Borden, Ira victorious

Turfgrass conference opens Wednesday at Western Texas

The annual West Texas Turfgrass Conference — an educational and professional growth conference for all specialists in the turfgrass profession — will be held this week at Western Texas College.

A golf tournament for those attending the fourth annual conference will be held at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday on the college course. The conference is scheduled for Wednesday and Thursday at the Fine Arts Theatre on campus.

The conference will offer numerous sessions dealing with the maintenance of golf courses, lawns, athletic fields and up-to-date reports on research in the turfgrass industry. It is co-sponsored by the West Texas Golf Course Superintendents Association (WTGCSA) and the Western Texas College Golf and Landscape Technology Department.

In compliance with the Texas Department of Agriculture, the conference will offer all attendees the opportunity to gain three continuing education units for pesticide applicator licensing. The conference also serves as the WTGCSA membership drive. The association is composed of 170 regular members and 42 student members. Anyone in the turfgrass industry is invited to join.

Conference registration dues are $45 for a member or $10 for a student, including dues. The cost of the conference only is $25.

Speakers will include Dr. Milton Engelke, associate professor at Texas A&M; Judith Gockel, agronomist with Agri-Systems of Texas, Inc.; David Gregg, agronomist with Turf &

Soil Tech; Dr. William E. Knoop, turfgrass specialist with the Texas Agricultural Extension Service; Dr. Mike Merchant, extension urban entomologist with the extension service; and Jim Montgomery, CEO with Greensmiths, Inc.

Other speakers include Ralph Nicotera, manager of branch operations with Jacobsen Division of Textron, Inc.; Danny Rawlings, golf course superintendent at The Trophy Club in Roanoke; Tom Werner, golf course superintendent with Colonial Country Club in Ft. Worth; Dr. Richard White, assistant research scientist with the Texas A&M University Research Center in Dallas; Jaime Williams, sales manager with Hahn Corporation; and Tommy Witt, golf course superintendent with Bent Tree Country Club in Dallas.

Registration for the conference will be from 8-9 a.m. Wednesday at the Fine Arts Theatre.

Students prepare to take TAAS test

The new Texas Assessment of Academic Skills (TAAS) will be administered to Snyder public school students in grades 3, 5, 7, 9 and 11 on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Prison day next Saturday

Tickets remain on sale through Tuesday for the TDCJ Appreciation Day and barbecue to be held next Saturday at the Scurry County Coliseum.

Employees of the TDCJ's Price Daniel unit will be guests at the two-session event which starts at noon. The second session will begin at 2 p.m.

The two sessions have been set to allow employees on duty that day to attend, along with their families. Some 800 persons are expected.

Barbecue will be provided by The Shack. Tickets for the event are $5 each and may be purchased at the chamber, TU Electric, the Snyder Daily News and at any financial institution.

More than 100 door prizes, donated by Snyder business firms, will be given during the event. Cindy Nix will provide entertainment along with a clown and magician for the kids.

Chamber and BCD officials said the event is planned each year to show appreciation for the unit's location in Scurry County. The unit employs 300 persons with an annual payroll of more than $6 million.

former Texas Examination of Minimum Skills (TEAMS). However, students who have previously attempted the Exit Level TEAMS test, but still need to pass one or both sections, will be re-tested on the TEAMS test during this testing period. They will not be required to take the TAAS test. The Exit Level test must be passed in order for students to receive their diplomas.

Ninth and eleventh grade students will be bused to Scurry County Coliseum each morning of the testing. No makeup sessions are allowed this year, and school officials are stressing that attendance is extremely important.

The new TAAS is more comprehensive, meaning that more objectives will be covered in the reading, math and writing sections of the test. While all three subject areas have been tested at grades 3, 5, 7 and 9, this will be the first time that the 11th grade Exit Level test will include writing.

TAAS testing dates are Tuesday for the writing portion, Wednesday for the reading portion and Thursday for the mathematics. Those taking the Exit Level TEAMS will take the English language arts portion on Wednesday and the mathematics portion on Thursday.

Snyder ISD students have consistently scored above the state average on the TEAMS test and the district anticipates that students will also perform well on the new TAAS test.

Cogdell board holds off on repairing roof; recruitment discussed

Cogdell Memorial Hospital board of managers decided to reject a lone bid for roof repairs, discussed a proposed increase in guaranteed income when negotiating with possible physician candidates and approved September accounts payable during its noon meeting Friday.

The board took no action following an executive session called to discuss the contract of Dr. Mario Ochoa. Dr. Ochoa is on leave of absence while recovering from an illness.

Board members elected to reject the only bid received in regards to repairing the roof of the critical care unit. They directed CEO Tom Hochwalt to hire a consultant to determine the most practical method of repairing the roof. They also directed that a concerned effort be made to contact local com- (see COGDELL, page 13A)

Kuwaitis discuss future of homeland

by The Associated Press
Hundreds of Kuwaitis assembled in Saudi Arabia on Saturday to discuss the future of their occupied homeland, and officials said the U.S. buildup facing Iraqi invading forces has surpassed 200,000 troops.

At the United Nations, U.S. officials maintained unity with Arab allies in joining the rest of the Security Council to condemn Israel's security forces for killing 19 Palestinians in rioting earlier this week.

Diplomats said the United States had avoided exercising its veto power for fear of alienating Arab nations whose support it needs in the Persian Gulf crisis.

New indications were emerging that the United States might launch an attack on Iraqi forces. Pentagon sources in Washington said Friday that a Marine amphibious force was planning a practice assault on the Arabian coast soon as a trial run for a possible U.S. invasion of Kuwait.

A French magazine reported that U.S. military officials have indeed drawn up an offensive plan against Iraq.

The Kuwaiti exiles representing all walks of life have gathered in Jiddah, Saudi Arabia, for a three-day Kuwaiti People's Conference beginning Saturday.

The first session was expected to deal with ways to intensify the opposition to Iraqi President Saddam Hussein's invasion on Aug. 2 and annexation of their country after a dispute over oil, land and money.

The exiled emir, Sheik Jaber al-Ahmed al-Sabah, was expected to address the conference. (see KUWAITIS, page 13A)

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Maturity is when your wife no longer considers you the driving force in her life and suggests you stop and ask for directions."

Billy Ray Browning hosted a group of TDCJ folks for a dove hunt and steak supper recently. We've never hunted, but the sound of the World War III action made those steaks taste great.

The birds were plentiful, and the hunters periodically had to stop and make sure they weren't over the legal limit. Price Daniel unit assistant warden Charlie Streetmen pulled one bird out of his bag, and it flew away. An alert captain, however, didn't let it get far.

Stanley Noah, retired tire dealer, has a good place to bird hunt in Kent County. Noah had earlier given some folks permission to hunt, and later Noah decided to try his luck.

Noah saw six birds sitting on a fence. He walked quietly and slowly so as not to scare off the dove. They sat still as he sighted in the shotgun and slowly pulled the trigger.

He hit three birds, but the others didn't fly. He fired again. This time, the remaining birds hit the ground.

Stanley is a crack shot, and he bagged six decoys to prove it.

John Zalman has done a yoeman's job in shooting the video of each Tiger football game which is shown each Saturday evening on the cable system.

During the week, Zalman has made it a practice to tape some academic happenings at high school to play during halftime.

Last week, Zalman was in Penny Perry's computer lab along with SHS Principal Rueben Gillespie. When Zalman had finished the take, he played the video back for the class and others to view, resulting in the typical movie star comments.

One senior sauntered up next to the principal and whispered this advice, "Mr. Gillespie, don't give up your daytime job."

Military spending questioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — Lawmakers are voicing concern that the level of military spending approved by Congress in its budget resolution is too high for a nation facing an economic crisis. "This isn't about a war with the Russians. This isn't about a war in the Middle East. This is about the economic survival of this country," said Rep. George Miller, D-Calif., prior to House approval Friday of a $268 billion defense bill.

By a vote of 322-97, the House adopted a military spending bill that cuts off production of the B-2 bomber at 15 planes and slashes President Bush's budget request for the Strategic Defense Initiative.

The House bill meets the level of defense spending worked out by the House and Senate last week in a budget resolution seeking to cut $500 billion from the federal deficit over the next five years.

Final passage of the House measure didn't come, however, without a stiff challenge to the spending level for the fiscal year that began Oct. 1.

Earlier this week, the House Appropriations Committee added a $5.3 billion package to the bill to meet the revised budget levels approved by Congress.

Acting chief's plans may change

DALLAS (AP) — Acting police chief Sam Gonzales says he seriously is considering reversing his vow not to seek the chief's position, which became vacant in late August when the Dallas city manager fired Mack Vines.

"I'm not seeking this job full time, yet," Gonzales told The Dallas Morning News. "I have said before that I have personal reasons for not doing that, but if those reasons are resolved, then I will."

Gonzales made the comments after he announced an administrative reorganization designed to improve relations with the city's minorities.

Some minority community leaders and the board of an association representing black officers have said they favor an outside candidate for the next chief. No one inside the department fully supports affirmative action, they have said.

On Friday, Gonzales named two new assistant chiefs. A black officer will be responsible for the politically sensitive internal affairs division. And a Hispanic chief will head the department's recruiting efforts in hopes of bringing in more Hispanic officers, the chief said.

Honecker haunts Germany

BERLIN (AP) — Like an old ghost in a new house, Erich Honecker is haunting the reunited Germans.

Toppled from power a year ago, the 78-year-old former Communist chief is confined to a Soviet military hospital near Berlin, guarded by stone-faced soldiers.

His health is the topic of nearly daily news reports, some saying the ousted East German leader, who is suffering from kidney cancer, is well enough to be imprisoned and others saying he is not.

As Germans forge their new country, many are demanding punishment for despised members of the East Berlin regime that ran the country into the ground. Honecker tops the list.

"I think most Germans would like to see Honecker go before a court," said a spokeswoman for Berlin's justice department, Jutta Burghart.

Prosecutors have had plenty of opportunity to bring Honecker to trial, having conducted in-

Popular felines enjoy roaming Capitol Hill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two members of U.S. Rep. Charles Wilson's office staff can't type, file or work on research.

Nevertheless, the furry pair, Khyber and Itaewon, hold court in the Lufkin, Texas, Democrat's office where they are winning over Wilson's neighbors in the Rayburn House Office Building. Even those with allergies.

"A computer repairman carries antihistamines with him now," said Elaine Lang, Wilson's spokeswoman. The repairman takes them before he enters the office so he can "play with the cats," Ms. Lang said.

Wilson first rescued Khyber from a Texas animal pound in 1986. Wilson named the cat, which he thinks is a Himalayan, after the famed Khyber Pass between Pakistan and Afghanistan.

Itaewon's moniker came from a less lofty source — a South Korean shopping strip frequented by Wilson and his girlfriend at the time, he said.

Itaewon, a Burmese cat, was brought to the office in 1987 to keep Khyber company.

The pair always keeps track of the agenda at the House Foreign Affairs Committee, across the hall from their office, Wilson said.

Sometimes, Wilson said, the two hop up on the hearing table while the panel is in session, earning a ride back home, courtesy of the committee staff.

"Every time that door opens, they wander in," said Lloyd Bishop, a committee staffer who remembers once "rushing in the room trying to chase the cat around" in front of about 15 congressmen.

Khyber prefers catnapping on a fur-covered Pakistani footstool in Wilson's office; Itaewon chooses the in-basket as the purr-fect spot for a rest.

The East Texas congressman says the cats give the office a less formal atmosphere.

"This office is full of cat lovers," Wilson said.

In addition to his treasured Washington duo, Wilson keeps 50 bird feeders at his Lufkin home and says a family of racoons dine on his porch nightly.

Former resident cited for work in hematology

Theresa Killgo Morgan, former Snyder resident, has recently been recognized by the American Society of Clinical Pathologists as a specialist in the field of hematology.

Hematology is an area of the clinic laboratory in which scientists study cell populations of all body fluids, including blood and bone marrow. Bleeding disorders and their causes are also studied. The data obtained is vital to physicians for the treatment of many illnesses such as cancer and anemia.

Morgan obtained this specialist designation from the ASCP through the recommendation of her past and present employees based on her activity in research, education of students and her knowledge of special experimental procedures. A written exam was also required.

Morgan has been a licensed medical technologist since 1981 and is currently employed by the Methodist Hospital in Houston.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Killgo of Snyder.

Commodities distribution set Wednesday

Commodity distribution this month will be Wednesday, Oct. 17, from 9 until 11:30 a.m. and from 1 to 2 p.m. at the Senior Citizens Center, 2603 Avenue M. All participants are asked to enter through the north door and to bring paper sacks or boxes to transport commodities.

Income eligibility guidelines for all citizens of Scurry County are posted at the Senior Center.

World-famous site preserves man's past

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — There was a time when the arid, windswept plains of this West Texas city were rich with wet grasslands inhabited by huge hairy mammoths, 3-foot-tall armadillos and bears three times the size of a grizzly.

Make that 11,000 years ago to be exact.

Thanks to the preservation of Lubbock Lake, a 300-acre site northwest of town, the public will be able to have a look at man's development over the past 11,500 years and possibly longer.

The Lubbock Lake Landmark, a national state park which opens Sunday, is the premier site of its kind in North America, according to many archaeological experts.

Five decades of research at the site have unearthed evidence that Lubbock has been continuously inhabited by people for at least 11,000 years.

"The site basically is little packages of time, stacked one on top of the other," said Eileen Johnson, Lubbock Lake Landmark director. "You can study man's entire existence in the New World in one spot instead of having to go to 100 different sites."

Ms. Johnson said researchers have been able to identify soils, vegetation, pollen records, wildlife and culture of man throughout its known history by excavating fossils at the site.

Among the bigger finds are an ancient short-faced bear, which weighed three times more than a grizzly, a giant armadillo and mammoths.

"The giant armadillo was truly Texas-size," Ms. Johnson said. "It was 3-feet-tall and 6-feet-long. It was no small animal lumbering down the draw."

Researchers have also identified the remains of prehistoric plants, fish, amphibians, reptiles and birds.

While researchers have uncovered evidence of man — projectile points, bone tools, manufacturing debris, processing areas, slaughter sites and an oven — "the most fantastic thing is that no human remains have ever been found," said Robert A. Nash, a longtime supporter and namesake of the landmark's interpretive center.

"That would be the find of the century if they found a skull of the so-called Clovis or Folsom man."

Amid the sprawling acres are a museum documenting the site and a research lab occupied by archaeological students from Texas Tech University.

After visitors pass through the museum, filled with detailed murals of ancient life, photographs and fossils, they are encouraged to walk through the excavation sites.

Picnic tables and grills are set up for barbecues.

The landmark is a collaborative effort among the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department, Texas Tech and the city of Lubbock.

Texas Parks and Wildlife leases the property from the city and Texas Tech provides the research.

"We know only five percent of what is out there," Ms. Johnson said. "It's awe-inspiring and exciting to think we will be uncovering and learning here for years and years to come."

After rare transplant...

Texas toddler goes home

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — A 3-year-old girl who underwent a liver and small intestine transplant to enable her to digest food returned home with a hearty appetite and a yearning to play football.

On her return home, her first meal, of all things, was airplane food.

Tracey Kay Gonzales received a new liver and small intestine in a 14-hour operation in July. Her doctors say her success will clear the way for transplants on others with life-threatening intestinal defects.

The toddler's quick recovery won her a trip home. She left the hospital early Friday and, after weeks of hospital food and an occasional meal away from the medical center, she graduated to airline food.

"She'll eat anything," said Tracey's mother, Pam. "Most of the time, she's talking about food: 'Take me here or take me there to eat.'"

Bessie Peters, in the billing department of the airline's caterer, said passengers aboard Tracey's plane were served omelets with cheddar cheese or turkey, muffins or croissants and orange juice and milk.

When she arrived at the Corpus Christi International Airport, Tracey rushed to see her two brothers, Gary, 10 and Tommy, 8, whom she last saw in April.

She told them the first thing she wanted to do was to play football. However, doctors have said Tracey will not be able to play contact sports.

Her mother held back tears as Tracey was greeted by well-wishers and reunited with her brothers. Ms. Gonzales said she had begun to lose hope that Tracey would have the surgery in time.

"I never pictured this," Ms. Gonzales said of the girl's reception at the airport. "But she's doing wonderful now. She's pretty much a normal kid again, except for all the medication."

Ms. Gonzales said she was looking forward to her family being together again, at least for awhile. Tracey will return to Pittsburgh on Oct. 21 to begin outpatient treatment.

"I want to see my kids, spend time with my kids, and let Tracey enjoy being here before we have to go back," she said.

Before undergoing surgery, the girl suffered from short gut syndrome, in which the small intestine was too short to process food sufficiently. She sustained liver damage on a high-protein diet fed intravenously.

"Before the transplant, she was eating. She has taste buds. Her body just couldn't do anything with it," Children's Hospital spokeswoman Sue Cardillo said Friday.

While she's home, doctors will watch for signs of infection or rejection. Tracey is taking the experimental drug FK-506, which doctors say is safer and more potent than the common anti-rejection drug cyclosporin.

The drug made Tracey's operation possible, and the survival of two other transplant patients on FK-506 will make surgery possible for others, said transplant pioneer Dr. Thomas Starzl.

Little Sandy refuge tied to budget bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Ralph Hall, D-Rockwall, won a fight to remove a Texas wildlife refuge from federal protection Friday when a committee attached his measure to its budget bill.

Environmentalists promised to oppose the spending measure when it reaches the House floor and the Senate.

"It is clearly outrageous for Congress to destroy a national wildlife refuge in a budget bill," said Robert Dewey of Defenders of Wildlife.

Without discussion and by a voice vote, the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee attached Hall's bill to its budget reconciliation measure.

The committee in August approved a similar measure by Hall to take the Little Sandy Wildlife Refuge near Tyler from control of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service.

But he could not get it scheduled for a vote on the House floor. The House Appropriations Committee last month refused to amend the interior appropriations measure with the provision.

The 3,800-acre refuge is part of 40,000 acres north of Tyler that the Sabine River Authority wants to flood to create the Waters Bluff Reservoir.

"This (bill) doesn't build a lake. I'll cross that bridge when we get there," Hall said.

A hunting club in 1986 gave the land to the Fish and Wildlife Service, which prevents any development, road-building, grazing or logging on it. The refuge is managed by the hunting club, about 100 people from the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

Financial Focus

Historically, the federal government has raised money by printing, taxing or borrowing. The most creative method is borrowing.

The government has been borrowing money since it was first empowered to write an IOU. Most of this money was borrowed through bonds and used to pay the cost of wars. It was not until the American Civil War, however, that the ability of a government to borrow money played such a vital role in a war's outcome.

According to author John Steele Gordon, who has written extensively on this subject, "The fact that the North succeeded (in inventing more new ways to raise money) and the South did not, played no small part in the outcome."

Both sides began by printing money. In the North, banks and the federal government began paying their debts in "greenbacks." By 1865 there was $447 million in greenbacks in circulation.

The Confederacy issued more than $1.5 billion worth of Treasury notes during the war. Although these notes were "redeemable in gold and silver two years after independence was achieved," the South did not have the ability to tax and raise money as efficiently as the North.

The most unique borrowing scheme, however, was devised by Philadelphia banker Jay Cooke. After the first Battle of Bull Run in 1861, Cooke marshaled his political and banking associates to collect more than $2 million in a matter of hours on the credit of a three-year treasury note.

As a result of this ingenious scheme, Cooke was made an agent of the federal government. He immediately devised the "five-20" bond, which would be purchased by thousands of small investors.

The bond got its name from the maturity. It could not be redeemed in less than five years or more than 20. Meanwhile, it paid 6 percent interest in gold.

Cooke marketed these bonds so aggressively that by May 1864 he "was actually raising money as fast as the War Department could spend it, about $2 million a day..." Gordon writes.

Unfortunately, Cooke's bond drive also had far-reaching negative effects. In the eight-year period from 1857 to 1864, the national debt rose from 93 cents per person to $75 per person. It did not reach that level again until World War I.

From a historical standpoint, Cooke influenced the outcome of the Civil War by extending into the future the cost of vital war material. The South was unable to do this, and their supplies and materials virtually vanished. From an economic perspective, Cooke devised a mass marketing way to raise money that is still effective today.

For good or bad, Jay Cooke, a banker, probably influenced the outcome of the American Civil War far more than any battlefield general.

Court strikes air permit ruling

AUSTIN (AP) — A state judge has struck down the Texas Air Control Board's method of granting permit exemptions to some small industries. But the number of affected plants is unclear, officials said.

Many, possibly hundreds, of small plants now exempt could be required to obtain permits from the agency, depending on the language in the judge's final order, air control board officials said.

They said they would have to count each plant to determine a more precise number.

"They are essentially allowing people to operate outside the Texas Clean Air Act," said Amy Johnson, the Austin lawyer who filed the lawsuit.

The air board has much tighter control over industries requiring permits. Moreover, the permit process provides for public hearings in contested cases, while an exemption may be granted by agency staff without a hearing.

The legal case involved a challenge to an air board exemption, granted in 1987, that allowed a cedar oil mill in Leakey, some 150 miles southwest of Austin, to emit 28.8 tons per year of air contaminants without a permit.

The agency's own regulations since 1985 have set a 25-ton cap on emissions from exempt plants.

The Reds made it through all the rough spots Friday night.

Leyland switched starting pitchers, choosing to give right-hander Ted Power his first start in more than a year while left-hander Zane Smith got ready to relieve. Leyland thought he had a better chance of attacking the Reds' left-handed lineup with Power.

"I think it worked out great with Power," Leyland said. "He did what we wanted him to do."
"It was a tough game to manage, but it was a great game to manage. I wish we'd won, but I still think it was a great game to manage. I think I did OK."

Oakland confident about World Series

"How can you not have confidence around here," Oakland's Mike Gallego said.

The Reds threatened again in the bottom of the seventh, putting runners at first and third with one out. Due up was right fielder Paul O'Neill, the playoffs' hottest hitter at 8-for-17 with three doubles and a homer.

Coyotes beat HHS in district contest

GAIL — Jimmy Rios paced the Borden County Coyotes with three touchdowns as the Coyotes dropped the Hermleigh Cardinals in District 6-A (6) competition Friday night, 44-13. The contest was called at the half because injuries to Hermleigh players left the squad with just six players. Rios rushed for 91 yards in the game, including a 17-yard run from scrimmage, a 55-yard kickoff return and a punt return that covered 60 yards. The Borden County senior also threw a 40-yard touchdown pass to John Paul Harris. The win lifts the Coyotes to 3-3 on the year and 1-0 in their only league game. Hermleigh scored on a 6-yard TD scamper by Chris Velasco and a 75-yard kickoff return by Andrew Sanchez. Senior Felix Martinez suffered a rib injury just before intermission that left the Cards' shorthanded. The Coyotes will host Ira next week and Hermleigh is scheduled to entertain Loraine.

Ira whips Hornets in league opener

ROSCOE — Ira tasted victory for the first time this grid season with its 46-0 district win over Highland Friday night. "We just kind of exploded," said Bulldog coach Don Jones. The game was called on the 45-point rule three plays into the third quarter when Brian Luna raced 73 yards for a TD. Luna, who also scored from 76 yards out against the Hornets, had 158 yards on just four carries Friday. Teammate James Sturdivant scored twice, as well, getting into the end zone on runs of 54 and 25 yards. Sturdivant collected 109 rushing yards Friday on just three carries. Others helping to light up the scoreboard for the Bulldogs include Brian Martinez, who ran in a 65-yard punt return, Jim Smith who scored on a 27-yard end-around, and Mike Hughes who added six to the Ira total on a 5-yard jaunt. Highland was limited to just 87 total yards by the Ira defense. Defenders Joe Luna and Dave Holmes drew praise from Jones for their work in the IHS win. The Bulldogs travel to take on Borden County in Gail next week as District 6-A (6) play continues.

NFL roundup... 'Pokes shoot for .500

by The Associated Press
The Dallas Cowboys at .500? The same Cowboys who were 1-15 last year, on merit? Well, not exactly the same Cowboys, but these guys have a shot at moving to 3-3 when they face Phoenix on Sunday. In their second season under Jimmy Johnson, the Cowboys have a new look. The biggest change, however, has been in the standings. After beating Tampa Bay last week, the Cowboys had two wins, surpassing last year's total through five games. Where else to go but up, starting in Phoenix against the 1-3 Cardinals.

"I think, more than anything else, we have a chance to be a little more consistent than a year ago," Johnson said. "We had so many players coming in and out last year, we did not have any continuity. The continuity is showing on the field now. We have a chance to be better. How much better is yet to be determined."

Troy Aikman certainly seems to have improved, particularly in the last two games, when he has been sacked only three times and thrown two interceptions.

Tigers blow past Lamesa

WOLFFORTH — Frenship quarterback Brad Cade was busy throwing for 243 yards Friday to lead the Tigers easily past Lamesa, 43-22, in District 2-4A play.

The loop opener for both squads sets Frenship at 4-2 on the season and 1-0 in league play while the Golden Tors, just up from 3A ball, are 3-2-1 and 0-1. Besides Cade's passing yardage Frenship racked up almost 300 rushing yards against the Tors for a total of 541 offensive yards.

Frenship took a 23-8 lead into the third quarter when Lamesa's Michael Brown blocked a punt by Cade and rambled 20 yards for a touchdown.

The Tornados struck for two on the conversion pass from Jamie Seago to Jason Blake and narrowed the Frenship advantage to 23-16.

The Tigers came back and iced the outcome with a precise 66-yard drive that ate up most of the remaining time in the period and ended with a 13-yard Cade to Chad McCullough pass that lifted the home team to a 30-16 lead.

23)." The Cardinals, meanwhile, come off a bye knowing they can't take any time off Sunday against the improved Cowboys. "We'd be remiss to think we can beat the Cowboys easily," coach Joe Bugel said.

The most interesting game in the NFC East is at the other end of the division, with the New York Giants (4-0) at the Washington Redskins (3-1). Other divisional meetings include San Francisco at Atlanta, Cincinnati at Houston, Green Bay at Tampa Bay and Seattle at the Los Angeles Raiders.

Also, it's Detroit at Kansas City, Cleveland at New Orleans, San Diego at the New York Jets, Pittsburgh at Denver and, in a night game Sunday, the Los Angeles Rams at Chicago.

On Monday night, slumping Minnesota is at equally disappointing Philadelphia.

The Giants have won four in a row and nine of 11 non-strike games against Washington. A victory at RFK Stadium would be New York's fourth in the NFC East and solidify its position at the top of the conference.

"The bottom line is, the team has beaten us four straight," said Redskins coach Joe Gibbs. "The last two years we've been third in the division behind these guys and Philadelphia. If we're going to step up, there comes a time when you have to step up."

Doing so against the top-rated defense in the NFL will be difficult. And the Redskins have inexperienced Stan Humphries, who made his first pro start last week, at quarterback. "They've probably got the best front seven you can put together. The pressure they put on you makes their secondary even better," said Humphries.

"We have some things planned, but we can't just count on trying to confuse the quarterback because their offense isn't centered on the quarterback," said Giants linebacker Carl Banks.

Somewhat surprisingly, the Raiders are in first place in the AFC West. One of their wins in a 4-1 start was at Seattle, a game tinged with controversy.

The Raiders won 17-13 thanks in part to a questionable call — Mervyn Fernandez appeared to land with one foot out of bounds — a 55-yard pass play, but it was ruled a legal catch. That set up a touchdown.

Since then, the Seahawks have lost at Denver 34-31 in overtime, routed then-unbeaten Cincinnati 31-16 and beat New England 33-20.

Dr. Gott, Peter Gott, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

Some doctors (a minority, I grant) are beginning to re-think and redefine their roles as high priests. After being told for years their job is to cure illness, they are finally accepting that — except in a few instances — a cure is merely an ideal, a shimmering mirage on the desert of disease. Antibiotics will cure infection, surgery will return an accident victim more or less to normal, intravenous fluids will reverse dehydration and help an ill child regain health. But, by and large, doctors don't cure. Fortunately, they often make people feel more comfortable — sometimes, however, at enormous cost in money, pain and emotional upheaval.

I'm not exaggerating. Take a look at hospital patients. More and more are suffering from the incurable diseases of aging: stroke, heart attack, senility, emphysema, cancer. Young patients flock to emergency rooms hoping to have their incurable diseases — such as virus infections, drug abuse, aches, pains and sprains — cured.

Doctors can give care for these diseases, but not cure. In truth, most diseases cure themselves. Or they pretty much run their courses and, with time, get worse. Practitioners can postpone death and improve the quality of life, but medicine cannot ultimately master nature.

Physicians who fail to discriminate between cure and care commit mayhem; they are at the root of the current epidemic of Medical Attention that is sweeping the country. This outbreak of optimism is irresistible for doctors who go to great lengths searching hopefully for a treatable disease. So they go overboard, ordering one test after another, to prove to themselves and to patients' families that an effort is being made, even if the physicians themselves don't really believe in a cure.

Here's a lampoon of you in the hospital. After prodding, stabbing, purging and bleeding you, the healers randomly put tubes in every bodily orifice, expose you to daily daytime television, alternately starve you and force-feed you Jell-O, and then have the nerve to show up with a big smile, a sultan and tassled white loafers to say, "Feeling better? Maybe we should run a few more tests, hahaha." Finally, when you're feeling a good deal worse than when you entered the hospital, it's time for discharge, because the physicians have exhausted their short list of curable diseases and unlucky you didn't qualify. This leads to frustration.

Also, it makes doctors dislike certain afflictions (the incurable ones) and, even, certain patients (the ones who won't get better: emblems of medical failure). Hospitals can be defined as places where doctors cure the healthy and watch the sick get sicker.

This ravage of Medical Attention distresses some physicians, especially Dr. Perri Klass, author of "I Am Having An Adventure" (published in 1986 by Putnam). She writes: "Sometimes you make people better. Often they get better by themselves. Sometimes you make them more comfortable while they get sicker. Sometimes you make them more miserable while they get sicker. Maybe what we need is an increased level of respect both for the patient's own ability to get better and for the power of disease."

Perhaps we are operating with too much information, which overloads our circuits. We have so many magic bullets we don't know what to aim them at. We are so engrossed in our ability to measure and quantitate to two decimal places that we ignore what we cannot measure. This fatal flaw could certainly lead to whole new dimensions of ignorance. Since our brains are basically elaborate mufflers and filters, real medical knowledge may be the capacity to organize what information we have and to use it wisely. In the final analysis, we've become victims of our faith in technological medicine and, most crucially, our unwillingness to set limits.

Some M.D.s hope the reorientation from curing to caring may be a boon that could someday affect an entire new generation of practitioners. Such doctors will grasp the concept of the whole patient and may revolutionize the practice of medicine by understanding the reality of disease and by insisting that patients feel just as good after medical attention as they did before.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Can the HIV virus live outside the body, on bed linens, upholstery, etc? Would visiting a massage parlor be classified as casual contact?

DEAR READER: The Human Immunodeficiency Virus, the cause of AIDS, does not survive on inanimate objects, such as bed clothes, wearing apparel, furniture or food. In fact, HIV cannot be spread by skin-to-skin contact, such as shaking hands or touching.

The virus is spread by body fluids (semen and blood, primarily); this is why it is a sexually transmitted disease that can also be contracted by needle sticks and puncture wounds from objects contaminated by AIDS patients.

There has been a lot of hysteria about the fear of getting AIDS from so-called casual contact with HIV patients. This fear is unfounded. AIDS is communicable only through the intimate contacts I described.

With respect to your second question about massage parlors, I must say everything is relative. Many massage parlors are just what they claim to be: You pay a few dollars for a relaxing rubdown. In this situation, there's virtually no risk of AIDS.

However, some massage parlors offer more than massage. Such fun and games may include sexual contact of one type or another. In this instance, HIV transmission is a definite possibility. Therefore, if you go to a massage parlor for a massage, that's all you'll get. If you patronize massage parlors for other, nefarious reasons, you may end up with more than you bargained for.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Blood — AIDS." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their names and addresses to my attention at P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What are the symptoms of osteoporosis, and what can I expect? At times, my whole body seems to hurt, and I would like to know what medication to take.

DEAR READER: Osteoporosis, the gradual loss of calcium from bones, leads to brittleness and fractures. The hips, forearms and spine are particularly affected.

Osteoporosis does not cause symptoms until quite late in the disease, when fractures occur (leading to pain) or the spinal bones lose their shape, becoming compressed or wedged (also causing pain).

As people age, they become shorter. Although much of this decrease in height is due to dehydration and thinning of the intervertebral discs (the doughnut-like structures that separate the backbones), some of the decrease is a consequence of calcium-deficient bones that become compressed. This alteration in the shape and structure of the vertebral bones often causes the elderly to stand with stooped postures. Such a variation from the normal upright position produces unusual stresses on the back, shoulder and neck muscles, with resulting pain and stiffness.

Osteoporosis cannot be cured by modern methods — yet. However, bone-calcium losses can be slowed by regular exercise, dietary calcium supplements, female hormones (in women) and various drugs, such as calcitonin and etidronate.

You could be helped by seeing an endocrinologist who, after testing you, can prescribe appropriate treatment to relieve your discomfort and retard osteoporosis.

Miss Moscow visits

IRVINE, Calif. (AP) — Mariya "Masha" Kalinina has been a busy Miss Moscow.

"What can I say? I am here because of Miss Moscow," the first crowned beauty queen in Soviet history said during a recent California visit.

Since winning the title two years ago, she has appeared in an Italian movie, "Pay Attention to Perestroika," and cut a record, "Love Me," in France. And she wrote a book, "Me, Miss Moscow: The Diary of a Beauty Queen."

Ms. Kalinina, 19, said she was shocked to hear of reports she agreed to pose for Penthouse and Playboy magazines. She said she refused.

Hunts could get 10 percent

DALLAS (AP) — A federal judge issued an order in the William Herbert Hunt and Nelson Bunker Hunt bankruptcy cases that could give the brothers an estimated five to 10 percent of the proceeds from the sale of ancient coins, vases and bronzes.

Bankruptcy trustees for the Hunt's estates said late Friday they were trying to calculate how much money would be available to pay creditors once the antiquities are sold.

"This is going to take some heavy-duty number crunching," said R. Carjer Pate, trustee for the Nelson Bunker Hunt Liquidating Trust, who declined to estimate how much Hunt will receive.

Based on the complex formula outlined in the court order, Bunker Hunt could receive as much as $1.2 million from the sale of the Greek vases and Greek and Roman coins auctioned by Sotheby's in New York in June, according to one source familiar with the court order, The Dallas Morning News reported.

Bunker's treasures, originally valued at $12 million, sold for $18.2 million.

Under the court order, the Hunts will receive a percentage of the amount the item sold for above the original "high estimate." However, trustees for the two brothers' estates said late Friday that the court order is unclear how the percentage is to be calculated. Also, not all of the collections have been sold.

Auctions of Greek, Roman and Islamic coins are scheduled for December 1990 and March 1991.

The Hunt brothers, heirs to famed wildcatter H.L. Hunt's fortune, emerged from bankruptcy protection in early January of this year after a plan of reorganization was approved by creditors.

After losing more than $1.5 billion in the 1980 silver market collapse, the brothers later filed for bankruptcy protection.

Magdalena Aguirre, new third grade bilingual teacher at Central Elementary, knows what it is like for a non-English speaking child to be thrust into a classroom where English is the dominant language. Sixteen years ago, that's what happened to her when she and her family first moved to Snyder. Aguirre said she had had only a year of school in Mexico when her family moved here and because of her age she was placed in a fourth grade classroom at Central.

Without bilingual classes or teachers, Aguirre was clearly at an disadvantage but with the support and help of some caring people, coupled with her own determination to succeed, she completed her education in Snyder, graduating from Snyder High School in 1983, from Western Texas College in 1985 and from Angelo State University in 1988. This is her first teaching assignment, and she recently acknowledged that she could not have made it without lots of help.

The then 10-year-old Aguirre found Central's fourth grade class to be a "scary experience." From the beginning, Aguirre's classmates and Central staffers tried to help her. Anna Robles was one of the first of her classmates to offer to help. Since Robles spoke both English and Spanish she translated everything for Aguirre and in the beginning Aguirre said she repeated everything after her friend as she struggled to learn a new language.

Aguirre and Robles remain friends today. Robles is married and she and her husband are stationed in Virginia Beach.

Aguirre said all her other classmates tried to help as well, even though most could not communicate with her in the beginning.

In addition to her new friends, Aguirre also received help from Central staffers, especially the resource room teacher, who used a Systems 80 (early day computer that worked with cards rather than a keyboard) and Carolyn Cox, school secretary. Cox is now the secretary at Northeast Elementary.

Aguirre said both women worked with her on a daily basis and eventually she began to associate words with the correct picture. She said her teachers were "very patient" with her and withheld giving her actual grades because they realized that not being able to communicate very well in English was a handicap.

For the next three years, 4th-6th grades, Aguirre said she and her many helpers followed this basic pattern. By the time she was ready for junior high, Aguirre had learned enough English to do her schoolwork and receive grades for it, but still had difficulty with reading comprehension and she spent a lot of time looking up words in the dictionary.

Aguirre's reading comprehension then needed improvement, but she was doing so well in math that for many years she planned on becoming an accountant. She liked math. In Mexico, her mother, who worked in her father's store, taught Aguirre her first math lessons.

But by the time she was a senior at SHS, Aguirre said she had decided that she wanted to work with bilingual children because "she knew how they felt."

"I love children a lot and I love

FULL CIRCLE — In some ways Magdalena Aguirre has come full circle. She could not speak a word of English when she first moved to Snyder in 1974 and enrolled at Central Elementary. Now, some 16 years later, Aguirre who is the bilingual teacher at Central, is using her own experience to help other bilingual students to learn. (SDN Staff Photo) to work with them," she explained. While in college, she had to observe a lot of classes and the more she saw teachers at work the more she wanted to become one herself.

Sometimes, said Aguirre, she thought she would never make it through college, but she persevered and never gave up.

After graduating from high school, she went on to earn an associates degree from WTC. For the next two years she attended Angelo State University in San Angelo, graduating with an ESL and kindergarten endorsement. She majored in elementary education and minored in Spanish and English.

Even though it's hard for Aguirre to remember exactly what happened so many years ago when she was a newcomer to Snyder, she does remember that she "really wanted to learn" and that is what kept her going.

Today, a sister, Roselia, is an ASU student and Aguirre encourages her to keep up with her. See FOLKS, page 2 studies. In dealing with her own bilingual students, Aguirre urges them to work hard and not give up. Learning may be tough, but it can be done and it does have its rewards. And she emphasizes that every day.

Aguirre tells her students that being bilingual is not a "black mark" to be used against them. She tells them that they are lucky to speak two languages and they can prove they are smart by doing good work.

Roselia started kindergarten classes in Snyder and a brother, Rene, was born here. Aguirre's three other siblings are all older than she and are married, including Elda Aguirre DePaz, Albino Aguirre and Hermelando Aguirre.

Aguirre has 17 students in her class and 15 understand some English. One started at Central last spring and has made some progress and another student hasn't been here long and knows almost no English.

She said she uses both languages when teaching because that is how students learn. By the third grade, she said most bilingual students should be able to understand English.

Aguirre first learned of a teaching position in Snyder through a Teacher's Job Fair held in San Angelo. She met Dr. Tom Scannicchio, assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum, and Gary Patterson, Snyder Junior High School principal.

Jean Taylor presents slide show and narrative on USSR

Velma Lunsford presided at the October meeting of the Alpha Study Club, with nine members and two guests present. Vera Holsinger and Jean Moore were hostesses.

Jean Taylor presented the program on a recent trip to the USSR that she and her husband, the Rev. Don Taylor had made. She gave a narrative of the trip along with a slide show presentation.

She said that the USSR is a very beautiful country. They have many lavishly decorated museums, that were once churches. When the communists took over the country, the churches were converted into museums. She also said they did not see any family dwellings, only apartment buildings, for people to live in. She and her husband took

Club finalizing plans for "Holiday Extravaganza"

Members of Xi Alpha Alpha Theta held their regular monthly meeting on Oct. 2 at the Snyder Country Club.

The meeting was called to order by president, Lisa Rollins. During the reports from committees, Mona Bryan, program chairman, reported that the next regular meeting would be Nov. 6 with Barbara Bills and Edie Hopping as hostesses. Donna Fowler, membership chairman, reported that the Friendly Venture project monies would be turned over to the Ways and Means committee.

Roy Idom presented the program. Mr. Idom spoke on the taxpayers' need to be knowledgeable in how tax rates are set, what items are taxable and what items are not. He outlined the three main components of the taxing process as follows: 1) The Appraisal District sets the values; 2) the values are reviewed by the Appraisal Review Board; 3) the taxing entities take these values to set an effective tax rate needed to generate the same amount of revenues.

The members will meet Oct. 16 for the "Holiday Extravaganza."

 "A DEATH IN WHITE BEAR LAKE," by Barry Siegel. This extraordinary book is the true story of Dennis Jurgens, a little boy who died at age three and a half, supposedly of peritonitis. When his natural mother began to search for the child she'd given up for adoption, she found there were secrets behind his death. She found a community deep in the American heartland, full of good citizens who lived the American dream. But these people acted — or failed to act — at a critical point in their lives.

South had two key cards: the ace of clubs and the king of trumps. In fact, he was not quite sure which red suit his partner construed as trumps, but he did have the king in both. Then, when North placed the contract in six hearts, he wondered whether his additional K-Q of clubs had sufficient value to score up a grand slam. Of course this was dead wrong: the fact that North settled in six should have been a red flag, warning South that the opponents had a cashing ace. Nevertheless, South went on to seven.

Switch the spotlight to West. He rightly sensed that North and South had fouled up in the bidding and were off an ace. But which? Finally he led the unbid suit — clubs. Declarer won, drew two rounds of trumps, discarded dummy's diamonds on the K-Q of clubs, and claimed.

And was it a harbinger of victory? No. South's team still lost the 64-deal match. Give credit to the courage of the East-West team, who survived this crushing blow.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books.

Grand larceny

By James Jacoby

What better harbinger of victory can a bridge player have than to commit a heinous crime at the table and be rewarded for it? When that happens, the adrenalin flows, and it's easy to overcome feelings of embarrassment. Look at today's deal from the Spingold Knockout Team-of-Four Championship held last July.

After rebidding two diamonds, South heard his partner ask for aces.

CALCIUM MINUS FAT
The calcium in milk is the most usable form by the human body. Most children also need the butterfat in milk for growth. Adults on a low-fat diet should consider this: whole milk contains only 3.5% fat by weight, but that fat is 50% of the calories. In low-fat 2% milk, fat supplies 30% of the calories, in 1% milk, fat supplies 18% of the calories, but fat supplies only 2% of the calories in skim milk. All milk supplies the same good usable calcium and other essential minerals and vitamins.

Recycling Household Products

Many household items, garbage and trash can be recycled with the separation process beginning in the home.

What can be recycled? The number one recyclable product is paper, including newspaper, office paper, cardboard, junk-mail, cereal boxes and grocery bags.

Newspaper and other paper products can be tied and bundled. Paper bags can be reused. Magazines can be donated to doctor's offices, given to a friend or better yet, check them out at the library instead of subscribing.

Aluminum cans make up five percent of the total solid waste stream. Cans are the most common form of recycled aluminum. Aluminum siding, gutters, down spouts, storm doors and window frames and aluminum lawn furniture frames are all recyclable.

Iron and steel are the most recycled material used today. Scrap metal dealers were the most visible recyclers in business long before comprehensive recycling programs were established.

Glass makes up eight percent of our waste. All container glass is recyclable. More than 12 million tons of glass containers are collected annually and remelted with raw materials to create new glass bottles and jars or fiberglass. The Glass Packaging Institute reports that 25 percent of any given glass container is made from recycled glass.

There are three basic types of glass: Clear, green and brown. Not all recycling centers accept all three types. Most recycling centers will not accept light bulbs, ceramic glass, dishes or plate glass, because they contain different materials than bottles and jars.

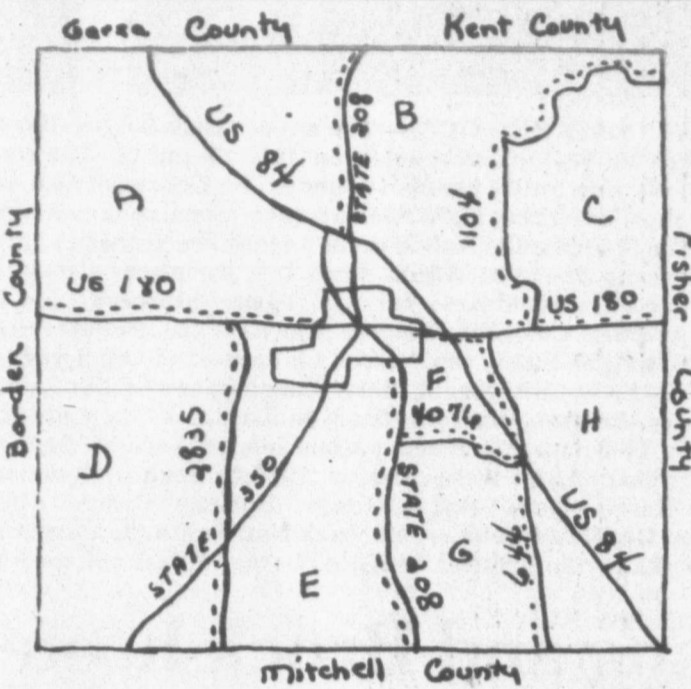

Plastics make up seven percent of the total waste — most of which is packaging. The most common recycling products are soft drink and milk containers. Recycled plastics are used in flower pots, drainage pipes, toys, traffic barrier cones, carpet backing and fiber fill for pillows, ski jackets and sleeping bags. Only about two percent of plastic waste is recycled.

Recyclable materials include wood waste, yard waste and kitchen waste. These wastes comprise 18 to 25 percent of solid waste and offer an excellent opportunity for recycling, especially composting.

Automobile tires, motor oil, and bulk household items can be recycled. Usually items like old clothing, furniture and appliances are sold at garage sales or donated to charity.

Recycling reduces the amount of waste that is buried in landfills or incinerated. Recycling cuts down on litter and conserves natural resources. However, to be successful in recycling depends on the availability of markets for recycled materials and products.

Pre-cooking in microwave

NEW YORK (AP) — The Barbecue Industry Association says foods that require longer cooking times — such as chicken — can be partially cooked in the microwave oven and then finished on the grill.

Microwave ovens cook by steaming food from within. Grilling, on the other hand, cooks from the outside in — caramelizing natural sugars and creating a crusty brown exterior.

Precooking large cuts of meat or poultry in the microwave prior to finishing in a covered grill can reduce cooking time by as much as 50 percent, the association says.

Ribs and sausages can be partially cooked in the microwave to first render some of their fat and to help prevent grilling flare-ups.

Microwave-grilling can also be used for many summer vegetables, including artichokes, corn and winter squash. Cook these vegetables in the microwave until almost tender, then brush them lightly with olive oil and finish on the grill.

Executive Training Program Launched
COLLEGE STATION — At first glance, purebred cattle breeders, pima cotton growers and rangeland managers may appear to have little in common.

But all are running business enterprises and, to remain competitive, each must stay on top of the latest management and marketing techniques.

To help meet these needs, the Texas Agricultural Extension Service has launched the executive program for agricultural producers, which begins its first session in January.

This program is designed exclusively for owners and senior managers of top farming and ranching operations.

Focusing on advanced business management topics and issues confronting larger, more complex farm and ranch businesses, the program will be an intense, all-business educational experience, according to Dr. Danny Klinefelter, the program coordinator.

The program is tailored to meet needs of key people from among the 30,000 farmers and ranchers of the United States who generate from 40 to 50 percent of the nation's total agricultural production.

The goal is to reach an agricultural production segment needing more highly specialized information and often not served by traditional programs of the Extension Service.

The total program is compressed into two busy weeks. The weeks, however, are separated by a year to enable participants to apply the techniques and ideas studied.

The program will include participants from across the country, representing a highly diverse group of farm and ranch businesses.

The 12-member faculty is comprised of recognized experts from throughout the nation, including those from land-grant universities, business schools and the private sector.

The fee for Unit I, scheduled Jan. 27 through Feb. 2, 1991, is $2500 per applicant, and is payable upon notice of acceptance. The registration period runs through Oct. 31, and fee includes all educational materials, housing and meals.

Klinefelter said Unit II will be conducted Feb. 2 through Feb. 8, 1992, with registration set at $2500 for that session.

For additional information, contact Klinefelter in Texas A&M's department of agricultural economics, Texas A&M University, College Station, Texas 77843, or telephone (409) 845-7171.

Roast capon with stuffing

NEW YORK (AP) — Roast capon, like chicken and turkey, is low in sodium and fat, and is a good choice for a buffet. An 8-pound capon will serve eight; its giblets can be used to make gravy. A 4-ounce portion contains only 230 calories.

The following recipe for Capon with Stuffing and Gravy is provided by Wapsie Produce of Decorah, Iowa.

Capon with Stuffing and Gravy
One 5- to 8-pound frozen capon, defrosted
Salt
Melted butter, margarine or oil
Bread stuffing (recipe follows)
Giblet Gravy (recipe follows)
Spiced crabapples and parsley for garnish (optional)

Preheat oven to 325 degrees F. Free capon's legs and tail from tucked position. Remove giblets from body and neck cavities; set aside. Rinse capon inside and outside under cold running water. Pat dry with paper towels.

Prepare stuffing. Allow 1 cup stuffing for each pound of capon. Sprinkle cavity lightly with salt. Fill loosely with stuffing. Skewer neck skin to back. Return legs and tail to tucked position, or cover stuffing with aluminum foil and tie legs and tail together loosely.

Place capon, breast side up, on rack in a shallow, open roasting pan. Do not add water. Cover capon loosely with aluminum foil, crimping it to the edges of the pan. Foil should not touch capon. Roast in a 325-degree F oven, about 40 minutes per pound. About 30 to 45 minutes before the end of the roasting time, remove foil and brush skin with butter, margarine or oil. Cut band of skin or string to free legs. Roast until leg joint moves easily and meat is tender. Meat thermometer should register 185 degrees F.

Arrange on platter and garnish with sliced crabapples and parsley as desired. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Old Fashioned Bread Stuffing
¾ cup (1½ sticks) butter or margarine
2½ cups diced celery
1 cup chopped onion
1½ to 2 teaspoons poultry seasoning
½ teaspoon salt
10 cups day old or toasted bread cubes
1 egg, slightly beaten
¼ cup hot water
Melt butter or margarine in large skillet. Add celery and

Giblet Gravy

Giblets
¼ cup water
¼ teaspoon salt
Pepper

Simmer giblets in enough salted water to cover them, about 30 minutes for liver and 2 hours for neck, heart and gizzard. Chop meat and reserve broth. Pour drippings from roasting pan into a large liquid measure. Spoon 5 to 6 tablespoons of fat from top of drippings and return them to roasting pan. Skim away remaining fat from drippings. Add enough giblet broth, milk, or water to drippings to make 3 cups.

Blend flour into fat in roasting pan, stir and heat to brown. Gradually add the 3 cups liquid, salt, pepper and chopped meat. Heat through. Makes 3 cups.

The next time you make brown rice, cook some extra to use in low-calorie Stuffed Chicken Breasts. The rice is combined with fresh tomatoes, mozzarella cheese and basil, then wrapped in the chicken.

Stuffed Chicken Breasts
4 skinless and boneless chicken breast halves, pounded to about ¼-inch thickness
Salt and ground black pepper to taste

1 cup cooked brown rice (cooked in chicken broth)
¼ cup finely diced fresh tomatoes
¼ cup shredded mozzarella
3 tablespoons toasted rice bran (see note)
1 tablespoon chopped fresh basil
1 tablespoon olive oil
Season inside of chicken breasts with salt and pepper.

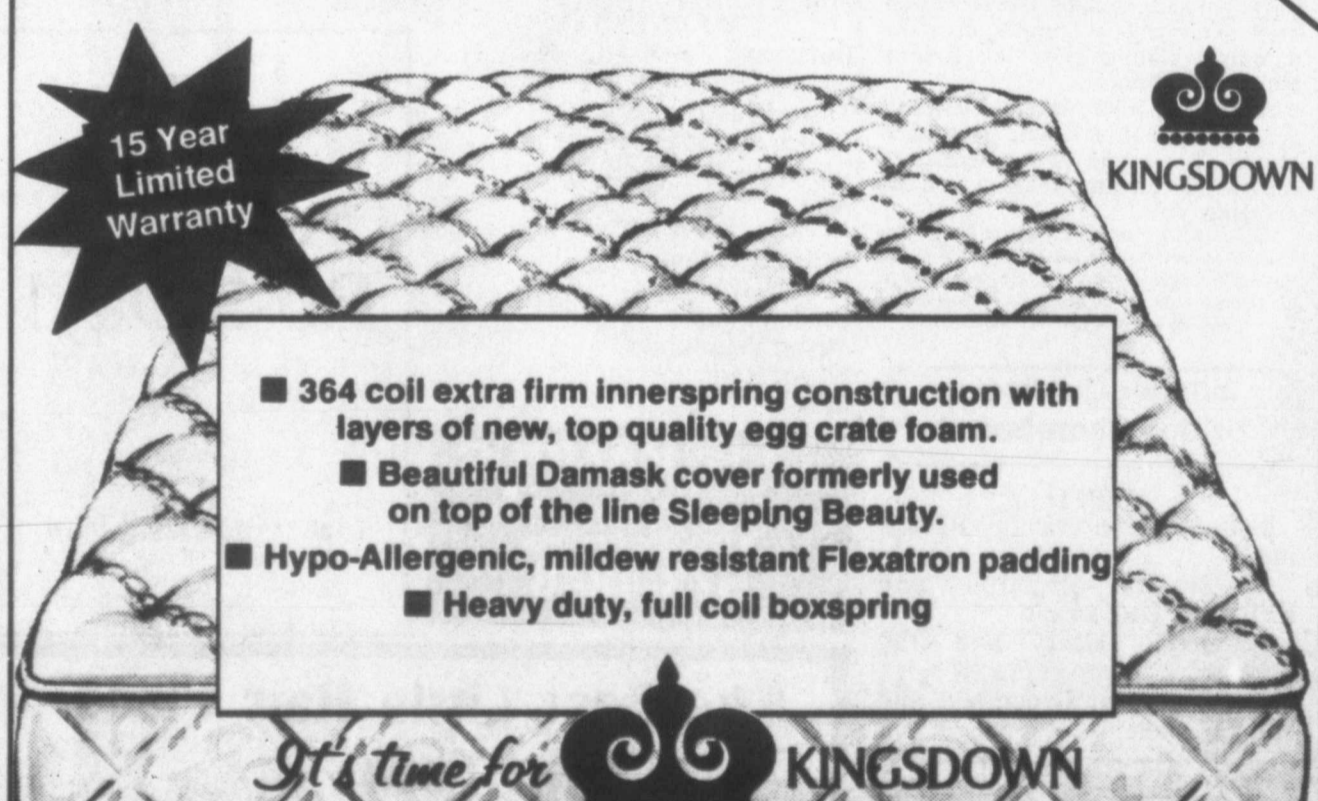

Combine rice, tomatoes, cheese, rice bran, basil and ¼ teaspoon pepper. Spoon rice mixture on insides of chicken breasts; fold over and secure with wooden picks. Wipe outside of chicken with paper towel.

Preheat oven to 350 F. Heat oil in a large skillet over medium-high heat. Cook stuffed chicken breasts in hot oil 1 minute on each side or just until golden brown. Transfer chicken to a shallow baking pan and bake 8 to 10 minutes. Let stand 5 minutes before slicing. Makes 4 servings.

Note: To toast, spread rice bran on a baking sheet; bake at 325 F for 7 to 8 minutes.

Progress made in arms control pacts

WASHINGTON (AP) — It's taking longer than President Bush predicted, but the United States and the Soviet Union are only months away from signing two of the most significant arms reduction treaties in history.

One would rid Europe of thousands of tanks, airplanes, anti-aircraft artillery pieces and armored-troop carriers. Most of the cuts would be in Soviet weapons.

The other pact would trim U.S. and Soviet long-range nuclear missiles by about 30 percent overall. Hundreds of warheads would be scrapped under tight supervision.

The European treaty is the most comprehensive arms control accord in history. The U.S.-Soviet strategic arms reduction accord, meanwhile, deals with the deadliest weapons and, at 400 to 500 pages, is of unprecedented length.

Bush predicted the conventional weapons treaty would be ready by last June at the latest. It looks like it will be ready in mid-November. The heads of the 16 North Atlantic Treaty Organization countries and the six Warsaw Pact nations will sign the treaty in Paris at a glittering summit meeting.

Bush hoped to sign the START accord with Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev in Moscow in December. There is a slim chance of that. U.S. officials say early next year is more likely.

Deadlines are not the main consideration. Harnessing the race in conventional and nuclear weapons, once a visionary dream, is about to become a reality.

Incredibly, the historic development has not captured the public's imagination. One reason is that the end of the Cold War already has soothed nuclear war nerves. Gorbachev is committed to withdrawing many of the tanks to be cut under the treaty, along with the troops that accompany them. Bush has ordered more modest cuts.

The Conventional Forces in Europe treaty will make cutbacks legally binding, however. And it will establish a framework for even deeper reductions later on.

Secretary of State James A. Baker III and Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze cleared the last roadblocks in New York last week. These involved limits on land-based airplanes and verification procedures against cheating.

The two officials were unable, however, to resolve the remaining differences in the strategic arms reduction treaty. The four key ones are:

—The restrictions to be imposed on transfers to allies of weapons barred under the treaty. This mostly involves U.S. nuclear submarine technology for Britain.

—The restrictions to be imposed on improving the Soviet SS-18 intercontinental ballistic missiles.

—Whether the Soviet Backfire bomber is to be classified as a long-range weapon under the treaty and made subject, therefore, to limitations.

—Procedures for verifying the destruction of the bombers, submarines and missiles outlawed under the treaty.

Baker indicated last Friday that his talks with Shevardnadze tripped over the transfer issue and that the SS-18 and Backfire problems could be settled once what arms controllers call non-circumvention is cleared up.

"In every nuclear negotiation the Soviets press us on cooperation with Britain and they have acceded ultimately every time," a U.S. official said Thursday. "Personally I am optimistic that we'll settle this one."

Six-time felon gets 8 life terms

AUSTIN (AP) — A 22-year-old man with six prior felony convictions was sentenced to eight life sentences after confessing to a spree of burglaries, robberies and rapes.

Robert Edward Adams pleaded guilty Thursday to two counts of aggravated sexual assault, three counts of aggravated robbery, two counts of burglary and one count of aggravated kidnapping.

He will have to serve at least 15 years in prison before becoming eligible for parole, authorities said.

It will be Adams' third trip to the penitentiary. When he was 19, he was sentenced to 10 years for three burglaries and two car thefts. In August 1989, he received 12 years in prison for theft.

Because of the two prior imprisonments, Adams faced a minimum of 25 years and a maximum of life on each of the most recent charges.

Authorities said he agreed to a plea bargain in which the eight life sentences would run at once rather than consecutively, and was sentenced by District Judge Robert Jones.

Woman who fought phone company left out of victory

BOSTON (AP) — A woman bugged about paying toll charges just to talk to her daughter six miles away has won a 17-year battle to get the phone company to change its rate structure. But she won't fully share in the victory.

Estelle Simon, 70, of rural Sudbury, can call her daughter's town of Marlboro for free, but Sudbury residents still will be charged for calling Lincoln, which shares a high school with Sudbury, because of how the system is wired.

"Can you believe this?" Simon said in an interview this week. "I blew my top."

In fact, there will still be a charge to call the local crisis line six miles away in Acton.

"People who are about to commit suicide are not going to make a toll call," Simon scoffed.

Simon decided to take on AT&T — then the largest corporation in the world — in 1973 when her daughter moved a toll call away to neighboring Marlboro.

"I realized there was a lot wrong with the telephone company," she said.

Waging battle singlehandedly in rate hearings and regulatory proceedings before the state Department of Public Utilities, Simon argued that small-town residents were subsidizing the phone service of people in big cities.

All paid the same $9 for basic service, but big-city dwellers could reach more phones for free.

Until 1984, in fact, customers in 93 communities, including Sudbury, were even charged for calls within the same town.

Thanks to Simon, New England Telephone Co. on Oct. 19 will eliminate toll charges for calls between neighboring exchanges and reduce rates for other in-state calls. The ruling affects more than 100 exchanges around the state.

Public Utilities officials had said during the battle that Simon's case was so well documented that New England Telephone would probably be forced to overhaul its whole rate structure.

"It was very flattering but, at the same time, my heart sank," she said. "Here we were fighting with the phone company to give relief to 4,200 phones, which is all we had in Sudbury. Now we were talking about thousands of phones and millions of dollars, and I knew they were going to fight that much harder."

Under the new rates, a four-minute morning call from Brimfield to Williamstown in western Massachusetts on a weekday will fall from $1.11 to 23 cents. A four-minute call at the same time of day from Boston to New York costs 87 cents over AT&T.

The phone company also eliminated the toll for calling Marlboro. Simon said she recently paid about $100 a month in calls to her daughter.

But basic service went up $3, and dialing Lincoln will continue to cost extra in Sudbury, about 15 miles from downtown Boston. The day rate for calls to Lincoln will be 19 cents for the first minute and 9 cents a minute after that.

That's because of the wiring configuration between the towns and billing problems, the phone company said, an argument used against Simon for 17 years.

"There are people who are saying, 'Gee, I wish you could have included this town or that town.' But you can't get the approval of all of the people all of the time," said New England Telephone spokeswoman Roberta Clement.

Simon said her battle with the phone company is over.

"I see no reason for me to go downtown and tell the whole story over again," she said. "All they have to do is look at the case. They know I'm right."

Before she stepped out of the ring, however, Simon forced New England Telephone to stop misleading advertisements that promised toll-free calls between all bordering communities.

"They do these things," said Simon. "But nobody fights back."

Giving a bottle to the baby as a pacifier at night is a no-no, according to Beech-Nut Nutrition Corp. Prolonged contact with a sweet solution, such as sweetened water, juice or baby formula, can cause tooth decay.

Deer visits library by accident

CEDAR PARK, Texas (AP) — Cedar Park's new library, open less than a month, had an unexpected visitor this week.

He made noise, chased library patrons and knocked down a 10-year-old girl before being subdued with a tranquilizer.

The buck stopped there.

Michelle Eldred, 31, was leaving the library about 3:15 p.m. Wednesday when she came face to face with the deer.

"I heard a strange noise, kind of like a mooing noise. I turned around and it was a four-point buck. He was coming around the side of the building, and he kept coming right to me," she said. "I grabbed its horns and told him not to do that. I pushed him away."

But the buck didn't heed the warning, and began chasing other people who were arriving at the library.

Police and animal control officers arrived, injected the deer with a tranquilizer and removed it.

Democratic gubernatorial candidate Ann Richards says her Republican opponent Clayton Williams is ducking a debate with her. He is.

She says he's ducking the debate so he won't have to answer allegations that link his Midland bank to an investigation into drug money laundering. Probably so.

If he does debate her, most people think he'll bring up questions about prior drug use by Richards. He probably would.

Meanwhile, in the race for lieutenant governor, Republican Rob Mosbacher, a Houston businessman and board chairman of the state's welfare agency, is running television commercials that say Bullock has wasted taxpayer money through the overuse of state aircraft.

Bullock, the state's comptroller since 1975, released ads saying Mosbacher drove the Texas Department of Human Services into financial ruin and one of his companies is a major water polluter.

Sigh.
In politics, even the spokesmen get into it. Mark Sanders, campaign spokesman for Mosbacher, says Bullock's ads are "a thousand points of lies." Bullock campaign spokesman John Bender counters that Mosbacher's ad "proves that Walt Disney is not the only one that can make fairy tales."

He's right. Any politician can make fairy tales. In fact, in these days of rising costs of living, higher taxes and more crime, a fairy tale is about the only thing our lawmakers seem to be able to handle.

Mudslinging is pretty much a "gimmie" in traditional Texas gubernatorial races. The state attracts nationwide attention because of the dirty, often comical and always embarrassing campaigns conducted by our state's "leaders."

There's not much question these people would qualify for an honorary degree in mudwrestling from any university in the nation.

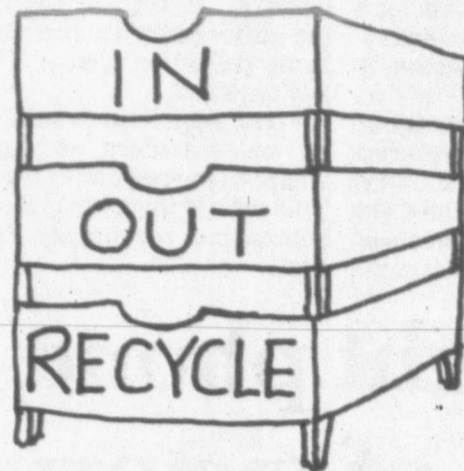

In Texas, candidates for the top offices aren't judged on their ability to do the job. It's not really a consideration, if you watch television ads or read the newspapers. Richards says as much when she says Williams is afraid to debate because he doesn't want to answer allegations.

What ever happened to debating the issues?
Nope, in Texas, the one that wins is the one with the cleanest dirty shirt.

And, as usual, you have to look awfully hard to find a speck of white on either one of the candidates come November.

And we wonder why people are so apathetic when it comes to voting.

Tradition. The dictionary defines it as, "the handing down of beliefs and customs by word of mouth or by example without written instruction; an inherited pattern of thought or action."

Growing up in the suburbs, we never had any. Suburbs are in a constant state of flux; there is little time to get to know your neighbors. People don't use the word "visit." They prefer words like "lifestyle."

One of the reasons my husband, Kent, and I chose to raise our kids in a small town, rural environment is so that they could learn the meaning of words like "visit" and "tradition." But recently, we introduced them to a whole new meaning of both words. We took them down for their first glimpse of Kent's alma mater, Texas A&M University, to get together with the families of some of his former corps mates for a 20th reunion.

Now, our kids have long known the meaning of discrimination in the form of endless bad Aggie jokes their classmates have forced on them, but they've never had the chance to learn why we endure such tacky treatment with pride.

In the first place, those individuals who have gutted out four years of the military discipline, harrassment, physical conditioning and restrictions of life as a cadet corpsman form a bond that is stronger than blood. These men who reunited that weekend were more brothers than their own kin, and even though they'd been apart long enough to raise a family, they came together with an immediacy of affection, mutual respect and great humor, without one moment of awkwardness. (In fact, they get together for a game every year; this is the first time in a decade we've been able to make it). Secondly, everyone who had his character honed to a fine edge by that environment so many years ago, had developed into a good man who knew the meaning of courage, loyalty and hard work. Some had fought in Vietnam; another still serves his country in the reserves as a Lieutenant Colonel.

Texas A&M is structured around time-honored traditions begun many years ago as a part of that military pride. The night before the football game, we attended a "midnight yell practice" attended by 30,000 students and former students. (There's no such thing as an ex-Aggie.) Five "yell leaders" (there are no "cheerleaders" at A&M; only five male Corps juniors and seniors who are elected) lead the highly organized event by letting the crowd know which yell is coming up by a series of hand signals. The hand signals are passed around the stadium until everybody is ready, and then the huge arena rocks as the memorized words are shouted by thousands of fans. (I've been told that referees prefer working Aggie games because the yell leaders can control crowd noise with the "rest" hand signal.) Each yell has a history and a reason; all corps members are required to know it and most dedicated "non-regs" find out.

We chose to take the kids on a campus tour during the game Saturday, and their daddy explained all the rich customs, and pointed out such things as the 55 oak trees that were planted to honor the Aggies killed during World War I. We visited the Memorial Student Center, where walking on the grass is forbidden and all hats must be removed before entering, as homage to all fallen Aggies in all wars. He explained how the little Sheltie, "Reveille," came to be the campus mascot, and how she is the only mascot in the Southwest Conference who has never been stolen. (She is guarded at all times by the corps, and is allowed senior privileges because of her honored position.)

That night, over barbeque fixin's everybody brought from home, we all sat around laughing and hoo-raing over the crazy escapes of the guys from their corps days, such as the practice upperclassmen had of sending a horde of freshmen ("fish") to drag a fellow upperclassman from his room and throw him into the "quad," a slimy mud hole. Said one, who'd been the company commander, "I was in trouble a lot. I was always getting thrown in the quad." And his wife said, "I wish we had a quad or something I could have you thrown in once in a while." All of the guys immediately volunteered to help out, whenever she said the word.

A shaved-headed freshman student whose folks were staying in the motel, asked who we were. One of our number, a former yell leader, said, "The Class of '70." The kid asked, "What outfit were you in?" And our friend yelled in response, "S-P-I-D-E-R 'D'" — at once, all the guys leapt to their feet, squatted, placed hands on knees, and shouted in response, "LAST OF THE OLD ARMY! BEST DAMN OUTFIT ON CAMPUS!" and cheered. It was the traditional answer to that question, twenty or fifty years later.

Most sons and daughters of Aggies choose to attend Texas A&M (in or out of the corps), not because they feel pressured or because they are forced by their parents, but because, quite simply, they can't imagine going anywhere else.

It's a tradition, you see.

SDN Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:
I want to take this opportunity to publicly thank the City of Snyder, Snyder Fire Chief Terry Don McDowell and Western Texas College for the tremendous support they each provided to Amoco Pipeline Company.

Their capable assistance and cooperation helped make our Side Kick emergency response training program held Oct. 4 in Snyder a tremendous success. Thanks to their efforts we were able to provide this important training to more than 60 people from throughout the area.

The City of Snyder, the Snyder Fire Department and Western Texas College are to be commended for a job well done.

Many thanks,
P.L. Rhyne

To the Editor:
This is a letter to thank several people. It will be on three different subjects.

I was a guest at the reunion of the 1950 graduating class last Saturday and I want to thank everyone that had a part in planning it. You did a fabulous job and it was fun from the start to the finish. My brother, A.A. Behringer, came in from Ruidoso, N.M. for the event and since his wife was on a business trip to Waco, I decided to go with him. I am glad I did. Although I had graduated in 1947 I knew many of those present. My brother later commented, "It would have been bad to have missed it." I agree and I enjoyed so much being part of the reunion.

At a Retail Merchants Meeting last month, Randy Perkins spoke on the benefits of shopping in Snyder. That talk and the write-up in the Snyder Daily News has caused business places to comment that their sales were much better. Our sales have been much better also, so I want to thank Randy and the Snyder Daily News.

I want to thank Dr. Carlos Garza for saving my life at Scenic Mountain Hospital in December of 1987. During the time that he will be standing by for Dr. Aycock, I believe that you will be pleased with him. He is a capable doctor.

$75 million cut from super collider funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The budget crunch hit the superconducting super collider Friday when a House-Senate conference committee cut the machine's 1991 funding by $75 million to $243 million.

Members of House and Senate appropriations committees agreed to the cut as part of a $750 million reduction from the $21 billion 1991 energy and water spending bill.

The collider, housed in a 54-mile underground ring to be built near Ennis and Waxahachie, will be used by scientists to study subatomic matter.

Congress had previously approved $318 million for the collider in 1991. That was the level President Bush sought in his 1991 budget proposal.

But the budget outline approved by Congress Monday forced committees to find ways to cut $45 billion from the federal deficit.

Rep. Jim Chapman, D-Sulphur Springs, noted the collider's cut represented 10 percent of the total the conference committee had been ordered to slash.

"It seems like a pretty healthy chunk of suffering," Chapman said. He then asked for the committee to guarantee the state of Texas' investment if it decided to make up the cut with state funds this year.

The committee refused to make such a guarantee.

Randy Erben, director of the Texas Office of Federal-State Relations, said state officials may consider making up the $75 million.

But he added, "Without the reimbursement guarantee, we'd be essentially buying a pig in a poke."

Since the collider was redesigned about a year ago, Congress and the Department of Energy, which is overseeing the project, have estimated its cost at $8 billion.

But since that time, four DOE-sanctioned teams have worked to revise the cost. Department officials have not released that revision, which was expected in mid-August.

The estimates of the four teams range from $7.8 billion to $11.7 billion.

Several secret ambitions and desires you've long nurtured look like they may be realized in the year ahead. When things break open for you, all may come in one sequence.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your imagination is your greatest asset today, provided you utilize it in a constructive manner. Visualize positive results, then take appropriate actions. Libra, treat yourself to a birthday gift.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You are prepared in a very hopeful cycle where your expectations have solid chances of being realized. Think and act like the winner you are.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Conditions that have an influence upon your status, reputation and finances are all trending in your favor today. It's very likely you'll experience advantages in these areas.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You're apt to be a trifle restless today unless you can do something you feel is unique or different. When your energies are channeled into creative outlets, exciting things can result.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You could be extremely successful in your commercial dealings today if you do not expose all of your cards at one time. Use your trump cards as clenchers and save them for the close.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Gains of a very unusual nature are possible today through your partnership arrangements with friends. You might have several alliances, each with a different pal for a different purpose.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) The sting can be taken out of tasks or assignments you detest doing if you use your ingenuity and resourcefulness today. You might even amaze yourself with your labor-saving techniques.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Be an attentive listener today in situations where friends cluster to exchange the latest news. A chance comment may provide information of special significance to you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) There's a possibility you might have some unexpected disruptions in your domestic routine today. However, these will be of the welcome variety that'll brighten your day.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Even though you may be set upon doing something a certain way, don't ignore clever alternatives that pop into your mind today as to how it might be done better.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Something financially beneficial might develop for you today from a least expected source. Although it'll be a unique opportunity, it won't be of a lasting nature, so quick action is required.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something in which you are presently involved with others is not being handled as efficiently as you could do it. The endeavor will benefit if you'll take a more active role.

Several significant opportunities might pop up in the year ahead that will be meaningful to you and your family. If everyone does their part, happy times are in the offing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Be unequivocally sincere today in an arrangement where there is something substantial to be gained. It's imperative the other parties involved totally trust you. Major changes are ahead for Libra in the coming year.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Associates are prepared to do favors for you today, but they might make a counter request from you. Reciprocity will keep all accounts in proper balance.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You'll have the upper hand in competitive developments today, yet you might not realize your strengths. Don't credit adversaries with more clout than they actually possess.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Plans you have been formulating have excellent chances for success at this time, even though someone with whom you're closely associated thinks otherwise. Have the courage of your convictions.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You could be extremely fortunate today where joint ventures are concerned. There is a possibility you may share a collective interest with a person you always thought was out of your league.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Agreements into which you enter today look very promising for all parties involved. There may be some little flaws that have to be worked out, but they will be manageable.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Activities and involvements that are not profit or benefit yielding should not be permitted to take the time which should be allocated to those that are. Focus on the meaningful today.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Luck and chance have their limitations today and if you are cognizant of their parameters, you should do rather well. However, don't tempt fate by pressing them too far.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The cooperation you need from others to finalize a matter of importance to you should be forthcoming today. Do what needs doing now, because if you wait, it may be too late.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Mutual benefits are likely to be derived from your social relationships today with the possible exception of one. Don't waste your time on the undeserving.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Luck tends to favor you materially today, but not from any wild gambles or schemes. What transpires will develop through a practical chain of events, each triggering the next.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) This can be a productive and rewarding day for you if you keep your priorities in order. Do the most important things first and work your way down to the less significant.
