Snyder's 1990 ABILENE football season came to an end Saturday as the high-flying Stephenville Yellow Jackets took a 34-13 decision in the Region I semifinal matchup at Shotwell Stadium

SDN Sports Editor

"We just got in a 14-0 hole and we couldn't get out of it," said Snyder coach David Baugh after personally congratulating and consoling each of his team members in the locker room following the game.

"Stephenville's a good football team and we made some mistakes. Penalties hurt us.

"It was a great year for our kids," he continued. "Once this feeling wears off, they will be real proud of what they've done and the way they played. They turned this program around and played good football this season.

Coach Baugh had called it "The Miracle on Deep Creek" when Snyder won the District 2-4A championship this year — the football program's first loop title since 1978. The 1990 Tigers also broke a losing-season streak that dated back to 1979.

After a hard-luck 1989 season in which Snyder lost five games by five points or less, 1990 loomed as a pivitol year in Tiger football. history. Despite a 14-0 openingseason loss to then 20th-ranked Monahans, a determined group of players and coaches saw the beginnings of a success story.

"It wasn't a devastating defeat to us because the kids knew they had played well," Baugh reflected.

DEAR ABBY: The letter from "One Plus Seven" really got me where it hurts. It was from a woman with seven children whose abusive husband taunted her by saying, "You'll never find a man who will want you with all those children."

Fifteen years ago, I was a mother with five children under 18. I was also trapped in an unhappy and abusive marriage. I knew I had to find a way to support myself and my children, so I decided to go to beauty school, so if I got a job I could be home when my children left for school. I worked hard at beauty school and prayed a lot. I got a divorce when my eldest was a senior in high school. I was determined to give my kids a chance to have a decent life, although everyone said I could never support five children.

Well, Abby, today I'm the proud mother of a social worker (head of her department), a physician, a professional football player, and three kids in college. Oh yes, after the divorce I adopted a 14-year-old girl, knowing if I could feed five, I could feed six, and she desperately needed a home

DEAR ABBY: "One Plus Seven" reminded me of my own situation --only I was the father of eight motherless kids under the age of 15. (Two sets of twins.)

Soon after my wife died, a friend fixed me up with a young widow with five children ranging from 3 years old to 14. She had also been told that nobody would want her with "all that baggage.

As it turned out, 13 was our lucky number because we merged families, and between us we have 13 kids who get along great — for the most part

Now we laugh because we both thought, "Who in their right mind

DEAR ABBY: I am 15 years old and this is the first time I have written to you, but this is something I have never seen in your column.

There has been a lot of death in my family. Before I was born, my grandmother died. When I was 4, my grandfather died. When I was 7, one of my uncles died. And recently my mother died. They all died of cancer. (They were all over 40.)

Since cancer so obviously runs in the family, I am terrified that I am going to get it and die also. My older sister and I have discussed it and she feels the same way. I don't want to go through life scared of dying. What can I do?

SCARED OF CANCER

DEAR SCARED: Tell your father about your fears, and ask him to schedule an appointment with your family doctor for you the Big Spring Center, pointed and your sister. The topics of out. discussion should be, "What is the healthiest lifestyle we can long-term care areas such as the adopt to prevent this from happening to us?" and, "How much at risk are we?"

The doctor should be able to put your fears to rest, since he is familiar with your family history. I'm happy that you wrote. The best way to conquer your fears is to face up to them — and by writing, you have already taken the first step.

While some do it out of ignorance of laws that prohibit the practice, others break the laws for profit.

"The antiquities trade, even here, can really be a big business," Bartholomew told the San Antonio Express-News.

The Snyder (Tex.) Daily News, Mon., Dec. 3, 1990 3

"You see ads in area wspapers placed by people who want to buy artifacts," said Raul Guerra, a license and lease manager for the U.S. section of the International Boundary and Water Commission.

Last year, federal officials discovered that a private collection of 5,000 pieces sold for $10,000, Guerra said. Individual pieces, depending on their condition, sometimes sell for $5 each, he added.

"In an economically depressed area such as this, the money can be quite attractive," said Pat Mercado-Allinger, a staff archaeologist with the historical commission's Office of the State Archaeologist.

For the first time since the passage of the National Historic Preservation Act in 1966, federal and state agencies are cooperating to halt the practice.

"Right now, we're at square one. We don't know exactly what resources are out there or where they're located," Bartholomew said. "What we do know is that there are a lot of avocationals out there who are more than willing to help in some archaeological reconnaissance.'

A pathway to slam

Normally 12 high-card points oppo site a no-trump opening showing 15-17 will not produce a slam. But the situation changes when there is a fit in a suit as well as some distribution in the responding hand. It's easy to make six diamonds with today's North-South cards, but not so easy to arrive at this excellent contract. Here's how it was

The two-spade response, an application of the Jacoby transfer bid, showed both minor suits. Then, when South duly showed his diamond support. North's bid of three hearts showed a singleton in that suit and enough highcard values to play a game. South bid three spades, leaving room for North to progress beyond three no-trump if he wished. The continuing bid of four diamonds, and the four-heart and fourspade ace-showing cue-bids, all expressed slam interest. When South now showed the ace of clubs, North had heard enough. He bid six diamonds

Certainly there are other ways to reach six diamonds. No argument. What is interesting about this deal is that if South's minor-suit cards were changed to A-Q of diamonds and four clubs to the jack, a similar bidding sequence would enable North-South to arrive at a good six-club contract.

The play in six diamonds is plain vanilla: win the king of spades, force out the ace of trumps, win the next spade, draw the other trumps, and play A-K of hearts shedding dummy's losing spade. Dummy then becomes good after the ruff of a club.

HISTORY OF LITIGATION On April 11, 1990, this uit was filed alleging that Magic Chef was liable for triple amages for violating the federal Racketeer Influenced and Comption Organizations Act ("RICO"). The Complaint alleged that Magic Chel, for several years, had engaged in selling microwaves to the public through retail stores as new when in fact, they had been reconditioned, rebuilt or repackaged at the Magic Chel Anniston, Alabama plant; and no disclosure of their previously used nature was made to the public. Plaintiffs claimed that this conduct entitled them and the Class to damages, a permanent injunction against such turther sales, a rescission of all transactions, attorneys tees and costs of court. The Complaint was subsequently amended to add additional plaintiffs and class representatives who are owners of Magic Chel ovens, to assert additional claims for fraud, breach of contract and breach of warrant and to expand on the allegations and theories of relief. As a result of the Settlement described below, this action has now been dismissed.

The Class on whose behalf the action was brought is. my Johnson said in training traded by the Cowboys to New camp he wouldn't be happy with less than a winning season.

The second-year coach of the Dallas Cowboys might reach that goal and astound critics of his "college" offense and defense by making the NFL playoffs.

Johnson also proved on Sunday he kept the right quarterback in a 17-13 victory over the New Orleans Saints.

Orleans two months ago although he had played for Johnson at the University of Miami.

"I had feelings for Steve but that's because I have feelings for my players, too," Johnson said. "But as a coach it didn't bother me during the game. As a coach, I can assure you I wasn't thinking about it.'

Aikman directed Dallas on two 80-yard scoring drives and threw a 5-yard scoring pass to Darryl Johnston.

Aikman hit 15 of 21 passes for 177 yards. For the first time in 14 said. games, he had no interceptions. Walsh completed 18 of 27 passes for 177 yards

"Troy was just excellent," said Johnson. "Troy made some great plays against an outstanding rush.

Dallas improved to 6-7 while Miami New Orleans dropped to 5-7, and it was hard not to look ahead to a Central Div possible Cowboys playoff berth.

"Everybody starts talking Chicago about the playoffs but for us every win is great," said Johnston. "You worry about having some success and then getting complacent about it."

Dallas defensive tackle Dean Hamel said last year's 1-15 season is still on his mind.

"After last year, which was really tough, this feels awfully good," Hamel said. "Our guys are just fightin' and scratchin'. We keep winning these games in the fourth quarter which is surprising for such a young team." Dallas has won all six games in the fourth period.

Dallas has a week off and Johnson said, "I'm not talking playoffs yet. I'll have to wait until after next weekend.

Aikman, who hit only 4 of 10 passes for 29 yards in the first half, completed all 11 of his second-half throws

"It was tough putting the duel with Steve out of my mind but I just took a 'I don't care attitude,' Aikman said. "Steve and I

The victory was revenge for a 28-0 loss to New Orleans last year in Johnson's NFL coaching debut. It marked the first backto-back home victories for Dallas since 1985.

It also was the first time Dallas had won three games in a row since 1986.

Dallas is 8-0 against the Saints in Texas Stadium.

"We've won three in a row and that hasn't been done around here in a long time," Aikman

WTC cage squads to host Wranglers

The Western Texas College Westerners and Lady Dusters will entertain the men's and women's basketball teams from Odessa college in a double-header at Scurry County Coliseum tonight.

The Dusters and the Lady Wranglers will lead things off with a 6 p.m. tip-off followed at 8 p.m. by the Westerners-Wranglers contest.

Western Junior College Athletic Conference play began last Thursday at Howard College for both WTC squads

The WTC men lost a heartbreaker in overtime to the Hawks in their last outing.

With a 104-101 lead over the nation's sixth-ranked juco team, and only eight ticks left on the clock, the Westerners turned the ball over and allowed Greg Jeffery to sink a 3-pointer at the buzzer to knot the score in regulation.

Howard went on to win a 131-116 decision in overtime.

Western Texas brings a season mark of 8-4 into the contest with No. 14 Odessa. The Wranglers are 9-2.

The Lady Dusters' last game was a 76-65 loss at the hands of the Howard Hawk Queens.

"That was te best we've played yet," said WTC women's coach Kelly Chadwick.

"We made a few mistakes early that came back to haunt us, but overall, I was really pleased.

Chadwick's crew is 4-8 in the young cage season. Odessa's women bring an unblemished 12-0 mark into tonight's battle.

Tonight is Spirit Sign Night at Scurry County Coliseum. Anyone bringing a WTC spirit sign into the game gets free admission. The signs will be judged and prizes will be awarded at halftime of the Westerners' contest.

A tortilla toss, featuring a $100 cash prize, is also slated for halftime of the men's tilt.

Airline seeks bankruptcy protection tal Airlines Holdings Inc. filed for protection from creditors under federal bankruptcy laws today, blaming the move 'on a stunning rise in fuel costs and heavy debts accrued in the free-spending fuel costs and a high debt load, billion. 1980s.

It was the first bankruptcycourt refugee in the airline business since the dramatic leap in fuel prices caused by the Persian Gulf crisis, and underscored the financial beating taken by all airlines because of a weakening economy and sluggish demand in air travel.

The move also marked a rapidly deteriorating situation for Continental, once the nation's biggest airline operator, which only a few weeks ago rejected the bankruptcy-court option.

Based in Houston, Continental is best known as the child of onetime airline entrepreneur Frank Lorenzo, who built it into a major force in the airline industry through aggressive price-cutting and debt-financed expansion after a previous stint in bankruptcy court seven years ago.

Continental officials said they expected to operate normally through the holiday season and passengers would notice no difference in service.

"Essentially, where allowed to treat the traveling public, travel agents, tour operators, just as if the bankruptcy hadn't occurred," said Paul P. Welsh, a Continental attorney. "The public will not be caught up. There will not be anyone stranded.'

The airline filed for protection under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy laws in Wilmington. Del., where it is incorporated, after its board of directors uanimously approved the filing. Under Chapter 11, a company gets a reprieve from debts while Gray said said that all entities within TAC pay a uniform fee without regard to the number or expense of claims. He noted that in rural areas, the number of workmen's compensation claims is substantially lower than in more urban areas.

Scurry County averages nine claims a year at a combined expense of approximately $30,000. The county now pays just under $100,000 for its current insurance.

Gray recommended two coverage options for county. He recommended that the county ask TAC to adopt a sliding scale policy of premiums or that the county consider becoming selfinsured.

Commissioners voted to contact TAC about adopting a sliding scale premium policy and if the attempt proved unsuccessful, to consider becoming self-insured.

In other business, the court approved a county policy regarding insurance coverage of retired county employees and their spouses. There had been no current written policy addressing payment of insurance premiums and coverage for retirees' spouses in the event the retiree becomes deceased.

Retirees will be mailed a copy of the policy, effective immediately.

The court also approved a resolution endorsing Scurry Community Services Inc. in its efforts to gain state and federal funding for new programs to benefit low-income and indigent county residents.

Shirley Fritz, director of Snyder Child Day Care, and members of its newly re-named board, Scurry Community Services Inc., talked to commissioners in recent court meetings about seeking outside funds to expand the day care's programs to provide such services as public transportation, weatherization for low income housing, emergency utility aid, adult day care and Head Start for children.

Commissioners also approved a request from Sandra Guynes to bury a natural gas line in county right-of-way at her home on Pleasant Hill Road.

The court was to consider a request from county tax assessor Rona Sikes to update the tax office's computer equipment. Judge Goodwin told the court that Sikes had withdrawn her request.

In addition, the court was scheduled to review bids for the sale of law books from the county's law library, however no bids for the books were received.

Ignore warnings

DALLAS (AP) - Ignoring U.S. warnings that they are risking their lives, 17 Americans, including five Texans, made plans today to leave for Iraq to plead for their loved ones' freedom.

'We were a typical middleclass family with two cars, a house and a mortgage payment. I had so many expectations - so many plans for the future," said Kim Edwards of Carson City, Nev., who is making her second trip to Baghdad in less than a month.

Shuttle delay

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) - Trouble with the $150 million Astro observatory today delayed Columbia astronauts' probe of some of the hottest spots in the universe.

NASA officials had trouble calibrating the observatory's instrument pointing system which affects all three ultraviolet telescopes - and also had problems with a computer that controls the movements of one telescope

Deputy mission scientist Gene Urban at Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., remained confident.

"The mission is poised to do extremely good science. We are in an extremely good orbit and three of the experiments (telescopes) have been activated almost completely," he said early today.

Woman recounts ordeal of terror

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) -Breaking her silence after two days of seclusion, an optical store worker has recalled a 30-hour ordeal of terror that she and a coworker endured following their abduction last week.

Yvonne Molina, 23, of Fort Worth said she feared for her life Tuesday even though her captors

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: For 20 years, I've suffered from backaches that are relieved as soon as I get out of bed. For three months, I have had chest pain that leaves me instantly when I arise also. During the day, I feel 30 years old, yet at night I feel 90. New mattresses aren't the answer. What

DEAR READER: Backache is one of the most common symptoms that prompt people to seek medical attention. It has many causes - some trivial, some serious - and treatment depends on the cause.

For example, everyone at one time or another experiences back pain from prolonged sitting or standing, sudden movements (such as twisting or straightening) or heavy lifting. Back muscles, like other muscles in the body, can ache and cramp under certain circumstances. Stress and fatigue can lead to back pain, as can fever. flu and strenuous activity. Ordinarily, this type of muscular backache can easily be treated with rest, heat, massage, gentle exercises and pain medicine, such as aspirin or ibuprofen. On the other hand, back pain can result from more serious conditions, such as a herniated disc. The intervertebral discs are doughnut-shaped structures separating the spinal promised no one would be hurt, the Fort Worth Star-Telegram reported Sunday.

The two armed men broke that pledge when they killed Ms. Molina's friend and co-worker, Cruz Torrez, 41.

The two suspects wanted in the case were arrested and taken into custody Saturday night in Clarendon, Ark., following a routine traffic stop.

David Hernandez, 37, and Servando Pachecano Jr., 24, were being held in the Monroe County Jail, pending extradition to Texas, Sgt. Randy Julian of the Monroe County sheriff's office said.

Ms. Molina chauffeured her captors in her own car for hours. with one of them holding a gun to her side while a knife-wielding accomplice rode in the back seat next to Mrs. Torrez.

She said she contemplated wrecking the car in hopes it would jar her and Mrs. Torrez away from their captors and allow them to escape.

She decided against causing a wreck, she said, "because more month. than likely they the kidnappers "To a would be the only ones living it's a moral obligation," said through it." Ms. Molina said the suspects had at first intended to leave Mrs. Torrez locked in a bathroom at the Credit Optical store where the two women were abducted. But they changed their minds, expressing fears that the mother of four, would escape and contact police. Ms. Molina said she was in a back room of the store and had just finished counting the day's business receipts when, through a mirror, she saw the reflection of two men entering the shop. She said Mrs. Torrez was at the front counter when the men entered about 5:50 p.m. Tuesday. All seemed quiet in the front room, Ms. Molina said, when a man walked up behind her, brandishing a gun. "He told me to get all the money out of my purse," Ms. Molina said. She said the man then rifled through Mrs. Torrez's purse. After gathering no more than $100, the robber began asking for more money and Ms. Molina replied that there was none, she said. "He kept saying that I bet-ter not be lying to him."

Homeless cats stirring up controversy

SAN MARCOS, Texas (AP) -In Claudia Cabaniss, the weeds. homeless cats at Southwest Texas State University have found their own Salvation Army.

For several years Mrs. Cabaniss and her daughter have fed and cared for the university's cat clan - estimated to total 100 or more - at enormous personal expense. Food alone costs $600 a

To Mrs. Cabaniss and Ms. Johnson, they all have names and personalities. Scattered about campus and

Ms. Johnson said, "A lot of my mother's colleagues think we are nuts. They think we are eccentric - call us the Cat Lady and the bones. When portions of a disc slip or protrude out of position, they may press against spinal nerves, causing pain that extends down the back and into the legs. In addition, arthritis of the spine often causes pain. Both spinal arthritis and herniated discs can lead to severe spasm of the back muscles, further aggravating the severe discomfort.

Other common causes of back pain include scoliosis (curvature of the spine), spinal fractures (as seen in osteoporosis), and spondylolisthesis (forward displacement of one vertebra over another).

Treatment for such conditions often requires physical therapy, braces or corsets, surgery and modification of activity.

Patients with chronic back pain often discover that the pain is relieved by movement and worsened by inactivity. Thus, symptoms may increase at night and diminish during the day.

From your description, I conclude that you suffer from muscle spasm, primarily at night. You should be examined by an orthopedic surgeon who, after testing you and X-raying your spine, can diagnose the cause of the spasms and suggest treatment. For example, simple muscle spasm could be relieved by chiropractic ma-nipulation; arthritis could be helped by anti-inflammatory drugs such as Indocin or Tolectin; a herniated disc may need attention from neurosurgeon.

People who suffer back pain at night may obtain relief by sleeping on firm mattresses, which give addition-al support. Evidently, however, this was ineffective in your case. I am not sure what causes your chest pain. Peptic ulcer, hiatal hernia and angina can produce chest pain; your orthopedic surgeon may choose to test you for these conditions. Some chest pains occur as "sympathetic reactions" to back spasm; so by treating your back pain, the specialist may also relieve the chest discomfort.

Because you may need expensive testing, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Insuring Your Good Health." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their names and addresses to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title. EWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN

Ms. Molina said the man also told me to be calm and to not do any sudden move or he would kill me.

She said he then led her into the front room, where she saw Mrs. Torrez frozen still as the other man scooped up eyewear from display racks.

Ms. Molina said the gunman ushered Mrs. Torrez into the bathroom and locked the door. She said the other robber shouted 'She's going to call the cops, she's going to get out and she's going to call the cops. Go back in there and get her out and bring her with us."

Ms. Molina said she was then forced to lead the men to her car where they drove through south Fort Worth for hours.

Ms. Molina said that through her rearview mirror she could see Mrs. Torrez sitting erect in the back seat, her head cocked to the right so she could not see her captors.

"She didn't talk at all," Ms. Molina said. "I just told her that we would get through this." Ms. Molina said she did not want to talk about what happened when they were taken to a shack in northeast Fort Worth, where Mrs. Torrez was suffocated, because it would only cause further grief for her friend's family.

But university officials say the cats are a problem and have given Mrs. Cabaniss an ultimatum: Get rid of them by January or they will.

"We are not a haven for cats, but a campus for learning," said Warren Tinseth, the director of safety at the university.

There have been complaints about fleas and cat hair in school buildings.

An English professor, Clifford Ronan, said his office was ransacked one weekend by a stray cat that apparently fell through a ceiling tile.

The incident drew coverage from the school newspaper, the "University Star," which quoted Ronan describing how the cat had urinated on his chair, shelves, bookcase, floor and student papers.

"I have not gone in my office for more than 10 minutes in the last three days," Ronan said at the time. "The smell is unbearable, and although the janitors have spent a lot of time and money trying to clean up, it is still not satisfactory.'

The university also contends the cats - which share the weed patches and back alleys with polecats, possums and raccoons - could pose other health risks.

According to Mrs. Cabaniss and her daughter, Megan Johnson, the campus cat population is replenished primarily by the thoughtlessness of students.

"Students get the cats and then just go off and leave them," Ms. Johnson said. "They go home over a break and expect the cats to care for themselves. It's just irresponsibility and ignorance.

"They are really society's cats," Ms. Johnson said. "We can't save every stray cat in the world, and that's not our intention. But they would starve to death if we didn't feed them."

Once abandoned, the cats go where they know they can be fed somewhere along the campus route that Mrs. Cabaniss and Ms. Johnson take twice daily on their mission of mercy.

Late on this particular after-noon, in a patch of tall weeds on the west end of campus, sits Mrs. Monkey, the first to be fed.

Cities will concentrate on minorities, elderly pro cities will be catering more to the needs of the elderly and minorities, as both populations continue to grow into the 21st century, civic leaders said.

A panel addressing the 67th annual National League of Cities convention on Sunday noted the role of the city will be changing somewhat as the population ages and becomes more dominated by ethnic minorities and women.

White America has a vested interest in the success of African-Americans, Hispanic-Americans and other minority members," said Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson.

"When black people talk about 'I'm going to uplift black people,' I urge white people not to be frightened or challenged, but to encourage that because nobody else as a large group is doing it,' he said.

Jackson said it is important for all races and ethnic groups to work together for the good of the whole community.

"I believe in the politics of inclusion," Jackson said. "That is not trying to move anybody away from the table of decision making, but to put up the additional chairs in fairness ... to that table of decision making.

"I believe in its ultimate dimensions, this is a struggle not of white people against black people, or black people against white people," Jackson said. "But it is a struggle of good people against bad ideas. Poverty is a bad idea. Everybody must come together against that."

Cleveland Mayor Michael White said cities must offer fairness to their constituents and enfranchisement to the minority community.

"As long as this country commits $500 billion to bankrupt savget worse," White said. Former San Antonio Mayor Henry Cisneros, who moderated the panel that included seven mayors, city council members, county commissioners and borough presidents, said the coming decade would see more women and minorities elected to office.

'We're seeing a demographic wave that will transform entire regions," Cisneros said.

He said by the year 2,000, 92 percent of the people living in California - the most populous state - will be living in a city with a population that is at least 30 percent Asian, Hispanic or black.

Similarly, only 15 percent of those entering the job market in 2000 will be white males, while 85 percent will be women and minorities, Cisneros said.

"These figures present dramatic implications about what we do for the planning of the future cities," Cisneros said.

Houston Mayor Kathy Whitmire said cities increasingly will be asked to help with education issues, including getting the private sector involved in funding and providing programs and incentives to keep students in school.

"It's an important role for the mayor to bring new resources to the schools because it is related to the economic development of the community," Mrs. Whitmire said.

Manhattan Borough President Ruth Messinger of New York said bilingual instruction, to keep residents working and funding the city.

"The schools need to be the place where languages are taught not only for the kids, but for the families," Ms. Messinger said.

Kathleen Braaten, Richland County commissioner in North Dakota, said even small cities need to become involved in "strengthening the family unit" by providing support services.

She said she has been told by fire officials that the increased number of children at home alone has sparked a surge in fires.

Recycling popularity cutting profits

HOUSTON (AP) - The increased interest in recycling may Ferris Industries. be good for the planet, but it's taking its toll on salvage companies and groups trying to raise of recyclables, from plastic funds.

In the past two years, the price paid for aluminum cans, newspapers, glass bottles and plastic jugs has dropped considerably because salvage firms are unable to handle the increased volume, said Al Schwarz of cans and newspapers for recycl-Able Recovery

"The public is doing it for ecological reasons - save the Earth - but we have to be profitable to stay in business," said Schwarz.

Able is one of some 200 operators scattered throughout Houston that buy, sort and minimally process goods that can be recycled. In addition, the city of Houston has begun curbside collection in some areas, as have Fiesta Mart supermarket chain also is paying for a variety grocery bags to old car batteries. The supermarkets gather about 1.4 million pounds per month.

For people like Sonia Williams, a Parent Teacher Association volunteer for A.A. Milne Elementary School who hauls aluminum ing, the increased competition cent a pound during a single day only means a lower price for their fundraising commodities.

This week, the cans brought only 36 cents a pound, down from 41 cents in September at the recycling plant, while newspapers fet- general decline for three to four ched only a penny per 100 pounds months, said Schwarz. Able is at the city's collection center.
