Quarter-cent state sales tax goes into effect this Sunday

The state of Texas will begin squeezing pocketbooks for an extra quarter of a cent in sales taxes beginning Sunday — a squeeze that will amount to an estimated $24.65 a year for a family of four making $35,000.

"The change means we'll all be paying a little bit more to help fund education and human services in Texas," said State Comptroller Bob Bullock.

The new rate of 6 1/4 percent was approved by the Texas Legislature after a fourth special session on school funding ended in early June. The increase brings the maximum sales tax rate in Texas to 8 1/4 percent when optional local sales taxes are included.

Sales tax in Snyder will go up from 7 percent to 7 1/4 percent Sunday. The proposed half-cent sales tax for economic development which appears headed before local voters in August would bring the city's total to 8 1/4 percent, if passed.

The comptroller's office has sent almost half a million postcards notifying sales tax permit holders across Texas of the quarter-cent increase in state sales tax.

"Business owners with retail outlets will have to reprogram their cash registers virtually overnight," Bullock said. "This is a heavy burden we tried to lighten a little by giving as much advance notice as possible."

State sales tax for cities in the Snyder area beginning Sunday include Abilene, .08250; Andrews, .07250; Big Spring, .07250; Colorado City, .08250; Gail, .06250; Hermleigh, .07250; Ira, .07250; Jayton, .07250; Lamesa, .07750; Lubbock, .07750; Post, .07250; Roby, .07250; Rotan, .07250; San Angelo, .7750; and Sweetwater, .07250.

Q—Did Dorsey Johnson's plea bargain in Colorado City wipe out his capital murder conviction in Scurry County?

A—No. The Mitchell County case is a separate offense. However, Johnson's death sentence in Scurry County is being appealed.

In Brief

WIC funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Some 250,000 pregnant women and infants can remain on a federal nutrition program aimed at giving a healthy start in life for babies from poor homes under a bill approved on Friday by the Senate.

"This is about children," said Rep. Tony Hall, D-Ohio, chairman of the House Select Committee on Hunger. "Every dollar we spend on the WIC program saves $3 later in health care costs."

Local

Inmate

The focus of a 10-day manhunt for escaped inmate Travis Dale Gray switched to the Lubbock area Saturday morning.

Gray, 31, has been missing from the Price Daniel unit in Snyder since shortly after 1 p.m. June 20. Gray, who is serving a 40-year sentence for the 1988 murder of his wife, has relatives in Big Spring, including his current wife.

Grand jury

The Scurry County grand jury will convene at 9 a.m. Monday for its July session.

District Attorney Ernie Armstrong said that five cases tentatively are scheduled for presentation.

Council

The Snyder city council will meet in regular session at 6:30 p.m. Monday at Snyder city hall.

Two items are on the agenda including an engineering update on wastewater treatment plant improvements. The council will also hear a report concerning the mission of The Texas State Guard in Snyder.

1970 reunion

Snyder High School Class of 1970 will hold a meeting at 3 p.m. Sunday at Snyder National Bank.

Schoolhouse

The first public opening of the Dermott Schoolhouse located west of Scurry County Coliseum will be held at 9:30 a.m. July 4, immediately following the Prayer Breakfast.

A brief ceremony is planned, followed by an open house from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. Everyone is invited and former students are especially encouraged to attend.

The Cornelius-Dodson House will also be open for tours, and will feature an exhibit of old quilts.

Weather

Snyder Temperatures: High Friday, 97 degrees; low, 71 degrees; reading at 7 a.m. Saturday, 72 degrees; no precipitation. Total precipitation for 1990 to date, 10.75 inches.

Snyder Area Forecast: Sunday, partly cloudy with isolated mainly late afternoon thunderstorms. High in the mid 90s. Rain chance less than 20 percent.

July 4 celebration promises to be a bang-up event for all

A parade, music, arts and crafts, games, an art show, fireworks and foods from fajitas to burgers means that Snyder's annual Fourth of July Celebration will have something for everyone.

The traditional Lions Club-sponsored carnival that accompanies the celebration will set up over the weekend near Towle Park Barn.

Activities start as early as 4 p.m. Tuesday when registration begins for washer and horseshoe pitching and hula hoop and limbo contests in a chamber of commerce booth adjacent to the National Guard Armory.

Registration for the pitching contests is $1 per person, per event. There is no fee to enter the hula hoop or limbo contests.

The Snyder Palette Club-sponsored art show opens at 5 p.m., as do the arts and crafts booths in the Armory. Among the arts and crafts for sale this year will be turquoise and sterling silver jewelry, quilts, southwest art, wreaths, paper earrings, appliqued T-shirts, hand-painted canvas tote bags, "Suncatchers" and more.

The food and activity booths will also open at 5 p.m. in the park. Fajita tacos, candy apples, homemade ice cream, barbecue, frito pies, funnel cakes and smoked turkey legs are a sampling of the food booths while the activities include face painting, a ring toss and a dunking booth.

At 7 p.m., a Tae Kwon Do demonstration will be held by members of the West Texas Tae Kwon Do Academy.

Wednesday's fare is from morning until dark, beginning with the third annual Prayer Breakfast at Scurry County Coliseum. Dallas Cowboys Chaplain Gordon Banks will be the guest speaker for the 8 a.m. event. Tickets, which include the program and breakfast, are $6 each.

Raid nets liquor haul

A raid of a residence at 3601 Ave. I resulted in the confiscation of alcohol and 23 grams of marijuana Friday evening by the Scurry County Sheriff's Department.

Deputies Darren Jackson and Andy Anderson made the bust about 7 p.m. Friday after obtaining a search warrant. Arrested was Earnest James, 58, of 3601 Ave. I.

James was charged with possession of alcohol in a dry area with intent to sell and also delivery of marijuana. Both are felony offenses. James was also charged with possession of less than four ounces of marijuana which is a misdemeanor.

James was released after posting two bonds, one for $5,000 and one for $500.

Taken in the raid were 206 cans of beer, 34 pints of whiskey, five wine coolers and one liter of gin. Also confiscated was a smoking pipe and $195 in cash.

In other sheriff's department activity, Christopher Strong was arrested at 1:35 p.m. Friday in Ira for a felony DWI warrant out of Midland County.

Children will begin registering for the fishing rodeo at 8 a.m. The rodeo, another annual event, will begin at 9 a.m.

Youngsters will also begin lining up for the bike decorating contest at Moffett Field. There are three age groups this year, with first-through-third place prizes being given away in each age group.

Parade entries, including the bicycles, will begin forming at 9:30 a.m. The parade will begin at 10 a.m. at Moffett Field.

Also between 9:30 and 10 a.m., opening ceremonies will be held for the Dermott Schoolhouse located west of Scurry County Coliseum. The school and the (see JULY 4, page 15A)

Hermleigh water system topic for commissioners

Scurry County Commissioners on Monday will discuss Thursday's public hearing on a proposal to upgrade the Hermleigh water system.

The Thursday hearing at the Hermleigh community center plus a proposal for county health insurance are the only items on the 10 a.m. court agenda.

Last week, County Judge Bob Goodwin announced that the county expects to seek a $250,000 community development program grant through the Texas Department of Commerce.

The funds would be used to upgrade the 50-year-old water system which the county assumed operation of in 1955 after the dissolution of the incorporated city of Hermleigh.

Miss Snyder preparing for state pageant

By Shirley A. Gorman
SDN News Editor

Sarena Wright, 18, the second person to wear the Miss Snyder crown since the pageant was revived a couple of years ago, has begun the final days of preparation before the Miss Texas Pageant gets underway in Fort Worth July 7.

The annual event will run through July 14.

Wright, a native of Hamilton, has just completed her freshman year at Western Texas College. Months of preparing for the upcoming pageant has already meant eating nutritious food, exercising daily and learning as much about current world events as possible.

She has been assisted by her family, friends and chamber of commerce manager Bill Moss and his wife, Judy, whom she has been living with this summer.

Wright has to be prepared because the week of July 7th boasts a "killer" itinerary full of activities for all the 72 contestants to take part in.

Pageant activities will be held in the Tarrant County Community Center. Contestants have been divided into three groups, "A," "B," and "C." Wright is in Division C.

Highlights of her schedule include:

—Monday (July 9), 7 p.m., private interview.

—Wednesday (July 11), 8 p.m., evening gown competition.

—Thursday (July 12), 8 p.m., talent competition.

—Friday (July 13), 8 p.m., swimsuit competition.

—Saturday (July 14), 8 p.m., Top 10 will be selected.

In addition, on Saturday (July 7), Wright will appear on Johnny High's Country Music Review.

'Noah' fundraiser scheduled July 14

Melodrama will take over Scurry County Coliseum on July 14 when Percy Bill and Slue-Foot Sue meet the Dirty Dan Gang in a fundraiser for Noah Project, and area residents are invited to join them for an evening of family entertainment.

Tickets for the evening, which begins with dinner at 6 p.m., are $6 for adults and $3.50 for children age 10 and under. The meal will feature smoked sausage on a bun, potato salad, root beer and cookies. There will be drawings during the meal for over 50 door prizes which have been donated by local merchants.

The melodrama is to begin about 7 p.m. A musical interlude and singalong to be held between the meal and the play is being planned by Dr. Wylie "Buff" Hearn and Sam Robertson.

The melodrama is under the direction of Mike Dennis and has a cast of 12 local residents.

Advance tickets can be purchased at Bar H Bar Western Wear, The Shack, Blanche's Bernina and Ezell-Key Feed and Seed.

Bandanas will be given to anyone who purchases at least four advance tickets as long as the supply lasts, and melodramagoers are encouraged to wear the bandanas and western wear.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "People have two basic failures—what they say and what they do."

The city of San Antonio has done a terrific job of making downtown attractive to the tourist. They have successfully combined the old and the new.

One abandoned department store has been turned into an Antique Sampler where people can rent space to show off their treasures.

While wandering through the store, it became apparent that we had tossed away "junk" worth thousands. What we viewed as junk had the price tag of precious treasures.

We ran into a teen who proudly clutched the basketball trading card which pictured Isaiah Thomas his rookie year. It was worth $1,000.

It caused us to remember—and wonder—if we still had those baseball cards from 1955. We had the starting lineup of the World Champion Brooklyn Dodgers. We can still remember that lineup with the exception of the third baseman and the rightfielder.

Our cards would have been worn, as we played many imaginary games against those New York Yankees.

At a luncheon, we were seated next to publisher Bob Gilmore of Alvin, the hometown editor of Ranger ace hurler Nolan Ryan. Gilmore well remembers the year that Ryan knocked the Snyder Tigers out of the state tournament.

But what Gilmore remembers best is the special edition he printed last summer when Ryan collected his 5,000th strikeout. He sold that special edition for the regular price, but collectors hit town, bought 'em out and resold them for 5 bucks each.

Gilmore says he won't make the same mistake when Ryan hurls his 300th victory, expected to come this season.

Author Wallace, 74, claimed by cancer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Irving Wallace, whose steamy novel "Chapman Report" about sex in suburbia catapulted him to the ranks of the world's most widely read authors, has died of pancreatic cancer. He was 74.

Wallace died Friday afternoon, three days after entering Cedars-Sinai Medical Center in serious condition, said hospital spokesman Ron Wise. His wife, Sylvia, and son, David, were at his bedside.

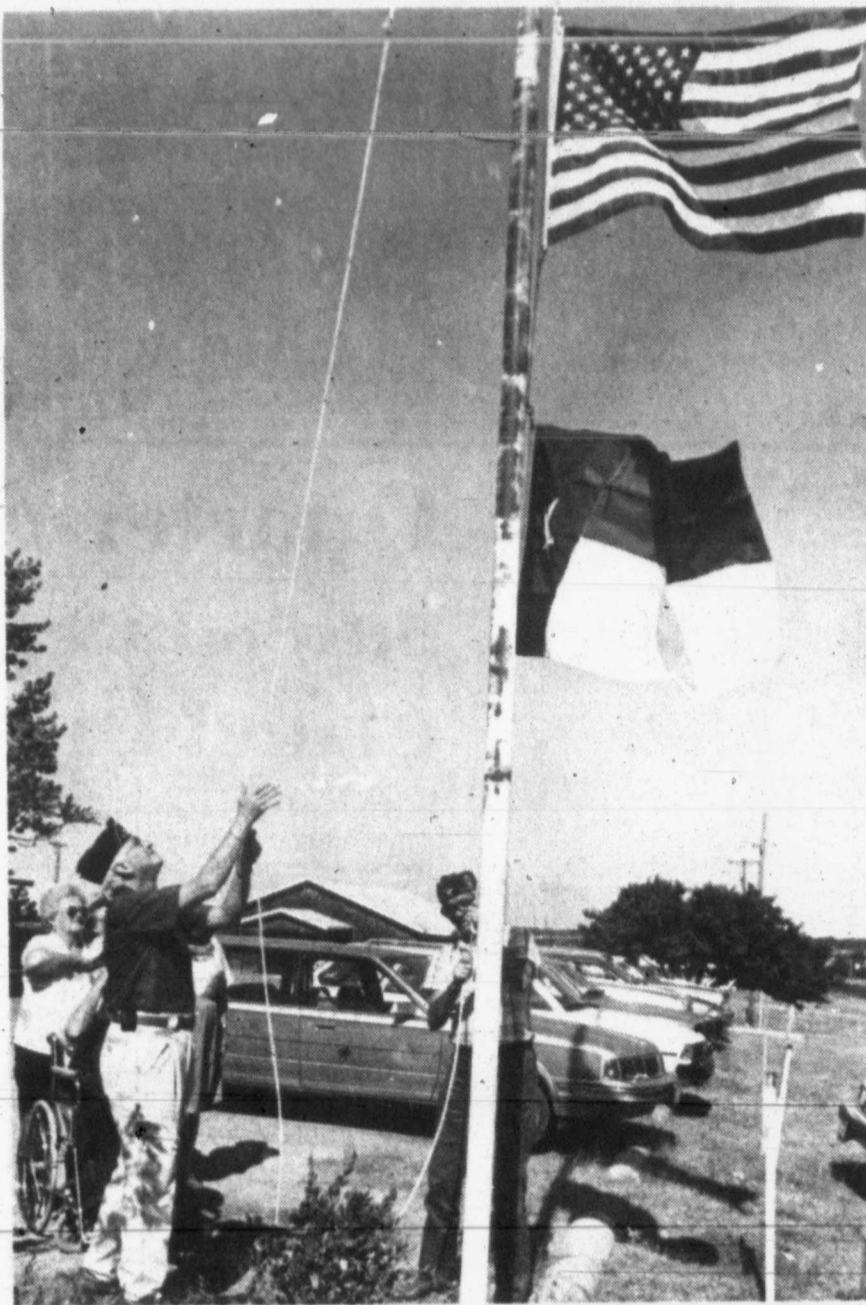

Literary critics dismissed Wallace's best-selling novels such as "The Prize" and "The Word" as potboilers, but the public loved his books. Even Jacqueline Kennedy acknowledged she read the "Chapman Report," a fictional Kinsey Report-style narrative inspired by the sexual exploits of women in Wallace's West Los Angeles neighborhood. Wallace also edited many popular non-fiction books, including "The People's Almanac" and "The Book of Lists."

He sold more than 194 million copies of his 33 books. The Saturday Review magazine considered him to be one of the five most widely read authors in the world, along with Barbara Cartland, Louis L'Amour, Harold Robbins and Janet Dailey.

"Obviously he was a marvelous storyteller," said novelist Leon Uris, author of "Exodus."

Before his fame as a novelist was established with "The Chapman Report" in 1960, Wallace wrote screenplays for "The West Point Story" in 1950; "Desert Legion," "Gun Fury," "Meet Me at the Fair" and "Split Second" with William Bowers in 1953; and "Bad for Each Other" with Horace McCoy in 1954.

Car compartments said dangerous

CLOVIS (AP) — A Colorado woman said children can get trapped inside rear storage compartments on later model cars than the recalled station wagon in which a 6-year-old Clovis boy died.

Matthew Roberts suffocated in May in the storage compartment of a 1978 Chevrolet Impala parked in the family's driveway. The car had been recalled by General Motors in June 1979 because the self-latching rear compartment was considered dangerous to children.

The recall of 1977, 1978 and 1979 "B" model Chevrolets, Pontiacs, Buicks and Oldsmobiles said the original compartment door latch, which closed without a key, could be replaced with a new latch requiring a key for latching and locking.

But Jo Anne Coleman of Grand Junction said her son Clinton crawled into the compartment of a 1985 Buick last summer and had to be rescued.

She said Clinton, then 4, discovered the compartment one day and wanted to get into it. She told him no and locked it.

The compartment was unlocked about a week later when the car was cleaned.

Coleman said she later went to a store and left Clinton in the car while she went inside. She said she checked him periodically, and as she was paying the cashier, she looked out and could not see him.

Since the store was isolated and there was no place for him to go, she decided he had to be in the car. She remembered his interest in the compartment, and looked there.

"I opened up the compartment, and to my horror, he was lying there," she said. "He was very, very red and covered in sweat. I picked him up and he was very limp. But he did come to. He could only have been in there a matter of seconds, a minute at the most."

She said such storage compartments need to be open from the inside and be ventilated.

"When it closes, it latches," Coleman said. "And I don't think my child could open it once he got inside."

"We all know the horrors of refrigerators and freezers and toy boxes," she said. "It may sound like I'm a stupid mother for letting my child get in there, but I'm not. This is not something we normally think about."

Area churches combine for patriotic service

The 12 Southern Baptist Churches of Scurry County will join together Sunday, July 1, for a special patriotic praise service.

The program will feature several selections of patriotic music presented by a combined choir of all churches under the direction of Lanny Turner, minister of music at First Baptist Church.

A special patriotic message will be given by Rev. Don Taylor, pastor of First Baptist Church.

The service will begin at 7 p.m. in the sanctuary of First Baptist Church and the public is invited to attend.

The following churches will be involved: Ave. D Baptist Church, Bethel Baptist Church, Colonial Hill Baptist Church, First Baptist Church, Templo Bautista, North College Avenue Baptist Church, Central Baptist Church of Hermleigh, Dunn Baptist Church, Fluvanna Baptist Church, First Baptist Church of Ira, Knapp Baptist Church and Union Baptist Church.

Arrests made in robbery

GRAND PRAIRIE, Texas (AP) — A man suspected of orchestrating four restaurant robberies in the Dallas-Fort Worth mid-cities this month was arrested along with another man Friday.

Police in this suburb west of Dallas arrested Byron Tyrone Cole, 20, at his mother's home about 12:30 p.m. About an hour earlier, 22-year-old Raymond Lee Lewis was arrested by officers.

Lewis was held in Arlington City Jail in lieu of a total $450,000 bonds on nine counts of aggravated robbery, while Cole was held on a $50,000 bond in connection with one count. Both appeared before Judge Martha Stromburg.

Two other suspects were arrested earlier this month. Investigators believe the four men have robbed at least a dozen restaurants in the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

Cole is suspected of leading four Arlington robberies since June 9, said Grand Prairie police Deputy Chief Rick White.

Police have been looking for "a core group of five people," said Arlington police spokesman Dee Anderson.

New Mexico's title error aids car theft ring

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Buying a used car in New Mexico may be risky because the state has issued clear title to several such vehicles that later turned out to have been stolen, victims contend.

"The public needs to be aware of what they are buying when they buy a used vehicle in this state," said Sheila Hoover, whose father's pickup was impounded as stolen by the FBI and state police.

Starting this spring, the two agencies have impounded 26 vehicles as part of an investigation into an auto theft ring. Assistant District Attorney Joe Lally and FBI agent John Hudenko said.

The ring's victims include those who had cars impounded, dealerships that sold victims stolen cars, owners from whom the cars originally were stolen and insurance companies that paid the original owners for their losses.

Rich Ford, Ken Johns Lincoln Mercury Hyundai, Master Motor Co. Inc. and First Choice Auto Sales are among the Albuquerque dealerships victimized.

State police Agent Joanne West said Friday no arrests have been made yet.

Search warrant affidavits filed May 22 show that authorities believe stolen vehicles are being brought into New Mexico from Alabama and Texas.

Charles Evans, manager of the National Auto Theft Bureau's Dallas office, says Georgia is also involved but that most were from Alabama. His non-profit, insurance-industry-funded organization has been helping

New Mexico with vehicle identification and other technical problems.

According to court documents and interviews conducted by the Albuquerque Journal, the auto theft ring works this way:

A ring member buys and thus receives title to a salvaged vehicle — one that has been wrecked or damaged — and registers it in New Mexico. A similar vehicle is stolen, and the vehicle identification number plate is transferred from the salvaged vehicle to the stolen vehicle.

The stolen vehicle is then sold to an unsuspecting wholesaler or dealer, who in turn sells it to an unsuspecting buyer.

Evans called the New Mexico ring "a very professional organization."

"It would have been difficult for people there to know they had stolen vehicles," he said.

Charlotte Valdez, chief of the state Motor Vehicle Division's Vehicle Services Bureau, said that to register a used car in New Mexico the driver must bring in the title and other documents. If it's an out-of-state car, she said the division also must inspect it for its visible vehicle ID number to be sure it matches the ID number on the title.

But the ID number is in several hidden places as well.

Ms. Valdez acknowledged that the division does not inspect the vehicle for its hidden numbers; it checks only the plainly visible number.

"I think we were ripped off by the state, not some car thief," said Robert Coleman of Albuquerque, who lost a Ford van to impoundment.

Eventually, Lally said, rightful owners — in many cases, pounds will be returned to their insurance companies.

$1.7 million is raised by Mandela

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Nelson Mandela received adulation from movie stars and Skid Row residents in the nation's second-largest city, and raised at least $1.7 million for his anti-apartheid cause.

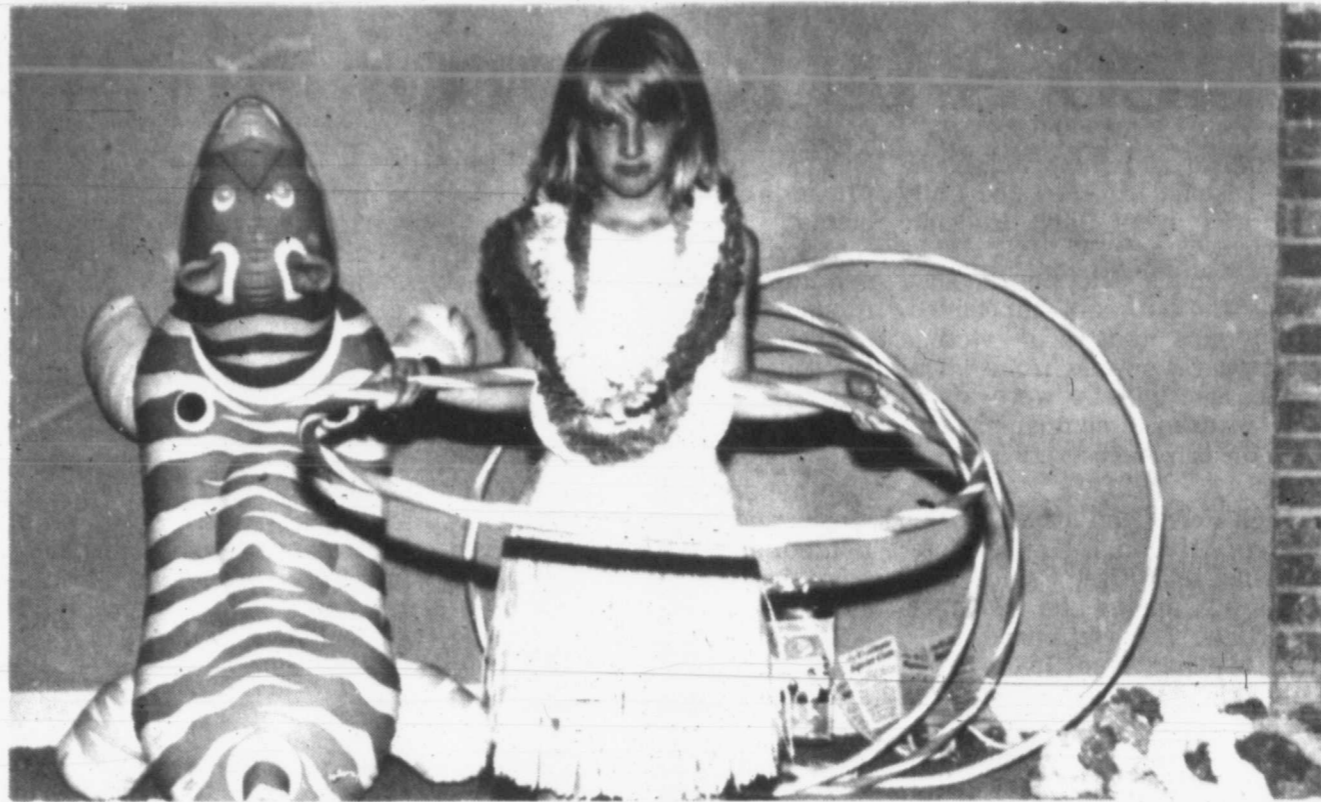

"Thank you Los Angeles for staying with us up to the last hour," Mandela told a sold-out Memorial Coliseum crowd late Friday night. "For this we admire you, we respect you, and above all we love you."

The deputy president of the African National Congress received an enthusiastic reception everywhere he went on the first day of his Los Angeles visit, the next-to-last stop on his 10-day American tour.

A star-studded fund-raiser at the Armory Building alone raised an estimated $1.2 million, and the Coliseum event raised at least $500,000, tour coordinators said.

Mandela was scheduled to leave for Oakland today before going on to Ireland for the next stop on his 14-country tour.

Mandela, 71, and his wife, Winnie, kept a busy schedule after arriving in Los Angeles in the morning. He spoke to 15,000 people at City Hall, met Soviet dissident Natan Sharansky, attended the Armory fund-raiser and finally the Coliseum rally-concert.

HULA GIRL — Kayla Kenney practices for the hula-hoop competition to be held as a part of July 4 celebration activities. In addition to the hula hoop contest, there will be washer and horseshoe pitching and a limbo competition. Registration for these events concludes at 9 p.m. July 3 at the National Guard Armory. Progress seen in fire fight

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. (AP) — Firefighters gained ground against an arson fire that destroyed more than 400 homes and killed two people.

Most of the brush fires that have scorched more than 20,000 acres in six Southern California counties over three days headed toward control or containment early today, authorities said.

Property losses in Santa Barbara, San Bernardino, Los Angeles, Orange, Riverside and San Diego counties have been estimated at more than $280 million. But one official said damage in Santa Barbara alone could reach $500 million.

The deaths of a Santa Barbara County woman and an inmate-firefighter were reported Friday, the first caused by the fires that started Wednesday.

"Whoever started this fire is, in my opinion, not only a terrorist, but a murderer," said Rep. Robert Lagomarsino, whose district includes Santa Barbara.

Authorities have recovered an incendiary device in San Marcos Pass that they believe started the blaze, but have declined to provide further details. The New York Times reported firefighters found a match in the field where the blaze began.

Rewards totaling more than $150,000 have been offered for information leading to the arrests and convictions of the arsonists.

Industrialized nations pledge $240 million for ozone effect

LONDON (AP) — Industrialized nations pledged $240 million to help developing nations stop producing chemicals that damage the Earth's ozone layer, and 56 countries agreed to ban those substances by century's end.

Many observers believe the conference was a prelude to more difficult negotiations later on global warming and reducing the use of fossil fuels.

Representatives from 56 countries on Friday approved provisions strengthening the 1987 Montreal Protocol on the production and use of the ozone-depleting chemicals — chlorofluorocarbons, or CFCs.

CFCs, used in refrigeration, insulation, cleaning solvents and as aerosol propellants, rise into the stratosphere where they break down in constituent chemical parts.

One of these, chlorine, destroys the thin shield of ozone in the atmosphere that filters out harmful ultraviolet rays, helps preserve the Earth's flora and protects humans from developing skin cancer. About 100 countries attended the two-week conference, but only the 56 parties to the Montreal pact were allowed to vote on the agreement.

The 1987 protocol had called for a 50 percent cut in the chemicals by 2000. The new treaty bans CFCs by 2000 and increases the list of "controlled" chemicals from eight to 20.

But like the 1987 protocol, Fri-

Management class slated

Registration is continuing for the Records Management class scheduled to begin July 10 at Western Texas College.

This will be the third unit in WTC's Small Business Management certificate program. Included are 24 hours of instruction in the creation and control of various types of business records and automated systems. Classes are to meet from 6:30-9:20 p.m. on July 10, 17, 24 and 31 and Aug. 7, 14, 21 and 28. The fee is $65 per person and includes books and supplies.

Unit 4, Introduction to Data Entry, is to begin Sept. 11. It introduces students to the computer, data processing terms and concepts and the identification of data in storage.

Unit 5, starting Oct. 9, is the followup, Intermediate Data Entry.

Details about the Small Business Management program can be obtained by calling the Adult Education office at WTC, 573-8511, extension 240.

day's agreement contains no penalties for violations and has no enforcement powers.

Cabinet ministers from at least a dozen countries urged that a ban be imposed by 1997. But the United States, Japan and the Soviet Union insisted on an effective date of 2000.

"We believe it is necessary and possible to do better than this timetable," said West German Environment Minister Klaus Topfer. "Unfortunately, three countries refused to go along."

Environmentalists said that during the three-year delay, 11 billion tons of chemicals will be released into the stratosphere.

Things To Check Before Choosing A Roofer:

- Are they asking for money up front? Giving money before the work is completed is the easiest way to get ripped off.
- Do they offer current references?
- Do they offer lien waivers to protect the homeowner from materialman's liens? Without a lien waiver the homeowner can still be held responsible for paying for the materials.
- Do they have copies of Workman's Compensation & Liability Insurance? Without these the homeowner becomes responsible for any damage to property or injury to workers.
- Are they really cheap compared to other roofer's proposals? Remember, the lowest price is not always the best deal. You generally get what you pay for. Bargains are generally problems in disguise!
- Always check with your Better Business Bureau or Chamber of Commerce for a reliability and performance record.

Miami thrift bailout is record

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government ended a three-month, 155-institution series of savings and loan rescues and closings with a record $1.7 billion taxpayer bailout of CenTrust Bank of Miami.

Regulators are paying Great Western Financial Corp. of Beverly Hills, Calif., to take over the 71 branches and $5.2 billion in deposits of Florida's largest thrift institution.

CenTrust marks the biggest bailout of a single thrift so far. But it likely will be topped when regulators find an acquirer for Charles H. Keating Jr.'s Lincoln Savings and Loan Association of Irvine, Calif. That rescue could top $2 billion.

In all Friday, the Resolution Trust Corp., created 11 months ago to clean up the thrift industry, sold 14 institutions and closed one at an estimated cost of $3 billion.

The RTC has spent $16 billion to resolve 155 failures since its chairman, L. William Seidman, launched "Operation Clean Sweep" at the end of March in response to complaints that the agency was moving too slowly. Before April 1, it had resolved 52 failures at a cost of $9 billion.

months is rivaled only by the 75 deals completed in December 1988 by the RTC's predecessor, the Federal Home Loan Bank Board.

When regulators seized CenTrust in February, they blamed its failure on speculative investing, including purchase of more than $1 billion in junk bonds. Most of the bonds were sold by the investment banking firm Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc., which later crashed itself.

They also cited the lavish spending of the institution's chairman, David L. Paul, who spent millions of dollars of deposits on a museum-quality art collection kept at his home; a company yacht, limousines, a corporate jet and gold-plated toilets in the executive washrooms.

A "fraud squad" of investigators is examining the legality of $328,000 in political contributions by Paul.

Great Western purchased about half of CenTrust's $6.7 billion in assets, with the right to return them within three months if they turn out to be worth less than expected. The assets include cash and investment-grade securities, residential mortgages and consumer loans.

The RTC will keep the rest, including the junk bonds, and try to sell them to other buyers.

In another major package of deals, Security Pacific National Bank acquired Gibraltar Savings of Simi Valley, Calif., and an affiliated but separately chartered S&L of the same name in Seattle, Wash.

Security Pacific gets $6.5 billion in deposits and control of six branches in Washington and about 80 in California. Separate-

Missing man is wheelchair bound

PECOS, Texas (AP) — Police were searching Friday for a wheelchair-bound man who has been missing since Tuesday. They are hoping he has taken shelter from the heat at the home of friends in an area where he was spotted.

Pecos Police Lt. David Montgomery said Donald James Costa, a paraplegic, was reported missing Wednesday by his wife, Kathy Costa. She told police her husband left the Christian Home in his wheelchair between 8:30 and 9 Tuesday night.

Christian Home is a shelter for transients. Costa was managing the home while the shelter's director Don Robbins was in California.

"With the heat, someone in his condition wouldn't last four days in 100-degree weather."

ly, Great Western received an 18-branch Florida subsidiary of the Washington S&L. The estimated taxpayer cost of the Gibraltar transactions totals $628 million.

Despite the April-June spree, which included a one-day record of 26 sales and closings on June 22, the bulk of the agency's work remains to be done.

With the failure of five more

S&Ls on Friday, the RTC has 247 S&Ls yet to sell or close and it expects at least that many now in private hands to fail in coming months.

"I think they've done a good job so far, but they certainly have their work cut out for them," said economist Paul Getman of Regional Financial Associates in West Chester, Pa.

Space shuttle fuel leaks are probed

WASHINGTON (AP) — NASA technicians are trying to find the cause of hydrogen leaks in two space shuttles that have grounded the fleet for at least two weeks.

The second leak was detected Friday while engineers were test-loading hydrogen rocket fuel into the propellant tank of shuttle Atlantis. A similar leak found in Columbia last month forced postponement of its mission.

"There's no question that we won't fly until we understand it (the leak), have it fixed, have tested it, verified it and we're ready," said Bill Lenoir, spaceflight chief for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Once the leak has been found, Atlantis will be rolled back from the launchpad to the hangar at Cape Canaveral, Fla., so engineers can remove its fuel tank and make the necessary repairs.

Atlantis' mid-July launch will be delayed at least two weeks, but possibly longer if a new design is needed for the assembly of fuel pipes, Lenoir said.

Columbia is already back in the hangar, where it was taken after its leak was discovered on the launch pad, just six hours before its scheduled May 30 liftoff. Its mission was postponed until August.

As NASA officials were explaining the leaks at a news briefing Friday, other agency officials were on Capitol Hill explaining troubles with the Hubble Space Telescope.

Sen. Albert Gore Jr., D-Tenn., charged that design flaws which discovered earlier this week in the $1.5 billion spacecraft were symptomatic of broader problems at the agency that include a weak quality control system.

"NASA's eyes are bigger than its stomach," Gore said.

Referring to the space telescope, he said: "We have been assured now for 12 years that everything was all right. We owe it to the taxpayers to find out what went wrong, how to fix it and make sure it never happens again."

Since both shuttle leaks occurred while the vehicles were being fueled on the pad, "it seems likely that these are related and of a similar class," Lenoir said in a news conference at the Kennedy Space Center in Florida.

They involve what is called the "umbilical" of the space shuttle, an assembly of pipes and valves that directs the flow of propellants into the tank from a ground supply and, at launch, from the tank to the shuttle engines.

The safety of the umbilical system on shuttle Discovery is also now in question. The third member of the three-shuttle fleet is scheduled to launch a science spacecraft called Ulysses into a polar orbit of the sun in October.

The timing of the Ulysses mission is sensitive because its launch window depends on the alignment of the planets. A delay could mean that the craft could not be launched for years.

Lenoir said he would "keep my eye on" the launch schedule, but "we are not going to let the fact that we've got Ulysses and we want to get to flights off before that affect the rigor with which we attack the problem."

Oldest Black college moves to Dallas campus

DALLAS (AP) — By moving next week to a deserted campus here, officials of the oldest historically black college west of the Mississippi hope to almost double their enrollment.

Paul Quinn College's relocation to the empty campus of Bishop College, another famous black institution, was engineered by Dallas businessman Comer Cottrell. He spent more than $2.1 million to buy and rebuild the Bishop campus since it went bankrupt in February.

Under a lease-purchase agreement, Cottrell is offering the Bishop site to Paul Quinn. Paul Quinn officials said they'll start moving the school Tuesday from Waco to the 130-acre campus in Dallas.

Fall registration will open Thursday. Paul Quinn expects to increase its size tenfold by 1994, thanks to Dallas' larger population. The college had 517 students last fall in Waco, a city of about 107,000. The faculty numbers 50.

"There's a big difference between surviving and thriving," said Paul Quinn spokesman Glenn Smith. "In Dallas, we will have a larger pool to draw students from and corporations make regular contributions to nonprofit organizations. We feel confident we can really expand."

The move of the African Methodist Episcopal college, which opened in 1872, was arranged by Cottrell, owner of Pro-Line Corp., the nation's 18th largest black-owned company.

"I committed to preserving the Bishop campus for a higher institution of learning for black kids," Cottrell said Thursday. "The survival of Paul Quinn means everything to me."

Bishop, which was Dallas' only predominantly black college, was sold at auction for $1.5 million to the Cottrell Foundation. Cottrell has since spent $600,000 to renovate some of the 22 decaying buildings.

Although lease and purchase prices must still be negotiated, Cottrell said he won't charge Paul Quinn more than the $2.1 million he invested. He said he may charge the college only the interest he has paid on a loan to finance the project.

"The emphasis here is for Paul Quinn to build its cash flow," said Cottrell. "We are going to make sure the same that happened to Bishop does not happen again.

"It is more than finances," he said. "I started my business with $600 and now it is the largest in the southwest. It takes creativity and commitment and that is what Paul Quinn has."

Pro-Line officials report more than $30 million a year in sales of hair-care products for blacks.

Bishop was closed in August 1988 by a federal bankruptcy judge after the school failed to raise enough money to subsist.

Assistance from the government, the United Negro College Fund and an aggressive marketing plan in Dallas will help Paul Quinn overcome the kind of problems that faced Bishop, officials said.

"We had to decide if we wanted to be a futuristic school with modern programs," Warren Morgan, president of Paul Quinn, said. "We plan to have a nursing school set up in the next couple of years and develop a strong business and communications curriculum."

A U.S. Department of Defense program that offers military surplus property to historically black colleges will help cut moving costs. Furniture, computers and other equipment will begin arriving at Paul Quinn on Tuesday for a small service charge.

Austin, Texas, the U.S. city with the largest urban bat population, is visited by 750,000 Mexican free-tailed bats every spring through fall, says National Geographic.

Youth creative classes to begin July 9 at WTC

Creative Dramatics classes for children in grades 1-6 are to begin July 9 at Western Texas College.

Ellie Dryden, former speech and drama instructor at Snyder Junior High School, will direct the classes.

Children in grades 1-3 will meet from 9:30-11:30 a.m. Monday through Thursday from July 9-19. Instruction will stress enhancing self concepts, motor skills, sensory awareness, creative storytelling, communication skills, movement and rhythm, and simple puppetry.

Classes for students in grades 4-6 will meet from 1-3 p.m. on the same days. This workshop will stress self-confidence, sensory and emotional awareness, higher level thinking skills, working in ensemble, clowning, pantomime, and advanced puppetry. Activities will include games, music, field trips, improvised play, making puppets and writing puppet plays and readers' theatre using prose and poetry.

Fees for either class are $40 which includes supplies.

Parents wishing to enroll children in the classes are to pre-register by calling the college continuing education office at 573-8511, extension 240.

Smoke alarm missing in fatal blaze

BROWNWOOD (AP) — The mother of two toddlers who died in a fire will have to explain why the apartment's smoke alarm was missing, an official said.

Arlen Carnes, 3, whose body was burned almost beyond recognition died at 9:03 a.m. Friday at Brownwood Regional Hospital. His sister, 2-year-old Dedra Carnes, died later in the same hospital.

Their mother, Katrina Carnes, 26, was in critical condition at the Brownwood hospital late Friday.

A fourth person in the duplex, Donnie Smith, escaped through a bedroom window but suffered second- and third-degree burns. He was hospitalized in stable condition Friday.

"We don't know whether the children were asleep when the fire started, but the remains of a mattress were on the living room floor when we came in," said Brownwood Fire Chief Kenneth Taylor.

The fire was ruled accidental and a lighted candle was the probable cause, Brown County Fire Marshal Emmett Mathews said.

The smoke alarm had been removed from the charred apartment, Mathews said.

"We don't know why yet," he said. "She had a break-in there a few days ago, and it could have been stolen then."

Taylor said he saw no sign of a smoke detector in either side of the duplex.

"Most definitely it (a smoke alarm) would have made a difference," Taylor said.

Financial Focus

In the world of investing, a "contrarian" is someone who does the opposite of what most other investors are doing at any particular time. A contrarian acts on the belief that if everyone is certain something will happen, it won't.

Contrary investing has two requirements - confidence and the discipline to act. Contrarians set standards; they don't follow them.

One of the most successful contrarians was J. Paul Getty. When he died at the age of 83, his personal fortune was worth an estimated $3 billion.

In his autobiography, Getty wrote that his secret for making "really big money" was to "buy when everyone else is selling, and hold until everyone else is buying. This is not merely a catchy slogan; it is the essence of successful investing."

Contrarian investment principles sound so simple. One wonders why they're so rarely followed.

By analyzing the economy through a variety of worldwide, 20th-century events, Ibbotson, a financial research organization, shows that (1) there are always legitimate reasons to stay out of the market, and (2) in spite of this, over the past 63 years the return on common stocks has significantly outpaced both inflation and other investments. Staying in the stock market has proved profitable.

How have contrarians, confident in the lesson of history and willing to buy when others were selling, fared during the 1980's?

One New York Stock Exchange member firm attempted to answer this by hypothetically investing $10,000 in common stock (based on the S&P 500 with dividends reinvested) each year during the last decade. Here are the results, along with the typical reasons for NOT investing at that particular time.

1989 - "There's talk of bailing out the savings and loans. I'm bailing out." Current investment value: $12,779

1988 - "Where were you on Black Monday? I was out of the market." Current investment value: $14,888

1987 - "A 2000 Dow is ridiculous. I know I've missed the boat." Current investment value: $15,664

1986 - "The federal deficit is over $200 billion." Current investment value: $18,580

1985 - "There haven't been this many bank failures since the 1930's." Current investment value: $24,459

1984 - "The Dow is over 1250. It's an all-new high, and I missed it." Current investment value: $25,980

1983 - "Ten percent unemployment, and banks are failing." Current investment value: $31,815

1982 - "The recession has begun, and it could be bad." Current investment value: $38,656

1981 - "Chrysler needs $400 million, and I'm supposed to invest?" Current investment value: $36,769

1980 - "Iran is holding America hostage. I'm holding on to my money." Current investment value: $48,700

J. Paul Getty made a good case for being a contrarian. And as the track record of the hypothetical investment above proves, the theory still makes sense.

WHY SHOULD YOU BUY WAL-MART STOCK TODAY?

- A $10,000 investment in Wal-Mart stock at year-end 1979 would have grown to $415,171 by year-end 1989, a 45% annual total return. This figure does not assume reinvestment of dividends. Price per share on 6/5/90 was 60 3/8.*
- With a 35.8% annual sales growth rate for the past decade, Wal-Mart is the fastest-growing retailer in the nation.
- Compound annual total return of Wal-Mart stock for the 1980s was 45% compared to 18% for the Dow Jones Industrial Average and 17% for the S&P 500.

Wimbledon... Cash dumps Aguilera

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Pat Cash followed a bumpy road that twisted through injury and anguish. Jennifer Capriati glided along a path softened by an adoring public.

Cash and Capriati, one a former champion trying to regain his touch and the other an upcoming champ, arrived at the All England Club via different routes.

But the smooth travels they have enjoyed so far through Wimbledon, including third-round victories on Friday, soon will be threatened by a pair of imposing roadblocks — defending champions Boris Becker and Steffi Graf.

Cash needed only 84 minutes to defeat Juan Aguilera on Centre Court and earn a fourth-round clash with Becker. The 1987 Wimbledon champion, ranked 142nd worldwide, beat the 16th-ranked Aguilera 6-1, 6-1, 6-4.

"I played the first two sets about as near to perfection as I possibly hoped to get," Cash said. "I didn't miss a volley and I served very well."

Things have been far from perfect for Cash during the last two years. He was sidelined for 12 months by a ruptured Achilles tendon, was dropped from the Australian Davis Cup team and broke up with his longtime girlfriend, the mother of his two children.

Cash, who is playing his first Grand Slam tournament since early 1989, fell to 626th in the world early this year. A first-round loss at Queens two weeks ago gave no indication he would jump to life at Wimbledon.

"It is all coming back, the memories and the instinctiveness about playing in tournaments and being under pressure," he said. "I don't think there's anybody that's ever been in the position where I am at the moment. Can you tell me a top player who was out for a year from the top 10 and came back again?"

Second seed Becker stumbled slightly before ousting American Dan Goldie 6-3, 6-4, 4-6, 7-5.

Capriati, the women's 12th seed, had her first tense moments of the tournament before defeating Robin White 7-5, 6-7, 6-3 to grab a spot opposite two-time defending champion Graf.

The 14-year-old Floridian fell behind 3-0 in the final set, losing the third game in a 32-point marathon that included 13 deuces. But she rallied past a tiring White for the victory.

Capriati blew two match points in the second set and needed six in all to beat White, who bothered the teen-ager with her aggressive net play.

"I shouldn't even have been down 0-3, I should have been in the locker room by then," Capriati said. "Lately, I haven't been closing those out and I should have."

Graf had a much easier day. She defeated Claudia Kohde-Kilsch 6-0, 6-4 and has lost only 10 games in her three victories.

Third women's seed Monica Seles eliminated Anne Minter 6-3, 6-3 and fifth seed Zina Garrison defeated fellow American Andrea Leand 6-0, 6-3. A pair of seeded Czechoslovaks also advanced, with No. 10 Helena Sukova and No. 13 Jana Novotna winning in straight sets.

C-City slates softball event

The 1990 Star Wars Men's C and D Slow Pitch Softball Tournament will be held July 6-8 in Colorado City.

The field will consist of the first 14 teams to enter and out-of-town squads are welcome.

Entry fee is $100 and trophies will be presented to first through fourth place teams.

Additional awards include T-shirts for individual team members for the top three finishers, a Golden Glove trophy and a Sportsmanship award.

For more information contact David Lelek at 728-3281, Bobby Matlock at 728-3041 or Chip Hubbard at 728-2282.

June sees record 4 no-hitters

by The Associated Press
Four pitching arms — two left, two right — were thrust into the air during June, punctuating a historic month for baseball.

Each of those arms threw no-hitters in the same month, something that had never been done in a sport that traces its ancestry to 1869.

Three of the June no-hitters occurred in the American League, another record.

Making it all the more amazing was Friday night's double no-hitter, the first time this century that two pitchers produced nine-inning, complete-game no-hitters on the same day.

Oakland's Dave Stewart, baseball's winningest pitcher the last three years, beat Toronto 5-0, the first no-hitter ever in that Canadian city. And Fernando Valenzuela of the Los Angeles Dodgers, considered by some to be wasting his time after two years of arm miseries, beat the St. Louis Cardinals 6-0. It was the first no-hitter in the National League since 1988.

"This was the highlight of my career," Stewart said. "Winning 20 ballgames, that's something because they don't have to vote on 20 wins. But I thought after winning a World Series and an MVP that you couldn't top that. This does."

June didn't figure to be Stewart's month. He's been unbeatable in April, winning all 19 decisions in the first month of the season since he joined the Athletics in 1986. He was 5-0 during this April, only 4-6 since until Friday.

Of all the teams that Valenzuela could have ached, the Cardinals figured to be the last. He hadn't beaten St. Louis since 1988, about the time serious trouble beset the left arm that won him rookie of the year and Cy Young Awards in 1981.

"In my last game in Cincinnati, I gave up eight runs in five innings," Valenzuela recalled. "It's Jessica Rocha belted a homer, a triple and a single, winning pitcher Mendy Winter smacked a three-base hit and a pair of doubles, Lindsey Griffen punched five singles and a double, Erica Garvin added a two-sacker while Amanda Huff nailed three singles and Adrienne Bailey hit two for the Yellowjackets.

The Wrecking Crew was paced by Michelle Silva's triple and two doubles, a two-sacker and two singles from Joshelyn Helm, four base hits by Jami Brown, two singles apiece from Melanie Kidd and Donnis McHaney and a base rap by Sarah Pierce.

Bad News Babes 16, Bandits 12

The Bad News Babes advanced to the championship round of the Division II tournament with their win over the Bandits Thursday night.

Winning pitcher Mandy Baker paced the Babes' offense with three singles and a triple followed by a double and four hits by Joanie Wemkin, Rachele Wemkin's single and double, two hits each from Julie Lang, Halea Huestis, Alicia Jones and Tiffany Martin and a single apiece by April Baker, Denise Tovar, Shonda Bowlin and Holly Ferris.

Ronnie Yruegas ripped two triples for the Bandits. Rashawnda Inks added a homer and a double, Shawn Purcell smacked a three-bagger and a single, Erin McDonald lifted two base hits and losing pitcher Erin Maytubby, Brandi Bates and Christina Erwin rapped a single each.

Dynamites 25, Orange Krush 9

Winning pitcher Amy Vaughn smacked a triple, a double and two singles to lead the Dynamites to a June 23 win.

Amy Raines added a pair of doubles and a single, Shauna Huddleston ripped a two-sacker, Miranda Wilson and Sabrina Orón each gathered two hits and April Fletcher and Belinda McCoy lifted a single apiece for the winners.

Connie Payne and Sam Trevino each rapped a double and Norma Maldonado and Jamey Tolman popped singles for the Orange Krush.

Bad News Babes 12, Wrecking Crew 10

The Wrecking Crew bounded to a 7-2 lead after two innings, but the Bad News Babes closed the gap to 8-6 after a four-run third and added four in the final stanza to take the Division II tourney win last Saturday.

Rashawnda Inks blasted a double and two singles, winning pitcher Mandy Baker hammered a pair of hits and Rachele Wemkin, Shawnda Bowlin and Joanie Wemkin each tapped a single for the Babes.

Joshelyn Helm nailed a homer for the Wrecking Crew followed by a double and a triple from Jami Brown, Michelle Silva's two-bagger, three singles off the bat of Kelley Hart and Donnis McHaney's base hit.

Dynamites 21, Kool Aid Kids 9

Getting hits for the Dynamites in the June 1 win were Keri Kemp with a homer, Shauna Huddleston with a triple, Belinda McCoy with a double and a single, Tiffany Garza with a double, Amy Vaughn with a pair of hits and Marissa Wilson, April Fletcher, Amy Raines, Miranda Wilson and Sabrina Orón with a single each.

Rita Rodriguez knocked a homer and a triple for the Kids while Haley Ingram added a three-sacker and a pair of doubles.

England to battle Cameroon

Rowdy English fans cast pall over World Cup competition

ROME (AP) — Since 1985, English clubs have been barred from European Cup competitions. Yet the national team has made the quarterfinals of both the 1986 and 1990 World Cups.

"I think we have proved our players can be adaptable and flexible in the world game, despite the European ban on our clubs," Coach Bobby Robson said.

The ban was instituted after a riot blamed on English rowdies at the European Cup of Champions final between Liverpool and Juventus of Turin caused the death of 39 fans. England nearly always had a team in one of the three major European title games before being barred.

When UEFA, soccer's governing body in Europe, prohibited English clubs from its events following the tragedy at Heysel Stadium in Brussels — the national team was not included in the ban — it was expected that English soccer would be damaged severely in other international tournaments, particularly the European championships and World Cup.

And the national team was a disaster at the 1988 Europeans, losing all three games.

The World Cup has been different. The English made the final eight at Mexico before losing to Argentina, which went on to the world crown. And they are in the final eight now, with Cameroon the next opponent, on Sunday in Naples.

"The European ban has handicapped our players. That's not an excuse or a reason. It's a fact," Robson said. "But our players have come here and played against different teams, and different styles of play."

"Cameroon is going to produce a different kind of player than ours have been used to playing, so they have got to be flexible again."

The team has shown much more flexibility than its fans. While the players were struggling but still advancing — the only strong game the English have played so far was in a scoreless tie with the Netherlands — the troublemakers among the fans were living down to their reputations.

Confrontations earlier this week in the coastal resort of Rimini between English fans and Italians, then police, ended in 246 Britons being expelled from Italy. There also were incidents on the island of Sardinia, where England played three opening-round games.

Now, the mayor of Turin, remembering how the local club's fans were in the middle of the riots at Heysel, wants no part of England if it beats Cameroon.

"The actions of the hooligans in recent days are testimony to the dangers connected to their presence in Turin," Magnani Noya said.

"As mayor of Turin, I officially ask FIFA to invert the venues of the two semifinals. Not so much because Turin is unprepared, but because the memory of the Heysel tragedy that hit our city could aggravate the danger of the hooligans sparking a counter-reaction."

The schedule calls for the winners of today's games — Ireland vs. Italy and Argentina vs. Yugoslavia — to play a semifinal in Naples. The winners of Sunday's matches, England-Cameroon and Czechoslovakia-West Germany, play in Turin.

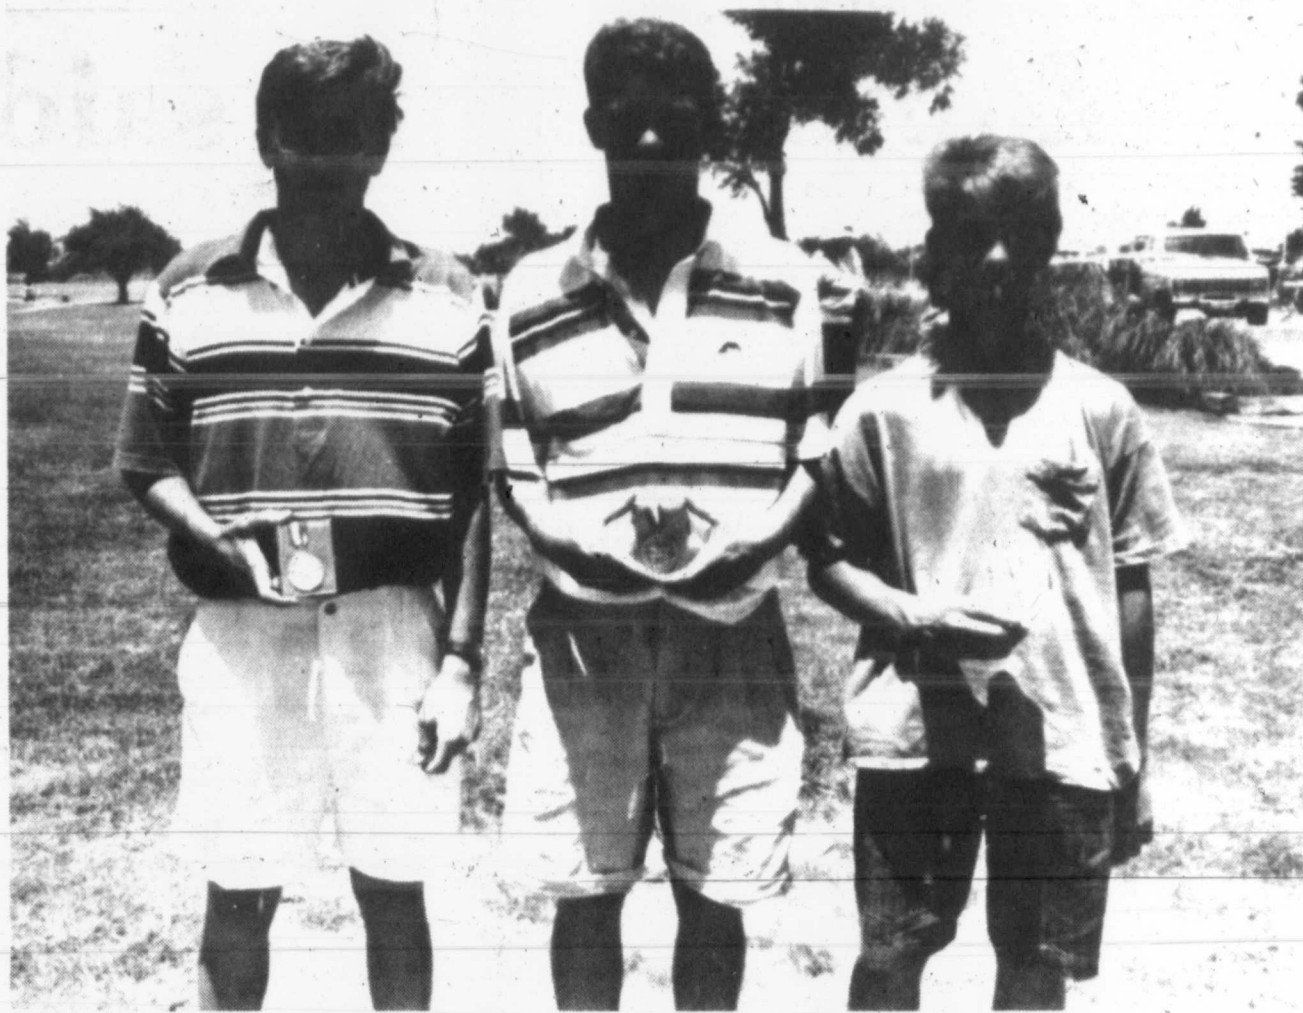

"There has been no official request yet and FIFA first has to see who qualifies for the semifinals," Tognoni said. "No decision will be taken before the matches are played. ... So far the English crowd has been under control."

Orlando Martinez' team took an 11-3 win over Robert Reed's team in softball action.

Martinez, Damian Medrano, Adrian Vanderpool, Michael Bastardo and Brady Cobb each scored once for the winners while Juan Robledo, Toby Delce and Mark Ruiz came in twice apiece.

Dustin Fish, Daniel Hernandez and Reed tagged the plate once each for the Reed crew.

Red card basketball

Damian Medrano's team was trounced by Orlando Martinez' bunch, 40-22, as Martinez hit for 18 points, Juan Robledo had 16 and Marcus Simmons and Israel Tavarez scored four and two points, respectively.

Orlando Hernandez nailed 12, Medrano popped 8 and Juan Dominguez snagged four for the losers.

June 19

Blue card basketball

Team captain Toby Delce scored 38 points to lead his squad to a 50-42 win over Jeremy Fuentez' crew.

Richard Alexander added 12 for the Delce team and Fuentez and Dustin Fish poured in 16 and Edmund Ruiz hit for 10 for the Fuentez bunch.

Red and blue card softball

Gabriel Rios, scoring once in the game, led his team past Shae Sisson's team 8-5. Daniel Fish, Derrick Crayton, Eric Tovar, Larry English and Jimmy Taylor each scored for the Sisson team.

The Rios squad drove Dustin Fish across once and Geoffrey Loper, Marc Sparlin and Toby Delce twice each in the win.

June 20

White card basketball

Jerry Tippens' team rolled to a 117-87 win over Michael Jackson's crew.

Eric Braziel's 30, Brian Jackson with 40 and 47 points from Tippens paced the winners.

Jackson and Barreta Collins nailed 36 apiece and Sammy Aviles poured in 15 for the losers.

June 21

Red and white card softball

Jerry Cervantez and Saul Aviles each scored twice and Eddie Neeley, Eric Tovar and Juan Robledo came in one time apiece as the Cervantez team beat Wayne Braziel's bunch 8-5.

Joe Martinez scored twice and Marcus Simmons, S.S. McClain and Braziel tagged the dish once in the losing cause.

Blue and red card football

Daniel Hernandez and Edmund Ruiz scored touchdowns for the Gabriel Rios team in a 21-14 win over Jimmy Taylor's squad.

J.R. Romero and Adrian Vanderpool rambled for a TD each for Taylor.

June 22

Red and white card softball

Orlando Martinez and his team slipped past Daniel Hernandez' crew 5-3 with Martinez, Toby Delce, Jimmy Taylor, Sal Martinez and Eric Tovar accounting for the winners' runs.

Hernandez scored twice for his team and Gaylon Rodriguez added one.

Red and blue card kickball

Eric Tovar's kickball team nipped Wayne Braziel's team 4-3 as J.R. Romero and Juan Robledo came in once each and Toby Delce scored twice.

Braziel, Jerry Cervantez and Gabriel Rios contributed the runs to the Braziel unit.

Eastwood leads PGA tourney

CROMWELL, Conn. (AP) — Bob Eastwood, looking to end a five-year winless drought, found his putting touch in shooting a 64 on Friday and took a one-stroke lead in the Greater Hartford Open.

"I'm hitting my putts solid and the speed is pretty good and a lot of them are going in," Eastwood said. "It seems like I'm getting better every day."

Eastwood one-putted nine greens, including three of the last four, in completing 36 holes at 9-under-par 131.

First-round leader Chris

Perry, with a 69, and Steve Jones, who shot 68, lead a group at 132.

Eastwood, 44, said his short iron play was a key to the round. He put four approaches within six feet of the hole. A three-time tournament winner, Eastwood says putting troubles have prevented him winning since the 1985 Byron Nelson Classic.

Eastwood, playing in the first group of the day, said he began working out of his putting problems at the end of last year and has continued to improve.

"It wasn't mental, it was physical. I just couldn't get the putter back there in the right position," he said.

Nolan Henke, one of the last golfers on the course, had putts for birdie on three of the last four holes to tie Eastwood, but failed to make any. He shot a 67 for 132. Also one shot out were Brad Fabel, who had a 65, and Billy Mayfair, who shot a second 66.

GHO defending champion Paul Azinger shot 68 again and was at 136.

Golfer makes pair of aces

ANNA, Texas (AP) — Until this week, Thomas Vardasco "Tony" Robello was known for another game. But on Thursday, the 79-year-old Robello made his mark in golf by making two holes-in-one in a single round.

Robello has been in baseball for 61 years and gained recognition as the man who signed Hall of Fame catcher Johnny Bench to his first contract with the Cincinnati Reds.

Robello pitched from 1933 to 1934 with the Reds.

Robello's first hole at the Hurricane Country Club came on the 179-yard, par-3 No. 5. The ace with a 3-wood was the first he had made in his life.

Nine holes later, he got his second career hole-in-one. He used a 4-wood to ace the 151-yard, par-3 No. 14.

'Confused person...'

Zambian coup said false

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Soldiers captured an army lieutenant today after he announced on state radio that President Kenneth Kaunda had been toppled. The radio said later the claim was made by a "confused person." The southcentral African nation has been hit this week by its worst urban violence since independence. At least 23 people have been slain this week in clashes with paramilitary police and soldiers. Student-led riots began Monday after the government more than doubled the price of corn meal, Zambia's staple food, from $2.79 per 55-pound bag to $6.56. On Friday, Kaunda announced that a national referendum on whether to restore multiparty government would be held Oct. 17. Kaunda imposed a one-party state in 1972 after leading the British colony of Northern Rhodesia to independence as Zambia in 1964.

In today's incident, the speaker on state radio, who identified himself in repeated broadcasts as Lt. Mwamba Luchembe of the Signals Corps, was escorted from the studio about 90 minutes after his broadcast began.

A man wearing the insignia and uniform of a Zambian lieutenant was seen by reporters being marched from the Radio Zambia studio on the capital's outskirts to an army vehicle.

SHS grad named to chair section

Susie Mason has been selected to be chairman of the landmen's section for the Rocky Mountain Mineral Law Foundation's 36th annual institute to be held in Santa Fe, N.M., on July 19-21.

Mason, the daughter of Charlene and Marvis Hendrix of Snyder, lives in Reno, Nev., with her husband, Randy. They have resided there since 1985. She is the pianist for the Reno Christian Fellowship where she also teaches a women's Bible Study Group.

The Rocky Mountain Mineral Law Foundation is an educational organization dedicated to the study of the legal system and issues affecting natural resources law. The governing organizations include 29 law schools, 12 bar associations, 12 mining associations, and seven oil and gas associations covering all of the western United States. The annual institute is attended by approximately 1,000-1,500 western states attorneys, landmen and other natural resources practitioners.

Mason is the land manager of Independence Mining Co., Inc., formerly Freeport-McMoRan Gold Co., in Reno and has worked there since 1982. She is a 1968 graduate of Snyder High School and a graduate of North Texas State University (BS, 1972) and Baylor University (MA, 1973) majoring in oral communication. Prior to her employment with Independence, Mason worked for Occidental Minerals Corporation.

SUSIE MASON

Mason is also a member of the American Association of Petroleum Landmen (AAPL), the Rocky Mountain Association of Mineral Landmen and the Nevada Landmen's Association. She is a past president, vice president and secretary of Nevada Landmen's Association.

She is also certified professional landmen through AAPL and currently serves as chairman of the AAPL Mining and Geothermal Committee. She is also a member of the Board of Directors of Minerals Exploration Coalition and chairman of MEC's Mining Law Committee. She is currently serving as an associate of the Public Land Subcommittee for the American Mining Co.

TOKYO (AP) — A semi-official photographer may be banned from the Imperial Palace for snapping a candid picture of the newly married Princess Kiko smoothing her husband's hair, officials said today.

To Western eyes, the picture — which appeared in all of Japan's major newspapers today — might have seemed to capture a spontaneous and tender gesture by a new bride.

But officials of the Imperial Household Agency, the caretakers of the royal family, were horrified.

Prince Aya, 24, the youngest son of Emperor Akihito, married graduate student Kiko Kawashima, 23, in an elaborate ceremony on Friday. At an official picture-taking session after the wedding, the newlyweds were preparing to pose with Aya's parents, Emperor Akihito and Empress Michiko.

The prince's hair was a little ruffled, and the princess smoothed it.

Photographer Toshiaki Nakayama, one of two palace-authorized photographers present, snapped a picture of the fleeting gesture before taking the official portrait.

Palace officials called it a betrayal of trust.

"To make an extreme analogy, it's only natural, for instance, that one wouldn't take a picture (of the prince) with his pants down," said an agency official, speaking on condition of anonymity.

The agency said it was "uncalled-for to release a picture that was taken by mistake."

But Nakayama defended the photo. If it was taken "at the wrong time," he asked, "why didn't the chamberlains standing at my side say something then?"

Nakayama was barred from covering official post-wedding events today, and the agency said the ban may be permanent.

Nakayama said the photo was the first commemorative picture of the royal family in more than 30 years with the subjects not standing fully face front.

Princess Kiko, the daughter of a college professor, is only the second commoner ever to marry into the imperial family.

Wright prepares for Miss Texas Pageant

Wright, who loves to sing, will perform "Do Ya" by K.T. Oslin. In a May 13 Scurry County Folks story, Wright said that while "winning is a goal she is trying to keep a positive attitude."
Wright's family encourages her to "do the best she can" and "not expect any more from herself."
Wright entered her first pageant at age five. She won $50 and a stuffed animal.

She also entered the Texas Junior Miss Pageant as a teenager. It has now been retitled Texas Young Woman of the Year. She won a college scholarship that year.
Additional scholarship monies as well as the prestige of doing well are again at stake for the Miss Texas Pageant, but regardless of how Wright fares she won't regret her participation because pageant competition has helped her to learn "to deal with stress" and she has gained a confidence about herself "that she has never had before."

Wright has one more year at WTC and then she intends to transfer to Texas Tech University where she will pursue a degree in elementary education with a music specialty.
While in Fort Worth, Wright may be reached at this address: Sarena Wright; c/o Miss Texas Pageant; Holiday Inn North Convention Center; 2540 Meacham Blvd.; Fort Worth, Tex. 76106-2311.

Police officer kills man wielding commando knife

HOUSTON (AP) — A Houston police officer fatally shot a 27-year-old man who was armed with a two pistols, a commando knife and a set of nunchakus, a report said.
Izzy Johnson was shot three times early Friday after he brandished the knife and stepped toward the officer.
Police found the other weapons after they examined Johnson's clothing. Nunchakus are two pieces of wood linked together by a rope or chain and are used in martial arts.
Johnson was struck in the arm and the lower torso and was dead at the scene.

"He didn't stop but made a mental note of it," Doyle told the Houston Chronicle.
Johnson's grandmother told Walsh that her grandson was "acting crazy and that she couldn't control him," Doyle said.
After she described her grandson, Walsh realized that he was the man he had seen standing in the esplanade. Doyle said Walsh drove back to where Johnson was standing.

Trio arrested for shoplifting

Three women were arrested and charged with shoplifting about 2:41 p.m. Friday afternoon at Eckerd Drug in Varsity Square Shopping Center.
The three — ages 36, 28 and 14 — were charged with Class B theft.
At 5:49 p.m. in the 2200 Block of College, a 26-year-old was arrested on a DPS warrant out of Kerrville for speeding and failure to appear.
At 3:49 a.m. Saturday, a juvenile and a 31-year-old man were arrested for public intoxication at Town and Country Food Store at College Ave. and U.S. 84. The juvenile was released to his parents.

Noah

Mitchell, Nolan and Stonewall counties. All proceeds from the melodrama and dinner will go to the project.
This is the second year a melodrama has been planned as a major fundraiser for Noah Project. Last year's production, held in Towle Park Barn, attracted a full house and officials are hoping this year's show will be equally successful.

By Shirley A. Gorman

If not for World War II, Muriel Mapes, 70, of Snyder might not have met her husband, Bill Mapes, who retired in 1986 after serving as assistant director of maintenance at Western Texas College for 15 years.

Muriel met her then future husband through a brother who was in the service during the Second World War. He showed Mapes a picture of his sister and from then on the two corresponded. Mapes was sent overseas and Muriel ended up joining the Waves, which at one time was the female branch of the U.S. Navy.

"I was working in Connecticut in 1944 and when I saw a recruiter I picked up an application and filled it out," Mapes explained.

Since she had three brothers who were then in the service she said she felt it was the right thing for her to do. Today only two of her brothers are still living.

While in the Waves, Muriel was classified as a Pharmacist's Mate 3rd Class.

After "joining up" she soon found herself at Hunter College in New York City where she underwent six weeks of basic training.

The Waves in training were assigned to dormitory rooms in groups of four and they wore "old ladies' shoes," as Muriel refers to them today.

She remembers getting up at 5:30 a.m. every day and taking a lot of orders during outdoor training from a "tough Marine sergeant who barked orders while he sat under a tree."

In addition, she said they did a lot of singing — especially "Anchors Aweigh" — while they marched.

During this period, Muriel also remembers working for a Jewish doctor in Long Island as she learned how to be a dental assistance. She had applied for secretarial work but was pegged as a dental assistant instead.

After completing basic training, Muriel was sent to Oklahoma

City, Okla., and since she is a native of Lewiston, Maine, she said she felt like she had come "to the end of the world" when she arrived in Oklahoma.

One of the hardest things for her to get used to was the weather. It wasn't long before a tornado hit in the vicinity and numerous dust storms made their presence known. Muriel said the barracks had "paper thin" walls and there were no curtains on the windows either. She found the weather unnerving, but everyone else was used to it.

In Norman, Okla., she worked as a dental assistant and often pulled night duty. She also took her turn at giving shots to cadets who were training to become pilots.

The base at Norman was divided into North base where flyers were trained and South Base on which the hospital was located.

Muriel had signed up for overseas duty and at that time Waves were being sent to Pearl Harbor, but the war ended before that could happen for her. She remained in the Waves until 1946 and after she was discharged she and Bill were married in July of that year. She was discharged at Memphis, Tenn., and lived for a brief time with an aunt in San Angelo before her marriage took place.

Muriel said she never regretted her brief stint as a Wave because she learned how to be independent. "It gave me a sense of security because I knew I had to learn to do things myself," she said.

As newlyweds, the Mapeses first home was in Ballinger, then they lived in Maine before moving back to Texas. They arrived in Snyder in 1949 where Bill worked as an electrician for Fagin Electric and later Boss Electric for about 16 years. He also owned his own shop for several years before taking a position at Western Texas College.

Muriel did not work outside the home until their three daughters were older. Dora Ann Hale lives in Florida. Marilu Trochta lives in Victoria and Betty Sorrells lives in Ira.

They also have seven grandchildren.

When Muriel worked she held a variety of jobs but perhaps the one she liked best of all was when she sewed for the public, not only because she loved to sew but because it gave her a chance to be home when her girls were home.

Some of her earlier jobs included working for Renal Rosson who was an attorney and Boss Electric which at one time also employed her husband.

She sewed for the public for about 10 years.

When Aileen's Inc., which produced women's sportswear, opened a factory in Snyder, representatives of the then fledgling company asked Muriel if she wanted to sew for them. She said yes and promptly went to work making women's blouses.

When Aileen's closed she went to work for Walls, retiring in 1982. (see FOLKS page 2B)

In spite of her training as a dental assistant during World War II, she said she did not want to continue in that line of work. That was why she chose a variety of other jobs instead. Branching out into sewing was easy for her since she had always liked to sew. Muriel's mother did not sew so an aunt taught her how to make lace handkerchiefs when she was only seven and years later while in high school, a neighbor taught her how to sew.

During the years she sewed for the public, Muriel said she made many articles of clothing, but wedding dresses were a special favorite, even though they were just about the hardest items to sew. A favorite piece is a chiffon velvet wedding dress she made many years ago.

One year, Muriel said she also helped to make cheerleading outfits.

She is a member of the Snyder chapter of the American Legion as is her husband, and both have been active in the organization.

She has always been active, but health problems have taken their toll on her and these days she is content to spend what time she can crocheting afghans which are eagerly sought after by family members — especially her daughters.

She also donates afghans to clubs, church groups and civic organizations to be used as fundraisers.

She considers crocheting easier than sewing. She has made numerous doilies and pot holders.

She said she likes to sit and crochet because it helps to pass the time and to keep her mind away from her health problems which began several years ago and have steadily worsened.

Thirty-eight years ago, Mrs. Mapes began to have trouble with kidney stones. She lost a kidney in the late 1970s and the second one four years ago. In addition, her bladder has also been removed.

Muriel explained that when her doctor told her the other kidney also had to be removed she was skeptical because she didn't think she could live without at least one kidney.

Due to her age and the fact that she had had at that time 13 surgeries in two years it was decided not to pursue a kidney transplant. The doctor said she did not have a very good chance to keep a transplanted kidney.

Instead she used to have to undergo dialysis three days a week for three hours each time. That meant three trips a week to Big Spring.

Then about 18 months ago her doctor arranged for her to be able to perform her own dialysis at home. Fluid is delivered monthly and she has a special apparatus which allows her to take care of herself at home.

Cost of medication ranges from $100-$300 a month.

She goes regularly for check ups and continues to do as much as she can. But she tires easily and that almost caused her to miss a surprise birthday party held in her honor at the American Legion Hall.

It was set up for her birthday — May 16 — but as Muriel and her husband had to go to Big Spring that day, she was tired and decided to skip going to the hall.

The party was put on hold for a day and the next night the Mapeses went to the hall to play dominoes. Since she was hungry, Muriel said she kept asking for some chips to eat, but everyone kept putting her off. Then a little while later she was taken into another part of the hall "to get a bite to eat" and that is when she saw everything laid out for her party.

She said it really was a surprise party too because she had no idea what had been planned for her.

It has been about nine years since Muriel has visited in Maine, but last summer one of her sisters came to Snyder for a visit.

Even though a native of Maine, Muriel considers Snyder home now. She is of Canadian French descent. Her father and her mother's parents were all born in Canada. She said every time she tells people that they have a hard time believing it.

Restaurant features catalog specialties

NEW YORK (AP) — The Oyster Bar & Restaurant's mail-order catalog features smoked brook trout, smoked salmon, smoked sturgeon and Imperial Balik Salmon. These smoked specialties are produced in the restaurant's on-premise smokehouse, located in New York City's Grand Central Station.

The catalog also offers membership in the "Cheesecake Lovers Club." Members receive a fresh, fruit-filled cheesecake every other month for 1 year. The cheesecakes are baked in the restaurant's on-premise bake shop. The cheesecakes are available in raspberry, peach, strawberry, apricot, hazelnut and cranberry.

For information, write to: Oyster Bar-Restaurant Catalog, Grand Central Station, New York, NY 10017, or call toll-free 1-800-622-7775.

Kicking the habit

NEW YORK (AP) — About 90 percent of the estimated 53 million smokers in the United States would like to stop smoking, according to Health Magazine.

It says commercial programs and quit-smoking aids are a $100 million industry.

But nicotine, a compound in tobacco, makes quitting tough. Nicotine has been shown to improve memory and concentration, raise tolerance for pain, reduce anxiety and curb appetite. However, the benefits are not worth the health risks to many people who do not smoke, the magazine says.

Couple unite in formal ceremony

Sonya Dawn McDonald became the bride of Kyle Ray Freeman at 7 p.m. May 19 at First Christian Church in a double-ring ceremony officiated by Larry Hood of North Richland Hills.

The bride is the daughter of Joe and Linda Heathington of Buffalo Gap. The groom is the son of Charles and Durell Freeman of Snyder.

Small, floating votive candles adorned with ivy greenery surrounding the altar. Spiral candelabras with ivy greenery and black bows decorated each side of the altar. Black bows with gold beads along with brass candles markers decorated the pews.

Gary Davis of Ozona sang "Sunrise, Sunset" while the mothers were escorted down the aisle to light the unity candle. The rest of the wedding party, excluding the bride, entered while "Looking Through the Eyes of Love" was played. "I'll Still Be Loving You" by Restless Heart played as the couple lit the unity candle. After the bride and groom exchanged vows, Davis sang "The Lord's Prayer." The couple left the church to "Trumpet Voluntary" by J. Clark.

Lance Street, cousin of the bride, lit candles before the ceremony.

Given away by her parents, the bride wore a full-length strapless sheath gown of white lace which she designed. The lace was heavily beaded with white pearls and iridescent sequins. She wore long, fingerless evening gloves of lace matching her gown. The detachable cathedral-length train of silk woven taffeta featured beaded trim.

The bride chose a beaded pillbox hat highlighted by a fingertip veil. She carried a bouquet of white roses and stephonitis on a white Bible.

Matron of honor was Linda Lusk of Palo Pinto. Maid of honor was Anna Bozarth of Abilene. Bridesmaids were Tina Robinson of Bedford, Shane Smith of Shawnee, Okla., Kristy Thompson of Abernathy and Gayla Clifford of Lubbock.

They wore full-length, strapless sheath gowns of black velvet featuring gold lame' accordion-pleated fans attached at the waist and crossing the bustline and again attaching at the hip. Long, fingerless gloves of black velvet completed the look. They carried long white candles with black bows and gold beads.

Charles Freeman served his son as best man. Groomsmen were Rick Freeman of Snyder, Mike Freeman of San Angelo, Charles Bollinger of Snyder, Mark Hruska of San Angelo and Tom Clark of Dallas.

They wore black, classic-cut tuxedos with gold ties and cummerbunds.

The groom wore a black Pierre Cardin full-dress tuxedo with tails featuring a white vest and a white tie.

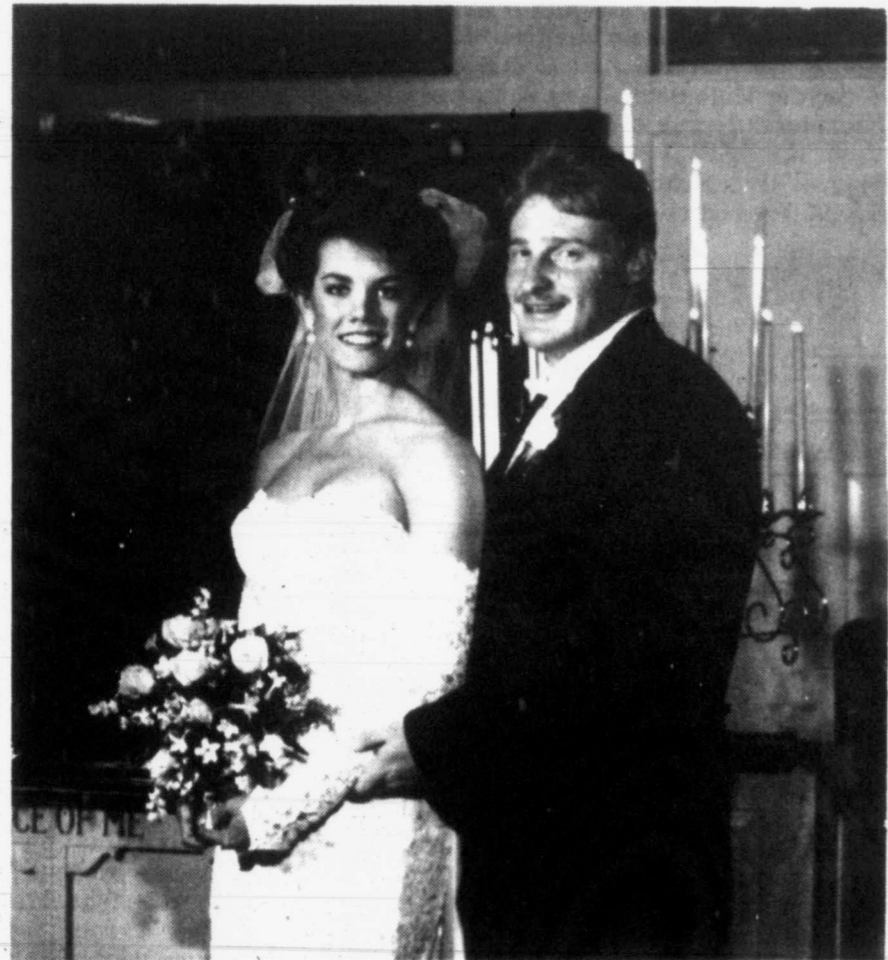

Ushers were Lance Street, cousin of the bride; Kirk Brite, cousin of the bride; and Heath Hodges, nephew of the groom.

A reception followed in the fellowship hall of the church.

The bride's table was covered with white lace decorated by a gold punch bowl and the bride's bouquet. The ivory cake featured roses, stephonitis and calle lillies with grape vines. The table was accented with gold flatware, crystal mint dishes and black finger napkins.

The groom's table was covered with a white cloth on top of a black skirting. The focal point of the table was the black candle in the brass holder of a hurricane globe. The three-layer cake was chocolate and covered with a waterfall of chocolate-covered strawberries accented with grapes. A good coffee service and gold flatware also adorned the table.

SWIMMER'S EAR

When water is trapped in the ear, how can you avoid the common summer ailment called "swimmer's ear"? Carefully squeeze a medicine dropperful of rubbing alcohol into the ear canal to dry out the ear and kill bacteria and fungus. Some physicians recommend adding an equal portion of white vinegar to the alcohol eardrops.

Wood, Moore married in evening ceremony

AMARILLO — Julie Ann Wood became the bride of Mitchell Morgan Moore June 23 at 7 p.m. at Central Church of Christ. Scotty Ratliff of Austin Avenue Church of Christ in Brownwood officiated the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Leon and Marilyn Wood of Amarillo. The groom is the son of Glenda Moore and the late Dusty Moore of Brownwood and is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. C.E. Moore of Snyder.

Decorating the church were candelabras covered in ivy and fresh flowers marking the pews.

Stephen Bailey of Bedford sang solos of "Treasure in You," "Somewhere in the World," "Devoted to You," "Goodnight Kiss" and "I'll be Here."

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She chose an off-the-shoulder gown of off-white shantung silk featuring a fitted beaded and lace bodice complimented with a small bow in front. The back was highlighted by an over-sized bow and buttons.

Beth McClellan, of Houston served the bride as matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Dee Ann Comolli of Brownwood, Shirlene Dye of Amarillo, Carmella Gullede of Lovington, N.M., Jena Jones of Abilene and Lori Sartain of DeSoto. There were attired in dresses of Waverly floral print with sweetheart necklines. They carried bouquets of loosely gathered fresh flowers.

Lacye Littlefield, cousin of the bride, was the flower girl. Brad Littlefield of Amarillo, cousin of the bride, escorted in the flower girl and cut the ribbon marking the parents aisles.

The groom was escorted down the aisle by his nephew Will Cottle of Austin.

Curt McClellan of Houston served as best man. Groomsmen were Damon Edwards of Abilene, Steve Miller of Dallas, Jon Riggs of Sweetwater, Alan Wood, brother of the bride, of Albuquerque and Brad Yurcho of Dallas.

Ushers were Stephen Bailey of Bedford, Chris Doggett of Frienswood, Craid Fisher of Fort Worth, Michael Moore, cousin of the groom, of Graham and Mike Trader of Amarillo.

Male members of the wedding party wore Christian Dior tuxedos featuring black tails and black vests and bow ties.

Kaaki Garner of Lubbock and Kathi Demet of Amarillo registered guests.

A reception following the ceremony was held at the church.

The wedding cake was strawberry with strawberry filling and off-white icing. Fresh flowers adorned the three layer cake.

Heather Persful of San Antonio, Kristal Mooneyham of Abilene and April Helderbrand of Dallas served at the table.

The grooms table featured cheesecake and coffee. Leslie Wilborn of Denton, Toni Provenza of Dallas and Ann Moore, cousin of the groom, served at the table.

Following a wedding trip to Grand Cayman Islands, the couple makes their home in Houston.

The bride is a graduate of Amarillo High School and Abilene Christian University with a bachelor's degree in speech therapy.

The groom is a graduate of Brownwood High School and Abilene Christian University with a bachelor's degree in accounting. He is employed by Price Waterhouse Accounting Firm in Houston.

MARRIAGE ANNOUNCED — Marshal and Shirley Burrus of Snyder along with Jack and Diane Sanders of San Marcos announce the marriage of their children, Randy Lee and Sandy Diane. They couple was married June 16 in San Marcos. The groom is a graduate of Snyder High School and Southwest Texas State University with a bachelor's degree in animal science. He is employed by American Veterinary Supply in San Antonio. The bride is a graduate of San Marcos High School and cosmetology school. The couple resides in San Marcos. (Private Photo)

WATER WAYS
Water is not mentioned in the USDA dietary guidelines, the American Heart Association guidelines nor the American Cancer Society guidelines. However, water is as important to your health and well-being as the food you eat. Here are some water facts:

— The human body contains 40-50 quarts of water.

— Two to three quarts of water are lost each day through perspiration, urine and breathing and must be replaced.

— As little as a three percent reduction of your body weight due to water loss can affect your strength and endurance.

— A 15-20 percent water loss can be fatal.

Additionally, water performs many important functions in the body. Water quenches your thirst and helps the digestive process. Water in the form of perspiration, sets up a self-cooling system for you during exercise. It carries nutrients to the cells and removes waste products. A healthy complexion depends on water-enhanced skin tone. Joints are lubricated by water.

On the curative side, water can often relieve headaches and decrease premenstrual bloating. And for those who wish to maintain or lose weight, drinking large glasses of water during the day and right before meals can help curb appetite and avoid impulse snacking. Alcoholic beverage consumption, which should always be done in moderation, should include other liquids to dilute the effect of alcohol.

Nutritionist continue to advise everyone to drink six to eight glasses of water a day, and they mean water. Caffeine or alcohol-containing beverages are not recommended because they are diuretics that will act to remove water from the body. Other drinks such as regular soft drinks and milk shakes are not recommended in excess because of their high caloric count.

It is important to increase your fluid consumption in situations that stress the body like exercise, fever, infections or even travel to high altitudes. Don't rely on thirst to tell you when your water level is low. Drink fluids before, during and after exercise. If you are ill or have traveled to a higher altitude than your body is accustomed to, drink at least two glasses of water a day more than usual.

Drinking sufficient water will help you look and feel your best. Remember not to neglect water as an integral component of your dietary plans and practices.

Temples are treasures

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The two temples of Abu Simbel, built beside the Nile River by Pharaoh Ramses II in the 1200s B.C. are among the world's treasured antiquities.

The stone temples include four seated figures of Ramses II, each 67 feet high, and two of Queen Nefertari, one of his wives.

In the mid-1960s, when the Aswan High Dam was built on the Nile, the site of the temples was due to be flooded to form a lake. Engineers cut the old temples, extending 200 feet into the mountainside, into huge blocks.

Shopping pays when buying CDs

BY CHANGING TIMES
The Kiplinger Magazine
For AP Newsfeatures
CDs That Won't Let You Down:
More money is invested in certificates of deposits each April (the anniversary of prior IRA contributions and tax-refund deposits) and each October (the anniversary of the 1987 stock market crash) than during any other month. However, the timing is poor for holders of $180 billion in CDs that fell due this April. Short-term interest rates have fallen for almost a year, and six-month CDs recently yielded an average of about 7.75 percent.

Rate-shopping pays. The highest rates are 8.5 percent or better. Newspapers, including the Wall Street Journal, list high-yielding CDs each week. Given the weakness in yields, keep maturities of new CDs relatively short: six months or a year.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED — Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Davis of Snyder announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Denise Davis, to Scott Berry, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Berry of Bossier City, La. The couple plans to wed Sept. 8 at 2:30 p.m. at First Methodist Church. (Harley Bynum Photo)

But your rate-shopping efforts are wasted if you send money to an institution that shuts down a few months later, because you'll probably lose the high rate you thought you had locked in. When a thrift is sold or its deposits transferred elsewhere, the new thrift or bank can lower CD rates.

At the majority of savings and loans closed by the Resolution Trust Corp., higher-than-average CD rates have been lowered. Depositors get two weeks' notice and are allowed to move their money to another institution without penalty. If the S&L is simply liquidated, you earn interest at the stated rate up to the date of liquidation, then get back your principal plus any accumulated interest.

Staying away from S&L's is not the answer. Many of the top-yielding CDs listed in a recent issue of 100 Highest Yields are at New England banks that get no stars on the zero-to-three-star rating system developed by Veribanc in Wakefield, Mass. Zero, which is the lowest rating, indicates the bank is undercapitalized or suffering substantial losses. As with S&L's, if a bank is sold or its assets transferred, CD rates can be lowered.

Pay Phone Alert:

Now there are two good reasons to jot down the equal-access codes of a couple of long-distance companies and keep them handy.

The first: to avoid being gouged when you make a long distance call from a pay phone. Phones at many restaurants, gas stations, shopping malls, airports and other public places, and closed-system phones in hotels, hospitals and universities, are connected to "alternative operator services." They often charge two to six times as much as the major long-distance companies for operator-assisted calls, such as calling-card and collect calls.

Restaurant, airport, and other proprietors receive a commission from such services on all phone calls made through them. Of course, the customer really pays the commission — and then some — in the form of outrageously high rates.

Finding the killing lead

Declarer was unlucky. Not that four hearts was such a great contract. Many times declarer would have to lose two tricks with today's trump-suit combination. But the trumps did behave well. The bad luck that declarer experienced was that West, on opening lead, did not hold Q-J-10-x of spades. With that holding, West would have led a top spade. Instead, West led the king of clubs, and that was enough to set four hearts. Declarer won the ace and played ace and a heart, but East won the king and played queen and a club to give West a ruff. What clues did West have that helped him find the bold lead of the club king?

First of all, the opponents' bidding indicated that East held a few high cards. (Remember, North had only invited game with two no-trump.) Next, a lead of a spade or a diamond was not particularly attractive. Finally, if the king of clubs was successful, it would almost surely set the game contract. Partner needed only the club ace. If he lacked the club ace, he might have the queen plus a quick trump entry (either ace or king). If West himself held more high cards, it would have been riskier to lead the club king. But East was marked with about 9-11 high-card points by North's invitational bidding, justifying the lead.

Group offers support for inmates' families

BIG SPRING, Texas (AP) — The wives and families of inmates at the Federal Prison Camp are a forgotten group, often left alone to deal with difficult situations and feelings of anger and confusion, said the coordinator of a Big Spring support group.

The wife of a man incarcerated at the camp said weekly group meetings are one of the few places she can find someone who understands.

Loved Ones of Prisoners (LOOPS) meets Saturdays in Big Spring at various locations depending on available space. Wives, parents, children and other relatives of federal prisoners gather while in town for visits at the prison.

"We talk about whatever they want to talk about," said Pam Schlauch, volunteer coordinator of the group.

"Sometimes we tell the new ones about the rules of visitation or details they don't find out at the prison. We try to help them find things they need or a place to stay while they're in town."

At this point, the responsibility for the group's organization and week-to-week operation falls mainly on Ms. Schlauch's shoulders. She drives from her Odessa home to Big Spring each week for meetings, sometimes traveling back and forth at several other times to pick up members at the airport in Midland.

For the families of prisoners, Ms. Schlauch's work is not in vain, said one group member.

"LOOPS is a wonderful place to get some understanding, meet people who are in the same situation and share your fears," said Ruby Scudder of San Antonio, whose husband has spent the past two years as an inmate of the prison camp.

She said the group meetings have been virtually her only outlet for the fear and worry she often feels.

"Usually you get into this situation and have nothing to compare it to. There's the financial burden, maybe you are supporting kids or even your husband while he's in there. Many people can't tell anyone about what happened, much less what they're going through."

Mrs. Scudder cares for her mother, who has Alzheimer's Disease, while working full time and making two weekend visits a month to Big Spring.

Through another LOOPS member, she met a local couple who welcome her into their home when she comes to town.

Group members, mainly inmates' wives, sometimes travel hundreds of miles to visit prisoners, Ms. Schlauch said. Planes, buses, gasoline for cars, motel rooms and food can get very expensive.

"These are women who may have spent everything they had to try to keep this guy out of jail," she said. "Sometimes they just don't have the extra money."

LOOPS tries to arrange help such as car-pooling and motel room sharing. An emergency contact list helps travelers in case of car problems on the road.

Ms. Schlauch said one immediate goal is to find more local families who would house group members.

"It has to be a good match. We have to screen them both very well," she said. "but I know there are more families out there who would be willing to open their homes."

There are many people who may consciously or not, blame the family member, as if they had some part in the inmate's crime, Ms. Schlauch said.

"Maybe (the incarcerated person) deserves what he got, but not the family. The 3-year-old daughter doesn't deserve it," Ms. Schlauch said.

"Once you get involved (in the group), you meet the people and they are so great. They are just like anyone else. Any one of us could have to deal with something like what they're going through."

"To make things worse, the divorce rate is very high. It seems to happen usually two months after (the prisoner) goes in or two months after he's let out," she said.

Seminars on marriage and "life outside" could help ex-cons and their families work things out, she said.

Assistant Warden Anne Beasley said the prison holds such seminars twice a year, offering about 12 inmates and their wives the chance to spend some time focusing on their relationship.

The support group, Ms. Beasley said, though not associated with the prison, seems to serve a worthwhile purpose.

"As I understand it, it is a kind of 'mutual support' system," she said. She was the guest speaker at one meeting this year.

Ms. Schlauch said there is no easy way to contact family members about the group because of prison confidentiality rules. She is trying to develop a pamphlet which could be distributed to new inmates to let them know the group exists and how to get in touch.

Sometimes there will be five or 10 people at the weekly meeting, sometimes as many as 20 or as few as one person, Ms. Schlauch said. Since prisoners are allowed four visits in a month, many out-of-town family members will travel to Big Spring twice a month for a weekend, as Mrs. Scudder does.

What the families of prisoners really want, Ms. Schlauch said, is to talk to someone who will not condemn them.

"They just want some understanding," she said.

The wife of an ex-inmate said she agrees.

"It just helped so much to know there is someone there, someone else in your situation," said Betty Williams of Garland. She attended LOOPS meetings during her husband's 18 months of incarceration.

"The people at LOOPS are just committed to lending that support."

Others did not seem to understand the difficulties she faced, Mrs. Williams said. She was fired from a job when her supervisors discovered her husband was facing a jail sentence.

"'Criminal' is a mind set," she said. "Most often it's much harder on the family left behind than the man in prison."

Loved Ones of Prisoners was one group of people she could count on, Mrs. Williams said.

"In our world, we get so caught up in everyday living," Mrs. Williams said. "It's extremely valuable and so rare to find people with a heart. They were a group where that characteristic was always present."

People interested in LOOPS can contact Pam Schlauch in Odessa at 915-333-3526.

PUBLIC NOTICE

Scurry COUNTY

TEXAS COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

Scurry County is currently making plans to apply to Texas Department of Commerce for Texas Community Development Program funds. Two public hearings to solicit the input of the citizens in the preparation of the Community Development Program will be conducted.

The first public hearing will be held at Hermleigh Community Center at 6:00 p.m., July 5, 1990 to discuss housing and community development needs, use of past TCDP awards, amount of funds available and eligible activities. The County encourages individual citizens and citizen's groups to make their views known at these public hearings and welcomes the full participation of its citizens in the development of this TCDP application. General information on the TCDP program will be available. Citizen comments may be delivered in advance to the County Courthouse at any time. Groups representative of persons of low and moderate income may request technical assistance in developing TCDP proposals by contacting the person listed below.

The second public hearing will be held at Scurry County Courthouse at 5:15 p.m., July 12, 1990 to allow affected citizens an opportunity to comment on the proposed project, amount of funds requested and estimated amount proposed for activities that will benefit low/moderate income persons.

More detailed information on proposed activities, amounts of funds and proposed location of activities will be available for inspection at the County Courthouse after the second hearing. Handicapped individuals who may have difficulty in attending this meeting should contact the County Courthouse to arrange for assistance. Para residentes necesitados de interpretes, favor de comunicarse con la municipalidad antes de las audiencias publicas.

More funds okayed for S&L probe

WASHINGTON (AP) — Legislation that would triple federal spending to pursue savings and loan fraud won unanimous endorsement from members of a House Banking panel worried about angry taxpayers.

The subcommittee on financial institutions, chaired by Rep. Frank Annunzio, D-Ill., voted 45-0 in favor of the bill backed by the Bush administration, to make it easier for the government to prosecute S&L fraud and recover swindled money.

The measure authorizes spending of $152 million a year in 1991 and 1992; $136 million by the Justice Department and $16 million by the Internal Revenue Service. That compares with the $50 million being spent this year.

Bush, in a campaign-style appearance at the Justice Department last week, had sought only $100 million.

Assistant Attorney General Edward S.G. Dennis Jr., testifying to Annunzio's panel before the vote on the bill, refused to endorse the higher amount, but assured members, "We can spend it responsibly."

The legislation also would create a new federal crime: concealing assets from banking regulators. It would give prosecutors authority to seek court-approved wiretaps to investigate bank fraud. And, it would give regulators the power to undo personal asset transfers by white-collar criminals trying to avoid liability for abuses at financial institutions.

Meeting beneath a huge banner reading "Put the S&L Crooks in Jail," several panel members noted growing anger among taxpayers about the thrift mess.

"This is an election year," Annunzio warned. "If you have a challenger, he is going to try to make an issue of the S&L scandal. He is going to try to paint you with a brush. We all are in that same position."

Republicans pointed out that the banner had temporarily displaced a portrait of Fernand J. St Germain, D-R.I., former chairman of the House Banking Committee. St Germain was defeated for re-election in 1988 amid allegations he improperly benefited from investments arranged by savings and loan interests.

Dennis, who announced Thursday he was leaving as head of the Justice Department's criminal division to take a position with a Philadelphia law firm, defended the administration's anti-fraud effort. He noted that since 1987 it has convicted 52 S&L defendants in the Dallas area alone and said 530 failed institutions are under investigation, up from 206 in 1986.

Rep. Stephen Neal, D-N.C., countered that the department has received more than 21,000 referrals of suspected fraud cases "which are just lying there."

On new taxes... Bush explains switch

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Bush said he jettisoned his no-new-taxes campaign pledge in hopes of reaching an accord with the Democrat-controlled Congress on a plan to reduce the deficit and reinvigorate the economy.

"I knew I'd catch some flak on this decision," said Bush, who has been sharply criticized by many lawmakers in his own Republican Party. "But I've got to do what I think is right."

Speaking at a White House news conference, Bush said budget talks with congressional leaders are "a make or break effort at responsible government." He said the negotiations are going well and expressed hope there could be an agreement within a few weeks.

Bush won the White House in 1988 by campaigning as an ardent foe of new taxes. "Read my lips, no new taxes," was the most memorable line of his successful drive for the presidency.

But the president likened himself to Abraham Lincoln, "I'll think anew," he said, when faced with a deficit he said was worse than "any of us visualized" when he made his pledge.

Many Republican congressmen have made it clear they feel betrayed by the president's reversal on a winning campaign issue.

"Arrows have been flying, back, front, sideways, but that's what I get paid for," he said. "I can totally empathize with what they're going through."

Bush's declaration earlier this week that "tax revenue increases" were an essential element of any deficit-reduction package jump-started budget negotiations with Congress.

The president spoke shortly before leaving for a brief vacation at Kennebunkport, Maine. Next week, he travels to London for a meeting with NATO leaders, then on to Houston for the annual economic summit of industrialized nations.

Asked about a Western package of economic aid for the Soviet Union, Bush cited "the difficulties we have" with such a proposal. "There has got to be economic reform there ... all kinds of changes I believe (Soviet President Mikhail S.) Gorbachev wants to see take place. But they have to be in place in order for aid to go forward."

Bush also said he was reviewing a letter from Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir proposing severe restrictions on which Palestinians that Jerusalem would negotiate with.

"I'm concerned about a deadlock in the peace process," he said. "There's got to be discussion with the Palestinians."

Bush suspended an 18-month dialogue with the Palestine Liberation Organization last week until the PLO condemns a failed terrorist raid on an Israeli beach.

The president also defended his son Neil, whose connections with a failed Colorado savings and loan have come under scrutiny by federal regulators and congressional investigators. "I have — what dad wouldn't — full confidence in the integrity and honor of my son," he said.

I can think of no topic more calculated to pique the interest of the over-65 set than bowel habits. It is a subject of general concern and wonder, one that takes up an inordinate amount of energy and attention. Television spots endlessly tout the advantages of bran fiber and the scores of laxatives without which, we're assured, our lives would become miserable and unmanageable.

The Eskimos use a long and descriptive list of phrases to describe what we recognize simply as "snow." In a similar vein, our modern culture seems determined — if not by figures of speech, at least by national compulsion — to focus less on the external environment than on the mysterious internal workings of the colon.

In what must constitute the ultimate tribute to bathroom activities, three giant Japanese companies recently pooled their talents to market a high-tech toilet. While the user sits on it, the toilet checks his or her blood pressure and takes a urine sample. The results of about 130 tests, stored on an integrated circuit card, can be transmitted to a central computer for instant medical analysis. The toilet warms the seat, washes itself and can be operated by remote control. It costs $2,500, plus "optional equipment."

Is this preoccupation with bowel evacuation a new phenomenon? Evidently not, judging from a report in the medical journal Digestive Diseases and Sciences. The author, Dr. Amnon Sonnenberg (Gastroenterology Section, Veterans Administration Medical Center in Milwaukee), obtained statistics through the National Disease and Therapeutic Index, which has been summarizing since 1958 the frequency that U.S. physicians are visited for different diseases.

The doctor discovered that the average number of physician visits for constipation was 2.5 million per year, accounting for 1.2 percent of all trips to doctors' offices. Eighty-five percent of these patients received prescriptions for medication, the most common being cathartics and laxatives. Females were twice as likely to be constipated as were males; there was an age-related increase in the rate of bowel-oriented visits, with the steepest rise in patients over 60.

From 1958 to 1986, the rate of physician visits for constipation was unchanged. The author concluded that constipation appears to represent a permanent medical condition in U.S. adults that has not changed in about 30 years.

I suppose this type of study is comforting to even the most anal-compulsive scientist, but I really worry about how the data were obtained. No researcher has ever asked me about constipated patients. In addition, I've never met a doctor who was included in the study. And, really, if this information that important anyway? There seems to be no limit to the depths some researchers will plummet just to write a paper.

Certainly, constipation is no joke; it really is a problem in the elderly, whose bowel actions diminish with age/progressive inactivity and from the vast array of medications taken by aging adults, including diuretics and drugs for heart disease and high blood pressure. Yet, does constipation have to assume such prominent priority?

Most older patients quietly cope with the problem by increasing dietary fiber, eating potassium-rich foods (such as prunes and apricots), consuming extra fluids, getting more exercise and occasionally using non-habituating laxatives, such as magnesium, or glycerine suppositories. With drug-induced constipation, a change to less constipating alternatives often improves the situation.

Sluggish bowels are a part of growing old and can ordinarily be treated with the methods I mentioned — without a lot of card-table carping and luncheon confidences. Of course, people with severe constipation or recent changes in bowel habits, should check with their doctors. However, with so many more important health issues to worry about, I wonder if most of us wouldn't be happier devoting less attention to our lower intestines.

By Bill McClellan

Went to visit Uncle Elber the other day. Brought along my fishing pole.

When I saw his pickup wasn't there, I left a note on the porch and headed on down to the west tank.

I got about halfway there — you could make out the tank through the mesquite — when all of a sudden I saw a head sticking up out of the water and two arms flailing the sky. I just knew Uncle Elber had somehow slipped into the tank and was about to drown. I dropped my fishing pole and tackle box and went tearing down to the bank, all in a huff.

But it wasn't Elber at all. It was Crazy Joe Hetteremeyer. And by the time I got there, he didn't appear to be drowning, either. In fact, he looked right comfortable, laying up in the shallow part of the tank with just his head and shoulders out of the water and a couple of cold beers sticking out of an ice bucket which was floating along beside him. A little portable radio was playing "Dang me, dang, me. They oughta' take a rope an' hang me..."

I wanted to.

"Hey, Little Mac," he said. "Hot 'nough fer ya'?" And he took a big swig out of one of the beers.

"Joe," I said. "I thought you were drowning. What were you doing thrashing your arms all around like that?"

"Chasin' the flies away. They's a messin' with my bait," and he pointed to a wasp nest in an old dead tree limb dangling about three feet over his head. "I ain't sharin' my beer with no flies. Want a sip?"

I told him no, thanks, and passing up the obvious question, asked him did he know where Elber was?

"He went over to pick up ol' Smitty Thompson and get their fishin' stuff. I already got my place picked out."

So I saw.

Presently, I saw a wasp fly down to the lip of one of the beer cans and go down inside.

"Joe, there's a wasp dipping into your beer there," I said.

"Yep," he said, and he picked up the other beer, and took a swig.

"What's going on, Joe?" I asked, knowing better.

"Well, watch," he said. Presently, the wasp came back out and sat on the edge of the can, just sort of rocking back and forth. Joe he picked up the can, held it close to his lips and blew on the wasp. The wasp took off, made about three lazy spins and fell with a miniature splat, right in the water.

Joe gingerly picked him up, carefully threaded him on a hook and tossed it out in the water. That wasp kinda buzzed along the surface, hopping mad and wanting to fly away, but too drunk to do anything about it.

It didn't take 10 seconds for the wasp to attract a nice-sized bass, which Joe reeled in and put on his stringer.

Forty-five minutes went by and Joe had hauled in five bass and finished off three beers.

I hadn't caught a thing, and was getting pretty thirsty to boot.

Somewhat ticked off about Crazy Joe's success and him looking so cool all hunkered in the water there under that tree, I finally said, "Joe it's hotter than Hades out here and I believe if you don't mind, I'll take one of those beers. And now Joe, I don't want you to take offense, but I have to tell you there doesn't seem to be much skill to what you're doing. I'll admit it appears to work, but it works too well. Where's the sport in fishing like that?"

"Well," he said. "I tell ya'. There's not a lot of sport in the catchin'.

The sport's in the pickin'."

"In the picking?" I asked.

"Yeah," he said. "You said you wanted a beer. So pick one. But I better warn you. A wasp just flew down inside one of 'em."

"Well which one, Joe?" I asked.

But Joe just grinned, leaned back in the water and pulled his "I Got Mine In A Mine" black baseball cap down over his eyes. "I guess if I told you that, it wouldn't be sportin' like, now would it?"

FRIDAY

June 29

Cogdell Memorial Hospital board of managers approved the 1991 budget Thursday — a budget which calls for a reduction in ad valorem taxes from $488,000 to $225,000.

Snyder High School's Future Farmers of America (FFA) chapter has officially entered the sausage making business, it was reported Friday.

Recently, my mother gave me a dandy little book, published in 1890, entitled "Wife and Mother; Information for Every Woman." Now, the tattered and coverless yellowed book she gave me was actually the 55th printing of a volume which must have been all the rage a century ago. It was written by a British doctor named Pye Henry Chavasse, with an introduction (to please my feminist heart) by a woman physician named Sarah Hackett Stevenson.

Along with chapters on childbirth, menstruation, nursing and the like, were chapters on the care of infants and children — particularly through a dismal array of childhood diseases — and a warm, gently scolding chapter addressed to "The Young Wife."

One of the reasons the study of history has always fascinated me is that each succeeding generation always considers itself so much smarter than the last; particularly in these high-tech times we tend to think those who lived a hundred years ago positively wallowed in woeful ignorance. Constant new "discoveries" are being made to prove that fact.

That's why I consider books like this to be such a treasure. Take the modern emphasis on aerobics exercise and the recent discovery that simply brisk walking is actually just about the best form of exercise there is for health and general physical condition. Here's what Dr. Chavasse had to say about it 100 years ago: "There are few things more conducive to health than walking exercise...Walking — I mean a walk, not a stroll — is a glorious exercise; it expands the chest and strengthens the muscles; it promotes digestion...and, in point of fact, is one of the greatest beautifiers in the world." He goes on to say, "If ladies would walk more than they do, there would be fewer lackadaisical, useless, complaining wives than there at present are."

After suggesting a plain diet (plenty of fruits and vegetables) taken in moderation, a well-lit, well-ventilated home, plenty of sleep and early rising, and daily bathing (as well as preaching against the evils of "tight lacing"), Dr. Chavasse discusses the importance of fresh air and exercise. "Let the pleasures of a newly-married wife, then, be dictated by reason, and not by fashion. She ought to avoid all recreations of an exciting kind, as depression always follows excitement. I would have her prefer the recreations of the country to those of the town, such as flower garden, botany, archery, croquet, lawn tennis; everything, in fact, that will take her into the open air, and will cause her to appreciate the pure, simple, exquisite beauties of nature."

Have you ever driven INTO a city at the beginning of a weekend or holiday? All the traffic is bumper-to-bumper, on the OTHER side of the road. People flee for lakes and camping sites and country homes — anything to escape their frantic life-pace. The human mind and body absolutely crave some slow-down, unwind time to rejuvenate and recharge.

Something country folk have known for centuries.

Dr. Chavasse also writes that "a USEFUL wife will be thought much more of than an ORNAMENTAL or LEARNED one... Cheerfulness, contentment, occupation, and healthy activity of mind can not be too strongly recommended." Recent medical breakthroughs and the creation of such specialties as "psychoimmunoneurology," to study the connection between mind and body, bear him out; a positive mental attitude and fighting spirit do more to prevent or even cure illness than all the modern, high-tech hospitals in the world.

I could go on about "recent" discoveries that fruits and vegetables make the best diet and various other newsmaking events pertaining to health and happiness, not just for young wives, but for all of us, but I won't.

I'll let Dr. Chavasse do it for me.

Next week: Pointers from Dr. Chavasse on raising children.

Plug-in skillets pan out in kitchen

By the Editors of Consumer Reports

Electric skillets and electric woks have become reliable workhorses in many kitchens. They can make frying or grilling foods an easy and convenient task. But cooking with some brands may give you some unwanted surprises.

Recently, Consumer Reports' testers put 10 skillets and 8 woks through a battery of culinary challenges. They whipped up pancakes as well as sausage and peppers in the skillets. In the woks, they stir-fried beef and broccoli, deep-fried tempura, and even steam-cooked barbecued pork buns and dumplings.

The testers also devised tests to judge how fast the skillets and woks heated and reheated, how evenly they cooked, and how accurate their thermostats were.

Electric skillets and woks need to do one thing well — get hot. Although these pans are rated at 1,000 to 1,600 watts, the higher-powered ones don't necessarily do better. How well they heat is a function not only of watts but of the thermostat, the materials used in the construction and how they all work together.

In the thermostat test, the technicians set the controls for 350 degrees. They discovered that when the appliances were empty, each one overshot the temperature set on the dial, even though the signal light indicated it was ready. That means if you put food into a pan as soon as the signal light goes off — as most manufacturers say to do — you could burn your food. The Nordic Ware wok overshot the setting by 300 degrees, nearly twice what the thermostat was set for.

When the technicians repeated the test with a quantity of cooking oil in the pans, the opposite occurred — the control cycled off below the set temperature. The testers found that most of the skillets and woks were more accurate when they cycled on and off for a few minutes.

Another test measured how quickly each pan could reheat oil after food was added. If a pan takes too long to heat back up when you're frying, food will absorb too much oil and become soggy.

The Presto 06817 was rated a Best Buy and is the clear choice for an everyday family skillet. The pan is big and easy to clean, and it cooked well. It's especially good for use as a griddle. It has a high domed lid that lets it be used as a roasting pan. And its reasonably priced. Although it lists for $66, Consumer Reports found it selling for $40.

The Farberware 344A skillet was top-rated. It performed the best of all the models and was very solidly made. The Farberware would be a good choice if you want your skillet to double as a chafing dish.

But the model is less suited to grilling and frying than the Presto. Foods tended to stick to its stainless-steel interior, and its round shape makes it somewhat inefficient at cooking certain foods, such as pancakes and French toast. The Farberware 344A lists for $95, but Consumer Reports was able to buy it at discount for $67.

Among the woks, the Farberware 343A ($95 list, $67 at discount) cooked quite well. However, food tended to stick to its stainless-steel cooking surface.

The Maxim EW-70 ($90 list, $70 at discount) is the closest in shape to a traditional wok and also cooked well. It has a non-stick surface inside and out. Another good performer with a non-stick finish is the West Bend 79807 ($86 list, $45 at discount). The Meyer 46480 also worked well, but it lists for $121 and is sold without much discounting.

Your Birthday

July 2, 1990

July 1, 1990

Advancement in your chosen field of endeavor is likely in the year ahead. You might be assigned responsibilities others avoid. They will test your mettle, but also reward you.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your organizational abilities could be a shade or two sharper than usual today, so use this to your advantage. Starting with priority projects, begin to put your affairs in order. Cancer, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) In order to bring things to a successful conclusion today it will be up to you to guide the endeavor step by step. Don't leave end results to chance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your powers of observation could be especially sharp today and this is well and good, provided you don't point things out to others which they would rather not see.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your possibilities for personal gain look rather good today. In fact, if you're involved with a group and something fortuitous develops, you might be the one who comes out best.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Taking pride in what you do is an admirable quality, but being proud purely for vanity sake is something else. Be able to distinguish the difference today.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll operate more effectively today if you do not call attention to yourself for your intentions. If outside influences get involved in your endeavor, they could throw you off course.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Being a loner today isn't likely to measure up to your expectations. Although you might think you'll enjoy a little solitude, you'll be much happier participating in activities with friends.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) An important objective can be achieved today if you have total dedication. Don't start questioning your convictions, because it could grind you to a halt.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) This is a good day for involvements that require a creative touch and a dash of imagination. Throw the switch if you've got a bright idea you want to spotlight.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Being inflexible today could definitely work to your disadvantage, especially if you're involved in a joint venture. Strive to be open-minded and intellectually mobile.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) In matters where you allow your feelings to dominate, your judgment could suffer today. Keep emotions out of your decisions and view things from a logical perspective.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Your greatest feelings of gratification today are likely to come from situations where you are truly being of service to others. Don't be reluctant to put yourself out a bit if a pal needs help.

Evaluate possibilities for putting one or more of your creative ideas to work in the year ahead. You possess the potential to originate an enterprise that could be very rewarding.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) If you have to make decisions today that affect others as well as yourself, let your compassionate instincts guide you. Sometimes softness represents true strength. Major changes are ahead for Cancer in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The requirements of those you love are likely to take precedence over your own interests today. In situations where you feel truly needed, no sacrifice will be too great.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Your ability to view things from an unprejudiced perspective could find useful expressions today. You might end up being a middle person in several arrangements.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You're entitled to do something nice for yourself occasionally so why not make this one of those days. If conditions warrant it, splurge on yourself a bit.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You won't have to make any special efforts today to attract attention to yourself. Whether you walk into a room full of people or just walk down a quiet street, you'll be noticed.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Instinctively today you might feel it is better to give than to receive. Interestingly, however, your unselfishness may enable you to take in more than you give out.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Realistic hopefulness is the greatest gift you have to give to others today. You can help friends envision things as they could be and not just as they are.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Instead of seeking counsel from associates today regarding career matters, tune into your own intuition. Your hunches could be extremely revealing and helpful.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The valuable lessons you learn today may not come from books but from personal experiences. Put this knowledge on file, so that you can access it for a constructive use later.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) In joint endeavors today be more supportive than assertive. If you encourage your counterpart to use his or her best abilities, mutual benefits will result.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Your greatest asset today is your spirit of cooperation. A willingness to work with others will stimulate a similar response from persons with whom you'll be involved. Togetherness succeeds.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Involvements that challenge your imagination and creativity could be the ones you'll find most pleasing and rewarding today, especially if you're working with a nimble-witted cohort.

"Unofficial recession"...

Economy appears to be stuck

PHOENIX (AP) — Richard Lyon and his son tried to make a living with a two-truck shipping company. But bills outran them, the business shut down, and Lyon drove straight into bankruptcy court.

Don't tell him the economy's not in a recession. "We're just one of the statistics now," Lyon shrugged.

R.A. Ballard went from building 78 homes a year here in 1986 to six this year. The three savings and loans that financed him each were declared insolvent and seized by federal regulators. He's found it difficult to borrow more money.

"I have essentially closed my company down," said Ballard, a director of the National Association of Home Builders. "I thought it was only happening to me. I thought it was isolated to Texas, Arizona and some other problem areas. But it's not. It's happening everywhere." A recession? Not based on officially sanctioned economic statistics. They show the U.S. economy continues to eke out slow growth, prolonging the longest peacetime expansion in history.

But in some regions, such as the Northeast and parts of the Sunbelt, local economies have slipped dramatically. In some industries, most notably housing, a recession is clearly under way, many economists say.

For millions of Americans, from clerks in debt-laden retail stores to defense industry machinists facing unemployment, and truckers and builders like Lyon and Ballard, the times feel like a recession — an unofficial recession.

"Official proclamations aside, I think for certain sectors and certain states, it is a recession," said Robert Brusca, chief financial economist at Nikko Securities Co. International in New York.

"This is not a typical business cycle recession, but the regional problems may finally drag down the rest of the country," said Albert Sindlinger, a forecaster whose Wallingford, Pa. firm tracks "household liquidity" as a measure of the economy's health.

Sindlinger's survey predicted the last two recessions when it found more than 50 percent of U.S. households responded negatively to at least one of his key questions dealing with household income, jobs and business conditions.

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1990 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: For four years, I was in love with a married man. He's very handsome, well-to-do and a wonderful lover. I was single, and still am. We had to sneak around to see each other because if his wife caught him, she'd take him to the cleaners. Their marriage was in bad shape when I met him, so it's not as though I broke up his home. I can't count the times he moved out after a fight. But he always went back — "money" or "the kids" were his reasons.

Well, she finally gave him a divorce. I thought, "Hooray, now we don't have to sneak around anymore." Wrong! He still says it's not wise for us to be seen together in public.

Why? He's not married anymore. Abby, I can't understand this. He doesn't give me a reason; he says, "It's better if we're not seen together in public."

When I mention marriage, he says, "It's too soon." Abby, I love him and have never looked at another man since he came into my life.

What would you do if you were in my shoes?
BAFFLED IN BALTIMORE

DEAR BAFFLED: I'd run like the devil was after me — then I'd start to wonder who the other woman was.

insult or put-down. It merely gives the reader more information about the person referred to in the news item. And in some cases, were it not for the age, it wouldn't be newsworthy. Example: "15-year-old girl to wed elderly man." The story went on to say that the groom was 78 years old. A news item simply stating that a 15-year-old girl was getting married would not have been newsworthy.

DEAR ABBY: I am a young man about to get married for a second time. (My first wife and I were divorced.)

My question: Can I use the same wedding ring twice? The ring belonged to my mother, who passed away. My father gave it to me, and I used it for my first marriage. After the divorce, she gave it back to me. My ex-wife and my fiancée are good friends. Please advise.
WEDDING RING

DEAR WEDDING RING: It's more than just a wedding "ring" — it's a family heirloom. Tell your fiancée the history of the ring, and ask her how she feels about it. The decision should be hers.

ers seem relieved to learn that they are not alone. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for printing all those letters from people who keep hearing music in their heads. I am one: I am now 76, and never told others because I was afraid of what they might think. I have been a nurse for more than 50 years and had never heard of this condition; I feared that maybe I was experiencing senility. I was truly relieved after reading in your column that many others had the same experience.

During my waking hours I hear hymns and waltzes. All the waltzes I loved to dance to are drifting through my mind. Now I can tell my doctor about it and not be afraid that he will look at me and think, "Poor soul. She is really failing!"
EMILIE IN BUCKS COUNTY

DEAR EMILIE: You would not believe the number of letters from readers who had also been hearing things and doubted their sanity. One man said he nearly went crazy because he heard bees buzzing continually in one ear — night and day. Another said he heard constant crackling sounds, like bacon frying. A woman heard the "chirping" of crickets. Still another said it sounded like a freight train was roaring through her head. All thought they were going mad.

The constant sounds are due to a condition called "tinnitus," but the musical hallucinations are yet another matter. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: It was interesting seeing all the letters sent to you by people with musical hallucinations.

The two cases I describe in my book, "The Man Who Mistook His Wife for a Hat," were rather rare and special examples of musical epilepsy associated with damage to the brain. But musical hallucinations are relatively common, especially in older people, and though they should be checked out, nearly always turn out to be benign — a nuisance, but not necessarily a sign of neurological disease.

Readers should be assured about this.

Of abortion clinic... Catholics oust director

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — The director of an abortion clinic has been excommunicated from the Roman Catholic church. An abortion rights leader said it is the first time a bishop has formally expelled someone over the issue.

Rachel Vargas, director of Reproductive Services Inc., said she does not believe her support of abortion rights will "guarantee me a place in hell." Excommunication is the barring of a Catholic from the sacraments, including communion, confession and anointing of the sick.

Bishop Rene H. Gracida of the Corpus Christi Diocese banned Ms. Vargas from receiving church sacraments, holding church office or receiving a Christian burial, according to a formal excommunication decree dated June 1.

"Your cooperation in procuring abortions is a sin against God and humanity and against the laws of the Roman Catholic Church," the decree said. "The value of human life must always be protected in the Christian community and society at large."

The bishop's secretary told The Associated Press today that he is on vacation and cannot be reached for comment.

Ms. Vargas, who describes herself as a "good Christian and a good Catholic," said she would continue to attend Mass but would not take sacraments.

"One part of me is devastated," Ms. Vargas told the Corpus Christi Caller-Times in a story published today. "But another part is telling me I'm just more committed to the issue of choice. What I believe does not guarantee me a place in hell."

Frances Kissling, president of Catholics for a Free Choice in Washington, D.C., said she believes this is the first formal excommunication decree in the world for abortion.

Ms. Kissling said Bishop Louis Gelineau of Providence, R.I., had announced that a woman excommunicated herself by being the director of Planned Parenthood in Providence. Bishop Leo Mahler of San Diego barred a state senate candidate who supported abortion from receiving communion, she said.

Bill Ryan, a spokesman for the National Conference of Catholic Bishops in Washington, D.C., disagreed with Kissling's assessment that Ms. Vargas is the first Catholic to be formally excommunicated over abortion.

"What we say is the Rhode Island case is a precedent for the Texas case," Ryan said today.

Ryan said the Rhode Island woman, Mary Ann Sorrentino, was sent a letter by a priest on behalf of the bishop saying she had brought excommunication upon herself. Ryan said he did not see the distinction between that letter and a formal decree like the one sent to Ms. Vargas.

Gracida tells Ms. Vargas in the decree that she can be reinstated "by a sincere and total repentance and confession concerning the sin of abortion."

Ms. Vargas said she thought Gracida was being inconsistent.

DEAR ABBY: Why do the news media report that someone is "elderly," when age has absolutely nothing to do with the news item? Example:

On television: "Hotel fire in Miami claimed many lives. Most were elderly."

In the newspaper: "A house at such-and-such an address is on display for its artistic decorations. It is owned by an elderly woman."

Abby, are elderly people different or less valued than other humans? Talk about discrimination! Elderly people pay taxes, spend money to keep the economy going and make doctors richer. So, does being elderly make them less of a citizen?

I suggest that the media just report the news and leave out the word "elderly." What do you think?
OFFENDED

Most teen-agers do not know the facts about drugs, AIDS and how to prevent unwanted pregnancy. It's all in Abby's new, updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send a business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

DEAR ABBY: An elderly acquaintance of mine is experiencing an unusual problem — she hears "music" in her head! She is not confused nor is she hallucinating, but she is understandably very much concerned.

Am I correct in recalling that some time ago you had something in your column concerning people who were hearing music in their heads? Any information you could share with us would be very much appreciated.
