SISD to review G&T criteria; other topics in meeting today

Snyder public schools board of trustees will approve criteria for the gifted and talented program and accept bids for computers and repair to the high school "chiller" during a 7 p.m. board meeting today.

Also scheduled are Supt. Dalton Moseley's recommendations to hire two instructors and reassign two others, and reports on the Hobbs CAP school and the condition of the water at North and Northeast elementaries. Bob Travis, principal at Stanfield Elementary, will also give a curriculum report on that school.

Trustees are to review and approve or amend the school district's proposed gifted and talented program. Identification criteria for the program as proposed include: 1) achievement tests, 2) CSI test score, 3) student behavioral rating scale score, 4) teacher nominating form score, and 5) school history data score (2-3 year grade average).

The board will also seek to approve a District Educational Improvement Council. This council, in compliance with the Texas Education Code, consists of a campus-based professional staff to advise the board of trustees on establishing and reviewing the district's educational goals, objectives and major classroom instructional programs. The council, according to the education code, will consist of at least three representatives from each campus with at least two representatives nominated by classroom teachers and one by the non-teaching professional employees assigned to the campus.

The bid for 10 IBM computers and related equipment, to include five printers, is in the amount of $25,660 and has already been budgeted.

Moseley is to update the board on water problems at North and Northeast. The district is currently using bottled water at those locations. Snyder City Council is also to convene at 6:30 p.m. today in a special meeting to address the water quality issue.

Travis' report on Stanfield is one of a series of reports which will be given by each of the eight SISD principals.

Also included on tonight's agenda will be approval of minutes and bills payable.

Jail prisoner pact reviewed by sheriff for commissioners

Scurry County commissioners court heard from County Sheriff Keith Collier this morning concerning the sheriff's department budget and the county's contract to house prisoners from Washington, D.C.

Collier addressed the court in order to clarify a request to amend the sheriff's department budget. He noted that the jail is not receiving the same amount of food subsidies from the government, resulting in higher food costs, and that the department had spent approximately $6,000 on contract prisoner medical expenses that would be reimbursed.

Collier told commissioners that the contract — which started Oct. 15 — "has served the county well...and saved the tax payers a considerable amount of money."

He explained that to date, the county has received $250,477 from the contract, just shy of the $254,000 total jail budget for the year.

The court labeled amending the department's budget on the request of County Auditor Linda Franklin. She said that other department budgets will need to be amended and suggested that the court look at all of them at the same time.

Commissioners heard a request from Ray Herring of Fluvanna to waive the penalty on taxes on a mobile home located one mile west of Fluvanna.

Herring said that he had purchased the mobile home from his son in 1986 and never received a tax notice on it for 1987-89. He later received a notice of back taxes owed on the trailer plus penalties.

Commissioners voted 3-1 to waive the penalties of $173.66.

Finally, the commissioners heard a request from County Judge Bobby Goodwin to open bids to sell infrequently used law books from the county law library.

Currently, $7,500 is budgeted annually for the library. A percentage of monies collected (see COUNTY, page 8)

Water woes before city

Snyder City Council will meet at 6:30 p.m. today in a called meeting to discuss possible solutions to problems with the city water line.

Members of the council will hear from the engineering firm of Parkhill, Cooper and Smith of Lubbock on the cost to replace 4,800 feet of water line along Ave. T.

Members of the city staff will also present a cost comparison on the rehabilitation of the city water lines using equipment leased from In Place Linings, Inc. of Fort Worth. They will compare the cost of leasing the equipment by the job or on a yearly basis.

In last week's meeting, C.O. Davin of In Place Linings spoke to the council about rehabilitating water lines with a cement lining.

The council will also look at bids for a new pump for the pump station and for the selling of used water meters.

The council will then meet in executive session to discuss land acquisition.

Front soaks large area of the state, including Scurry

From local wire reports Sunday's thunderstorms dropped almost an inch of rain on Snyder and most of Scurry County, according to local and area reports.

According to the water and filter plant, Snyder received .95 of an inch of rain during the 24 hour period ending at 7 a.m. today. The thunderstorms were part of a cold front which extended from San Angelo to Wichita Falls early today and was drifting southward to the Red River.

The rainfall locally brings a total of 21.87 inches for the year.

Tonight's forecast called for scattered showers and thunderstorms with a 30 percent chance of rain. Forecasters expect the slow-moving front to begin moving off Tuesday, and have predicted a chance of rain of less than 20 percent.

Areas surrounding Snyder received almost identical rainfall, with Ira reporting one inch, Fluvanna from .90 to 1.2 inches, the area north of the city receiving .95 of an inch and the area

Temporarily... Venue change denied in White murder trial

Visiting District Judge David Cave temporarily denied a request for change of venue this morning during pre-trial testimony in the murder case of 37-year-old James J. White, charged in the beating death of his wife.

Judge Cave, presiding in the absence of 132nd District Judge Gene Dulaney, will issue a formal ruling on the change after questioning prospective jury members. A 100-member panel has been summoned and jury selection was expected to begin at 1:30 p.m.

White is charged with the Feb. 10 beating and kicking death of his 25-year-old wife, Belinda.

The Snyder man was indicted March 5 by a Scurry County grand jury and has been held in the county jail on $50,000 bond since the incident.

The couple had been married a month when police were called by Snyder EMS employees, who had been summoned by White to assist his wife. Mrs. White was taken to Cogdell Memorial Hospital where she was pronounced dead. (see TRIAL, page 8)

Paregien new director of mental health center

Stan Paregien has been named director of Scurry County Mental Health Center.

The announcement was made by Davis Wilson, regional administrator for the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

Paregien, a resident of Snyder since 1987, previously worked as case manager, covering both Scurry and Garza counties.

"Our center is a cooperative effort of Scurry County and the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation," Paregien said. "In fact, it was one of the first such efforts in West Texas. Over the years, the county commissioners have taken a keen interest in this work. They provide office space, utilities and a fund for operational expenses. It allows us to give the residents of Scurry and Kent counties services locally, rather than their having to drive to Big Spring State Hospital.

"We are mandated to provide mental health services, first, to those with serious, chronic mental illnesses. Then, as we have time available, we deal with those who need less intensive help. We have a great team effort here, with professionals who really care about our clients," he said.

Other personnel in the center include Marie Ball, clerk; Karen (see CENTER, page 8)

Recent mishaps raising concerns

HOUSTON (AP) — A pilot who guides vessels through the narrow Houston Ship Channel warns port officials to use military satellites to improve navigation along the accident-plagued waterway.

The rash of marine accidents, which have raised concerns about safety in the channel, began July 25 when a tugboat sank in Galveston Bay after water poured through an unsecured hatch and swamped the boat.

Three days later, a tanker collided with two oil barges being pushed up the channel by a tugboat, spilling 700,000 gallons of oil into the bay. Then on Aug. 12, a barge buckled and cracked while being loaded at a dock, dumping another 21,000 gallons of crude.

A study by the Houston Chronicle of U.S. Coast Guard records shows that overall, the number of accidents in the ship channel is on the decline. But the number of vessels being damaged in mishaps in all the waterways around the Houston-Galveston area is up sharply.

"The Houston Ship Channel is notorious for being the hardest (channel) in the country — if not the world," said Harry Lydick, president of the Houston Pilots, an association representing 57 pilots who guide ships through the waterway.

On Thursday, the Houston Pilots will present recommendations to port officials designed to improve safety in the channel. Lydick declined to reveal the full slate of suggestions.

But he said one proposal will call for the use of military satellites to help position buoys and other navigational aids in the waterway.

Storms buffeting the waterway knock out of position buoys, towers and other navigational markers, aids critical in identifying a ship's position in the waterway.

When Coast Guard officials realign the navigational aids, they must use points on land to determine their positions — a less than perfect system.

But the military may be providing the answer, he said, with a $15 billion program called Global Positioning System. The system uses satellites to help Navy warships and other mobile units to pinpoint their positions.

Dear Abby By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My husband was just called to active duty because of the Persian Gulf crisis. You would do me and the other wives of reservists a favor if you would print this.

1. Please don't ask me if my husband is going to "see some action" overseas. It's possible, but I have no way of knowing, and even if I did, I couldn't tell you. He's not Rambo or John Wayne—he's a flesh-and-blood man with a family who loves him, and we're praying that it won't come to that.

2. Please don't ask if I think President Bush made the right decision. Like every American, I'm praying that he did, and I'm trying to think positively.

3. Please don't come over with your small children to "cheer me up." I have four of my own, and after working, cleaning house and caring for the kids, I'm just too tired.

4. Call me and let me talk out my worries. Offer to take my kids for a few hours, and if you are going to the store, ask if I need anything. That would be wonderful!

5. Most of all, pray for this crisis to end quickly without a full-scale war. My heart goes out to those who have family members already in the Middle East.

Reservist families have special needs because we are not the tight-knit group the regulars are; we are spread out and not acquainted. If you know people in that situation, be a friend. They need you.

Thank you, Abby. I really had to get this off my chest. My husband is a lieutenant colonel in the Marine Corps, but sign me ...

SMALL TOWN IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR ABBY: I must take exception to your advice to "His Wife in Ohio," who was whining about her non-existent sex life due to her new husband's weight.

First, she was aware of his weight, and had even slept with him prior to marrying him. Perhaps she should have left the big guy on the market for a woman without her hang-ups who would appreciate his great qualities.

Second, I was dismayed by your assumption that the problem was his and he needed psychiatric treatment. Abby, you are perpetuating a very destructive form of discrimination that is rampant in this country. It is neither a sin nor a sign of mental illness to be overweight. I've fought a weight problem all my life, so your suggesting that he should fix his "problem" so his wife can have the sex life she is "entitled to" is incredibly callous. What about the sex life he is entitled to?

A better response would have been to send her to a shrink to solve her culturally induced hang-ups, so she could start living up to her marriage vows. With a little love in their relationship, maybe he'd have an easier time losing weight.

DENVER DAVE

DEAR DAVE: It will probably warm your heart (and cool you off) to know that I received a sound roasting from many readers for my answer to that one.

Abby's family recipes are included in her cookbook! Send a long, business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Cookbooklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

Man says hazardous waste stored in boat stalls

SOUTHLAKE, Texas (AP) — A former ball-bearing salesman says he found it easy to obtain a license for disposing hazardous waste, but more difficult to find places to store the refuse.

Richard Kirkham said he stored medical waste, human tissue and dangerous solvents at a Lake Grapevine boat marina and near a grocery store because he could not afford to dispose of the waste properly, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Sunday.

A simple registration form made Kirkham one of the state's 2,034 hazardous-waste transporters in 1986, but his company went unwatched by state and federal regulators, Kirkham said.

Kirkham told the Star-Telegram it was never his intent to run his business illegally. He blamed a regulatory system for failing to discover the shortcomings in his business.

He was exempt from stringent rules imposed on licensed disposal sites that would have guaranteed that he had the money to destroy what he collected. Instead, he started his own company, Hazardous Waste Management, Inc., with a pickup and four weeks of training at Texas A&M University.

His struggling operation was derailed when the sand-hauling truck he used to subsidize the fledgling waste-hauling business was wrecked, he said. He used the money paid by waste generators to repair the sand truck instead of properly disposing of the waste.

Hazardous Waste Management Inc. stored 95 barrels of hazardous solvents, fuels and toxic chemicals at Scott's Marina No. 2, authorities said.

Also, 75 drums of chemical solvents and several cartons filled with used syringes, soiled dressings, surgical gloves and human tissue were found at Kirkham's office and at a warehouse near a Fort Worth grocery store.

Authorities said they caught Kirkham removing water-soaked cartons of medical debris from shoreline boat stalls last November, after flood waters receded from the lake.

The discovery triggered a three-state criminal investigation of Kirkham's one-truck operation, and a water treatment plant was shut down for two days while Dallas water utilities officials determined there was no evidence of contamination from the wastes.

The Star-Telegram reported that Kirkham was fined $260. It has cost $125,000 so far to clean up the boxes and barrels, the newspaper said.

No evidence was found that Kirkham's illegal inventory polluted the environment, federal officials said.

Kirkham said that when he could no longer afford to pay disposal fees, he forged the records to convince his customers that their waste was reaching its destination.

"It was stupid, OK?" Kirkham told the Star-Telegram. "But we did it. And the reason that we did it is that hope springs eternal in the breast of man ... We kept thinking things would get better."

In June, the Environmental Protection Agency notified 214 Texas companies and medical facilities that they were potentially liable for Kirkham's actions. The agency billed each of Kirkham's clients the full cost of storing and disposing of the waste found at the boat dock.

Sixty-seven of the 214 parties billed by the EPA have rejected the EPA's suggestion that they assume control and all costs of disposing of the waste. The EPA is awaiting a final cleanup cost estimate before taking further action.

Woman sentenced to life in prison

ANGLETON, Texas (AP) — A woman who testified that she slashed the throat of her 4-year-old daughter on the psychic orders of a former English teacher was sentenced to life in prison.

Valerie Susan Taylor, 27, of Rosharon, was sentenced Saturday in the Nov. 8 death of her daughter, Meara. The girl, killed while she lay in her bed, was stabbed 23 times as her baby brother watched from a crib.

Ms. Taylor did not harm her 11-month-old son, Frankie.

"Some crimes are so bad, so evil, that the person deserves to be punished despite the fact that they have never been in trouble before," prosecutor Dale Summa told jurors.

Ms. Taylor said she got angry at her daughter twice that evening, once for breaking a music box and once for trying to climb into her brother's crib.

But she claimed it was a force in and around her that made her kill Meara.

Ms. Taylor had testified that a former community college

English teacher, who she thought possessed God-like powers, sent her messages that led up to the killing.

She testified she knew she was acting on God's orders because she did not feel remorseful when she struck Meara in the face before the killing and Frankie didn't cry as she was stabbing the girl.

Prosecutors said that while Ms. Taylor was mentally ill, she knew that killing her daughter was wrong.

But defense attorney Terry Holder said, "She thought that it was right, however twisted that may be. Valerie Taylor is not an evil person. She's a sick person." Frankie's father, Raymond Kirkland, 29, of Rosharon, said he was pleased with the sentence.

"I was hoping for it. She deserves it," said Kirkland, who discovered Meara's body.

Kirkland and Ms. Taylor lived together until he moved to Angleton several months ago, he said. Ms. Taylor had Meara from an earlier marriage.

Sept. 18, 1990

Your greatest gratification and benefits in the year ahead are likely to be things of a non-material nature. In the final analysis, they will have greater value to you than silver or gold.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) An important situation which has been governed by outside influences could begin shifting today in ways that will give you greater control over its destiny. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A number of interesting developments are stirring for you at this time behind the scenes that could be very advantageous for you financially and careerwise. Good luck.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't be discouraged if you have fallen a bit short recently regarding the fulfillment of your expectations. Happy changes are in the offing where you'll more than make up for lost time.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) It's important that you establish specific objectives for yourself in this time frame, because what you can positively envision can be achieved a bit more easily than usual.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Some special knowledge or skill you've acquired through personal experience is of value to others as well as yourself. Profitable, mutual uses can be found.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Do not discount advice or tips given to you at this time by people who have a good track record businesswise. If the source is reliable, further investigation is warranted.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Agreements into which you enter now have good chances for success, especially if the deal is equitable and everyone involved benefits in fair proportion.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Things should come more into focus today where your work or career is concerned. This will enable you to clarify your objectives and do your work more effectively.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Something in which you are presently involved will have greater chances for success if it is reorganized along more productive lines. If it isn't working right, change it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You are presently in a cycle where old projects can be advantageously concluded and new ones begun. Try to do a little of each today.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) A new idea with which you're toying has potential, provided you do something with it promptly. If you procrastinate or shelve it to a later date, you might not develop it effectively.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Conditions in general still look encouraging for you where your material interests are concerned. In fact, as of today the cycle you're in could be extended. The Astrograph

City jails in Texas are unregulated

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Texas has more than 300 city jails, but despite recent calls for widespread reform, all operate outside the regulation of any state or federal agency.

The Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Sunday that no regulatory body exists for any of Texas' city jails — from the single detention tank in the tiny Central Texas town of Burton to the sprawling Houston city jail.

In Pantego, a town engulfed by the Fort Worth suburb of Arlington, a 23-year-old inmate — distraught over a broken romance and arrested when he tried to flee while being stopped for a traffic violation — hanged himself on Labor Day in the city jail.

Officers said Pantego's jail has plenty of problems, inadequate monitoring of prisoners being just one of them. They said that were the jail regulated and conditions improved, Derek Preston Brady could have been watched more closely and his death might have been prevented.

Pantego's police dispatcher, a civilian untrained to deal with prisoners, was the only other person in the jail when the hanging occurred, officials said. The officer who was responsible for the inmates' welfare was away from the jail on patrol.

State regulations for county jails require a trained official be present 24 hours a day to monitor inmates.

Pantego's police manual says inmates should be checked every two hours. But Pantego officers say the checks frequently are delayed far beyond that because of other duties that take them away from the jail.

The Texas Department of Corrections sets standards for state prisons. The Texas Commission on Jail Standards ensures that county jails follow guidelines in their housing and treatment of prisoners.

Domino tournament deadline to register slated Wednesday

The 10th annual "Deep Creek" Scurry County Domino Tournament will begin at 6 p.m. Thursday in Room A at Scurry County Coliseum. The deadline to register is 4 p.m. Wednesday. The entry fee is $5 per person and only Scurry County residents are eligible to enter. Play-off time will be 9 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 22, in the coliseum. To register call 573-8511, ext. 240.

Players will play the best two out of three games until the top four teams are determined. A 1-hour limit will be set for three games. The team with the highest score will advance. In case of a tie, a sudden-death play-off will be held and the first team with 50 points will advance.

The top four teams will then play on Saturday, Sept. 22, at 9 a.m. This will be the best three out of five teams to determine the champions. There will be a 1½ hour limit.

Players will draw for the down on the first game. The loser downs after the first game.

Domino players who wish to participate in the tournament must register by the Wednesday deadline. Fees are to be paid at 5:30 p.m. Thursday, before the tournament begins. Teams who have not paid by 6 p.m. will be disqualified.

Feather detective said to always get her bird

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ace feather detective Roxie Laybourne always gets her bird. Even when the evidence is a mere wisp of fluffy down.

From her cluttered aerie on the top floor of the National Museum of Natural History, amid storage bins containing more than 600,000 specimens of stuffed birds, the hawk-eyed Mrs. Laybourne reigns as the nation's foremost authority on feathers.

Give her a tuft of tail feathers and Roxie (nobody calls her Mrs. Laybourne) can tell whether they were plucked from an Australian palm cockatoo, a South African crowned plover or a Caribbean coot.

Criminal investigators once tapped her 46 years of expertise in a murder case involving a wife who shot her sleeping husband with a pistol wrapped in a feather pillow as a silencer.

Roxie informed authorities that microscopic traces of down taken from the bullet lodged in the victim's skull matched the feathers from the bullet-punctured pillow. The New York Times dubbed her "Miss Marple of Eiderdown."

Roxie squints knowingly from behind her gold-rimmed spectacles and whispers in a Carolina drawl as thick as grits with ham gravy.

"The fingerprint says you are it," she confides. "Feather evidence says you might be it. The feather puts you at the scene of the crime."

Gunners are set to leave

FORT HOOD, Texas (AP) — Two young gunners stood in front of the twin beige behemoths that will be their metallic camels of the desert — M1A1 battle tanks dubbed "Hound Dog" and "Hollywood" being inspected for duty in Saudi Arabia.

"I love tanks," confesses Pvt. Joseph Barajas of Modesto, Calif. "I can't wait to get there — start gettin' those T-72s in my sights."

Barajas and his sergeant, Michael Duda of Glendale, Calif., were as eager to show off their tanks as if they were their shiny new sports cars.

"Right now, we're focusing all our attention on getting maintenance of the vehicles, to make sure they're ready," Duda said. There was a flurry of activity around the two tanks as Duda's unit prepared to leave this capital of tankdom, the largest center of armored weaponry in the free world.

"We just got back from Calfax training — that's the best. We're really ready to go," Duda said of a training exercise his unit had just undergone.

Duda and Barajas' armored machines are designed to ferret out and destroy their Soviet counterpart — the T-72 — in use by President Saddam Hussein's heavily mechanized Iraqi divisions.

The 67-ton tanks are revered by their crews because they can keep a target in sight while the 1,500 horsepower turbine engine moves flat out at 42 mph. With the tank's laser range finders, ballistic computer, thermal-imaging night site and wind sensors, the gunners can see through darkness, fog and dust to blast the insides out of any armored opponent.

Such a love of tanks inspired Barajas to volunteer for duty in Saudi Arabia and turn down a transfer to the lush green hills of Bamberg, West Germany.

Ordeal reminiscent of rescue

DENVER (AP) — The parents of Jessica McClure, a Texas girl trapped in a shaft three years ago, said hearing of the ordeal

Kevin Davis' parents were going through brought back painful memories.

"Oh my God," said Chip McClure when told of the 20-month-old Denver boy trapped down a 12-foot hole in his parent's home Saturday night. "His parents must be in shock."

McClure's daughter, Jessica, then 18-months-old, fell into a well in Midland Texas and caught the hearts of an entire country as her parents waited through a 58-hour rescue.

"I'm really upset," Chip McClure told the Rocky Mountain News. "The pain I felt after Jessica fell down the well — I hate to see anybody have to go through that."

Remembering the agony of the wait, he said, "You just keep telling yourself, 'This isn't happening.' You feel a lot of stress and you feel helpless. There's nothing you can do. You keep praying and hoping and trying to keep your chin up."

McClure had this to say to Lisa and Tom Davis, before the end of their 14-hour wait: "Tell them to hang in there. I know every hour seems like a day. You have to have faith in the Lord. I'm sure their little boy will be all right."

Kevin was listed in Denver General Hospital in stable condition Sunday, receiving only mild abrasions. Doctors planned on keeping the boy until Monday to treat him for mild dehydration.

Chip and Reba McClure were divorced last May, and both still live in Midland. When Reba McClure heard about the Davis' situation through her ex-husband, she phoned the Rocky Mountain News.

"Tell the parents I'm praying for them," she said. "I know exactly how those poor people feel and they have my sympathy."

She said Jessica is fine today and doesn't show any signs of her ordeal.

Reba McClure said Jessica didn't have psychological treatment following the incident.

It's interesting that play advice for beginners is changed when they progress to intermediate and advanced levels. For example, a bridge lesson taught early is to protect your strong trump holding so that a defender will not win up with more trumps than you have.

Following that tenet, today's declarer won the opening club lead with dummy's ace and played a heart back to his jack. His plan was simply to ruff a heart and draw trumps. That figured to be an easy 10 tricks, since spades divide 3-2 almost 70 percent of the time. West won the king of hearts and now switched to the jack of spades. Declarer won, played ace and ruffed a heart, ruffed a club to his hand and tried to draw trumps. Declarer couldn't avoid a trump loser and so had to go down one.

Declarer does better if he sees that he can counter a possible bad trump split. He will succeed if he can score all of his little trumps. So at the second trick he should ruff a club and then play ace and a heart. Either defender will win and play a spade. Declarer takes the ace, ruffs a heart and then ruffs another club. He can now play K-Q of spades. Even though West is left with a high trump, South can go to dummy with the diamond ace, ruff the last club with his remaining small trump and take 10 tricks.

Best for the defense is an opening lead of the jack of spades. After that, barring subsequent mistakes on the part of the defenders, declarer has no play for the contract.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books.

Giants thump Cowboys, 28-7

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Lawrence Taylor keeps making a fool of training camp and the Dallas Cowboys.

Taylor had five tackles and a quarterback sack and returned an intercepted pass 11 yards for a touchdown Sunday as the New York Giants whipped the Cowboys 28-7 in Texas Stadium's 104-degree heat.

Taylor, who practiced only three days after ending his holdout, had three sacks last week in New York's 27-20 opening victory over Philadelphia.

A year ago, Taylor made fun of the Cowboys' offense, calling it something straight out of college. He said it was so simple he thought there was some trick to it.

Taylor showed what he meant on Sunday, batting a Troy Aikman pass into the air and returning it for a fourth-quarter touchdown.

"LT made a great play," Aikman said. "It was just a great individual play. It's very frustrating."

Aikman and the Cowboys get another taste of the Giants in two weeks in New York.

"It's always fun to score," Taylor said. "Aikman was looking right at where he was going to throw the ball."

The Giants (2-0) have defeated the Cowboys (1-1) five consecutive times, a first in their 55-game series.

New York seemed to handle the heat better than the Cowboys. The temperature was 96 degrees at halftime, and a Texas Stadium field thermometer registered 104 at kickoff.

The Cowboys lost two players briefly to heat exhaustion. The Giants didn't lose any.

Phil Simms ran for a touchdown and passed for another. He hit 16 of 20 passes for 208 yards. "The heat was a big factor, but I think it may have worked against the Cowboys and for us," Simms said. "On offense, it's a lot easier to take the heat than on defense. And their defense was on the field a long, long time, so I think it probably worked against them."

New York led in time of possession 41:40 to 18:20.

"It was really hot out there," Simms said. "It's probably the hottest game I can ever remember playing."

Simms added: "I'm sure our defense loved the idea of what we were doing. They were on the bench most of the afternoon. So far, they haven't thanked me, though."

Simms ran four yards for a touchdown and passed four yards to tight end Mark Bavaro for another. The other offensive touchdown came on Ottis Anderson's one-yard run.

The Dallas offense produced only nine first downs. The only touchdown came on rookie Alexander Wright's 90-yard kickoff return in the second quarter.

"This is the second time in the last three games we've played the Giants that they had possession of the football for over 40 minutes," said Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson. "The one thing I feared during the week is that the Giants would take the football and control it."

Club to host golf tourney

Snyder Country Club's last scheduled golf tournament of the year, the Men's Club Championship, is set for Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 22 and 23 on the club course.

Golfers will tee off at 1 p.m. both days and competition will be held in low-gross and low-net divisions in each flight according to club pro Rick Mammolite.

Tea times are expected to be released Thursday.

Mats hand Steers 17-6 grid setback

LUBBOCK — The Estacado Matadors, in what could very well be a post-season preview, defeated Big Spring in Saturday night high school football action.

The Mats scored all their points in the opening quarter and held on to see the Steers push over for six in the final period.

Tight end Ricky Smith put the Matadors up 6-0 with a 28-yard reception of a Zebbie Lethridge pass followed by an Albert McBride field goal that extended the EHS lead to 10-0.

Junior defensive tackle Mark Doss scooped up a Big Spring fumble and scooted 20 yards for the last Estacado points of the game.

The two teams battled without any more points being scored until the final period when Steers' quarterback Gerald Cobos connected with senior split end Joe Jaure for an 18-yard TD.

The win puts District 2-4A favorite Estacado at 2-0 on the season while Big Spring of 3-4A rests at 1-1.

In other 2-4A action Saturday, Lamesa outlasted Amarillo Caprock, 7-6, for the Golden Tors' second win in the campaign.

Caprock receiver Jason Connell and QB Richard Williams combined for a 61-yard pass and run to put the Longhorns up 6-0 in the first period.

The missed PAT attempt came back to haunt Caprock late in the game as Lamesa scored on a 4-yard Tony Brown run followed by Donny Parra's extra point.

The Tornadoes held off a late CHS rally which ended with 1:05 left in the game when Williams' 34-yard field goal attempt went wide to the left.

Estacado plays at Dumas Friday night while Lamesa hosts Crane.

Bronte claims win over Lady Tigers

BRONTE, Tex. — Lady Tiger volleyballers from Snyder High were defeated in two games, 15-3, 15-11, by the Bronte Lady Longhorns in non-district action Saturday.

"We had a hard time with our mistakes in the first game," said SHS head coach Patty Grimmett. "The second game we kind of got things together but it was just a little late."

Senior Freda Clay sprained an ankle when a leaping Bronte spiker landed on the Snyder side of the net on Clay.

She was removed from the game and remains questionable for Tuesday's battle against Sweetwater.

Grimmett reported that trainers are optimistic about Clay's return prior to Saturday's start of District play at Lubbock Dunbar.

Dayla Church paced the Snyder offensive effort with four points. Liz Greathouse added three while Amber Bowlin and Robbie Brazier each punched two and Clay and Robbie Brazier contributed one apiece.

Snyder is currently 3-6 in non-district matches.

Varsity and JV spikers from Snyder will be in Sweetwater Tuesday for a 6 p.m. contest against the Lady Mustangs.

Snyder's freshmen are at home tonight against Abilene Cooper at 6 p.m.

L'field Lions offer dinner

The Littlefield Early Risers Lions Club will sponsor a chicken fried steak dinner for Snyder fans attending the Tigers-Littlefield football game Friday. The meal will be served from 5 to 7:30 p.m. and also after the game in the Lamb County Ag Building on Highway 385 and 17th St. in Littlefield.

Cost for the meal will be $5 per person.

Snyder netters beat Estacado

LUBBOCK — Snyder took a key win in District 2-4A tennis action Saturday as the Tigers defeated highly-regarded Estacado, 11-9, in the first loop encounter for each team.

"We had a real fine effort," said Snyder coach Charlie Chrane.

"We won four out of six split-set matches to come through in some really close matches."

Snyder's boys took four of six singles matches including a split-set win by Kevin McMillan over Estacado's Jonathan Blakes, 7-6 (7-5), 4-6, 7-5.

"Kevin was down 5-4 in the third with Estacado serving for match point and he came back for the win." Chrane reported.

Michael Hess was another three-set winner for the SHS netters taking the last two sets 6-3, 6-3 after falling in the opener, 1-6 to Victor Gomez.

Damon Kennedy and Jason Warren were the other singles winners for the Snyder boys squad.

The SHS guys kept the pressure on Estacado with a sweep of the doubles events.

Marcus Best and McMillan combined for a tense three-set, two-tie-breaker match win over James Gibson and Blakes, 7-5, 6-7 (7-5), 7-6 (7-5).

Kennedy and Kiron Kemp dumped the Matadors' Jacob Guzman and Anthony Pedroza in a pair of 6-0 sets and Warren and Hess outlasted Charles Cortez and Gomez, 6-7 (7-5), 6-3, 6-3.

Snyder's girls were led in singles competition by Robin Cave and Christina Gonzales.

Cave slipped past Estacado netter Deuet Brown, 7-5, 7-5 while Susie Gomez of EHS was dropped by Gonzales, 6-1, 6-0.

Kathy Ogburn and Gayle Henderson combined for a Snyder doubles win with a 6-4, 6-0 thrashing of Elizabeth Vasquez and Brown while the SHS duo of Gonzales and Hope Papay held on for a 7-6, 7-5 win over Gomez and Holly Haynes.

"We were really pleased with the win but we still have areas we need to improve," the coach stated.

Snyder's No. 4 boys' singles player and a member of the No. 2 doubles squad, Bill Vestal, sustained a broken big toe in the match and could possibly be sidelined for the remainder of the fall season.

Snyder continues District 2-4A competition Saturday as the Tigers host Lubbock Dunbar at 10 a.m. on the Snyder Junior High courts.

The following is a complete listing of the matches played Saturday as Snyder defeated Estacado 11-9 in team tennis at Lubbock Tennis Center. Snyder players are listed first.

Aggies, Hogs post 'impressive' wins

by The Associated Press
Texas A&M and Arkansas continued their impressive ways, but Southern Methodist was jerked back to reality as its run-and-shoot fell flat.

Tulane massacred the Mustangs 43-7 only a week after SMU had stunned Vanderbilt of the Southeastern Conference 44-7.

The Aggies rolled up a school-record 774 yards in offense in a 63-14 victory over Southwestern Louisiana and Arkansas downed Tulsa 28-3.

On Thursday night, Houston defeated Texas Tech 51-35 in the first SWC game of the year. Houston was impressive but isn't eligible for bowl games because of NCAA sanctions.

In a full slate of games coming up Saturday, Texas Tech is at New Mexico in a 4 p.m. clash, Northwestern is at Rice at 6 p.m., North Texas is at Texas A&M at 6 p.m., Sam Houston State is at Baylor at 7 p.m., Colorado is at Texas at 7 p.m. in a nationally televised (ESPN) game, Texas Christian is host to Oklahoma State at 7 p.m. and Arkansas and Mississippi meet at noon.

SMU had five turnovers and the Green Wave cashed them in for scores as 20,434 fans watched in the Superdome. "I thought Tulane was a team we could beat," said SMU quarterback Mike Romo, who was intercepted twice. "We matched up well against them, but we just gave them the game and I take a lot of the blame."

Romo had five touchdown passes two weeks ago but only had one against Tulane. "I basically stunk," he said. Texas A&M's Lance Pavlas didn't.

He threw three touchdown passes in the first quarter then sat on the bench for the rest of the game while Bucky Richardson operated the Aggies offense to perfection.

Pavlas finished nine-for-nine.

"We know all the games aren't going to be like this but it was fun," Pavlas said. "We're 2-0 and I haven't been that since I got here."

The Aggies scored 42 points in the first half.

Darren Lewis and Randy Simmons each rushed for 141 yards and Robert Wilson had 116.

Arkansas coach Jack Crowe had a successful debut for the Hogs. He was promoted from offensive coordinator after Ken Hatfield left for Clemson.

"They made it easy for a new coach," Crowe said. "We had everything our way."

Arkansas, the defending SWC champion, is playing its last season in the league before it defects to the SEC.

The first legal American League game in New York on a Sunday was played in 1912, a 12-inning scoreless tie between the Yankees and Senators.

'L.A. Law' was big winner at Emmy awards

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — "L.A. Law" won the Emmy for best drama series for the third time in four years, "Murphy Brown" was named best comedy and the acclaimed "Twin Peaks," nominated 14 times, managed only two technical trophies.

Candice Bergen of CBS' "Murphy Brown" won best actress as the acid-tongued newswoman for a second consecutive year. And Ted Danson, the skirt-chasing bartender Sam Malone on "Cheers," finally won as best comedy series actor Sunday night after being nominated eight times — every year the show has been on the air.

In a big sign-off for "The Tracey Ullman Show," the British comedian's program grabbed the most awards at the 42nd annual Emmys with six. Ullman, who pulled the plug on the little watched show last spring, won Fox Broadcasting Co. its first Emmys last year.

"Oh, blimey, this brings it all full circle," said Miss Ullman, honored with a pair of Emmys in the music-variety category for her work as star and a writer. "I miss the show a whole lot."

Peter Falk's bumbling but brilliant "Columbo" earned him the dramatic actor award. Patricia Wettig, who plays a cancer-stricken young mother on ABC's "thirtysomething," won the best dramatic actress trophy.

"I would really like to thank all the women with cancer who have shared their stories with me so wholeheartedly," a teary Miss Wettig said. "I shared their insights and their fears. I truly salute their courage."

Despite 14 nominations, ABC's "Twin Peaks," the strange new series about murder in a Northwest logging town, captured only two technical trophies — for editing and costuming. Both were given in a non-televised ceremony Saturday.

Instead, NBC's "L.A. Law" went home with the best drama Emmy — an honor it also received in 1987 and 1989 — won a writing award and also a best supporting actor Emmy for Jimmy Smits, who plays lawyer Victor Sifuentes.

In a reversal of the order last year, ABC finished first with 22 awards, NBC won 18 and CBS, which topped the Big Three networks with 27 Emmys in 1989, managed only 14 this year. Fox won nine Emmys, the most in its four-year history. Cable's Home Box Office collected eight.

Best miniseries went to NBC's "Drug Wars: The Camarena Story," an account of the torture-slashing of U.S. drug agent Enrique Camarena. "This is a victory for him, too," said executive producer Michael Mann.

Kenneth Ivory Wayans, whose irreverent Fox comedy sketch series "In Living Color" won the variety, music or comedy category, welled up. "Oh, forget it," said the show's executive producer and host. "This is for you, Mom."

Scott Winant of "thirtysomething," who tied with Thomas Carter of "Equal Justice" for best drama series director, got choked up, too. "I'm afraid I'm not really going to be able to express myself," he said.

Danson's award was presented by the animated family from Fox's "The Simpsons." Obnoxious 10-year-old son Bart Simpson shredded the envelope containing Danson's name and pronounced himself the winner.

Asked how it felt to receive his trophy from cartoon characters,

Danson replied, "I think it is appropriate after nine years. I feel a little weird. I felt like if it didn't happen this year it would be more embarrassing than ever before."

Joseph Sargent was named best director in a miniseries or special for his work on CBS' "Caroline?" Vincent Gardenia won for supporting actor in a miniseries or special, given for HBO's "Age-Old Friends."

Eva Marie Saint took the trophy for supporting actress in a miniseries or special, co-starring in NBC's "People Like Us."

A special recognition was given to puppeteer Jim Henson, who died earlier this year. To the strains of Kermit the Frog's song "The Rainbow Connection," Miss Bergen, daughter of puppeteer Edgar Bergen, movingly recounted Henson's career.

Alex Rocco won outstanding supporting actor in a comedy for his portrayal of sleazy talent agent Al Floss in "The Famous Teddy Z," which was canceled this year. The supporting actress award went to Bebe Neuwirth, the cold-as-ice psychoanalyst on "Cheers."

ABC's "The Wonder Years" collected trophies for best directing (Michael Dinner) and writing (Bob Brush) in a comedy series.

Miss Bergen, Jay Leno and Jane Pauley were the program's hosts. During Saturday's technical awards, Fox's "The Simpsons" was selected top animated program.

Hume Cronyn, who starred in HBO's "Age Old Friends," took the prize for best actor in a miniseries or special.

Barbara Hershey, who played the lead in CBS' "A Killing in A Small Town," won for best actress in a miniseries or special.

Iraqi soldiers seize young Kuwaiti men today

By The Associated Press

Young Kuwaiti men trying to flee their occupied homeland were seized today by Iraqi troops, refugees reported, and their sobbing wives and daughters were forced to cross into Saudi Arabia without them.

In Iraq, state-run newspapers today heaped scorn on President Bush for his broadcast warning to the Iraqis that their president, Saddam Hussein, is leading them to war. One newspaper's headline read: "Shut up, Mr. Bush."

"Saddam Hussein tells you that this crisis is a struggle between Iraq and America. In fact, it is Iraq against the world," Bush said in his speech, aired Sunday on Iraqi television.

Standing in front of his Oval Office desk with the American flag behind him, Bush urged Iraq to withdraw its troops from Kuwait, which it overran on Aug. 2.

Iraqi authorities responded that Bush's statement was full of "lies and contradictions." They said the U.S. president aimed to be "dictator of the world."

Thousands of protesters gathered in the streets of Baghdad's capital after Bush's broadcast, chanting "Death to Bush! Death to America!"

International opposition to Iraq, however, appeared to pick up strength.

Britain said today it would expel the Iraqi military attache and three aides from the embassy in London. Foreign Secretary Douglas Hurd indicated the Home Office would be announcing further sanctions against Iraq later in the day.

Twelve member nations of the European Community, meeting today in Brussels, Belgium, are expected to consider new retaliatory measures against Iraq and more aid for countries hurt by the U.N.-ordered embargo on trade with that country. Dutch Premier Ruud Lubbers said today he expected European nations to agree on toughening the economic embargo against Iraq within the next two days. But he said the Netherlands has no immediate plans to expel Iraqi diplomats in retaliation for Iraq's intrusion into diplomatic premises in Kuwait last week.

Dutch, French, Belgian and Canadian embassies or diplomatic residences were raided last week by Iraqi troops. The embassy raids were unanimously condemned Sunday by the U.N. Security Council.

France expelled 29 Iraqis in retaliation, and Italy announced it was ousting all officials at the Iraqi military attache's office in Rome.

Also Sunday, U.N. diplomats began drafting a new resolution to close off Iraq's air routes and punish nations flouting the U.N.-ordered embargo on trade with Iraq, U.S. officials said.

An Egyptian military source said Egypt will send 250 soldiers to Saudi Arabia today and more will follow in a few days, joining the estimated 4,000 Egyptian troops already in the region. The source, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said Egypt would also send Egyptian tanks, armored personnel carriers and air defense systems to Saudi Arabia by ship across the Red Sea.

Preliminary agreement ok'd

MOSCOW (AP) — Saudi Arabia and the Soviet Union reached a preliminary agreement today to restore diplomatic relations after a break of more than 50 years, the official Tass news agency reported.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and his Saudi counterpart, Prince Saud Al-Faisal Al Saud, also called for the immediate withdrawal of Iraqi troops from Kuwait, Tass said.

Shevardnadze said the two nations reached a preliminary agreement to restore diplomatic relations, and he hoped the question would be settled fully after the Saudi minister met with President Mikhail S. Gorbachev, Tass said.

"The issue of establishing official contacts between the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and Saudi Arabia has long been ripe," a Foreign Ministry official, Sergei Kirpichenko, was quoted by Tass as saying.

Saudi Arabia's new rapport with Moscow comes after the Soviet Union — despite its long alliance with Iraq — broke with Baghdad and condemned the invasion of Kuwait.

Saudi Arabia and Moscow had full diplomatic relations until 1938, when dictator Josef Stalin closed his embassy in Jiddah in a cost-cutting move.

Several attempts to re-establish ties during the 1980s faltered over what Saudi Arabia called the Soviet Union's "belligerent attitude" toward its 50 million Moslems.

In their discussions of the Persian Gulf crisis, the Saudi and Soviet foreign ministers were quoted as saying both wanted a peaceful settlement.

"We hope that faced with the world community's unanimity, Iraq will agree to the immediate and unconditional withdrawal of its troops from Kuwait and will restore legality," Tass quoted the Saudi official as saying.

On Sunday, the Saudi Arabian minister of pilgrimage and endowments arrived in Moscow to

Air Force Chief of Staff relieved of duties today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force chief of staff, Gen. Mike Dugan, was relieved of his duties today, the Pentagon said.

The action came one day after Dugan was quoted in published reports as saying U.S. military authorities had concluded that massive air strikes are the only effective way of forcing Iraq out of Kuwait if war erupted. Dugan was on a tour of U.S. military installations in Saudi Arabia when he made his comments.

Lt. Col. Rick Oborn, a Pentagon spokesman, said he could not immediately comment on the reason for Dugan's dismissal. He said a formal announcement was being prepared.

Dugan commanded the U.S. Air Force in Europe before his appointment as chief of staff three months ago.

On Sunday, National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft distanced the administration from Dugan's comments, which appeared in the Los Angeles Times and The Washington Post.

"I would just point out that Gen. Dugan is not in the chain of command, and he does not speak for the administration," Scowcroft said.

Commissioners voted to open bids for the books. The sealed bids will be opened at the Dec. 3 meeting of the court.

Goodwin presided over the meeting. Present were Commissioners C.D. Gray Jr., Ted Billingsley, Tommy Pate and Duane Davis.

Goebel, registered nurse who also services three other centers; Tiffany Fowler, residential program manager for a six-county area; Dr. Kenneth Day, M.D., a psychologist who is here every Wednesday; and Jeanne Cumbie, who replaced Paregien as case manager.

The local health center has a client list of about 100 people. The center also provides emergency services 24 hours a day.

Paregien earned his bachelor's degree from David Lipscomb University in Nashville, Tenn., and his master's from the University of New Mexico. He has also completed 60 hours toward a Ph.D. at the University of Oklahoma.

He is a past member of the advisory board of Noah Project, is on the board of directors of Scurry County United Way, a board member and second vice president of the Lions Club and serves as secretary-treasurer of the chamber of commerce's Gold Coat organization.

Prior to working for MHMR, he was a radio personality and operations manager at KSNV radio. He also brings to the position experience as a newspaper editor and eight years as a minister. Paregien and his wife Peggy have a son, Stan Jr., of Oklahoma City and a daughter, Stacy of Snyder.

east receiving .98 of an inch. Loyd Mountain received 1.1 inches.

The cold front was located early today along a line from Gainesville westward to Childress.

The rainfall was triggered by an upper level disturbance moving over the moist and unstable atmosphere over North Texas.

Scattered thunderstorms were also reported near the Texas-New Mexico border from Dalhart to east of Hobbs, N.M.

In South Central Texas, scattered rain showers were reported from Rocksprings to Menard and Brady.

Abilene got 1.11 inches of rain during the 24-hour period ending at 1 a.m. today and Wichita Falls got .77 of an inch.

Forecasts called for a good chance of scattered showers and thunderstorms over most of the state except Southwest Texas through Tuesday.

Early morning temperatures were mostly in the 60s and 70s, ranging from the 50s in the mountains of Southwest Texas to the lower 80s along the immediate coast. Extremes ranged from 56 at Marfa in the Davis Mountains to 80 at Palacios.

Ester Jackson

1904-1990
IDA, La. — Services were held for Mrs. Queen Ester Jackson, 86, of Hosston, La., at 1 p.m. Saturday in Bethlehem Baptist Church of Ida.

She was the mother of Mrs. Sylvester (Geneva) McKnight of Rt. 2, Snyder. Other survivors include five other children; several grandchildren, including George McKnight, Leon McKnight, Sylvester McKnight Jr., Don McKnight, Isaiah McKnight, Howard Smith Jr. and Stephanie McKnight all of Snyder; Linda Emerson of Colorado City and Joyce Smith Ridge of Colorado State; two brothers; two sisters; great-grandchildren; nieces and nephews.

She had visited Snyder several times over the years.

Zula Smith Miller

1909-1990
Services for Zula Smith Miller, 81, former long-time Scurry County resident, are set for 11 a.m. Tuesday at East Side Church of Christ with minister Tom Holcomb officiating. Burial will follow in Snyder Cemetery. Services are under the direction of Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home.

Mrs. Miller died Sunday evening at her home in Abilene.

Her parents, Jacob "Jake" Smith and Elizabeth "Bettie" Brandon Smith, came to Dunn in 1907 from Hempstead County, Ark. She was born April 2, 1909, on the Will Hall Farm north of Dunn. She attended schools at China Grove and Roundtop, and graduated from Dunn High School in 1927. Her first trip to Snyder was at the age of six months in a wagon, when her family came to town for the dedication of the County Courthouse and the laying of the cornerstone.

She married Claude H. Miller on August 19, 1936, in Mitchell County. They lived on a farm west of Snyder until his death in 1951. She then moved to Snyder where she had lived until 1985 when she moved to Abilene. She was a housewife and had been an active member of East Side Church of Christ since 1937.

Survivors include two daughters, Margaret Ann Talbot of Sanderson and Nancy Beth Baker of Abilene; one son, Ronald H. Miller of Hewitt; one sister, Rellie Hammond of Lubbock; three brothers, Diddy Smith of Dunn, Graham Smith of Dunn and Olton Smith of Moencl, Ariz.; and seven grandchildren.

Falbearers will be Miller Talbot, Clay Miller, Brandon Baker, Drew Baker, Kyle McAlister and Don Browning. The family requests memorials be made to Hospice of Abilene, P.O. Box 1922, Abilene, Tex. 79604.

Police make two arrests during quiet weekend

Snyder police saw mostly routine activity over the weekend.

Two unrelated arrests were made by officers Saturday. At 5:29 p.m., police took into custody a 29-year-old male in the 3400 block of College Ave. for no driver's license, no insurance and failure to yield right of way.

A disturbance between a male and a female at 26th St. and Ave. K was reported at 10:17 p.m. Saturday. An 18-year-old male was taken into custody for public intoxication.

Troops told about chemical warfare

EDITOR'S NOTE — AP Military Writer Susanne Schaffer recently traveled to Fort Hood with General Carl Vuono, the Army's chief of staff, where elements of the 1st Cavalry and 2nd Armored Divisions are preparing to ship out to Saudi Arabia. This is the second of three reports.

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFFER
AP Military Writer

FORT HOOD, Texas (AP) — Staff Sgt. Connie Martens barked out the chemical weapons drill to her two-dozen charges, sweaty young Army soldiers swathed head to toe in thick, green and black protective gear.

"Blister agent ... usually not fatal. Possibility of liquid use. ... We have the M2-58A1. ... Hold your breath, grab your M2-58A1. At that time you will start decontaminating your skin. Once you decontaminate your skin, no problem!" Martens told her troops in rat-a-tat style.

Some 15,000 soldiers from two armored divisions at this sprawling Texas fort will soon trade its rolling hills for the sands of Saudi Arabia. And Iraq's Saddam Hussein might be their next instructor in the dangers of chemical warfare.

So the soldiers from the 1st Cavalry Division listened intently to the petite sergeant with the booming voice — a chemical weapons expert with 15 years of service — as they got themselves and their gear ready to deploy.

"Blisters may begin to appear on your skin. ... Don't pop the blisters. If you break the blisters, you have the secondary problem of infection. You don't want infections out there, so just keep 'em covered like you've always been trained, like a normal burn casualty and you won't have a problem. Any questions?" she asked.

"Yeah, I've got a question," a voice sounded from the side of the huddle. "What's the standard for putting on a protective mask?"

Backs stiffened and eyes widened as a big-shouldered four-star general in jungle green and brown fatigues worked his way to the front of the group.

Gen. Carl Vuono, the Army's chief of staff, had come to see whether his troops were getting the proper training before being sent in harm's way.

"Who knows?" Vuono shouted at the group, soldiers who rarely been quizzed by a multistar general, let alone the Army's top commander.

"Nine seconds!" came a chorused reply.

"So what's the signal?" Vuono asked. Without waiting for a response, he then boomed out: "Gas! Gas! Gas!"

Ripping their black headgear from their belts, the soldiers squeezed their eyes shut and held their breath as they struggled to place the heavy goggles and plastic cover over their heads.

A few wouldn't have made it in time. Most did.

"Not bad, not bad," Vuono said, checking his watch. "Let's try it again. Put 'em back!"

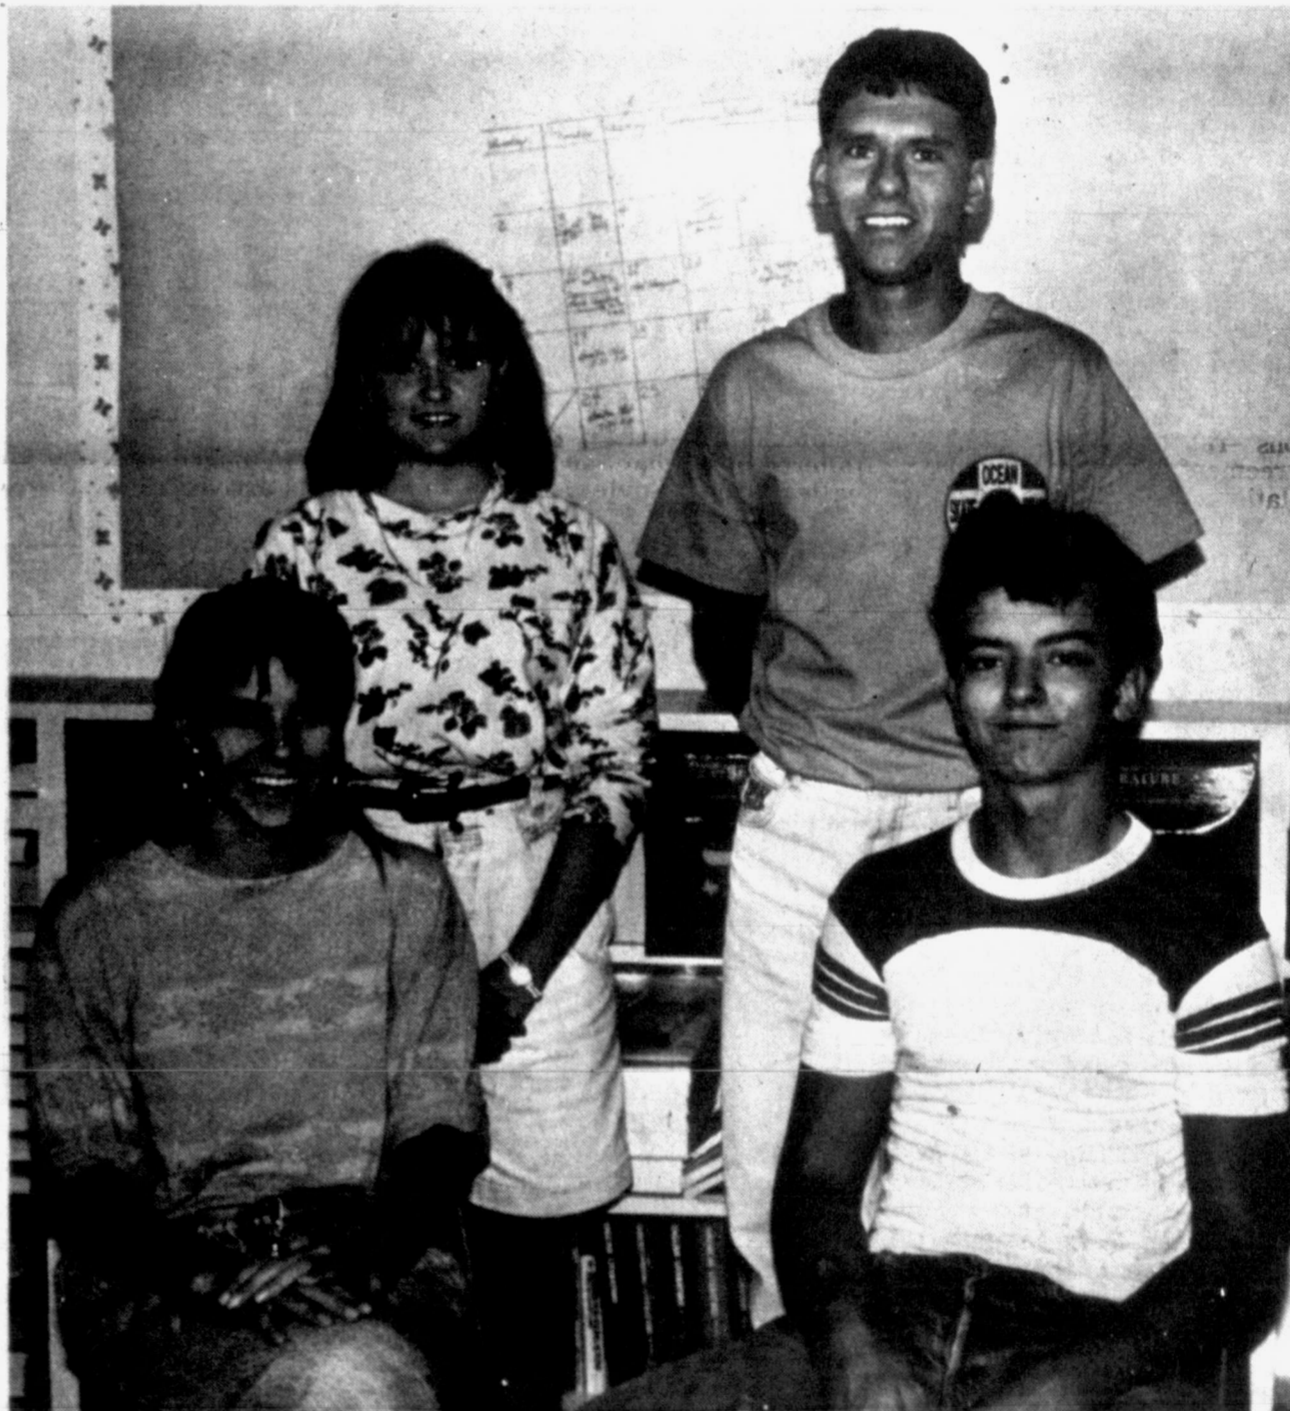

As a few men started to remove their clumsy headgear, the muffled sound of "Negative, negative" emerged from under the Darth Vader-like hoods.

Vuono beamed with delight — the soldiers had refused his order because he'd not given the proper command "All clear."

"Well done! Well done! I tell you, Tilleli, I'm proud of these guys!" Vuono shouted to their commander, Maj. Gen. John Tilleli Jr., who stood nearby.

Humorists find comedy in latest Gulf crisis

NEW YORK (AP) — "A human shield? Take my mullah-in-law ... please!" Barrump-bump! From the Top 10 lists of "Late Night" to the political humor of Will Durst and Harry Shearer, humorists are finding comedy in the Gulf crisis.

On Aug. 2, Iraq invaded Kuwait and erased its Kuwaitbank Visa card's $10 billion tab. That same night, "Late Night with David Letterman" offered "Saddam Hussein's Top Ten Reasons for Invading Kuwait."

Reason No. 6: "To impress Jodie Foster;" No. 3: "Didn't have enough fuel and supplies to invade the moon;" and No. 1 ... (drum roll) ... "Because the sand is always grainier on the other side of the border."

Nobody said it's easy being a jester in the court of public opinion.

"It's hard coming up with the lighter side of Armageddon," said Will Durst, a comic who specializes in politics and writes a weekly column for the San Francisco Examiner. Saddam is funny, the invasion wasn't.

"When he invaded, it was tough," Durst said. "I turned it on him and made him the focus: 'You know Saddam is a bad guy because Switzerland is (angry) at him. Imagine: Switzerland, the Aunt Bea of the U.N.'"

"Saddam Hussein is such a bad guy that if he were an American,

John Sununu would still be governor of New Hampshire."

"I call Saddam Hussein a yuppie. His motives are something we can all understand: Greed. I mean, this is a corporate raider with tanks."

"At least this guy has a motive we can relate to — because (as Americans) we never got past the suicide-terrorist thing. I mean, how do those people get paid? Is it a union thing?"

Durst gets serious, too: "It's obvious that America would rather sacrifice its boys than carpool." Saddam, he said, "is the symptom, not the problem. Taking out Hussein would be like whitening out a tumor on an X-ray."

Political impressionist Jim Morris made his name portraying Ronald Reagan as an amiable dimwit, but these days his focus is George Bush and his handling of the Gulf crisis. Morris says it's a sensitive topic and he's very careful.

"I am a lot kinder to the president in this situation than I am when he wants to cut funding for school lunch programs," Morris said.

Then, in the voice he calls "a cross between Liberace, Jack Nicholson and Mister Rogers," Morris drawls, "I don't hafta defend the way I been handlin' the crisis. M' door's always open. 'M never there, but m' door's always open.'"

Judge to preside over surrogate mother lawsuit

SANTA ANA, Calif. (AP) — The childless couple and the young woman struck a bargain: Mark and Crispina Calvert would give Anna Johnson $10,000, and she would bear a child created from their egg and sperm.

The deal went wrong. Now, just weeks before the birth, the Calverts and Ms. Johnson are locked in a bitter custody dispute that is moving from the TV talk show arena into the courtroom.

Lawyers for the three sides — the fetus has a court-appointed attorney — are preparing their strategies in a case called unprecedented even in the cutting-edge realm of surrogate pregnancies.

The issues: What makes a parent — the genetic link or the act of bearing a child? And what is the legality of the surrogate contract?

The outcome, experts say, could be a groundbreaking ruling or a narrow decision that doesn't go beyond that of any other custody case. A pre-trial hearing is set for Thursday in Superior Court.

Harold LaFlamme, the fetus' attorney, said his goal is to avoid protracted litigation and an unstable life for the child. A narrow ruling based on the child's best interests is possible, he said.

California courts "try to avoid constitutional disputes, try to fit cases into the family law scheme of things," he said.

H. Joseph Gitlin, head of the surrogacy committee of the American Bar Association's family law section, agreed that the child's interests may outweigh other issues. But if Ms. Johnson is found to lack a genetic link to the child, "that surely gives the (Calverts) a leg up," he said.

California's liberal track record in family law — giving the nation such concepts as no-fault divorce — makes it more likely that the surrogate contract will be upheld, Gitlin said.

But even if the contract is ruled invalid, "I see the court deciding the case on the same basis as the Baby M case: That is, in the best interests of the child," he said.

In that landmark New Jersey case, the child was conceived by a surrogate mother, Mary Beth Whitehead, with the sperm of a man whose wife couldn't have a baby. Whitehead reneged on the arrangement, prompting a bitter custody fight that was won in 1988 by the father, William Stern, and his wife, Elizabeth. The judge ruled the contract invalid and awarded them the baby.

However, in that case, Ms. Whitehead was genetically the child's mother because she provided the egg. In the California case, the Calverts agreed to provide both sperm and egg for a so-called test-tube baby.

Complicating the California case is a claim from Ms. Johnson's attorneys that the fetus might be her natural child. And because one of Ms. Johnson's grandparents is an American Indian, the child's adoption could involve federal tribal-protection laws that give preference to Indians. Calvert, 34, is white and his wife Filipino.

Mrs. Calvert, 36, and Ms. Johnson, 29, met at the Santa Ana hospital where both worked as nurses. Ms. Johnson agreed to undergo an embryo transplant for the Calverts for $10,000.

Mrs. Calvert was unable to conceive a child naturally because of a hysterectomy. A single parent with a 3-year-old daughter, Ms. Johnson said she had seen the contract as a way to put herself through graduate nursing school.

But Ms. Johnson claims the couple's enthusiasm for the pregnancy turned to indifference, they were late with payments and showed no concern when she suffered complications. She is seeking custody, child support and emotional damages.

The Calverts deny the allegations, accusing Ms. Johnson of greed and publicity-seeking. The dispute has been aired by both sides on such TV shows as "Geraldo" and "Donahue."

The couple's attorney, Christian Van Deusen, said he will ask the court to enforce the custody rights detailed in the contract and to recognize the genetic relationship in determining parenthood.

Ms. Johnson's attorneys, Richard Gilbert and Diane Marlowe, say they will seek to have the contract declared illegal and invalid because it constitutes baby-selling. California has no law on the issue.

They maintain that Ms. Johnson is the biological parent because she is carrying the child to term, and that the transplant may not have even succeeded. State law recognizes the birth mother as the legal mother, they say.

Molecular biologists comparing genetic material from the placentas of 147 women of different racial backgrounds have deduced an African "Eve," the ancestor of every living person. The descendants of this ancestor, they theorize, carried her DNA to the rest of the world, says National Geographic.

Dr. Gott

Peter Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 19-year-old male and take 1,000 milligrams of tetracycline daily for acne. Can long-term ingestion (five years) of this drug be harmful? Would L-lysine and bee-pollen tablets be a natural alternative to tetracycline?

DEAR READER: Acne, a common skin affliction marked by a plugging of follicles and infection, is often helped by tetracycline. This antibiotic seems to have benefits over and above its antibiotic properties; it may change the skin's chemistry, thereby reducing the tendency to inflammation.

Traditionally, patients with acne are prescribed tetracycline in full doses (250 milligrams four times a day on an empty stomach) and, as soon as improvement appears, the dose of the drug is reduced. This usually takes two to four weeks.

Thereafter, patients are given a maintenance dose (250-500 milligrams per day), depending on the severity of the skin disorder and its response to therapy. At this low dose, tetracycline can safely be continued for years. The major side effects of tetracycline (sensitivity to sunlight and vaginal yeast infection are, in my experience, rare at this dose).

You seem to be taking more antibiotic than you need. Although tetracycline is safe for extended use — even in full doses — I'm curious why you require so much. Perhaps it isn't effective in your case. If so, you might experience more success with one of the newer prescription preparations, such as tretinoin (Retin-A, a cream that causes the outer layer of skin to shed, reducing infection) or isotretinoin (Accutane, a pill that reduces the secretion of skin oils and inhibits infection). Ask your doctor about these drugs — or, better yet, see a dermatologist for further advice.

L-lysine (an amino acid) and bee pollen are not effective in treating acne.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My doctor says I have irritable bowel syndrome, and none of the medicines he has given me help. What can be done for my condition?

DEAR READER: Irritable bowel syndrome (spastic colon) is a common, harmless but annoying affliction, characterized by abdominal discomfort, bloating, gas, erratic evacuation, headache, fatigue and anxiety. The cause is unknown, but the condition is often worsened by stress, diet and many medicines.

The diagnosis is made by exclusion: Other, more serious diseases — such as colitis, lactose intolerance, peptic ulcer and diverticulitis — are ruled out by appropriate testing (blood and stool analysis, X-rays and sigmoidoscopic colon examination).

Therapy for irritable bowel syndrome consists of a well-balanced and nutritious diet (avoiding foods that the patient knows will trigger an attack), use of a stool-bulking agent (such as Metamucil, to stabilize bowel movements), and mild anti-spasmodic drugs (such as Donnatal, to reduce intestinal over-activity). Avoidance of stress is often helpful but is becoming more difficult in our angst-laden society. Some patients respond to counseling or hypnosis.

If, despite the above suggestions, symptoms continue, I usually refer such patients to a gastroenterologist for further, more individualized advice. To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Irritable Bowel Syndrome." Other readers who would like a copy should send $15 with their names and addresses to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Whites only club doesn't open as usual

MANSFIELD, Texas (AP) — A nightclub that got in trouble with the Justice Department for turning away a black woman didn't open Saturday, its first day of business since the FBI was asked to investigate the club's whites-only admission policy.

A sign that read "Closed Due to illness" hung on the front door of the Western Country Klub on U.S. 287 near here.

The club is open only on Saturdays.

Owner "Mama" Hendrick, 68, of Venus said the club is private although she ran out of membership cards "a long time ago." There are no black members, she said, because "it would cause trouble, really."

Assistant U.S. Attorney Floyd Clardy of Dallas said he would ask the FBI to investigate the club's admission policy to determine if it violates the Civil Rights Act of 1964, which prohibits racial discrimination.

He said he would call for the investigation based upon information provided by Lisa Pollard, 29, of Grand Prairie, who said she was denied admittance to the club on Sept. 1 because she is black.

"If the investigation shows there were civil rights statutes violated, the Justice Department will vigorously pursue prosecution of the case," Clardy said.

Whooper research to benefit from new bill for hunters

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — The accidental shooting of an endangered whooping crane may actually help save the species, say genetic researchers at Texas Tech University.

The director of the Natural Science Research Laboratory at Texas Tech Museum said his facility has four jars of tissue taken from a 4-year-old female whooper that was shot early last year.

"In these pieces of tissue are molecules that will tell us about whooping cranes and their biology," lab director Robert Baker said.

Baker said it is difficult for researchers to obtain samples of wild whoopers because of their protection under the federal Endangered Species Act.

Houston lawyer Mario Max Yzaguirre said he mistook the crane for a snow goose on Jan. 3, 1989, during a fog-shrouded morning on San Jose Island. Yzaguirre was fined $15,000 by a federal judge in Laredo for violating the Endangered Species Act. He also paid $6,480 restitution to the state.

Texas Tech's lab got about 100 grams each of the whooper's liver, kidney, brain and muscle. The samples are being stored at temperatures of minus-80 degrees Celsius, Baker said.

Other samples were sent to Texas A&M University and Maryland's Patuxent Wildlife Research Center, Baker said.

Researchers who want to study the genetic makeup of whooping cranes will be able to obtain tiny samples, he said.

Jon Longmire, a genetic researcher at the Los Alamos National Laboratory in New Mexico, said every tissue sample from such a small population "means a lot to the research community."

Longmire is studying the tissues of whoopers in a process called genetic fingerprinting, which scientists hope can be used to avoid the breeding of closely related birds in captivity.

"By doing these in-depth genetic analyses, it allows us to do assessments on the relationships of the birds," he said. "Are they closely or distantly related? This will help in the pairings ... and increase the likelihood that the birds will survive when they are released in the wild."

Tom Smylie, a researcher and public affairs officer for the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service office in Albuquerque, N.M., monitors the only wild flock of whoopers.

The flock spends its winters at the Aransas Wildlife Refuge near Corpus Christi. Its summers are spent on the massive Wood Buffalo National Park in Canada's Northwest Territories.

An estimated 135 whoopers, including 14 young chicks, were expected to make the 2,500-mile migration this fall to the Aransas refuge, Smylie said. In 1941, there were only 16 whoopers in the flock.

A captive flock of 35 birds is at the Patuxent center and 30 whoopers are at the International Crane Foundation in Baraboo, Wis., he said. A 66th captive crane is kept at the San Antonio Zoological Gardens and Aquarium.

Woman burned to death by estranged husband

HOUSTON (AP) — A man was charged with capital murder after he allegedly doused his estranged wife with a flammable liquid and tossed a lit cigarette at her while her 7-year-old daughter watched, police said.

Cyrus W. Moore, 34, was ordered held without bond Sunday in the death of 31-year-old Bobbie Jean Stafford.

Fire Department arson investigator Ken Ferro said Moore went to Ms. Stafford's home Saturday and argued with her. They began to struggle and Moore poured some type of flammable liquid on Ms. Stafford and then set her on fire, Ferro said.

"We think he threw a lit cigarette at her to ignite the liquid," Ferro said.

Ms. Stafford was able to scream to her daughter to call 911.

When authorities arrived, Ms. Stafford was dead and flames had spread through a bedroom and into the attic.

Ms. Stafford's daughter and 2-year-old son, who was sleeping, were not injured.

Moore was treated at Ben Taub

Hospital for burns on his forearms before being taken into custody by arson investigators.

Cronkite begins to write book

NEW YORK (AP) — Walter Cronkite has begun writing his memoirs at last. He signed a contract for his autobiography 20 years ago.

"I have probably the longest existing book contract in the history of publishing," the former CBS anchorman said in the Sept. 24 issue of People magazine.

The 73-year-old Cronkite, who signed a contract with publisher Alfred A. Knopf Inc., finally got around to working on the book this summer.

It won't be a tell-all about CBS News. "It seems to me there have been enough books about all that," he said.

And the title? "I'm going to have to fight the publishers to keep them from calling it 'And That's the Way It Is.' I think we might come up with something more imaginative."

National service bills stray from sponsors' original idea

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House and Senate have passed multimillion-dollar bills establishing a civilian "national service" corps for young people. But originators of the idea say the differing bills bear little resemblance to what they had in mind.

"The committee picked up the ball but forgot to run," Rep. Dave McCurdy, D-Okla., one of the sponsors of national service, said after the House passed its bill last Thursday. "This bill is not national service."

Nonetheless, the $193 million bill the House approved on a voice vote after long debate bears the title National Service Act. It now goes to a conference committee to work out differences with the Senate, which passed a $125 million bill that, although less costly, is more ambitious.

McCurdy and other original sponsors hope the final version will include a provision in the Senate's bill, a $35 million demonstration program that will test their idea for linking national youth service with financial aid incentives.

It's a plan that the House did not include. The chairman of the House panel that wrote the bill, retiring Rep. Augustus Hawkins, D-Calif., opposed the idea and said his committee "categorically rejects any linkage between service and student financial assistance."

The idea of a national service corps to encourage young people to do social works the nation otherwise couldn't afford has been bound up in political differences that go beyond pride of authorship.

President Bush uttered the phrase "a thousand points of light" in his nominating speech and later refined it into a modest $25 million plan to establish a clearinghouse for community service — publicizing successful projects and encouraging new ones.

Critics of that idea, however, concluded it would do little to actually support an organized effort harnessing the energy and time of young people to do constructive social or environmental work benefiting their communities.

Moderate and conservative Democrats who lead the Democratic Leadership Council, a group formed to counterbalance what they see as the more liberal national party organization, proposed a more sweeping plan in January 1989.

Their bill would have made student financial aid contingent on a full-time stint in the military or in low-wage community service. Their bill would have phased out current forms of student aid in five years.

It would amount to a "civilian GI bill," a civilian program comparable to the benefits that encourage military service, according to its sponsors, led by McCurdy in the House and Sens. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., and Charles Robb, D-Va.

Their plan met stiff resistance, however, and in the Senate they settled for the scaled-back pilot program. Participants could receive vouchers for use toward college, a first home purchase or establishment of a small business — worth $5,000 for one year's service.

Critics, who include liberal Democrats as well as Republicans, said tying aid to service would penalize low-income students while allowing the affluent to escape service obligations. Supporters, however, said low-income students already have to work to supplement the meager support they get from existing student aid programs.

Pat Gray uses latest repair equipment

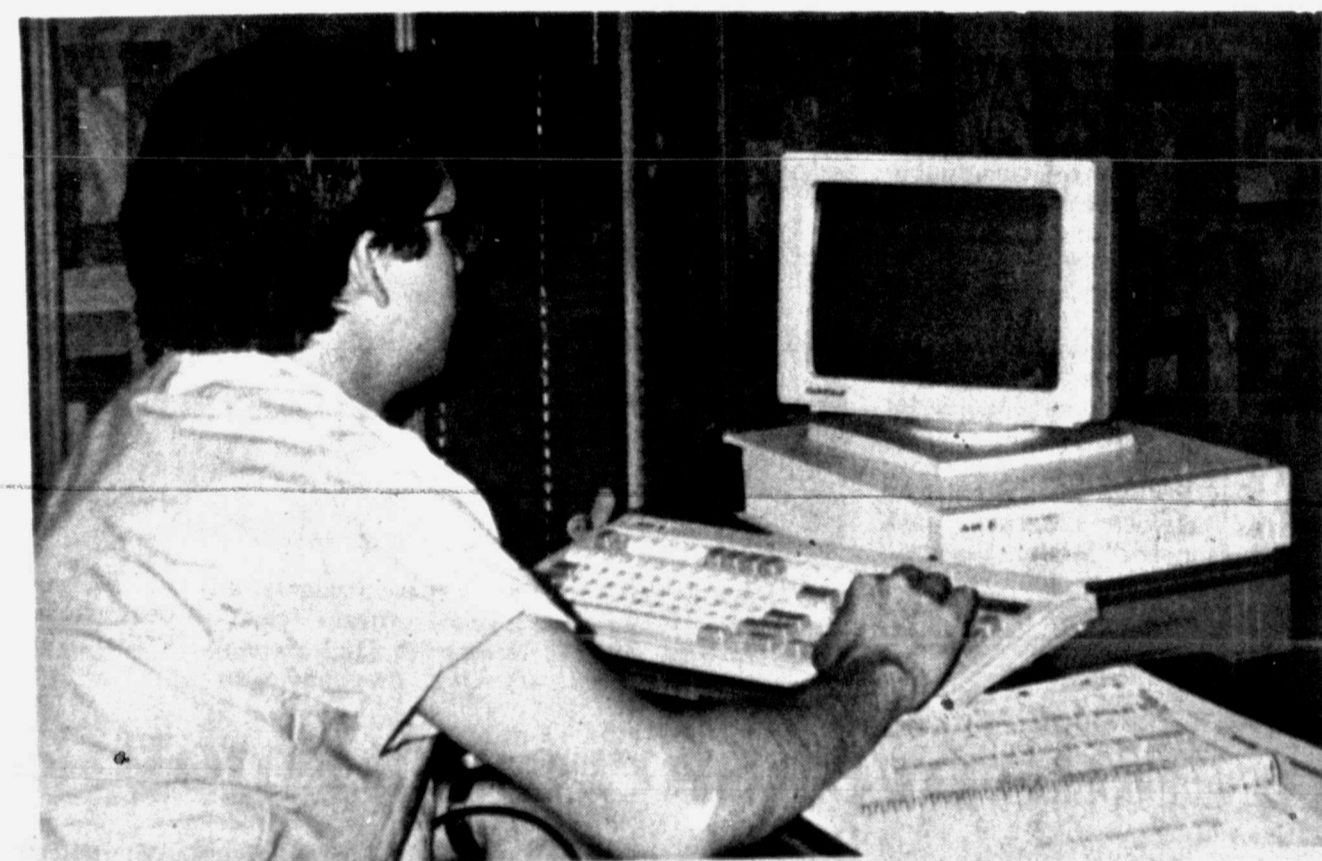

"We try to put ourselves in the customer's place," says Pat Gray, owner of Pat Gray Body Works in Big Spring. "When your car has been in a collision, you're just thinking about one thing. Get it fixed. Get it fixed as quickly as possible and get it fixed right."

That's why Pat Gray Body Works has invested in state-of-the-art equipment for every step of your job from computerized estimate, through high tech collision repairs systems to the final factory-perfect finish.

"And we provide written guarantees on our work," says Gray.

While the customer waits, Pat Gray prepares computer-generated estimates "that are speedier and much more accurate than hand-written estimates." The computer scans the latest catalogues of OEM (original equipment manufacturer) parts, then computes time and labor costs for specific repairs, producing quick accurate estimates. Insurance companies will act on these estimates, says Gray, moving your job forward quickly.

Collision repairs at Pat Gray's start with the Kansas Jack Magna Rack III, a revolutionary system for unibody cars that literally reverses the collision action by pulling it out the way it went in and then squares and aligns each section of the car. With its advanced gauging and analysis system, the machine can achieve repair results that are correct within one or two millimeters.

The next step is the Hunter computerized four-wheel alignment system. This impressive machine features a rack equipped with four sensors, one for each wheel so they can be adjusted individually. The machine operator is given precise analysis through computer screen read-out. The ultimate in precision, the Hunter relates all four wheels to a common centerline to insure precise alignment and a perfectly centered steering wheel.

The final step is repainting. Pat Gray Body Works is the only body shop in the area equipped with the Blowerm Ultra Spraybooth Oven, which is described as the "finest automobile refinishing machine made." Gray stocks factory tinting formulas but custom mixes the paints as needed to achieve any variances caused by sun and other factors, thus matching any car's finish perfectly.

Written warranties are provided for all repairs. Lifetime warranty on workmanship and five years on paint jobs. The shop backs new parts warranties from the manufacturer.
