Sexual assault case...

Defendant flees but sentenced to life

The defendant in an aggravated sexual assault case jumped bail Thursday afternoon before completion of the trial, but it didn't keep a 132nd District Court jury from handing down a life sentence — the second in just over a week.

Liborio Saldana Oliva, 29, was found guilty following a 10 minute deliberation by the jury, and the same jury issued the life sentence after another 12 minutes of deliberation.

The trial began Wednesday in Judge Gene Dulaney's courtroom. District Attorney Ernie Armstrong had rested his case shortly before noon Thursday. Defense Attorney Enrique Martinez of Lubbock had called the defendant's wife, and the judge called a recess after advising the wife of her constitutional rights and advising her to consult with an attorney.

When court was set to reconvene at 1:30 p.m., the defendant and his wife both failed to appear. The court had deputies check with all local attorneys, and none had been contacted by Mrs.

Chief Deputy Andy Anderson and the defense attorney went to the Oliva home and were unable to find the subjects. At 3 p.m., an all-points bulletin was issued.

Oliva was free on a $20,000 bond. Because Oliva was present at the start of the trial, the case was allowed to continue in his absence. The defense then rested, and closing arguments from both sides were brief.

Oliva had been indicted May 7 by a Scurry County grand jury for the incident which occurred on July 12, 1989.

On May 23, another district court jury issued a life sentence to Raymond Medrano, 42, after finding him guilty of attempted capital murder and aggravated robbery.

Keeping tabs on our neighbors:

Often, our problems are more imagined than they are real, and former Snyderite Gene Dow underscored that point with a story in the Seminole Sentinel.

Dow told about a businessman who made the rounds one day, and had good success in collecting past due accounts. When he headed for home on a cold, rainy night with several thousand dollars in his pocket, a hitchhiker appeared along side the road.

The hitchhiker was shabbily dressed and looked wet and chilled to the bone. Against the businessman's better judgment, the businessman stopped and offered a ride. A few minutes later. the man learned his new rider had just served 10 years in prison for robbery. The businessman remembered the cash in his coat pocket.

With what he considered a stroke of genius, the man eased the accelerator to the floor and reached 95 mph. A DPS trooper pulled 'em over and ordered both men out of the car, gave a lecture and wrote out a speeding ticket.

The driver pleaded to be arrested on the spot, but the passenger pulled his cap over his eyes and said nothing. As soon as they approached the town, the businessman had already resigned himself to being a victim.

Suddenly the passenger announced, "This is it, brother." The businessman stopped the car. The man in shabby clothes stuck out his hand, but there was no gun it.

"Thanks for the lift," he said. "You've been very good to me. This is the least I could do for you," as he handed the businessman the state trooper's citation book.

Appeals court reverses fraud conviction of insurance heir

Shearn Moody Jr. didn't get a chance to rebut testimony by a former congressman in a trial against him, the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals said in overtur-ning Moody's fraud conviction.

The Galveston insurance heir was convicted in 1987 of bilking $1.3 million from the charitable Moody Foundation, which was established by his grandfather.

The court Thursday reversed the conviction, saying any retrial would have to exclude two of the mail fraud counts in the 17-count indictment on which Moody was convicted.

The federal jury in Houston had sentenced Moody to five years in prison, five years probation, fined him $500,000 and ordered him to repay the money he allegedly took from the founnow that the other conviction has been reversed, said Houston attorney Gerald Birnberg, who handled the bankruptcy case but is not in charge of the appeal.

In a 30-page opinion, the 5th Circuit said Moody had been denied a chance to impeach hearsay evidence and rebut testimony by former Maryland Congressman Robert Bauman.

Moody's lawyer argued during the 1987 trial that his client was blinded by his dislike of the legal system and was easy prey for two colorful confidence men, who set up bogus charities and persuaded Moody to grant foundation funds to them.

Moody regarded himself as a victim of the justice system after his Alabama insurance company went bankrupt in 1972. In one year, 1985, he was involved in 27 law suits, most of them growing out of the failure of the insurance company, according to the court.

Vance Beaudreau and William Pabst allegedly secured an introduction to Moody, representing themselves as represen-dependence of Judges and Lawyers, an organization devoted to helping those oppressed by the American legal system.

The two allegedly persuaded Moody to get foundation grants for three CIJL subsidiaries — $375,000 to finance a jury manual, $150,000 to study dental problems of the Comanche and Karankawa Indians, $450,000 to study the relationship between dental problems and criminal behavior, and $500,000 to study and report on the constitutional right to a jury trial.

Bauman was enlisted to provide legal services to Moody and help set up a Washington-based CIJL network, with Bauman being paid by two tax-exempt organizations funded by Moody Foundation grants, according to court documents.

"A federal grand jury indicted Moody, Pabst, Beaudreau and several confederates on numerous counts of mail and wire fraud," Judge Jerry E. Smith wrote for the appeals about the two organization panel. "Pabst and Beaudreau through which he was paid.

Although Pabst and Beaudreau were not available to testify, others were called to testify about what they had heard the two say about dealings with Moody. The defense lawyer was not allowed to ask those witnesses whether Pabst or Beaudreau were generally truthful people.

The pain of costochondritis is often described as a "gnawing ache" that is worse at night and bears no relation to respiratory movement of the ribs. The cartilage itself is always tender; this fact serves to differentiate costochondritis from other more serious causes of chest pain, such as angina or neuritis.

Austin passes curfew

AUSTIN (AP) - A curfew ordinance passed by the Austin City Council will ban persons under the age of 17 from a 42-block entertainment area from 10 p.m. until 6 a.m.

The ordinance passed Thursday is aimed at limiting fights and similar problems caused by some teen-agers who frequent the area known as the 6th Street entertainment area.

It was approved only after debate over whether it abridges First Amendment rights. The ordinance will allow minors to enter the curfew area to use First Amendment rights if they register at Police headquarters.

The new law covers and area bounded.by East Fourth Street, Congress Avenue, East 10th Street, and Interstate 35.

The ordinance goes into effect 10 days from its passage on Thursday, which would be June 10, but police officers say signs must be installed notifying the public of the curfew hours and boundaries, which could delay enforcement until the end of the

"We have 20 patrolmen in the East 6th Street area on peak nights to control crime," said Police Lt. Ruben Lopez. "This ordinance should really help us, because much of the trouble is caused by kids."

The ordinance puts responsibility for a child's conduct on the parents, he said.

If a minor is caught in the curfew area in violation of the ordinance, the police officer will take down the young person's name and other identifying information and then direct the minor to leave the curfew area.

If youths do not leave, or refuse to furnish their name and address, or have been warned twice to leave, they will be taken into custody.

$5.5 million in damages...

Three twisters whip through Spearman

SPEARMAN, Texas (AP) — The downtown area and a Panhandle city were recovering today from three twisters that did $5.5 million worth of damage in 30 minutes.

The tornadoes struck Spearman between 8:20 p.m. and 8:50 p.m., said Department of Public Safety Trooper Wayne Beighle in Amarillo.

The storms were among 10 tornadoes spotted in the area Thursday night, he said. No injuries were reported, but about 80 percent of the city was blacked out and phone service was spotty.

"We were up there until 1:00 (a.m.), and there were still tor-

> Ten mobile homes and ten stationery houses were reported destroyed, Beighle said. Spearman Mayor Burl Buchanan said some of the mobile homes were "smoothed off to the ground."

The mayor estimated that 5 percent of the town had property damage. He said early warning that gave people time to take shelter prevented injuries.

"The Lord blessed us. We came through extremely well," he said. "It could have been a lot worse."

The Church of Christ was demolished, while IV's Hungry Cowboy, a barbecue restaurant, was seriously damaged.

damage. Many homes had damaged windows and roofs, and some power lines were reported down. Buchanan said tree limbs and one mobile home needed to be cleared from streets to make them passable.

Electricity and other utilities were restored by this morning, Buchanan said.

The DPS sent extra troopers to assess the damage and assist local officials. Buchanan said the Red Cross and Salvation Army were set up to aid the city, but that so far, no one had requested shelter. Buchanan said those whose houses sustained heavy damage probably would stay with neighbors or family.

)S virus cloned

understand AIDS, using a cloned virus to infect explained. monkeys with an AIDS-like disease.

This is the first time a laboratory-developed virus has been used to cause an AIDS-type infection, the researchers reported in a paper published today in the journal Science

"The importance of this is that we can now ... make very precise changes (in the virus) and try and predict what will happen," explained Harry Kestler of Harvard University's New England Regional Primate Research Center

Because all copies of a cloned virus are identical, scientists can compare the results of an infection with the original virus with infections from a virus in which they have made specific

And, since the virus used in this experiment is a close relative of the one that causes AIDS in people, the affect on the monkeys may help doctors better understand the human disease, the researchers say.

Teams at Harvard and the University of California at Davis used a cloned simian immunodeficiency virus, the closest known relative of the human AIDS virus, to infect the monkeys.

While the mixture of viruses found in infected animals has been used to induce the disease in the past, this is the first time it has been done with a cloned version, Kestler explained.

In cloning a virus scientists make an exact copy of it. This allows them to understand the exact characteristics of the virus they are working with and to make specific changes in the virus for experiments, Kestler said.

Many of the monkeys infected with the cloned virus developed a fast-acting form of AIDS, according to the report.

The fast-acting disease occurs in monkeys that taken a step they think could help them better tion, and these die in about six months, Kestler

Other monkeys do develop an antibody response and seem to live longer, he said. The researchers assume that those animals will eventually develop a more lingering form of AIDS, Kestler said, but they must wait to see what hap-

"This is sort of a progress report on an ongoing study that is going to take a couple of years to complete," he observed.

The monkeys that become ill develop "all the hallmarks" of AIDS, said Kestler, such as weight loss and a variety of opportunistic infections when their immune system weakens.

AIDS, or acquired immune deficiency syndrome, is a contagious disease that attacks the body's immune system, rendering it incapable of resisting other diseases and infections.

The incurable condition is believed to be caused by an unusual virus, now called human immunodeficiency virus or HIV, which is spread through contact with blood or semen from infected people.

The chief victims of AIDS have been homosexual men and intravenous drug abusers:

Some people have become infected through blood transfusions, although blood supplies are more closely screened now. Health officials estimate that heterosexual contact is responsible for 4 percent of cases and that between 1 million and 1.5 million Americans have been exposed to

As of April 30, 1990, AIDS had been diagnosed in 132,510 Americans, of whom 61 percent, or 80,799, have died since June 1, 1981, according to the federal Centers for Disease Control. No one is known to have recovered from AIDS.

Frog croaks before 'date'

CANTON, Texas (AP) — Band director Randy Veazey isn't eager to be "honored" again by students at Canton Junior High Veazey won a popularity contest sponsored by the school's cheerleaders as a fund-raiser.

The "honor" accorded Veazey was that he got to kiss a frog at an assembly on the last day of school Thursday.

But his "date" died before the assembly was held.
"We had a live frog all ready

Thursday morning, but evidently the humidity got to it," said Dracy Vincent, faculty sponsor for the cheerleaders.

So they substituted a pickled frog from the school's biology

Veazey agreed to go through with the kiss

"It tasted like formaldehyde, I didn't linger, but I've kissed worse," said Veazey, who is

The band director won the contest that gave students a chance to vote by placing pocket change in coffee cans decorated to resemble 15 teachers who agreed to participate. The change amounted to about $300.

It could have been worse for Veazey. Last year's contest winner got to kiss a pig.

Video tells women how to avoid rape

DALLAS (AP) - A man who has admitted committing 35 sexual assaults and has been sentenced to 10 life prison terms has made a videotape for police crime-watch programs in which he offers women tips to avoid being raped.

Gilbert Escobedo, 38, identified as the "Ski Mask Rapist," made the 35-minute videotape for police only hours before he was sentenced to the prison terms Wednesday.

In the tape, Escobedo revealed that he got the addresses of some of his victims from checks they wrote at a Dallas supermarket where he worked. Escobedo, who was co-owner of an auto detail shop, worked at the supermarket from 1975 to 1988, according to defense lawyer Pat Robertson.

Responding on camera to quesions from Robertson, Escobedo said he noted pretty women who walked into the store and those who wore expensive or flashy

"If she was physically attractive, that would catch my eve," Escobedo said. "She would write a check and hand it to me. I would get her driver's license and ask if the address coincided with the address on the check."

He said that he would then observe the woman at her home, trying to determine if she lived alone by looking in the windows.

"I would observe in the bedroom to see if there were any men's clothing around," he said. "If she was by herself, there would be my target there.

He said he telephoned some of the potential victims, asking to speak to their husband or boyfriend. Only a few of his victims were married, he said.

Other victims were selected, he said, by following them home and others were selected by "window peeking." Others were spotted by going to apartment swimming pools and watching to see who eft alone.

He almost always entered apartments and homes through unlocked sliding glass doors, unlatched windows or open back doors.

"I never forced entry," he said. Escobedo always wore a ski mask and used gloves or socks on his hands to avoid leaving fingerprints, he said. Sometimes, he said, he used a small pistol and on other occasions he would press a finger to the victim's head to of Barry Goldwater High School, make her think he had a gun.

Victims told officers that the rapist threatened to kill them Missing water unless they pretended they were enjoying the assault.

On the tape, Escobedo told Assistant District Attorney Mike Gillett he watched rented X-rated videotapes about three or four times a week.

"I would remember the videotapes I would watch when I committed an assault," he said. "I would think about the tapes at the time and the different acts in the videos."

In addition to the sexual assaults, Escobedo admitted being involved in 17 burglaries. State officials say that he could be eligible for parole in 15 years. Dallas County District Attorney John Vance said he would oppose parole for Escobedo whenever it is proposed.
