'Shrew' takes second in UIL one-act contest

Snyder High School's production of "The Taming of the Shrew" took first runner-up at the Class 4A UIL State One-Act Play Contest in Austin on Friday as Coy Berryman was named Best Actor for the second straight year and Amber Adams was selected to the All-Star Cast.

One other Snyder student, Kristi Mize, was honorable mention All-Star Cast. "The interesting thing about this is, only to Snyder High School would second place be a disappointment," said drama director Jerry Worsham, who took Snyder to state for a record 16th consecutive time. "A lot of schools were just delighted to be here. We were disappointed, but we felt really good about the performance."

It was Snyder's 22nd trip to the state and the 10th time the school placed second. Snyder High School has won the contest 11 times.

"We had tremendous response (see 'SHREW', page 13A)

Osborn resigns after four years as city engineer

Don Osborn, city engineer and public works director for the City of Snyder since October of 1986, Friday announced his resignation to accept a position in Longmont, Colo.

"We have certainly considered Snyder our home. We've been here 20 years in November so we've been a part of the community for a long time," said Osborn. "We've been made to feel at home and we've tried to contribute to the quality of life that we've come to expect here. It's been a great place to raise our family. We've enjoyed the opportunity and the people."

Osborn said Longmont, a city of about 51,000 located 20 miles north of Denver, will give him an opportunity to advance his professional career. He will serve as water quality director, in charge of water and waste water.

The move will also locate the Osborn family within 50 miles of Evergreen, Colo., where both Don and his wife, Diane, grew up and still have relatives.

"Don has made an excellent contribution to the city organization," said Snyder City Manager

John Gayle. "We regret very much his leaving but we wish him the very best in his new position with the city of Longmont."

Gayle said he does not have a timetable for replacing Osborn, whose resignation is effective June 1, but intends to "take time (see OSBORN, page 13A)

Silver Haired Legislature absentee voting underway

Absentee voting is underway at Scurry County Senior Citizens Center for the Silver Haired Legislature election and will continue until May 21.

The election will be held at the center on May 22.

Ruth West of Snyder is running unopposed for her first time in the Silver Haired Legislature (SHL) as representative from District 3, which includes Scurry and 11 other counties.

Voters will also be electing an at-large candidate who will represent the 19 counties of the West Central Council of Governments.

Although West is unopposed, the center is encouraging voters to cast their ballots both to show their support for her and for the SHL. All county residents age 60 and older who are registered voters are eligible to vote.

The SHL was created by the Texas Legislature to encourage all Texans to learn more about the operation of their state government and to give older Texans an avenue of contact with the legislature and the governor. Members of the non-partisan SHL pay their own expenses to attend the SHL session in Austin.

UIL academics...

Three locals move on to contest finals

Three Snyder High School students advanced to Saturday's finals of Class 4A University Interscholastic League state academic competition in Austin.

Emily King, Kristi Mize and James Beauchamp were all to compete in the finals of their respective events Saturday morning. Awards were to be given at 4 p.m. Saturday.

In preliminary rounds Friday, King advanced in prose reading, Mize in poetry interpretation and Beauchamp in persuasive speaking. The preliminary rounds featured 12 students in each event, and were pared down to six for Saturday's finals.

As finalists, the three were already among the top six in the state, regardless of Saturday's outcome.

Tom Galyean also competed for Snyder High School at the state meet, in informative speaking, but did not advance.

A fifth Snyder student, Bill Vestal, was to compete in the preliminaries and finals of keyboarding Saturday.

All five local students represented at the contest are juniors.

Court will consider library fees Monday

Scurry County Commissioners — meeting at 10 a.m. Monday — will discuss library fees for 1991, but the court once again has postponed discussion of increases in user fees for Scurry County Coliseum.

Librarian Janice Mitchell will meet with the court to discuss fees charged by the county library. The court also is expected to approve a proclamation in honor of the late D.V. Merritt

Jr. who served on the county library board.

Also on the agenda is discussion of a contract with AT&T for commissions on public telephones located on county property. Commissioners will also discuss health care insurance for county and hospital employees.

Larry Thompson, juvenile probation officer, will meet with the court to discuss part-time help for his office.

Central teacher gets Golden Apple Award

Wanda Hudgins, fourth grade teacher at Central Elementary, learned this week that she is one of two Big Country teachers who will receive the Golden Apple Award for May.

The Golden Apple Award is presented by Abilene's KTAB television station twice each month to teachers in and around the Abilene area.

Jim Rosson, Central principal, nominated Hudgins for the honor. He received a letter from the station in January explaining what the award is and asking him to recommend one of his teachers.

The award was because station officials wanted to recognize "deserving teachers who have gone above and beyond the call of duty in their profession."

Rosson's letter recommending Hudgins had this to say about her.

"She always gives 100 percent of herself each day to her students.

—She is a dedicated, hard-working, innovative teacher.

—She is a loving, caring individual and this is reflected in the manner in which she treats her students as well as her teaching cohorts.

—She has the respect and admiration of her fellow teachers.

—She continually demonstrates a positive, I CAN attitude each day.

Rosson also listed the following fondest memories of Hudgins.

—When she dressed up like a bunny at Easter time and rode around the town square in her Volkswagon convertible.

—When she dressed up like a Pilgrim for a school assembly.

—When she dressed up in a Texas outfit to help celebrate Texas Independence Day. ("She not only dressed for the occasion," but also insisted that the rest of us follow her

The feller on Deep Creek says, "If people concerned themselves with the really important things in life, there would be a shortage of fishing poles and golf balls."

Green thumbs, those folks with all the lawn and garden answers, claim the grass really isn't dead. Be patient, the grass will eventually start to grow.

One so-called expert on lawn care believes the slow-starting grass is really just the reflection of a late spring. Of course, the lawn and shrub situation wasn't helped by December's bitter cold during an otherwise mild, but dry winter.

Except for those few days during the Christmas holidays, Snyder had little cold weather—that is until the first day of spring. That caused one guy in the coffee shop to suggest, "The first day of spring is one thing, and the first spring day is another—and the difference between them is sometimes as great as a month."

This past week, when temperatures dipped and winter-like drizzle fell, it caused another fellow to wonder if Snyder wasn't experiencing the opposite of the greenhouse effect.

The moisture was nice, and Scurry County was more fortunate than some of our flooded neighbors to the east. With a little increase in the ground temperature, it won't be long before county cotton farmers will be busy with planting—and then scanning those hot evenings in hopes of a summer shower.

The recent Earth Day focused attention on the need to change the American style of life. We understand that the politicians are coming up with a clean air bill.

If it is effective at all, it will force them to keep quiet.

Q—We noticed what appeared to be sacks of coal being unloaded at the treatment plant. Does the plant use coal, and if so, what for?

A—The water treatment plant uses "mixed media" filters, containing gravel, sand and anthracite coal. According to officials, the coal traps smaller particles more efficiently than sand. The city received a shipment of coal weighing about 43,000 pounds recently.

Request hurts unity

DALLAS (AP) — The Rt. Rev. Edmond Browning, presiding bishop of the Episcopal Church, says that a request by a group of Fort Worth-led dissidents to become a "church within a church" is contrary to the spirit of recent talks and studies.

"It flies in the face of the ... unity we have been seeking to achieve in the past several years," Browning said.

The prelate was in Dallas recently to speak at the 10th annual National Day of Prayer Breakfast. He was responding to action taken last weekend by the Episcopal Synod of America, which met in Denver.

The synod, which opposes women's ordination and an updated Prayer Book, was organized last year in Fort Worth and elected Bishop Clarence Pope of Fort Worth as its president. The organization claims about 17,000 members.

The Episcopal Synod of America approved a resolution requesting that the church establish the synod as a non-geographical "province" in the 2.3 million-member denomination.

Such an arrangement would allow the synod to reject some denominational positions that members consider too liberal while remaining in good standing within the Episcopal Church.

Browning has been traveling and has not seen the document forwarded to his office by Pope, but his staff alerted him to the resolution's principal points.

"I'm not ready to comment fully until I have officially seen the material," Browning said.

'Wild Orchid' co-star sues movie's producers

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Carre Otis, co-star of the steamy new film "Wild Orchid," is suing the movie's producers, alleging they gave Playboy magazine nude photographs of her without her consent.

The Superior Court lawsuit states that the contract Miss Otis signed with Kruger-Brent Group in April 1989 stipulated the actress "shall have approval over still photographs for the pictures in which artist appears nude or partially nude."

Ten re-entry students earn their GEDs

Ten students who participated in the Western Texas College re-entry program have earned their GED certificates since the program began last September. This was a 77 percent passing rate for the group which began the program.

Debbie Brunson served as director for the program. Connie Dickerson served as classroom teacher. Pat Blakely was vocational director, helping place students in part-time jobs on the WTC campus and keeping in touch with them throughout the school year.

The program is designed for adults between 17 and 21 years of age. Federal funds were available for those who qualified according to family income. The students attended classes on Tuesday and Thursdays and held part-time jobs Monday through Thursday, with work schedules arranged around class times.

Others not eligible for financial assistance could attend the classes to work toward the GED by paying their own costs. WTC offers free Adult Education classes during evening hours to help students prepare for GED tests but these students could not attend evening classes.

Students who participated and received GED certificates are Dava Botts, Dewey Fisk, Nancy Guerra, Daniel McVey, Lavada Musick, Horace Proctor, Pam Pruitt, Jennifer Robbins, Robert Vineyard and Joyce Creager.

WTC will not participate in the program in the coming school year. Mrs. Dickerson does plan to work with some students during the summer months, helping them prepare for GED tests.

Anyone interested in taking WTC's Adult Education courses may contact the Adult Education office in the WTC Administration Building for information and join the classes when they resume in September.

Jobless rate at 5.4 percent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate climbed to 5.4 percent in April, its highest level in more than a year, the government said Friday in a report that analysts called a disturbing sign the economy could slip into recession.

There was paltry growth in the number of U.S. jobs for the second straight month, and the total actually would have declined if not for the hiring of temporary census workers.

"The report indicates the bottom dropped out of the labor market in April. It speaks more toward a possible recession than a rebounding economy," said Allen Sinai, chief economist at the Boston Co.

Added Robert Dederick of the Northern Trust Co. of Chicago:

"I don't think we can say the economy is toppling over a cliff, but it is not showing any signs that it's backing away from the cliff, either, so there's that danger."

Bond markets rallied in response to the report. Traders took weaker-than-expected employment — a report running counter to recent indications that the economy was picking up — as a sign the Federal Reserve would not boost interest rates to slow things down. The government reported last week that the economy grew at a 2.1 percent rate in the first three months of the year, twice as fast as some private analysts had predicted.

In April, the civilian jobless rate as measured by a household survey was up from the 5.2 percent registered in March. Before that, the unemployment rate had held steady at 5.3 percent for nine months.

The last time the jobless rate reached 5.4 percent was January 1989.

The number of new jobs created edged up only slightly, with a net gain of 64,000. That included the government's hiring of 78,000 workers for the 1990 census.

The job growth figure is derived from a separate survey of business establishments and is generally considered a more reliable indicator of economic activity than the household survey on unemployment.

Hermleigh Day slated Monday

Senior citizens from Hermleigh are invited to the Senior Citizens Center on Monday for Hermleigh Day. They will be recognized before the serving of the noon meal.

The Kitchen Band will perform at Snyder Oaks Care Center at 10 a.m. Wednesday. The Sunshine Choir will meet for rehearsal at 1:45 p.m. Thursday.

Senior citizens who meet with the swimnastics group at the Western Texas College swimming pool are reminded that the pool will be closed from May 11 through June 3. Swimnastics will resume on June 4 as summer classes begin on campus.

Representatives from the Social Security Administration will be in the center on May 15 from 10 a.m. to noon and 1-2 p.m. or until everyone has been met. Persons who need to confer with the representatives can pre-register on May 14.

Lea waits for 'great' work

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The work of author and artist Tom Lea has gained national acclaim, but has yet to bring satisfaction to its creator.

"I want to paint a good picture and write a good book," said Lea, 82. After a moment's hesitation, he continued: "I want to paint a great picture and write a noble book. (Until then,) I've done my best."

Lea is being honored this month with art shows of his works around the state. Gov. Bill Clements and other dignitaries were to kick off a statewide salute to him and his work in a black-tie dinner Friday night in El Paso.

Lea's best work has earned him commissions to do murals in post office buildings in Washington, D.C., St. Louis and San Antonio. His murals also grace the Hall of State building in Dallas at the Texas fairgrounds and the U.S. Courthouse Building in El Paso. He worked for "Life" magazine as a war correspondent and has written best-selling books. His most-famous "The Brave Bulls," was made into a film.

His paintings, often called poetic, frequently are sold before they are completed. He still paints daily in his El Paso studio, working mostly in oil. But he enjoys dabbling with Chinese ink.

Two of his favorite portraits are Chinese ink — one of his son, Jim, and one of his father, Tom Lea II.

He said he feels good about those works, years old, but even better about his recent work.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Why do most of the baby formulas on the market contain coconut oil? I understand this is not good because of its high cholesterol content.

DEAR READER: The tropical oils (coconut and palm) do not contain cholesterol. However, they are saturated fats that can raise blood cholesterol in susceptible individuals. Therefore, patients on low-cholesterol diets should also avoid tropical oils, which are commonly added to processed foods, such as dry breakfast cereals, as flavoring agents.

Ordinarily, cholesterol-raising foods are not a problem for young children, who need fats in their diets for growth. Coconut oil is probably added to infant formulas to make them more palatable. I suggest you voice your concerns to a pediatrician. Such a specialist is qualified to give dietary advice about youngsters and to make appropriate modifications on a case-by-case basis.

To give you additional information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Understanding Cholesterol." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a 10-year-old daughter who was diagnosed as having mucopolysaccharidosis, class II Hurler-Scieie syndrome. What information do you have on this condition? All I know is that it affects all major organs and causes a short life span.

DEAR READER: The mucopolysaccharidoses are a group of seven rare, genetically related diseases caused by specific inherited defects, primarily deficiencies in enzymes needed for metabolism. The disorders are characterized by bone abnormalities, mental retardation, clouding of the eyes' corneas, liver-spleen enlargement and the excess excretion of urinary mucopolysaccharide, a constituent of metabolism.

The type you mention, Hurler-Scieie, is marked by a weak aortic valve, stiff joints, variable mental deficiency, clouded corneas and an uncertain life span. Some children are more severely affected than others, but all show an insufficient quantity of the enzyme alpha-L-Iduronidase.

The disorders are untreatable by present methods. With respect to your daughter's case, I'll have to defer to her pediatrician who can give you specific information about her prognosis and the supportive care she needs.

My professional life is frequently lived-up by patients who are characters: imaginative people who, despite various afflictions, manage to express their individuality by waging a quiet, unobtrusive battle against medical advice.

Take Mr. Allen, for example. (I've changed his name.) He's a disabled, elderly widower with diet-controllable diabetes. He is homebound because his severe arthritis makes trips to the office impossible. He has avoided nursing-home care, due, in large part, to the superlative visiting nurses in the community. These nurses stop by his house two or three times a week to check his blood sugar, record his blood pressure and generally monitor his state of health.

His neighbor, also a widower, does the shopping: Home health aides spend about an hour a day preparing his meals, cleaning up and making sure he is taken care of. On occasion, I'm called in when a potential problem develops.

Such was the case recently when the nurse telephoned me.

"I wonder if you'd stop and see Mr. Allen today?" she asked. "His blood sugar is OK, but he seems to have some abdominal pain that is troublesome."

Later in the morning, I drove to Mr. Allen's little white clapboard house. It was one of those bright, warm days in early March, which heralded approaching spring. The air smelled fresh as I walked up the driveway between patches of melting snow, following the aides' trail to the back door.

I entered the kitchen and found Mr. Allen sitting comfortably at a Formica table. He had just lit the end of an enormous cigar and a billow of haze wafted toward the ceiling. Although he wasn't expecting my visit, he successfully covered his surprise at seeing me unannounced.

"First one today," he grumbled, referring to the cigar. "I smoke only two a day," he added as if anticipating my criticism. "What are you doing here?"

"The nurse says you've got a belly-ache. I came to check it out."

"I'm fine," he replied from behind the wall of blue smoke, "just fine. Those girls worry too dang much."

After some delicate negotiations, he allowed me to palpate his abdomen and listen to his lungs and heart. The brief examination failed to show a problem.

"Well," I said, "I agree. While I'm here, I think I'll have a look around."

Mr. Allen sat like a sphinx and watched me suspiciously with eyes that were abnormally magnified through his thick spectacles. I noted the hand-printed emergency telephone numbers stuck to the wall with masking tape. Judging from the dishes in the sink, he'd had a good breakfast. Several current magazines were piled on a nearby chair. I turned to the refrigerator and opened the door.

The usual edibles were packed on the shelves — but hold on! I drew out half a lemon-meringue pie still in its bakery box. Behind it were the remains of a peach pie, also in its original container. I read the labels: Both pies contained sugar. These were not desserts for diabetics.

"What's this, Mr. Allen?" I exclaimed as I withdrew the evidence from the refrigerator.

His pupils dilated for a moment in uncertainty. Then, he took a long and satisfying drag on the cigar, absently waved the smoke from his path of vision and leaned forward to obtain a clearer view of the two boxes I held up for his inspection. He looked me straight in the eye with an unwavering gaze.

"I'll be darned," he muttered, straightening up. "Where do you suppose those came from?"

I love it. Of course, I'll have to talk to the nurses about putting a stop to Mr. Allen's contraband before my next visit. I do have a responsibility to help him avoid culinary catastrophe; a high-sugar diet can cause gas and abdominal discomfort in diabetics. Nevertheless, I hope he continues to be irascibly independent, an endearing quality that is enabling him to remain very much alive. I vote for any oppositional behavior that has therapeutic benefit in the over-65 set. Maybe I'll be lucky enough to be a cantankerous curmudgeon.

Trump dislikes name

HOUSTON (AP) — Trumps Pub was named after the game, but "The Donald" apparently is not pleased. His giant company is threatening legal action against the small establishment if it doesn't get a new name.

Pub owner Ron Schaefer received a certified letter Thursday from the Trump Organization advising him to stop using the Trump name within 24 hours.

"It's really hard for a little guy like me. To get a letter from Donald Trump, it makes me nervous. He has more clout than I have," Schaefer said Friday. Schaefer maintains he's not a Trump wanna-be. He said he and his two partners were thinking of bridge, not the multimillionaire, when they came up with the name.

"A trump card in bridge is a winning card," said Schaefer, who described the pub as a "friendly neighborhood bar" with some dart boards and pool tables.

But someone apparently saw the name and reported the finding to Trump's company. Then came the certified letter.

OBESITY

Obesity is often associated with high blood pressure, diabetes, increased cholesterol levels, certain cancers, and heart disease. If that isn't bad enough, overweight can also cause mental depression due to a reduced social life, attractiveness, and feeling of self worth.

The obese can certainly regain a normal figure if they avoid fat diets, but get with a professional dietician and exercise program. Mental and physical health surely are worth the effort.

Financial Focus

As we move into the 21st century, economists are expecting baby boomers to influence the stock market.

Baby boomers, or those born between 1946 and 1964, are quickly becoming a major segment of our population. Today, there are about 35.5 million Americans between the ages of 45 and 59. If the Census Department's projections are correct, that number will grow to more than 49 million by the turn of the century.

The first boomers turned 43 last year, and many are reaching the stage of their lives when they can begin accumulating wealth. Their kids are finishing college, moving out and freeing up some cash for Mom and Pop to invest.

These trends seem likely to continue. According to a recent article in Financial Services Week, 77 percent of U.S. financial assets today are held by people over age 55. That same group also holds 80 percent of the funds in savings-and-loan associations.

Recent statistics from the Commerce Department back up the baby-boomer theory. Today's investors are spending more on brokerage and financial-counseling services than ever before. Personal monthly expenditures on these services were about $18 million during 1989, up from $17.4 million in 1988.

With life expectancies lengthening, this group of aging Americans is beginning to consider retirement, long-term health care and other issues of aging. A Gallup Organization poll for the International Association of Financial Planning indicated that 25 percent of Americans don't know how they will fund their retirement years. The stock market may be a logical place to look.

Between the end of World War II and the end of 1988, the U.S. economy grew from $212 billion to $4.9 trillion. Without adjusting for inflation, that's an annual growth rate of 7.7 percent. Assuming a continuation of this historical growth rate, the value of the economy could exceed $11 trillion by the year 2000.

A growing economy breeds a growing stock market. Although nothing about the future is guaranteed, it's fair to expect the Dow Jones Industrial Average could well exceed 4000 in the next 10 years.

If you're a baby boomer, you could be one of the big reasons for this anticipated advance.

Independence approved

RIGA, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Latvian lawmakers voted for independence Friday but plotted a more cautious break from the Soviet Union than neighboring Lithuania. Latvians greeted the declaration of independence with tears, a chorus of the republic's traditional anthem and dancing in the streets.

The 138-0 parliamentary vote, 50 years after Moscow seized the three Baltic states on the Soviet's western border, put Latvia on a similar secessionist path with Lithuania and Estonia.

However, unlike Lithuania's independence declaration of March 11, the vote by Latvia's Supreme Soviet called for a gradual break with the Soviet Union.

Latvian President Anatoly Gorbunov said he was already thinking about the next step: negotiations with Moscow.

"Everything is ahead," he said. "This is only the very, very beginning."

Gorbunov later was asked at a news conference what reaction he expected from the Kremlin. He said he could not predict what Moscow would say, but he added that the Latvian government had tried to make it clear in the declaration that there is "no cause to close the door on dialogue and start setting ultimatums."

Fifty-seven anti-independence lawmakers refused to cast ballots. Even so, the measure had no problem achieving the two-thirds majority needed for approval.

After the vote was announced, Latvians inside and outside the hall broke into a chorus of "God Bless Latvia," the republic's traditional anthem. A cheering crowd showered emerging lawmakers with roses, pansies and daffodils.

The deputies also voted to drop the words "Soviet Socialist" from the republic's name, making it simply "The Republic of Latvia."

Stewart continues victory string

by The Associated Press
Pitchers' duel or power hitters' parade, it doesn't matter. Dave Stewart still beats Roger Clemens.

Stewart made it five straight over the Boston ace Friday night as the Oakland Athletics beat the Red Sox 8-3.

Stewart (6-0) has not lost to Clemens since joining the Athletics in 1986. Last Sunday, Stewart outpitched Clemens to win 1-0 at Fenway Park.

"The only reason you're up more for this game," Stewart said, "is you feel going in you're not going to get many runs off Clemens."

Stewart, who won 20 games for three straight seasons but does not have a Cy Young Award, leads the majors in victories. He has won 19 consecutive decisions in April and started out strong this May, allowing two runs on six hits in seven innings, walking none and striking out two.

Clemens (4-2), a two-time Cy Young winner, gave up six runs on seven hits in six-plus innings. He fell to 2-8 against the Athletics, the only team he does not have a winning record against, and is 0-4 at Oakland, the only American League park where he has never won.

Felix Jose put Oakland ahead with a two-run homer in the sixth for a 4-2 lead.

In other games, New York beat California 5-2, Baltimore defeated Seattle 9-8, Chicago downed Kansas City 5-4 in 11 innings and Detroit topped Toronto 3-1. Texas at Cleveland and Minnesota at Milwaukee were rained out.

Anderson's first match will be Friday but her opponent is not yet known.

Knicks, Celtics future on line

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York Knicks and Boston Celtics, after trading embarrassing defeats, settle things once and for all on Sunday.

The Celtics, after setting NBA playoff records for points and shooting percentage in a 157-128 victory at Boston Garden that gave them a 2-0 lead last Saturday, were beaten 135-108 in Game 4 at Madison Square Garden Friday night. That sent the series back to Boston for a fifth and deciding game on Sunday.

"We had our turn at being embarrassed," Celtics coach Jimmy Rodgers said. "We've played great in Boston, and they rose to the challenge at New York. Now we have to counterpunch at home."

Patrick Ewing had 44 points, 13 rebounds and seven steals for the Knicks, who haven't won in Boston in 26 tries since Feb. 29, 1984.

"I really believe the pressure is on them," said Ewing, who made his first eight shots and finished 18-for-24. "We just have to maintain our confidence and intensity and continue to play like the last two games."

"The only way to end their home-court advantage is to win the game," Knicks coach Stu Jackson said. "We hung our heads a little bit the last time we were in Boston. I don't think that will happen Sunday."

In the other NBA playoff game Friday night, Utah snapped a 10-game losing streak at Phoenix with a 105-94 victory over the Suns to even that series at 2-2.

The Jazz play host to Phoenix in Game 5 on Sunday, with the winner advancing to the second round against the Los Angeles Lakers. The defending champion Detroit Pistons, who swept Indiana, await the Celtics-Knicks winner.

In Saturday's games, Cleveland was at Philadelphia for Game 5 of a first-round series, and San Antonio was at Portland for Game 1 of the Western Conference semifinals.

The Knicks led Boston by eight at halftime, extended the margin to 18 in the third quarter and saw the Celtics get only as close as 11 before the game turned into a blowout in the fourth period.

The Knicks started the third quarter with a 27-17 run for a 92-74 advantage. The Celtics trailed by as many as 37 in the fourth quarter.

McHale scored 24 points, Reggie Lewis 23 and Bird 21 for Boston. Johnny Newman had 24 points and Gerald Wilkins 20 for New York.

Ewing scored 20 points on 9-of-11 shooting in the first quarter, carrying New York to a 36-30 lead. Ewing scored the Knicks' first 10 points in the opening 2:33.

Jazz 105, Suns 94

Utah, which last won at Phoenix on March 7, 1986 and was 4-37 there in team history, got 33 points from Karl Malone.

Malone teamed with Darrell Griffith during a decisive 10-0 third-period run that gave the Jazz a 79-69 lead at the end of the quarter. Malone had two field goals and Griffith two 3-pointers during the two-minute surge.

The Suns closed to 97-94 with 1:39 remaining, but didn't score again.

Springers will host tumbling gathering

Snyder Springers will host the state Division I Power Tumbling and Trampoline meet at Scurry County Coliseum Saturday May 12.

The team is coached by Kay Porter and Wayne Cato and will compete with approximately 46 teams from Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma. In all, about 1500 competitors are expected for the meet, which would make it the largest ever.

The Springers boast national qualifier Michelle Roemisch on their roster as well as T'Leah Eicke, Rachael Feist, Keisha Stidham and Kendra Dacus who all claimed firsts in the teams last outing, a February meet in Brownfield.

The team currently has 28 members listed. The kids in the gathering range in age from three to 13 and over and are all in the Novice Division.

Warm-ups for the tumblers begin at 7 a.m. Saturday with the Grand March following at approximately 8 a.m.

Competition is slated to commence at 9 a.m. Admission to the meet is free.

SWC okays random test for drug use

AUSTIN (AP) — Southwest Conference athletic directors have taken a big step to eliminate drug abuse, voting in favor of random testing.

The recommendation, made during the directors' spring meeting in Dallas Friday, requires approval by faculty representatives when they meet May 23-26 in Hot Springs, Ark.

"I'm sure they will pass it," Texas Athletic Director DeLoss Dodds told the Austin American-Statesman.

Under the proposal, the league will randomly test as many as 22 football players for steroids and street drugs during the fall and spring. The players will receive only two hours notice.

The league now conducts its tests on announced dates, when players arrive in the fall. That allows them a chance to use masking agents or stop taking the drugs for a long enough period so as to go undetected, skeptics charge.

"The players always knew we'd come around the first week of fall practice," SWC Commissioner Fred Jacoby said.

Athletes in other sports also will be randomly tested for steroids and street drugs.

Dodds said those testing positive for steroids will automatically lose a year of eligibility. Policy for street drugs will remain at the discretion of individual schools.

In addition, the NCAA will escalate the war against steroids beginning Aug. 1 when it begins year-round random testing.

House offers funding plan

AUSTIN (AP) — The House Public Education Committee approved a school finance reform plan Friday that wouldn't necessarily require a tax increase — but which lawmakers said could strip state aid from wealthier school districts.

The committee chairwoman, Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, D-Alice, said the plan sent to the full House would meet the Texas Supreme Court's order to equalize financing between rich and poor schools.

But if no additional money is pumped into the system, wealthy districts would lose state aid and be forced to cut back spending or raise local property taxes, she said.

"The wealthier school districts would have a substantial loss in state aid. They would either have to decrease their budget or increase their level of property taxes," Ms. Glossbrenner said.

The full House is expected to vote on the bill early next week, she said.

A separate spending bill also likely will be debated by lawmakers who are struggling to meet a June 1 court deadline for action. If legislators fail to enact a finance reform plan by then, state District Judge Scott McCown says the court will do it for them.

The Legislature last month approved a plan that would have cost $555 million more in the first year. But it died when Gov. Bill Clements vetoed a half-cent sales tax increase needed to pay for that plan.

The latest House bill is similar to the $555 million plan in its mechanics for distributing state aid.

Clements, a Republican, insists no new taxes are needed. He and some GOP lawmakers have proposed trimming money out of other state programs to find money for schools.

The governor was criticized Friday by several Democratic lawmakers who said they have been trying to compromise but find Clements unbending.

"It takes two to tango," said Rep. Paul Colbert, D-Houston, an education committee member.

"Compromise isn't 'We're just going to turn everything over to you and let you write the law.' The Legislature has given tremendously from what it set out to do. But the give has to go in both directions," Colbert said.

"You are also reducing the ability of the kid in that wealthier district to get the education they're currently getting. It's not in the best interest of this state to level the system down," he said.

Cosmetology interviews due on June 18

Students who want to enter the Western Texas College cosmetology class starting in September need to schedule their pre-entrance interviews on June 18, Judy Border, cosmetology instructor, said.

"We will have some students who are graduating from high school this spring and we especially want to remind them of the June 18 interview date," Mrs. Border said.

Prospective students are to pick up the cosmetology packet in the Admissions Office and complete those forms as the first step. Some financial aid is available and those applications do require time for processing.

Dedicate memorial

KENT, Ohio (AP) — Thousands of people lit candles in the rain Friday to dedicate a memorial to four Kent State University students who were slain by Ohio National Guardsmen during an anti-war protest 20 years ago.

About 4,000 people huddled beneath umbrellas on a parking lot near the site of the shootings, which took place on May 4, 1970, and marked a tragic rallying point for those who opposed American involvement in the Vietnam War.

Most of the people in the crowd placed lighted candles on the hilltop granite memorial. Some placed their candles amid the 58,175 daffodils planted on the nearby hillside for each American killed in the war.

About 200 students nearby waged a silent protest by raising clenched fists and holding up handmade signs bearing messages of "Whose May 4th is it anyway?" and "Don't minimize student death." Some held up two fingers, V-shaped, in the peace sign popularized during the anti-war movement.

Some Kent State students have contended the university's $200,000 memorial is too little, too late.

Former U.S. Sen. George McGovern, the keynote speaker, said the memorial should encourage reconciliation between the United States and Vietnam, which do not have diplomatic relations.

McGovern drew applause when he said the nation should never pursue military action counter to the public sentiment.

TRANSLATOR DONATION — Mark Estes, senior vice president of West Texas State Bank, accepts a donation from Debra Hester, owner of Li'l Rascals, for the KGNZ Translator Station Fund. The translator station, when established, will rebroadcast Christian music and programs carried on KGNZ. Contributions may be brought to the bank or mailed directly to KGNZ in Abilene. An interdenominational group of interested citizens meets each Tuesday at 6 p.m. in the Snyder Savings & Loan basement to organize the fund drive.

Suspected guerrilla fatally shoots U.S. soldier

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — A suspected communist guerrilla fatally shot a U.S. Marine near an American-run base, prompting cancellation of off-base leave for all U.S. military personnel in the country, officials said today.

The Friday night attack near Subic Naval Base came after authorities said they had evidence communist guerrillas planned to kill Americans before talks begin this month on extending the base's lease.

Burglary is reported at local business

Jewelry and clothing were reported missing from a burglary reported Friday at Botique Resale, 1207 25th St.

Lea Clifton reported that about $600 in jewelry and about $400 in clothing were taken from the business between sometime between last Saturday and Friday.

At 3:02 p.m. Friday, officers were called to Perry's in Highland Shopping Center for possible shoplifting. The subjects had left the area and no arrests were made.

At 8:37 p.m., city officers were called to a College Ave. parking lot where juveniles were said to be fighting. Police arrested two males, ages 12 and 10, who were later released to their parents.

At 3:16 a.m. Saturday, city officers went to the 3000 Block of Ave. K where a fight was reported in progress. No arrests were made.

At 3:51 a.m. in the 2500 Block of Ave. K, city officers arrested a 34-year-old man for driving while intoxicated. He was taken to the Scurry County jail.

At 11:06 a.m. Friday, officers were called to the 3000 Block of Ave. K to check on a report of loud music and a large number of people attending a party.

Earlier in the day, officers received a call from a resident on 40th Street asking for a close patrol during the noon hour as high school students were damaging property in the area.

At 3:45 p.m. in the 2600 Block of Ave. Y, police arrested a 17-year-old male for public intoxication and for minor in possession. He was taken to the Scurry County jail.

Marxist insurgency are also suspected of having killed at least 14 people, including a town mayor, in attacks in the central and southern Philippines since Thursday.

Gunnery Sgt. John S. Fredette, 34, of Buena Park, Calif., was slain in the liberty town of Olongapo near the base, about 50 miles west of Manila, according to a spokesman for the Subic facility.

Fredette was assigned to Marine Fighter-Attack Squadron 323, which is on temporary duty in the Philippines from its base at the Marine Air Station in El Toro, Calif., said spokesman Petty Officer John Moore.

A police investigator, Patrolman Romeo de Guzman, said Fredette was walking along a sidewalk in Olongapo when one of five suspected communist New People's Army members shot him once in the neck with a handgun. The five escaped on foot after the shooting.

Fredette was rushed to the Subic Base hospital where he died one hour later, de Guzman added. De Guzman said the killing "has all the earmarks" of a communist assassination but did not elaborate.

Following the killing, U.S. authorities canceled off-base leave and non-essential travel for the 40,000 U.S. troops, Defense Department civilians and military dependents at Subic and the five other U.S.-run bases throughout the country.

Last month, the Navy barred most non-essential travel to Manila but had allowed sailors to visit Olongapo, traditionally among the safest cities in the Philippines.

to find the best individual for the job."

As city engineer and public works director, Osborn supervised the street, sanitation, landfill, water production, water distribution, waste water collection and treatment, vehicle maintenance, engineering, drafting, permit and inspection departments.

Prior to that position, Osborn was owner and proprietor of Snyder Engineering Consultants, offering consulting services in the areas of oilfield facilities design and construction. From April 1973 to January 1985 he was a part owner of I&R Industries Inc., supervising up to 30 employees in manufacturing, sales, purchasing quality control, mechanical, electrical and book-keeping departments.

He previously worked for Chevron USA from December 1967 to April 1973.

Osborn served on the Snyder City Council from 1982 to 1986 and was Mayor Pro-Tem in 1984. He is second vice president of the Snyder Noon Kiwanis Club and served on the welding department advisory board at Western Texas College.

He and his wife, Diane, have three children — Don Jr., who will be graduating from the Naval Academy in Annapolis on May 30; Michelle, a senior at Angelo State University; and Anne, who will be graduating from Snyder High School on June 1.

A reception for Osborn has been planned from 3-5 p.m. May 14 at City Hall.

example...and we did." Rosson said in his letter.

"Hudgins is always full of vigor and passes this loving, energetic spirit to each of her children, and to the faculty she works with. We are proud and thankful that she is a part of our school system and so are hundreds of students whose lives she touches in a special way each school year."

U.S. Ambassador Nicholas Platt expressed his "shock and sorrow at the cowardly murder" of Fredette, said U.S. Embassy spokeswoman Victoria Middleton.

The incident is under investigation by both U.S. naval and Philippine authorities.

Ms. Middleton said security was tightened at American facilities in Manila about two months ago because of fears of a rebel attack.

from the audience. The show was stopped six times by audience applause and that's unheard of," said Worsham. "But it was tough competition. When the decision rests in the hands of any judge, it can go in any direction."

Gregory Portland's "One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest" won the state contest. Katy Taylor High School placed third with its production of "The Caucasian Chalk Circle."

Only the three top plays are recognized. Also competing were Big Spring in "The Rimers of Eldritch," Dallas Wilson in "J.B.," West Orange in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," Palestine in "Wings," and Rockport-Fulton in "The Trojan Women."

While at state, Snyder was featured extensively on an Austin television station and recognized as the winningest school in the 65-year history of University Interscholastic League drama competition. Snyder students have won 84 acting awards — 81 under Worsham — while the next closest school has managed 27.

"We had a huge following from Snyder and it was unbelievable how many ex students flew in to see us and support us," said Worsham. "It was really terrific."

In addition to Berryman, Adams and Mize, members of the Snyder cast are John Conger, Casey Franks, Heath Hodges, Johnny Lack, Marcus Best, Grant Jordan, Jennifer Purcell, Emily King, Lei Holcomb, Erin Rambo, Darin Sparlin and Bryan Brunson.

Alternates are Ryan Byrd, J.K. Palmer, Amber Bowlin, Stephanie Hodges and Jo Ellen King. Members of the crew are Jason Best, Robert Patterson, Amy Hodges and Julie Johnson.

City police investigated three wrecks — two minor and all with no injuries — Friday afternoon.

A major wreck was reported at 4:07 p.m. Friday at 30th St. and College Ave. A 1986 Dodge Caravan driven by Ruth Floor of Route 3 was in collision with a 1987 Dodge driven by Lisa Kay Minton of 3604 Irving. The Minton vehicle was towed from the scene.

The first mishap occurred at 3:56 p.m. in the 1900 Block of 25th St. A 1985 Chevrolet driven by Olga Rodriguez Hernandez of 128 20th was in collision with a 1983 Chevrolet driven by Amando Garza Jr. of Snyder.

Thomas Strayhorn, biology/physical science teacher at Snyder High School, recently was nominated by Rebecca Vestal, a freshman at Southern Methodist University in Dallas, as the educator who had the most impact on her intellectual development in high school.

Nearly 60 freshmen nominated their former teachers to be honored at the recognition luncheon held March 31 at SMU. High School teachers from 12 states and Puerto Rico were honored.

Strayhorn said he was "very surprised" when he received a letter from Ruth Morgan, SMU's Provost, informing him that he was one of the teachers to be honored at the luncheon.

He attended the luncheon in March accompanied by his wife, Vina, and daughters, Ellen, 12, and Carol, 10.

During the luncheon, Strayhorn said they enjoyed a presentation by an archeology professor and afterwards each teacher being honored that day received a book and a few comments that each student had written about each teacher were also read aloud.

Strayhorn said the theme of this effort to recognize high school teachers, was that each teacher "was more than just a teacher, but also someone who made each student see inside themselves."

They also attended a panel discussion prior to the luncheon during which two SMU professors discussed excellence in education. A question and answer period followed.

In addition to the luncheon, the teachers attended a panel discussion on "Effective Teaching in the High School and College Classroom" and were given a private tour of SMU's renowned Meadows Museum.

Strayhorn taught Vestal, who is the daughter of Jerry and Sharrylon Vestal, in an advanced biology class during her senior year at SHS. It is a second year course and is designed to be taken after chemistry.

Strayhorn said he remembers Vestal as a student "who was not afraid to speak her mind or to stand up for what she believes in." He admits that they "crossed paths" a few times last school year, but that in doing so they came to "see different sides of each other" and to appreciate each other more.

Both Strayhorn and Vestal agreed that two of the highlights of that advanced biology class concerned dissection of a cat and a week-long trip to Big Bend.

Advanced biology included an extensive anatomy section and Strayhorn said that Vestal was really very good with the dissection portion of the course.

At the end of each school year, Strayhorn said he likes to take his students on a trip to Big Bend so they can get a first-hand look at the ecological and botanical aspects of the area.

He said it is a "unique experience" and that last school year some 11 students in the class joined him for the nature experience.

Strayhorn likes the Big Bend trip because besides being unique it is also educational and helps to teach students responsibility. Besides learning about themselves, Strayhorn said the trip also enables students to study and observe first hand the ecology of the area. For some

RECOGNITION LUNCHEON — Rebecca Vestal, daughter of Jerry and Sharrylon Vestal and a freshman at Southern Methodist University, attended a special March 31 luncheon at SMU along with Thomas Strayhorn, biology/physical science teacher at Snyder High School. Vestal nominated Strayhorn as the high school teacher who had the most impact on her intellectual development. (Strayhorn Photo) students he said it is also their first visit to Big Bend.

Strayhorn, who is a Snyder native, has taught at the high school for the past 11 years. Previously, he also taught for two years in Brownfield and six years in Lubbock.

"I like working with students. I enjoy getting to know them and I try to help them learn more about themselves as well as the subject matter throughout the school year. I like to see students grow in knowledge," he said.

Before Strayhorn decided to become a teacher, he had intended to become a doctor and had enrolled in a pre-med program.

But, Strayhorn said he "had had enough of school" and decided teaching "would be a good thing to try."

He has an undergraduate degree from Texas Tech and a masters degree in counseling, which, even though he has never functioned as a counselor, he said what he learned then still helps him in the classroom today.

Since Strayhorn had obtained his teaching certificate along with his degree, he said he ended up remaining a teacher, and in fact, was surprised at how much he liked it.

Strayhorn said they decided to return to Snyder because they wanted to be near his parents (he's an only child) and because they wanted to raise their daughters in a smaller town.

According to Vestal, advanced biology was "one of the toughest classes I had at Snyder High School."

"Mr. Strayhorn never took anything off anyone and even though he made everyone work hard, he also always made the class fun and exciting."

"Several students dropped out before the year was over," she continued, "But those who stayed were glad because they ended up loving the course."

Having already been exposed to scientific material made it easier for Vestal to make the transition from high school to college biology.

Last fall when she had trouble with freshman biology she said she contacted Strayhorn who sent her notes written in such a way that he knew she would be able to understand.

By the end of last school year, Vestal said she and the other seniors in the class had become friends. Regarding the Big Bend trip, she said, "He let us be adults and he also taught us to have fun on the trip."

Vestal related one incident during which Strayhorn got them up at 5 a.m. for a hike to the top of a mountain. She said they all complained the whole time they were hiking, but when they got to the top and saw the sun rise it was an awesome experience. That was when they realized why Strayhorn had insisted that they do it.

During that week, she said they stayed in a cabin and at the end of the day they liked to sit around and talk. She said they learned how to get along with people who were totally different and the experience helped them all to become closer to each other.

Vestal also credits the Big Bend trip with helping her to learn a lot about nature and to appreciate it more.

"I came away from Mr. Strayhorn's class knowing that something does not have to be easy in order to be able to enjoy it. I can still enjoy something even if I have to work very hard on it," she said.

She also said that Strayhorn made them all work hard because he wanted them to learn that they will have to work hard in order to achieve anything good in life.

Vestal described Strayhorn as being a tough, but understanding teacher who was willing to give any student who tried a break.

"All of my teachers in high school were very good, but Mr. Strayhorn allowed himself to be both a teacher and a friend. We all knew that we could go to him with anything that bugged us and that even though he could relate to us as students but still remain the teacher."

"He was as hard as any of my teachers at SMU have been," she said. "Advanced biology helped me to prepare for freshman biology because all the material we studied was familiar because I had seen it somewhere before and that made it easier to learn."

Vestal said she learned of SMU's recognition program for high school teachers through a letter sent to all 1,200 freshmen. She decided to participate because she believes in what the college is doing and she wanted to show her appreciation to her former teacher.

Vestal is considering a business degree and this summer she plans to work in the finance department at St. Mary of the Plains Hospital in Lubbock.

Home looking for assistance

The Snyder Nursing Center on the Big Spring Highway is in the process of organizing an active volunteer organization to assist with any activities that the residents are involved in.

It is the desire of the organizers to involve the community as much as possible in an effort to make life easier for the residents who know this as home. An organization of this kind, according to effort leaders, will be a definite asset to the Home and will have a positive effect on the attitude of the residents.

There is a need for at least two workers each morning and afternoon to assist the activity director as well as take care of other daily tasks for residents. Individuals who prefer not to work a specific shift, may choose to work with special activities or as a group.

Some activities in need of

Sterling family reunion

The annual Sterling reunion was held April 29 at the Ira Community Center with 54 in attendance.

Present from Ira were Mickey and Joanne Sterling; Mack and Ilene Kruse; Raye Sterling; Tommy, Randa and Seth Sterling; Emogene Sterling; Billie Jean and Leon Sterling; Pat, Kirby, Justin and Celeigh Sterling; Agnes Sorrells; Craig, Julie and Colby McMullen and Gus and Jean Sterling.

Attending from Snyder were Robert, Rebecca, Trent and Laura Boyd; Helen Allen; Trey and Kara Wilson; Marla, Cody and Tyson Sterling; Kevin, Nancy, Emily, Audrey and Allen Jones; Sid, June, Drew, Todd, Jess and Katie Wall; Riley Sterling and Veda Minor.

Others in attendance were Jimmy, Tara and Karen Sterling of Coahoma; J.M. and Lucille Sterling of Colorado City and Alvin, Kathy, Sarah, Katie and Margaret May of Lubbock.

group help are: arts and crafts, bingo, birthday parties, outings such as shopping, sing-a-longs, programs and entertainment movies and assistance with social and family nights. Volunteer forms will contain additional listings.

The Home also has an "Adopt a Grandparent" program that might interest families. Others might choose to be a secret pal to a resident.

Unfortunately, there are many residents who have no family, and yet others whose families do not live close enough to visit. There are also those who are just simply forgotten. It is these that need special attention.

If you would be interested in helping, pick up a volunteer form at Snyder Nursing Center. Complete the form and return it to Elsie Smallwood, activity director. For further information, contact Smallwood of Nelda Hudson at 573-3273.

1989 RABIES OVERVIEW

Laboratories confirmed rabies in our public health region totaling 106 cases during the calendar year of 1989, a slight decrease from the 1988 total of 113 cases. Cases in bats and horses more than doubled, while cases in cats fell to less than half of the previous year's totals. Skunk rabies comprised 72% of the total.

Monoclonal antibody studies indicate the skunk strain of rabies virus as the culprit in all domestic animal rabies cases in public health region 5 which includes Scurry County.

There were 10 reported cases in horses, several of which were valuable race horses. In none of the cases were the owners aware of an exposure of the horse to a rabid animal, despite daily care in most instances. Because the monoclonal antibody test results mentioned above, it must be assumed that rabid skunks are inflicting bites which go unnoticed by the owners. Only one of the 10 horses reported rabid had a previous rabies vaccination history.

There were several canine rabies cases which resulted from a failure of pet owners to respond to skunk attacks upon litters of puppies. A frequently occurring scenario involves a skunk attacking a litter of puppies or kittens, biting or killing a few, and escaping.

Pet owners may incorrectly assume that animals showing no obvious wounds may not be exposed. When such incidents occur, the safest course of action is to assume that the entire litter has been exposed and follow euthanasia or quarantine policies accordingly. This is a difficult concept to convey to the general public, but more educational efforts in this area are needed, particularly in rural areas where outdoor pets have a greater chance of contact with rabid skunks.

EARTH TEAM VOLUNTEERS

By Michael Squires
 What is the Earth Team? The Earth Team is people. They are volunteers that work with the local Soil and Water Conservation Districts through the Soil and Water Conservation Service. These people are making a difference in Texas.

The Earth Team Volunteers worked over 13,000 hours for conservation districts in Texas during 1989.

These volunteers are helping to get conservation on the ground in many Texas counties. The volunteers come from a variety of backgrounds. Many are homemakers, high school students and retired persons. They all have one thing in common, and that is a desire to work in some way towards conserving our nations natural resources.

The local Soil Conservation Service in Snyder is looking for people that are interested in becoming Earth Team members. Terry Hefner, district conservationist, says that anyone interested in assisting the SCS office should contact her at 573-6317 for an appointment. Earth Team volunteers have quickly become important in the role of the Soil Conservation Service.

Where and when is important in clotting

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — When you cut a finger or scrape a knee, your blood's ability to clot stops the bleeding and begins the healing process. But when a blood clot forms at the wrong time or place, it can cause a stroke or heart attack.

Doctors now have several treatments available to dissolve harmful clots. To make the best choice about which one to use with each patient, they need to know about the clot's structure and contents.

Scientists at the University of Rochester are working on a new method using ultrasound to detect the features of clots, such as the percentage of red blood cells in a clot, as well as the strength of the fibrin network which holds clots together.

HOW'S YOUR HONEY?

Is your honey raw or processed? How can you tell?

Raw honey is that which has never been heated above 100° F. or strained. Processed honey has been heated and filtered to remove any foreign particles.

The color of honey varies depending on where the bees collect the nectar. In addition, heating may slightly darken the honey.

To store honey, keep it in a slightly covered container in a dark, cool place. Freezing or refrigeration will not harm the product, but it may cause it to form granules.

If granules do form, place the honey in a bowl of warm water until the crystals melt.

For the pure-honey users, remember: pure product won't ever spoil and needs no preservatives.

NEW YORK (AP) — Surprise Mom with something "berry" special on Mother's Day. Fresh strawberry pita slices sizzle with the flavor of bacon and creamy garlic spread.

Creamy Garlic And Bacon Pitas
6 slices bacon, halved
2 cloves garlic
1 tablespoon slivered almonds, toasted

2 ounces light cream cheese
2 tablespoons plain yogurt
¼ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

1 pita bread, split
6 large strawberries, sliced
Boston or leaf lettuce
Place bacon on microwave-safe rack; cover with paper towel and cook on high (100 percent power) 5 to 6 minutes. Roll up half of the slices to make 6 bacon curls. Crumble remaining bacon; reserve.

Meanwhile, place garlic and almonds in blender container or processor; cover and blend until finely chopped. Add cheese, yogurt and Worcestershire sauce; cover and blend until fairly smooth. Stir in reserved bacon. Spread each pita circle with bacon mixture. Place strawberries around outer edge; arrange lettuce in center and top with bacon curls. Cut into quarters to serve. Makes 8 servings, about 77 calories per serving.

second spade. Declarer later had to lose a club trick.

To succeed, South must win the first trick with the spade ace and then play the spade queen to dummy. He can now lead the jack of hearts as before. If West ruffs in on the second or third heart, he must either give declarer a sluff and a ruff by leading another spade, or lead away from the king of clubs. If West fails to ruff in, he will eventually be thrown on lead with a trump, with the same result.

When you open the bidding with three no-trump, you are showing either a basketful of high-card points, 25 or more, or a long running suit with random outside stoppers. It's all a matter of partnership agreement. The same holds true when an opponent pre-empts.

When South bid three no-trump, North optimistically raised to four no-trump. That was not asking for aces, but simply inviting a slam. South accepted by jumping to six diamonds.

South had the right idea in the play. When the spade jack was led, he realized that he would need the heart finesse and that the best chance thereafter would be finding one defender with both the singleton ace of diamonds and the king of clubs. So he won dummy's king of spades and led the jack of hearts, covered by the king from East. But when South tried to cash the second heart, West ruffed in with the ace of diamonds and played a

Meals should be bite size

NEW YORK (AP) — To make mealtime with kids more pleasurable, serve bite-size pieces for bite-size appetites. And keep portions small.

If the kids want more, you can serve a second portion, says Best Foods, but encouraging children to "clean" an overwhelming plate of food forces them to overeat — and could create negative feelings about food.

Dr. William Sears, nutritional consultant to Baby Talk magazine, says babies' meals can be fixed right along with the family's own dinner. "Making baby a meal from fresh fruit and vegetables is more delicious and certainly more nutritious than just opening up a jar or a can," he says. "And kids enjoy eating the same foods as Mom and Dad."

Other "parent survival" tips: — Let toddlers and very young children eat at their own pace and in their own way. If it is easier for them to eat with their fingers, don't insist on a fork or spoon. Getting them to eat is what's important.

— Serve food creatively. Like adults, children respond more positively to a colorful, inviting presentation.

— Expect those times when children become particularly attached to a single food. Food "jags" are common and should pass within a reasonable amount of time.

— Let children participate in meal preparation by setting the table or assisting in the kitchen. Such activity encourages responsibility and gets children to think of mealtimes as special.

— Make dinner a main event, eliminating unnecessary distractions such as television.

— Make dinner and other mealtimes welcome occasions. Even if busy schedules make it difficult, get the family to eat together as much as possible.

If your child enjoys pasta, Best Foods, has the following suggestions:

— Cook bite-size, mixed frozen vegetables in chicken broth; add cooked pasta right before serving.

— Team hot cooked pasta with lightly scrambled egg. Top with real bacon bits and shredded cheese.

Astrograph by Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

May 6, 1990

You might be presented with a very unique business proposal in the year ahead. It will have merit, but you must seek expert counsel before you get involved.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Others could put rather heavy demands on your time and talents today if you permit them to do so. If you must attend to critical, personal interests, you'll have to arrange your own schedule. Taurus, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) If you've been isolating yourself too much from an individual who is very fond of you, it could start to weaken the relationship. Begin some fond mending today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Seeking a favor from a person you've recently met could cause this individual to back away from you. Use your best judgment today in your social involvements.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) There's a possibility you might not do too well in competitive developments today, because when it comes time to push and shove you may not be as assertive as the other guy.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Do not discuss an idea about which you're enthused with a friend who is a negative thinker. Their evaluation could cause you to reject the worth of your plan.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) An arrangement in which you have a vested interest might shift in an unfavorable fashion today. Be alert so that you can minimize its effect through adjustments.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If you try too hard to manipulate and control others today, it could have a deleterious effect. Instead of being compliant, they could become unmanageable.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's best not to tackle any tasks or assignments today that you find personally distasteful. Your heart won't be in your work and you could end up doing a bum job.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you behave in a thoughtless manner today, your actions could create a small social crisis and you may even alienate someone who holds you in high regard.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Don't attempt do-it-yourself projects today that should be left to experts. You might save a few dollars, but you could cause costlier problems.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Timing is extremely important today, so don't hurry things beyond their reasonable pace. Nothing you'll have to accomplish will be that pressing or urgent.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Keep a tight reign on your finances at this time and strive to be as prudent as possible. Don't let your extravagant impulses put too much pressure on your credit card.

Your Birthday

In the year ahead you might have to shoulder more responsibilities than you've been accustomed to handling in the past. Don't be dismayed, because bigger jobs will yield bigger rewards. TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Developments that pop up on which you haven't planned could be overwhelming today if you have a poor attitude. Don't examine challenges through a magnifying glass. Major changes are ahead for Taurus in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In a social setting today, you might run into one of your less favorite people. The event will lose its sparkle if you let old memories surface.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A disagreement between you and your mate could turn into something rather serious today if neither party shows a willingness to compromise. Be the one who offers the olive branch.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Criticizing the work of an associate will not help to enhance his/her performance. In order to be constructive, your comments must be positive.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) If you have not been managing your resources too wisely lately, there's a possibility you won't have the money you need today to do buy something you want.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The restrictions to which you may be subjected today are not the fault of others but a product of your own miscalculations. Be careful where you point the finger of blame.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your efforts aren't likely to bring you much satisfaction today if you are too self-involved. This malady can be cured, however, by putting the needs of others before your own.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Allowing friends to pressure you into spending more than you should today could create resentment on your behalf. Be strong enough to say "no" and really mean it.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It could be rather iffy today as to whether or not you'll achieve the objectives you establish for yourself. This is because you'll do things the hard way.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Guard against tendencies today to prejudice the outcome of events in a negative fashion. If you think you're going to fail, you'll find a way to make this a self-fulfilling prophecy.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Try not to let yourself get into a situation today that will put you under a financial obligation to a friend. This is not a good time to borrow from pals.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) People with whom you're involved today could have a stronger influence over your affairs than usual. Unfortunately, their aims may not be in harmony with yours.

Buffalo Reef

By Bill McClellan

Went to see Uncle Elber last weekend. You know Elber. Sure. You hit that farm-to-market road west of town, head south 12 miles, then north a quarter of a mile, then west again over a dry creek bed. Mark a sharp left just after the second bridge. You can't miss it.

Well, you could miss it right now if you were looking for the dry creek bed. That's because the rain we've been having lately has turned it into a kind of sloppy, muddy creek bed. You wouldn't miss it if you came around the corner and didn't brake though. You'd probably find yourself up to your fenders in goo.

Elber's pulled many a vehicle out of the creek bed during bad weather. Years ago, if it looked like rain, he'd routinely back the tractor near the creek, just in case. Claims he's pulled over 50 vehicles, 6 cows, and Crazy Joe Hetteremier out of the mud.

I've never been able to find the creek on a map but almost everybody who knows it's there calls it "Cousin Katie Creek," which is a modified name for the original, at least according to Uncle Elber.

On up the creek bed about two miles is a low area where the old creek at one time ran about 25 yards across. It was the site of family get-togethers and a whole bunch of revivals, considering that it was "jus' about baptisin' dep," according to Elber. The bank was four or five feet above the creek itself.

Elber told me the story of Katie and Cousin Katie Creek years ago and I thought I'd let you hear it, in his words. Some of you know the story, so just pass it by if you want.

Anyway, here goes.

"Katie weren't anybody's cousin that I knowed of, not that I really knew Katie's family. I wasn't even borned yet. I guess if she was still alive, she'd be purt near 180 now, so I don't 'spect she is. Alive that is.

"Katie was struck with religion about as much as a body can get. She was always spoutin' the gospel and admonishin' the menfolk for their, well, colorful language.

"Now, you see, the nearest church was a solid 10 mile away, and the preacher came only onced a month so Katie took it on herself to hold services down by the creek jus' about every other Sunday. The men wasn't too keen on going to hear Katie's preachin', but you have to keep peace in the family, if you know what I mean.

"One day Katie was in town comin' out of the post office when she ran into old Sam Hetteremier (Crazy Joe's grandad). Or really, he ran into her. Came 'round the corner at the same time, opposite ways, and 'bam,' she went sprawlin'.

"The collision knocked ol' Sam's specs off and he started cussin' a blue streak — 'til he found out who it was. By then it was too late.

"Katie lit into Sam like a chicken on a grub worm.

"You'd never hear that comin' from my mouth,' she'd said, shakin' her Bible in poor Sam's face. 'I'd hope the earth would swaller me up if I'd say such a thing!'

"And before she got through with him, she had him promisin' to be at the creek the next Sunday to join in the services.

"Well, it didn't take Katie long to get wound up that Sunday. She was standin' on the edge of the creek, goin' hard at it. Preachin' fire and brimstone. Her eyes were burnin' and her arms were a wavin' and she was really carryin' on.

"Then she spotted Sam kinda' half hid behind an old cottonwood tree and she really turned up the heat.

"Sam Hetteremier,' she said, 'You come out from behind that tree and repent before the earth swallers you up for all your cussin'. You come out here right now!'

"And as Sam ever so slowly eased out from behind the tree, she began to tell the crowd what had took place the day before in town. She tol' it word for word.

"You ever hear that comin' from my mouth?' she ast' Sam, not waitin' for an answer. 'I'd hope the earth would swaller me up if I'd say such a thing! I'd hope to go to Hell...'

"An' she never said another word, because suddenly the edge of the creek bank gave way and Katie fell over backwards into the creek, arms flailin', feet flyin'.

"And Sam, who didn't realize what had happened, froze and stared straight ahead. A bunch of people scrambled down the bank to see if Katie was alright and some went over to Sam, who was obviously shook up.

"H-h-h-heck,' he stammered, 'I didn't even know Hell was a cuss word.'"

And that's why they call it Cousin Katie Creek. Or, as I said, it's been modified.

"I DUNNO... IT LOOKS A LITTLE OUT OF FOCUS TO ME. WHAT DO YOU THINK?"

Country Life

By Déanie Francis Mills

As I write this, I'm making a lot of typos because my hands are still shaking. I just called a friend of mine, who would kill me if I published his name, (hi, Mike), and I said, "I JUST SPENT A HALF HOUR ON THE PHONE TALKING TO DEAN KOONTZ!" Then I screamed into his poor tortured ear.

For those of you who don't follow the trends of best-selling fiction, let me enlighten you. Dean Koontz is second only to Stephen King in bestselling novels, particularly of the science fiction/suspense/horror field. There are 40 million copies of his books in print worldwide. His book, "Watchers," has already been made into a movie and he's working with Paramount on two other projects, and with Warner Brothers on one. He has also contracted with CBS television for four made-for-TV movies based on his books, which he will executive produce and either write or maintain total veto control over.

To my great surprise, he wrote me a long, chatty letter, relating some of his experiences in publishing and offering me some wonderful moral support. Recently, I wrote him for permission to quote from that letter in my article, "Ten Tips to Make Your Writing Dreams Come True," for "Writer's Digest."

It was talked about how important it is to "stay hungry" if you want to get successful and STAY successful, how authors, especially, tend to hit a plateau after so many bestsellers and begin turning out substandard work after that. "It must be because the success is what mattered to them," he told me, "not the excitement of the writing itself, which to me is always exhilarating."

Imagine my shock when the Great Man himself called me up and not only granted permission, but discussed the whole glorious, frustrating, exhilarating, depressing, insane business of publishing. He told me all about the ridiculousness of working with Hollywood; how 30 or 40 different people make changes on a screenplay before it's finally filmed; how he sat in on one meeting alone in which 16 people showed up to make suggestions; and how no one except the producer ever reads the book from which a movie is going to be made. (We decided it was because of all those big words.)

He told me how he relies on his subconscious to "cook" ideas, which he gleans from every conceivable source. And we talked about critics. I asked him about the critic who said, "The Bad Place' is a Bad Novel." He told me that, while 85 percent of the critics are still favorable to him, "The more successful I get, then the ones who don't like me, well, the nastier they get."

We discussed how difficult it is to be original with story ideas, how no matter how hard you try, nothing you come up with is going to be completely new. "As long as you can give it your own original voice," he told me, "the idea is

Two writers, talking shop. "Bestselling authors are incredibly busy people with amazingly crammed schedules. Everybody wants a piece of their time. Look Back

FIVE YEARS AGO

The top graduate for Snyder High School's class of 1985 was Shana Hart with a grade point average of 4.8055, making her valedictorian of the senior class. In the number two spot was salutatorian Phyllis Whitfill with a GPA of 4.7449.

Longtime Snyder petroleum products wholesaler Leon Autry was given a rare Mobil Oil emblem to mark his retirement from the business.

The presentation was made by Bill and Dale Burns of Sweetwater who purchased Autry's business interest in 1981.

Barry Ezra was named Ira High School's valedictorian for the class of 1985. Phillip Carter was named salutatorian.

TEN YEARS AGO

The U.S. Coast Guard announced the promotion of Lt. Jack L. Hardin to the position of commander of the Marine Safety Detachment of St. Croix, Virgin Islands.

Hardin is a 1964 graduate of Snyder High School and the son of Ruth L. Hardin of Snyder.

County Judge Preston Wilson signed a proclamation designating May as Older Texans' Month in Scurry County.

"YOU CAN FREE ALL OF THE PEOPLE SOME OF THE TIME, YOU CAN FREE SOME OF THE PEOPLE ALL OF THE TIME, BUT YOU CAN'T FREE ALL OF THE PEOPLE ALL OF THE TIME."

Dear Friends,

When we chose Snyder to be our home 19 years ago we knew the kind of people who lived here. As a military family, we had been many places and knew this is where we wanted to raise our children — in a Christian community. You have always been near us when we needed your support. Now in the most tragic accidents of all you have come through again. Each of you are special and we thank you for everything you have done.

All of our daughters have been special and now that Kelly is gone we look back at what a special child she was. She was a daddy's girl, working beside him from the time she could walk. When there was work to do she was always there. Here is a quote from a letter she wrote her grandmother on Nov. 11, 1981 at age 17.

"We're in full swing with the cotton stripping now, so we work till dark which is about 6:30. When we get home I have to eat, take a shower and do whatever homework I have. By that time I'm ready to hit the sack. I know it sounds rough but I love it. I guess because on that tractor I have time to think and be alone. This year I have stripped 136 baskets of cotton. Of course Daddy and John have a few more, but I'm proud of myself anyway."

That was our Kelly and just a few weeks ago she was under our house helping John replace our old plumbing.

Kelly and John were always hard workers. They accomplished in just 8 years what it takes most people a lifetime.

Yes, we will miss Kelly very much, however, our faith in God and friends like you give us strength. Let us now all go forward and live our lives as an example to others. Especially for John and our grandson, Tanner.

May God bless all of you, Kelly's Mom & Dad Jesse & Joyce Tolbert

To the Editor,

I would like to say how lucky Snyder is to have a great organization as "Snyder Neighbors Sharing" and how grateful I am to them.

I would like to thank all the people involved, those that donated all the materials needed, restaurants and people who brought the food, the wonderful people who cared enough to volunteer their time and who worked so hard painting and fixing up my home.

Workers from the Faith Baptist Church did my work. What a terrific job they did.

Snyder is full of loving, caring people. My late husband (Bill) was employed by the City of Snyder and they showed their love to us many times during his long illness.

I will always be grateful to the wonderful people here. It's nice to live in a city where people really take care of their own. Thanks again and may God richly bless each of you.

Sincerely,
Marie Aaron

To the Editor,

Thanks once again to the wonderful people who give their blood so that other people may live.

The really nice part of this is that the donor knows the good they are doing. They can give while they are living and give time and time again. These donors do this out of love; they do not have to do it.

It is a frightening thing to be bleeding to death. This has happened three times in my family. My dad was injured seriously in a bus wreck in 1928. Other people's blood saved his life. My husband, the late Warren Boyd, started bleeding from surgery several years ago and blood transfusions saved him. And I had my own experience when I started hemorrhaging from medication thinning my blood too much. Blood transfusions saved me.

The question is asked, "Do you think about having other people's blood in your body?" Everyday of my life I am grateful for the fact that I do have because otherwise I would be dead. As a fairly healthy person now, I have come a long way since December 22, 1987. I have you to thank.

Scientists grow brain cells in test tube

WASHINGTON (AP) — History's first continuous culture of human brain cells may eventually be used to replace the tissue lost in the brains of people with Alzheimer's disease, stroke or head injury, said a study published today.

Dr. Solomon Snyder of Johns Hopkins School of Medicine in Baltimore said his research team used tissue removed from a child during brain surgery to develop a colony of human brain cells that divide and grow in laboratory dishes.

Never before, Snyder said, have scientists been able to coax human brain cells into growing and reproducing in a laboratory. But the new cell line can now be expanded at will through thousands upon thousands of generations, he said.

Asked why the brain cells taken from the child were able to divide and grow in the laboratory when so many similar, earlier efforts had failed, Snyder had no answer.

"They clearly had an intrinsic potential to divide more than conventional neurons," he said in a telephone interview. "Just why, we simply don't know."

Other researchers called the discovery one of "tremendous significance" that may cause an explosion of new research and treatment in brain diseases.

Although brain cell transplantation is the eventual goal, Snyder said it will take years of laboratory studies before the brain cells can be used on human patients.

A report on the research was published in Friday's edition of the journal Science.

Scientists have long been hampered in their study of the brain because human brain cells won't reproduce. Except for very limited exceptions in isolated areas of the brain, humans at birth have all the brain cells they will ever have.

If a substantial number of brain cells are damaged by disease, injury or stroke, functions controlled by those cells are lost forever.

Snyder said the cultured cells underwent 3½ years of vigorous testing to assure they aren't an abnormal growth such as cancer, but are, in fact, normal brain cells.

"We have every confidence that they will function that way when transplanted," he said. "If they were placed into the environment of the brain, we would expect them to be functional."

Brains damaged by degenerative diseases such as Alzheimer's, or by stroke or trauma, may one day be repaired by transplanting cells grown from the brain cells cultured in the Hopkins lab, Snyder said.

"That's what we're working on," he said. "That is our full intent."

The cells that founded the culture were taken from the brain of an 18-month-old girl who underwent surgery in 1986.

The young patient was suffering from seizures and doctors determined that one side of her brain had grown more than the other. Surgeons removed excess brain tissue to correct the condition.

Snyder said one of his students immediately placed about a gram of brain tissue into a culture medium.

Two small clusters of cells in the specimen survived after 21 days. Researchers treated those cells with hormones to force them to mature and develop into normal neurons.

conferences; editors constantly send them manuscripts to read for cover blurb quotes; they receive tons of fan mail (200 a week, Koontz told me); magazines pester them for profiles; trade publications want their advice; and once they cross over into the movie scene — they might as well check themselves into The Asylum because that's where they'll wanna be when it's all over.

Some of them become tiresomely egomaniacal, (the name Norman Mailer comes to mind); some of them become recluses, (Stephen King makes very few personal appearances and gives even fewer interviews); some of them burn out. It is a rare honor and a treat indeed to find one who manages to scramble out of his hectic life a half-hour to encourage a new writer, to make that person feel important, and to just chat — writer to writer — about the endlessly mysterious process of wordsmithing.

It's a half hour this writer will never forget.

THE MARTINEZ FAMILY 1931, Seated: Fred Martinez, Jr., Mrs. Fred Martinez, Sr., Mr. Martinez, Sara Martinez (Jara), and Jesus Martinez. Standing: Joe Martinez, Alec Martinez, Frances Martinez (Armedariz), Ben Martinez, Emilio Martinez, Manuel Martinez, Robert Martinez and Mary Martinez (Ozuna).

The Martinez family has a very colorful history. Fred and Anastasia left Mexico and came to the United States in 1901. They paid a toll at the bridge in El Paso, Texas, but no papers were required. They made their way to Big Spring, then to the Abilene area. They moved to Kent County in 1905 and bought a section of land there. Their children learned to work, and they never questioned whether they would get an education. The Martinez family expected them to be educated, and at one time hired a private tutor to teach them in their home. A total of sixteen children were born to the Martinez family, and many of them received master's and doctor's degrees from various universities. The family moved to Fisher County, near Rotan, Texas, and became leaders in the community there. The Martinez family left Mexico before the days of Pancho Villa and the revolution. In 1916, Mr. Martinez went back to Mexico to see his family and was caught in the revolution. He had to detour a long distance to return to the United States safely. Mrs. Martinez had two brothers and three nephews who were hung by Villa. They helped Villa with corn, beans, and other supplies until they learned that Villa was a bandit. When they refused to help him anymore, he had them hung. The Martinez family still has strong roots in Fisher County, and many of their children live in the Florida executes killer of two cops

STARKE, Fla. (AP)—A killer who described himself and his girlfriend as a "modern-day Bonnie and Clyde" was executed in Florida's electric chair today for shooting two officers 14 years ago.

Jessie Joseph Tafero was electrocuted at 7:13 a.m. at Florida State Prison, eight hours after the U.S. Supreme Court denied a stay of execution, exhausting his last appeal, the governor's office announced.

Tafero, 43, was the 22nd person put to death in Florida since 1979 and the 124th to die in the United States since the Supreme Court restored states' rights to execute prisoners in 1976. It was a year to the day since Florida's previous execution.

It took three jolts of electricity to kill Tafero, and flames could be seen around his hooded head.

Fewer than a dozen death penalty opponents demonstrated in silence with a candlelight vigil in a pasture outside the rural prison. Their posters said "Kinder, Gentler?" and "Civilization's Finest Hour?"

Four supporters of the death penalty peered through heavy fog, watching the prison for a signal from departing reporters that Tafero was dead.

Tafero's day began with a Mass at 1 a.m. celebrated by a Roman Catholic priest from the Cathedral of St. Augustine. He also was visited during the night by five attorneys and his mother, Kathleen Tafero, said Bob MacMaster, a spokesman for the Florida Department of Corrections.

He described Tafero as "quiet ... a little concerned about the event, of course."

The killings occurred Feb. 20, 1976, when a state trooper and a visiting Canadian constable checked on a car parked on the highway where Tafero, his girlfriend Sonja Jacobs, her two children and traveling companion Walter Rhodes Jr., were sleeping.

Trooper Phillip Black died from gunshot wounds to the head and neck, while constable Donald Irwin of Kitchener, Ontario, received fatal wounds to his right eye and shoulder. Both men were 39.

FARSIGHTED

DEAR FARSIGHTED: You appear to be a very bright young woman. Don't give Jerry a deadline to "shape up." I doubt if he can grow up fast enough to meet it.

Tell him, frankly, that your relationship has become more of a habit than a serious commitment, and you think it would be wise to both date others. This, of course, will be the beginning of the end, which I'm sure is what you had in mind.

DEAR ABBY: After reading your column stressing the importance of washing one's hands after using the restroom, I thought you might enjoy the following story:

In the huge men's room at an automobile plant in Detroit, there was a big sign on the wall stating: "Every employee must wash his hands before returning to work."

A foreman was about to leave the washroom when he spotted a worker about to leave without washing his hands. He stopped him and yelled, "Hey — can't you read that sign?"

The worker looked up at the sign and said, "I'm not going back to work — I'm going to lunch!"

AL LANDY

DEAR READERS: Question: What did the following people have in common? Edward R. Murrow, Humphrey Bogart, Yul Brynner, Nat King Cole and Sarah Vaughan?

Answer: They were all tops in their field. All were heavy cigarette smokers. And they all died of lung cancer.

DEAR ABBY: May we bend your ear with a pet peeve? It's grocery stores that use automatic scanners and no longer put prices on their merchandise. They insist that this is for the customers' "convenience."

Prices (not always current) are shown on the front of the grocery store shelves. How is an elderly person, a pregnant woman, someone with arthritis or bifocals, or in a wheelchair — or just overweight — supposed to read the prices under the bottom shelf? If there are no prices on the items in your grocery cart, how can you quickly tally the total before you get to the checkout and the clerk informs you that you owe more than you can pay?

For that matter, how can you be sure that items scan correctly? It's almost impossible to remember all the prices posted on shelves, or advertised "on sale," but not yet entered into the computer. If a question arises, someone must conduct a special price search — delaying everyone standing in line.

Most stores offer to refund scanning errors. This does not make up for the aggravation and time wasted. A shopper's only alternative is to patronize a store that still marks its merchandise the old-fashioned way.

New is not always better — at least for customers — but complaints to the stores fall on deaf ears.

GWEN AND SALLY
McBREAIRTY
WILLOW STREET, PA.

DEAR GWEN AND SALLY: To quote the consumer's friend, Ralph Nader: "When sellers have dreams of riches, beware of schemes that look like glitches!" What is emerging from the complaints of consumers who write to us is that small rip-offs amount to big business because they are applied to large numbers of customers.

"Most consumers do not know they are being taken by these sly frauds, and those few who do are given the, 'Oh sorry, it was a computer error,' or, 'Just a mistake that we'll clear up right away.' There is, however, no

'sorry' extended to the consumers who don't challenge the same bulk by the same seller. The result is a mountain of cash purloined for no services rendered."

So, dear readers: Budget-conscious shoppers should be wary of automation. When they make out their shopping lists, they should list the prices advertised with the items they need, and then total them up. If the total at the cash register is higher, an explanation — and possibly a refund — is in order.

DEAR ABBY: Many people are trying to lose weight, and some are paying a fortune to lose it, only to gain it back as soon as they return to their usual eating habits.

About 35 years ago, a fat teen-age boy went to his doctor for a diet to lose weight. He followed his doctor's advice and established good eating habits. Today, he is slender as a reed. Here is what the good doctor told him:

"Do not eat anything or drink anything except water between meals. At mealtime, take the same amount of food on your plate that you're accustomed to taking — then put back exactly half of it. Eat slowly, and chew each bite 20 times so you won't feel hungry. Now, be honest with yourself. Don't begin loading your plate as if you were going to slop a hog."

A FRIEND IN BEND, ORE.

DEAR FRIEND: I am curious to know why the good doctor prescribed taking the same amount of food you're accustomed to taking — then putting half of it back. Why not take just half of the amount in the first place?

DEAR ABBY: Apropos Tom's letter concerning his spanking by his father, who said, "This hurts me more than it hurts you," my reply to my father under the same circumstances was, "Yeah, but not in the same place."

I read your column first thing every day and love it. Keep it up forever.

GODDARD DU BOIS, AGE 82

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? Get it off your chest by writing to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90069. For a personal reply, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR ABBY: I am 20 and my boyfriend is 21. "Jerry" and I both attend the local college and live with our own parents. We've been going together since high school, and neither one of us has ever dated anyone else. We are in a "committed" relationship — professing our love for each other — but we are in no position to consider marriage for three or four more years.

Here's the problem: Jerry and I both have part-time jobs and are putting ourselves through college. I'm sorry to say that Jerry is not very serious about his studies, and he can't hold a job for more than a few months. He's intelligent, but he's not very motivated.

I grew up in a poor family and am determined to be a success. My grades are excellent, and I am serious about my part-time job. I work hard for my money and resent always having to pick up the tab when Jerry is broke.

Abby, I don't want to support a husband all my life, and I feel this could happen if I stick with Jerry. We've discussed it several times, and he promises to "try harder," but nothing changes. I really care for him, but sometimes I feel like a race-horse chained to a lazy nag.

I guess what I need to know is, should I give Jerry a deadline to shape up? Or should I break up with him and give myself a chance to team up with someone who's more my speed?

Polhills celebrate 10th anniversary

WASHINGTON (AP) — Freed hostage Robert Polhill says he still feels weak but hopes to leave the hospital as soon as he has enough voice to "talk my way out."

Polhill, 55, slipped out of the hospital Thursday to celebrate his 10th wedding anniversary with his wife, Ferial, at a small homecoming dinner.

Polhill presented his wife with aluminum roses in honor of their anniversary and followed them with a box of live yellow roses.

"I'm in heaven," Mrs. Polhill said.

The couple received congratulatory notes from President Bush and from Polhill's favorite singer, Frank Sinatra. They also were greeted by Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., since Polhill is a big fan of the New York Knicks basketball team, for which Bradley once played.

Polhill, noting that another freed hostage, Frank Reed, was due to return to the United States today, said, "I would be very happy to see Frank Reed and I will be happier as the days go on to see the other fellows" who remain captive in Lebanon.

Speaking in a soft, raspy voice, Polhill said he still feels weak but hopes to be released from the hospital "as soon as I can talk."

"I have to be able to talk my way out," he said. Doctors at Walter Reed Army Medical Center, where Polhill is being treated, said he has a growth on his vocal cords.

The Polhills celebrated their first anniversary together in four years at a reception and dinner sponsored by No Greater Love, a Washington-based humanitarian organization serving as a support group for the hostage families.
