Mitchell County...

Expert blasts area officials

By MISSY TRULL
SDN Staff Writer

COLORADO CITY — Hazardous waste expert Dr. Paul Connett accused Mitchell County officials of being "secretive and deceptive" during a three-hour gathering attended by about 300 people Thursday at Colorado High School auditorium.

Connett told the crowd, "If it is a good project, then you don't have to be secretive about it," referring to a host agreement the county signed with a Pittsburg company for a proposed hazardous waste incinerator in the county.

In March, county officials entered into an agreement with National Waste and Energy Development of Pittsburg, Penn., for a municipal landfill and possible hazardous waste incinerator. The site of the proposed facility would be west of the community of Westbrook — within 15 miles of the Scurry-Mitchell County border.

Connett met with county officials prior to giving his energetic address at a meeting sponsored by Texans Against Pollution (TAP).

Connett called the host agreement "a statement to the rest of the nation to come and rape Colorado City."

He said the proposal was a question of democracy.

"Who shapes what goes on in your community? A handful of local leaders or you the people?" challenged the English-born professor.

Connett presented videos he has compiled on hazardous waste incinerators throughout the country. He said he is currently working on documenting, through video, all such incinerators in the nation.

He presented news accounts of animals dying and rare birth defects in areas where incinerators are located. He criticized government agencies and consultant firms that determined nothing unusual in these areas of incinerators.

In conclusion, Connett warned local activists that they may face a long fight and not to burn out. "Pace yourself and share the responsibilities," he advised.

He also encouraged them to have fun. "If we are as grim as these issues, then no one will help us.... Enjoy getting these people out of office," said Connett.

"Turning the planet around is exciting business," he concluded as the audience gave him a standing ovation.

Also on hand for the meeting was Texas Department of (see MITCHELL, page 8)

Soccer birthday Saturday

Snyder Soccer Association will celebrate its 10th anniversary Saturday at the junior high school soccer field.

Festivities will begin at 9 a.m. with Richard Hester, current president, giving opening remarks and the welcome.

All players, former players, coaches, former coaches, parents, relatives and soccer enthusiasts are invited to attend.

Gerald Corkran, past president who has served more than one term, will officially present a congratulatory letter from President George Bush on the occasion of SCA's 10th birthday. Corkran is currently in charge of field maintenance.

Directors re-elected...

524 members attend annual Midwest Electric event here

Some 524 Midwest Electric Cooperative members registered for the 52nd annual meeting and barbecue Thursday night, during which two incumbents were elected as directors.

According to a Midwest official, that number attending the meeting at Scurry County Coliseum was just four shy of the total who registered in 1989.

Thursday's event also marked the 17th year that Midwest has held its annual barbecue in Snyder.

One of the highlights of the evening was the director's election which saw incumbents Mike Herron of Sylvester, Place I, and Carl Williams of Hermleigh, Place II, re-elected to three-year terms by acclamation. Neither had an opponent.

Midwest Electric officials told members that Midwest Electric was in sound financial condition and that some $2.5 million had been returned to the membership through capital credits. It was also noted that Midwest has not incurred any losses from 1943-1989.

James Beaver, president of the board, called the meeting to order. Rev. Jim Moseley, pastor of the First Baptist Church in Union, gave the invocation. Bill Moss, Snyder Chamber of Commerce manager, welcomed everyone.

Special speakers were Felix Martinez and Jennifer Kincaid, winners of the Government In Action Program, who spoke about their tour of Washington, D.C., which they took this past June. This program is sponsored by several Rural Electric Cooperatives in Texas. Some 70 students won the tour throughout the state.

Jennifer is the daughter of Mike and Ann Herrell of Roby and Felix is the son of Ninfa Martinez of Hermleigh.

Door prizes were also given away throughout the evening.

Directors besides Herron, Williams and Beaver include Melvin Clements of Rotan, Mickey Sterling of Ira, Bobby Gruben of Rotan, and Jerry Ushaw of Roby.

Vesta Orr of Roby is the manager and Dan Cotton of Snyder serves as the cooperative's attorney.

Mideast crisis shows up in jobless figures

DALLAS (AP) — Texas' jobless rate dropped last month as petroleum prices rose following Iraq's invasion of Kuwait and the buildup of U.S. troops in the Middle East, government economists said today.

The 5.9 percent unemployment rate for the state in August compared with 7.2 percent in the same period last year, the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics in Washington said. The jobless figure in June and July 1990 was 6.3 percent.

Nationwide, the unemployment rate dipped from 5.5 percent in July to 5.6 percent in August. The latest figure compares with 5.1 percent employment in August 1989, said Kaki Coleman, economist with the labor bureau.

The state and national figures are not seasonally adjusted, she said, meaning they do not take into account regional and seasonal differences in hiring patterns. Private economists were generally predicting the nation's unemployment rate would either stay at the July rate, or possibly fall or rise a tenth of a percentage point.

The nation's 5.5 percent July rate was a sharp increase over June's 5.3 percent level.

The Mideast crisis, triggered by the Iraqi invasion on Aug. 2, wreaked havoc on world financial and commodity markets and pushed the price of crude oil sharply upward. That increase found its way to American gas pumps.

Analysts worried that the invasion might also prompt businesses, already leery of a potential recession, to hold the line on hiring.

But the analysts noted that the U.S. economy had been sluggish for months before the mideast crisis began.

Effort against Iraq growing; more aid, funds are pledged

by The Associated Press
The global effort against Iraq strengthened today with promises of more aid for victims of the Persian Gulf crisis, and Kuwait's exiled leaders joined the Saudis in pledging funds for U.S. forces in the region.

A planeload of 170 American women and children arrived in Amman, Jordan, today aboard an Iraqi Airways jet, the first U.S.-chartered airlift out of Kuwait. The arrivals described harrowing conditions in the emirate.

"It's terrible there. People are frightened, they're in hiding, running out of food," said Patricia Hammer of Denver, Colo.

Moscow said it favored establishing a U.N. peacekeeping force in the gulf and might have its troops participate in the effort to rein in Iraq's Saddam Hussein, whose army overran Kuwait five weeks ago and massed near the Saudi Arabian border.

Three British minehunters made their way through Egypt's Suez Canal today, heading for the Persian Gulf region, where scores of U.S. and other warships are enforcing a U.N.-sanctioned embargo against the Baghdad government.

Despite the show of unity, some countries have begun suggesting they might circumvent the U.N. sanctions. Today, India expressed frustration that it had not been allowed to send food and medicine to its nationals stranded in Iraq and Kuwait.

"It is inhuman to expect that political objectives will be achieved through the process of starving people," said Indian (see IRAQ, page 8)

Century II forms due in by Thursday

Applications for Century II: Leadership Scurry County, must be returned to the chamber of commerce by Thursday afternoon, Sept. 13.

The program, sponsored by the chamber and Western Texas College, is aimed at developing and maintaining a pool of well-informed men and women qualified to assume present and future leadership roles in Scurry

County. Anyone may apply or nominate someone for the program. Official Century II: Leadership Scurry County application forms must be used. Q—How often do the president of Western Texas College and the superintendent of Snyder public schools get raises and when was their last one?

A—For both positions, a raise is at the discretion of the boards that manage the college and school system. WTC President Harry Krenek has not received a raise in his four years as college president. School Superintendent Dalton Mosley received a raise at the beginning of the 1989-90 school year.

First City plan

HOUSTON (AP) — First City Bancorporation of Texas is allowing military reservists called to active duty during the Persian Gulf crisis to postpone principal and interest payments on their loans.

First City officials announced Thursday that principal payments on all existing loans up to $100,000 would be suspended for military reservists.

The Houston-based holding company will waive interest on such loans for at least the first year of active duty with rates reverting to contracted levels when the duty is completed.

In addition, First City said it will supplement the military income of any of its employee reservists called to active duty so that their pay will be equal to their current civilian salaries. That policy will be in effect for the entire tour of duty for the reservists, First City officials said.

Energy consortium OKs offshore port for supertankers

HOUSTON (AP) — A proposed offshore port for oil supertankers has gained the support of an energy consortium headed by Phillips Petroleum Co. and a member of the Texas Railroad Commission.

"It looks favorable so far," said George Minter, a spokesman for Phillips in Bartlesville, Okla. "We're basically trying to get some things moving here. We're still very interested or we wouldn't have decided to move on."

The TexPort project, strikingly similar to a 10-year-old Phillips proposal called SeaDock and an existing tanker port off the Louisiana coast, calls for establishing a deepwater port for tankers 27 miles offshore from Freeport.

The $1.2 billion project would be capable of moving 2 million barrels of imported oil a day from foreign tankers through undersea pipelines already crossing the Gulf of Mexico to utilities and refineries on the Gulf Coast.

The port would cut down on tanker traffic in Galveston Bay and the Houston Ship Channel, lowering the risk of accidents and oil spills, backers said.

"Local, state and federal officials must all commit to doing whatever is possible to facilitate the construction of the deepwater port," said Texas Railroad Commissioner John Sharp on Thursday.

"We cannot allow an opportunity like this to pass us by because of bureaucratic red tape. We should try and expedite any necessary licensing requirements or other government interference." Minter said the 18 energy companies backing the project decided to proceed with plans for the port Wednesday after reviewing a $100,000 consultants' study that analyzed the projected revenue for the venture and the likely demand for its services.

Officials involved in the project have refused to identify the other companies participating in the venture and declined to discuss the findings of the study or the name of the consultant who did the work.

Minter said a final decision on the project probably won't be made until next year.

Minter said the companies will spend the next six months drawing up more detailed financial models for the port and compiling the information needed to receive government approval of the project.

"It's going to get more costly as we go along," he said. "The commitment is going to get larger and larger."

The proposal already has attracted approval of environmental groups that point out any spills that occur would pose less damage to wildlife estuaries since vessels would be 27 miles from shore.

On July 28, a collision between a Greek tanker and two barges spilled 700,000 gallons of oil into Galveston Bay, threatening sensitive wildlife areas.

Earlier, 3.9 million gallons of oil leaked into the gulf after a June 8 explosion and fire aboard the supertanker Mega Borg.

DEAR ABBY: To say — unequivocally — that giving a child sips of beer and wine is "child abuse" is preposterously irresponsible. My father, one of the kindest, most loving men I know, used to let us kids try a sip of his wine at the dinner table when we were very small, and when we were somewhat bigger, we were allowed tiny glasses of wine for ourselves.

I am convinced that it was as a result of his attitude and teachings that not one of us ever abused alcohol in any way — not even when we were teen-agers and every other kid in our high school was routinely getting plastered on weekends because it was the "cool" thing to do. We knew better because our father had taught us that there was no forbidden magic attached to alcohol.

We are adults now, and we all use alcohol as it was intended to be used, in modest amounts, chiefly to be sociable. I wish every kid in the United States could be as "abused" as we were. There'd be a lot fewer alcoholics, I'm certain.

DEAR ABBY: Because of all the weddings and anniversaries in my family, this question has been coming up a lot lately. We were wondering what the phrase "No gifts, please" means on an invitation. Does this mean give money only, or give nothing at all?

WALLINGFORD, CONN.

DEAR WALLINGFORD: It means give nothing at all. A congratulatory card would be appropriate.

DEAR ABBY: I've been reading your column for as long as I can remember, and I love it. I'm 61 years old. In response to "Looking Beyond Looks," dealing with the weight problem: As a bride, I weighed 105 pounds. Now I weigh exactly twice that much!

Please don't think I don't care how I look; I've been on every diet I ever heard about. I joined Weight Watchers 12 times. I've had my jaws wired shut, had a staple in my ear, enrolled in an exercise class — you name it, I've done it.

I was married for 32 years to a man who married me when I was thin and loved me when I became overweight. I'm a widow now. I'm always neat and clean, dress attractively, and I don't worry about my weight. I love myself because I'm a good person. I get up every morning and thank God for a new day. I'm going to be around for a long time because I'm needed. I love life and doing for others.

As for being ridiculed and insulted by total strangers because I'm obviously overweight, I feel sorry for them because they are the ones who are obviously overweight — in their heads. They're fatheads!

Clements makes first phone call on phone system for deaf people

AUSTIN (AP) — Another barrier to the disabled fell with the opening of a new telecommunications network in Texas for the deaf and speech-impaired.

Gov. Bill Clements chatted with a deaf businesswoman in Houston Thursday in the first phone call on the new network, called Relay Texas. The system allows hearing-impaired people to dial an 800-number with either their Telecommunications Device for the Deaf (TDD) or with a computer. They will be linked to a specially trained operator.

Clements and Opal Piercy, owner of a dry cleaning business, marveled at the new technology.

"I'm delighted to be having this conversation," Clements told Ms. Piercy.

"Another barrier has been broken," Ms. Piercy wrote back.

The operator then calls the hearing party and relays the message orally. When the hearing person responds, the operator types in the message to the hearing-impaired person.

The system works in reverse for those wishing to call a hearing- or speech-impaired person.

As Clements spoke with Ms. Piercy, a television monitor printed out his words in large type. Slight delays occurred while the message was communicated to Ms. Piercy, whose responses also appeared on the television screen.

Legislation approved by state lawmakers last year made Relay Texas possible. The Public Utility Commission awarded a contract for the service in March to Sprint Services, a unit of US Sprint.

Deaf people who want to use the new system must purchase a telecommunications device available through several Texas distributors, or a computer with a modem and special communications software.

Sprint Services also will begin leasing the telecommunications devices soon.

The devices cost $150 and up, but the average price is between $200 and $300, according to Vicki Oswald, a PUC staffer.

The devices look like small typewriters. They have a screen and a keyboard for typing, and they hook directly into the telephone.

A hearing person only has to call the 800 number to communicate with a deaf person who has the device.

The service will operate 24 hours a day out of Austin by operators trained in dealing with hearing-impaired people.

Ms. Piercy, who has been deaf since age 9, said the service will free up time for her children, who have been making business phone calls on her behalf.

PUC Commissioner Marta Greytok said her mother, who is speech-impaired, will also use the service.

Before Relay Texas, deaf people could use the phone only to call individuals with other computers or TDDs. Relay services were available, but were usually staffed by volunteers or nonprofit groups and usually during limited hours.

There will be no charge for local Relay Texas calls, Ms. Greytok said. Long distance intra-state calls will be billed at a reduced rate, but there is no discount for long-distance calls from Texas to out-of-state.

The 50 new customer relay agents can handle 175,000 calls a month, a Sprint spokeswoman said. About $4 million has been invested in electronic switching, computer and other equipment for the relay service.

People using the service for the first time need a few moments to acclimate to a new form of communication. Clements was repeatedly told to use the phrase "go ahead" after finishing his transmissions to Ms. Piercy, but instead used the phrase "over" as if speaking over a radio line. "I'm a slow learner," he said later.

Nature parks, endangered wildlife said on seized land

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid the debris of the savings and loan crisis, the gold-plated faucets in the glitzy hotel and condominium developments that went bust, lie some simpler properties inhabited by rare birds and other non-paying tenants.

The multibillion-dollar S&L scandal has intruded on the world of nature, as the shock waves set off by the crisis create ripples in some quiet ponds tucked away in nature preserves.

At least one congressman and a number of environmentalists are worried about the impact of the thrift bailout on S&L properties seized by the government that are considered to have significant environmental value.

At the same time, the environmental activists see the government's control of those lands as a rare opportunity for promoting conservation.

The Resolution Trust Corp., the agency set up last year to take over and dispose of failed thrift institutions, has under its control 2,600 S&L properties believed to have important environmental, historical, recreational or scientific value.

They range from natural habitats of endangered wildlife to "pocket parks" in cities and towns. A group of properties, for example, lies in the Balcones Canyonlands, an area west of Austin, Texas, that is home to several endangered songbirds and other species.

The 2,600 parcels, many of them situated in Texas, Arizona, California and Florida, are a small proportion of the 36,000 or so S&L properties under the RTC's control — but they can stir strong emotions.

"We're trying to protect them," Rep. Bruce F. Vento, D-Minn., said in an interview. "Some of them never should have been developed in the first place."

Vento, chairman of a House task force on the RTC, scheduled a hearing for today on the issue. Representatives of the trust, the Interior Department and environmental groups were expected to testify.

Some of the properties were commercially developed when they were in private hands, since the laws governing land use are relatively lenient when assets are privately owned.

Now that they are under government control and subject to stricter regulations, environmentalists and historic preservationists want to seize the chance to protect them and to attach some conditions to their future sale.

"It's the greatest opportunity of the century to protect important environmental lands," said

Richard Lowerre, a project director at the Texas Center for Policy Studies in Austin.

The RTC, on the other hand, is charged with protecting taxpayers by getting as much money as it can for the thrift assets it sells. Restrictions against commercial development on land tend to sharply reduce its market value.

The conflicting goals apparently have created a bureaucratic standoff.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service and the RTC have drafted an agreement under which the service, part of the Interior Department, would review the RTC's inventory of properties. The service would then recommend conservation restrictions on the use of properties that are considered environmentally sensitive.

The agreement was scheduled to be signed by officials from both agencies on Aug. 3, but it was put on hold indefinitely.

"I think what happened is we had some ideologues who hit the panic button," Vento said. Some government officials apparently feared that an environmental review would result in all the properties being put under strong conservation measures, he suggested.

Three Texas reservists buried

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Three of nine Kelly Air Force Base reservists killed in a cargo plane crash at a West German air base were buried Thursday with full military honors.

Funeral services were held Thursday for Tech. Sgt. Daniel Perez, Maj. John Gordon and Tech. Sgt. Lonty Knutson. The three were among 13 who died when their C-5 crashed and burned on takeoff at Ramstein Air Base as it was taking part in Operation Desert Shield. A team of military officials is investigating the accident.

An Air Force memorial service at Kelly is planned Saturday for all 13 victims of last week's crash. All were members of the 433rd Military Airlift Wing at Kelly.

The three reservists who were buried Thursday were honored with a 21-gun salute, jet fly overs and taps played by military guards.

A funeral Mass was celebrated at 9 a.m. Thursday for Perez at Holy Rosary Catholic Church in San Antonio, followed by interment at Fort Sam Houston National Cemetery.

Services for Gordon of the Houston suburb of Spring were conducted at Champion Forest Baptist Church at 10 a.m., with burial at Houston National Cemetery.

Funeral services for Knutson of San Antonio were held at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church at 2:30 p.m., with burial at Mission Burial Park South.

"Daniel had talked to his family about what would happen if he should die," said the Rev. Rudy Vela, pastor of Holy Rosary who celebrated the Mass for Perez along with two other priests and Archbishop Patrick Flores. "He had love for his country and his family and friends, and he touched your hearts, for you are here."

Gordon's friends and family members wore red, white and blue to his funeral to celebrate his commitment to the U.S. military.

"The mere fact that he volunteered would seem heroic to us, but it wasn't to John," said Gordon's friend, Clayton Smear.

His widow, Judy Gordon, said she wanted the services to honor Gordon's commitment.

Mrs. Gordon said she and her husband had talked about his trip to Saudi Arabia.

"When we talked about it, he said, 'Judy, this is what I've been trained to do,'" she recalled. "I never worried when he was flying a plane."

"He believed in his country," said a friend who attended the services.

Rev. Richard McLean, who served as an Army chaplain during the Vietnam War, eulogized Knutson as a loving father and devoted worker.

A rosary for Senior Master Sgt. Carpio Villareal Jr. was recited at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in St. Joseph South San Catholic Church at San Antonio.

Heavy cover charge

Willy Nilly opened one no-trump. His partner had no choice but to raise to three, hoping that the contract would be cold. (Obviously he had seen Willy in action before.) It was no surprise then that Willy covered the lead of the diamond queen with dummy's king. East took the ace and returned the suit. West won the jack and continued with the diamond nine, indicating an entry in spades. Willy was at least smart enough to cash out four club tricks and three hearts before playing a spade, but he was still down one.

On this type of auction, there is virtually no chance that West is making a desperation lead in diamonds from Q-x or Q-J doubleton. If he has three or four diamonds, it does not really matter what declarer does. But in those cases where West holds five diamonds, or even six, it is crucial for declarer to play low from dummy at trick one. Here, with five diamonds in the West

Odessa woman hears husband OK in Iraq

ODESSA, Texas (AP) — Donita Cole waited for over a month to hear if her husband, who has been taken hostage in Iraq, was OK.

But when she finally got word that he was all right, she suffered mixed emotions.

"I had a good crying spell this morning and now I am fantastic," Mrs. Cole said Thursday. "My adrenalin surge is so powerful right now that I can't even sit down."

State Department officials contacted Mrs. Cole Thursday morning after making contact with 50-year-old John Cole at a hotel in Baghdad.

State Department sources say Cole was transferred to the hotel from Kuwait City.

Mrs. Cole said the American consulate has been in contact with her husband, who was working as a supervisor for OGE Drilling Co. of Houston.

She says her husband sent her a message saying, "I am all right and in Iraq."

But Mrs. Cole said she will not rest easy until her husband is home.

"The message calms my fears right now," she said, "but that does not tell me what tomorrow's going to bring. I am living hour to hour, minute to minute. Anything could change that quickly."

Cole joined OGE in March and went overseas in April. Mrs. Cole originally planned to join her husband in Kuwait in mid-August.

Iraq invaded Kuwait on Aug. 2.

Mrs. Cole learned Sunday from the State Department that her husband had been taken hostage after living in hiding for a month. She expressed fears that her husband would be taken to a remote location where he may never be found.

"Hearing from him does not change my optimism or pessimism," she said. "It does not make me think this whole mess is going to be resolved any faster. All I know is that he is OK right now."

Two other OGE Drilling employees from Texas, Edward Hale of Spring and Gary Carr of Fort Worth, were among a group of oil rig workers being detained by Iraqis.

Tigers begin grid season vs. Lobos

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

Snyder head football coach David Baugh feels the Monahans Lobos will try to confuse his Snyder Tiger offense to make up for a lack of experience in the Lobos defense when the two teams butt heads in tonight's season debut at 8 p.m. in Monahans.

"Their main weakness is their defense," said Baugh. "I think they'll run a lot of different stunts and try to confuse us into making mistakes."

Monahans, rated No. 18 in the state in preseason polls, uses a 4-3 base defense.

What will Snyder do to try to offset the Monahans stunting? "Well, we've worked against it all during two-a-days right up to now," said Baugh.

"We've geared to picking up stunts, particularly in our throwing game but in our running attack, too. It's just a matter of being able to execute in a football game."

The Lobos stopper unit returns just three players from last season's 10-3 District 4-4A runner-up squad that went all the way to the regional finals before being ousted by Big Spring.

Monahans' strength in the coming season is expected to be its offense led by returning seniors Steve Ward at quarterback and Joey Munoz at fullback.

"Ward was their quarterback last year," Baugh reported. "He is a good sprint-out type passer with lots of quickness."

"He likes to run with the ball. His running ability comes when he gets you spread out to cover the pass and he pulls it down and goes." Ward passed for 848 yards and 11 touchdowns a season ago.

Munoz is coming off an all-district year that saw him gather 679 yards and nine TDs while averaging 5.4 yards per carry.

Baugh said, "He goes about 220 pounds and he's just a bull of a guy to bring down."

The Lobos run from a wing-T formation but will jump and change formations and show opposing defenses a lot of different looks according to Snyder coaches.

"We've worked hard on our throwing game and we'll throw the ball against them," Baugh said of the Tigers' offensive plans.

"We're also going to try to run effectively against them. In the scrimmages so far I've been pleased with the passing and running games."

"We're going to see what they'll give us and try to pick at them until we find something we can run and then execute it."

Snyder will start senior Ed Rios at quarterback against Monahans.

Rios passed for 300 yards in limited duty last season, including a 5 of 16 performance against the Lobos for 70 yards, and has been impressive in preseason drills.

He threw a 29-yard scoring strike along with a 5-yarder to junior tight end Hayward Clay in the Tigers opening scrimmage against Ft. Stockton and hit wingback Shelby Bufkin for a 40-yard gain and a pair of short TD strikes in the Tigers' two preseason scrimmages.

The Tiger defense finished last season ranked second in District 4-4A and figures to continue the tradition this season with stalwarts Clint Hayward at tackle and ends Hayward Clay and Will Clay holding the line and speedsters Shelby Bufkin and Mark King lining up in the safety spots.

King missed all of two-a-days while hospitalized for a viral infection and a bleeding ulcer but has come on strong since school started and even worked a short stint at wingback against Crane last week, slipping around right end for a 12-yard gain.

The Lobos were 21-0 winners over SHS in the 1989 season finale in which the Tiger defense held Munoz, then the loop's third leading rusher, to just 16 yards on 6 carries.

Ward completed seven of 21 tosses in last year's game for 81 yards including 6 passes to then sophomore tight end Sal Sanchez for 70 yards and a score.

Munoz was on the receiving end of one Ward aerial for 11 yards. In other action within District 2-4A Canyon Randall fell to Lubbock Dunbar's Panthers last night, 26-12.

Tonight's loop contests include Levelland at Pampa and Estacado at Plainview at 7:30 p.m. and Frenship at Andrews and Denver City at Lamesa at 8 p.m.

U.S. Open...

Agassi, Becker to meet in semifinals

NEW YORK (AP) — Power is the name of the game, and Boris Becker and Andre Agassi are its major proponents.

And the power game is not confined to the men.

Today, top-seeded Steffi Graf, with the biggest forehead in the women's game, took on No. 6 Arantxa Sanchez Vicario in the opening semifinal at the U.S. Open. Gabriela Sabatini, the fifth seed, was scheduled to play No. 8 Mary Joe Fernandez in a later

SHS JV falls to Monahans

Wayland Harrison scooted for a 12-yard touchdown for Snyder's only score in Thursday's 29-6 junior varsity football loss to visiting Monahans.

"We weren't very aggressive like we usually are," said coach Roland Herrera.

"One good thing, though," he said, "was the goal-line defensive play."

"The kids played hard on the goal line. If they had just played the rest of the game like that, I'd took Monahans six tries to score from inside the ten on one series."

The JV Tigers were to have traveled to Clyde for a Thursday, Sept. 13 contest but the Bulldogs cancelled the game.

Snyder's freshmen tied Monahans 14-14 Friday. See Sunday's SDN for details.

semifinal. Becker, the defending champion, and Agassi will battle in the men's semifinal Saturday after posting convincing victories on Thursday. Becker shifted into high gear in the second set to overpower ninth-seeded Aaron Krickstein 3-6, 6-3, 6-2, 6-2. No. 4 Agassi used his long-range baseline game to bombard unseeded Andrei Cherkasov 6-2, 6-2, 6-3.

The other semi pits John McEnroe, a four-time U.S. Open champion who is unseeded this year and making his first semifinal appearance at the National Tennis Center since 1985, against 12th-seeded Pete Sampras.

Agassi says his battle with Becker will be power personified. "I don't think either of us have any tricks up our sleeve. We're just going to come out firing our guns and see who gets shot," he said.

It was Cherkasov who got shot down Thursday night. The Soviet never was really in the game as Agassi did everything Cherkasov did, only better.

"He has powerful groundstrokes. He's the best in the world," Cherkasov said. "He was too good. He was always quicker."

Area 6-man squads kick off '90 season

Area six-man football gets under way today as Hermleigh, Ira and Borden County High Schools, all members of District 6-A(6), all begin the regular season.

Hermleigh's Cardinals open the campaign in Sands tonight against a team vying for a District 5 crown.

Sands returns 14 lettermen including four offensive and three defensive starters from last season's 11-1 team.

Coach Doug Cook's Cardinals went 3-3 a year ago before a rash of injuries cancelled the last part of the season.

Hermleigh will be led by sophomore deep back Chris Velasco and senior back Felix Martinez.

Ira hosts No. 5 Guthrie in its season opener.

The Jaguars boast five starters on each side of the football and nine lettermen all together from 1989's 12-1 state semifinal team.

The Bulldogs, led by fourth year coach Don Jones, are picked near the top in District 6.

They will count on the leadership of quarterbacks Brian Martinez and Chris Haynes and the backfield speed of Toby Haynes and Mike Hughes to keep them competitive offensively.

The defensive unit will be led by all-district Dave Holmes and Wyatt Webster at the end spots.

Borden County's new head coach for 1990, Bobby Avery, will lead his charges against New Home in Gail tonight.

The Coyotes bring in a roster numbering about 20 players including Jimmy Rios and Shane Kemper, two way starters from last year's 6-4 team.

New Home is picked to claim the District 4 crown in '90 with returnees that include running back Scott Fillingim who racked up 520 rushing yards and seven TD's on last year's 9-1-1 squad.

All three six-man contests begin at 7:30 p.m.

El Paso Jesus Chapel is at Loraine, Rule entertains defending loop champ Trent and Highland travels to Blackwell in other District 6 action tonight.

Columbia holds record for most launch delays

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The space shuttle Columbia, prevented from lifting off early Thursday, holds the record for the most launch delays. It is also the oldest ship in the fleet.

Columbia set the mark when it was delayed seven times before a satellite delivery mission that finally made it off the ground in January 1986, two weeks before the Challenger accident.

So far in 1990 only three shuttle missions have lifted off and with three more scheduled, NASA will fail to meet its goal of nine flights for the year.

On Jan. 9, Columbia was launched on a satellite delivery run. It had been scheduled for liftoff on Dec. 18, but its launch pad was being refurbished and not ready. A rescheduled launch Jan. 8 was delayed by bad weather.

Atlantis was launched Feb. 28 on a secret military mission. It was originally scheduled for Feb. 22 but was postponed successively to Feb. 23, 24 and 25 because commander John Creighton had a cold. On Feb. 25, with the crew in the cockpit, a malfunction in the range safety computer forced a scrub. The following day there was another postponement because of bad weather.

On April 24, Discovery went aloft to place the Hubble Space Telescope into orbit. The liftoff, originally scheduled for April 18, was actually moved ahead to April 10. But that attempt was halted with four minutes to go because of a faulty valve in a hydraulic power unit.

Columbia, which flew first on April 12, 1981, was to go on its 10th trip into space on May 17, carrying the Astro observatory. But that date was changed to May 30 because of the Hubble mission was late. On launch day, engineers found a massive leak of hydrogen fuel and spent the next three months searching for a cause.

On Aug. 29, while readying the ship for a Sept. 1 flight, launch control found it had no communications with one of the telescopes aboard the shuttle. The mission was rescheduled for Sept. 6, but the leak reappeared during fueling the night before and caused a third delay.

Budget talks said resumed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unless a budget deal is enacted Democratic and Republican budget negotiators say they agree on the amount of deficit reductions they need, but as their bargaining resumes they disagree strongly over how far to cut military spending.

After a five-week break for Congress' August recess, administration officials and congressional leaders resume their talks today at Andrews Air Force Base in Maryland, just outside the capital. President Bush plans to attend the session.

"It is in the interest of every family here that we get a budget agreement," the president said Thursday at a political rally in Tallahassee, Fla. "I pledge to you and to every American taxpayer that I will not accept a budget agreement that is not fiscally sound and fundamentally fair."

The new fiscal year begins Oct. 1. Without some combination of spending cuts and tax increases, the administration estimates the budget gap will approach a record $250 billion, Republican officials said.

Unless a budget deal is enacted by then, the Gramm-Rudman law will impose about $100 billion in spending cuts in most domestic and defense programs. As a result, the bargainers hope to wrap up a deal by Monday to give Congress time to enact it.

"The hope is to arrive at an agreement," said House Budget Committee Chairman Leon Panetta, D-Calif.

Democrats and Republicans met separately in the Capitol Thursday to put finishing touches on the proposals they will begin swapping.

Leaders of both sides said they want to aim for packages cutting red ink by $50 billion next year and $500 billion over five years. Since Iraq's Aug. 2 conquest of Kuwait and the resulting oil price increases, some lawmakers have cautioned that the first-year figure should be lower for fear of driving the weakening economy into a recession.

But important differences remained.

Foreign Ministry spokesman Afah Seth.

China's Foreign Ministry said Thursday it does not believe the embargo applies to "supplies intended strictly for medical purposes and foodstuffs for humanitarian purposes."

And Iran's Tehran Times newspaper, which is close to President Hashemi Rafsanjani, said in an editorial Thursday that sanctions aside, providing food and medicine was a "humanitarian question."

In Kuwait, conditions grew intolerable in embassies ordered by the Iraqis to close two weeks ago. Norway said it would evacuate its Kuwait mission on Saturday and that its three diplomats would travel to Baghdad.

A few embassies, including the U.S. mission, remained open, but they were surrounded by Iraqi troops, with water, power and telephone service cut off and food running out.

Western women and children allowed out under Saddam's Aug. 28 promise they could go free were having an easier time getting home. Western men are being held as human shields at Iraqi installations to deter any attack by U.S.-led multinational forces.

In addition to the U.S.-chartered plane, a British Airways flight arrived in London today carrying 252 British women and children from Kuwait and Iraq. It was the biggest group of Britons to leave Baghdad so far.

There were an estimated 21,000 Westerners in Iraq and Kuwait when Baghdad invaded and later annexed the neighboring emirate of Kuwait. They included 3,000 Americans.

More promises of aid were made today for desperate Asian and Arab refugees from Iraq and Kuwait stranded in a no man's land at the Jordanian border.

Agriculture Deputy Commissioner George Ellis who said the department was concerned over the proposed incinerator and the effects it would have on the food chain.

Ellis expressed concern over hazardous waste companies "picking up West Texas."

Roby, Alpine, Ft. Stockton and Lubbock have all been targeted by companies as possible sites. Last week in Levelland, Hockley County officials signed a host agreement for a proposed incinerator.

Connett is renowned as a scientific expert on hazardous waste. He currently serves as a member of the advisory panel to the Office of Technological Assessment (OTA), Washington, D.C., for the study of solid waste and as a member of New York State Senate Solid Waste Advisory Council.

His research centers around the health risks of hazardous waste, including exposure to dioxins through food chains, the chemicals hazards of ash disposal and alternative resource and waste management strategies.

He is currently associate professor of chemistry at St. Lawrence University in Canton, N.Y.

Locally, almost 1500 signatures have been petitioned in Scurry County and county commissioners have made a resolution opposing the facility. Snyder High School teacher Ed McAnally is heading up the local effort against the incinerator.

Ex-bank president, 3 others indicted

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — A federal grand jury has indicted the former president of Western Bank and three businessmen on charges they fraudulently secured large loans from the now-defunct bank.

Richard Schwein, special agent in charge of the FBI office here, said Thursday their alleged actions "directly contributed to the failure of the bank" in March 1987.

The indictments named Barbara Chaney, who in 1977 became El Paso's first woman bank president, El Paso developer Chris Cummings, El Paso businessman Lawrence Bower and George Wallace of California.

An unindicted co-conspirator is also named in the indictments, Assistant U.S. Attorney Debra Kanof said.

A source close to the investigation who asked not to be identified told the El Paso Times the unindicted co-conspirator is retired Army Lt. Gen. Richard Cassidy, a former commander of Fort Bliss. Cassidy has been given immunity from prosecution in exchange for his testimony, the source said.

Cassidy confirmed he testified before the grand jury about Western Bank but would not comment further.

The indictments, the result of a three-year FBI investigation, allege that the four used false information on loan applications to get large loans for Resor-

America, an El Paso-based real estate development company founded by Cummings.

The grand jury also alleged that Ms. Chaney, who was chief executive officer and president of Western Bank, knowingly made false entries into the bank's records "with the intent to injure and defraud" the bank.

Ms. Chaney was indicted on six counts, each carrying possible prison terms of up to five years, Ms. Kanof said.

Cummings was indicted on three counts; Bower on five; and Wallace on two, she said.

Ms. Kanof couldn't provide an exact breakdown on what the various counts allege, but the charges include making false statements on loan applications, misapplication of funds and conspiracy.

The prosecutor would not confirm or deny whether Cassidy is the unindicted co-conspirator, or whether he was granted immunity from prosecution.

"Any type of agreement between the U.S. attorney's office and an individual to cooperate is not public," Kanof said.

Schwein said the alleged criminal conspiracy began in December 1983 and continued until March 12, 1987, when state regulators closed Western Bank, citing an excess of bad loans.

The criminal investigation of wrongdoing at Western Bank is continuing, the FBI agent said.

Man charged with double slayings

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — An El Paso man has been charged with capital murder in the slayings of his lover and her husband after their bodies were found dumped in the southern New Mexico desert, police say.

Police Lt. Paul Saucedo said Paul Gregory Robinson, 25, was charged Thursday in connection with the Aug. 25 slayings of Gayle Sealy Mathews, 18, and Carl Mathews, whose age was not available. Robinson is being held in lieu of $500,000 bond today.

Saucedo said the slayings occurred when Carl Mathews walked into Robinson's home and found Robinson and Gayle Mathews there.

Saucedo said officers found Carl Mathews' body after Robinson led officers to a spot in New Mexico in Otero County, about 7 miles north of the Texas line.

Gayle Mathews' body was discovered by hunters Saturday in the same area, on Fort Bliss property, authorities said.

Saucedo said the FBI and El Paso police "received information that led them to (Robinson)," but he would not elaborate.

From their investigation, police determined that "Paul (Robinson) and Gayle (Mathews) were having some sort of romantic affair," Saucedo said.

"Paul and Gayle were in Paul's home on Aug. 25 when Carl (the husband) walks in and a fight breaks out between Carl and Paul," Saucedo said. "Paul reaches for a handgun he had in the house and shoots Carl once. Gayle becomes hysterical, cries and screams, and throws things. He (Robinson) shoots her. Then he places them in the bathroom overnight."

Saucedo said Robinson took the bodies, one at a time, the next day and dumped them in the desert.

Carl Mathews' mother had reported the two were missing since Aug. 24, the FBI said.

"This is a multi-agency investigation," Saucedo said.

No obsession with hostages this time

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State James A. Baker III issued a comprehensive statement on the Persian Gulf crisis the other day that barely mentioned American hostages in Kuwait and Iraq.

In a curious way, Baker was speaking volumes about Bush administration policy on the issue: American hostages are not going to be an obsession of this administration, in contrast with its predecessors.

Hostage crises produced the darkest hours for the last two presidents. Of Ronald Reagan's eight years in office, none was more trying than the late 1986-87 period when his efforts to obtain the release of the American hostages in Lebanon degenerated into the Iran-Contra affair.

President Bush and Baker, both top lieutenants of Reagan, had bird's eye views of the political costs of the blunders Reagan committed in his eagerness to get the hostages home.

And memories are still fresh of how President Carter was virtually chained to the White House for months on end in 1979-80, try-

Americans held on Saddam Hussein's turf than there were in Tehran a decade ago.

But that ignores the efforts the administration has made on behalf of the hostages, many of which have received little attention. The U.S. Embassy in Iraq makes daily appeals to the Iraqi Foreign Ministry for their release. The main reason the American Embassy in Kuwait remains open — under appalling conditions — in defiance of Iraqi orders is so that U.S. diplomats there can try to help the 2,200 or so Americans trapped in Kuwait.

There are also tales of American diplomats loitering sometimes for days on end at the Iraqi border with Turkey, Jordan or Saudi Arabia, awaiting the possibility that a stray American in need of assistance might turn up. When an American appeared at the Saudi border the other day, she was received by a lonesome U.S. diplomat who had been staked out there for eight days.

But there is a distinct let's-do-it-differently-from-Carter-and-Reagan image being projected by the administration concerning this hostage crisis.

The families of some hostages object to what they regard as the cavalier attitude of Bush and Baker toward the captives.

"If it was the president's son, he would not go on vacation," said Florence Culbertson, wife of a former hostage who returned to his Texas home this week.

The administration is operating under the assumption that the best way to obtain freedom for the hostages is to devalue them, make their captors believe they will gain nothing by continuing to hold them.

AP analysis

ing to devise a strategy for liberating the 52 American hostages in Iran. In his reelection bid, Carter carried six states.

Some might say the current administration is being cold-hearted in not giving the Americans in Kuwait and Iraq its highest priority. After all, there are about 50 times more

To drum up votes back home...

Incumbents head for Saudi dessert

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of the most popular stops on the campaign trail this year is the Saudi Arabian desert.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., showcased his chairmanship of the Foreign Relations Committee by leading a delegation to the Persian Gulf last weekend.

Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., was seen on local television interviewing home-state soldiers in the gulf. And Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., greeted voters in a USS Wisconsin hat upon his return.

"With the country in the grip of a Middle East crisis, candidates are racing to demonstrate their patriotism and support for the U.S. military.

The themes are traditionally Republican and would appear to favor that party's candidates. But the unstable international situation makes voters less apt to throw out incumbents — most of whom are Democrats.

At least one GOP incumbent stands to gain from the gulf confrontation — Helms, a diehard conservative facing a tough challenge from Democrat Harvey Gantt, the black former mayor of Charlotte, N.C.

Gantt champions education and environmental concerns, and criticizes Helms for opposing spending in those areas. The gulf situation allows Helms to divert attention to the kind of federal spending he does support — defense.

In a new Helms ad, a narrator talks about Iraq's Saddam Hussein, his chemical weapons and the U.S. troops in Saudi Arabia. "Should we cut defense $300 billion?" the voice asks. Helms says no, Gantt says yes, the narrator explains.

Gantt made the proposal long before Iraq invaded Kuwait and says he still believes the money can be saved over the next five to eight years or longer. But he adds, "I think the voters understand very clearly that Harvey Gantt stands behind the president and stands behind our troops."

Gantt is not the only candidate who has been forced on the defensive by the gulf crisis. Many who have promoted Pentagon cuts or voiced reservations about the U.S. role in the gulf are finding themselves vulnerable to attack.

In Oregon, for example, GOP Rep. Denny Smith is accusing his Democratic challenger, Mike Kopetski, of "cozying up to Saddam Hussein" and promoting appeasement tactics that didn't stop Hitler.

Kopetski, who nearly toppled Smith in 1988, did say he opposed military action and hoped the Iraqi aggression "wouldn't go any further than Kuwait." However, the remarks were made the same day as the invasion and Kopetski has since said he supports President Bush's moves.

Smith's strategy could backfire in the end. Editorial writers across Oregon are criticizing him for opportunist and offensive campaign tactics.

The gulf crisis has become a significant factor in other races as well — including Senate contests in Iowa, Michigan, Illinois and Nebraska, where three Republican representatives and a former congressman are trying to oust four Democratic incumbents.

In Nebraska, former Rep. Hal Daub pounced on Sen. James Exon for expressing reluctance to engage U.S. troops in combat in the gulf region. In Iowa, meanwhile, Rep. Tom Tauke said Sen. Tom Harkin's questions about whether Bush needed to call up the reserves were "either tragically misinformed or blatant opportunism."

Rep. Lynn Martin ridiculed Illinois' dovish Sen. Paul Simon as "an election-year macho man" for urging last month that Iraqi oil pipelines be bombed. And in Michigan, Rep. Bill Schuette has attacked Levin for past votes against conventional weapons.

But the senators are fighting back with trips to the Persian Gulf, news clips of them with the troops, talk show appearances, op-ed newspaper pieces and emphasis on any relevant positions of authority — in Levin's case, his chairmanship of the conventional forces and alliance defense subcommittee.

Exciting developments are in the offing for you in the year ahead. You will have several opportunities to correct old mistakes and turn failures into victories. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Strive to be enthusiastic and optimistic today and not just a wishful thinker. Leaving things to chance and keeping your fingers crossed doesn't guarantee success. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Being non-judgmental and trusting definitely has its place, but not necessarily in your commercial affairs today. Don't take people for granted in this area.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) If an arrangement isn't all you were told it would be, don't be hesitant to renegotiate it immediately. Unamended you might come out the loser.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Your financial trends look encouraging today, provide you're willing to work for what you hope to get. Dame Fortune might ignore you when she's passing out goodies on a silver platter.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) If you're going to take gambles on anything or anybody today, bet on yourself and your own endeavors. Outsiders and outside interests are poor second choices.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) A decision you're contemplating making today you hope will appease another could prove unwise, because you might have to make a type of commitment you'll later be unable to fulfill.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In order to be a productive achiever today you're going to have to maintain a rather steady schedule. If you do things in fits and starts you'll have more beginnings than endings.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your well planned budget could end up being just a piece of paper with numbers on it today if you ignore it in order to cater to your extravagant momentary whims.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It might be imprudent today to bank too heavily on what you think is your ace in the hole. Serious involvements should be treated responsibly and let not left up to a capricious turn of chance.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Keeping secrets may not be your long suit today and there is a chance you may talk about something confidential to a person who is definitely not supposed to be on the listening list.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You have the ability to weigh and balance situations rather accurately today, yet you might do something foolish against your better judgment that will not go too well for you financially.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You won't be lacking ideas today but quantity is not assurance of quality. If associates or companions think your suggestions are better, they may be right.

ries his Indocin with him constantly because he never knows when an attack will appear. Is there any current information on this nasty affliction?

DEAR READER: Gouty arthritis is caused by the appearance of uric acid crystals in joints. The acute pain and swelling can usually be controlled by anti-inflammatory drugs, such as Indocin, Butazolidin or colchicine.

However, a more appropriate treatment is prevention. Allopurinol (Zyloprim) or Colbenemid when taken daily, blocks the formation of uric acid crystals. Therefore, these prescription medicines usually prevent attacks of gout. They are also useful in avoiding the kidney damage that may accompany gout.

During acute attacks, uric acid crystals may form in the kidneys. These crystals are sharp and cause tiny lacerations in kidney tissue, which — although painless — can progressively reduce renal efficiency, leading to hypertension and kidney failure.

Your husband should ask his doctor about using a preventative, which should reduce or eliminate his gouty attacks. To give you more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "About Gout." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their names and addresses to P.O. Box 91269, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have endometriosis, and my gynecologist has prescribed a nose spray to help my symptoms. Does this make any sense?

DEAR READER: Yes, it does. Nafarelin (marketed as Synarel) is a new drug for endometriosis, a common female affliction marked by abnormal islands of uterine tissue outside the womb. During menstruation, this tissue bleeds, causing cramps and pain. Endometriosis is also associated with painful intercourse and infertility.

Synarel, which is readily absorbed through the nasal lining, blocks the production of female hormone (estrogen), thereby inhibiting ovulation and stopping menstruation. It is administered twice daily.

Initial reports have been encouraging: About 90 percent of patients experienced improvement in symptoms. The primary side effects of the drug appear to be due to its suppression of estrogen, leading to acne, weight gain, hot flashes, vaginal dryness, moodiness and headaches — in short, many symptoms of menopause. However, these symptoms disappear when the drug is discontinued after a few months of treatment. Synarel is available by prescription and should not be used during pregnancy or if pregnancy is contemplated.

Pearl supports United Way

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Minnie Pearl poked fun at her pacemaker when she urged support for United Way.

The humorist and Grand Ole Opry star said Thursday "the doctor must have put it in wrong. Every time my husband kisses me, the garage door goes up."

Arrest warrants issued

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A nine-month sting operation by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department resulted in 24 arrest warrants issued to Central Texas fishermen, restaurant owners and market operators.

The warrants allege they were involved in the illicit sale of game fish.

During the operation, undercover officers purchased more than 4,000 pounds of illegal game fish. Game wardens made the cases by posing as fish buyers, buying the fish for $1 a pound.

The sting involved the sale of hybrid-striped bass, white bass, striped bass and species of protected and endangered paddlefish. Thirty-one cases were filed against people who bought fish.

Parks and Wildlife officials said the sting was the second largest in the state. A redfish sting operation in 1988 resulted in arrests of fishermen and restaurant owners from the Gulf Coast to Dallas.

The wardens filed 346 cases in Dallas, Collin, Grayson and Rockwall counties. Each case represents one fish, but wardens said thousands of cases could have been filed.

"A lot of fishermen had a lot more fish," said Lt. Don Parker, game warden district supervisor in Dallas. "If they had more than 10 fish, we only filed 10 cases on them."

Most of the fish recovered by the operation came from Lake Texoma and Lake Lavon. The fish were reportedly being shipped to Dallas for use at Oriental restaurants and sale at Asian markets, the Tyler Courier-Times Telegraph reported.

All of the cases are misdemeanors and carry a top fine of $500, but there also are civil restitution charges for each fish. Restitution depends on the size of the fish, and ranges from 18 cents to $232. No charges have been determined on the paddlefish, but there is a $1,000 surcharge for endangered species.

Sale of endangered species also could bring federal charges.

Woman pastoring HUMC since June, 1989

By Joyce Jones
SDN Staff Writer
Even though Carol Crumpton is the first woman pastor in the history of Hermleigh United Methodist Church, she said the congregation welcomed her with open arms. "They were very loving and accepting," she said. She was appointed pastor in June of 1989.

The fact that she is a female pastor is not that unusual anymore, as many denominations are now accepting women into the ministry. However, her husband, Larry, is the pastor of First United Methodist Church in Roby. She said it is a little unusual to have a husband and wife both serving as pastors. The Crumptons are licensed pastors and both are studying to be ordained pastors. They attend summer school at Perkins Seminary on the SMU campus in Dallas. Carol also attends classes in Midland while she pursues a degree in drug and alcohol abuse counseling.

"One of the country's greatest problems is drug and alcohol abuse, and through counseling and the church I want to help people who have these problems," she said. She noted that more and more churches are joining the fight against drug and alcohol abuse by offering programs and counseling in their communities.

Carol was born in Burkburnett and was reared in another denomination, but converted to the Methodist faith as an adult after she married. Since her husband was a Methodist, she said she felt that they should attend the same church.

They have three children: a son, Glenn lives and works in San Antonio for Southwestern Bell; another son, Evan is going to school in Odessa and he also intends to enter the Methodist ministry; a daughter, Cheryl Brown lives in Denver Colo. and is a petroleum engineer.

Crumpton has always been active in the church, working wherever she was needed, but she has been particularly active with youth groups. She said they received their call to full-time ministry work during a spiritual renewal program, "Walk to Emmaus," which they attended in Kerrville.

Before becoming ministers, she and her husband lived in Midland for 12 years, where they owned an oil operations company. Her husband's past career has been in the oilfields and she was a bookkeeper. They have lived in the West Texas area for a total of 20 years.

Crumpton said she thinks more people are going to church now because of the Mid-East crisis. "People tend to come back to church during a crisis. When things are going better, they stay away," she said.

The Hermleigh church offers only Sunday morning services, no evening services. But they do rotate 'all church fellowship' and 'youth fellowship' services on Sunday nights. She said that all the young people in the community are invited to attend youth fellowship, regardless of their church affiliation, or even if they do not attend church elsewhere.

The church will be holding its annual Fall Festival on Oct. 6. Crumpton said that it gets everyone in the church involved, even the shut-ins, who make and donate crafts. They will have a large variety of crafts for sale, a garage sale and will serve a barbecue dinner. Everyone who can walk takes an active part, and meals are delivered to those who are unable to attend. The community is invited to take an active part in the festivities.

In Mexico...

Police register patrol car

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — El Paso police say they obtained Mexican license plates and a registration sticker for a department patrol car with information written on scratch paper and $300.

Authorities said they obtained the items to show how easy it is to get them for cars that are stolen in El Paso and driven across the border.

Police displayed the patrol car Thursday at a news conference held on the same day mayors from 22 U.S. and Mexico border cities were meeting to find ways to solve mutual problems.

The car had Chihuahua, Mexico plates and a matching sticker for the back window. Lt. Dennis Shelley, commander of the auto theft division, said the items and a registration receipt were obtained for $300.

"The reason we did this is to prove that the auto-theft problem goes beyond the little thief on the street," Shelley said. "Corruption is ingrained in the system. The Mexican officials getting paid to register obviously stolen cars are contributing to our theft rate."

Police said they gave a contact a piece of paper with the patrol car's vehicle identification number, the make and model written on the paper.

The contact went to a Mexican official at the tax collection office of the Mexican justice department where people go to register their vehicles.

Mexican officials didn't ask to speak to the owner of the car or inspect the vehicle as they are supposed to do, according to law, Shelley said.

Colonial Hill adds service on Sunday

Colonial Hill Baptist Church will begin offering two Sunday morning worship services this Sunday. The first service will begin at 8:45 a.m. and conclude at 9:30 a.m. The second service will be from 11 a.m. to noon.

Each service will be identical, so everyone may choose which service they wish to attend.

The 11 a.m. service will be televised and Sunday School will begin at 9:45 a.m. as usual.

Church leaders said they are excited about this new ministry which they hope will benefit the community. Having two worship services will enable people who work to attend the early service, as well as those who would like to spend the rest of the day with their families.

They also didn't ask for other documents required to register an imported car in Mexico, he said.

During the summer, El Paso police accused Mexican authorities of running auto theft rings in El Paso, which had more than 5,000 cars stolen last year. The accusation touched off a war of words across the border and seemed to be calming down.

Mayor Suzie Azar did not seem bothered that the police revealed the results of their investigation on the same day of the Border Mayors Conference where officials were talking about the need to unite.

REV. CAROL CROMPTON

Colonial Hill plans film for Sunday

"Love they neighbor as thyself."

It's the second greatest commandment in the Bible, and one of the hardest to obey. If heeded by mankind, it would effectively make war, poverty, hunger and injustice obsolete. If applied by an individual, it can change a person forever.

Mike Adkins discovered the power of love when he grudgingly obeyed that command and became a friend to his "unlovable" neighbor, Norman. The story of their unusual relationship is told in a film presentation entitled "A Man Called Norman," which will be shown at 7 p.m. Sunday at Colonial Hill Baptist Church.

In this release from Focus on the Family Films, Adkins describes how he befriended Norman — a misfit who has been rejected by everyone in town. As their relationship grew, Adkins discovered that the road to recovery was a two-way street with very tangible rewards for both men. The film chronicles the unusual friendship — sometimes humorous, sometimes touching — between two individuals whose lives have been changed forever.

Most of the film was shot before an audience of 5,000 people in the Chicago area. Also included is footage filmed on location at a major league baseball game in St. Louis and at Norman's house in the coal-mining community of West Frankford, Ill.
