Snyder residents show support of servicemen in Mideast crisis

By JOYCE JONES
SDN Staff Writer
Local residents are joining in a mounting effort to show support for U.S. servicemen sent to the Persian Gulf area with yellow ribbons and care packages. "Tie a yellow ribbon around the old oak tree," could be the theme, by all the yellow ribbons seen around town tied to trees, posts, car antennas, on doors and windows, on clothing and even in little girls' hair.

Friendly Flowers has been donating yellow ribbon to decorate the downtown area and Higginbotham-Bartlett is giving out ribbon (yellow flagging tape) to anyone who wants to come by and pick it up.

Tuesday evening, a group worked around the courthouse square decorating trees, posts and whatever else they could find on which to tie a yellow ribbon. Residents helping to decorate were Rosie Kerry and her two children, Nicole and Charles, both decked out with yellow ribbons; James Beauchamp; Donna Fowler; Melissa Doty with Ashlye Amox, who had yellow bows tied on her dark brown pigtails; and Missy Trull and her mother, Mary Lee.

Mrs. Leatha Stout would also like to show her support and needs some help with her idea. She is trying to get people interested in preparing care packages for the service men. Her suggestion for some of the items would be homemade candies and cookies, small

Local civic leader named volunteer developer of year

ABILENE — Roy Baze, Snyder civic leader who coordinated Snyder's successful prison project, today was honored as the Volunteer Industrial Developer of the Year.

The award was presented at noon during the 40th annual meeting of the Texas Industrial Development Council at the Embassy Suites.

Baze was honored as the top economic developer for cities with less than 50,000 population. The award is the highest economic development honor bestowed upon volunteers. Nominations were made throughout Texas. Baze's nomination was submitted by the Snyder chamber of commerce.

The award was submitted for 1989, the year that the prison project was completed with the opening of the Price Daniel Unit. The 1,000-bed facility employs about 300 people with an annual payroll of $6.5 million.

Starting in early 1987, the retired Exxon executive spearheaded the prison effort and organized other volunteers who worked on the project. Snyder was selected as a site for the prison at a November 1987 meeting of the prison board.

After the site selection, Baze continued to be a liaison between the community and the Texas Department of Criminal Justice, assisting the state in its transition into West Texas.

Baze regularly attends meetings of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice and has assisted Western Texas College and Cogdell Hospital in reaping the economic benefits of the unit being located in Scurry County. Baze was also active in the ef-orts to raise $1 million in just three weeks to help finance incentives that were included in Snyder's proposal. In 1989, Baze again led an effort for the location of another 1,000-bed unit on

Local store not among 30 to close

From local, wire reports Kmart Corp. in Troy, Mich., said today that the Snyder Kmart store is not one of the stores the giant merchandiser is planning to close by the end of the year.

Kmart announced Wednesday that stores in Huntsville, Liberty and Corpus Christi would be among 30 nationwide to close on Dec. 21 as part of the chain's move toward bigger stores.

Mary Lorencz, spokeswoman for the retailer, said "Those may not be the only stores in Texas to close by the end of the year, but I don't have any information about the Snyder store closing."

The Liberty and Huntsville stores are the only Kmart stores in those communities. The Corpus Christi store is one of four that serves the area.

According to Kmart, employees at those stores would be given priority if they sought jobs at other Kmart stores. The Huntsville store employs about 60 people. About 50 people work at the Liberty store.

Huntsville officials are asking Kmart to reconsider its decision, noting that the area economy is improving.

SHS senior chosen as NMS semifinalist

Snyder High School senior Amy M. Armstrong has been named a semifinalist in the 1991 National Merit Scholarship Program.

Some 15,000 semifinalists have been chosen from over 1,900 U.S. high schools which participated in this event.

More than 1,000,000 students entered the 1991 Merit Program as juniors by taking the 1989 Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT), which served as an initial screening of the large volume of entrants. "I thought I might have a chance, but I wasn't sure," said Armstrong. She was notified of her semifinalist position last week by high school counselor Janet Wesson.

The test is something that Armstrong has been preparing for since her sophomore year when she first took the test for practice. The summer before her junior year, she studied by taking practice tests and getting familiar with the grading system.

In February, 14,000 finalist will be announced.

Armstrong plans to attend Baylor and if chosen as a finalist, she is guaranteed full tuition for four years at the university. She plans to major in engineering.

To qualify as a finalist, a semifinalist must have an outstanding academic record, must be endorsed and recommended by the school principal, must confirm PSAT/NMSQT performance on the SAT, and must complete a detailed scholarship application that includes a self-description and information about scholastic accomplishments, school and community activities, and educational plans and goals.

Hunter safety course slated over weekend

Saturday and Sunday are the dates for a Canyon Gun Club-sponsored hunter education course; a necessity according to the state, for young would-be hunters.

Texas residents with a birth date during the period of Sept. 2, 1971, through Aug. 31, 1975, must have successfully completed the course in order to hunt alone in Texas.

The course will be held from 7 a.m. until 5 p.m. on Saturday, and from 1-4 p.m. Sunday in the Snyder National Bank community room.

The course is open to adults and youngsters and will include instruction in rifle, shotgun and

Students age 12 or older who successfully complete the course will be issued a hunter safety card from the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department.

The course fee is $5 per student.

Instructors for the course will be Bill Robbins and Calvin Goebel. For more information, contact Robbins at 573-0795, Goebel at 573-6938 or Game Warden Mel Reed at 573-2884.

KENT HANCE

Perry, Hance to make stop in Snyder Friday

Texas Railroad Commission Chairman Kent Hance will hold a joint press conference with Rick Perry — Republican candidate for Texas Agriculture Commissioner — at 9:15 a.m. Friday at Winston Field.

Hance, a former U.S. Congressman and Texas State Senator from Lubbock, is accompanying the candidate on Perry's campaign tour of six West Texas towns. The two are expected to address the importance of the oil-agriculture relationship and the international marketing of both industries.

Perry, a farmer and rancher from Haskell, has served three terms as a state representative and faces Democratic incumbent Jim Hightower in the Nov. 6 general election for the state's (see PERRY, page 8)

The SDN Column

By Roy McQueen

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Frank communication can be as stimulating as black coffee—and just as hard to sleep after."

The National Association for Hospital Development came up with some interesting but alarming statistics.

A study revealed that most hospitals in the U.S. are suffering from the "red-ink syndrome." In just 10 years, the number of hospitals in the nation will decline from 6,800 to 4,100.

Some 2,700 will have closed their doors or converted to psychiatric institutions, drug-treatment centers or some other business.

All the problems are not in rural America. Public and non-profit inner-city hospitals are hurting the most with some 60 percent of these operating at a loss.

These hospitals are the ones to which the majority of the 31 million with no health insurance go for medical care. Another factor is that public hospitals provide more than half of the care for AIDS patients.

It is estimated that by the year 2000, one night in a semi-private hospital room will, on the average, cost $650 as hospital operating costs double in the next 10 years.

The best advice: don't get sick.

Nobody wants ill health, but you can more likely pay for it if you happen to be an entertainer or sports figure.

A recent list of the top money-makers shows Michael Jackson again number one. In just two years, the 31-year-old singer took home a nifty $125 million.

Steven Spielberg, the motion picture producer and director, was next at $105 million, followed by comedian Bill Cosby at $95 million.

The top sports personality was boxer Mike Tyson, 23, who earned $71 million in two years. Others in the top ten included cartoonist Charles Schulz, $60 million; actor Eddie Murphy, $57 million; the rock group Pink Floyd, $56 million; the rock group Rolling Stones, $55 million; talk show hostess Oprah Winfrey, $55 million; and pop singer, George Michael, $47 million.

You may have noticed there's not a newspaper guy in the bunch.

Witness says sheriff chased, threatened him

DECATUR, Texas (AP) — Wise County Sheriff Leroy Burch on Tuesday chased a grand jury witness in his car, yanked him out of the vehicle and threatened to kill him, officials say.

The witness captured the altercation on a miniature tape recorder in his shirt pocket, authorities said Wednesday.

Sam Lee, an investigator for the Wise County attorney's office, suffered several cuts on the back of his head during the altercation Tuesday, according to Jerry Cobb, the special prosecutor handling a grand jury inquiry into the Sheriff's Department.

On the tape, the sheriff, sometimes screaming, repeatedly threatens to kill Lee.

"I ain't gonna fight you. I'm going to kill you. I'm going to kill you, Sam," Sheriff Burch said as the two began arguing.

Burch, 36, who was appointed to his position four years ago, did not return telephone calls to his office, The Dallas Morning News reported.

The sheriff issued a two-page statement about the incident late Wednesday. He did not deny making the threats but accused Lee of deliberately trying to provoke him by harassing his teen-age daughter.

Sheriff Burch's threats came only minutes after an encounter outside a doughnut shop between Lee and the sheriff's 17-year-old daughter. Lee says the daughter approached him at the shop about 8 a.m., called him a name and accused him of trying to put her father in jail.

Sheriff Burch said in his statement that Lee "made harassing remarks to her using abusive and profane language."

Lee only acknowledged raising his voice after he said the girl called him a foul name.

The sheriff's statement said: "Apparently this incident had been premeditated in an attempt to provoke me into a physical confrontation not as the sheriff, but as a father."

"Apparently the county attorney's office feels the grand jury is not going to indict me on any criminal charges as they would have, so they've taken a new approach and launched a personal vendetta," Burch said.

County Attorney Jean Bishop said her office had nothing to do with the incident Tuesday. "I wasn't even aware of it until after the fact," she said.

Lee, a former sheriff's deputy, in July testified before grand jurors for three hours. The panel is investigating allegations of civil rights violations and narcotics trafficking involving the Sheriff's Department and the county's only bail agent. Those allegations first were raised in articles published by The Dallas Morning News earlier this year.

Cobb said Wednesday that he has investigated the confrontation between the two peace officers and plans to present his findings to the grand jury on Friday.

The sheriff has been invited to appear Friday before the panel, which is scheduled to finish its work Sept. 21.

Law enforcement officials said that when the sheriff learned from his daughter of her encounter with Lee, he telephoned Wise County District Attorney Pat Morris. In that conversation, the sheriff told Morris that he was going to kill Lee, said an official who did not want to be identified.

Morris declined to comment on the conversation, but investigators said he immediately notified Texas Department of Public Safety officers, who began looking for Lee and the sheriff.

Lee said he was driving away from Decatur when he met the sheriff, who was driving towards town. He said the sheriff turned his car around, passed him, slammed on the brakes and forced him off the road.

It was then that the confrontation began.

Lee says Burch has threatened him before, including once soon after the newspaper reported that the Sheriff's Department had arrested hundreds of men at a roadside park on indecent-exposure charges that many of the men contended were false.

School shooting indicates gang problem

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The shootings of three high school students show that San Antonio's gang violence problem is about to get out of control, parents and community leaders say.

"It has been getting so bad, lately," said County Juvenile Court Judge Tom Rickhoff. "It's time we start doing more preventive work instead of just greeting these people in court."

Three teen-agers were wounded when gunfire erupted Tuesday during lunch break at Sam Houston High School on the city's east side. Students describe the San Antonio School District school as fraught with drugs and gangs.

Three other students, including a varsity football player, were arrested and charged with aggravated assault with a deadly weapon in connection with the shootings.

"We've got a gang problem and, damn it, nobody wants to admit it," said Lt. William Maldonado of the San Antonio School District police force. "It's spilling over into the streets. It's spilling over into our schools."

San Antonio police, through a special task force, have been documenting gang activity throughout the city. More than 45 gangs have been identified by name.

"It is not out of control, yet," said Maldonado. "But it will be soon if we don't do something about it."

The Northside School District

recently hired former city police chief Charles Rodriguez to help educators and parents identify youth gangs and gang behavior.

East side community activist T.C. Calvert said he and other residents have warned city leaders about the gangs. "The violence has got to stop," he said.

Frustrated parents who gathered outside of Sam Houston High School after the shootings said they and their children are afraid.

"I want my son out of here — what is this world coming to?" one woman shouted.

Todd Hollingsworth, whose nephew is a Sam Houston student, said: "You don't send your kids to school for this. The best thing they can do is close the school down until they find a solution to it."

Rachel Clark said her son was afraid to go to the school football game Friday night because he heard there was going to be gang violence.

"He said that they (the gangs) were going to finish it at the game," she said.

Charles Shannon, executive director of the Alamo YMCA on the east side, said police should have taken action last week when three weapons were found in a locker at the school.

"You can't be but disappointed when you see this type of activity in the community," Shannon said. "The Police Department needs to work with the community more to help it get away from the gang problem."

Dr. Gott

Peter Gott, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I had recent hemorrhoid surgery, and about every four to six weeks I become impacted from the surgical scars. I then take magnesium citrate. Are there any long-term effects of using this remedy? Metamucil and stool softeners don't work, and I need help.

DEAR READER: You don't mention how long ago you had hemorrhoid surgery. This information is important because difficult evacuation is common for a few days after hemorrhoidectomy, yet you seem to have had difficulty for several weeks. This is very unusual and suggests that something went wrong with the surgery.

Return to your surgeon and request an explanation for your bowel problem.

Impaction — the accumulation of large amounts of fecal material in the lower colon — is an extremely uncomfortable condition because the fecal mass cannot be passed through the anus until it has been manually broken up into smaller pieces.

Impaction is always preceded by constipation. Therefore, you may be able to prevent impaction by treating the constipation with stool softeners/laxative combinations (such as Pericolace), a high-fiber diet (with bran and roughage) or a mild laxative (such as magnesia-containing compounds). Magnesium citrate is safe to use for extended periods, but you would obviously be more comfortable dealing with the primary cause of your constipation. This is where your surgeon's advice would be helpful.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I visited the Caribbean four years ago and subsequently had a problem with a burning sensation in the heels of my feet that has progressed up my legs to my buttocks. I've been to many doctors who have diagnosed high cholesterol, bone spurs and everything else imaginable, yet I still have the problem. Could I have picked up a rare disease in the Caribbean? I'm at my wits' end.

DEAR READER: I can't think of any exotic Caribbean disease that would cause a burning sensation in the legs for four years without other symptoms, such as fever, weight loss, fatigue and diarrhea — if you had been unlucky enough to have picked a parasitic disease, for example. More likely, your symptoms reflect a more common affliction. Burning sensations, which progress upward from the feet, suggest a neuropathy — a malfunction of the nerves in your extremities. This ailment is a common consequence of diabetes or circulatory disturbances that deprive the nerves of oxygen.

Perhaps, because of your high blood cholesterol, you have developed arteriosclerotic plaque in the arteries to your legs. This progressive blockage could affect the nutrition to the nerves, leading to burning and, often, tingling and numbness.

See a neurologist. After examining how well the nerves in your lower extremities are functioning, the specialist should be able to advise you further — whether, for instance, you need the services of a vascular expert or an internist (a doctor trained in the treatment of metabolic disorders, such as diabetes).

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Medical Specialists." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their names and addresses to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Taking up slack sets up squeeze

Perennial North American bridge champion Norman Kay demonstrated his expert declarer play in the Omar Sharif Individual Tournament in May. Other declarers who got as high as four hearts were usually defeated when West led his singleton diamond and got a ruff. A spade would then be played, declarer winning dummy's ace and playing a heart to East's ace. Although East was not able to give West another ruff, in most cases South still had to lose a club.

Declarer Kay made a simple little play that brought in the thin game contract. After winning dummy's spade ace, he ruffed a spade. Only then did he force out the trump ace. As he cashed out his trump winners and good diamonds, West ran out of discards. Eventually West blanked his club king, hoping that East would hold the queen. No such luck. When declarer played the club 10 to dummy's ace, West's king popped up. South's queen now took the game-going trick.

A word about the bidding: It was aggressive for South to go on to game, and he caught quite a good dummy in that only one card, the spade jack, was wasted in the play. But in all forms of bridge scoring, it is a good gamble to bid a close vulnerable game.

Tips for freezing tomatoes

Kathryn Roberts, County Extension Agent — Home Economics has some tips on the proper method of freezing tomatoes for those of you who have been calling her office and asking about it.

Freezing is a simple and fast method of preserving foods at home that keeps the natural color, fresh flavor and food value of most fruits and vegetables. Select good quality products. The food coming out of the freezer will be no better than it was before it was frozen and stored.

Speed in preparation is necessary. Promptness in handling, chilling, and freezing any product helps retain quality. It is also necessary to control the growth of bacteria, yeasts and molds and to stop the chemical action of enzymes.

To freeze stewed tomatoes, remove stem ends, peel and quarter tomatoes. Cover and cook until tender, about 10 to 20 minutes. Place pan containing tomatoes in ice water to cool.

Place in moisture-vapor-proof containers which are air-tight. Freeze immediately at 0 degrees F.

Educational programs conducted by the Texas Agricultural Extension Service serve people of all ages regardless of socioeconomic level, race, color, sex, religion, handicap or national origin.

Red Raiders face UH run-and-shoot

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — Get ready, America, here comes the run-and-shoot.

The Houston Cougars, who spent three dark years out of sight but not out of mind, finally get to show off their high-powered offense to the nation in tonight's game with the Texas Tech Red Raiders.

Tech and the 18th-ranked Cougars, who are coming off probation that kept them off television and out of bowl games, kick off the Southwest Conference season on ESPN at 7:07 p.m. CDT.

The game will mark Houston's first nationally televised appearance in three years, and Cougars coach John Jenkins said he doesn't want his coming-out party spoiled by a tough Tech team guided by his buddy Spike Dykes.

"I want to be able to walk across the field and put my arm around him and tell him they'll get better," Jenkins said.

Dykes and Jenkins were both assistant coaches at Mississippi State in 1979.

But Tech linebacker Charlie Rowe said he fears there will be nothing friendly about the Cougars tonight. He said he thinks they'll want to show off.

"They are going to try to show the country what the run-and-shoot is all about," Rowe said. "Hopefully, they won't be able to use us as an example."

The scoreboard-busting offense, masterminded by Jenkins, averaged 53.5 points and 511 yards passing last year.

Houston became known as the "best team never seen" due to the NCAA-imposed television blackout. But the lack of exposure could not keep the Heisman Trophy from Andre Ware, who broke 26 NCAA passing and total offense records.

Houston, now led by quarterback David Klingler, defeated Nevada-Las Vegas 37-9 Saturday in the Astrodome, and Dykes said he noticed no dropoff from last year's pass-crazy offense.

"It's scary when they get to rolling because they don't ever huddle," he said. "You don't know whether to see... somebody in or not send somebody in. And, boy, when they line up under that center, (the receivers) scatter like a covey of quail."

Jenkins said the Red Raiders, 9-3 with a victory over Duke in the All American Bowl last year, are a "hard-nosed bunch of guys."

"We've had some all-day fights with Texas Tech, and this one should be no different," Jenkins said. "Last year we were up 17-0 and they kind of matched us score for score after that." Houston beat Tech 40-24 last year.

"We were intercepted three times last year in their end zone," Dykes said. "Year before that we lost by one point. Year before that it was 10-10. So its' been a close situation, and for some reason our guys play well against that kind of an offense."

Dykes is calling upon any means possible to disarm the pigskin grenades of Houston's aerial assault — even the weather.

"Maybe we could get rain or snow or maybe we could get a 40-mph wind blowing," Dykes said. "That might help."

Houston's air attack was slowed by a driving snowstorm when the two teams met in Lubbock two years ago. Barely able to find the goal line, the Cougars finally shoveled their way into the end zone late in the fourth quarter for a 30-29 victory.

Tigers host Clyde...

District 2-4A teams see Friday action

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

With one week's competition under their belts four District 2-4A squads are seeking their second win of the season Friday night and a pair are looking to break into the W column.

Second-ranked Lubbock Estacado rolled over 5A Plainview 33-14 a week ago while Frenship nipped Andrews 12-7, Dunbar blew past Canyon Randall 26-12 and Lamesa thrashed Denver City 40-14.

Snyder held No. 18 Monahans at bay for most of the game but still came away with a 14-0 loss and Levelland was thumped by Pampa 20-0.

This week's action sees Snyder entertaining Clyde, Levelland at Canyon Randall, Dunbar at San Angelo Lake View and the Estacado Matadors hosting No. 6 Big Spring in what could be a post-season preview on Friday night.

The lone Saturday tilt finds Lamesa at Caprock.

Clyde at Snyder
The Tigers defense held Monahans' Joey Munoz to just 55 yards a week ago and allowed the entire running game of the Lobos just 60 yards.

Dropped passes, 11 penalty flags totalling 90 yards and three missed scoring opportunities inside the MHS 20 cost Snyder the game.

Tiger tailback Paul Anderson was the game's leading rusher with 67 yards on 11 carries.

Terry Snyder caught three passes for 33 yards and quarterback Ed Rios was 6 of 24 for 113 yards and three interceptions.

Clyde rolled for 22 first downs against Stamford last Friday.

The Bulldogs jumped on Stamford's defense for 258 rushing yards.

Big Spring at Estacado
Estacado manhandled Plainview's Bulldogs last week with the Mats' Robert J. Johnson rushing 19 times for 126 yards, including TD runs of 25 and 7 yards. Estacado also moved for 18 first downs.

The EHS defense allowed just 67 yards on 45 rushing attempts by Plainview and gave up just four pass completions on 11 tries for 93 yards.

Big Spring stomped Amarillo Caprock 42-13 with all-district wingback Neal Mayfield gathering 94 yards on 17 carries and taking five passes for a whopping 241 yards — the entire aerial output of the Steers.

Big Spring's offense rolled up over 500 yards while the defensive squad held Caprock to just 278.

Levelland at Canyon Randall

The Raiders are facing their second 2-4A foe in as many weeks after being dumped by Dunbar last Thursday in the season opener for both teams.

Levelland was shut out by Pampa, 20-0, and is looking for win No. 1 in 1990 against Randall.

The Lobos wound up the contest with 319 total yards including an effort by tailback Brooks Broussard which netted 92 yards on 16 carries.

Randall's offense against Dunbar was good for two scores, one TD a 1-yard lunge by running back Gary Cox and the other a Brandon Barker to Doug Richardson touchdown pass that covered 41 yards.

Dunbar at San Angelo Lake View
The Panthers' Typhail McMullan scored three touchdowns and contributed two interceptions in last Thursday's 26-12 season opening win over Canyon Randall.

he scored on scrambles of 29 and 46 yards and went 85 yards with one of his pass thefts for another Dunbar TD.

Lake View took a 23-13 win over 3A Sonora last Friday.

The Chiefs took control of the game in the third period with a pair of Corey Stephens to Kevin Dumas passes, one good for 51 yards, the other covering 10 stripes to boost LVHS to a 21-13 lead.

Coronado at Frenship
For two years in a row Frenship's Tigers have claimed season-opening upset wins over Andrews.

Last week the Tigers defense held the Mustangs to just one TD and won 12-7.

Frenship scored twice in the first half and held on for the win. Duane Young ran over from the 3- and 5-yard line to account for all the Tigers' points against AHS.

Coronado squeezed out a 14-7 win over Sweetwater in its campaign debut on the strength of a 65-yard Kelly Pope punt return in the third quarter.

Lamesa at Caprock
The Golden Tornadoes, hitting on all offensive cylinders, pounded Denver City, 40-14, last week while Big Spring was handing Caprock a 42-13 defeat.

Lamesa quarterback Jaime Seago rushed 10 times for 103 yards including a 9-yarder for a TD to open the floodgates in the first quarter.

He was also 6-11 for 78 yards and a touchdown passing.

Caprock is seeking respectability after being dismantled by the District 3-4A defending champs last week.

Western men in Kuwait are terrorized by Iraqi soldiers

By The Associated Press

British women who have flown to freedom but left husbands behind in Kuwait say Iraqi soldiers are terrorizing Western men in the captive nation, and there were reports troops were searching house to house for more hostages.

The State Department said it had information that Iraqi troops were mounting intensified, more systematic searches for American men in the oil-rich Persian Gulf emirate they seized in an Aug. 2 invasion.

One evacuee said Kuwaiti resistance fighters who called a general strike shot some residents who ignored the order.

Washington pressed on with diplomatic efforts to isolate Iraq. Secretary of State James Baker III was to fly today to Syria.

U.S. relations with Syria have in the past been strained over its support of terrorists but Damascus is an ally in the desert military standoff with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein.

The trip comes as Iraq rapidly reconciles with neighboring Iran, which after an eight-year war is showing signs it could help Saddam poke holes in a U.N.-ordered trade embargo enforced by dozens of U.S. and other warships.

In another indication the embargo could be in trouble, a U.N. sanctions committee failed in New York Wednesday to agree on what kind of food aid to allow into Iraq and Kuwait. The embargo exempts humanitarian shipments of food and medicine.

The League of Red Cross will send medicine to Iraq for children, pregnant women and the elderly, a spokeswoman for the Geneva-based organization said today. Iraq was not, however, allowing the Swiss International Committee of the Red Cross into Kuwait.

Tens of thousands of foreigners remained trapped in Iraq and Kuwait, and masses of mostly penniless Asian refugees were still stranded in camps in neighboring Jordan awaiting transportation to their homelands.

Texas farmers say they need disaster relief now

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Kika de la Garza, the south Texan who chairs the House Agriculture Committee, says he doesn't think the government can provide the disaster relief the state's farmers desperately need.

Yield losses to Texas farmers for cotton, corn and sorghum are estimated at $619 million this year, Wayne Labar of the Texas Cotton Producers said at hearing before the committee Wednesday.

The ripple effect will cost the state's agribusiness industry $2 billion, he said. "For some farmers it is the third year in a row of poor yields," Labar said. The adverse budget climate, the condition of the federal crop insurance program and the lack of disaster areas have combined to make disaster legislation hard to sell on Capitol Hill this summer.

"A disaster bill costs money and I don't know where we have any," said de la Garza, D-Mission.

"I can only promise we will consider whatever is possible," he said.

Another powerful congressman, Rep. Leon Panetta, the California Democrat who chairs the House Budget Committee, has offered his support. "With the recurrence of weather disasters each year, it is clear that we must find a permanent solution to this problem," Panetta said. "However, until that time I believe that it is important that we provide assistance to those farmers who have lost crops in weather-related disasters."

Texas and Georgia farmers have suffered the most from disasters, primarily drought, this year. Crop losses are estimated at more than $500 million in Georgia, $130 million in Alabama and $119 million in South Carolina, officials from those states testified.

Texas received $235 million in disaster relief in 1988 and $348 million in 1989.

After floods this spring made 54 counties federal disaster areas, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, sponsored a bill to extend the 1989 disaster act. The bill is sitting in the Senate Agriculture Committee. Its progress depends on finding a way to finance it, aides say.

Most of the farmers who appeared before the House committee said they appreciated the government's budget constraints. But several said they couldn't understand how it could forgive billions of dollars in loans to Egypt and not help out U.S. farmers.

Another woman injured in the attack, Christina Ramos, also has sued Whataburger on similar grounds.

Officials with Corpus Christi-based Whataburger Inc. did not return a call Wednesday from The Associated Press.

Police take two into custody

Two subjects were taken into custody by Snyder police Wednesday.

The first arrest came at 9:22 a.m. in Municipal Court at City Hall. A 22-year-old male was taken to Scurry County sheriff's office to lay out fines for a public intoxication and disorderly conduct charge.

At 9:33 p.m., police arrested a 47-year-old male for public intoxication at 25th St. and Ave. R.

In other police activity, a woman called at 8:58 a.m. and requested a close patrol of the 200 block of 32nd St. because of property being taken from her porch.

At 1:32 p.m., Myrtle Sullenger of 303 36th St. reported that the key cover emblem from her 1977 Lincoln had been stolen. A Class B theft report was filed.

At 8:15 p.m., Ken Toby of Kingswood Apartments called and said that subjects, possibly intoxicated, were causing a disturbance. The subjects left the area before officers arrived.

At 2:24 a.m. Thursday, a close patrol was requested for Furr's Plus. A subject had been observed trying to pry open a Coke machine.

Police discovered at 5:53 a.m. that two laundry machines had been broken into at City Automatic Laundry. An offense report for burglary was filed.

Hance returned last week from an emergency meeting of Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries after which he predicted a permanent military presence in Saudi Arabia and gas prices reaching $1.75 per gallon.

When serving in the Texas Legislature, Perry was in Snyder on several occasions. As a member of the Joint Select Committee on Workman's Compensation Reform, Perry presented a program on the subject, sponsored by the Snyder chamber of commerce.

Hance also has been a frequent campaign visitor to Snyder. He has twice been a candidate for governor and once for the U.S. Senate.

Family sues fast food place

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (AP) — The family of a woman stabbed to death in the parking lot of a Whataburger restaurant has sued the fast-food company, alleging that a lack of security guards or other precautions contributed to the slaying.

Georgina Vega Valenzuela, 27, of Port Isabel, was stabbed to death the night of March 25, 1989, at a 24-hour Whataburger in Brownsville.

Plaintiffs in the lawsuit filed in the state's 103rd District Court in Brownsville include Ms. Valenzuela's mother, Maria Luisa Vega; the dead woman's father, Poririo Vega; and Ms. Valenzuela's widower, Oscar Valenzuela.

Family members seek compensation for hospital and funeral costs, and other unspecified compensation for mental and emotional distress.

Gilberto Moreno Jr. was sentenced to life in prison last November for the murder.

Another woman injured in the attack, Christina Ramos, also has sued Whataburger on similar grounds.

Officials with Corpus Christi-based Whataburger Inc. did not return a call Wednesday from The Associated Press.

Limited coverage allowed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans, accustomed to watching presidents and members of Congress on television, will get their first televised look at federal judges at work next year.

The U.S. Judicial Conference, which sets policy for the federal courts, approved on Wednesday a carefully controlled and limited plan to permit TV cameras to record and broadcast civil trials in a handful of federal courtrooms.

The three-year experiment will begin in July, limited to two federal appeals courts and six trial courts. Judges who volunteer their courtrooms for the plan will have almost total control over what the public sees.

Rep. Robert W. Kastenmeier, D-Wis., who has been urging approval of the experiment, hailed the Judicial Conference action as a step toward promoting public understanding of the court system.

"The time for federal courts to permit TV news coverage in courtrooms has come," said Kastenmeier, chairman of the House Judiciary subcommittee on courts. "Technology that permits us access to world events also compels us to use that access to make our own government available to our citizens."

Kastenmeier said televised congressional proceedings, which began in the House in 1979 and in 1986 in the Senate, have been beneficial to the public.

C-Span, the cable network that telecasts public affairs programs, also welcomed the experiment and predicted it will enhance respect for America's system of justice.

The Judicial Conference, headed by Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist, approved the idea overwhelmingly by voice vote, said spokesman David Sellers.

Sellers indicated that Rehnquist spoke in favor of the experiment.

The conference, with 27 federal judges as its members, traditionally meets in private.

Sellers said only a few judges spoke against the experiment and that "the pervasive view is this is inevitable."

Forty-five states have approved the use of television cameras, and supporters say there have been no adverse results.

Wednesday's action does not mean that federal criminal trials will be televised. The Judicial Conference left intact a rule banning cameras in criminal cases.

Nor will Supreme Court proceedings be televised anytime soon.

Made-in-USA AK-47s said getting around import ban

WASHINGTON (AP) — Assault-style AK-47 rifles are being manufactured for the first time by an American company that is getting around the government's ban on imports of the weapon by producing some new parts.

But the company's owner and president says he wants to get out of the business as soon as he recoups the money he lost when the government cut off imports of the semiautomatic weapons last summer.

"There's no money in the firearms manufacturing market," said E. Robert Jensen of Lathrop's Shooters Supply Inc. in Tucson, Ariz. "I don't need to be in the manufacturing business. When I'm out seven figures because of an arbitrary action by the government, I'd like to get it back."

Jensen said the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms had issued him permits to import several thousand AK-47s from China before he contracted to buy them. But before they arrived, the government banned the imports and the Customs Service refused to release the guns to him, he said.

However, Jensen was allowed to tear the weapons apart and salvage some parts — everything except the receiver, which is the trigger and firing mechanism.

Then he hired a company with "state-of-the-art aerospace-type equipment" to produce new receivers and put the rifles together.

The action "is a perfectly legal activity," said BATF spokesman Jack Killorin.

The bureau permanently barred imports of 43 models of foreign-manufactured assault-style rifles in July 1989, ruling that they did not meet the "sporting uses" requirement for imported firearms.

The weapons were equipped with military-type accoutrements such as folding or collapsible stocks, pistol grips, threaded barrels for silencers; flash suppressors that could hide the shooter's position at night; bayonet lugs and large-capacity ammunition magazines.

The action followed a public outcry sparked by the Jan. 17, 1989 attack by drifter Patrick Purdy, who killed five children in a Stockton, Calif., schoolyard with an AK-47.

The bureau's action, however, did not affect domestic production of similar weapons.

Killorin of BATF said the manufacture of AK-47s by Jensen's company is an example of why Congress needs to pass President Bush's proposal to ban the domestic manufacture of weapons that had been barred from import.

Killorin and Jensen said they knew of no other U.S. company that was manufacturing assault-style firearms banned from import.

"This most recent action ... illustrates the industry's creativity when there's a loophole to be exploited and a dollar to be made," said Josh Sugarmann, director of the pro-gun control Firearms Policy Project, who first noticed that the new AK-47s were being made.

Jensen would not specify how many guns he had bought but could not bring in, narrowing it only to the "mid-four figures," nor would he say how many AK-47s he is manufacturing with the salvaged parts.

The original price of the new guns to dealers was $498 each for nine or fewer, $449 each for 10 or more. But Jensen said he had dropped both prices about $50 to move the guns more quickly.

"That's still a premium price," he said, acknowledging that the demand for the guns is high. "I chose to see if I couldn't find a way to get out of the program in 60 to 90 days. I want out of that market."

"I'm trying to recoup the losses from what the government did to me, is all," he said.

Lawsuit settled; demolition next

PASADENA, Texas (AP) — Mickey wants Pasadena to look pretty, and he wants to knock it down.

Neither Cryer nor attorney Jake Johnson could be reached for comment Wednesday, the Houston Chronicle reported.

Under the settlement, Gilley will immediately obtain Gilley's Club, Rodeo Arena, Silverado Club, Daily Double Club, Lupito's Lounge, three Pasadena Cheri's stores and properties in Texas and Tennessee.

Cryer retains possession of a house in Pasadena.

Nearly all of the properties, including Gilley's Club, have significant tax liens, Sacks said, making it difficult to value the settlement. It is unclear whether the sale of the holdings will meet the tax obligations plus court costs, he said.

Cryer and Gilley must each pay half of $200,000 in fees owed court-appointed receiver Michael Wood.

Cryer failed to make court-ordered monthly reports to Wood on the finances of the three Cheri's stores and had refused to surrender them to Gilley, Wood said.

"It was a strictly cash operation," Wood said of the stores. "They never used a bank. I tried to get them to use a bank, but they said it was too much trouble."

County in California said on brink of bankruptcy

PARADISE, Calif. (AP) — When Eve Hutton's father was beaten nearly to death, a Butte County sheriff's deputy told her to hire a private investigator.

The county, he said sadly, was simply too poor to investigate.

For Hutton and the 185,000 others in this colorful, rugged Northern California county, Butte's slide toward bankruptcy has meant fewer firefighters, fewer patrol officers, longer delays at county offices, closed libraries and a deepening perception that their county is finally going under.

"There was only one deputy sheriff to patrol 30,000 people, and he told me there was not enough manpower to investigate this crime as it should be investigated," said Hutton, whose father, a real estate broker, remains hospitalized from an attack by eight men while he inspected property.

"That's what it's come down to: They don't even have enough people to investigate attempted murder."

Local authorities, unable to come up with $15 million needed to balance their $155 million budget, say they will decide within two weeks whether Butte will be the first county in the nation to declare bankruptcy.

The tax base in mostly agricultural Butte is buckling under a big welfare caseload — 60 percent above the per capita state average — and a large retirement community. In June, voters rejected several tax increases.

The lack of revenue has meant the elimination of 23 jobs at the sheriff's department and the part-time operation of libraries with volunteers. Because of a four-year freeze on county salaries, 15 workers in Butte's welfare department qualify for benefits themselves.

"Nobody is really sure what this bankruptcy will do," said James Souci. He said the county offered him and his neighbors equipment to form a volunteer firefighting unit if they would agree to maintain it. "They said they just didn't have the money," he said.

If the county actually filed for bankruptcy, a federal judge in Sacramento would most likely protect Butte from its creditors, appoint a fiscal trustee and set up a priority list of who gets paid what.

But since a county has never filed for bankruptcy before, "there are a whole lot of gray zones here. We really don't know exactly what would happen," said spokeswoman Christina Cutshaw of the state County Supervisors Association.

Butte's fiscal problems stem from costly welfare and health care programs, county authorities say.

265th guard unit waiting for orders

FORT STEWART, Ga. (AP) — Heads up, 265th! You're shipping out tomorrow. Stand down, 265th. You're not going anywhere for a week. Hang in there, 265th. You'll be gone by the weekend.

To the military novice, such conflicting statements could be a source of confusion, frustration — even anger. But for veterans of the 265th Quartermaster Detachment there is a simple philosophy to handle this world of uncertainty.

"I'll believe it when I see it," said Sgt. Earnest Deloach. His sentiment drew a murmur of "That's the truth" from the rest of the 14-member National Guard unit from South Carolina awaiting deployment to the Mideast.

While information about the 265th's departure date may change from hour to hour, there are signs that it will be sooner than later.

The unit has been placed on Available Loading Date status, which means it could be shipped out at any time.

The men are ready. They wear their desert uniforms and canteens everywhere. The forest green camouflage on their four pickup trucks has been painted over a flat sand color.

Nearly everyone has had his hair trimmed to military stubble. Many of the haircuts were courtesy of Sgt. Hulle Cohen, a brick mason who has cut his family's hair since he was a boy.

But for all the omens that departure is imminent, there are signs that the 265th still faces an uncertain wait.

On Wednesday the men finished packing four trucks with items for overseas, ranging from toilet paper and cots to radios and spare radiators. They took the 45-mile drive to the Hunter Army Air Field to have their loads prepared for airlift.

But a major at the field told them to take it back.

"I have no orders on what airframe will be taking you," he said. "I have no indication when you might be going. It might be another week."

So the convoy made the 45-mile return trip to the barracks.

When they got back, there was a call from a colonel. "You're leaving tomorrow afternoon," the unit commander, Sgt. Ronnie Jackson, was told.

Man still denies poisoning oak tree

AUSTIN (AP) — The man convicted of poisoning Texas' famed Treaty Oak with the powerful herbicide Velpar says he is innocent and jokingly said he may open a nightclub named "The Velpar Spot" when he is released from prison.

Paul Stedman Cullen, 46, made the remarks Wednesday during an interview with the Austin American-Statesman.

Earlier in the day, Cullen received a one-year prison term from U.S. District Judge James Nowlin on a guilty plea on a charge of not revealing he was a convicted felon when he filled out a purchase form to buy a rifle.

Cullen received a nine-year prison term last May after being convicted of using Velpar to poison the centuries-old oak, where legend holds pioneer Texas colonist Stephen F. Austin signed treaties with the Indians. The tree's fight for survival and Cullen's trial were the subject of world-wide media coverage.

After sentencing, Cullen talked of many things, including his future and his reaction to being convicted of one of the most infamous crimes ever committed against public property.

"I didn't poison it," he said. "We're appealing (the case). I think with the pressure brought to bear by the media, they were trying very hard to fit somebody into the role of suspect and defendant."

Since the poisoning in the spring of 1989, the City of Austin has received thousands of letters from people all over the world who followed the tree's struggle to survive massive doses of the liquid herbicide.

Visitors still place gifts, poems, and other items in front of the tree to express their sorrow. Only a fourth of the oak, which stands on Baylor Street at the western edge of downtown, is alive.

"I'm glad to see that society can have sympathy for a tree," Cullen said. "I think it may be somewhat misguided, but if a tree can serve as a focus to bring sympathy out of people, then I'm glad to see that they have the capacity for that."

On the possibility of opening a nightclub when he gets out prison, Cullen said, "Well, it's humorous. But I'm halfway serious about it. If someone would provide financial backing, he also said he is considering moving out of the United States if his parole allows him to travel. He would not name the country he would want to live in, but said, "Let's just say it's south of here and is much hotter during the summer. It's a place where the fish speak classical Latin and the cabbages sing."

"Or, I might go out in the country and raise cattle that breathe fire. ...." he added in the rambling interview.

Cullen says he's not afraid of going to prison since he has two previous convictions on burglary charges, one for possession of marijuana, and one for driving while intoxicated.

"I've met some beautiful people while I was locked up," he said. "Time is a subjective thing. I'll just lay low and enjoy the workings of my own mind. Prison is just another place to be."

Eight similar slayings worry neighborhood

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The El rattles and rumbles over Frankford Avenue and dingy bars like Kenny's Saloon, The Happy Tap and the Beehouse Tavern.

From their dim interiors may emerge clues to a string of eight similar fatal stabbings over the past five years that has detectives working overtime and residents doing their own armchair — or barstool — sleuthing.

Coincidence? Copycat? Serial killer?

"They say he only kills women who go to bars, but you don't want to rely on the consistency of a psychopath," said Jillian Bailey, 23, as she read the newspaper one morning this week on her front porch on Arrott Street.

Two doors up the street, unmarked police cars were parked on the sidewalk outside a four-story brick apartment building where the latest victim lived. Detectives carried plastic bags of items from the apartment of Michelle Martin, 30, whose body was found Saturday in her apartment.

Like the seven other victims, the woman known by some as "Crazy Michelle" was a white barfly who was stabbed numerous times and found partially clothed. All eight slayings were in the city's Frankford section.

"We've had sleepless nights," homicide Lt. James Ferguson said as he came out of an alley, holding a flashlight. "We're working around the clock. Any leads, any clues, we're following up."

The night before, Police Commissioner Willie L. Williams had announced, "We're not looking at it as a serial killer."

Bailey retorted: "What is it, a fad?"

"If it's not one guy, then this is the sickest neighborhood in the country," she said.

Police have a good reason not to attribute all eight deaths to a serial killer. They arrested a local fish-store worker, Leonard Christopher, 38, in the April slaying of 46-year-old Carol Dowd. Christopher has been in jail since, so obviously he didn't kill Martin.

"They got this guy at the fish store and everyone said he's such a nice guy," said Mary Trainer, 74, who has lived in the area for more than 40 years and in the same apartment building as Martin for two years.

"So now this, and everyone is saying maybe they got the wrong guy. Or maybe there's more than one."

Police released a sketch of the person last seen with Martin — a gray-haired, beer-bellied, bespectacled man of about 60.

Six of the victims were between 46 and 74 years old. The others were 29 and 30 but looked older, Williams said. The commissioner said information was being compiled so the FBI can come up with a psychological profile of the killer or killers.

"Are people scared? Yeah," said the barmaid at the Jolly Post Tavern, where one victim, Theresa Sciortino, last was seen alive in January 1989.

"It's like watching a TV show," said the barmaid, who wouldn't give her name. "You wonder what this guy is thinking. I don't know — maybe he had a thing about his mother and he looks for women like her."

Dee, a "30-something" woman, sipped a beer in the Jolly Post and speculated. "The women all seem to have emotional problems, but it's still scary," she said. "Maybe he thinks he's putting them out of their misery."

Philadelphia's Frankford neighborhood is a mix of white and black, with some Asians and Hispanics; well-tended houses beside run-down apartment buildings.

Fortuneteller arrested for fraud

HOUSTON (AP) — A Gypsy fortuneteller who told a man she could cure his impotence for $1,000 has been arrested on a theft charge, police said.

Hermira Cristin Tani, 39, was released on $5,000 bond Wednesday following an arraignment on a theft charge before District Judge Bill Hatten.

Police said the woman, who is known as Senora Dora and Senora Maria, engaged in a "curse removal scam" on the 30-year-old victim.

Defense lawyer David Wyborny said Ms. Tani, like 17 other Gypsies prosecuted here in the past year for theft offenses, is a victim of racial prejudice.

"It's also religious prejudice," Wyborny said. "Here we have people with a variance of Roman Catholicism, with spiritualism, mediums and psychics. They're being persecuted."

Prosecutor Jean Spradling Hughes said the victim found Ms. Tani through an ad in a Spanish-language publication and told her of his marital woes and impotence.

CHEERLEADING CAMP — Snyder High School varsity cheerleaders conducted a mini cheerleading camp with 52 youngsters ages 4-14. The girls were taught a dance and a cheer to be performed during Snyder's first home football game this Friday night against Clyde. Varsity
