SHS one-act state bound 16th consecutive trip

Snyder High School's drama department is advancing to state for the 16th consecutive year after qualifying at the Region I one-act play competition Friday in San Angelo.

"We're going on to the big one again," said a happy Jerry Worsham, drama director.

Big Spring will join Snyder as Region I winners who will compete against six other schools at Bass Concert Hall on the University of Texas campus in Austin for the May 4 state meet.

Snyder and Big Spring had advanced through zone, district and area competition before Friday's meet at Angelo State University.

"We're really glad to be going again," said Worsham. "This was the toughest regional we've had in a long time. We were real nervous but we got past it."

As Snyder's production of "Taming of the Shrew" advanced, individual honors went out to three SHS students. Coy Berryman and Amber Adams were again named Best Actor and Best Actress and Kristi Mize was honorable mention All-Star Cast.

It was the fourth time this year Adams has won the top award and the third time for Berryman, who was also named to the All-Star Cast once. Adams was Best Actress when Snyder took second place at state last year and Berryman was a member of the All-Star Cast.

In addition to Snyder's performance and "The Rimers of Eldritch," performed by Big Spring, other plays at regional included "The Shadow Box," performed by Fort Worth Boswell; "A Shayna Maidel," by Granbury; "Marat Sade," by Northwest Fort Worth; and "The Imaginary Invalid," by Belton. Boswell's effort took third place and will serve as the regional alternate to state.

Serving as judge for the competition was Dr. Don Williams of Lubbock Christian University.

Rodeo sees new leaders

By PHIL RIDDLE
Sports Editor

With a full Friday performance and the night's slack results in, standings in most events at the Western Texas College NIRA Rodeo shifted.

The four-day event was to continue at Scurry County Coliseum at 8 p.m. Saturday, followed by the finals at 2 p.m. Sunday. The finals feature the top 10 long-go finishers in each of the rodeo's events.

Admission is $5 for adults and $4 for children at the gate.

Over 2,000 expected locally for Little Dribblers tourney

Some 825 players and coaches will converge on Snyder this week for the Little Dribblers National Tournament, leading officials to predict that visitors to the city will number over 2,000 including parents and relatives.

Snyder motels have been booked for some time, and many of the overflow of tournament goers are staying in Sweetwater, Colorado City and Abilene.

A call which went out to local citizens to help house players met with good response, and it is reported that more than 40 families will be hosting some of the visitors. Among other arrangements, the city is making available the West Fire Station to a group from Weatherford.

The national tournament — actually six tournaments representing different age brackets and divisions — opens Thursday morning at five locations in the city. The action continues through Saturday, with finals scheduled in Scurry County Coliseum.

Tournament passes are $12 for adults and $6 for students. Also available are day passes at $4 and $2 and individual game passes at $2 and $1. There are 108 games scheduled — including 49 on Thursday and 42 on Friday.

Fifty-nine teams from five states are entered in the tournaments. Among the areas and communities represented are Snyder, Plains, Malakoff, Dalhart, Amarillo, Brownfield, Kermit, Eules, Borger, Brownsboro, Hamshire, El Paso, Grosebeck, Nome, Mexia, Shallowater, Weatherford,

R-12 being regulated out of existence over period of next decade

Protecting the environment may get down right where most West Texans live — under the comfort of their air conditioned automobile.

While Earth Day attention has focused attention on ways to clean up the environment, local air conditioning shop dealers are struggling with new regulations and consumers will face substantially higher prices.

Many shop owners attended an air conditioning seminar last week at Western Texas College and were brought up to date on government regulations as a result of the "Montreal Protocol."

The document was signed by 24 nations — including the United States — with agreement to reduce chlorofluorocarbon (CFC) production over the next 10 years to a level no greater than 50 percent of 1986 production.

CFC or R-12 is the refrigerant utilized in automotive air conditioning, and shop owners were told the compound is being "regulated out of existence."

Last year a can of freon sold for just over $1, but today a can, reduced from 14 to 12 ounces in size, sells for more than $3.

The largest portion of the increase is a tax levied by the Environmental Protection Agency. It was predicted that prices will rise to over $15 in the next few years due to taxes. Since it takes 4 cans to recharge a system, the cost for CFC alone could soon exceed $60.

Newspaper urges talks to continue

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — A newspaper that often reflects the views of Iran's president Saturday urged pro-Iranian hostage-takers in Lebanon to hasten talks to free an American captive.

The Tehran Times said it hoped the release of one captive could be "the prelude to the release of one more hostage by another group."

The editorial was the latest in a series of hostage developments that began Wednesday, when one Lebanese group holding three American educators said it would release one hostage by Friday.

However, the Islamic Jihad for the Liberation of Palestine said Thursday it had indefinitely postponed the release. It blamed the delay on the refusal of the United States to send a senior diplomat to Damascus, as the group demanded.

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "To make a little money last, you have to make a little money first."

We're just learning to deal with the number of zeros associated with a million, and now our national debt has zipped past the trillion mark.

We understand that a trillion is 1, followed by 12 zeros. That concept, for a guy who has trouble balancing his checkbook, is difficult to grasp.

A newsletter put out by the McDonald Observatory observed that a trillion is the number of seconds that have elapsed since Australopithecus roamed on the earth. Even our $3.95 paperback Webster's II knew that Australopithecus was an ape-like creature that has been extinct since the Pleistocene Epoch.

A fellow in Dallas tried to check the math on that one and found out that his pocket calculator wouldn't register a trillion. In fact, his $8.95 discount-house special won't even deal with a billion.

The guy in Dallas obviously is gifted in math, because he took a pencil and paper and calculated that there are 31,536,000 seconds in a year. That means a trillion seconds ago was approximately 3,000 B.C.

A normal life-span of 70 years only requires 2.5 billion seconds. The national debt going from billions to trillions helps us understand why a $1.50 necktie now sells for $27.50. Homes that once sold for $10,000 now cost $60,000.

The best way we can deal with either Australopithecus or a trillion is to deny the existence of either. We've never seen and don't expect to see either one.

We just want to always have four bits for a cup of coffee.

We're reminded of several young couples who were discussing the difficulties of living within family budgets.

"I really don't want a lot of money," said one yuppie mother. "I just wish we could afford to live the way we're living now."

Q—When is the next blood drive scheduled in Snyder?
A—It will be held Tuesday, April 24, from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. at Towle Park Barn.

In Brief

One charged

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A woman whose account of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's assassination touched off conspiracy theories has been charged with embezzling $9,800 from a councilwoman's campaign funds.

Sandra Serrano Sewell, 42, of Pasadena, was expected to surrender sometime next week on one felony charge of grand theft by embezzlement. Deputy District Attorney Steven E. Weiss said Friday.

Sewell allegedly took the money while bookkeeping for the Committee to Re-Elect Gloria Molina in 1985. The alleged embezzlement was discovered during a routine audit by the state Fair Political Practices Commission two years later.

U.S. says Soviet economy in fragile state; may worsen

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union's economy turned in an "abysmal" performance last year and faces the likelihood of continued inflation and shortages despite President Mikhail Gorbachev's reform efforts, according to a U.S. intelligence analysis.

"Soviet economic problems reached near-crisis proportions in 1989 as severe consumer goods shortages, inflation and rising social and ethnic violence left Gorbachev searching for ways to put his economic program back on track," said the report to Congress.

"The combination of inflation and shortages made daily life miserable for all but the most privileged elements of society," said the joint Central Intelligence Agency-Defense Intelligence Agency report.

CIA Deputy Director for Intelligence John L. Helgeson told the Joint Economic Committee on Friday that the Soviet economic performance was "abysmal in 1989, the worst since Gorbachev took over" in 1985.

The report also noted a 4 percent to 5 percent drop in real Soviet defense spending last year, which should strengthen the position of those in Congress seeking larger Pentagon budget cuts.

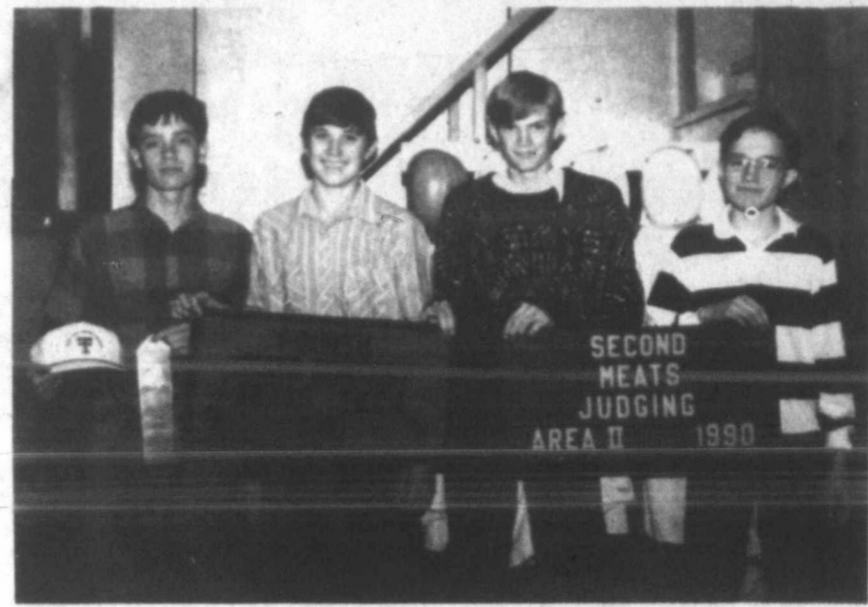

It forecast a "daunting" road ahead for the emerging democracies in Eastern Europe, with high unemployment, price increases and falling wages. But the analysts said Poland and other countries are making good starts at attracting the private investment needed for recovery.

Helgeson said Soviet energy production dropped last year for the first time in four decades and there were declines in the industrial, construction and transportation sectors. Consumer prices rose an estimated 6 percent and shoppers turned to black-market sources for goods and essentials that were rationed.

In an effort to meet consumer demand, the Soviets boosted imports of some items and, coupled with a decline in oil exports, piled up a $1.4 billion trade deficit, he said.

Overall economic growth for 1989 was about 1.5 percent, the report said, although it noted that figure is based on dubious statistics.

Darman criticizes budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Democrats are putting together a 1991 budget that ignores a flagging economy and relies in part on dubious savings, the White House budget director says.

The budget chief, Richard Darman, said Friday that Democratic spending plans under consideration are "not implementable" because they fail to take administration preferences into account.

But also said the attitude of leading congressional lawmakers toward budget negotiations with the administration is improving.

"It's highly likely we could move to negotiations in a matter of weeks," said Darman, who has been pressing for such talks since President Bush submitted his 1991 spending plan in January.

Darman's comments, made in a session with reporters, marked a continuation of his attempt to insert the administration into Democratic efforts to write a budget for the year that begins Oct. 1.

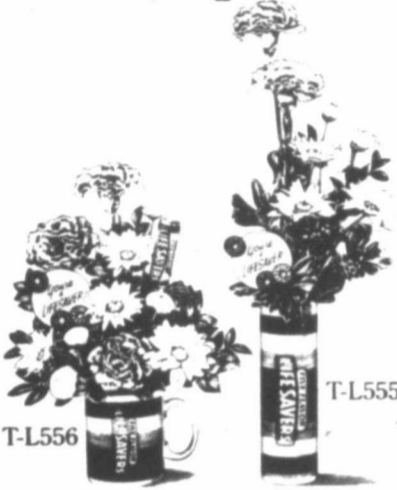

The House Budget Committee adopted a Democratic-written $1.24 trillion budget on Thursday, and the panel's Senate counterpart plans to begin its own work next week.

Darman called the House document "a slide-by budget" lacking serious deficit reduction, the same criticism Democrats have leveled at the White House's own plan.

Judge grants change of venue in Braun murder trial

LAS VEGAS, N.M. (AP) — The confession of a Kansas man in the shooting death of a Springer woman can be used as evidence in his trial next month, a state district judge has ruled.

District Judge Jay Harris on Friday denied a defense motion to suppress the confession of Gregg Francis Braun, 28, of Garden City, Kan.

Braun admitted during a preliminary hearing last August to shooting the store clerk, Geraldine Valdez, last July 23 in Springer. Braun is scheduled to go on trial May 7, with the trial expected to last two weeks.

Braun also is charged with four other counts of murder in the July 19 shooting deaths of two convenience store clerks in Garden City, in the July 20 killing of a photo processing shop owner in Pampa, Texas, and the July 21 slaying of a woman in an Ardmore, Okla., flower shop.

The judge on Friday also denied a motion for a new preliminary hearing and said all statements made by Braun to police following his arrest would be admissible at the trial.

Harris granted a defense motion for a change of venue in the trial, moving the trial to Taos.

Doctor cannot escape recognition

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Dr. Malcolm Perry would rather be remembered for teaching surgery than as the surgeon who worked on John F. Kennedy at Parkland Memorial Hospital in Dallas Nov. 22, 1963, and on the president's assassin two days later.

But history seems to be in his way.

In an interview with The Columbus Dispatch — his first interview, he said, since the morning after Kennedy's death — Perry, 60, said he avoids reading or watching programs about Kennedy's assassination and prefers not to discuss such programs with fellow workers.

"I have no desire to relive the pain," he said Thursday during a break from teaching a two-day course at a vascular disease symposium at St. Anthony Medical Center. Perry is chief of vascular surgery at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn.

He said that being in Emergency Room One at Parkland the day Kennedy was brought in was "an accident in time." The chief surgical resident who had been paged to take the case was away that day.

Perry said he was in the trauma room with Kennedy about 20 minutes. He finds it curious that people are so interested in those 20 minutes.

"I don't resent it," he said. "It's a matter of proportion, though. Things aren't real balanced in the world."

Perry said what he did with Kennedy was no different than what he had done before or has done since to save others.

"There are only two medical emergencies: airway (obstruction) and bleeding," he said. "Mr. Kennedy had both."

To clear Kennedy's airways, Perry performed a tracheotomy, in which a hole is cut in the windpipe. He said he wasn't aware of it at the time but recalled hours later that Jacqueline Kennedy was watching the procedure.

"Every time I looked up, I saw her standing there in the corner, watching," he said.

Deadline nears for producers

LUBBOCK--Plains Cotton Cooperative Association (PCCA) officials have announced April 30 is the last day cotton producers can sign up for the co-op's textile mill option program.

All members who market their cotton through the co-op are eligible to share in the mill's earnings by agreeing to a $5 per bale retainer which will be returned to the member after five years.

PCCA's Denim Mill in Littlefield is the only farmer-owner textile mill in the world. In the past two years, it has returned average earnings of $9.59 per bale in cash and book credits.

Producers can sign up or get additional information at their local co-op gin.

Brad Crawford named Fellow

LUBBOCK--Brad Crawford, who has practiced law in Lubbock for 31 years, has been named a Fellow of the American College of Trial Lawyers. Membership, which is a position of honor, is by invitation of the Board of Regents.

Crawford is the son of Verna Crawford, longtime Snyder resident, and the brother of Mrs. Bob (Joan) Bell, also of Snyder. He is also a graduate of Seminole High School, Texas Tech University and the University of Texas Law School.

He is a partner in the firm of Crenshaw, Dupree and Milam. He and his wife, Bobbe, are active in church, school and community activities.

The induction ceremony took place during the annual banquet of the American College of Trial Lawyers. More than 1,200 persons were in attendance at the meeting of the Fellows in New Orleans, La.

The college is a national association of 4,500 Fellows in the United States and Canada. Its purpose is to improve the standards of trial practice, the administration of justice and the ethics of the profession.

Two days later, Perry operated on Kennedy's assassin, Lee Harvey Oswald, who had just been shot by Jack Ruby. Oswald also died.

Perry said coping with his role became more difficult when he and his family began receiving hate mail charging he was part of a conspiracy to kill the president.

The Warren Commission, established to investigate the assassination, concluded that Oswald acted alone.

In performing the tracheotomy, Perry cut through the bullet exit wound in the president's neck. Officials later investigating the assassination asked why the wound wasn't measured, and why doctors didn't turn Kennedy over to examine the wound in the back of his head.

Perry said legal issues never occurred to him. There wasn't time.

"You get the airway clear, you stop the bleeding, then you see what else you've got," he said.

Even with advances in medical technology over the past 26 years, Perry said, the same head wound would be fatal today.

When Kennedy was pronounced dead, Perry said he left the trauma room and sat down but was called almost immediately to operate on then-Gov. John Connally of Texas, who was riding with Kennedy and also was wounded but lived.

East Side Church of Christ...

Tom Holcomb enjoys the challenge of his work

East Side Church of Christ's Tom Holcomb is in the public relations business, or at least he was. After being involved in both professions, Holcomb sees the similarities in the two giving his ministry a practical approach. "They are both a lot alike. They both promote a product. In this case it's salvation, a relationship with Christ and Christianity. In both, you have to show what people will gain with your product. You are dealing with people and trying to keep them happy," Holcomb said.

Holcomb enjoys the challenge of his job. "It is always a challenge to see if you are meeting people's needs; to see if the ministry is touching people's lives in a meaningful way," Holcomb said. Holcomb puts his background to practical use in his ministry. This summer the church will begin an "intenseful" study of itself and the community in an effort, according to Holcomb, "to get an idea of how the church reflects the community and how the community sees us." The study will hopefully include a demographic profile of the Snyder community. "We want to find out people's likes and dislikes. We will look at the ethnic make-up, income levels and the interests of Snyder." To help with the task, the church has hired a church growth consultant. In September, after the data has been gathered, the consultant will meet with church members including Holcomb to evaluate the information. "We will be looking at three things: first we will look at the church; second we will look at the community and then we will look and see what we need to do as a church to draw us closer to the community." He enjoys his work because he feels that, not unlike his public relations career, it utilizes his talent to communicate. He is happy to be able to use his gifts in God's service. However Holcomb admits that "dealing with people and their problems can be difficult work...You have to keep your head together...there is a great deal of pressure present...I believe the conviction that this is what God wants you to do is the only way to keep from suffering burn out." Holcomb graduated from Abilene Christian University with a degree in speech with aspirations to teach speech and drama. But after a "frustrating and disappointing" student teaching experience, he decided to stick to radio broadcasting where he worked while attending college. From there he went into public relations and then eventually into the ministry. He has been in Snyder and with East Side for eight years. "Being in Snyder and working with these people has been the high point of my career," Holcomb said. Holcomb's wife, June, is a third grade teacher at East Elementary. They have two children. Brad is a junior at Lubbock Christian University and plays on the school baseball team, and Leigh is a senior at Snyder High School where she is active in drama and choir.

Ex-resident advances to regional play

Kim White, a senior at Columbia High School in West Columbia, Tex., will be one of four tennis team players from her school who will advance to regional competition April 27-28 at Huntsville. White and her teammates earned the right to continue competing by capturing championships at the District 23-4A meeting in Rosenberg. She was a former Snyder resident and attended Snyder High School where she played under tennis coach Charlie Crane. White is the granddaughter of Gerrel and Rosie Bigham of Snyder.

Boating mishaps claim more than 70 in Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — For a fifth straight year, more than 70 Texans died in boating accidents during 1989, and Texas Parks and Wildlife Department officials say alcohol was involved in at least half of them. According to the department's Capt. Dexter Harris, there were 78 boating deaths last year, an increase of four over 1988. There were 450 water-related deaths in Texas last year, Harris said. "That's something we've got to try to work on, to try to bring that down. Education is the key," Harris said. Parks and wildlife officials also are beefing up field plans before the Memorial Day weekend, the worst for accidents and deaths in Texas every year, he said. "Since the new Boating While Intoxicated law passed, we've tried to teach our officers how to handle it," Harris said. He said game wardens face problems enforcing the BWI laws. "People ordinarily go to the lake to drink," he said. "We can't do that in our cars. Statistics show that about 40 percent of people on the water are drinking." Harris said 50 percent to 80 percent of boating accidents involve alcohol.

AIDS-genetics link discovered

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Researchers say they've found a new link between genetics and AIDS that could help explain why some people become sick soon after exposure while others stave off serious illness for years. In a study of 5,000 infected men from Baltimore, Chicago, Los Angeles and Pittsburgh, those with a particular genetic background tended to have a more rapid decline after being exposed to the AIDS-causing virus, the researchers said Friday. "It has been a point of considerable interest because the effects of AIDS differ so widely," said Dr. June Osborn of the National Commission on AIDS. Linda Shatney will present a program of country/western and gospel music in the Senior Citizens Center at 11 a.m. Monday. Senior citizens interested in going to Durango, Colo., on a trip sponsored by the Scurry County chapter of AARP are reminded that Monday is the last day to pay their deposit. "It's just another little piece of a very complex story." contact Nancy LaRoux at the Senior Center or Shawn Ragland for more information. Senior citizens will also be assisting Snyder Neighbors Sharing during their workday on Saturday and more volunteers would be welcome, Mrs. LaRoux said. Robert Allen and the Country Boys will play for a country/western dance in the Senior Center at 7 p.m. Tuesday. The Browning Band will entertain at 11 a.m. Tuesday and Hoss Clayton's band will be on stage at 11 a.m. Wednesday. Quilts which will be sold in the Center's May Day auction on May 5 have been displayed in several local businesses and tickets for the May Day barbecue are now on sale. Tickets are to be purchased in advance so food preparation can be planned. They are $5 each and are available at the Senior Center and from senior citizens. To buy tickets call 573-4035 weekdays.

Dr. Gott Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: A couple of babies in our family will have to be vaccinated for polio in the near future. I recently read an article about a father who contracted polio from his newly vaccinated daughter. The 22-year-old father's attorney states, "You can catch the virus from changing diapers or kissing the baby for a period of 30 days to six weeks following vaccination. This has been documented by scientists, but barely mentioned to the public." Please print your ideas on this.

Five arrested

Police arrested five people Friday night and early Saturday, including two men and a woman who were taken into custody on drinking-related charges at 11:25 p.m. Friday in the 1400 Block of 26th St.

A 27-year-old man was arrested for DWI while a 28-year-old man and a 27-year-old woman were arrested for public intoxication.

A 19-year-old man was arrested for disorderly conduct at 11:57 p.m. Friday in the 3400 Block of College Ave., and a 17-year-old boy was taken into custody for PI at 1:09 a.m. Saturday in the 100 Block of East 37th St.

Tools taken

A Western Texas College Rodeo contestant reported at 9:34 p.m. Friday that some tools had been stolen from a tool box in the back of his pickup truck outside the county coliseum.

Clint Wilson of Big Spring said assorted tools were taken but the tool box was left in the pickup bed.

Car fire

Firemen were occupied with a car fire from 9:20 to 9:55 p.m. Friday in the 400 Block of 37th St.

A department spokesman said fire damage to the 1979 Ford owned by Pam Ivie of Rt. 3 was confined to the engine compartment.

Wa., New Baden, Ill., and Iron-ton, Mo.

Games begin at 9:15 a.m. Thursday at five locations — the coliseum, Western Texas College, Snyder Jr. High Gym, Travis Gym and Snyder High School Gym.

The six championship games are slated at the coliseum on Saturday, to include the American Juniors' final at 2:15 p.m., the National Juniors' title match at 3:30 p.m., the American Majors' contest at 6 p.m., the American Seniors' final at 7:15 p.m., the National Seniors' game at 8:30 p.m. and the National Majors' tilt at 9:45 p.m.

Snyder will field three teams — juniors, majors and seniors — in the National Division.

Snyder Goldcoats will be taking tickets and selling tournament programs at each site.

DEAR READER: Oral polio vaccine contains attenuated polio viruses, microorganisms that have been treated to abolish their virulence so, when swallowed, they cause immunity instead of disease.

Millions of children have successfully received the oral polio vaccine. However, now and then, the vaccine appears to cause polio. Interestingly, each year for the past 11 years, 11 people have caught polio from the vaccine. About a third of these patients were vaccine recipients, a third were parents of the recipients and a third were other adults close to the recipients.

In these few cases, some virulent viruses eluded the attenuation process and produced disease. The viruses passed through the vaccinated children to cause infection in the unimmunized adults.

The attorney you quote is correct. All vaccines and medications have predictable side effects and complications. However, it's only fair to point out that, given the enormous benefit of polio vaccine, the risk is infinitesimal. Despite care in manufacturing the vaccine, a few viruses survive the process and can cause disease in susceptible individuals. All the adults who contracted vaccine-related polio were themselves unvaccinated.

Before your babies receive polio vaccine, I recommend you share your concerns with the pediatrician — and if you have not already been vaccinated against polio, I urge you to do so.

Although no vaccine is 100 percent safe, the benefits of immunizing our children against this debilitating disease far outweigh the exceedingly rare risks.

DEAR DR. GOTT: A year ago, my wife dieted and lost 30 pounds. While she used to have medium-sized breasts, she now has almost none. Is there any way to enlarge them?

DEAR READER: Much of the bulk of breast tissue in non-pregnant, non-lactating women is made up of fat. Therefore, a significant weight loss often reduces the size of the breasts. While women may sometimes welcome such a reduction, some object to having smaller breasts. In such cases, augmentation, using plastic surgery, may provide a solution.

I think it's important to consider that your wife may be content with her new figure. To a large degree, the attractiveness and desirability of a certain breast size is governed by unique cultural criteria that are not health-related and appear to be defined by males in our society.

Thus, before recommending breast augmentation, I'd want to be sure your wife wishes to enlarge her breasts because of her own sense of well-being, rather than to please others by meeting non-medical, cultural expectations.

I suggest she discuss her preferences with her doctor and, if appropriate, accept a referral to a plastic surgeon.

To give you additional information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "An Informed Approach To Surgery." Other readers who would like to receive a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

The 1970s and '80s saw full blossoming of ex-flower-children who believed in paranormal events, psychic phenomena and alternative healing methods. The list of popular fads included photography (spirit photographs), phone calls from the dead, backward masking (satanic messages in rock 'n' roll), pyramidology, poltergeists, psychotronic weapons, astral projection, crystals, horoscopes, UFOs, cryptozoology (such as the Loch Ness monster and Big Foot), calculating horses, Arkeology (sightings of Noah's Ark), firewalking, spontaneous human combustion, iridology (determining people's health by examining their irises), vitamin B-15, the lost continent of Atlantis, Nostradamus, creationism, reincarnation, telepathy, moon madness and psychokinetic metal bending.

According to representatives of the Committee for the Scientific Investigation of Claims of the Paranormal, a national, privately funded group of debunkers, these fads enjoyed fashionable attention because of enormous public gullibility and wish-fulfillment in combination with clever magic tricks, optical illusions, hucksterism and hysteria.

Are we on the verge of another craze? The cover article in the Feb. 5 Newsweek magazine described a burgeoning phenomenon: the self-help support group. Is it merely a chi-chi get-together with trendy self-therapy — or is it for real? asked Charles Leerhsen, the article's author. How do support groups work? Are they as helpful as their proponents claim?

Organized self-help groups really date back to the 1930s with the formation of Alcoholics Anonymous, a support group predicated on 12 steps that include the surrender to (and acceptance of) its members' alcoholism and the acknowledgment of a "higher power."

Leerhsen estimates that in any given week more than 15 million Americans attend about 500,000 support groups, ranging from Crossroads (for male cross-dressers) to Recently Divorced Catholics. There are now so many self-help groups that the phenomenon has spawned a National Self-Help Clearinghouse (33 W. 42nd St., New York, NY 10036) just to provide up-to-date information about various groups.

The diversity is astounding. Groups address the problems stemming from almost any disease, including Parkinson's, cancer, schizophrenia and unusual conditions (National Organization of Rare Disorders), as well as addictive behavior (narcotics, alcohol, sex, over-work, gambling) and transitional states (divorce, death).

Self-help groups appear to be replacing traditional counseling sources, such as the intact family, clergyman, psychiatrist or close friend, in which a person took the traditional "here I am — fix me" attitude. Today's support groups do not have professional moderators who make wise pronouncements. No true self-help group has a hierarchy. People learn to take responsibility for their own recovery, all members are equal. They gain confidence by sharing their experiences, strengths and hopes with similarly affected individuals.

Clearly, this talking and listening can produce profound therapeutic benefit. For example, a 10-year study at Stanford University showed that "cancer patients who participated in weekly support-group meetings in addition to receiving treatment lived nearly twice as long as those receiving only medical care."

Support groups are an effective antidote to loneliness, depression and isolation, characteristics common to many disorders in which people mistakenly believe they are alone in their suffering. In truth, they are not alone; by reaching out and opening up, they soon realize they can forge new bonds and obtain healthier perspectives on life. They get better. The idea may be uniquely American: Identify the problem, accept it, marshal your resources, get the support you need, take charge and experience tangible results. In some ways, self-help groups have redefined the wheel: Help others in order to feel better about yourself.

Despite objections by a minority of health professionals — who remain convinced that the self-help approach is inherently dangerous because untrained people are fiddling with mind, body and spirit — support groups are probably here to stay. They seem to be a method by which many people can, with almost no financial commitment, alter their lives and take control of their own affairs. In this sense, self-help is unlike the fly-by-night fads of this century. People helping people is a worthwhile endeavor in any society. And right now we seem to need these resources more than ever.

Award winners listed in wildflower contest

Sandra Browning won the Best of Show award for her entry in the wild flower photography contest, sponsored by Scurry County Museum in conjunction with Scurry County Wild Flower Day.

In addition to the Best of Show rosette, she received a $25 cash prize donated by Keaton Kolor.

Other winners in the adult division were Meredith Goodwin, first; Randy Tolman, second; and Katherine Elkins, third. Receiving honorable mention were Elkins and Llene Kruse.

In the student division, an entry prepared by the Journalism 132 class received first place. Second place went to Anne Overhulser. She also received honorable mention.

Ribbons for the winners will be presented in the museum at 2:30 p.m. Sunday. The public is invited to the program, which will also see recognition extended to public school classes which have participated in wild flower projects.

Britt Canada will show wild flower slides at 1:45 p.m. and again at 3 p.m.

The museum will open at 1 p.m. and copies of the wild flower trail Canada has marked on the WTC prairie are available there.

Also included in the museum's exhibit are wild flower specimens, the art and creative writing projects from Scurry County public schools, paintings loaned by Myrtle Joiner, LaVerne Lee and Louise Vaughan, photographs loaned by Jay Huckabee and photographs which were winners in previous photography contests.

ADVERTISEMENT Hearing Tests Set For Snyder

Snyder Electronic hearing tests will be given at the Miracle-Ear Hearing Aid Service office on Wednesday, April 25th from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Professionally trained Hearing-Aid Specialists will be at our office at 2203 Ave. M in Snyder to perform the tests.

Anyone who has trouble hearing is welcome to have a test using modern electronic equipment to determine if the loss is one which may be helped. Some of the causes of hearing loss will be explained, and diagrams of how the ear works will be shown.

Everyone should have a hearing test at least once a year — even people now wearing a hearing aid or those who have been told nothing could be done for them. Only a hearing test can determine if you are one of the many a hearing aid can help.

The free hearing tests will be given Wednesday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at 2203 Ave. M in Snyder. To avoid waiting, call for an appointment. Or, if you can't come in, call 806-795-0188 for in-home service.

Lady Tiger golfers face old nemesis AHS at Regionals

The Snyder Lady Tigers golf team wound up their District 4-4A schedule with a second place finish in Ft. Stockton April 13.

The second gave Snyder a regional golf appearance as the loop runner-up for the season.

Snyder finished the campaign with a combined 1455 in four matches within the loop.

They were second to Andrews' 1358.

In every circuit stop this season Andrews took first and Snyder claimed second place.

"We're really pleased to be going to regionals," said Snyder girls' coach Penny Perry.

"I'm really proud of the efforts by the girls. They played about as well as they could be expected to all season."

Snyder's main competition in the Region I tournament, scheduled for Monday and Tuesday at San Angelo's Bentwood Country Club, figures to be district foe Andrews.

The Lady Mustangs' Lisa McQuatters, Jen Galloway and April King, All-District 4-4A picks, were the top three medalists for the just-completed season.

Snyder placed two golfers in the top five.

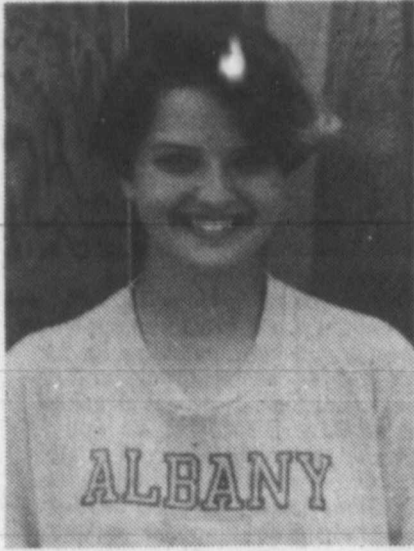

Amy Armstrong, who shot an 84 in the season's finale in Ft. Stockton to tie San Angelo Lake View's Melanie Owens for fourth medalist at the event, carded a 345 for the season.

Lady Tiger teammate Kim Duncan managed a 347 for the campaign, including an 89 at Ft. Stockton.

Both Armstrong and Duncan were chosen all-district.

The rest of the team consists of Jacy LaRoux, Stacie Cline and Wendy Miller.

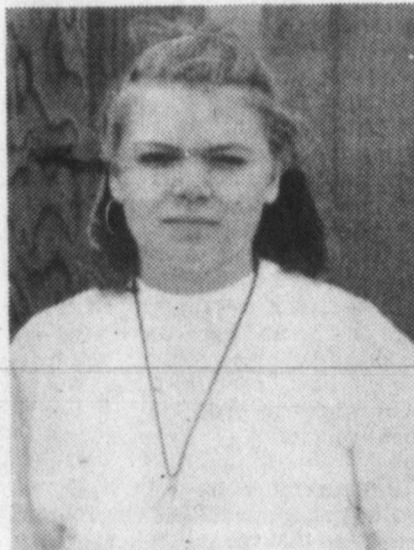

The top two teams at the Region I gathering will advance to the state tournament May 10-12 in Austin.

Seniors claim record Douglass, Coody scorch links for -23 score

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The Legends of Golf tournament is only half over, but the outcome now depends on the record-setting pair of Dale Douglass and Charles Coody.

"It's in their hands," Harold Henning said. "If they continue to play well, nobody is going to catch them."

Larry Mowry agreed.

"They're running away with it," Mowry said Friday after he and Frank Beard combined for a better-ball 63 — and lost ground.

"You've got two players who've got the feeling their game is coming on," said Al Geiberger, who teamed with Henning to win this Seniors tournament a year ago.

Douglass and Coody exploited the Barton Creek Country Club course for a 59 in the opening round. On Friday, they reeled off a string of six birdies in a row, birdied nine of their last 11 holes for a 10-under-par 62 that gave them a 6-shot lead.

Their 121 total, a whopping 23 under par for 36 holes, was a record for the 13-year-old tournament. The old record of 122 was set in 1982 by Don January and Sam Snead on the par-70 Onion Creek course.

Geiberger and Henning also had a 62 in the strong, gusty winds, but were a distant second at 128.

Their only hope, Geiberger said, was that Coody and Douglass would falter.

"It's hard to lead for four days," Geiberger said. "They can run into their flat moment."

Some spectacular putting prevented that in the second round.

Coody, for example, made a 40-footer to save par on the 16th. Douglass birdied the 17th and 18th with putts in the 30-35 foot range.

"The putts are continuing to go in, but we can't count on that continuing for two more days," Douglass said. "We need to get the ball a little closer to the hole."

Coody, the 1971 Masters champion, made six of his team's 11 second-round birdies. The pair now has scored two eagles, 20 birdies and a single bogey in 36 holes.

Mowry and Frank Beard were third at 128, the only other pair within nine strokes of the runaway leaders.

The teams of George Archer and Don Bies, and Dave Hill and Chi Chi Rodriguez were next at 130, 14 under par. The Archer-Bies combo had a 65 and Hill-Rodriguez shot 66.

Lee Trevino, winner of three of four starts earlier this year, and Jim Dent improved to a 66. The pretournament favorites, however, dropped to 12 behind the leaders at 133.

Bob Toski scored five birdies as he and Mike Fetchick combined for a 65 and opened a 2-shot lead in the Legendary Champions division for players 60 and older. They were at 132, 12 under par.

Roberto deVicenzo and Charlie Sifford, who won the Legendary Champions section the last two years, were tied for second with Fred Hawkins and Bill Collins. Each team had a second-round 67 and a 134 total.

The tournament is sponsored by Liberty Mutual.

Weather conditions may hamper Open

GREENSBORO, N.C. (AP) — It's not enough that the field in the Greater Greensboro Open is nervous because of the condition of the course. Now the weather is threatening.

Since golfers arrived at the Forest Oaks Country Club, they've been in awe — and fear — of the rough. Today, there was some relief from looking down by looking up at the skies, which are threatening to dump thunder-showers and make a tough course even more difficult to navigate.

"If the conditions aren't there, you're going to play conservatively," said Tommy Armour, who is one of four golfers at 141 and one stroke behind leader Jim Gallagher Jr.

"If the weather holds, maybe a few people might break away from the pack," he said.

Golfers have been reluctant to attack the course, in part because of the rough, which the leaders have described as U.S. Open caliber.

"Four under could win the golf tournament," Armour said. "Even par could win the golf tournament if the weather doesn't hold."

For now, 4-under leads the $1.25 million tournament, and Gallagher has his strategy in place.

"I'm going to ... play with some confidence and stay aggressive," he said. "I haven't been concentrating too well, and I think I've really zoned in on what I was supposed to be doing these last two days and I think it's helped."

Gallagher says he's tried to develop a pre-swing routine which will not only help him concentrate, but slow him down.

"I play so fast and I'm in such a hurry all the time, I get impatient," he says. "This week, I've started off with a good first round and a good second."

To keep his streak going, Gallagher will have to fend off a field bunched at the top. Seven golfers are at 2-under-par, 10 at 1-under and another 10 at even par.

Western Texas golf team finishes fifth

HOBBS, N.M. — Western Texas College took a fifth place finish in their fourth Western Junior College Athletic Conference match of the season here Friday.

New Mexico Junior College won the 27-hole event played on their home course with a 277-135-412.

Odessa College finished second shooting an opening round 283 followed by a 142 for a 425 total trailed by Midland College's 430 on rounds of 283 and 147.

New Mexico Military Institute grabbed fourth position with a combined 433 coming from a 289 and a 144 and Western Texas carded a 296 and a 142 for a 438 tally.

"You could really expect New Mexico to win like that on their home course, but don't expect scores that low next week, here," said WTC golf coach Dave Foster.

Western Texas will host the final conference match in conjunction with the NJCAA Region V match in a 54-hole affair Friday, Saturday and Sunday.

"This is what the team's been shooting for all year," Foster said.

Individually, Shane Bertch claimed the medalist's spot in the Hobbs tournament with a two-round 99.

The NMJC linkster fired a 66 in the event's first round and followed up with a 33 on the final nine holes.

The Westerners were led by Sweetwater's Tony Lara who registered a 109 on trips around the course of 75 and 34.

Jeff Baker, a Borger golfer competing for WTC, shot a 109 also. His total came on rounds of 73 and 36.

Brandon Benedict, part of the WTC Oklahoma Connection, from Bartlesville, Ok., carded a 74-39-113.

Snyder's Wade Hatter fired a 113, also, his coming on 74 and 39 scores, too.

The other Oklahomans, Jimmy Howe and Brad Stewart, finished with scores of 113 and 115, respectively.

Howe, from Ponca City, shot a 78 and followed with a 35 while Sapulpa native Stewart managed rounds of 78 and 37.

Point standings for the season place Odessa on top with 17 followed by Midland and NMJC with 15 points apiece.

New Mexico Military has 9 and WTC is credited with 4.

Team totals: 1. NMJC 277-135-412; 2. Odessa 283-142-425; 3. Midland 283-147-430; 4. NMMI 289-144-433; 5. WTC 296-142-438.

Medalist: Shane Bertch, NMJC, 66-33-99.

WTC scores: Tony Lara 75-34-109; Jeff Baker 73-36-109; Brandon Benedict 74-39-113; Wade Hatter 74-39-113; Jimmy Howe 78-35-113; Brad Stewart 78-37-115.

Points standings: Odessa 17; Midland 15; NMJC 15; NMMI 9; WTC 4.

Snyder netter plays in regional tourney

Snyder High School tennis player, Brandon Martin earned his way into the April 23-24 Region I net tournament with his second place finish at the April 6-7 District 4-A tourney on the campus of Midland College.

Martin was only threatened once during the district event, that being in the first round as Big Spring's Kevin Nichols won the opening set 2-6 before the SHS talent snatched a 7-6 win on a 7-5 tie-breaker in the second set before dominating Nichols in the third, 6-1.

The second round proved to be a little easier as Ronnie Gee of Sweetwater rode a bye into the second round and fell in twin 6-4 sets to Martin.

Reggie Chavez of Pecos was Martin's semi-final victim, falling, 6-2, 6-2, to guarantee the Snyder tennis star a spot in the finals as well as the regional tourney.

Martin was topped by Big Spring ace Rocky Tubb, 6-1, 6-2, in the district finals.

Among others, Martin will face District 1-4A winner Fitz Moles of Borger, a 6-1, 6-0 winner over loop runner-up Sergio Salamao of Lubbock Estacado in last week's district tournament at Levelland.

"I'll draw a tough first match," said Martin.

"Probably Brandon Potts of Cleburne or (Tom) Priester from Wichita Falls."

The regional tournament begins at 10:30 a.m. Friday on the courts at Angelo State University in San Angelo.

Quarterfinal action starts at 3 p.m. Friday afternoon. The top two qualifiers in each event will advance to the state tournament scheduled for May 10-12 in Austin.

Rose enters guilty plea

CINCINNATI (AP) — Pete Rose is free — for now, anyway.

A federal judge permitted Rose to remain free on his own recognizance while probation officials prepare a report to help determine Rose's sentence for his felony tax conviction.

Rose pleaded guilty Friday to two counts of filing false income tax returns and could be sentenced to up to six years in jail by U.S. District Judge S. Arthur Spiegel.

Prosecutors won't say whether they'll recommend jail time for baseball's career hits leader, and they refuse to predict what the judge might do.

U.S. Attorney D. Michael Crites said similar cases have resulted in varying sentences.

"We've had some people that have gotten (jail) sentences, we've had others that have gotten probation. So I don't want to speculate on what Judge Spiegel may or may not do," Crites said.

NBA roundup...

NBA playoffs taking shape

by The Associated Press While the Cleveland Cavaliers were nailing it down in the East, Dale Ellis was filling it up in the West.

"I felt very confident when I shot the ball, I knew it was going in the basket," Ellis said after setting an NBA record with nine 3-pointers as the Seattle SuperSonics beat the Los Angeles Clippers 121-99 Friday night and closed in on a playoff berth.

Ellis finished with 36 points in Seattle's regular-season home finale. He made nine of 11 3-point shots and 13 of 16 shots overall.

With the victory, the Sonics moved into sole possession of the eighth and final playoff berth in the Western Conference. The Houston Rockets dropped out of a tie with the Sonics when they lost 121-120 to the Dallas Mavericks.

The Sonics (41-40) can wrap up their playoff berth over Houston (40-41) with a victory at Golden State on Sunday in their final regular-season game. But if the Sonics lose and Houston takes its regular-season finale at home against Utah, the Rockets will go to the playoffs instead of the Sonics because of a tie-breaker based on conference record.

Meanwhile, the NBA playoff picture in the Eastern Conference was cleared up when the Cavaliers secured the final berth with a 118-104 victory over Orlando. The Cavs nosed out the Atlanta Hawks, 126-112 winners over the New York Knicks.

In other NBA games, it was Miami 117, Washington 112; Boston 120, Chicago 116; Detroit 121, Indiana 115 in overtime; San Antonio 112, Denver 108; Utah 97, Minnesota 89, and Phoenix 123, Golden State 106.

Douglases to split

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Heavyweight champion James Douglas has filed for divorce, his wife's attorney said. Robin Stith, attorney for Bertha Douglas, said Douglas alleges gross neglect of duty and incompatibility.

SuperSonics 121, Clippers 99 Ellis had 22 points at halftime, making five of six 3-pointers as the Sonics held a 73-42 lead. He started the final quarter with eight 3-pointers and on the bench, but Sonics coach Bernie Bickerstaff inserted him into the game with 8:49 to go.

Ellis broke the NBA record of eight 3-pointers held by three players: Rick Barry for Houston in 1980, John Roche for Denver in 1982, and Michael Adams for Denver last season.

Mavericks 121, Rockets 120 Rolando Blackman scored six consecutive points in the final two minutes and James Donaldson added two decisive free throws with 13 seconds left as Dallas beat Houston.

Donaldson's two free throws put the Mavericks ahead 121-117 with 13 seconds to play, but the Rockets scored a fluke 3-pointer with seven seconds remaining when Floyd's shot from the left corner was tipped in accidentally by Dallas' Roy Tarpley.

Cavaliers 118, Magic 104 Mark Price scored 19 points and Craig Ehlo keyed a crucial fourth-quarter burst that enabled Cleveland to stop an Orlando rally.

Ehlo finished with 19 points, eight during a 13-4 spurt that opened a 16-point lead after the Magic had cut a 23-point deficit to seven.

The victory was the fifth straight for Cleveland, which has won 16 of 20 games to overcome a rash of early-season injuries and beat out Atlanta for the last post-season spot in the East.

Pokes gear up for draft day

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys own four choices in the top 81 picks of the NFL draft, and do they need them.

After going 1-15 in Jimmy Johnson's first season as head coach, there aren't many spots where the Cowboys couldn't use an infusion of talent.

The big mystery is who the Cowboys are going to take with their first round choice, which is No. 21 overall. The pick was obtained from Minnesota in the Herschel Walker trade.

Dallas lost its No. 1 pick, which would have been the top selection in the draft, by taking quarterback Steve Walsh in last summer's supplemental draft. Walsh started five games last season, including Dallas' 13-3 victory over the Washington Redskins.

The Cowboys have been shopping Walsh, but nothing has happened because their price is high — a No. 1 pick. Walsh, a backup behind Troy Aikman, will be available draft day.

Dallas was expected to take a running back or defensive lineman in the first round.

But on Thursday, the Cowboys traded two draft picks to world champion San Francisco 49ers for reserve running back Terrence Flagler and defensive end Dan Stubbs. Johnson projected both as possible starters.

"On draft day we'll take the best athlete available and there won't be as glaring a need for a running back or a pass rusher as there was prior to the trade," Johnson said.

Dallas gave up a second round pick (No. 47 overall) obtained in SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Columbia astronauts say they are not upset about having to wait in the shadow of next week's Discovery flight before they are given the go-ahead to fly into space with their astronomy laboratory.

While the seven Columbia astronauts have been preparing for their nine-day flight to observe ultraviolet rays and X-rays in deep space, the spotlight has been on Discovery's mission to deploy the $1.5 billion Hubble Space Telescope. That mission was delayed by two weeks but lift-off now is scheduled for Tuesday morning.

Columbia Commander Vance Brand said Friday he expects his mission, scheduled for May 9, will launch about three weeks after Discovery finally blasts off.

"We joke around that if they don't get out of the way, we'll run over them," Brand said.

Discovery is poised on one launch pad at Cape Canaveral, Fla., and Columbia was scheduled to be rolled out to the second one some 1.6 miles away on Sunday.

Two shuttles have not been on separate pads simultaneously since January 1986 when Challenger was moved to the pad while Columbia was awaiting launch. Challenger exploded 10 days after Columbia landed.

While the Columbia astronauts gave their pre-flight press conference Friday at Houston's Johnson Space Center, technicians at Cape Canaveral were installing Hubble's powerful batteries in preparation for launch. The batteries will power the telescope from the time it is disconnected from Discovery's power system until its energy-collecting solar panels are unfurled in space.

Hubble, once in orbit 380 miles above Earth, will be capable of detecting objects 50 times fainter and with 10 times greater clarity than the best ground-based observatory.

The Columbia crew will carry the $100 million Astro observatory into space to observe and measure ultraviolet radiation from objects in space without interference from the Earth's atmosphere. The four astronomers on the crew hope the three ultraviolet instruments and

Fired police officer weeps during trial

DALLAS (AP) — A fired Houston police officer who killed a 50-year-old woman following a freeway chase early Halloween morning wept on the stand as he recounted the shootout that cost him his job and left him charged with murder.

Alex Gonzales testified Friday that he consumed 11 to 13 mixed drinks and beers during the seven hours before the gun battle that left Ida Lee Delaney, a janitor, dead on the side of a freeway near the Astrodome.

But Gonzales insisted he was not drunk and didn't provoke the woman into a shootout.

The trial has heightened racial tensions in Houston. The victim was black and Gonzales is Hispanic. The trial was transferred to Dallas because of extensive news coverage in Houston, but civil rights groups have criticized the makeup of the jury, which is all white.

Ms. Delaney was killed after a 12-mile car chase, which Gonzales and two other off-duty officers said began when she fired at them without provocation. None of the officers was wearing a uniform at the time. They were driving Gonzales' 1988 Mercury Cougar.

Police say the exchange of gunfire occurred after Ms. Delaney stopped her pickup near a road-maintenance truck and Gonzales tried to arrest her.

Gonzales was shot in the chest and returned fire, killing Ms. Delaney.

He denied doing anything to cause the woman to fire. He also said he considered himself sober, despite blood tests that revealed an alcohol content of 0.19 percent, nearly double the legal level for intoxication.

By Gonzales' count, he consumed five or six beers and six or seven Screwdrivers between 10 p.m. Oct. 30 and 2:45 a.m. Oct. 31.

Former officers Alexander Romero, 25, and Robert Gonzales, 26, were with Alex Gonzales in his car about 5:15 a.m., when they encountered the black pickup driven by Ms. Delaney.

The three off-duty officers said they were driving to a restaurant for breakfast after a night of birthday celebrations for a colleague which included billiards and drinking at a bar and a topless dance club.

All three testified that Ms. Delaney fired a pistol at them after nearly running their car off Interstate 45.

"I saw the gun displayed on the driver's side window ... and the muzzle flash," Alex Gonzales told the jury. "I heard the sound."

The two other officers testified that they followed Ms. Delaney until she stopped her truck in front of a road-maintenance truck.

Project Home Safe set in May in Lubbock

In response to the problems facing "latchkey" children and their families, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service has joined forces with the American Home Economics Association to implement Project Home Safe.

Project Home Safe training, conducted by the county extension service, will be held May 22 and 23 in Lubbock for volunteers from Scurry County.

Individuals interested in participating in the training should contact Kathryn Roberts, Scurry County Extension Agent, at 573-5423.

"Latchkey" children is a term that dates back to the 19th century when house keys on neck chains were the badge of working class children on their own. While children in self care are not a product of the 1980s, the magnitude of the problem is.

Recent census data indicate about 2.1 million children between the ages of five and 13 spend some time in self care. Other sources estimate the number of latchkey children in that age category to be three or four times the official 2 million figure.

Regional Project Home Safe trainings are being held across the state. Parents and other concerned adults can call the toll free hotline at 1-800-252-SAFE to obtain information about the latchkey issues and school-age child care programs.

By utilizing the resources of professional home economists and other volunteers across the country, Project Home Safe will train individuals to work with coalitions of local leaders to assess local needs, identify available resources and develop a plan of action to solve local community problems of children in self care.

In communities which offer no alternative to the latchkey arrangement, life skills training for children in self care will be provided by Project Home Safe volunteers. In addition, volunteers will work to create local, state and national awareness of the needs and problems of young children who care for themselves.

the board band X-ray will shed light on galaxies, black holes and quasars.

"We think this has tremendous science potential," Brand said.

On Friday, the Columbia astronauts noted that their observatory should be able to relay information to the ground first even though Hubble will get to space sooner.

"One of the things we've frequently reminded the space telescope crew is that we will be sending down science data while space telescope is still doing engineering checkout, and so we should be able to beat them to the punch on getting down the first science data," said mission specialist Robert Parker.

For the first time since the Challenger accident, two payload specialists will fly into space aboard Columbia. Ronald Parise and Samuel Durrance will be operating the telescopes along with mission specialists Jeffrey Hoffman and Parker. The observatory will be in the shut-tle's cargo bay but will be operated by the astronauts in the shuttle cabin.

Parise is a senior scientist in the space observatories department at the Computer Sciences Corp. in Silver Spring, Md., and Durrance is a research scientist in the physics and astronomy department at John Hopkins University in Baltimore.

Pilot Guy Gardner and flight engineer John M. "Mike" Lounge will be in charge of maneuvering the orbiter so the telescopes can be aimed at different points in space. The seven astronauts will split into two shifts.

Even though the Hubble mission has been getting most of the media attention, Hoffman said the two flights are not in competition. He said he teases some of the Discovery crew members, saying he will get the chance to work as a space astronomer for more than a week.

"All they do is throw out a telescope. Anybody can do that," Hoffman joked.

Financial Focus

The Foundation for the Study of Cycles believes that history repeats itself. An international, non-profit research and educational institute, the foundation is the only institute of its kind dedicated to the study of cycles and their practical applications.

Before you dismiss this organization as just another think tank, consider that the foundation was started in New York by Edward Dewey, a noted economist, who was charged by the Hoover Administration to study the causes of the 1929 market crash.

Dewey's findings on economic cycles were so compelling that he, along with the head of the Smithsonian Institute, formed a foundation to study different cycles. The foundation does not restrict itself to studying economic cycles. For example, they're currently conducting a 12-year global study of mental-health cycles.

Headed today by Jeffrey H. Horowitz, M.D., the foundation has more than 2,500 members in 57 countries. Its membership includes professionals such as biologists, oceanographers, teachers and physicians. In the past 48 years, the foundation has identified and chartered about 4,880 consistent cycles.

In a recent issue of Cycles, a foundation publication, four different cyclical perspectives on the economy were explored: (1) The real-estate cyclical perspective, (2) The economic implications of commodities, (3) Solar boundary events and the economy, (4) The relationship to the economy of the 18.6 year lunar declination cycle. Although much of this is difficult for laymen to follow, the charts, paralleled with historical events, make both interesting reading and a strong case for recurring economic cycles.

The foundation offers a multicolored wall chart illustrating the historical record of stock prices in the United States from 1798 through 1988. It's easy to read and offers an impressive visual history of our economy.

Horowitz estimates that, with the foundation's data, his researchers can anticipate events with around 80 percent accuracy.

At the same time, he warns that cycles can vary by many months depending on external factors. Remember, the study of cycles is about identifying repetitive events, not, necessarily, their precise timing.

The bottom line is that there is no guaranteed method of accurately predicting anything. There is, however, a strong case for economic cycles, and it appears that the Foundation for the Study of Cycles does a credible job of assembling data into reasonable conclusions.

If you'd like to learn more about this unique organization, call (714) 261-7261 or write to 3333 Michelson Drive, Suite 210, Irvine, CA 92715-1607.

SPRING CAR CARE

Keep your car new for years to come

By Norm Hudecki

We have all probably heard the stories about the little old lady who still has her Model T Ford in mint condition, having only driven it to church on Sundays for the past 60 years.

Well, there are many more vehicles on the road that have 100,000 or more miles on the odometer and are still running strong. And in almost every case the reason for this longevity is simple: proper maintenance.

Many of you may have taken advantage of the good deals last fall and may now be proud owners of new cars and trucks. Whether you remain proud of your investment, and keep your vehicle in "like-new" condition for years to come, will depend on your attention to its maintenance needs. With that in mind, I offer the following maintenance schedule to get your car started off right.

For future reference, you might want to keep this column with a notebook in your glove compartment where you can record maintenance procedures. Such a record may even come in handy if you ever sell the vehicle, as a record of its good care.

And, finally, remember that if you do not feel comfortable performing any of these checks or changes yourself, there are plenty of qualified mechanics and specialty automotive centers, like quick-lube shops, that can handle it. The most important thing is for you to stay on top of things and know when to schedule your maintenance appointment.

• Oil and Filter Changes: As I have said many times before, motor oil is the lifeblood of your car's engine. Its performance is key to the rest of your engine working properly.

Above all, you should use the grade of motor oil recommended in your owner's manual. In 1990 models, most manufacturers are recommending "lighter" multi-grade oils with Energy Conserving II (EC-II) ratings, such as Valvoline's All-Climate 5W-30 and 10W-30 products.

You should also follow your owner's manual recommendations on oil and filter changes. Most of us drive between 5 and 30 miles a day, to and from work in stop-and-go traffic. Under these conditions, the oil and oil filter should be changed every three months or 3,000 miles, whichever comes first.

Frequent oil and filter changes are an economical way to insure prolonged engine life.

• Air Filter: Inspect your air filter every 3,000 miles and change it when it appears dirty. How often you actually have to change your air filter will depend on the mileage and the terrain where you drive. When is it dirty enough to change? When in doubt, go ahead and change it.

• Antifreeze/Engine Cooling System: Antifreeze can be easily checked on newer-model cooling system flush. It should be changed immediately when the solution is dirty, rusty or contains large amounts of sediment.

Also, check the hoses and clamps around the radiator on a regular basis to make sure they are properly connected.

• Battery: It's wise to have a trained mechanic check your battery fluid and connections. This should be done monthly, especially in cold weather. If water is required, make sure only distilled water is used.

• Tires: At least once a month you should check your tires to make sure they are properly inflated, according to the pressure recommended on the tire and in the owner's manual. Also look for signs of irregular tread wear.

Incorrect air pressure can cause premature or abnormal wear, which ultimately could lead to a dangerous blowout. Correct air pressure not only produces a smooth, safe ride, but it also can help increase fuel economy.

• Chassis Lubrication: Most vehicles are now manufactured with semi-permanent lubrication. Most automakers recommend relubrication around 25,000 miles or every three years.

• Transmission Fluid: You should check the transmission-fluid level at least every two months.

Your driving habits will dictate how often the fluid needs to be changed. If you drive mostly short trips in stop-and-go traffic, your transmission fluid should be changed between 15,000 and 25,000 miles, depending upon your vehicle manufacturer. As always, let your owner's manual be your guide.

• Brake Fluid: Brake fluid should be checked whenever checking other vital fluid levels. Be sure to clean the top of the master cylinder with a clean cloth before removing the cap. And use only brake fluid conforming to DOT 3 requirements when additions are required. Frequent need to add brake fluid is an indication of severe brake wear.

• Power-Steering Fluid: Power-steering fluid should also be checked during your regular underhood service. Always turn the engine off before doing this check to prevent injury. Clean the cap to avoid contaminating the fluid with dirt.

If power-steering fluid is required, consult your owner's manual for the correct type. Using the wrong fluid can cause hose and pump damage.

• Tune-Up: Make sure your vehicle gets a complete tune-up at least once a year, preferably before winter if you live in a cold climate. Regular tune-ups improve fuel efficiency, extend engine life and help reduce harmful emissions.

Remember to check your owner's manual for specific recommendations and instructions in all of these areas. Most of these steps take only a few minutes and could make your car last as long as the little old lady's Model T.

Attention to auto maintenance helps insure good performance

Despite engineering advances on today's automobiles, attention to two maintenance duties this spring are needed to help insure peppy, spirited performance from your vehicle throughout the warm-weather season.

They are:

- Replacing spark plugs, a traditional car-care measure, which is just as important as always in restoring snappy engine response.
- Servicing the fuel injection system, a new wrinkle, becoming more important for cars in the 1990s.

According to engineers at Champion Spark Plug, most vehicles are in need of recuperative maintenance following the demands of winter driving they have recently experienced.

The "old-fashioned tune-up" has changed considerably over the years because of improved equipment on cars. Gone from concern to owners of new models are such traditional practices as setting the timing, installing new points, and adjusting the carburetor.

Still required, however, is the spark plug. It remains the vital link in the ignition system.

The Champion engineers explained that particularly after winter, when most automotive engines experience significant periods of idling, warming up, and stop-and-go driving, carbon and other deposits can build up on the spark plugs. A new set of spark plugs, as part of a spring tune-up, is a quick, inexpensive, and effective way to restore performance to an engine.

Leather longevity —

A little care can provide for lifetime of service

There once was a time when leather-covered car seats were taken for granted. It was the only upholstery material available and every driver knew how to keep it clean, soft, and make it last. But for the current generation of owners, many raised on vinyl "leatherette" seats in the family car, leather is a new discovery — and its care, a mystery.

LEATHER-COVERED CAR SEATS look good, feel great and keep clean with minimum maintenance. ‡

According to Dan David, Saab Scania of America's national service manager, "leather is actually very easy to maintain. It's just a matter of knowing what not to do. 'Most importantly, do not use hot water, saddle soap, shoe polish, solvents, or aerosol sprays.'"

The finish of high-quality leather is designed to protect its natural beauty. Constant handling and atmospheric dust, however, will tone down the leather's color. This does not affect its wearing qualities; in fact, a mature patina is the desired effect.

"The leather will give you a lifetime of service, as it did in those earlier days," David said. "But too dirty a surface will spoil the leather's appearance."

"After considerable use, dirt accumulates in the valleys of the grain," he said. "The best way to remove it is with a damp, not wet, cloth rinsed in luke-warm water with a mild hand soap."

David recommends rubbing the surface of the leather gently, with a light, circular motion, and then repeating with clear water only. Care should be taken not to soak the leather. When the leather is dry, it can be polished with a dry soft cotton cloth.

"Prevention is better than cure, and regular cleaning in this manner will prevent dirt from becoming too ingrained," David said.

SPRING CAR CARE

Oils 'tell' ability to protect today's hotter-running engines

In the old days of hand-cranked, high wheels and wooden spokes, Great Grandpa threw out his auto engine oil every 500 miles.

Lasting much longer, petroleum science's modern brew not only provides superior protection for today's hotter-running engines — but also includes special ingredients that do everything from fighting corrosion to helping engine seals maintain a tight fit.

Today's smaller engines produce more power per pound than ever before — by running faster and hotter. Advances in engine oil have kept pace, with new quality ratings based on tougher scientific tests of improved oil characteristics.

And the label on the container tells you, the motorist, what quality of oil you're buying.

The ratings result from the work of three national industry and scientific societies — the Engineering Society for Advancing Mobility Land Sea Air and Space (called SAE), the American Society for Testing and Materials, and the American Petroleum Institute.

SAE ratings for viscosity (flowability) and API ratings for oil quality are based on testing developed by ASTM.

For new gasoline-powered vehicles, carmakers generally call for SG oil, a new higher rating defined last year, and SAE 5W-30 or 10W-30 viscosity.

"S" stands for "spark combustion," and G is the highest current grade. Many gasoline-powered cars call for SG-CC oil; the CC ratings (the first "C" stands for combustion by compression) were developed for moderate-duty diesel engines. Apparently, a CC oil provides better performance at high temperatures in the ring zone in the engine; CC oils keep rings and pistons cleaner. Under latest rating terminology, the SG rating includes the CC rating; in other words, an SG oil is the top-rated oil for gasoline engines but qualifies also to handle diesel engines calling for CC oil.

The smaller the viscosity number, the easier the oil flows. An oil with two viscosity numbers, as in SAE 5W-30, lets you have the best of both worlds: easier flow for easier starting in the winter cold — but more body for better resistance to summer heat. The number with the "W" after it is awarded according to tests at specified cold temperatures, the other number for tests at higher temperatures.

Prevent lethal exhaust emissions

Exhaust emissions and engine performance go hand-in-hand. A smooth running, efficient engine probably would pass inspection in most parts of the U.S.A., says Car Care Council. Computerized controls have made important contributions to cleaner running, more efficient engines but computers cannot compensate for serious engine neglect.

Diagnostic services and periodic tune-ups still are essential to prevent driveability problems.

The engine components most often responsible for performance difficulties on modern cars are the air filter, the spark plugs and the fuel injectors.

Together or individually, these three can lead to poor combustion in the engine. But an important part of the driveability team is the oxygen sensor. This sensitive device in the emissions control system "sniffs" for a specified amount of oxygen. It then tells the computer controls on the engine to compensate as needed.

An air filter loaded with dust and dirt, for example, will cause the fuel-air mixture to be overly rich. Conversely, a clogged fuel injector may produce a lean mixture. Further, worn spark plugs may misfire, causing unburned fuel to pass through the exhaust system. Any of these conditions can lead to excessive pollutants in the exhaust.

The oxygen sensor signals the computer controls to compensate for the condition and adjustments are made. But the sensor can be "fooled" and mistakenly can signal the engine to correct the wrong problem, thereby leading to poor engine operation.

A misfiring spark plug, for example, will allow fuel to pass through the engine without being burned. The oxygen sensor does not scent the fuel but it does record the high oxygen content. In turn, it signals the computer to enrich the mixture, aggravating the original problem.

Preventive maintenance saves consumers money

The National Automobile Dealers Association (NADA) recommends a routine weekly maintenance program and urges consumers to follow money-saving procedures:

- Make sure that fluids such as engine oil, coolant, power steering and brake fluids are at specified levels.
- Inspect drive belts to make sure they are not frayed, worn or at improper tension levels.
- Check tire pressures once a week to prevent excessive or uneven tire wear.

SPRING CAR CARE

Spring car wash and wax makes owners happier

"It's uplifting."
 "It's like going to the beauty parlor."
 "It makes me feel good."
 In a recent survey by the International Carwash Association this is how numerous car owners responded when asked, "How do you feel when you go to a car wash?" "With the approach of nicer spring weather, keeping one's car looking good can be even more gratifying," says an association spokesperson adding, "Motorists spend an estimated $2.5 billion annually at some 23,000 professional car washes in the U.S. and Canada. Knowing a few facts about car cleaning and care can increase the life of your car and the pleasure of owning it."
 • Check your car for winter damage and touch up minor nicks, especially along door edges and door sills. While doing so, make a resolution to keep your car clean — people respect a clean, well-kept car and are less likely to abuse it in parking lots and at filling stations.

 • The most important time to wash your car is after a rain. Modern finishes are made up of several layers of pigmented paint covered with a coat of shiny protective varnish called a clear coat. Rain often carries sulfuric acid which can eat through the clear coat causing damage that looks like water spots, but cannot be removed. To remove acid-rain residue, professional washes use solutions that are monitored constantly to balance the PH, and neutralize the effect of acid rain.
 • According to the International Carwash Association, professional car washing is gentler. It eliminates possible damage from home washing with detergents and car soap mixtures that are too alkaline. Such soap mixtures may not rinse well and in turn leave a filmy, dull finish or spots. In hard water areas, professional car washes soften and demineralize the final rinse to eliminate spotting. Car washes adjust the cleaning solutions depending on the season, and in the summer a high percentage of bug-removing solutions are added. For those in water scarce areas, Association officials note that professional car washing uses less water than the at-home, hose and bucket method — 30 gallons versus up to 148 gallons.

 • Rust and corrosion: The major cause of cars rusting out is dirt and road grime sticking to crevices. This holds moisture to the undercarriage. Professional car washes offer an undercarriage spray that removes dirt and adds a rust inhibitor to reduce the effect of corrosive road grime.

 • To get your car off to the right start this spring, consider a hand-applied top-of-the-line wax. These waxes are buffed with power buffers that heat the car's surface to burnish the wax and produce a more glossy, protective shine. In between top-of-the-line waxing, automatically-applied wax will prolong the shine and protection. These waxes include a sealer wax which shines the car, protects the finish and helps to reduce rusting and pitting. Car washes also offer a premium automatic wax for a dollar or so more. These waxes, known in some areas as poly-creme, give more of a top-of-the-line wax look. Automatic waxes last about one week or so, and the two types may be used together to produce a more durable, long-lasting shine.

Is Your Vehicle Prepared For Vacation Motoring?

- The answer will likely be a confident, "Yes," if all the items on this list are checked and necessary maintenance performed. Some of the items listed below will require assistance from a professional mechanic, although many may easily be performed by car owners themselves. A few other service items may require a more experienced do-it-yourselfer.
- Will it overheat?
- Check hoses. They should be firm, but flexible with no cracks, bulges or soft spots. Check connections for leaks.
  - Check belts. When pushed with a finger, they should not "give" more than one-half inch. They should show no signs of fraying, wear or age.
  - Check radiator coolant. (Do not remove radiator cap.) The recovery tank should be filled to "cold" mark.
  - Check pressure. Test cooling system with pressure to determine if there are any leaks.
  - Check radiator cap. It must hold pressure.
- Will it keep you cool?
- Check air conditioner. If it is not working effectively, it may need a shot of freon.
- Will its tires survive?
- Check tire pressure. Owner's manual will give proper tire pressure for your car.
  - Check condition of all tires. There should be no excessive wear, cuts or other abrasions.
  - Check spare tire. Its pressure and condition are important too.
- Is it wasting fuel?
- Check spark plugs. If they are worn or have dirty deposits on firing end, replace them. Check gap on each to determine if it meets your car's specifications.
  - Check air filter and PCV valve. Hold filter up to sunlight; if light can't be seen through, replace it; PCV valve also requires periodic replacement.
  - Clean and adjust the automatic choke, if equipped.
  - Tune up the engine. This includes inspection of points (if equipped), ignition wires, and distributor cap and adjustment of timing and carburetor idle settings.
- Are its inner workings lubricated?
- Check oil. Examine dipstick and fill if necessary. Change oil at mileage listed in owner's manual.
  - Replace oil filter, when recommended in owner's manual. Check transmission fluid. Check level when engine is running and warm and gearshift is in park.
- Is it safe?
- Check brake fluid. Fluid should be 1/4-inch from top of reservoir.
  - Check brakes. Examine brake linings, pads, drums, discs, etc., for wear or degradation.
  - Check all lights. Headlights (low and high beam), tail lights, brake lights, parking lights, instrument panel lights and all turn signal lights must be functioning.
  - Check horn.
  - Check exhaust system for leaks.
  - Check windshield wipers. They should be working and able to clear moisture without streaking, skipping or smearing. If not, replace them.
  - Check windshield washer system. Washer pump should be working and reservoir filled with fluid.
  - Check power steering fluid. Examine dipstick when engine is warm.
  - Clean windows and mirrors. Visibility is essential for safe driving.
- Will it start
- Tune engine. Ignition systems, including spark plugs, wires, timing distributor and coil must be functioning properly for sure starts.
  - Check the battery. If it is not a maintenance-free battery, check the fluid level and fill if necessary. Clean any corrosion from battery terminals. Test battery for charge; winter may have eroded some of its power.
- How does it handle?
- Check shock absorbers or struts. Worn out shocks alter a car's handling characteristics, make the ride less comfortable and increase tire wear.
  - Check universal joints, tie rod ends, ball joints and steering linkage. Failure of any of these can lead to an accident.
  - Check wheel alignment. Problems can lead to steering difficulty and prematurely worn tires. Many newer cars require alignment service on all four wheels.

O-O-OUCH! National Highway Traffic Safety Administration crash dummies "Vince" and "Larry" look at the damage being done to an egg that went unbuckled in a reenactment by Nils Bohlin of the "Egg Cart" demonstration filmed by Volvo in the early 1960s to promote seat-belt usage. Another egg, wearing a seat belt, remained securely in place in the scale model test vehicle. Mr. Bohlin, the Volvo engineer who invented the one-piece 3-point lap/shoulder belt in 1959 and then went on to help pave the way for its use throughout the world, was elected to the Safety and Health Hall of Fame, established in Warrensburg, Missouri in 1986 to honor individuals who have made outstanding contributions to the well-being of mankind. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration estimates that in 1988 an average of 12.5 lives were saved daily because of the 3-point lap/shoulder belt. That's one life saved every couple of hours, day in and day out; or more than 4,500 for the entire year. †

Avoid slow warm-ups

A familiar scene on a cool morning is a car idling in a driveway with exhaust billowing from its tailpipe. In the house, the owner comfortably finishes his second cup of coffee. The car will be toasty warm when he's ready to take off for work.
 The owner may justify this wasteful practice with the excuse that the car operates better when it is allowed to warm up before driving.
 Wrong, says Car Care Council. When the choke is set, as is the case when a cold engine is started and then left at fast idle, the car is burning gas at a furious rate.
 Engine wear is accelerated because raw fuel from the enriched mixture washes lubricating oil down the cylinder walls. This also contaminates the oil in the engine crankcase, further inviting engine damage.

 There is a greater tendency for spark plugs to foul under these conditions too. The excessively rich mixture is an ideal environment for plug fouling.
 Another consideration is the possibility of overheating the catalytic converter in the exhaust system. Unburned fuel in the exhaust is burned off in the converter. If it gets hot enough it could set something on fire, especially if the car is parked over a flammable substance which could catch fire.
 In any type of weather, the car should be started, run for a minute or less at idle and then driven at moderate speed until the engine has reached normal operating temperature.

Obituaries

Zadia Mae Miller

1900-1990
Services for Zadia Mae Miller, 89, of 2512 Towle Park Road will be 4:30 p.m. Sunday at the First Christian Church. Dr. Tim Griffin, pastor of the church, will officiate. He will be assisted by Rev. Bill Parker, pastor of First Christian Church in Granbury, Rev. Jo Taylor, Rev. Larry Colvin, and Rev. Tim Colvin. Burial will be in the Snyder Cemetery.

Mrs. Miller died at 11:50 p.m. Thursday at her residence.

She was born Dec. 28, 1900, at the 49 Ranch in Gail. She married Charles C. Miller Aug. 18, 1919, and was a life-long resident of Borden and Scurry Counties.

She was preceded in death by her husband, Charles; a son, Charles Conway; and a sister, Johnny Profit.

She is survived by five daughters, Jeanne Duke of Snyder, Jo Taylor and Lou White, both of Arlington, Judy Allen of Dallas, and Lynda Jones of Atlanta, Ga.; two sisters, Edna Miller of Fluvanna and Willie Ruth Russell of Duncan, Okla.; 19 grandchildren and 22 great-grandchildren.

Thelma Lawrence

1907-1990
SWEETWATER — Services for Thelma Icel Lawrence, 83, of Sweetwater were to be held today at the First United Methodist Church with the Revs. Lane Boyd and Steve Birdwell officiating. Burial was to be in Garden of Memories Cemetery, directed by McCoy Funeral Home.

Mrs. Lawrence died Thursday in her home. She was the mother of D'Ann Grimm of Snyder.

She was born in Elk City, Okla., and had lived in Sweetwater since 1929 where she and her husband owned and operated grocery stores. She was active in First United Methodist Church for many years and served as a board member of Sears Methodist Memorial Center. She was an organizer of Senior Nutritional Activities Program and worked with the Girl Scouts. She was the widow of J.M. Lawrence.

Other survivors include three sons, Jack Lawrence, Jere Lawrence and Tere Lawrence, all of Sweetwater; a brother, O.L. Nichols of Clyde; nine grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren.

Rodeo here through Sunday

rider Shane Guldbransen moved into first place with his score of 73 Friday and team ropers Russell Merchant and Jim Phillips captured second place as they clocked a 6.4.

Lisa Meloy and Jennifer Lee, both WTC cowgirls, kept their 1-2 times in goat tying. Meloy holds a 7.9-second run in the event and Lee is carrying an 8.2.

Western's Darrin Cook nudged TSU bull rider Toby Floyd from the top spot with a 75 score Friday. Tarleton and Howard are knotted for third place in the bull riding with 69s from James Hays and Brian Harmon, respectively.

Following Guldbransen in saddle bronc riding is Vernon Regional Junior College cowboy Justin Lane, who carded a 72 in Thursday's first performance. He held first until being bumped Friday. Third place in the event is held by Tarleton State University's Wade Hebb who registered a 68 Thursday. Joe Dan Brumbelow, an Odessa College cowboy, holds fourth with his Friday ride of 67.

Bareback rider Bobby Pautsky held on to first place in bareback riding with his Thursday night score of 74. He is trailed by Guldbransen with a 66 and Yancey Cashell and Brian Davis, both of Tarleton, with 61s.

Mitzi Mayes from Vernon trails the WTC duo of Meloy and Lee in goat tying. Her 8.2-second time ties her for second place with Lee and puts her ahead of Texas Tech's Melanie Graf with an 8.4.

Calf roping times improved drastically Friday as the top three ropers in Thursday's round fell from the standings.

Tarleton State's Shawn Felton took over the top spot in the event with a 10.3-second time earned in Friday night slack.

Brent Lewis of NMJC follows with a 10.4 and Bubba Flores of Odessa registered an 11.1 for third place. Eastern New Mexico roper Doug Purdy turned in an 11.2 time and holds fourth position.

Breakaway roping times were quicker Friday, also, as Thursday's first place time, a 3.7 from Odessa's Marcey Wacker, slipped to third behind a 3.1 from J.J. Hampton of TSU and a 3.6 from VRJC's Amy Cockrell. Western's Lee eased into fourth place with a 3.8-second outing.

Frank Phillips steer wrestler Kirby Kaul saw his time of 4.7 fall from first to second Friday when Howard wrangler Trey Wardlaw posted a 4.5. Merchant took over third for WTC with a 6.1 and Lane claimed fourth for VRJC with his 6.2.

Barrel racing was another event where the standings shook after Friday's show.

Allison Lookingbill was in first place with a 14.58 time after the rodeo's initial performance but slid to sixth place after Friday's quick times.

Tarleton State rider Shelli Walls scampered to a 14.07 to pace the field, followed by a 14.16 from Howard's Robin Wardlaw. Third place in the event belongs to ENMU cowgirl Candi Leatherwood with a 14.20 while TSU rider Casey Miller notched a 14.31 to move into fourth.

Police work four wrecks

Police investigated four traffic accidents Friday and early Saturday, the first at 12:14 p.m. Friday in the Pizza Hut parking lot, where a parked 1983 Honda, owned by Linda Wemken of Rt. 3, had been struck by a motorist who had left the scene without notifying anyone of the mishap.

A 1982 Ford driven by Joe G. Warren of 113 Scurry St. hit a parked 1985 Chrysler owned by Lola Gaddis of Rt. 2 at 4:28 p.m. Friday in the Lawrence IGA supermarket parking lot.

At 7:56 p.m. Friday in the McDonald's restaurant parking lot off College Ave., a 1979 Chevrolet driven by Gary D. Parker of Muleshoe was in collision with a 1988 Chevrolet pickup driven by Larry W. Ramsey of Timpson, in Shelby County adjacent to Louisiana.

And at 3:45 a.m. Saturday in the 2400 Block of Ave. T, a 1985 Jeep driven by Josephine R. Hinojos of 1301 Ave. R hit a storage building owned by Dub Buchanan and Max Stephens, causing an undetermined amount of damages.

Mischief

Herman Campos of 2911 Ave. J told police at 6:48 p.m. Friday that someone had scratched the finish on his 1982 Chevrolet Monte Carlo.

An officer said the incident was being investigated as a case of criminal mischief.

R-12 being phased out

CFCs have been identified as a probable cause of depletion of the earth's ozone layer. Environmental concerns are increases in health problems, damage to crops, damage to aquatic organisms, increases in ground level ozone and increased global warming.

While the Montreal Protocol calls for a reduction of CFCs, it does not seek total elimination, and the reduction will occur over a period of time.

Other consumer cost increases are expected to be impacted by special equipment and possible licensing of shops and certification programs for service personnel.

Equipment to recycle the refrigerant and to replace the compound from bulk containers runs as much as $5,000, costs that must be passed on to the consumer.

While alternative refrigerants are being tested, the new products have minimum success in traditional air conditioning systems. New vehicles likely will have new designs, including elimination of the belt-drive compressor, resulting in other increased costs.

Some shops are expected to move to bulk charging equipment, but perhaps delay purchase of costly recycling equipment.

Those attending the seminar were told one aim of the government is to get the cost of repairing your air conditioner so high, that consumers will decide to do without it.

Hubert H. Humphrey, the 38th vice president of the United States, was born in Wallace, S.D., in 1911.

Employee of the Month

Leeann Zajicek is a lifelong Snyder resident. She is the daughter of Kenneth and Jan Pierce. She is married to David Zajicek and they have a 3-year-old daughter, Heather. Leeann has been employed at IGA for 1-1/2 years. She was recently promoted to night office manager. In her spare time, Leeann enjoys working outside on her yard.

Scurry County Folks

By Shirley A. Gorman

Britt Canada, assistant professor, has taught computer science at Western Texas College since 1984, but there is more to him than bytes, computer discs, BASIC, COBOL and FORTRAN. Besides being well-versed in both computer science and math, he is also the originator and guiding force behind Sunday's sixth annual Wildflower Day observance in Scurry County.

While it may seem a little unusual that someone who teaches computer science and tackles math and statistical problems with ease would also have a keen knowledge of wildflowers and respect for Mother Nature, Canada says that it is because he stays so involved in the sterile world of computers and math that he needs an abiding interest in wildflowers to keep him "anchored to the earth."

The first Wildflower Day was held at Texas Women's University in Denton where Canada taught from 1979-1984. Canada said Carroll Abbott was the prime mover behind that first observance. While at TWU, Canada worked with the TWU Wildflower Day Committee from 1982-1984.

"When I came to WTC in September of 1984, I brought the idea with me," he told the Snyder Daily News. College officials approved the idea, a committee was formed and WTC held its first Wildflower Day on April 26-27, 1985.

Canada said both Dr. Harry Krenek, college president, and Shirley Leftwich, director of the Scurry County Museum, have been very supportive these past six years. And each year since that first Wildflower Day, Canada and other proponents of the celebration have worked to expand and improve the activities.

But the basics usually remain the same: a display of wild flower specimens, creative writing and art projects, photo contest and displays in the museum.

Everything is usually displayed at the museum during "Wild Flower Month", several receptions are planned usually, and as many as 1,000-1,500 people visit the museum to see the Wildflower Day related displays he said.

Last year, Scurry County students submitted 922 creative writing and art projects. Each year, the museum chooses a different theme with wild flower legends serving as the 1990 theme.

A Wildflower Trail is marked at the college and anyone visiting WTC on Sunday will not only have the opportunity to learn something about nature, they will also be able to see some Texas wild flowers growing in their natural habitat.

The Wildflower Day program begins at 1 p.m. Sunday in the museum. The agenda includes a wild flower slide show, reception, displays of the winning art and writing projects, and a trek along the Wildflower Trail.

Canada who has continued to serve as the chairman of the WTC Texas Wildflower Day Committee, said it would be "impossible to observe the Wild Flower Day without the support of Dr. Krenek and the museum staff."

Canada also praises the efforts of other volunteers who each year help to coordinate the special day. They include:

WILD FLOWER ENTHUSIAST—Britt Canada, an assistant professor who teaches computer science at Western Texas College, is also the originator and one of the driving forces behind Sunday's sixth annual Wild Flower Day observance in Scurry

County. The day's activities begin at 1 p.m. at the Scurry County Museum and will include a hike along a specially marked Wild Flower Trail for those interested. (SDN Staff Photo) to maintain this part of the campus as a prairie instead of a lawn.

Before this change took place, Canada said wild flowers would bloom, start looking ragged and would be mowed before the seeds could mature. "Thus, the numbers of wild flowers would greatly diminish over time."

He explained that this part of the campus is not irrigated and since it only receives moisture when it rains it didn't need to be mowed as often as other areas of the campus.

Canada said Mitchell has been "most patient with this project."

"When wild flowers are in bloom, they look pretty good," he said. "But when they set seed and before those seeds mature, many times the seed heads and brown vegetation look pretty sad."

Now, Canada said, the Wild Flower Management Area is mowed just twice a year, once in late spring (usually early June) after the early blooming plants have matured and once in late October after the first freeze.

Each year the Wild Flower Path has some 25-40 wild flowers that bloom on the campus, depending on the type of year. "By setting up a Wild Flower Path we hope to identify many of these and let people see these native plants in their natural environment," Canada said.

He said this aspect of the annual Wild Flower Day has been very successful and is very popular with the many school groups that tour the museum each April.

Local efforts to support wild flowers have not gone unnoticed as two awards were presented in 1986—one to Canada, a Texas Sesquicentennial citation, and the museum received the Texas Historical Commission Museum Project Award.

Canada said he and members of the Wild Flower Committee

Outstanding creativity linked to mental illness

NEW YORK (AP) — There is a link between outstanding creativity and mental illness, ac-ording to Health Magazine.

It says a study shows artistic people most often suffer from mood related behavioral illnesses, including manic depression. In many cases, families often had a high incidence of both the illness and the high creativity, suggesting there may be a genetic link to these traits.

The study also contradicts the theory that affected artists are more creative during the peak of their mental illness. It claims artistic temperament is most creative during periods of relatively normal behavior.

HORSES REQUIRED TO HAVE EIA TEST BEFORE SHOWS

Polo players, barrel racers, trail riders or anyone taking horses to fairs, races or events must have the animals tested for Equine Infectious Anemia (EIA), an infectious virus that can weaken or kill infected animals.

Although some horses infected with the virus develop symptoms of fever and weight loss, other horses appear healthy, but carry the virus and could spread disease.

To protect against the virus, the Texas Animal Health Commission (TEHC) requires that, along with the customary certificates of veterinary inspection, an EIA test document must also be shown when horses are taken to an event.

The certificate of veterinary inspection is valid 45 days for animals that are not to be sold. The test, commonly known as a "Coggins test," must have been run in the last six months. To run this test, a veterinarian draws blood from the animal and sends the sample to one of the U.S. Department of Agriculture approved laboratories, of which 30 are located in Texas.

There is no vaccine or cure for EIA, and until researchers develop effective drugs, the tactic is to find animals that react to the EIA test and keep them apart from healthy horses.

EIA can be transmitted from an infected horse by biting flies, blood transfusions, or by the use of unsterilized and contaminated medical instruments, such as needles or scalpels.

During the state's 1989 fiscal year, 484 EIA "reactor" horses were found in Texas. Since September 1989, another 281 have been found.

When an EIA "reactor" is confirmed, a TAHC vet or animal health inspector works with the owner and private vet to determine how to care for the animal. State regulations require that the owner must choose to either keep the infected animal quarantined at least 200 yards from the other horses; obtain a permit to transport the animal to TAHC-approved research or diagnostic facility to aid in disease research; or have the animal destroyed.

This information was received from the Texas Animal Health Clinic.

SOCIAL SECURITY NUMBERS PAY OFF FOR IRS

Now that the Internal Revenue Service requires Social Security numbers for dependents on tax returns, the strategy appears to be paying off. Seven million dependents "disappeared" between 1986 and 1987 tax returns, suggesting that not all the dependents that had been claimed (when Social Security numbers were not required) were bona fide dependents.

Tax audits have resulted in an average additional tax owed per return of more than $2,000. The IRS will target for audit the tax returns that showed seven dependents or more for 1986 returns than were listed for 1987. The IRS estimates that about three billion dollars of extra tax revenue will be collected when fewer dependency exemptions are claimed by taxpayers.

Colas vs Milk
*The years of childhood and adolescence are the now-or-never years to build strong teeth and bones. Adequate calcium in the diet is an absolute necessity. Why is it then that so many youngsters are drinking colas (no calcium) rather than milk (the calcium food)? Osteoporosis (weak bones), poor teeth, and other body deficiencies may well be the result in later years of sodas replacing milk.

also work with James Eby, director of the college's Golf and Landscape Technology Department, and Don Buckland, GLT instructor. "Both men are extremely interested in using native plants in landscapes when possible," Canada said.

"It does make a lot of sense to plant drought tolerant plants in West Texas where water is scarce," he said. "Water costs money. It is a natural resource and we need to conserve it when possible. Technically, this is called xeriscaping."

Canada said the GLT department has established a native plant area and has planted several native plants around their building. "People can see what these plants look like and can start putting them in their own landscapes."

The GLT department has also established some test plots of lawn grasses on the campus. "Personally, I feel that this type of 'practical' research is very helpful," Canada said, adding, "The GLT department has grown some plants for this year's observance and helps in providing some materials for the Wild Flower Path."

"Overall, I see this as part of the community college concept. I feel that this is a tangible way that the college gives back to the community something that is useful and educational. I believe that there is much more interest in wild flowers and native plants in Snyder because of the Wild Flower Day emphasis," Canada said.

Canada and his wife, Tonya, who teaches kindergarten at West Elementary, have three children: Shannon is an eighth grader, Britney is in the third grade and Laura is a second gradestudent.

He earned a bachelor of science (biology) from West Texas State University in 1974; a master of science (biology) from WTSU in 1976; and a master of science (statistics) from the University of Dallas in 1981.)

His teaching areas of specialization include college algebra, calculus I, statistical packages, chemistry, computer languages, (BASIC, COBOL, FORTRAN, Pascal), computer application, and introduction to computers.

Canada served as a program analyst (part-time) for the Medical Computing Resource Center UTHSCD from 1977-1981 and he taught at Colorado City High School during the 1976-77 school year.

This summer he will teach math at the Price Daniel Unit in Snyder.

He has also had several articles published during the last decade.

In 1981, Canada was selected to present an abstract program at Sigma Xi's Annual Graduate Student Research Forum, UTHSCD.

He also helped write a pharmacology reference data base in 1982; helped to conduct data analysis for study on bone transplants in 1982; and served as the statistician with Women's Health Study and conducted data analysis for the Dallas division.

Canada's community and service awards include serving as the president of the WTC Faculty Association from 1987-88; Scurry County Sesquicentennial Committee from 1985-86, chairman of the WTC Texas Wildflower Day Committee from 1984 until the present; and serving on the TWU Texas Wildflower Day Committee, 1982-84.

Canada is also a member of the Native Plant Society where he serves as the Panhandle regional vice president from 1984 until present; a member of the Computing Machinery from 1984 until the present; and a member of the American Statistical Association from 1980 until present.

Canada also provided some biographical information about Carroll Abbott who organized the first Wild Flower Day.

Because he wished to devote his time to saving the wild flowers which were disappearing in Texas, Abbott, in 1970, quit a high-paying job in political public relations and he began by harvesting seeds from pastures and to dig plants from ditches. In order to survive, he sold the plants for small landscaping jobs. He spoke to garden clubs and designed a color photo calendar of Texas wildflowers. He also published a book, "How To Know and Grow Texas Wildflowers" in 1978 and he established a mail order business.

By 1979, Abbott's hard work had begun to pay off as wild flower sales picked up. In 1981, he was the state's only registered wildflower lobbyist and he persuaded the Legislature to designate the fourth Saturday in April as Texas Wildflower Day.

Chef feeds hungry

NEW YORK (AP) — A successful restaurant chef rarely feeds people who truly are hungry. That has prompted chefs to focus their charity work on hunger.

With the non-profit organization Share Our Strength, chefs around the country raised more than $1 million last month at "Taste of the Nation" events in 66 cities, according to Joann Shepherd, SOS associate director.

With all the food and services donated for the third annual Taste of the Nation, 100 percent of the proceeds will go to local hunger groups or to such organizations as Save the Children, SOS said.

"I hope it will help many people, but still it's a drop in the bucket," said Daniel Boulud of New York's Le Cirque restaurant.

"I get asked to do a lot of charities," Anne Rosenzweig of Arcadia restaurant said at the New York City event at Avery Fisher Hall. "It's most important to do charities that are close to us."

In working to fight hunger, she said, chefs are trying "to pay back the industry that has been so good to us."

Rosenzweig was among 24 New York chefs from some of the city's best-known — and most expensive — restaurants who set up tasting tables for diners who paid $125 apiece to taste her corn cakes with creme fraiche and caviar and the other dishes. They included Carolina rock shrimp saute in barbecue butter, roquefort souffle with apple cream sauce, cured tuna with fresh herb salad, roasted chili oysters and cold stuffed veal.

Reasoning prevails

By James Jacoby

Willy Nilly was out of his element. When his partner opened in fourth seat and then raised his heart suit, Willy got aggressive and invited game. North was happy to accept, despite the liability of having Willy as declarer. When the diamond two was led, Willy won the ace immediately and made the normal best percentage play in the trump suit. He cashed dummy's ace, guarding against a singleton queen, and then ran the 10. That lost to West's queen. The defenders then cashed a diamond. Later they got a club trick plus the ace of spades — down one.

Willy's friend Careful Charlie would have done better. He would have ducked the first diamond. East would win the king and return a low diamond to West's 10. Charlie would win dummy's ace and immediately lead a low spade back to his king. When that won the trick, Charlie would know that East had started with ace of spades and surely K-J of diamonds. (If West held Q-J-10 of diamonds, his opening lead would have been the queen.) Charlie would then have taken a first-round finesse against the heart queen, playing West to have it. His reasoning would be simple: Maybe he would lose to the trump queen in the East hand. If so, the club finesse would almost certainly work for him. If East originally held 12 high-card points with ace of spades and K-J of diamonds, he would very likely have opened the bidding in first position. Charlie's approach would win, an educated guess always being superior to a random — or willy-nilly — play.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books.

Jacket is wardrobe option

NEW YORK (AP) — If you are limited to just one addition to your wardrobe this spring, you probably should opt for a jacket. Colors and shapes are many, and details are important. "Color is the major influence to the look this season," says

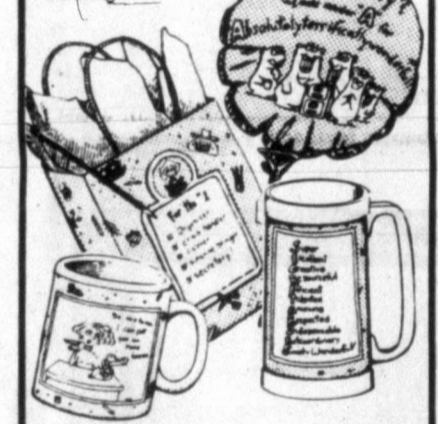

Lucille Klein, fashion director at JCPenney, "so experiment with a color family that you are most comfortable with."

Look for pastels, nudes, black and white patterns, classic navy and white, and fruit and vegetable colors — tangerine, pineapple, eggplant. For evening, try woven metallics.

"If you tend to wear classic navy," Klein says, "this season try on a soft pastel blue jacket for a refreshing change."

Style? Either long or short, and soft, with close-to-natural shoulders. For a relaxed look, try a bomber or baseball jacket. If you want shape, look for a short and swingy number or a jacket that wraps and ties to the side.

Details to set you apart from the crowd include eye-catching buttons, ribbon and pearl trim, lapel collar, no collar, draping, color blocking, lace and pattern.

In Arlington...

Couple says vows

Before the candle-lit altar of Fiedler Road Baptist Church of Arlington, Texas, Melinda LuCeil Stephens became the bride of Thomas Dee Roach at 2 p.m. on November 11, 1989. Dr. R.W. Everitt, pastor of the church officiated at the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fulks, and the late W.M. Stephens, Jr. The groom's parents are Ms. Carolyn Clarke and Mrs. Thomas Roach of Arlington.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white satin with hand-sewn pearls and the sequined bodice had a lace-trimmed V-neck and a long dropped waist. Strung pearls draped the bodice back. The long sleeves puffed at the shoulder and the full skirt was detailed with scattered beading at the hemline. A detachable, scalloped, cathedral-length train was adorned with petaled sides and lace cut-outs with bottle-cut sequins and beading. To complete her attire, the bride chose a head band highlighted with sequins and accented with a pouf and a fingertip tulle veil.

Shannon Stephens of Arlington served her aunt as maid-of-honor; matron of honor was Christine Shott of Abilene. Bridesmaids were Vicki Stephens of Arlington, Lisa Stephens of Elk City-Okla., Jana Stephens of Tulsa, Retha Pierce of Arlington and Patti Jo Williams of Dallas. They wore tea-length dresses of plum iridescent taffeta. The fitted dresses featured a circular peplum and deep V back accented with a waist line bow.

Flower girls Maxlyn Stephens, niece of the bride, Kayla Roach, niece of the groom, and Katelyn Pierce wore mauve tea-length dresses with satin ruffles and a bow in back. They carried white wicker baskets filled with silk rose petals.

Ring bearers were Chase and Daniel Stephens, nephews of the bride. They wore black tuxedos and carried white satin pillows made by the bride's mother and grandmother.

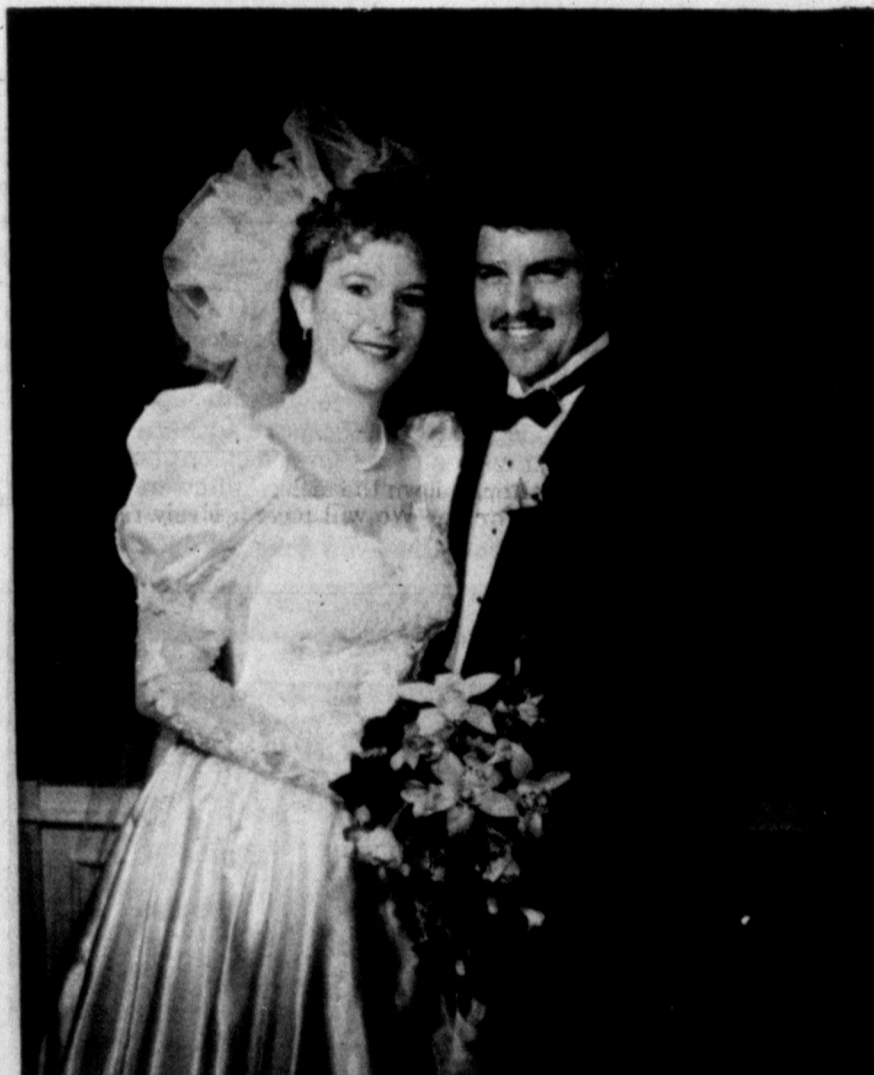

The groom's father served as best man. Groomsmen were Tim and Tony Roach of Arlington, brothers of the groom, Mike Stephens of Arlington, Mark Stephens of Elk City, Okla., Max Stephens of Tulsa, all brothers of the bride, and Butch Boyce also of Arlington.

The groom was attired in a Pierre Cardin gray tuxedo, a waist coat and black cummerbund accented his tux. The groomsmen wore black tuxedos with plum taffeta cummerbunds and bow ties. Their boutonnières were made of rosebuds and baby's breath.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church.

The bride is graduate of Texas Tech University and is a Certified Public Accountant and Controller for Pinkston-Hollar Inc. of Arlington. The groom is the owner and operator of Enchanted Image Environmental Systems, a landscape company in Arlington.

Following a trip to San Antonio the couple are residing in Arlington.

Disposing household cleaners creates safety and health risks

NEW YORK (AP) — An American city with a population of 100,000 dumps an estimated 13.75 tons of liquid household cleaners down the drain each month, either in the course of cleaning or in disposing of unwanted products. The waste creates health and safety threats to humans, wildlife and the environment.

"The Solution to Pollution, 101 Things You Can Do To Clean Up Your Environment," by Laurence Sombke offers some alternatives.

— In place of aerosol cans, use pump-action sprayers or daub on with a cloth and wipe.

— Rather than spray or solid air fresheners, use potpourri, scented candles or open windows.

— To replace ammonia-based cleaners, mix vinegar and salt for shiny surfaces and baking soda and water for tub and tile.

— Instead of bleach-based cleansers, use borax for household chores and dry bleach for the laundry.

West Texas man restores chuck wagons

What started out as a hobby is now a full-time 'job'

ABILENE, Texas (AP) — Restoring wagons started out as a hobby for Horace Hatfield, but it's gotten out of control.

Hatfield, a 46-year-old general contractor, bought his first chuck wagon less than a year ago. Now, his construction shop is full of wagons in various stages of restoration.

"This started out as a hobby and the hobby got out of hand. I've got so many of them, I've got to sell some," he says. "I'm not in the wagon business, I'm in the construction business. We work on these on weekends, in the evenings and when we have free time."

Hatfield became interested in restoring chuck wagons because he saw how much fun a friend in Amarillo was having with one.

From the top to the "possum belly," Hatfield tries to keep his wagon as authentic as possible.

His wagon is outfitted with cooking utensils like those used in the 1890s to early 1900s, when he believes his wagon was built.

"Some people tease us about all these tools on board, but that's how it was then," he says. "There wasn't a Skinny's store every two blocks, so they had to carry everything with them."

The possum belly is a raw piece of cowhide strung underneath the wagon and used to carry firewood. Back in the days of trail drives, cowboys would pick up pieces of wood as they went along and toss them in the possum belly, he says.

This particular possum belly came from a Texas Longhorn steer that was once part of the state herd.

"Everyone looks down on the cook, but he was a pretty important person on a trail drive," Hatfield says. "He was the first person up in the morning and the last one down at night.

"There were a lot of young cowboys on the trail drive and he acted as counselor, barber, doctor — he had his hands full and never got any glory for it."

Hatfield calls his hobby of restoring wagons and entering chuck wagon cook-offs "good therapy."

When it comes to the cooking, he might have somewhat of an advantage since he was a butcher for Safeway before going in to the construction business.

The Rochester High School graduate also has rodeoed, served two years in the U.S. Army, trained horses, and worked for Bell Helicopter before moving to Abilene. He's been in the construction business 12 years, doing mostly commercial work nowadays.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1989 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: This is a very long story, but I'll try to keep it short. I've been married for 20 years to a man I have been very happy with. We have a family we are proud of.

Last June, my husband went to Mexico to see his mother. (We live just over the border.) Well, he ran into his childhood girlfriend. She was expecting a baby from a man who had left her, so she asked my husband if he would marry her. He thought nobody would find out that he was already married because she lived in Mexico, so he agreed to marry her, not knowing he was going to be in hot water later.

This girl came to the United States to have her baby (a boy), and she gave the baby my husband's last name. She is not a citizen of the U.S., but her son is.

The baby is not my husband's. I still love him — that's why I don't report him to the authorities. Please tell me what to do.

DO NOT USE MY NAME

DEAR DO NOT: There is nothing you can do, but your husband should be aware that by allowing this woman to name him as the father of her child, legally he is the child's father, and as such, he is responsible for child support until the child is 18 years old. Your husband is also guilty of bigamy, having married this woman while being married to you.

Your husband should see a lawyer. He needs to know exactly what his legal obligations are, and if possible, how he can extricate himself from this mess.

***

DEAR ABBY: Twenty-five years ago, when my fiance and I announced our intentions to marry, all you-know-what broke loose. Because of background differences, certain family members refused to attend. Their forecast was, "It will never work." With heavy hearts, we eloped.

After 25 years of marriage, we have proven ourselves. Not only did our marriage "work," it worked beautifully.

You guessed it — we plan to renew our marriage vows on our 25th anniversary. I will wear a lovely new white wedding gown — veil and all — and I'll carry a beautiful bridal bouquet. Our three daughters will stand with their father at the front of the church, and our son will walk me down the aisle.

We will have a lovely reception for family and friends, which we will pay for ourselves.

Selfish, Abby? In lieu of gifts, we are asking that a contribution be donated to the local children's hospital.

CONNIE IN CALGARY, ALBERTA, CANADA

DEAR CONNIE: Beautiful! Congratulations, and continued good health and happiness to you and yours.

***

DEAR ABBY: This letter is long overdue in support of your anti-smoking campaign. Thirty-three years ago, I was a four-to-five-pack-a-day smoker. When I went to the hospital one evening to visit a friend who had leukemia, I got off the elevator on the wrong floor, and before I realized my error, I was halfway into a 32-bed ward of tracheostomy patients.

What shocked me more than anything I had ever seen in my entire life was a patient smoking a cigarette through the hole in his throat! Abby, the sight of that man, who apparently was so desperate for a cigarette after all he had been through because of his smoking habit, made a true believer out of me. I quit cold turkey — and to this day I have never lighted another cigarette!

My wife and I have four children, now grown, and none of them ever started smoking, and none of their spouses or children smoke either. I hope this can encourage at least one chain-smoker to quit. I am now 68 years young — due to quitting — and if you want to use this letter, please feel free to use my name.

ROBERT B. LEATHERS, MADERA, CALIF.

DEAR MR. LEATHERS: Congratulations. Your story about the horror of seeing a tracheostomy patient smoking through the opening in his throat reminded me of the following: About 20 years ago, I addressed a group of post-surgical patients at the Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. They called themselves "The Lost Chord Club" because they had had their voice boxes removed following a bout with cancer. These patients were learning to speak with the aid of some mechanical device that had been recently perfected.

As I was leaving the auditorium — you guessed it — I saw one of the patients actually sneaking a puff through the hole in his throat!

DEAR ABBY: I am a hardworking professional woman. A few years ago I had an experience that changed my life, and I want to tell you about it.

An older, sophisticated woman who worked with me took me under her wing. One day, this wonderful woman took me aside and said, "Dear, you are smart, attractive and ambitious, but there is one problem — when you come into this office, you smell as though you have just run a marathon."

As embarrassing as it was, I knew she was right, because I had never used a deodorant. (I thought I was one of those lucky women who didn't sweat.)

Well, from that day on I used a deodorant, and I shall be forever grateful to that courageous woman who told me the truth. She had risked putting herself in an uncomfortable situation in order to help me.

Please print this, Abby. It may give others the courage to tell a friend an unpleasant truth.

SMELLING LIKE A ROSE

DEAR SMELLING: Thanks for sharing your experience. Also, bless those friends who offer breath freshener to friends who need it.

***

DEAR ABBY: Who said, "Fish and relatives begin to stink after three days?"

EXHAUSTED HOSTESS

DEAR EXHAUSTED: The quotation is, "Fish and visitors stink in three days." And it's from "Poor Richard's Almanac," written by Benjamin Franklin.

Buffalo Reef

By Bill McClellan

Editor's Note: In lieu of Earth Day, this editorial written by National Wildlife Federation President Jay-D. Hair appears in place of Bill McClellan's weekly column.

YOUR CHOICES MAKE A DIFFERENCE

A ceramic mug. A paper lunch bag that has been used and re-used. A bicycle. A stack of old newspapers.

These are signs of a well-educated society — the kind of society made up of people who are doing things on an individual basis to save the Earth.

A sophisticated society is one that realizes it is wrong to use plastic foam cups that release atmospheric ozone-depleting chlorofluorocarbons (CFCs). A well-informed individual doesn't mind using a lunch bag more than once — sparing our forests and landfills. A knowledgeable commuter will take a bike when possible, rather than driving a smog-producing car. The well-read among us won't even consider tossing a newspaper in the trash rather than recycling.

As Earth Day 1990 arrives Sunday, the message is: We all have to take individual action, every day.

No matter how many computer chips, nuclear warheads or space shuttles our society develops, we are headed for the 21st Century Dark Ages unless we turn the tide of environmental degradation.

SDN Opinion Page

Columns - Cartoons - Look Back - Letters - Quotables

Consider a few frightening facts:

In the United States alone, we throw away 18 billion disposable diapers, 2 billion plastic razors and 220 million tires every year. Americans collectively toss out 160 million tons of waste every year. That's enough to spread 30 stories high, over 1,000 football fields. Enough to fill a bumper-to-bumper convoy of garbage trucks halfway to the moon.

Nearly 40 million Americans a year are at risk from drinking water that exceeds federal standards for pesticides and other toxic chemicals.

More than 2.3 billion pounds of toxic chemicals were released into the air from manufacturing facilities in 1987 — 18 years after passage of the Clean Air Act.

Whether the environmental harm comes directly from an individual, or from an industrial polluter — individuals have the power to change things. Change things by demanding that industry use environmentally safe processes to produce environmentally sound products. Change things by demanding government policies that truly protect the environment. Take the initiative to form citizens' groups with a collective voice that industry and government will hear.

The world is ready. Rather than ecological Dark Ages, we can have an environmental Renaissance. Look at the changes the world has witnessed just this past year. Who would have imagined the Berlin Wall would fall? Who could have pictured South Africa's Nelson Mandela a free man?

How we personally, and collectively, react to Earth Day's message can bring about even more sweeping changes.

It's your choice to recycle and to purchase products made from recycled materials. When you make that choice, remember that recycling an aluminum can uses only 5 percent of the energy required to make a new one. Remember that recycling one ton of paper saves about 17 trees and enough energy to power the average American home for about five months.

It's your choice to conserve energy. To conserve water. The choices are everywhere, and are part of just about everything we do. They are choices that can truly make Earth Day, Every Day.

SDN Week In Review

MONDAY

April 16

County commissioners approved a comprehensive policy for developing the 1991 calendar year budget, including a goal of no new taxes and a new "zero-based" line item justification requirement and set a Tuesday meeting with county department heads to begin the budget-writing process.

Absentee voting in the May 5 local board elections began Monday at the respective offices of the entities holding the elections — Snyder public schools administration building, Western Texas College and City Hall.

Snyder public schools board of trustees approved resignations of three teachers, including one who will take over as principal of Ira schools, during a 20-minute board meeting Monday evening.

Snyder Chamber of Commerce board members were informed of upcoming activities in the community and heard several reports during a Monday afternoon meeting.

Letters To The Editor

To the Editor,

The Snyder Lions Club once again demonstrated their continuing dedication to support of community projects. Recently, the Noah Project, Snyder's shelter for victims of family violence, received a small grant — enough to purchase a fence for our yards, but we were in need of "labor."

Under the direction of Lion Bill Davies, the fence was installed. Other Lions who worked on this project were Gene Steakley, Dennis Chisum, Larry McConkey, John Billings and Don West, and I extend thanks and appreciation to them all on behalf of the Noah Project.

Sincerely,
Linda C. Scalf
Director

noon meeting.

TUESDAY

April 17

After being closed for more than two years, the fourth floor at Cogdell Memorial Hospital has been reopened as a new home for extended care patients.

WEDNESDAY

April 18

Thunderstorms poured more than an inch of rain on the city in a five-hour period from 7 a.m. until noon today, and was still falling at press time.

Scurry County's Board of Development Wednesday unanimously approved a request to assist underwriting a Best of Texas steer and lamb show to be held in Snyder July 27-29.

A 26-year-old Snyder woman died Wednesday afternoon in a Lubbock hospital from massive head injuries suffered in a Tuesday morning traffic accident north of Snyder.

THURSDAY

April 19

The annual Western Texas College NIRA Rodeo opens its four-day run this evening at Scurry County Coliseum.

Billy Max West was named Upper Colorado Soil and Water Conservation District 1989 conservation rancher of the year and Raymond Schwarz was honored as farmer of the year during the annual soil conservation banquet held Thursday evening.

FRIDAY

April 20

The new head of electronic data processing at West Texas State Bank is a 20-year Air Force veteran who spent most of his career as a B-52 crew member and in computer-related work.

Marshall Lyons, 43, is a native of New York City whose aircraft was the lead plane in the first bombing runs over North Vietnam during the Christmas season of 1972.

Scurry County Wild Flower Committee will celebrate its sixth annual Texas wild flower program on Sunday, coinciding with the 20th anniversary of Earth Day.

Have you ever sat outside with your child when the evening storms rumble across the horizon, and the light from the setting sun gilds the clouds and turns the new spring grass to emeralds? Have you ever sat side by side and watched the sky, when the clouds look like a white eiderdown quilt flung across silver satin sheets? And while you watch, the quilt turns soft pink, and the sheets smooth violet-gray?

Have you ever sat with your child and scratched the cat's cheeks while the dog flops his tail against your feet, and listened to the birds argue as lightning flirts with the distant blue hills and promises rain? Have you ever tasted the delicious air on such an evening, while your child talks of many things... of hidden rabbit holes and spirited horses and newborn kittens?

Have you ever smelled the earth when rain is near, and the nighthawks swoop past your head into the darkening sky, and heard the exultant squeal of your child?

Have you ever smiled into your child's eyes and talked quietly of life while thunder mutters in the distance, and from the house, you hear laughter from the rest of the family over the thump-thump of Dave Brubeck at the piano? Have you ever sat outside with your child until all the pink and gold and violet fade from the sky, and the eiderdown quilt melts into a purple blanket, while the moon peeps out beneath it and the coyotes raise their loud cries into the triumphant night.

Have you ever said, with soft reluctance, "Yes, it's time to go in now," and tossed the ball one last time for the sad-faced dog, and sent the cat stalking high-tailed into the hunter's delight of a hay-filled barn, and left the night-things to their business?

And later, after soap-scented kisses and sunburnt hugs, have you ever sat alone with your spouse on the porch swing next to fragrant blossoming roses, and watched God's light-show bright up the mighty sky, and spoken softly of rain, and children, and love... while overhead, Orion stands guard?

And when you took your leave of the night at last, have you held the day within your heart like a cherished, precious gift... to be savored at any moment you desire, for the rest of your life?

You have?
Life is good, then, isn't it?

FIVE YEARS AGO

Snyder High School held student council elections for the 1985-86 school year. Elected were Don Osborn, president, Jon Traylor, vice president, and Kima McLarty, secretary.

Four appointed members of the reorganized Scurry County Industrial Foundation were announced. Named were Joe Fowler, R.C. Patton and Bill Davies.

TEN YEARS AGO

Western Texas College announced the hiring of Larry Dunnaway as the school's head men's basketball coach. Dunnaway replaces Nolan Richardson who resigned to accept the head coaching position at the University of Tulsa.

Scurry County United Way Drive chairmen for 1980 were Frances Wiman and Margaret Drum.

Maureen Reagan, daughter of then Republican presidential candidate Ronald Reagan, visited Snyder and spoke to a group of local supporters at The Shack.

Watch for these defects in new cars

By the Editors of Consumer Reports

When you buy a new car, you can be assured that it will have at least some sample defects, caused by careless assembly or incomplete dealer preparation. The failings may be easily correctable ones such as fluid reservoirs filled improperly, or they may be more insidious such as misaligned wheels. Of all the cars Consumer Reports has tested over the years, not one has ever arrived in perfect shape.

Here's how to uncover and correct some of the most persistent defects Consumer Reports' auto engineers have found in the cars they've tested:

A vast majority of the cars Consumer Reports has purchased suffer from misaligned front wheels. Sometimes, the car's handling may tip you off: The car may pull to one side, or the steering may not feel quite right. But all too often your only clue is uneven tire wear; one edge of the tire wears faster than the other, or one front tire wears faster than the other. A tire tread-depth gauge (it's inexpensive and easy to use) can check for damage before it becomes serious.

If the steering wheel shakes at about 50 mph to 55 mph, most likely the front wheels aren't properly balanced, another common defect. You should have the wheels spin-balanced.

More often than not, Consumer Reports' test cars arrive with one or more underinflated or overinflated tires. Keep a tire-pressure gauge in the car and check all tires when they're cold, not after several miles of driving. Don't trust the gauge built into the air pump at the service station; they're notoriously inaccurate. Check the car's wheel lugs, too. Often they're too loose or too tight.

Misaligned headlights were a defect in well over half the cars Consumer Reports has tested in recent years. You can do a rough check of the aim by driving down a straight, dark road. If you can't see ahead well, or if either headlight beam angles upward or off to the side, the aim is off.

It's important to check vital fluids, too. Most critical is the engine oil. You should check the dipstick after the engine has been stopped for at least 20 minutes. It can take that long for the oil to run down into the pan and give an accurate reading. You should also check the fluid in an automatic transmission; the owner's manual usually has instructions. The oil level in a manual transmission is harder to check on your own, most people would rather leave it to a mechanic.

Another common problem trouble spot is the speedometer. Many read slightly higher — 2 or 3 mph — at highway speeds. Luckily, it's rare that the speedometer reads lower than the actual speed. To calibrate your speedometer, bring a stop watch and look for a road with markers for a measured mile. At a steady 60 mph, it should take you one minute to cover the mile.

Several of Consumer Reports' test cars suffered from rain leaks. The resulting mildew smells bad, and it can cause an allergic reaction. Leaks also accelerate rusting where the water accumulates. A high-pressure car wash is a quick way to pinpoint leaks.

Over the years, the cars Consumer Reports has tested have improved noticeably. Ten years ago, 20 defects per car was the average; today it's about nine. Unfortunately, the possibility of buying a perfectly assembled and prepped car is still dim at best.

For employee safety...

OSHA: industry should bear responsibility

HOUSTON (AP) — OSHA officials say a multimillion-dollar fine levied against Phillips 66 Co. in connection with last year's deadly plant explosion in Pasadena should send a strong message to the petrochemical industry about employee safety.

On Thursday, the Occupational Safety and Health Administration fined Phillips $5.67 million and a contractor nearly $730,000 for safety violations OSHA said contributed to the series of explosions that killed 23 people and injured more than 100 workers at the Houston-area plant.

"We're hopeful that we've sent a message to Phillips," said Gilbert Saulter, OSHA's Southwest regional administrator. "We're also hopeful that we've sent a message to the industry that they have a responsibility, we will hold them to that responsibility, and we hope beyond all hope that what's happened here will lead to safer operations in all of the other plants that deal with hazardous chemicals."

OSHA alleged Phillips had 566 willful violations and nine serious violations, while Fish Engineering and Construction Inc., a maintenance contractor, had an alleged 181 willful violations, 12 serious and one for records mismanagement.

"The citation is a strong message to the company and the industry to 'put your house in order. Make safety and health for your employees a top priority,'" Saulter said. "That's our message to the industry."

Both Phillips and Fish have 15 days to contest the alleged violations. Phillips officials said Thursday they will contest at least some of the allegations. Phillips Petroleum Co. is the parent company of Phillips 66.

"At no time has Phillips ever compromised the safety of its employees," Phillips said in a statement. "Based on preliminary information, we do plan to contest a number of the citations and we do take issue with OSHA characterizing any of the violations as willful acts."

Fish Engineering issued a statement saying it "takes issue and will contest the OSHA citations..."

But Fish's statement also said the OSHA investigation "confirmed that the Houston contractor did not cause or contribute to the explosion at the Phillips Pasadena plant Oct. 23, 1989."

The series of explosions at the Phillips complex destroyed the portion of the plant that produced polyethylene, which is used in making plastics.

Assistant Secretary of Labor Gerard F. Scannell, head of OSHA, said in Washington that the primary cause of the fire and explosions was the release of a mixture of four highly flammable process gases from an open valve between the reactor vessel and a product settling leg during maintenance operations.

"We found that had Phillips provided a safe workplace by following OSHA's standards as well as the custom and practices of the industry standards, then the Oct. 23 explosion and fire would not have occurred,"

Saulter said. The fines are the second largest for a single inspection in OSHA's history.

International plan said to combat drug money plans

WASHINGTON (AP) — An international task force is recommending a worldwide plan to uncover billions of dollars being hidden by narcotics dealers through intricate money-laundering transactions.

A major element of the plan, according to Deputy Treasury Secretary John E. Robson, is a requirement that financial institutions report questionable dealings by their customers.

"Specifically, the task force recommends that, as in the United States, financial institutions must be able to report suspicious transactions to law enforcement, in good faith, free from fear of liability under secrecy laws," Robson said at a news conference Thursday.

"Suspicious transaction reporting has proven to be very valuable to U.S. law enforcement," he added.

The 40 "action recommendations" were adopted by the Financial Action Task Force on Money Laundering on Feb. 7 in Paris and announced Thursday by the participating nations. Robson headed the U.S. delegation on the panel.

The task force was established following last summer's economic summit of the Group of Seven industrialized nations in Paris to assess current anti-money-laundering efforts and "to consider additional preventive efforts in this field."

In addition to the G-7 nations of Britain, Canada, France, West Germany, Italy, Japan and the United States, task force members included Austria, Australia, Belgium, Luxembourg, the Netherlands, Spain, Sweden and Switzerland and the European Community.

President Bush and other leaders of the G-7 nations will consider the recommendations at their July economic summit in Houston, Robson said. Many of the recommendations will require government approval elsewhere, but most already conform with U.S. laws, he added.

In addition to the reporting requirement, the task force recommendations include requirements that financial institutions adopt procedures to identify their customers and to maintain adequate records about customers and their transactions.

"With money-laundering cases being investigated months and even years after transactions take place, adequate recordkeeping is essential," Robson said.

"At the same time," he added, "the recommendations reflect a recognition that law enforcement objectives need to be balanced with burdens on the financial system."

Cheney supports homeporting concept

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney has told Gulf state lawmakers that he supports a string of new Navy homeports but that deep cuts in the Pentagon's budget could jeopardize all defense projects.

At a meeting Thursday with lawmakers concerned about the future of their homeports, Cheney also indicated that chances were good that a 90-day construction moratorium at Naval Station Ingleside could be lifted by month's end, said Sen. Lloyd Bentsen. That would allow new construction contracts to proceed. A skeptic of the new homeports, Rep. Charles E. Bennett, D-Fla., chairman of the House Armed Services seapower subcommittee, plans hearings next week on the practicality of opening six homeports in the face of a diminished threat from the Soviet Union and a smaller Navy than anticipated.

Texas lawmakers who attended Thursday's meeting with Cheney, a former congressman, appeared pleased with his commitment to the homeporting concept, drawn up under the Pentagon's goal of having a 600-ship

Navy, which now is not likely. "We didn't reach a handshaking contract in there but I think the basic gist of it was as follows: He supports homeport, he voted for homeport, he believes in homeport, he wants to fund homeport," said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas.

"But if Congress cuts the budget $24 billion below where the president has already cut it, then he is going to have a very hard time defending the country and that homeport will be in potential danger like every other part of the budget," Gramm said.

Under a plan approved Thursday by the Democratic-controlled House Budget Committee, actual defense spending would be $8 billion less than what President Bush had sought. Budget authority, not actual dollars, would be cut by about $24 billion beyond the president's request.

Gramm said Cheney's message to the lawmakers was that "the better job we can do in preventing these massive cuts from occurring, the better position he's going to be in to protect homeport."

Cheney had no comment on the meeting, other than to say it was a good session and "very friendly."

Bentsen, D-Texas, said he pressed Cheney to lift the construction moratorium and was told chances were good that could be done by month's end, "so long as the Navy doesn't send a report" in the interim recommending closure of the port.

Homeports are also being built in Staten Island, N.Y., Everett, Wash., Mobile, Ala., Pensacola, Fla., and Pascagoula, Miss.

Historic San Jacinto banner said restored

AUSTIN (AP) — The Goddess of Liberty, brandishing a sword over her head that bears the banner "Liberty or Death," has been returned to her rightful place behind the Speaker of the Texas House of Representatives.

The goddess is depicted on the flag carried into Battle of San Jacinto in 1836, which was remounted on the statehouse wall Thursday after more than five months of restoration.

The flag was brought from Kentucky by Col. Sidney Sherman when he came to Texas to join Gen. Sam Houston's army, and was reported to be the only banner carried into the battle that won the independence for the state.

In August 1836, David Burnett, president of the Republic of Texas, presented the flag to Sherman's wife in recognition of his courage and valor.

The flag remained with the Sherman family until 1896, when Sherman's daughters presented it to the state.

First restored in 1932, the flag has been mounted behind the speaker's rostrum since.

"It is indeed an honor to know that such an historic and meaningful part of our state's rich heritage is in our presence as we carry out our legislative business," House Speaker Gib Lewis said during Thursday's restoration ceremony.

"The flag has come to represent the courage and pioneering spirit that has dominated our state since its inception," said Lewis, D-Fort Worth.

The speaker noted that during the restoration, the flag was found to bear the same pattern on both sides. Since the "back" was better-preserved, that side now faces out, presenting the goddess' mirror image.

Astrograph by Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

April 22, 1990

A secret hope and desire and a secret ambition might both be fulfilled in the year ahead, because they could become your primary objectives. Determination encourages success.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Don't believe everything you hear today, especially if the information is presented in a colorful, flamboyant manner. What sounds like facts, could be the product of someone's vivid imagination. Taurus, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Investments should not be made impulsively today, especially if they're in areas with which you're unfamiliar and have not been successful previously. Be mindful of the risks.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) In your involvements with your peers today emphasize your personal interests and make an effort to go along with the will of the majority. Don't be self-serving.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Sometimes our hunches can provide us with insights our logic overlooks. However, this might not be true in your case today, so it's best to solely rely on your common sense.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Joint ventures for commercial or social purposes might not work out too well today. Think carefully before you involve yourself in either.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) If an agreement you recently negotiated hasn't lived up to your expectations, try to make some adjustments today. If you don't, it might only get worse.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) This is one of those days where you might get involved in complicated projects without thinking. Before you volunteer your time or services, know what you're getting into.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) This might not be one of your better days for managing your resources or the resources of others. It might be wise to have someone you respect and trust check your handiwork.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Tasks or assignments you leave until the last minute aren't likely to be handled too well today. If you hope to be productive, you're going to have to be on schedule from the start.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) This can be a pleasant day for you, provided you're disciplined and do not overindulge. If there are certain things you know you shouldn't eat or drink, avoid them.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you get involved in some type of activity with friends today, there's a possibility that someone in the group might try to take advantage of your generous nature. Don't be used.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Guard against banking too heavily today on a situation where you feel you're a step or two ahead of others. If the competition begins to increase, this edge could diminish.

Your Birthday

April 23, 1990

In the year ahead you might meet a very unique person who doesn't hit it off with everyone, but this person may select you as a special friend. This could turn out to be an exciting alliance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Do not confuse wishful thinking with optimism today, because they lack similarity. Optimism inspires, while wishful thinking merely dreams about doing. Major changes are ahead for Taurus in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Someone might try to draw you into a joint venture today for reasons that will be more beneficial to this person than they will be to you. It's best not to take situations at face value.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Partnership arrangements have their advantages as well as disadvantages today. You might be better off trying to operate as independently of others as possible.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) If there is an important assignment you have to delegate to another today, be sure your instructions are clear and concise. The task could get fouled up if they aren't.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Even though you may want to be helpful today, it's best that you don't butt in and try to manage something about which you know as little as your friend does.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be extremely selective today regarding whom you go to for counsel and advice. An ineffective counselor could put you on the path to never-never land.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Usually you're a reasonably well-organized person who doesn't waste a lot of time getting down to what needs doing. Today, however, your rationalizing attitude could severely inhibit your performance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) There's a possibility your extravagant whims might gain control of your purse strings today. Later, when it's time to pay the bills, you may wish you had exercised greater self-control.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Disappointment is likely today if you expect others to drop what they're doing in order to cater to your whims. The only person who can take care of No. 1 properly is you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Do not attempt to use flattery today in hopes of being able to manipulate others. Insincerity will be immediately detected and could have a reverse effect.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Today, before getting involved in an activity with a friend who has a talent for wiggling out of paying a fair share when the check comes, let your pal know you won't be picking up the tab.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In order to succeed today, your objectives must be clearly defined. Be prepared to make a concerted effort to achieve your goals. Wishy-washy tactics will fall short of their mark.

Industrial toxic pollutants sometimes released into air

WASHINGTON (AP) — More than half of the 4.6 billion pounds of toxic chemicals released by industry go into the air, demonstrating the need for tougher clean air legislation, federal officials say.

The EPA reported Thursday that the amount of hazardous chemicals released by the nation's factories in 1988 declined about 9 percent, but the agency said that might only be because of better recordkeeping.

In 1987, the first year under the reporting requirement, the amount of toxic chemicals released by industry was put at slightly more than 5 billion pounds with close to half going into the air.

EPA officials cautioned that they are unable from the raw figures, the latest available, to assess the health risks to individuals. The figures do not take into account levels of toxicity, release concentrations and actual exposure.

Nevertheless, federal officials have been surprised at the high volume of releases of toxic chemicals in 1987 and 1988. The reporting requirement covers 332 toxic chemicals.

"The figures are absolutely shocking," declared Rep. Gerry Sikorski and Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., said the volume of pollution demonstrates the need for tougher air pollution control laws. The Senate has approved a clean air bill that would require industry to equip factories with the best available control technology to cut releases of toxic chemicals. A similar bill is before the House.

"We need a tough, new clean air bill and action on pollution prevention," said Lautenberg. "We've got to bring these pollution numbers down," agreed EPA Administrator William Reilly, who said the pending clean air legislation — when enacted into law — will significantly cut toxic emissions from factories.

The releases reported to the EPA by 19,762 industrial plants nationwide are legal and within current federal or local requirements, officials said.
