Whether results of the election will have any legal bearing in the current controversy between the present City Ad-ministration and the North Central Texas Municipal Water Authority is questionable.

Ambiguity of the language in the election order raises a doubt as to whether any vote could apply to the NCTMWA since it is mentioned nowhere in the order.

Regardless of any legal status the special election might have, a favorable vote for the prop-osition would likely be inter-preted by the City Council as a "green light" to continue spending the tapayers money in litigation between the City of Haskell and North Central Texas Municipal Water Auth-

We need to hold our heads high as Americans, as we enter the greatest age of evolution and achievement mankind has ever known, Dr. James H. Jouncey, El Paso minister-scientist-engineer, told an audience of 325 persons at the annual Chamber of Commerce banquet Friday night.

Attendance at the affair included visitors from 14 neighboring towns, and filled the Elementary School auditorium

Elementary School auditorium to capacity.

Touching on the fantastic advances of the "space age" in science, electronics, medicines and surgery, the speaker wove a thread of deep spiritual and religious belief through his talk. "God deliberately made us free and subject to evil in order to bring out the best in order to bring out the best in man," he declared.

Of space and science, Dr. Jauncey spoke reassuringly of America's position. "There is nothing wrong with American science, we seek precision and perfection, while some other countries seek headlines," he said. "We are so far ahead of Russia there is no race at all. and because of this, nuclear war is far less likely than at any time in history," he re-assured his audience.

Still — "Censorship By Taxation"

For some years there has been much controversy over "censorship by taxation" ruling imposed by the Internal Revenue Service. It holds that a businessman, in making out his tax returns, cannot deduct as a business expense the money he spent trying to influence legislation. It was applied to many businesses—notably the investor-owned electric industry which, for obvious reasons, has extensively used advertising and other legiti-mate agencies of expression in presenting its side of the life-and-death public-vs.-private power issue. Now a House Committee has tentatively decided to take steps to guarantee the right to speak without incurring heavy tax enalties. And the danger is that people may come to believe that the Committee recommendations properly and adequately take care of this manifest injustice.

They do nothing of the kind. They go inly a part of the way—and a small part. Specifically, they would allow the deduction only of expenses incurred in connection with "legislative appearances"-that is, in giving formal testimony before legislative bodies. Such appearances, obviously, are a relatively minor means of reaching the public with one's views pro or con on legislation. Still non-deductible, for example, would be newspeper advertisements a businessman might take out to discuss pamphlets mailed to employes and stockholders about some issue with legislative overtones.

One bill-the Boggs Bill-would revoke the IRS ruling and really assure freedom of speech and petition. Until such a bill is passed, we will continue to have "censorship by taxation."

Don't Cultivate Weeds

"The story is told of the great Roman Emperor Hadrian finding an aged man planting olive trees, and since they grow so very slowly, saying to him: 'Old man, these trees will not bear fruit for many years. Do you expect to be alive to eat any fruit of your labor?

"The old man replied: 'If God wills, I shall eat-and if not, my son will eat. My father and his father before him planted trees that I might have fruit. It is my duty, then, to provide for those who shall come after me.'

"Here is illustrated a basic principle of human progress.
Our forefathers did not plant many olive trees, but they did better in planting ideas and cultivating knowledge, practicing thrift and industry, so that we have become a part of the most prosperous society the world has ever seen. We should know clearly were visitors Sunday in the home of his brother and fam-ily, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. King. perous society the world has ever seen. We should know clearly low this all came about, and realize that the old-fashioned virties have lost none of their validity and value."

Too many people in the United States are failing to cultitate the ideas planted by our forefathers, that give us freedom, individual opportunity and responsibilities.

If we don't start cultivating the olive trees of ideals we interited, we will find ourselves buried in a tangle of socialistic weeds, the seeds of which are now being planted.

A longtime resident of Haskell was heard to remark at the C. of C. banquet Friday night that what this country is more community needs gatherings - more fellowship and more discussions of community needs.

He went on to recall some of the lively goings-on at the WTCC conventions in the early 20's and similar gatherings People let their hair down and had a good time at those affairs. Sure, there may have been some who had hang-overs, but if you'll look back you'll notice that was the era of some mighty substantial progress in West Texas," he contended.

Many will remember those rip-roaring conventions, when every town and hamlet in West Texas had a "delegation" and a brass band in attendance to advertise the community.

In addition to civic delegations and bands, many of the larger cities selected attractive young ladies as "Princess" or Sponsor and they were special guests at numerous functions aranged during the convention.

As a result of its appearance at the annual WTCC conventions, the Brownwood, Texas, Municipal Band gained national fame as the "Old Gray Mare Band."

The spirited tune was the band's special number, and when the high-stepping band headed a parade and swung into "The Old Gray Mare" with trumpets and slide trombones blaring the melody, crowds would go wild in cheering. Because of the band's popularity, it was invited to special gatherings over the nation. This fame continued for several years during which time the Brownwood aggregation gained much publicity for its hometown as well as West Texas.

Another band group which gained wide publicity and filled many engagements over a wide area was the Stamford Firemen's Band, which later became the official band of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

The band, with its distinctive red shirts, made a colorful ap-pearance and was rated by many as the equal or peer of the Brownwood group. Compos-ed altogether of volunteer firemen, majority of the members were accomplished band musicians.

One of the band leaders was Dick Rowland, now Stamford's this city, now a retired WTU employe, played first trumpet in the band and was its secre-

ous requests for appearances at fairs and other gatherings. "We could have been booked solid for weeks at a time es-pecially during 'county fair' season in West Texas, but we simply couldn't spare the time from our jobs," he recalled. Naturally, their appearances were limited mostly to this immediate area. As a result of the band's popularity the treas-usry of the Stamford fire department was enriched considerably. Waggoner recalls that once, when the City of Stamford was buying a new fire truck, the volunteer fire department gave a check for $1,400 to help pay for the new equipment.

Haskell was not without its band in those days, and under the leadership of Director Joe Meacham the local Municipal Band rated among the outstanding small-town musical organizations in West Texas.

Many ex-band members recall some unforgettable experiences in connection with the band's journeys to conventions, picnics, old-timer barb-ecues and other fetes in neighboring towns.

Virtually all these celebrations were held in late spring and early summer, when wea-ther is in its most changeable seasons. When it is considered that there were no paved high-ways in this area in the early 20's, and that practically all travel was in open model auto-mobiles, it is not difficult to picture the discomfort of driving say, from Haskell to Chillicothe over dirt roads and giving a band concert.

In spring and early summer there was always the threat of spring thundershowers and hailstorms, or worse, a torna-

Although the Haskell Band was never caught in a tornado Vernon Lask can tell of several times band members were soaked to the skin after being hit by rainstorms either going or coming from an engage-ment in some neighboring town.

Around 1922 or 1923, Haskell was almost bursting at the seams with community pride and a desire to progress and expand immediately.

Although the town had, at various times, supported a Commercial Club, a Board of Trade, Chamber of Commerce, etc., there had been some pro-gress — but too slow. What was craved and needed now was action, fast and furious, something to get the community into high gear and moving down the road of progress.

A meeting was held in the Elks Club. Amid high enthusiasm a civic organization was formed with the high-sounding title of the Board of City Development.

Hired as manager was F. N Clifford, who h fire chief. J. M. Waggoner of experience in chamber of commerce work in South Texas. A good organizer, Clifford soon had the new BCD off the slogan of "Health, Happiness, and Wealth." The gummed stickers, about two inches in stickers, about two inches in diameter, were to be distributed to every Haskell citizen with the idea that if he visited neighboring towns the advertising sticker was to be placed where it could be seen easily, thereby advertising Haskell. "We'll have everybody talking about Haskell," the new BCD manager prophesied as he ordered 10,000 of the stickers.

Shortly after the stickers arrived, it was time for the WT-CC convention in Mineral Wells, with Haskell naturally sending its band and a large delegation for the two-days gath-

Every Haskellite carried a supply of the new advertising st.ckers with instructions to use them profusely.

They did. The places they found to attach the gummed stickers would have put Kilroy to shame if he had existed

Some of Haskell's more ardent boosters felt that a Has-kell sticker should be placed wherever a flat surface could be found. Show windows, car windshields, doors, walls, mir-rors—all were plastered. Next, the Haskell stickers showed up in the ballrooms where several dances were being held. Women with sleeve less gowns were special targets of the mis-guided town boosters eager to get a Haskell sticker where it would be

Friends Visit Date Anderson On Birthday

Sunday, March 4, a group of friends and relatives gathered in Abilene to help Date Anderson celebrate his 90th birthdays. "Uncle Date" as he is known by his friends, is in a rest home, 849 Hickory, in Abilene.

A lovely birthday dinner was served at the home of his daughter, Miss Marguerite Anderson, 809 E. N. 16th St., to all relatives, with a birthday cake with candles. A number of friends and relatives called during the afternoon with gifts and good wishes, and many telegrams and phone calls were received by Mr. Anderson from distant friends.

Present for the birth of the sent district tax rolls.

Present for the birthday din ner were, from Pampa, Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Gibson; from Lubbock, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Smith, and the two great-granddaughters, Kathy and Sa-leta; from Haskell, Mrs. H. S. ered by the school board for Gibson and Mrs. L. H. Gibson; from Seymour, Mr. and Mrs. Don Campbell and Ross; from Anson, Mrs. Florence Smith. During the day, a host of friends and relatives from surrounding towns called to wish "Uncle Date" many more happy birthdays.

The Board of Education of Carney High School at O'Brien, meeting last week, voted unanimously to hire Southwestern Appraisal Company of Stamford to re-value land and personal property for the school district tax rolls.

Work of reappraising prop-

Work of reappraising prop-erty is expected to be started around March 1, and should be completed in time for an early some time. Pressure was put at both the 1980 and 1961 board of equalization meetings by representatives of the oil interests for a revaluation of terests for a revaluation of land property. The representatives, speaking for the payers of 75 per cent of local taxes in the district, declared they are paying a much greater proportion than landowners.

The school board had hoped that the Haskell County Commissioners Court would take some action, but decided to make the move alone when it became evident that the present commissioners would not make the move, a spokesman for the school said.

An Important Message To All Taxpayers Interested In The Future Of Our Community

This message is prompted by the belief that every sensible person in Haskell deplores the state of affairs now existing in our community as a result of continued controversy.

Isn't it time for some clear - headed, sober thinking as to what we may be getting into? Isn't it time to put aside personalities and fancied grudges and base our thinking on facts and facts

Regardless of individual opinion as to the merits or demerits in the "water squabble," here are the cold, hard facts:

Both the City of Haskell and the North Central Texas Municipal Water Authority are governmental taxing agencies, distinct and apart from each other.

Here's what that means: Every propertyowner - we repeat, every property-owner - in the City of Haskell is a taxpayer in the NCTM Water Authority. All property taxed by the City of Haskell, whether it is the modest home of an eiderly couple, or corporate property of the telephone, gas or utility company, or the modern new bank building, if the property is taxed by the city it is also taxed by the Water Authority. That was made distinctly clear by Judge Ben Charlie Chapman in a recent court statement.

Now, consider this: When either of the above taxing agencies files a lawsuit against the other, the agency being sued must of necessity defend itself in court. Naturally, lawyer's fees and court costs are involved.

We now come to the important point: WHO PAYS THE BILL?

The answer is simple: To pay its lawyer, and any other legal costs involved, the City uses part of the money paid by the elderly homeowners, the bank, the telephone, gas, and utilities companies and other taxpayers. The Water Authority does likewise, with its lawyer getting as his pay part of the taxes paid on the modest home, the remainder out of taxes from the bank, utility corporations and other taxpayers.

Read the answer again. It sounds unbelievable at first, but if you will consider it carefully you will find that every word is true. Every taxpayer in Haskell-individual or corporate, from the smallest to the largest—pays the lawyer's cost and all other court fees on BOTH SIDES when the City of Haskell and NCTMWA start suing each other!

Furthermore, Haskell citizen-taxpayers entered into legal and binding obligations with our three neighboring towns of Rule, Munday and Goree in confirming and creating NCTMWA and in authorizing a $3,800,000 bond issue by the Authority. From the founding of the community more than 80 years ago until the present time. Haskell has never repudiated or failed to meet any obligation it has made.

Since the City of Haskell is the only town spending taxpayers' money for the avowed purpose of nullifying and repudiating the City's pledged obligations, this action is creating distrust and ill-will toward Haskell, not only in member towns of NCTMWA but other neighboring towns as well. These are the same communities upon whose friendship and patronage the future growth and progress of Haskell depends!

Surely there is a more sensible solution to the controversy than the needless expenditure of thousands of dollars of taxpayers money in long drawn-out litigation.

Without being arbitrary, we believe there are in Haskell enough sound-thinking, reasonable and civic-minded taxpayers, both men and women, whose opinion and influence can put a stop to this continued bickering and controversy with a solution that would be in the best interests of our community and its future.
