

Gayle also reminded that no decisions should be made until final federal rules and regulations are published and then it would be 18 months before they

Accidental gunshot

An 18-year-old man was treated at Cogdell Memorial Hospital Saturday night for an accidental gunshot wound to his right hand.

A sheriff's deputy said Frank Morin of Rt. 3 accidentally discharged a .22-caliber Derringer into his right palm about 5 p.m. Saturday at the home of Lupe Morin two miles north of Union.

Morin was treated at the Snyder hospital and then transferred to Scenic Mountain Medical Center in Big Spring to be treated by a specialist, a hospital spokesman said.

Grass fire

Firemen worked for about 30 minutes to extinguish a grass fire west of the city at 37th St. and Farm-to-Market 1611 Sunday afternoon.

They were occupied with the fire, the cause of which was not known, from 1:06 to 1:30 p.m. on property owned by Frank Becerra.

Wrecks worked

A 1983 GMC pickup driven by Jason Summers of Rt. 1 was in collision with a 1979 Ford pickup driven by Dessie Johnson of 1002 31st St. at 10:59 p.m. Saturday in the 3800 Block of College Ave.

A parked 1987 Ford pickup owned by Mel Reed of 2207 43rd St. was hit by an unknown vehicle in an incident discovered at 1:28 p.m. Saturday in the Lawrence IGA parking lot.

Thefts noted

Police are investigating two weekend theft reports, one from a woman whose purse was stolen from a parked vehicle in the 300 Block of 33rd St.

Pat Sterling told officers at 10:12 p.m. Saturday that the purse had been taken.

Steve Sullenger reported at 1:10 a.m. Sunday that a bed web had been stolen from his 1969 Ford pickup.

According to British author Norman Douglas, "You can tell the ideals of a nation by its advertisements."

must be implemented.

Considered high on the list of priorities for the city is a solids contact clarifier, projected at $1,335,766, and replacing underground fuel tanks, which is estimated at $50,000. Both have been unofficially designated with a "I" priority, as has the wastewater treatment plant.

The council also discussed the aging city water lines and the need for a systematic program of replacement — a "II" rating on the informal system of priority. It is estimated that water line loss amounts to 19.75 percent. Councilman Jackie Greene suggested that the city try to take the peaks and valleys out of its capital expenditure program by long-term planning.

Other items on the city's priority list include a bulk oil storage and delivery system, a "III", and a number of items listed as "IV," including two dump trucks, a street broom, a pneumatic roller, a sanitation truck, sanitation boxes, a pickup truck and a boring machine.

In addition to water line replacements, the city next year is looking at raising the elevation of two overhead storage tanks in an effort to improve pressure. This project is expected to cost $302,000, which would include raising towers at 4th St. and College Ave. and at 24th St. and Ave. B from 90 to 121 feet and having them painted. City officials anticipate a savings of $15,000-$20,000, using current electrical rates, and 200,000 gallons of additional elevated storage volume available to the distribution system at system pressure.

Councilmen talked briefly about the need for a variable pump, estimated at $283,346, to replace three existing pumps. It has been noted that the suction headers for the existing pumps have a high potential of failure. A new variable pump would allow the city to replace the suction header without loss of pumping capacity.

Councilman Paul Zeck suggested the city work more closely with other governmental agencies — especially the county — to find ways to share services and equipment.

Annexation was a brief topic before councilmen on Saturday. The possible annexation of areas both west of the city along the Lamesa Hwy. and east of the city out past the traffic circle were discussed. However, it was determined that annexation would possibly meet with strong resistance and that it would not be cost effective. The board noted that by present valuation, .3594 per $100, the city could expect to generate only $6,350 from annexation of properties west and $4,900 from annexation of properties to the east.

Youth

panied her on a bicycle and had turned onto Rt. 2 road ahead of her when the accident happened.

Services for the youngster were to be at 4 p.m. today at the First Baptist Church in Rotan with the Rev. Rusty Dickerson, pastor of Trinity United Methodist Church here, to officiate.

Burial was to be in Belvieu Cemetery at Rotan by Weathersbee Funeral Home there.

Rachael's mother is director of Rainbow School day care center at Trinity Methodist, which was closed today in observance of the services. Her father operates Garcia Tire Service at 801 25th St.

She was born in Snyder and was in the fourth grade at East Elementary, where she played girls' softball. She also played the piano.

Survivors in addition to her parents include a brother, Clinton; paternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Garcia of Rotan; maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Clements of Rotan; maternal great-grandmother, Mrs. Hester Clements of Rotan; five uncles and four aunts.

Captain reportedly left ship

LYSEKIL, Sweden (AP) — The captain of the ferry that became a fiery deathtrap during a North Sea voyage denied improper behavior today as reports surfaced he and his officers abandoned ship as rescue efforts got under way.

Police estimated about 150 people were killed in the suspicious blaze, which broke out on the 20-year-old Scandinavia Star before dawn Saturday as it headed to Denmark from Norway.

District police chief Roar Onso said a commission of officials from Sweden, Norway and Denmark would investigate the disaster, parallel to the police investigation focusing on suspicions of arson.

"We are working on the assumption that the fire was arranged," said Norwegian criminal police chief Magnar Auskrust in Oslo. "In that case, it is a real disaster, caused by one or several persons."

Captain Hugo Larsen was on the bridge of the 10,500-ton ferry as the smoldering ship was towed into harbor at dusk on Saturday. Fire officials said he left the ship before all survivors were evacuated, and returned later.

Fire inspector Ingvar Brynfors, who was among the first rescuers to reach the ship, said four people, two passengers and two Portuguese crewmen, were found alive on the ship after the captain left.

White is AIDS victim

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Ryan White, who put a youthful face on AIDS and the fears and discrimination its victims encounter, was recalled as a young man who "made a difference" after losing a 5½-year struggle with the disease.

"He was the boy next door who first showed a stunned nation that no one is safe from the risk of AIDS," said Dr. Martin B. Kleiman, White's physician throughout his illness. "He had no bitterness.

"With an honest simplicity, his was the voice that many, if not most, first heard, even though his was not the first voice."

White, 18, died shortly after 7 a.m. Sunday of lung congestion from an AIDS-related respiratory infection. He had been in critical condition on a ventilator at Riley Hospital for Children since March 29.

"At the end, his family and a few of the others who loved him were close at his side," said Kleiman. "He never regained consciousness, and I am confident that he suffered no pain at the end."

White's death saddened a nation that had followed his battle with the illness since 1985, when he was barred from a public school system because of fears of the disease.

His mother, Jeanne, and his 16-year-old sister, Andrea, had kept a bedside vigil, joined at times by singer Elton John and the Rev. Jesse Jackson. Singer Michael Jackson arrived in Indiana Sunday to offer condolences to the family.

His schoolmates at Hamilton Heights High School in Arcadia were shocked to learn of White's death.

"I hoped they could find a cure before it was over," said freshman Aaron Gilmore, 15. "He was aware of what could happen. But I remember him saying that he's going to live for five years, until they find a cure. And if they didn't, he'd live for five more, and keep going until they find a cure."

John, who stayed at the hospital with the Whites nearly a week, dedicated the song "Candle in the Wind" to White during the Farm Aid IV concert Saturday night at the Hoosier Dome, about a mile from the hospital.

"This one's for Ryan," John said to the cheers of 45,000 fans at the concert to raise funds for financially troubled farmers.

President Bush, who last week planted a tree in White's honor in downtown Indianapolis, said he and first lady Barbara were "deeply saddened" by White's death.

"Ryan's death reaffirms that we as a people must pledge to continue the fight, his fight, against this dreaded disease," Bush said.

White, born Dec. 16, 1971, in Kokomo, was 13 when he was diagnosed with AIDS in December 1984. He had contracted acquired immune deficiency syndrome through a blood-clotting agent used to treat his hemophilia.

In 1985, White was barred from Western Middle School near Kokomo after school officials and parents rejected health authorities' assurances that AIDS cannot be spread through casual contact.

After months of school board battles and court hearings, White won the right to attend school. But pressures on his family later drove the Whites to the town of Cicero, and he enrolled at Hamilton Heights High School in nearby Arcadia.

In his new home, townspeople and fellow students rallied around him and befriended him.

White became a national spokesman for children with AIDS, appearing at congressional hearings and fund-raisers, and the story of his life was told in a 1989 made-for-TV movie.

Funeral services were scheduled for Wednesday, but arrangements were incomplete.

EDITOR'S NOTE — Contributions to the Ryan White Fund for the Care of Childhood Infections may be sent to the Indiana University Foundation in care of Indiana University Hospital in Indianapolis. Cards to the family can be sent to P.O. Box 40, Noblesville, Ind. 46060.

Single vote says town will be 'wet'

COVINGTON, Texas (AP) — Political pundits who like to point out what a difference one vote can make can now use this Texas community as an example.

Residents voted 51-50 on Saturday to allow the sales of package beer and wine in an election that drew more ballots than any in the town's history. Only three registered voters did not participate.

"There's one person in that 51 who was actually the person that carried it," Mayor Jim Clinkscales said.

But he added that all 51 who voted in favor of taking the town "wet" could truthfully brag that their vote was the deciding factor.

And those three who did not vote are bound to be badgered a bit by voters from the losing side, Clinkscales said.

"I know one of those who didn't vote," Clinkscales said. "And it wouldn't be too hard to narrow it down to find out the others. I've never seen an election this close."

It was a harrowing experience for Covington's election judge, Willeta McCall.

"I'm a nervous wreck," she said afterward. "This is the first wet-dry election we have ever had in the city of Covington. We counted the ballots several times to make sure our count was right. Opposition to beer and wine sales at the town's two grocery stores came primarily from members of the town's three churches — the First Methodist Church, First Baptist Church and the Church of Christ.

Those arguing in favor of going wet tried to convince neighbors already struggling under hefty sewer tax bills that liquor and beer sales would provide badly needed revenue for the town of 282 people that was founded before the Civil War.

The city, which has only two paid employees now takes in only about $5,100 annually from its 1 percent sales tax. But the fire department is staffed by volunteers and no police force is needed — possibly because three Fort Worth area policemen and two Hill County deputies live in or near Covington, which is about 30 miles south of Fort Worth.

"I really didn't take much of a stand on it," said Clinkscales, who refused to divulge which way he voted. "But I will say I'm going to be glad to see more tax coming in from it."

"A lot of people said this is going to bring us heavier traffic and people throwing trash in our town. But there's already a place that sells beer a half-mile west of our town now, and people drive through here and toss down trash and we don't get any revenue from it."

Pat Hargrove, whose family owns Mrs. H's convenience store, said a member of his family was going Monday to Austin to apply for a beer-and-wine license.

All that remains for the town to be officially wet is for the vote to be canvassed by the Hill County commissioners today.

Bobby Applegate, who owns the store that sells beer just outside of town and may build a new one in town, says most beer-buying customers in Covington probably won't be residents of the town.

Applegate said many of those who come to his store now to buy beer drive long distances from other towns — including some places where beer and wine sales are allowed. He said those residents feel social pressure to appear to be a teetotaler in their hometowns.

"I get a lot of customers already from a town west of me that's wet," he said. "They're drive over here, pick up a little beer, maybe go check out some property they own, and consume their beer before they go back home. That just the way things are."

Countdown continues toward launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Forecasters say the weather will cooperate when the space shuttle Discovery takes off with NASA's most valuable and eagerly awaited payload, the $1.5 billion Hubble Space Telescope.

"This project has been difficult. ... There are at least three times when I thought we wouldn't do it," said Charles Pellerin Jr., NASA's director of astrophysics. "But we're there and it all works and it's going to be great."

The launch is scheduled for 7:47 a.m. CDT Tuesday.

Pellerin inspected the telescope before the payload bay doors were closed Sunday. He was pleased to note there was no evidence of midges, tiny mosquito-like insects that had invaded a payload preparation room at the launch pad two weeks ago.

"I can tell you there are no mosquitos visible, no midges, no anything. We're extremely clean," he said. "We're ready to go."

Later in the day, however, a short was detected in a heater cable in a strut that connects the shuttle to its huge fuel tank. The heater prevents ice from forming on the strut when the tank is filled with supercold liquid oxygen and liquid hydrogen.

Shuttle program director Robert L. Crippen said the problem was not expected to delay the mission, which already is seven years late because of technical problems and the 1986 Challenger explosion.

"The heater is not involved for launch and is not a constraint to launch," he said.

Discovery's commander, Air Force Col. Loren J. Shriver, and its pilot, Marine Col. Charles F. Bolden Jr., practiced emergency landings at the Kennedy Space Center on Sunday. They planned to fly high-performance jets today and review flight plans.

Air Force weather forecasters were giving 90 percent odds for favorable weather at launch time. The outlook worsened considerably if liftoff were delayed a day.

Discovery is to climb to an altitude of 380 miles, the highest a shuttle has ever gone, in order to put the telescope into its proper orbit.

Mission specialist Steven A. Hawley will put the 24,250-pound telescope into open space with the shuttle's 50-foot-long mechanical arm on the second day of the five-day flight.

Veteran spacewalkers Bruce McCandless II and Kathryn Sullivan will be standing by to step out of the shuttle cabin if a problem develops.

Discovery will trail the Hubble from 46 miles away for nearly two days until the telescope's eight-foot mirror is exposed to space.

The telescope, named after the late astronomer Edwin P. Hubble, will be capable during its 15 years in orbit of detecting objects 50 times fainter and with 10 times greater clarity than the best ground-based observatory.

Astronomers expect to study stars and galaxies so distant their light has been traveling to Earth for 14 billion years. The universe is believed to have been formed about 15 billion years ago by a tremendous explosion known as the big bang.

John Bahcall, president of the American Astronomical Society, said the Hubble will provide at least partial answers to fundamental questions about the universe.

But, he said, he will be disappointed "if all we do is answer these questions."

"The most important discoveries will provide answers to questions that we do not yet know how to ask," he said.

Helen Hayes shares marriage memories

By The Associated Press
"Well, I was bowled over. Right then and there I fell in love with Charles MacArthur, the most beautiful, most amusing, most amazing and dazzling man I had ever met."

"Charlie never lived that remark down," Miss Hayes says in an interview. "On our 25th wedding anniversary we went to '21' — Charlie loved that restaurant, it was his hangout — and on our table they had a bowl of salted peanuts, dyed green."

"Everyone kept reminding me that Charlie still had a wife, though they had been separated for years, and that I was a Catholic. Marrying Charlie meant excommunication so to me it is still astonishing that I never hesitated, that from the start I was prepared to rebel against mother and Mother Church and anyone else who tried to come between us," she writes.

Charlie, she writes, could not bear to take a wife better known than he, a constant thorn as Miss Hayes remained better known.

When "The Front Page," opened, Charlie and his co-author, Ben Hecht, fled to the fire escape shortly after the curtain went up.

"A few minutes into the first act I knew we were in. Percy Hammond, the Tribune critic, was chuckling and pounding his companion on the back. Charlie Chaplin's eyes were rolling. The audience was breaking up with laughter."

"I ran to the fire escape and shouted, 'It's a hit!' Whereupon Charlie opened his arms and asked, 'Will you marry me, Helen?'"

"It was a marriage planned by God," she says, despite its rocky times, mostly caused by MacArthur's love of the bottle. "Until Mary died, the drinking was only sporadic. But then Charlie set about killing himself. It took seven years, and it was harrowing to watch," she writes.

Miss Hayes does not care for any of the movies she made. After the TV movie, "Murder with Mirrors," the producer called to tell her 20 million had watched it.

"I found that I felt depressed," she writes. "Twenty million people! The total audience I had reached in 80 years in the theater — all those plays, all those beautiful lines, all that shared intimacy with live patrons — amounted to a tiny fraction of the number of people who had watched me the night before in a mediocre TV show," she writes.

Miss Hayes writes hilariously about her encounters with royalty. Her mother had lectured her never to speak to celebrities unless they spoke to you.

She tells of her meeting the grand duchess Marie of Russia, who had a job promoting Machiavelli's perfume at Bergdorf's.

"When Marie came into my dressing room, she sat down on the sofa and gave me a bottle of perfume," Miss Hayes writes. "Before I could stop myself, my first utterance was, 'Is Your Serene Highness still working at

Collector of snakes would rather tan

MARYNEAL, Texas (AP) — Syble Hobbs is still known as the Rattlesnake Lady, even though she no longer hunts snakes.

"That was my CB handle," Mrs. Hobbs said. "I've got snake stuff in every state of the union and overseas ... No two hides are exactly alike."

Although her hobby shop is no longer open, she loves making belts, buckles, purses, hat bands, billfolds and other items out of the hides.

"I'm fixing to cover me a pair of boots. Whatever somebody wants, I try to make it," she said.

The 70-year-old widow is not running low on hides.

"I've got an icebox full of hides," she said, estimating the number at about 200.

"I skinned out a snake the other night that a couple of boys killed on the road and brought to me," Mrs. Hobbs said recently. "People bring me snakes they've killed all during the summer if they're coming this way, or they'll call if they run over a snake and tell me where it's at on the road so I can pick it up."

She said she and her husband, the late Wilbur Hobbs, used to go snake hunting in the spring with two other couples.

"To start with we'd just kill the snakes, but we started catching them and making stuff out of the hides in '65."

"I ordered tanning formulas from here to yonder before I got one that I liked," she said. She orders leather "by the side" and cuts out the pieces to back her work.

She used to sell her snake skin crafts from a hobby shop that also featured her ceramic and crochet work. She gave up ceramics when she hurt her back, and the hobby shop closed in 1988.

"Now if someone wants something, they call or write Syble Hobbs and I get it or write to the Rattlesnake Lady and I get that too," she said.

"I've always been interested in crafts. I learned to crochet before I went to school from my grandmother. I used twine that came out of flour sacks."

Mrs. Hobbs has lived in Maryneal, about 20 miles south of Sweetwater, since 1932. She ran the Maryneal store and service station from 1949 until

Editors advocate Cisneros write-in

WICHITA FALLS, Texas (AP) — Editors of the Wichita Falls Times Record News refused to endorse Jim Mattox or Ann Richards in the Democratic runoff, calling instead for Texans to write in former San Antonio mayor Henry Cisneros for governor.

The newspaper in Sunday's editorial also rejected GOP gubernatorial nominee Clayton Williams, saying Texas has had enough "government-by-buffoons."

"Cisneros built bridges in San Antonio, bridges between peoples," the newspaper said. "If Henry Cisneros could apply his visionary thinking to the problems confronting Texas along with a spirit of unity rather than ... the two warring political parties, then we would all be better served," the paper said.

"Write in Cisneros. Then watch Texas go."

Cisneros' wife, Mary Alice, told of the endorsement, said, "Wow." She added the former mayor was in El Paso on Sunday, campaigning for Ms. Richards for the entire day.

The first Hispanic mayor of San Antonio, Cisneros served from 1981 to 1989. He decided not to run again in 1988, citing personal problems.

Cisneros has backed Ms. Richards in the gubernatorial race, appearing with her on the campaign trail.

Ex-Beatle wows fans

DALLAS (AP) — A sellout crowd of 56,000 turned out to hear ex-Beatle Paul McCartney reprise some of his greatest hits from the Beatles era and post-breakup.

Judging by the fans' reaction, the Beatles tunes were the biggest hits of the concert at Texas Stadium Saturday night. Most seemed to agree that they liked McCartney's solo work, but what made the concert truly fab was the rare opportunity to hear a former Beatle performing Beatles songs live.

"I'm here for the history of the music," said 55-year-old Harry Gaffney of Dallas.

"Coming to this concert is bittersweet for a lot of us in our 40s," said Blair Cunyngnam, who flew in from Edmond, Okla. "We were all teenagers when the Beatles first came out."

Beatles' mania extended to those who weren't even around in the Beatles heyday.

Twelve-year-old Andy Hale and his younger brother Tray said their favorite song is "Yellow Submarine." They said they learned about the Beatles from their father.

Princess attends dedication

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — Princess Chulabhorn, the youngest daughter of King Bhumibol of Thailand, dedicated a city square in honor of her father in front of Harvard's Kennedy School of Government.

"Our national hope for peace, freedom and a better quality of life unites us regardless of the geographical distance of our two nations and the difference in our cultures," the princess, a scientist who was recently appointed the World Health Organization's Goodwill Ambassador for International AIDS programs, said during a brief ceremony Sunday.

Dr. Gott Peter Gott, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 61-year-old male with mild hypertension and cardiac arrhythmia. I'm on Tenormin and Norpace. My symptoms do not occur all the time, yet I remain on the medication. Can you give me any information on these conditions?

DEAR READER: Hypertension, even if mild, can lead to heart strain and cardiac arrhythmia (irregular and/or rapid pulse).

As a general rule, arrhythmias are easier to prevent than to treat. For this reason, your doctor has given you Norpace (disopyramide), a drug that regulates the heartbeat. If taken regularly, under the doctor's supervision, Norpace should help control your heart rate and reduce the tendency to arrhythmias.

In addition, your physician has made a good choice with Tenormin (atenolol), a beta-blocking drug that both lowers blood pressure and helps stabilize the heartbeat. The combination of Norpace and Tenormin is, I think, appropriate in your case.

Unless you regularly check your own blood pressure, you will not know whether or not it is under control. Hypertension has been termed "the silent killer" because it does not commonly cause symptoms. Therefore, I encourage you to continue your therapy, even though you may not experience symptoms.

Arrhythmias can cause problems if the heart beats too fast — or too irregularly — for too long. Thus, prevention is the ticket. Stay with your present program and follow your doctor's instructions.

To provide you with additional information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Hypertension." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 32-year-old male who experienced an 8-foot fall from a ladder. I developed avascular necrosis in both hips and underwent total left-hip replacement. Should I be concerned about spreading of the necrosis? Recently, I've experienced a grinding pain in my right shoulder. What's the possibility of other joints in my body being affected?

DEAR READER: Avascular necrosis is a serious affliction in which joint cartilage and bones become deprived of a blood supply and wither. This results from damage to the microcirculation (tiny blood vessels supplying oxygen and nutrients to cartilage and bone).

Avascular necrosis is a common consequence of certain blood disorders, such as sickle cell disease, when blood cells lose their normal round shape and become wedged in capillaries, blocking circulation. Injury, such as falling from a ladder, is an unusual cause of avascular necrosis. Such trauma is believed to block circulation when fat cells from the bone marrow are released into the bloodstream and interrupt blood flow.

I believe that whatever damage you experienced took place at the time of the accident; you needn't worry about further avascular necrosis, which does not spread. Nonetheless, if both hips are involved, you may eventually need a right-hip replacement, too.

The condition is not likely to have occurred in your shoulders because they are not weight-bearing joints. Therefore, I suggest you check with your doctor to discover the cause of the "grinding pain"; this could be due to bursitis (inflammation of the joint covering) or by tendinitis (irritation of the shoulder tendons).

Networks will air blastoff

NEW YORK (AP) — ABC, CBS, NBC and CNN plan to air the scheduled launch of the shuttle Discovery live Tuesday morning.

The space shuttle is scheduled to lift off at 7:47 a.m. CDT from the Kennedy Space Center at Cape Canaveral, Fla.

During the five-day voyage, five astronauts will put into orbit the Hubble Space Telescope, which will give scientists the most detailed look yet at the universe.

CNN coverage will begin Tuesday at 4:30 a.m. The three broadcast networks will begin coverage during their morning news programs at 6 a.m.

Wildlife officials: open pits killing migratory birds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The ponds and open tanks of oily wastes dotting west Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma lure birds like fresh water.

But for hundreds of thousands of protected and migratory birds each year, the pits are death traps.

"Once their wings touch that oil, they crash. ... Once they land they're done. They start preening their feathers, and that oil gets into their digestive system; it's really a pathetic death," said Tom Smylie, assistant regional director of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service's Southwest region.

Robert Lee, a special agent with the wildlife service in Lubbock, said half a million protected, non-game birds are killed in the pits every year in Texas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, along with another 100,000 waterfowl.

"That's twice the number of birds estimated killed by the Exxon Valdez oil spill, and that's annually," Lee said.

The Fish and Wildlife Service, after investigating the problem in the Southwest, in late 1988 gave oil and gas companies and other industries that use the pits a one-year grace period to cover or clean them up.

Since Oct. 3, 1989, however, operators of pits that are killing migratory birds have been subject to criminal fines under the Migratory Bird Treaty Act, which makes it illegal "at any time, by any means, or in any manner, to ... kill ... any migratory birds."

In its first case since cracking down on oil and chemical pit operators, Union Pacific Railroad of Houston pleaded guilty recently before a U.S. magistrate in Lubbock to killing 46 migratory birds in a waste treatment pond in Big Spring.

The company will pay a $5,000 criminal penalty and $1,393.50 in civil restitution to the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department for the lost birds, and will cover the pond with a screen mesh to prevent further wildlife deaths, the Wildlife Service said.

Lee said he is working on additional cases against 29 companies with pits or tanks in his region of Texas, which runs from the Panhandle to the Pecos River.

"Most of the pits I'm dealing with contain at least a skim of oil; some are full of oil. Some of them are legal and permitted by the state of Texas, many of them are in violation of state law," Lee said.

Lee called the illegal pits a "death trap" for birds and other wildlife, including porcupines, possums, white-tailed deer, coyotes, rabbits and reptiles.

Especially at risk are waterfowl populations already experiencing "precipitous declines," Lee said. "The added mortality (from the pits) contributes to a continent-wide population decline."

Lee and Smylie complained that state regulators in Texas and Oklahoma, however, have failed to vigorously pursue the problem while New Mexico now requires screens on open pits. Smylie said 90 percent of the state's 5,649 known pits have been covered.

"The Railroad Commission of Texas could eliminate this problem in a matter of months if they wanted to by making a rule change that would require oil producers to protect the wildlife of Texas simply by screening their pits and tanks," Lee said.

Railroad Commission spokesman Brian Schaible said such a rule is not necessary because the state prohibits the storage of oil in such pits.

"It seems kind of counterproductive to have a rule that you have to have a net over this pit that has illegal oil in it," he said.

Schaible said testimony from the oil industry in Texas "is that they don't have problems with birds."
