Mystery illness

DALLAS (AP) — State and federal health officials are investigating more than 50 cases of an illness afflic-ting children in East and Central Texas with prolonged high fevers, itchy rashes and excruciating joint pain. The malady isn't con-

But, in at least seven cases — all being treated by the same physician in Temple — common childhood afflictions have been ruled

Extends aid

WASHINGTON (AP) -Sen. Lloyd Bentsen introduced a bill today that extends crop assistance measures created during the 1988 and 1989 drought to farmers hit hard by floods this spring.

"It is too early to set a firm estimate, but farm losses resulting from flooding will be tremendous," said Bentsen, D-Texas.

He said farmers with flooded lands in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas and Louisiana deserve the same type of help provided those who lost crops to natural disasters in 1988 and 1989.

Floods, curtail

LIVINGSTON, Texas (AP) There's no flooding at the Woodsy Hollow campground about five miles east of Lake Livingston Dam, but there might as well be.

The campground is one of many Lake Livingston area tourism and resort businesses that have no flooding problems whatsoever, but are nevertheless suffering because the public thinks everything here is under

The only silver lining, some say, is that sightseers in search of floodwaters are offsetting a portion of losses from the regular tourism industry.

Thousands of people living along the rain-swollen Trinity River have been displaced due to flooding caused by severe thunderstorms upstream. The flooding is the worst since the turn of the century in Texas, and has claimed 13 lives. A dozen other states also have flooding from spring rains.

All 60 of Jordan's recreational vehicle sites had been booked for the weekend, until reports of flooding along the Trinity scared his customers away.

"We had a full house and everybody canceled," said owner Virgil Jordan.

'They're saying, TVs and things, that it will last all summer, so it will just wipe us out if they don't get the true message," Jordan said.

Tourists, mainly from Houston, thought Jordan's campground was under water, even though it isn't connected to Lake Livingston and has no flooding.

Although the water level was normal at his 8-acre private lake, he had only four occupied camp sites.

A party of 90 for a company picnic also canceled for Sunday because of the flooding, Jordan said.

He said he should be booked by now for Memorial Day, but has only 12 reservations, and no new bookings are calling, "because they're in a panic stage."

At the 3278 Grocery & Marina in Camilla just below the dam in San Jacinto County, manager John Few is letting more than 200 flooded-out river-bottom residents camp for free. He canceled all reservations for Memorial Day weekend, when the more than 100 camp sites normally would be booked. Many tourists think the lake is unusable anyway, after seeing pictures of inundated houses along the river he said.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been told I have a few gallstones, and my general surgeon wants to operate. I'd prefer to have the stones crushed, against general practitioner's wishes. What is your opinion, and what type of doctor should I go to instead of a general surgeon?

DEAR READER: Both your doctors appear to believe you are a surgi-cal candidate. As I understand your question, you want a third pinion.

Until a few years ago, gallbladder surgery was the only satisfactory method of treating gallstones. Recently, however, two alternative methods are gaining popularity.

Shock-wave lithotripsy is a technique of pulverizing gallstones using high-energy sound waves. This requires sophisticated machinery that is, at present, available only in teaching hospitals or medical centers. I cannot comment on the relative merits and dangers of lithotripsy because I've had no personal experience with it. Judging from the medical reports, however, it appears to be safe and effective.

Also, gallstones can be dissolved with prescription medicine, such as Actigall. The patient takes several pills a day for many months. Gradually, the stones disappear. However, after treatment is stopped, gallstones often form again. Therefore, repeated courses of therapy may be necessary. Actigall is effective only against stones composed of cholesterol, the most common type; stones made of other constituents, such as calcium and bile pigments, are not affected. To date, there are no drugs to dissolve non-cholesterol stones. I suggest you ask your family doctor to refer you to a gastroenterolo-gist. Such a specialist can review your records and offer advice about which type of treatment would be appropriate for your gallstones. To give you further information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Gallbladder Dis-ease." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369.

Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 43-yearold male and had a dozen lipomas removed from my abdomen and arms a few years ago. Since then, approximately 35 more have appeared on my arms, back, abdomen and groin area. What success should I experience if I have liposuction performed, and how else do I prevent them from occurring in the future?

DEAR READER: Lipomas are soft, painless, movable nodules of fat under the skin. They commonly occur on the trunk, forearm and back of the neck, more frequently in men than in women. The cause is unknown, and there is no preventative.

These benign fatty tumors rarely cause symptoms and do not have to be removed unless they are cosmetically unsightly. In rare instances, lipomas can undergo malignant change; therefore, rapidly growing lesions should be biopsied or surgically excised.

Liposuction, a technique to vacuum out fatty material through a hollow needle, is a method frequently used to remove lipomas that are large or annoying, enabling patients to avoid surgery. However, most people with lipomas prefer to leave them alone and forgo the discomfort and expense of

treatment. © 1990 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN

Most campuses slow to react to racism

By The Associated Press

Few colleges or universities are taking all the steps experts believe are needed to stamp out campus racism.

Many schools have established committees to address bigotry. Others have offered special scholarships and stepped up recruiting of minority students and faculty. Still others are requiring students to take courses about racism or minority issues or attend orientation sessions on race relations.

But a spot check of schools around the country by The Associated Press found only a handful taking the comprehensive approach experts feel is necessary to quell the recent rise in campus bigotry.

Fire erupts at Dallas med school

DALLAS (AP) - A laboratory run by Nobel Prize-winning scientists at a medical school sustained damage when flames broke out, forcing evacuations and releasing hazardous materials where radioactive substances are used.

Investigators today were trying to determine how the fire started in one of several labs run by Michael S. Brown and Joseph L. Goldstein at the University of Texas Southwestern Medical

The two-alarm blaze Sunday night released several hazardous materials, including hydrazine and chloroform, that had been stored near some radioactive substances, said Chief Mike Zak of the Dallas Fire Department.

He said 12 firefighters and eight civilians who were building employees or security officials were taken to Parkland Memorial Hospital for observation after flames broke out, but they were later released.

'We did not know what the byproducts of the fire and smoke were, so we took precautions," he

Initial reports that radioactive substances had been released were later discounted, said Zak, although such materials are used in the lab.

Hydrazine, a flammable and corrosive material, is poisonous and may be fatal if inhaled, swallowed or absorbed through the skin, Zak said.

Burro wins contest for third time

VICTORIA, Texas (AP) - For the third time in the 7-year history of the contest, Petunia the burro from Bloomington, has been named most beautiful burro in a competition judged by the Better Burro Bureau.

Each year, a contest is held in this South Texas city to select the most beautiful donkey or burro in the state. Petunia had won in 1986, last year, then again on Sun-

Burros have long been an important commodity in South Texas, having been brought to the area by Spanish settlers in the early 1700s. Even today, many large ranches use burros to help domesticate horses by tying the two animals together.

But even though dictionaries distinctly point out that burros and donkeys are asses, contest founder Henry Wolff Jr. said he makes it a point to avoid using that word in reference to his annual competition.

Lewis selected A-J Coach of the Year

Suyuer High School baseball coach Albert Lewis was named the coach of the year on the Lubbock Avalanche-Journal's All-South Plains team Sunday.

"I was really surprised," said Lewis, "Especially with our record at the end of the year."

Lewis guided the Tigers to a 16-9 finish during 1990. That after having six seniors get 60-day suspensions early in the season for rules violations on a road-trip.

"After that disaster, I was really pleased that the guys hung in there and were able to come up with the record we did," said Lewis. We had a lot of high aspirations with those guys. We just tried to reset our goals and finish as high as we could. We stayed pretty

'First light' image reveals a double star

GREENBELT, Md. (AP) - ble's initial images would be only Hubble Space Telescope was supposed to be just an engineering test, but it surprised scientists by revealing an unsuspected double

"Fantastic," James Westphal, the principal scientist for the camera used in the first photo exercise, said Sunday. "We are just as pleased as punch at this point. Our image is significantly better than we were concerned that it might be."

Westphal said the Hubble pictures clearly show that an image which appeared in ground-based photos to be only a single star shuttle. was, in fact, a rare binary star. The space telescope pictures showed two overlapping points of light, instead of a single blob as seen in a picture taken by a Chilean observatory.

"We didn't know it was a double star," said Westphal. NASA officials had said Hub-

The quality of the photos brought cheers from National Aeronautics and Space Administration engineers who have had to solve a series of problems with the telescope since it was launched last month by a space

Hubble's troubles have included a fouled antenna, a computer program that caused instruments to shut down, another computer program that contained a math error that affected pointing accuracy, and a satellite itter that experts still find troublesome.

Jean Olivier, deputy project manager for the Hubble, said that the first light pictures are only a "coarse-focused" image of what the space telescope eventually will achieve. He said there still are weeks remaining in an elaborate focusing checkout of the instruments.

"We're only about a fourth of the way through the whole focusing process," he said.

The planned scientific studies will not start until the engineers have completed the checkout, which may take months.

Eventually, Hubble is expected to produce pictures seven times clearer than the images captured on Sunday.

President's trip to Texas mixes pleasure, politicking

By The Associated Press

President Bush headed for the West Coast to do more stumping for GOP candidates after mixing pleasure and politicking during his weekend visit to Texas.

Bush's busy agenda in the state areas of the state and some golf included a commencement address, a fundraiser for Republican gubernatorial candidate Clayton Williams in Dallas, a visit to flood-ravaged

FOI conference slated for June 1-2 in Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — The Freedom of Information Foundation of Texas will award its prestigious James Madison Award to Texas Supreme Court Justice Lloyd Doggett next month.

Doggett will be honored for his longstanding leadership in the area of access to public information, including his recent efforts dealing with open court records and cameras in the courtroom, at a dinner in his honor June 1 in Dallas.

The dinner is part of the foundation's "Freedom of Information ... A New Decade" Conference which will be held in Dallas June 1-2 at the downtown Hyatt Regency and is open to the public.

Former U.S. Sen. John Tower will participate June 1 in a panel discussion about the role of the media titled "The Press ... Watchdog or Meddler?"

Tower became the focus of intense media scrutiny after being nominated by President Bush as Secretary of Defense. His nomination was rejected by the Senate in March 1989 following allegations of womanizing, drinking and ties to the defense industry. He is now a guest lecturer on political science at Southern Methodist University, as well as an international business and banking consultant.

Other panelists include Molly Ivins, state political columnist for the Dallas Times Herald, and WFAA-TV anchor Tracy Rowlett. The panel will be moderated by Ralph Langer, vice president and executive editor of The Dallas Morning News.

Benjamin Franklin, a major player in the framing of the Constitution, will appear at the June 1 dinner in the form of Bud Long, a history professor at Southern California's Moorpark College Long acts out Franklin's life in a one-man, one-act play called

"Very Frankly, Franklin." Also appearing at dinner honoring Doggett will be College of William & Mary law professor Rod Smolla. A professor of constitutional law, Smolla will speak on "The Global First Amendment: International Perspectives on Free Speech in a Changing World." Smolla's published works include the book, "Jerry Falwell Vs.

Larry Flynt: The First Amendment on Trial." For more information about the Freedom of Information convention, contact the FOIFT at 400 S. Record St., 6th Floor, Dallas, Texas 75202 or call (214) 977-6658.

The president visited Portland to attend a fund-raising event today for gubernatorial candidate Dave Frohnmayer, and also for last night's dedication of a memorial to Portland police officers slain in the line of duty. Los Angeles is the last stop on his four-day trip.

Bush's plane departed Ell-ngton Field at 1:55 p.m. after he attended services at St. Martin's Episcopal Church then played Delivering his second commencement address to University of Texas students, Bush urged the graduates Saturday to reach out and help others.

'Care for the AIDS babies. Love every child," he said. "You can work and succeed in Paris, France, or Paris, Texas."

The president's address was delivered to a crowd estimated by officials at up to 40,000, the largest ever for a UT commencement ceremony.

The last president to deliver a commencement address at Texas was Lyndon Baines Johnson in 1964. Like Johnson, Bush received an honorary doctor of laws degree.

Earlier Saturday, Bush visited flood-ravaged areas north of Houston and played in a celebrity golf tournament in Kingwood.

Bush made a helicopter tour to view the flooding, then stopped briefly at the spillway of Livingston Dam, about 75 miles northeast of Houston. Overflowing waters from Lake Livingston and the Trinity River have forced hundreds of people on both sides of the dam out of their homes.

His collaborator in the study was Dr. William Parmley, a cardiologist, chief of the division of California, San Francisco, and a past president of the American College of Cardiology.

The Tobacco Institute, which represents cigarette makers, emphasized that the Surgeon General in 1986 had failed to find proof that passive smoking causes heart disease.

"There have been only three studies since then, and they continue to support the conclusions," Brennan Dawson, spokeswoman for the institute, said in a telephone interview Friday.

But Glantz said there are 11 studies on passive smoking and heart disease deaths, and "all but one the tobacco industry funded show an increased risk."

Race officials hopeful

WILLOW PARK, Texas (AP) - Officials in this Parker County town hope that somebody will gamble on the prospect of putting money down on their racetrack, and soon.

The owners of Trinity Meadows Raceway, like other Texas tracks, are having trouble getting financing to build facilities needed to pull off a pari-mutuel racing season.

Ten months ago, owners of the track said they intended to build a track that would someday rival the stately spires of famed Churchill Downs in Kentucky.

"It's going to be beautiful," Jimmy Bradley, president of the racetrack said, referring to plans already drawn for a $25 million complex dominated by a 100-foot-high grandstand.

But the track located between Parker and Weatherford a few miles west of Fort Worth missed a scheduled opening day of March 31 and a rescheduled date of Sept. 1 already looks im-

"My understanding is that Mr. Bradley is still negotiating with lenders and prospective partners ... The reality of the situation is that they're going to have to keep beating the bushes," Dave Freeman, executive director of the Texas Racing Commission, told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Bradley would not comment last week on the track's status.

Isaac Asimov, in adopting the conventional meaning, offers another suggestion: "But is it Ophelia he plans to send to a nunnery, or is it his mother, Queen Gertrude?" (Remember that Edward the Confessor sent his mother, Emma, to a nunnery Wilson, in his "What Happens in once he had gained the throne.) Hamlet," first suggested that it

Mayor Lee Cooke has pledged to expand or restructure hours at some city recreation centers to give gang members more opportunities to clash in athletic competition instead of on the streets.

But Cooke said the move won't be a cure-all.

"It's just part of the answer,"

"On the other hand, recreational centers do give youngsters one more option to fighting and we need to give our youth all the options we can find."

Representatives from two Austin gangs recently met with the mayor and more access to sports facilities was one of their requests.

"We need a place where more kids can go to play basketball or baseball," one gang spokesman told Cooke at a meeting arranged by the police gang squad.
