Museum to feature toy exhibit, unique gifts for Christmas

Toys to delight children of all ages will be displayed in Scurry County Museum's 'Christmas in Toyland' exhibit, opening Sunday at the 12th annual Christmas Happening.

In addition to toys from the museum's collection, toys have been loaned by Ruth Shaw, Larry McConkey and Joe Gainer, all Snyder residents, and Tom Rigsby of Abilene, a former Snyderite.

Mrs. Shaw is a doll collector and McConkey is loaning mechanical toys and a child's oak dining table and chairs. Gainer has loaned a train set. Rigsby has been a toy collector for several years and will loan various items.

Toys will also be used to decorate the museum's Christmas tree.

'We think this is a really delightful exhibit and invite everyone to come out and enjoy it and all the other Christmas Happening activities,' Shirley Leftwich, museum director, said.

The museum will be open from 1-5 p.m. Sunday afternoon and Santa Claus will visit with children from 1:30-4:30 p.m. Photographs with Santa will be made again this year. Phi Theta Kappa members at WTC will assist with pinata breakings for the children at 1:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m. Crafts for children will be demonstrated throughout the afternoon.

The museum's Country Store will also be open all afternoon. Christmas cards and gift wrap with Texas designs are included in the new items and there are some items on consignment from local craftsmen. Since there is no longer a book store in Snyder, shoppers interested in books are especially invited to see the store's selection.

The Christmas Happening will also include a faculty art show, Christmas concert and Christmas readings in the Fine Arts Building and refreshments will be served there. The art show will open at 1 p.m., with the concert set for 2 p.m. The series of Christmas readings will begin at 3 p.m.

Admission to the Christmas Happening is free.

Q—What is the Kwanzaa celebration?

A—Kwanzaa, Swahili for "first fruits," is an African-American seven-day celebration that begins Dec. 26. It was inaugurated in 1967 by cultural nationalist Dr. Maulana Ron Karenga and celebrates a different principle each of the seven days: unity, self-determination, collective work and responsibility, cooperative economics, purpose, creativity and faith.

Plate plight

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Marjorie Roth stalks Philadelphia's streets with a screwdriver, searching for the stolen license plate that has made her life a nightmare.

Last spring, someone stole the expired tag from Roth's 1984 Toyota station wagon and put it on a different car. Since then, the car has been parked illegally all over town, racking up tickets that were charged to Roth.

Thirty-four of them in about five months, carrying a total of $1,503 in fines.

Old murder

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma authorities are testing firearms seized from the DeSoto, Texas residence of a former Norman policeman to see if the weapons have any link to a double homicide in Norman 20 years ago.

Norman police and Dallas County sheriff's officers served a search warrant Nov. 21 at the home of Frank Gilley, Norman police Lt. Leonard Judy said Wednesday.

Six .22-caliber firearms were discovered and were brought back to Oklahoma for tests, Judy said.

Officers also discovered a sawed-off rifle and Gilley was arrested later that day for possession of an illegal weapon.

'The last we heard, he was still a guest of the county pending a $200,000 bond,' Judy said.

He said he understood a bond reduction hearing had been set for Friday.

Judy said the search warrant was served by officers investigating the slayings of David Sloan and Cheryl Benham, who were students at the University of Oklahoma.

Projects underway by local Jaycees for holiday season

Snyder Jaycees are beginning their annual Christmas projects, to include the Toys for Tots, tree sales and the annual shopping spree.

The local organization will also be holding a three-on-three volleyball tournament for United Way and its Christmas lighting contest and Calling Santa project.

The Jaycees officially kicked off this year's Toys for Tots program Saturday. Some 527 children from 130 families received toys last year with 3,000 toys donated or purchased from donations. It was the fourth consecutive year the Jaycees have engineered the project.

This year, Joe Hernandez is project chairman. He will be assisted by Larry Barboza and last year's Toys for Tots chairman, Rudy Garza.

The local chamber of commerce office is taking applications for those families requesting toys. While that process is going on, the Jaycees are asking for toys in good condition, new toys or monetary donations. People wishing to donate may do so at Everybody's Thriftway, the site of the Jaycees Christmas tree sales, or at the Central Fire Station or McDonald's. Toys may also be taken to the West Fire Station on El Paso St. from 6 p.m. until 9 p.m. Monday through Friday until Christmas.

The Jaycees also need assistance in repairing and boxing toys. Anyone wishing to help should stop by the West Fire Station (see JAYCEES, page 8)

Caution in gulf region urged by third top military official

WASHINGTON (AP) — Amid talk of a special session of Congress on the Persian Gulf crisis, a former Navy secretary said today President Bush must not add to his error of ordering 430,000 troops to the region by attacking Iraq.

'The president's mistake in sending so many troops should not be compounded by a further error in using them in a premature, unprovoked ground offensive,' James Webb told the Senate Armed Services Committee.

Webb, who served in the Reagan administration, is the third former top military official to urge caution in the gulf. Two former chairmen of the Joint Chiefs of Staff said Wednesday Bush should give sanctions against Iraq more time to work before opting for war.

If Bush does decide to use military force, Webb said, the president should call for an "immediate resumption of the draft and then a declaration of war" by the Congress.

Richard Perle, who also served in the Reagan administration as an assistant secretary of defense, said an American defeat in the gulf would do serious damage to the nation.

It "would gravely diminish the strength and authority with which the United States emerged from a half century of opposition to the idea that military power, whether it be Hitler's or Stalin's (see CAUTION, page 8)

Law authorizes funds to help Texas colonias

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Kika de la Garza says his House Agriculture Committee will keep close watch over programs established in the 1990 farm bill because too much has been invested in American agriculture "to let it fall apart again."

President Bush signed the five-year farm bill into law Wednesday, saying it boosts American farmers' competitiveness and helps protect the environment.

But de la Garza, D-Texas, said budget cutting legislation rewrote a major portion of the farm bill, "greatly reducing the level of government protection of farm income."

The bill, however, also authorizes $60 million in loans and grants to improve conditions for thousands of Texans living in impoverished communities along the Rio Grande.

Sponsored by de la Garza, the legislation establishes a program that authorizes up to $30 million in loans and $30 million in grants annually to bring water and sewer systems to colonias on the Texas-Mexico border.

De la Garza, a Mission Democrat and chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, said the 1990 farm bill strengthens efforts to protect soil and water resources and improve environmental quality in rural America.

"It continues the food stamp and nutrition programs which help provide food for our needy. It also maintains our export promotion programs that help American farmers compete with the massive subsidies and unfair trade barriers of our competitors," de la Garza said.

De la Garza said the Agriculture Committee would "closely monitor the implementation of the new farm programs to determine the effects on the rural economy."

"We have invested too much in the revitalization of American agriculture to let it fall apart again," he said.

Bush said the bill keeps American farmers competitive and "keeps our rural areas environmentally sound."

"Because farmers have always been important stewards of the earth, this farm bill will help farmers protect water quality and wildlife habitat, and its greater flexibility will boost crop rotation, in term, helping to control weeds and pests and erosion," Bush said.

The measure, approved by Congress in October, also freezes minimum commodity target prices at 1990 levels and cuts subsidized acreage 15 percent. The federal deficit-reduction plan approved last month requires a $13 billion cut in spending on farm programs through fiscal 1995.

PUC approves Bell proposal

AUSTIN (AP) — The state's consumer representative in utility cases says she will appeal in court the Public Utility Commission's approval of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.'s rate settlement.

The PUC on Wednesday adopted the Southwestern Bell settlement 2-1 despite protests from consumer groups that said the deal was a bad one for the average customer.

C. Kingsbery Ottmers, of the Office of Public Utility, said she planned to file a challenge to the PUC's decision in state district court, probably next month.

The proposal was opposed by 110 cities served by the telephone company, the Office of Public Utility and several consumer groups. Under the settlement, Southwestern Bell promises to freeze basic local rates for four years, give each residential customer an $8.75 credit and upgrade its system, especially in some suburban areas where residents pay long distance charges to call the nearby large city.

Southwestern Bell claims the total benefits to its customers would be $1.2 billion.

But critics of the plan say the figure was really closer to $400 million and that Southwestern Bell's statewide average basic local rate of $9.70 per month for residential customers should be reduced.

They also claimed the company is now overcharging customers about $1 million per day, and that it is making enough money now to install service improvements without the settlement.

Commissioner Jo Campbell voted against Southwestern Bell, saying, "This is really a step backward to bringing Texas into the Information Age, rather than a step forward."

But Chairman Paul Meek said, "I think it is a very fair balance between improving the communications area and giving the ratepayers a break."

Ms. Campbell and the other opponents wanted to lower Southwestern Bell's rates on a temporary basis and send the case back for further hearings. Two examiners for the PUC suggested that Bell's rates should be lowered.

But Commissioner Marta Greytak said Southwestern Bell's plan would usher in a new economic age in Texas.

Some Texas oilfield, supply firms harmed by Gulf crisis

DALLAS (AP) — Texas oilfield and supply companies that are veterans of business in the Middle East have lost millions of dollars since Iraq's August invasion of Kuwait.

And the crisis has resulted in employees of Texas companies being taken hostage, the first time for many companies, officials say.

"It's not at all that new for us to have to get out of countries. We have had to leave Iran and Libya," said William Bishop, manager of international operations for M-I Drilling Fluids. "But this time, it is different. There are hostages involved."

Most Texas companies contacted by the Dallas Times Herald have kept employees being held hostage or hiding in Kuwait on the payroll. OGE Drilling Co., which provided drilling supervisors to Kuwait National Oil Co., has had to rely on 13 other oil companies to pay hostages' families.

Small service companies that relied heavily on operations in Kuwait have been hit hard by lost equipment inventory, unpaid service bills and canceled orders.

"I am just trying to keep the company alive," said T.B. O'Brien, president of O'Brien, Goins & Simpson, the Midland-based parent of OGE. "We spent up all our reserves."

Some of the financial losses suffered by Texas energy companies include:

—A $29 million third-quarter writeoff by Dallas-based Halliburton Co. because of troubles in the Persian Gulf. The company also wrote off $11 million to cover unpaid bills by the Iraqi and Kuwaiti governments for services and equipment.

Halliburton's Brown & Root subsidiary recently completed an offshore oil terminal for the Iraqi government, but it is unlikely the Iraqi will shell out the $18 million owed, said Guy Marcus, vice president of shareholder relations.

—A $10 million contract National Oilwell of Houston had with Iraq for complete drilling rigs. The company now is selling them part by part to other customers, said James Fitzgerald, vice president of sales and marketing.

—$4 million to $5 million lost by Houston-based Baker Hughes Drilling Equipment Co. in unpaid bills and equipment inventory from the two countries, President Joel Staff said.

Center might be returned to owner

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — Inga Lorey doesn't want the rent for her grocery store to be paid to an alleged drug trafficker, but the government and a lease leave her no choice.

Mrs. Lorey is owner of Lomart Supermarket, the anchor store in a $4 million shopping center seized by law enforcement authorities last year in the nation's largest cocaine bust.

"If you could give me another location, I'd get out of here," Mrs. Lorey said. But she's bound by a 15-year lease she had with the center's original owners.

The government has agreed to return the Westside Park II at Alto Mesa shopping center to a corporation whose president is the father of Rafael Munoz Talavera.

Munoz faces charges in Mexico stemming from the discovery last year of 21 tons of cocaine in a suburban Los Angeles warehouse. A man convicted in the case in the United States signed an affidavit pinpointing Munoz as the owner of the cocaine.

How to treat lactose intolerance

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My daughter has been diagnosed with a lactose intolerance. Will this remain throughout her lifetime? How did she get it?

DEAR READER: Milk sugar (lactose) requires an intestinal enzyme (lactase) for digestion. If lactase passes through the intestine undigested, it is fermented by bacteria, leading to gaseous, acidic stools; to make matters worse, undigested lactose causes diarrhea. Thus, people with lactose intolerance suffer uncomfortable bloating and irritating loose stools.

The most common cause of this intolerance is a deficiency in lactase. Such a deficiency is extremely prevalent: 75 percent of blacks and Indians, 90 percent of Asians and about 20 percent of whites are born with lactase deficiency.

However, Nature provides a method of overcoming this condition: enzyme induction. With repeated exposure to milk and milk products, children actually begin to manufacture lactase and, by the time they are out of infancy, they are no longer lactase deficient; they can digest milk. Thus, most people suffer no symptoms of lactose intolerance until they enter middle age. Then, because of normal dietary alterations (which include less milk), lactose intolerance may reappear. That is, as long as people continue to consume milk, lactase is formed in the intestine and no symptoms develop; once people reduce lactose consumption, lactase production halts and milk-induced symptoms return.

Some children and adults fail to respond to dietary lactose — their lactase deficiencies remain. In such cases, dietary modification is in order: avoidance of milk and milk products or the use of predigested milk (Lactaid).

Your daughter may be able to overcome her intolerance by gradually increasing the lactose in her diet, thereby stimulating lactase formation. If this is unsuccessful, she will have to consider the restrictions I mentioned.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 29-year-old female and suffer from recurring calcium deposits, bursitis and tendinitis in both shoulders. I've had each shoulder injected and aspirated to break up any calcium deposits from one to three times. Can you explain this and offer any advice?

DEAR READER: In its attempt to heal itself, the body sometimes causes more problems than it solves. For instance, active tendons and joints often become mildly inflamed because of repeated movement. With time, the body lays down calcium deposits in these tissues to prevent damage. After a while, however, the deposits themselves irritate surrounding tissues. Pain and stiffness result. These conditions are called calcific tendinitis and calcific bursitis.

Doctors often prescribe anti-inflammatory drugs, such as Butazolidin or Indocin, to reduce the pain of calcium deposits. If this therapy is ineffective, cortisone/Novocaine injections into the deposits may reduce pain and inflammation.

If symptoms persist, surgery may be necessary to remove the calcified areas. This should be a last resort because the medication and the injections are usually effective, and their benefits ordinarily last weeks or months.

Because you have had an unsatisfactory response to therapy, I suggest you seek a referral to an orthopedic specialist, who can advise you whether to consider surgery.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "An Informed Approach To Surgery." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their names and addresses to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

The Scurry Chapter of American Business Women's Association met Nov. 13 for their Thanksgiving dinner meeting with Wanda Rushing as their special guest.

Program chairman, Vera Pruitt introduced Mrs. Rushing, Justice of the Peace elect. She will take over the duties of the office Jan. 1, as the first woman to hold that office here.

Mrs. Rushing explained some of the duties of the office. She will handle traffic tickets, bad checks, public intoxication, minors in possession, theft under $20 and marriages, she said. Sometimes JP's are called for deaths, last year there were 25 of these.

Barry's son, wife need fresh start

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mayor Marion Barry's wife, who stood by her husband during his three-month drug and perjury trial, has moved out on him.

"There is no official change in the marital status," Lurma Rackley, the mayor's press secretary, said Wednesday. "That is all we can say right now."

Effi Barry moved out of the house the couple share and into an apartment complex Monday with their 10-year-old son to be closer to his school, sources close to Barry said.

"She has said Christopher needed to be out of that situation where there were so many bad memories," an unidentified friend told The Washington Post. "She needed to be in a situation where he could have a fresh start."

Barry was arrested Jan. 18 in a hotel room after being lured there by Rasheeda Moore, a former model who cooperated with an FBI sting.

Ms. Moore testified during his three-month trial that she and Barry used drugs more than 100 times during an intimate two-year relationship.

Barry is appealing a misdemeanor cocaine possession conviction and a six-month prison term. He lost a bid for a city council seat Nov. 6.

Mid-spot power

By James Jacoby

Many modern partnerships, burdened (or blessed) with the method called "fourth suit forcing," would have trouble getting to the right contract in today's deal. South would be reluctant to bid two hearts at his second turn, since that would be an artificial forcing bid showing a better hand. If he bid either two no-trump or two spades, the superior heart contract might never be reached. Fortunately today's North-South were playing simple old-fashioned bridge, and two hearts was a natural bid. North was happy to bid game in that strain.

The play demonstrates the strength of decent spot-cards when declarer is crossruffing. West switched to the 10 of clubs at trick two. Declarer won dummy's ace and played a spade. East grabbed the ace and played a second diamond, but declarer ruffed. South cashed the king of spades, throwing a club from dummy and noting the fall of the 10 from West. If declarer now played another high spade, West would shed his other club. So South played a club to dummy's king and ruffed another diamond. Now came another high spade. West ruffed low and dummy overruffed. Declarer played a heart to his ace, happy to see the heart 10 from West.

Declarer now played the jack of spades. West discarded a diamond, and declarer threw the last club from dummy. All the hapless defenders could take was the king of hearts. If either the dummy's nine of hearts or declarer's eight of hearts were held by East, the story could have a different ending. An uppercut in trumps from East, forcing declarer to play his ace, might well have been fatal.

Helpful hint for cats and potted plants

DEAR POLLY — The following pointer was given to me by a veterinarian and really works. To prevent cats from using planters as a litter box, lay pine cones around the plant in the pot. Water easily goes through and makes large soil areas more attractive. Cats won't touch. — PAT

DEAR PAT — This would be useful not only with planters but in outdoor garden beds as well. Thanks to you and your vet for a useful pointer. Your pointer earns you the Pointer of the Week award, a copy of my book "Polly's Pointers: 1,081 Helpful

WTC basketballers begin WJCAC play

Both the men's and women's basketball teams from Western Texas College begin Western Junior College Athletic Conference competition tonight with a double-header at Howard College. The 4-7 Lady Dusters will face the undefeated, 10-0, Hawk Queens at 6 p.m. followed at 8 p.m. by the Westerners, 8-3, against the 14-0 Hawks.

Coach Kelly Chadwick's Dusters are coming off a 63-52 loss to Cisco Junior College Monday. Freshman Diane Mendez hit 15 points for Western Texas in the loss. "We haven't been playing as well as we can play," said Chadwick. "We haven't played up to our potential, especially on defense. What we have to do, somehow, some way, is to win one of these first three league games before Christmas." The Dusters will battle three undefeated squads, Howard, there, and Odessa and South Plains in Scurry County Coliseum to start the season.

"Those are three very good basketball teams that are loaded with good sophomores," Chadwick related. "They are a combined 30-0 coming into conference." "Well," said Westerner chief Tony Mauldin, "You've got to play them sooner or later. We've just got to be ready to play." The Westerners' schedule is the same as the WTC women as they battle Howard in Big Spring, then host Odessa and SPC. "The positive thing for us is that, in those first three games, we don't have any long road trips. We have to play them one at a time, but we think we can win all three. We have to be positive." Howard leads the conference with their 14-0 mark followed by South Plains' 10-0 and a 7-1 slate by Odessa. Mauldin's Westerners and the Howard crew have both been lighting up scoreboards in pre-season with each team averaging in excess of 112 points per outing. "It will be fast-break basketball tonight," Mauldin said. "It should be really good for our fans. It's sure not going to be boring." The Westerners' last non-conference matchup was a disappointing 112-110 loss to Cisco JC Monday. Sophomore guard Allen Smith led WTC with 24 points against the Wranglers followed by Michael Richardson's 22, 18 by Dominick Byrd and Jacoby Garmon and Jeff Shelley with 10 each.

In Lisa Olson case...

Fined NFL players to appeal decision

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — The Lisa Olson controversy lives on despite NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue's hope that his punishment of three players and the New England Patriots would end it.

One day after the release of an investigative report on alleged sexual harassment by several players against Olson, a Boston Herald reporter, the players' agents vowed to fight.

Tagliabue handed out $72,500 in fines — $12,500 to Zeke Mowatt, $5,000 each to Michael Timpson and Robert Perryman, and $50,000 to the club.

"If (Tagliabue) thinks this is over — and I know it's what he would like to think — then he is mistaken," Robert Fraley, Mowatt's agent, said in a published report Wednesday. "This thing is far from over."

"We will go before whatever forum necessary to see that justice is done here. We are going to look at every reasonable basis to proceed legally in this case."

Robert Fayne, Perryman's agent, said, "We have every intention of vindicating Robert's name. We feel strongly that he was implicated unjustifiably."

Brett Senior, who represents Timpson, said, "Mr. Timpson shall be challenging this erroneous decision by Commissioner Tagliabue, and his name and reputation will be vindicated."

The players have the right to appeal Tagliabue's decision. He announced it Tuesday simultaneous with the release of a 60-page report produced by an investigative team headed by Prof. Philip Heymann of Harvard Law School.

Timpson was the only punished player who commented on the report. He denied involvement in the Sept. 17 incident in the Patriots' locker room.

"I had nothing to do with the issue," he said. "I stick by it."

The report came down hard on Patriots general manager Patrick Sullivan, who was cited for not responding quickly to the incident or treating it seriously enough. He refused Wednesday to comment on the incident or the report.

On Sept. 30, Patriots owner Victor Kiam told Sullivan he was considering suspending him. Tagliabue told Kiam not to take any action relating to Sullivan until the investigation was completed. Since the report was issued, Kiam has not commented on Sullivan's future.

Mowatt, a tight end, played six seasons with the New York Giants and signed before this season with the Patriots as a Plan B free agent. Timpson, a wide receiver who was New England's fourth-round draft choice last year, has been on injured reserve all season. Perryman, a fullback who was New England's third-round draft pick in 1987, was cut Nov. 5 and is now with Dallas.

The incident occurred on a practice day while Olson was interviewing cornerback Maurice Hurst at his locker. Olson saw Mowatt walking across the room and looking at her "with what she interpreted as a purposeful look," the report said. It said he wasn't wearing a towel.

Nine people interviewed saw Mowatt walk toward a scale next to Hurst's locker, according to the report.

It said, "Olson reports that in a few seconds someone was standing at arm's length from her at her side, naked and saying in a low voice, 'Here's what you want

Do you want to take a bite out of this?' She did not see who the person was, and we cannot conclusively identify the person."

In a letter to Kiam, Tagliabue said, "Mowatt's conduct involved both verbal and demonstrative actions. Timpson and Perryman encouraged the misconduct and contributed significantly to creating an atmosphere in which improper activity was evidently considered permissible."

SWC plans tougher standards

DALLAS (AP) — Southwest Conference basketball earned some much-needed respectability in March when Arkansas and Texas met for the NCAA Midwest Regional Title, but some SWC coaches fear the improved national status may be short-lived.

The league is planning to install tougher academic eligibility requirements that are among the toughest in big-time college athletics.

The new rules could go into effect for the 1991-92 school year. They would close loopholes that admit partial qualifiers, or athletes who fulfill some but not all of the NCAA entrance requirements.

Basketball would be the hardest-hit sport because of the high percentage of partial qualifiers and junior college transfers.

"If they make rules conference-wide tougher than the NCAA rules, they will destroy basketball in this league," Houston coach Pat Foster told The Dallas Morning News. He said the measures would diminish the league's chances at attracting top talent.

It could mean players the caliber of Texas' Benford Williams, Houston's Derrick Smith and Texas Tech's Will Flemons would not sign with SWC schools out of high school because they would be permanently ineligible for not meeting academic eligibility requirements.

The league also has considered eliminating the eligibility of junior college players who were partial qualifiers out of high school. A third possibility the SWC is considering would force junior college transfers to sit out a season at SWC schools before becoming eligible.

The NCAA says partial qualifiers are student-athletes who have either a 2.0 GPA in a core curriculum of 11 courses, or a 700 on the SAT or an 18 ACT test score out of high school. Those student-athletes can attend school without athletic scholarships. They're ineligible to practice or play but have three years of eligibility.

The SWC rules would not allow a partial qualifier to compete after the first year even if the athlete paid his own way all four years.

The SWC would be especially hurt by the junior college restrictions because league schools rely heavily on many two-year systems in the region, and because many local players choose to play at junior colleges close to home before trying their hand at SWC schools.

"When you look at all the junior college players in Texas, a lot of them stay in Texas (and go to a four-year school)," said new Texas A&M coach Kermit Davis. "If they start going out it would be difficult."

Three SWC schools (Rice, Southern Methodist and Texas Christian) already do not accept partial qualifiers out of high school.

But the other six have either partial qualifiers on their rosters or have them sitting out their first season in order to gain eligibility. And every SWC school has at least one junior college player on its roster.

TCU coach Moe Iba said junior college players could take the league to court. "A kid that goes to junior college and makes his grades, does well and proves himself for two years, he ought to have an opportunity to go to college."

SWC presidents made the partial qualifier proposals on Oct. 7 in Dallas. They also explored ways to deal with junior college transfers.

SWC commissioner Fred Jacoby said the presidents wanted students "who have a reasonable opportunity to succeed."

"I think the actual thing that will happen is those who don't qualify (out of high school) will go to junior college," Jacoby said. "I think if we did not allow transfer, it would be very injurious."

Some coaches say that even eliminating partial qualifiers out of high school is unjust.

Texas' Tom Penders said he has coached many players who wouldn't pass the new requirements, but who did fine academically. "I don't buy the argument that those kids don't belong and can't survive the school."

owner John McMullen and the HSA board of directors want "to sell this to local interests, if possible," Louis B. Susman, managing director for Salomon Brothers Inc., said Wednesday.

But when asked whether HSA would reject a higher offer from an outsider, Susman was non-committal. "That's an irrelevant question because we're not offering it, at this point, to an outside buyer," Susman said. "We are suggesting that, at this point in time, the wishes of HSA is to sell this to local Houston-Texas interests."

McMullen ended months of speculation Monday when he announced the HSA was considering selling the Astros. Besides owning the Astros, HSA also holds the lease on the Astrodome and two other buildings in the same complex, the Astrohall and Astroarena. It also owns properties in Florida and various cable television interests.

Susman, who heads the negotiating team for HSA, previously was a member of the management committee for the St. Louis Cardinals and was one of the club's representatives at the Major League Baseball meetings. Susman heads Salomon Brothers' Midwest division, based in Chicago.

His assistant, Dallas-based managing director John J. Veatch Jr., who heads Salomon Brothers' Southwest division, handled the sale of the Dallas Cowboy's football team — a deal Veatch said took nine months to complete.

Susman said possible bidders should have more than capital.

"With a civic action of this type, you're looking at good citizenship, good people who will run a successful franchise, as well as the normal elements of financial ability and business acumen," he said.

Susman said the negotiating team will investigate the financial standing of any potential investor to ensure that 60 percent of any offer could be paid with equity and no more than 40 percent of the offer be borrowed funds.

"We want to be sure they are

Coogs' coach being sought

HOUSTON (AP) — Mississippi State Athletic Director Larry Templeton says he wants to talk to University of Houston football coach John Jenkins about his school's vacant coaching job, a television station reported.

"I have a desire to talk to John Jenkins," Templeton told KRIV-TV in Houston on Wednesday. "I am going to do this the right way and go through (Houston Athletic Director) Rudy Davalos first."

Rockey Felker resigned Monday after five seasons at Mississippi State. He was 21-34 overall, but only 5-28 in the Southeastern Conference. The team was 5-6 this year, 1-6 in the SEC.

Jenkins' Cougars are 9-1 this year, his first as coach. Jenkins and Davalos were in Tokyo preparing for the team's game against Arizona State on Friday and were not available for comment.

Jenkins is in the first year of a four-year contract at Houston that pays him $100,000 annually.

Nursing No Longer Considered To Be Woman's Work Alone

By Abigail Van Buren
1990 Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: My husband chose to be a nurse because he truly loves to care for sick people, and no health professionals spend more time with the people they care for than nurses. He anticipated some kidding and even some possible discrimination from the female nurses he works with, but we never expected what we've heard from complete strangers.

Someone said, "Oh, what a sissy job for a man." Another person had the nerve to ask if he had flunked out of medical school!

Abby, he is very good at his job. The patients and co-workers have raved about his competence and caring.

Nursing has come a long way since Florence Nightingale, and because of dedicated men like my husband, it will progress even further.

PROUD NURSE'S WIFE

DEAR WIFE: Male nurses are not as rare as most people might assume. According to Dr. P. Rosenfeld of the National League for Nursing, there are currently more than 67,000 male nurses in the nation, and the number is growing each year.

This year, at Columbia University's School of Nursing, one-third of the students are male.

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest the letter from "Baffled in Vancouver," whose 49-year-old husband began acting peculiarly. She said he went outside to turn on the lawn sprinkler in full view of the neighbors wearing only his boxer shorts. Then she came home from work to find him preparing supper in nothing but a T-shirt. She said such conduct was totally out of character for him.

Thank God you advised her to get her husband to a doctor for a complete examination from the neck both ways.

My 47-year-old husband also began acting peculiarly. I wasted a year being angry at him because he refused to see a doctor.

When his judgment became visibly impaired, I practically dragged him to our family physician (I had told the doctor in advance about the alarming changes in my husband's behavior).

The physician referred him to a neurologist, and after extensive testing, it was discovered that my husband had a rare form of dementia called "Pick's disease," which is similar to Alzheimer's but strikes people at a much younger age — between 40 and 60. Inappropriate behavior and poor judgment are early symptoms, and like Alzheimer's, there is no known cure.

Abby, I don't want to frighten "Baffled," but if her husband has either Alzheimer's or Pick's disease, the sooner she gets involved in a support group, the easier it will be for all concerned.

BEEN THERE

DEAR ABBY: I had to laugh when I read the letter from Dan in Chula Vista. He told how he had made a tape recording of his neighbor's barking dog, then played it for the neighbor the next day.

A friend of mine did the same thing. Only he recorded his neighbor's shouting and cursing with his wife in the wee hours of the morning. Then he played it back under their bedroom window at 6 a.m.!

That was the end of those late-night noisy shouting matches.

Caution in gulf urged

 or Saddam Hussein's, can be allowed to determine the fate of nations," Perle said.
 On Wednesday, two former U.S. military chiefs bolstered Democratic demands for a go-slow approach in the gulf.
 "The question is how much pain we administer and how quickly and whether we do it with the embargo or the use of force," said Sen. Sam Nunn, D-Ga., chairman of the Armed Services Committee.

Study: AIDS virus found at colleges

BOSTON (AP) — The first nationwide survey of AIDS at colleges shows that the virus has gained a small but worrisome foothold on America's campuses, infecting about one in every 500 students.

Based on this and other data, the federal Centers for Disease Control estimates that between 25,000 and 35,000 of the nation's 13 million college students are infected with the AIDS virus.

That makes AIDS about as common on university campuses as it is elsewhere in American life, the study shows.

"This is both good news and bad news," said Leighton Ku, a public health specialist at the Urban Institute in Washington. "It's good that it's not sky-high, as some might have feared. But it's bad that it's there at all."

While its presence among college students is still small, experts fear AIDS could spread substantially.

Snyder Jaycees begin projects

 tion in the evenings or contact Hernandez at 573-4210.

"The success of this project in past years has been because of 100 percent community support," said a Jaycees spokesperson. "We appreciate all the help, both in the form of donations and in helping repair and box toys."

Jaycees are also contacting the schools for the annual Christmas Spree, held Dec. 8 at Kmart. Jaycees, through SISD, are hoping to identify needy school children who will be allowed to shop at Kmart and select gifts for family and loved ones.

All applicants to the shopping spree and Toys for Tots are screened.

The Jaycees' three-on-three volleyball tournament will be held at Scurry County Boy's Club on Dec. 8. McDonald's is assisting in the tourney, with proceeds to benefit United Way. First, second and third place T-shirts and team trophies will be awarded.

For information on the tournament, contact Danny Engle at 573-6389.

The Jaycees also will be holding their Christmas Lighting Contest and Calling Santa project and will release details on those events in the near future.

Prosecution nears end in Eicke trial

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — Prosecution testimony is expected to wrap up this week and the defense could open its case Monday in the federal conspiracy trial here of former Snyder resident Johannes J. Eicke.

U.S. Attorney Patrick Chesley, who is prosecuting the case, speculated that he could rest the government's case against Eicke, 36, at the end of this week. Chesley said that as of this morning he had called nine witnesses in the trial.

Eicke is charged with conspiring to aid and abet the disappearance of his common-law wife, Bridgette Jones, 36, in March of 1987 while she was free on bond after being convicted of conspiracy, wire fraud and obstruction of justice.

In October, Eicke underwent a competency evaluation and was found competent to stand trial. Eicke, represented by court-appointed attorney Bruce Locher, is being tried with Jones, who is representing herself.

Police work three morning mishaps

Three traffic accidents were reported to Snyder police Wednesday.

At 7:58 a.m. at 37th Place and Galveston, a 1986 Chevrolet driven by Marilyn Crowover of 2207 42nd St. was in collision with a 1985 Lincoln driven by Vickie Kelly of 3808 Galveston. Damage was reported as minor.

Just minutes later, the day's second accident was reported at 8:04 a.m. in the 500 block of East Highway. Involved were a 1991 Chevrolet pickup driven by Wayne Williams of 123 Browning and a 1982 Oldsmobile driven by Misty Jenkins of Dunn. Damage to the Williams auto was minor. The Jenkins vehicle sustained moderate damage. There were no injuries.

The third and final accident occurred at 9:45 a.m. in the 1500 block of 25th St. Involved were a 1981 Pontiac driven by Myrtle Guadarrama of 1003 29th St. and a 1987 GMC motorhome driven by Elma Shipe of Albuquerque, N.M. Damage was minor.

"I think probably the most important thing from this study is that it shows us the potential," said Dr. Richard P. Keeling of the American College Health Association, a co-author. "The combination of a sexually transmitted disease tossed into campus behavior has the potential for very serious consequences in the future. It also shows us we have an opportunity to prevent that."

The study was based on random testing of blood samples drawn from 16,863 students at 19 schools, most of them large state universities.

Several arrests keep local police busy Wednesday

Municipal Court activity kept local police busy Wednesday morning and evening activity included seven arrests. A total of 10 arrests were reported.

An officer was called to Municipal Court at 9:58 a.m. where two males were taken into custody to lay out fines at Scurry County Jail. A 20-year-old male was taken in for disorderly conduct and public intoxication and an 17-year-old male was taken in for PI.

Police were called back to the court at 11:08 a.m. where a 28-year-old female was taken into custody and transported to county jail to lay out fines for PI, no insurance and failure to appear.

At 8:58 p.m. in the 600 block of 30th St., a 21-year-old male was taken into custody on a warrant for endangerment of a child. The warrant stemmed from a family violence incident Nov. 1.

Four males were arrested at 10:23 p.m. in the 500 block of 29th St. A 28-year-old male was charged with driving while intoxicated. Passengers, ages 21, 19 and 27, were charged with PI. All were transported to county jail.

Two males taken into custody and a report for theft Class B was filed after an employee at Lawrence IGA alerted police at 11:16 p.m. that two subjects had taken a Christmas tree from the business. The employee supplied police with a description of the vehicle the subjects left in. Authorities later located the vehicle at Western Texas College and arrested a 19-year-old male and an 18-year-old male for theft. Both were taken to county jail.

School finance issue before justices again

AUSTIN (AP) — A lawyer who defended the state's revamped school finance system before the Texas Supreme Court said he wasn't surprised that some justices sharply questioned it.

"It was 9-0 last time. I didn't anticipate that they were going to just roll over and say everything's great," said Texas Education Agency general counsel Kevin O'Hanlon.

He was referring to the Supreme Court's unanimous 1989 ruling that the finance system was unconstitutional.

The court, which at the time noted differences in funding available to rich and poor school districts, directed the state to change the system. The Legislature passed a reform law this summer, but the measure is being challenged by poor school districts.

"We ... said we don't want a Band-Aid on the system. It sounds to me like the state is saying the best it's good for is an Ace bandage," Justice Lloyd Doggett said during oral arguments on the new system Wednesday.

He said the Supreme Court directed immediate change, and suggested that the state responded with less money than state officials said was needed and with a study committee.

The committee was part of the new law. The measure also raised state taxes to pump $528 million more into public education in the 1990-91 school year, in what officials called the first step toward equity.

Assistant Attorney General Toni Hunter, representing the state, called the new law "far more than a Band-Aid." O'Hanlon said the committees in the law not only study equity but could enforce it.

Attorneys for poor school districts asked the court to rule against the system and provide for an alternative plan in case the Legislature doesn't come up with a better one.

As lawyers made their arguments to the Supreme Court, proceedings were recorded by two still photographers and two TV photographers, in keeping with a new Supreme Court rule allowing cameras in the courtroom.

Supreme Court Clerk John Adams said it is first time he knows of that the court has allowed TV and still camera coverage.

The Supreme Court is hearing the case after State District Judge Scott McCown in September ruled that the revamped $14 billion-a-year system still is unconstitutional. The system relies on state aid, local property taxes and some federal money.

McCown, of Austin, said the system still doesn't give all schools "substantially equal" access to funds for a similar tax effort.

He gave lawmakers until Sept. 1, 1991, to change the school finance system, leaving the current system in place this school year.

Lawmakers meet in regular session beginning in January.

Al Kauffman of the Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund, representing one group of poor districts, said the Supreme Court's earlier order directed that education funding not be distributed under an unconstitutional system. The MALDEF school districts are seeking an injunction against the current system.

That prompted Justice C.L. Ray to ask, "Shouldn't we just shut the schools down now, until the Legislature gets it right?"

Ms. Hunter said the law should be given time to work. But Justice Oscar Mauzy said school finance has been examined for decades.

He asked, "How many more generations have to wait" for their rights under the state constitution.

Eight justices heard the arguments. Justice Franklin Spears was absent due to ill health, said Chief Justice Tom Phillips. Recordings of the proceeding are to be made available to him.

The lawyers also addressed the propriety of the direct appeal of McCown's ruling to the Supreme Court.

Kauffman said the court is properly hearing the case. The state has said if disputed facts affect the Supreme Court's ruling, the 3rd Court of Appeals in Austin should be allowed to review them. School districts that joined the case on the state's side have said the lower appellate court first should hear the case.

The Supreme Court did not issue an immediate ruling in the case.

Lucas' execution date scheduled Monday

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — Henry Lee Lucas, the alleged serial killer who once claimed to have killed nearly 600 people in 26 states, says he's worried about his scheduled execution Monday, but remains confident that "I'll go to Heaven."

Lucas, 54, is scheduled to die by injection before dawn Monday for a 1979 slaying. He maintains his innocence and has recanted his confessions to all the slayings except one — that of his mother.

The one-eyed drifter said Wednesday he believes his execution would be the state's revenge for his false confessions to slayings around Texas and the nation.

"I'm not a mass murderer," Lucas said. "They don't want me to prove I didn't commit the crimes. I think it's the idea the justice system didn't work when I proved it didn't work. I gave law enforcement a black eye."

Lucas was convicted in the slaying of a woman known only as "Orange Socks," which is all she was wearing when her body was found Oct. 31, 1979, next to a culvert near Interstate 35 north of Georgetown.

"I'm worried; I'm not scared,"

Lucas said in an interview from Texas' death row. "I guess anybody who goes through this is worried. But I'm not scared."

He previously confessed to nearly 600 slayings before he began recanting them and now admits only to one — the beating death of his mother in Tecumseh, Mich., in 1960.

"I'll go to Heaven," Lucas said. "I've been forgiven for that."

Lucas also contends he was in Florida at the time of the Orange Socks slaying and was forced by police to confess.

"I tried to explain," he said of his confessions to police. "The more I tried, the more it became impossible to do. I know what they told me. I only repeated it back to them."

Lucas' attorneys were awaiting the outcome of appeals to halt the execution, which would be the fifth in the state this year and the 38th since Texas resumed capital punishment in 1982.

"We have filed all the papers," said Ginger Rogers, the secretary for Fort Worth attorney Richard Alley. "We still haven't heard. We have filed for several things, including a stay of execution."

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals on Tuesday rejected a claim that the trial court did not have the authority to set Lucas' execution date.

An appeal pending before State District Judge John Carter in Georgetown raises five issues, including one about a 1986 report from Texas Attorney General Jim Mattox that said many homicides attributed to Lucas could not have been committed by him.

Lucas said Wednesday he might have confessed to as many as 4,000 crimes because of threats against him or promises made to him.

"I thought I would be brought back and executed. I didn't know what the deal was," he said. "I don't want to be remembered for these crimes. I didn't do them. The people who did are still on the street."

The Orange Socks conviction is Lucas' only death sentence although he has at least six other life terms, two 75-year sentences and a 60-year term for other Texas convictions. He also is wanted in Florida on three first-degree murder charges for slayings in 1980 and 1981.

"I wonder what it's going to be like," he said of his death. "I think there's another world to go to. Hopefully, I'll make it some day. I'd rather go the right way than the wrong way."

Asked if he was prepared to die, he replied: "Oh yes. You just accept it. If it happens, it happens. If it don't, it don't."

"I guess I've become more calm than I should be. I just more or less say if it comes to that I'll accept it. I can't say I'm emotionally ready. If it happens, I'll just go somewhere else. I'll go to Heaven."

Daughter says dad stands by projection

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A New Mexico scientist is sticking to his projection of a 50-50 earthquake probability along the New Madrid Fault next week, his daughter says.

However, Iben Browning is most concerned about the chance of an earthquake in Japan. Evelyn Browning Garriss said Wednesday, echoing what she told San Francisco radio station KCBS earlier.

"That doesn't mean we stop being concerned about New Madrid or less concerned about New Madrid," she said in a telephone interview from her home in suburban Tijeras. "He's probably more concerned about Japan than any other place ... including New Madrid. But he continues to see a 50-50 possibility for New Madrid, and he hasn't made any changes, except to be a little less worried about the Hayward (Fault)."

The Hayward Fault in northern California made it through a crucial test last month without movement when there were several other earthquakes in latitudes 30 to 60 around the world, including tremors in Iran, the Aleutians, California and a minor volcanic eruption at Mount St. Helens, Wash., she said.

Browning was on vacation and unreachable for comment at an undisclosed location Wednesday, she said.

Browning, 72, has always been equally concerned about the chances of quakes outside the United States, she said, as his figures have been computed on the basis of solar-lunar gravitational stress on latitudes 30 to 60, which include most of North America, Asia and Europe.

Mrs. Garriss, whose academic background is in history and anthropology, edits the Browning Newsletter, helping her father in his scientific consulting business.

"I've been working with him to see how these things he talks about affect the economy and society," she said.

She said she hopes nothing happens along the New Madrid Fault but that his computations still should be taken seriously.

"I would hate for my father's work to be ignored just because (an earthquake) went off, say, in Tokyo, and not in Missouri," she said. "We sincerely hope there isn't an earthquake here in the U.S. We just have warned people. I think it would be like a tornado warning, which people in the Midwest have dealt with well in the past. At least, they've been prepared."

Browning issued a paper on tidal forces in 1985. At that time, he mentioned Oct. 16, 1989, and Dec. 2, 1990, as times of particularly high combined gravitational pull from the sun and moon on areas in the United States.

Edwards back in Capitol

WASHINGTON (AP) — Between briefings on ethics and free mailing privileges, Texas' newest congressman kept thinking about the 20,000 men and women from his district who are in Saudi Arabia.

"A vote on war and peace may be the first legislative issue I have to pass judgment on," said Chet Edwards, a Democrat elected to represent a Central Texas district that includes Fort Hood, the largest Army base in the free world.

"Normally, you come in and have two or three months before you have to cast any serious votes. In this case, it may be a question of war and peace — by far and away the most critical issue that any congressman has to deal with," Edwards said during a break Wednesday between orientation sessions for the House's 45 freshmen members.

Although there is still the excitement of being a new member of Congress, Edwards said, "the Persian Gulf has been like a slap of cold water in the face."

Edwards' constituents, he said, "are in a unique situation — being committed to the role of the military in world affairs but at the same time having such a deep personal stake in the Persian Gulf."

As many as 20,000 servicemen and women from Edwards' congressional district — most of them from Fort Hood — are in the Persian Gulf. That appears to be more than from any other congressional district, according to staff for the district's retiring congressman, Democrat Marvin Leath of Waco.

Edwards, 39, said his new job's responsibilities really hit home on Veteran's Day, when he attended services at veterans centers in Marlin and Waco.

At one service, looking at two dozen soldiers from Fort Hood and listening to the speeches, "I couldn't help but think that the decisions made in Washington might determine whether they're alive or dead three or four months from now," Edwards said.

Edwards, a state senator since 1983, defeated Republican state Rep. Hugh Shine despite campaign appearances by President Bush, first lady Barbara Bush, Vice President Dan Quayle and his wife, Marilyn, former president Gerald Ford, and more than two dozen stops by Sen. Phil Gramm.

U.S. Army medical leaders talk Desert Shield tactics

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The massive call-up of Army reservists in Operation Desert Shield hasn't been problem-free, say leaders of the U.S. Army Health Services Command.

But medical officials said Wednesday in some cases the reserve activation has run smoothly, as military hospitals respond to the Persian Gulf buildup.

Maj. Gen. John E. Major, commanding general of the Health Services Command, began a medical conference on Operation Desert Shield by outlining mission priorities for about 200 deputy commanders and chiefs of staff attending.

He said Army medical facilities must ensure that deployed units are fully staffed with "good people," supply deployed personnel, and prepare hospitals for casualties.

"We still have a long way to go with that," he said of the third priority, receiving casualties. "I don't want anybody to relax because it's going to get worse — and I think everybody knows that — and not better."

Col. Jim Sawyer, deputy chief of staff for operations at the command, presented a chronology of the medical branch's activities since Iraq invaded Kuwait Aug. 2.

Sawyer said that a little more than a week after the invasion 11 Army centers were designated to receive casualties.

That was revised to 10 centers: Fort Sam Houston, Fort Hood, Fort Bliss, Fort Stewart, Fort Benning, Fort Bragg, Fort Campbell, Fort Gordon, Fort Lewis and Walter Reed Army Medical Center.

Quick alert times for reservists have posed problems, Sawyer said, because health care workers have been forced to rapidly leave their private sector jobs to take part in Desert Shield.

"The alert time for these nurses and physicians basically amounted to three days," Sawyer said. "It's very hard to close an active practice in that time."

And activating some members of reserve units while leaving others in the same units idle has not been appreciated by some reservists, Sawyer said.

"Many of these folks, with a patriotic spirit and all, were very disappointed that they weren't called up," he said. "There is going to be a retention problem."

At times, reception of the deployed medical personnel, including arranging their meals, cots, money and other necessities, has been difficult, Sawyer said.

Once Desert Shield was under way, Sawyer noted, Army officials were then faced with the federal government shutdown in early October.

But Sawyer said at other times the Health Services Command, based in San Antonio, was well prepared for major events connected with the buildup.

Scholar: Noriega tapes case clouds press freedom issue

MIAMI (AP) — The case of the Manuel Noriega tapes casts a shadow over freedom of the press even though a federal judge lifted his order blocking their broadcast, a constitutional scholar says.

U.S. District Judge William Hoeweler brought one legal battle between Noriega and Cable News Network to a close Wednesday when he lifted his 3-week-old order barring CNN from airing tapes of the former dictator's jailhouse phone calls.

Rodney Smolla, head of the Institute of Bill of Rights Law at William and Mary College in Williamsburg, Va., said he was disturbed that the U.S. Supreme Court refused to intervene earlier to throw out the judge's order and that the high court will not get another chance to review the order.

"It died with a whimper and I think it's unfortunate the case ended this way," he said. "It left on the books precedents that cast some doubt on First Amendment protections that many people thought were well settled."

Noriega's attorneys said they will still ask for contempt penalties against CNN for broadcasting excerpts the day after Hoeweler's ban.

Defense attorney Frank Rubino also has requested that all charges against Noriega be dropped on grounds the taping, a dispute over Noriega's legal fees and other alleged government misconduct ruined his chances of a fair trial.

A decision on that request awaits, among other things, the outcome of an FBI investigation into how the tapes were leaked.

The judge lifted his order after he and attorneys reviewed transcripts of seven tapes the network submitted last week.

During Wednesday's hearing, Rubino withdrew his request to stop the broadcasts, saying the only tape that appeared to violate attorney-client privilege already had been broadcast. "It does no good to close the barn door after the horse is out," he said.

Prosecutors also said they had no objection to lifting the ban, again insisting Noriega's rights were never violated by the taping.

Later Wednesday, CNN broadcast portions of the previously aired tape. Spokesman Steve Haworth said the network had no immediate plans to air the others.

Eccentric billionaire leaves everything to poor people

BALTIMORE (AP) — In life, Harry Weinberg was an abrasive and ruthless businessman often accused of letting downtown Baltimore go to seed. In death, his $1 billion legacy will go toward improving the lives of the poor.

When Weinberg died in Honolulu earlier this month at age 82 after an eight-year battle with bone cancer, the real estate magnate left an estimated $900 million to $1 billion to the Harry and Jeanette Weinberg Foundation.

Overnight, the largely anonymous operation begun in 1957 was transformed into the nation's 12th-largest private foundation — one to be solely devoted to helping the poor. Half the money will go toward the poor in Baltimore.

"What did John D. MacArthur, Andrew Carnegie, John D. Rockefeller and now Harry Weinberg have in common?" asked Honolulu businessman John D. Slocum, who tangled with Weinberg. "All were gemuses at making money, sometimes ruthlessly trampling over obstacles, even people. But when the end came, all left fortunes for good works."

Last year, Forbes magazine ranked Weinberg 70th on its list of the 400 richest Americans. By all accounts, his only interest was making money.

He was estranged from his only son — whom he excluded from his will — and never bothered with the trappings of the huge wealth he accumulated in real estate, municipal transit companies and other ventures.

Weinberg moved to Honolulu in 1968, and as in Baltimore, his offices were drab, his car was 10 or 15 years old, his clothes came off the rack and he hated publicity. In Hawaii, a state that thrives on consensus, he loved to battle local business leaders. Some praised his foresight in recognizing the state's tourism potential; others said he exploited the land and ignored the wishes of neighbors. Nearly all describe his personality as abrasive at best.

One of his foes, Colin Cameron, president of the Maui Land and Pineapple Co., called Weinberg an "obnoxious" man who did "nothing with money except make it."

But after he was diagnosed with the cancer, Weinberg announced he would give all his money away and developed an interest in the elderly.

Weinberg's will indicated he would like half of his money distributed in Baltimore, a city of severe drug problems and thousands of homeless. Its dropout, teen-age pregnancy and infant mortality rates are among the nation's highest.

Lawyer's activation delays $5 million suit

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A federal judge has agreed to release attorneys representing Priscilla Davis in a $5 million lawsuit against her former husband after her principal lawyer was called up for active duty in Saudi Arabia.

U.S. District Judge Eldon B. Mahon gave Mrs. Davis until Jan. 15 to select another attorney to represent her in the civil lawsuit against her ex-husband Cullen Davis.

The change of attorneys will be at least the fourth for Mrs. Davis in the personal injury, wrongful-death lawsuit filed in the late 1970s. The legal action stemmed from a 1976 shooting spree at the Davis' southwest Fort Worth mansion.

Cullen was acquitted in the shooting death of Priscilla's daughter, Andrea Wilborn, in 1977.

Mrs. Davis said her Maryland attorney Kurt Wolfgang had been called up for military duty several months ago. He was a reservist in the Air Force.

Tower sniper movie still controversial

AUSTIN (AP) — One of the two men who killed the infamous University of Texas Tower sniper in 1966 has filed a lawsuit against a cable television giant to stop broadcasts of a movie that he says portrays him as a coward.

Houston McCoy, who now lives at Menard in West Texas, filed the lawsuit in federal court here Wednesday against Turner Broadcasting Systems Inc.

McCoy's suit also asks for $14 million for emotional distress and damage to his reputation.

The former officer alleges the 1975 movie, "The Deadly Tower," has caused him to become an alcoholic and lose self-respect. The movie aired again Tuesday afternoon on Turner's station.

McCoy claims the film depicts him as a coward, though he says he was commended for bravery after the sniper incident.

A Turner Broadcasting

spokesman said Wednesday that attorneys for the company would not be able to respond to inquiries about the suit until later this week.

University of Texas student Charles Whitman climbed 27 floors to the top of the clock tower in the center of the campus on Aug. 1, 1966, and opened fire with a high-powered rifle.

Fourteen people were shot to death by Whitman, 34 were wounded and authorities also discovered the bodies of Whitman's wife and mother in their Austin homes. Both had been slain by Whitman before the tower rampage.

Whitman was stopped when city police officers Ramiro Martinez and McCoy climbed to the top of the tower and shot him.

According to accounts in the "Austin American-Statesman", Martinez emptied his service revolver into Whitman, followed immediately by McCoy, who fired two shotgun blasts.

Study: racing hasn't met tax projections

AUSTIN (AP) — A legislative study says racetrack gambling in Texas so far hasn't brought the state as much tax money as was estimated during the 1986-87 debate over legalizing pari-mutuel wagering.

The House Research Organization, in a report released Wednesday, said that as of November 1990, wagering on horse and dog races had generated $1.3 million for the state, which has spent more than $6 million to operate the Texas Racing Commission.

The report said that during the 1986 legislative debate and the 1987 voter referendum campaign, it had been estimated "that the state revenue from racing could exceed $100 million per year by 1992."

The state comptroller's most recent estimates, from November 1989, projected $1.5 million in general tax revenue for the state in 1990 and $9.8 million in 1991.

The Racing Commission, in its 1992-93 budget request, is projecting total wagering from horse tracks in 1991 of $103 million, with about $5.2 million going to the state, and $87 million being wagered at greyhound tracks, with about $5.2 million going to the state. Horse wagers are taxed at 5 percent; dog wagers at 6 percent.
