The Medical Care Dollar

Last year we Americans spent $20.8 billion for medical care—6.4 per cent more than in 1960. But this figure needs a bit of interpretation if its significance is to be understood. The American Medical Association News provides it: "The cost of medical care, in relation to other consumer prices, went up less than 2 per cent in 1961, but spending for medical care went up 6.4 per cent. Obviously, there is a difference."

The difference lies in the fact that the public is demanding more medical services, and is willing to spend more to get them. "At the same time," says the News, "improved procedures and widening knowledge are giving the public more for its medical dollar than it ever got before."

A few more statistics are important here, in the light of the continuing controversy over the cost of medical care and, particularly, doctors' charges. The doctors' share of each medical care dollar has held steadily at 25 cents since 1955. In many prior years it was substantially more—28 cents in 1950, 30 cents in 1940, and about 33 cents in 1929. The hospitals' share of the medical care dollar has shown the biggest increase, and that is attributable to expanded services and soaring operating costs.

These are facts—and they are hardly of a sort that could cause a reasonable person to rise in anger. The medical care dollar, today, produces an ultimate in return.

Better Sense

"A farmer's best hope for good prices is to keep production in line with demand, not to retain high production and then attempt to plug up the outlet to market," says the Portland Oregonian. "In the long run, the law of supply and demand cannot be violated. The federal government's farm program has proved that."

This sound observation was inspired by the recent effort of a comparatively new farm organization to persuade producers to boycott the livestock markets. The organization's main purpose is to force packers to sign contracts guaranteeing high livestock prices, regardless of the state of the market. Additionally, the contracts would provide for a "check-off" system, whereby both producers and packers would be forced to pay what amounted to dues to the farm organization. The cost to the consumer would be staggering.

The packers, needless to say, have refused to sign, and there is small likelihood that they will change their minds. Such contracts would probably be illegal, and gravely so. Legalisms aside, the end result of this effort, if it proved successful with crop after crop, would be a monopoly of the nation's food supply. No nation can afford that.

Reports indicated that comparatively few farmers participated in the boycott. The typical American farmer, it is safe to say, has better sense.

Miss Angie Baker, who has been acting for some time as assistant post-master for her brother, Mr. John B. Baker, has resigned and will leave Monday for her home at Hamilton, when Miss Stella Nisbett who has been in the office for several weeks getting the run of the business, will take charge as assistant postmaster. Miss Nisbett has taken hold of the business with a ready grasp and seems to have mastered the intricacies of the registry and money order departments and other details of the business so that she already handles Uncle Sam's postal business with the facility and ease of an expert.

(A Clipping from the Haskell Free Press, 1903-04)

Friday morning Mr. H. Nisbett drove into town accompanied by his daughter, Miss Stella. His team took fright in front of Dr. Terrell's drug store and ran away, circling around back of McCollem and Mason's hardware store, thence back and striking the awning post in front of Terrell's, throwing Mr. Nisbett and daughter out, but fortunately not injuring either beyond some slight bruises. The team with the buggy ran on up the street to Wright & Williams blacksmith shop, where they were stopped. The buggy and harness suffered considerable damage. The friends of Mr. Nisbett and daughter, who is our accomplished assistant postmaster, have to congratulate them on so light an escape from so serious a situation.

By AL HINDS

A big silver dollar and a little brown cent, rolling along together they went; rolling along the smooth sidewalk, when the dollar remarked—for the dollar can talk:

"You poor little cent, you cheap little mite, I'm bigger, and more than twice as bright. I'm worth more than you a hundredfold, and written on me in letters bold is the motto drawn from the pious creed, 'In God We Trust,' which all can read.

"Yes, I know," said the cent. "I'm a cheap little mite, and I know I'm not big, nor good, nor bright; and yet," said the cent, with a meek little sigh. "You don't go to church as often as I."

I have discovered that family ties are stronger at Christmas-time—and louder, too.

There's a gadget that keeps the inside of your car quiet. It fits over her mouth.

Happy Thanksgiving!

Once again Thanksgiving has rolled around and despite the ups and downs, the sorrows and disappointments, the past year might have brought, we still have many, many things for which we should give thanks. I wonder how long it has been since many of us have taken the time to enumerate our blessings.

Remember the old familiar hymn: "Court Your Blessings, name them one by one, count your many blessings, see what God has done". Every day in the year should be a day of giving thanks, but since we have set aside a special day in the year in which we observe as Thanksgiving—let's not think altogether about the plum pudding, cranberry sauce, pumpkin pies, turkey, football games, etc., but let each of us offer a prayer of thanks this Thanksgiving Day.

Let us for a few seconds reflect back on that first Thanksgiving—when the Pilgrims had been in the New World for nearly a year. The springtime sowing had taken place, and all the summer the fields had been watched with great anxiety, for all knew their lives depended upon the coming harvest. The summer crops came to a richness of fruition beyond all expectation, and late one day in the fall Gov. Bradford sent four men into the forests to shoot wild birds. "We will hold a harvest feast of Thanksgiving," he said, and invited the Indians who had been friendly to the strangers to rejoice with the white men. The Indians came bearing gifts of venison and the harvest feast lasted three days. This was the first Thanksgiving Day celebrated in America, and little by little as new colonies settled the land, the custom of a yearly Thanksgiving spread throughout the country.

Isn't it funny a lot of business men will get up in the morning, refresh themselves with a dose of advertised fruit juice, clean their teeth with an advertised brush and advertised toothpaste, shave with an advertised razor, wash with advertised soaps, put on advertised underwear, advertised socks, shirts, pants and shoes. Seat themselves at the table and eat advertised breakfast food and bread, drink advertised tea, coffee, or cocoa, put on an advertised hat and gloves, light an advertised cigar or cigarette, with an advertised match, go to work in an advertised car, and then advertise on the ground that advertising doesn't pay.

It's the good old American way to blow-off steam at ball games, but sometimes I think perhaps the fans criticism of members of the team is unjustified. Let's remember those lads out there on the gridiron are just kids and like everyone else are going to make mistakes. Of course, it is only human that we want our team to win as many games as possible, but let's also remember it is not so much whether they win or lose, but how they play the game.

One of the factors of stability in our democracy is the freedom to "let off steam"—the opportunity each of us has to lessen the pressure of living in our individual fashions. Freedom to speak our minds is a basic element in this, but freedom to choose our avocations, as well as our vocations, is part of it. We Americans, through our initiative, industry and thrift, have steadily broadened our opportunities for play.

The average guy needs more beauty than brains because the average man can see better than he can think.

A Pastor's Study

By DOUGLAS B. FINCH, Pastor, First Presbyterian Church, Haskell, Texas

reason that Jesus worshipped is because He was made manifest in the First Commandment. The only thing that Jesus Christ differentiates from Amos, or Elijah, or Christ (which means the One God's manifesting Himself to mankind in an unway. This fact alone is inseparable bond that Christ taught us. Confucius' Golden Rule long ago. Much of what He from the Old Testament only new thing was said now, after much patience with chosen to speak to man. People who take part of Christ's Church... If we would hear the message of Christ's Church... Today, and at all times, the church is precisely the place on which false gods are established and worshipped. Oftentimes we worship Christ without realizing that we are worshipping the One True God through Him. Oftentimes we worship the Bible instead of the One God who is revealed thereby. We have succumbed to the temptation to believe in the goodness and power of the Church's own tradition, morality, and religious activity. Our worship is empty, more often than not... or merely emotional, and our allegiance is too often given to our own little tight-knit group, or denomination. We have claimed a God fabricated of our own means and suited to our own convenience... and often to our own narrowness. This God that we have devised for ourselves is selfishly preserved for ourselves and our little group, to the happy exclusion of all others who will not make the de-basing gesture of denouncing all others and coming in and joining us in our errors. If we claim to be Christ's Church, it is our high calling to demonstrate that we believe in the One True God who has in Jesus Christ redeemed man from all false gods. We worship Christ precisely because He proved to be the supreme manifestation of the God of Abraham, of Isaac and of Jacob. There is only one God... and Christ was His way of telling us. He chose to speak to us as man-to-man, knowing that this would be the only way we would really understand. But do we understand?

LETTERS... To The Editor

With the passing of Alonzo Pate goes one of the most valued citizens this area has ever known.

The human reaction, when we learn of the death of a very good friend is shocking and saddening, then there is the period of reminiscence of our associations. Those who knew Lon Pate treasure the relations with him, in business, or personal life.

In the controversial water issue that has been in Haskell the past few years, and sometimes in the face of bitter criticism, Lon has taken a broad outlook and a progressive attitude.

It was a God given privilege to have known Alonzo Pate. Very sincerely, L. B. Patterson

Harold Spain, Haskell Postmaster, was featured speaker here Monday night at the monthly meeting of the Brazos Valley Postal Employees Association.

Spain discussed the new postal rates to go into effect Jan. 7, 1963, and explained the "new look" in post offices which have been built in the near future.

M. E. Trice, Rule Postmaster, was host at the meeting, in which some 25 postal employees from Haskell, Knox, Jones, Stonewall and Throckmorton counties attended.
