Gramm points to immigration laws in need of change

U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm said Tuesday that the best hope of the Pointeau family of Snyder to avoid being deported to France may be in a change in immigration law rather than a private bill to grant them citizenship.

Gramm, visiting Y-Z Industries, said that he is "trying everything I can do" to help the Pointeaus and that a change in the law is needed to give prospective new citizens like them the same opportunity as illegal aliens who have been granted amnesty.

But he said private legislation is problematical because "anybody can object to it," indicating that he might have difficulty getting such a bill approved.

Gramm asked about the status of the case and was told of the local effort to help the Pointeau family by raising money to finance a federal district court suit in Dallas, with San Antonio immigration attorney Nancy Shivers planning to file suit to obtain a suspension of deportation.

The senator said there is a widespread perception that immigration law should be changed to allow such visitors as the Pointeaus to stay, and he expressed confidence in the feasibility of getting such a change through Congress.

Today, April 26, is the date established by the Immigration and Naturalization Service for the Pointeau's departure, but any action toward leaving has been suspended in expectation of the federal suit being filed.

Ending a week-long tour of West Texas businesses and industries, U.S. Sen. Phil Gramm visited Y-Z Industries here Tuesday afternoon and said the new United States-Canada Fair Trade Agreement he sponsored will lead American businessmen to export their products to other nations as well.

The former Texas A&M University economics professor, who is expected to seek a second six-year term next year, said the removal of all trade barriers between the U.S. and Canada will cause more exports to Europe, the Middle East and Far East because Americans will gain confidence and experience from expanding into Canada.

"We are diversifying the economy of Texas, particularly in world markets," the Republican said. "We are creating jobs for people who live in Snyder."

Y-Z Industries president Paul Zeck had thanked Gramm for the Fair Trade Agreement because, he said, Canada has proved to be the best new market for his com-

Zany readhead, Lucille Ball, dies today

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lucille Ball, the zany, wide-mouthed redhead who reigned for more than 20 years as the queen of television comedy, died today, a week after undergoing emergency heart surgery. She was 77.

The excitable star of "I Love Lucy" and similar situation comedies that continue in syndication around the world died at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, where she underwent surgery to replace her aorta and aortic valve April 18. "The death occurred suddenly and without warning. She experienced a full cardiac arrest. Her response to surgery over a week ago was excellent and she had been improving constantly," said hospital spokesman Ronald Wise.

Miss Ball had been bothered by a variety of maladies over the last several years, including a heart attack and minor throat surgery in 1988. "Lucille Ball is the greatest woman clown in the world," fellow comedian Milton Berle once said. "In fact, she is one of the great clowns of all time, male or female."

Miss Ball's singularity as a comedian was matched by her talent as a show-business entrepreneur. She and her former husband, the late Desi Arnaz, established one of TV's first major independent studios.

Desilu, as their production company was called, made some of the top comedy shows of the 1950s and '60s, including "December Bride," "Our Miss Brooks" and "Make Room for Daddy."

As testament to their value as prime-time stars, Miss Ball and Arnaz signed an $8 million, no-cancellation, two-year contract with CBS in 1953 — the largest in television history at the time and a figure scarcely any TV star can touch 36 years later.

The actress was last seen introducing the "Young Hollywood" production number with Bob Hope at the 61st Academy Awards ceremony March 29, receiving a standing ovation. Looking svelte for her years in a fashionable slit skirt, she seemed to be in good health and laughed freely throughout a brief routine with Hope.

Her last series — "Life with Lucy," co-starring frequent sidekick Gale Gordon — was carried by ABC at the start of the 1986 season. But the show, Miss Ball's first series in 12 years, was canceled after less than two months when it drew spectacularly low ratings. The actress "felt terrible.... It really devastated her," daughter Lucie Arnaz said at the time.

Miss Ball's real, onscreen pregnancy marked a milestone in television, and an estimated 44 million viewers — more than watched the inauguration of President Eisenhower — tuned in on Jan. 19, 1953, the night Lucy Ricardo delivered Little Ricky. Her real son was born just four hours before the previously filmed show was broadcast.

Robbery-stabbing trial ends locally with life sentence

The stabbing and robbery of a Snyder convenience store clerk last Jan. 20 prompted a life sentence for the confessed assailant Tuesday in 132nd District Court.

The maximum sentence was handed down for Jorge Solis Serrato, 25, a citizen of Mexico who was in this country as an illegal alien.

He was under indictment here for attempted capital murder and aggravated robbery and was found guilty Tuesday of the lesser charge.

Since the robbery charge was "aggravated," indicating the use of a deadly weapon, the punishment range for both counts was the same.

District Judge Gene Dulaney determined both Serrato's guilt and his punishment after a jury trial had been waived by defense counsel Javier Alvarez of Lubbock. Prosecuting for the state was District Attorney Ernie Armstrong.

Two days of testimony in the case ended shortly after 3 p.m. Tuesday and Dulaney made his judgement known immediately after the close of arguments from both attorneys.

Alvarez had asked for a sentence of 25 years for his client, citing a wife and four infant children in Mexico who are dependent on the defendant for support.

It was noted also that the store robbery was a first-time offense by Serrato.

Armstrong argued that a stiffer sentence would "send a message that the rights of citizens of this community will be protected by the local courts. That people can go to work with a

Board authorizes doctor incentives

Incentive offers were finalized Tuesday to attract a new family practitioner to the Cogdell Memorial Hospital medical staff.

The action came during the regular April meeting of the board.

Administrator Tom Hochwalt was authorized to offer an income guarantee of from $65,000 to $80,000 for the first 12-months, a promise the hospital will have to honor only if the doctor's actual income from his practice falls below this amount on any given month.

Hochwalt said Wednesday morning that the actual incentives offered will depend on the qualifications of the individual practitioner.

In addition, Hochwalt was authorized to offer free office space for a period of 12 months, moving expenses and the services of one office assistant, if needed, for six months to a year.

The incentives were unanimously approved by the board.

Cogdell managers heard also a report from Wilma Dillard, who is completing her first year as the hospital's patient relations coordinator.

In his introduction, Hochwalt described the addition of Dillard

The public schools in Snyder are putting increased emphasis on writing this year. The administration is asking that at least half of the six-weeks test be in essay form.

We're glad to see the renewed awareness of the need for people to be able to communicate on paper. There have always been groups which have deplored the decline in the proper use of the English language.

One such organization is the Unicorn Hunters of Lake Superior State University. Each year they come up with a list of words and phrases like "you know" which they claim should be banished from the Queen's English.

According to an AP report, people who think they're on the "cutting edge" of society by practicing "safe sex" in "alternative lifestyles" should relearn the English language. These were on the 1988 no-no list.

Also on this year's list were redundancies—including "secluded privacy" and "free gift." Also listed was government lingo like "trickle-down effect" and using "task" as a verb. The group also tagged "state-of-the-art" and added that the "oxymoron" of the 1988 campaign year is "political science." They also wondered aloud what kind of car there is other than a "road car."

A couple from Montreal nominated "safe sex" and suggested that the phrase be sentenced to life in prison with Dr. Ruth, the syndicated advisor.

Unicorn Hunters also banished "womanizer," asking if anyone could be a "manizer." They also didn't like "living in poverty," but who does?

The group also singled out the use of "irregardless" for regardless, calling the use of irregardless "an irritating irregularity."

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas (AP) — Teachers' groups unsuccessfully fought to stop a tough new no-smoking rule to take effect in the Corpus Christi Independent School District next fall.

Members of the Corpus Christi American Federation of Teachers and the Corpus Christi Classroom Teachers Association, as well as several teachers, spoke at Monday night's meeting in an unsuccessful effort to continue the current policy allowing teachers to smoke in designated areas.

Former teacher indicted

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A former high school English teacher has been indicted on sexual assault charges after allegedly having sex with a student who later committed suicide.

Lou Ann Hogan, 25, a former Clark High School teacher who now lives in Schenectady, N.Y., with her husband, Mike, is expected to surrender this week to Bexar County officials to answer the charges.

A grand jury on Tuesday returned two sexual assault charges involving Chad Cadenhead, who committed suicide on Jan. 28, 1988.

The indictment charges that Mrs. Hogan had sex with Cadenhead on Dec. 5 and Dec. 11, 1987. Cadenhead was 16 at the time of the alleged sexual relationship.

"He was very close to his 17th birthday, but the state law mandates that before 17 you have no legal right to consent, so if an adult has sexual relations with you, it's a crime," said Assistant District Attorney Nelson "Skip" Atwell.

Four friends of the teen-ager have said they witnessed the sexual acts after Cadenhead bragged about his relationship with the teacher and dared them to go to his house to witness the acts.

If convicted, Mrs. Hogan faces two to 20 years in prison and up to $10,000 on each charge.

"I assume it will cause prosecution problems since the jury won't be able to hear from the victim," Atwell said.

"So, the jury will have to rely upon the eye witnesses," he said.

Clark students Jeff Beckel, Taylor Sommer and Scott Autry and former Clark student Hector Torres have given written statements talking about what they saw.

"We looked through the window and saw Chad Cadenhead and Mrs. Hogan naked on the bed having sexual intercourse," Sommers wrote in his statement.

After Cadenhead's death, his family went to the district attorney's office and asked for an investigation, Atwell said.

Lone Star Cafe iguana brings $17,500 at New York auction

NEW YORK (AP) — Fans of the Lone Star Cafe, many lugging beer cans and bottles, convened at the Texan eatery one last time for an auction where everything went, from the famous rooftop iguana to the cafe's kitchen sink.

The highlight of the Tuesday sale also brought its highest price — $17,500 was paid for the 41-foot, 3,000-pound iguana.

But the giant lizard was the exception rather than the rule when it came to price. A few dollars could buy a nice table, window or kitchen utensil.

Stewart and Lynne Anne Fisher, of Glen Cove, Long Island, placed the winning bid on the iguana, generating much applause and cheers.

But generally it was a sullen occasion for some 200 former patrons, who watched kitchen and dining supplies depart from the cafe which for 12 years had billed itself as the best honky-tonk north of Abilene.

It was strictly a BYOB — Bring Your Own Beer — affair for the hard-core fans, who left the auction periodically only to return from the local deli to have yet one more last beer at their favorite watering hole.

Many at the auction wanted to know what the Fishers planned to do with the polyurethane lizard.

"I bought it for my wife. It's one of a kind. It's a piece of New York history and I'm a little crazy," explained an elated Fisher as he dashed off to a waiting limousine to tell his wife that the iguana was theirs.

Minutes later, Mrs. Fisher was up on the roof, which she reached via an inside staircase, hugging the iguana. She, however, insisted she had bought the lizard for her husband, a real-estate developer.

"He's the biggest child I know," she said. But both agreed that it would adorn their horse farm near Charlottesville, Va.

The iguana's sculptor, Bob Wade of Dallas and Santa Fe, had hoped his friends would bid on it. But they had stepped outside to get some beer and when they returned the iguana had already been sold.

"I thought it was worth more but I would have been disappointed if it sold for a lot less," said Wade, who attended the auction.

The Greenwich Village cafe opened in 1977 and soon became a mecca for expatriated Texans and aficionados of country and blues music. Texas lawmakers loved the place so much they declared it sovereign Texan territory and encouraged the club to secede from New York City.

After the building's owner tripled the club's rent last year, co-owners Mort Cooperman and Bill Dick decided to close it and concentrate on their newer Lone Star Roadhouse in midtown Manhattan.

The cafe's entire contents were sold. Among the very affordable items on offer were beer signs, menus, posters, giant cooking pots, amplifiers, speakers, four big cans of nacho cheese sauce and two large cans of tomato puree.

Man's Rough Kind of Love Has Wife Begging for Less

By Abigail Van Buren
Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: You say a wife should never stand for being slapped around, pushed, pinched or hit. My husband is good to me. He doesn't drink or run around. I have a fur coat and nice jewelry. He doesn't deny me anything, but he does manhandle me. I've asked him not to, but he won't listen. He says it's because he loves me so much.

For example, he will jerk my arm when I pass him and pull me off my feet so he can kiss me. Or he will grab the front of my shirt and pull me to him and kiss me so hard my lips hurt. He will kick me when I'm bending over, or slap me on the behind really hard, calling it a "love slap." He has tickled me until I can't breathe and scream for mercy. When I get angry and complain, he says he can't help it — he loves me. I've told him that kind of treatment turns me off. He says he will try to remember, but the next day it's the same thing all over again.

Abby, I am not a cold woman. I give him plenty of love and attention, and I tell him I love him every time he calls me from work, which is about five times a day. He's really not a bad guy, and he's good to my mother, but I wish I could stop him from being so physically rough with me. But how?
BLACK AND BLUE
IN LOUISIANA

DEAR BLACK AND BLUE: I do not doubt that your husband "loves" you, but when he kicks, slaps, jerks and kisses you so hard it hurts, that's abuse.

He may tell you that he is expressing his "love," but the kind of treatment you describe — "manhandling" you while your protests are ignored — is veiled hostility.

If he really loves you, he will go to family counseling with you and learn how to express his love without physically abusing you.

DEAR ABBY: Thank you, thank you for publishing the letter from "No Name," the battered husband. While I do not deny or condone the reality of abused women, it's high time we start referring to "spouse abuse," b) recognize that "spouse" can and does include the husband, and c) recognize that abuse can be verbal and emotional as well as physical — regardless of the abuser's gender.

In my own case, after tolerating years of physical and emotional abuse in the futile hope that my ex-wife would change, two things woke me up. The first was the realization that I was nearing the point of physical retaliation. The second was when her assaults began to turn against our 1-year-old son. The day she began throwing things at him and screaming that she hated him. I took the boy and what personal possessions I could carry, and walked out. I may have allowed her to manipulate me and abuse me, but she was not going to do it to him.

By then I was emotionally drained and close to a breakdown. However, through treatment and counseling for depression, and with the support of family and friends (who had seen it coming long before I did), I regained my self-esteem and will sufficiently to fight and win the ensuing custody battle. It was an uphill fight, and the legal expenses very nearly finished me. Two years later, I'm just getting my head above water financially. But I have my son, my self-respect and a good beginning toward a new life.

I am not suggesting that my experience mitigates — let alone excuses — the very real violence that many women endure. My heart goes out to them in their efforts to escape and rebuild their lives. However, abused husbands exist as well. Their story deserves to be told, and I thank you for doing so.

DR. GOTT

PETER GOTT, M.D.

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Could you please explain the procedure of marsupialization of a Bartholin gland cyst? I was diagnosed four years ago and the cyst has increased in size to that of a quarter. For the most part, I am asymptomatic, yet my doctor is recommending surgery because of its size and complications that could arise if it becomes abscessed. I understand the procedure of making a pouch-like opening, but all I can picture is a gaping hole that will never close or heal. What can you tell me that will ease my mind?

DEAR READER: Cysts often enlarge beneath the skin, leaving only a small opening. They become gobelet-shaped and do not drain readily. In such cases, surgery may be necessary to remove material from the cyst (before it becomes infected) to prevent recurrence.

Some surgeons choose to excise (remove) the cyst in its entirety. A simpler procedure, called marsupialization, is named after marsupials (such as kangaroos) who carry their young in a pouch. The skin over the top of the cyst is lanced and the cyst's material is removed. Then, rather than being closed with sutures, the wound is left open to heal naturally. This prevents re-accumulation of the cyst's contents. With time, the exposed "hole" heals in and shrinks, leaving no more than a large dimple, in most cases.

If your Bartholin gland cyst — a growth at the opening of your vagina — is increasing in size, now may be the time to attend to it. As it grows larger, it can become infected or so large that marsupialization is impractical. Thus, by taking care of it now, your doctor is quite properly trying to save you a more extensive operation.

For more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Vaginal Infections and Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Twice each year

I get a small grey pimple on my groin or elbow that enlarges to a six-inch hot, itchy rash. Two years ago I had a similar area on my leg that came from a wood tick. Six doctors have been unable to help me, yet a recent TV article showed the identical rash and described my exact symptoms. The show was on Lyme disease. Is this what I have?

DEAR READER: Perhaps. However, Lyme disease (a tick-borne infection) is usually not recurrent and is almost always associated with fatigue, chills, fever, swollen lymph glands and arthritis. About 10 percent of patients develop nerve disorders and heart inflammation. The infection is curable with antibiotic treatment.

I suggest you see a dermatologist when the skin lesions appear. In this way, the specialist should be able to diagnose your condition and obtain a blood test for Lyme disease, if appropriate.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I recently had a bad case of nasal congestion. It left me with no sense of taste or smell. An ENT man diagnosed this as a viral infection. How long will it take before I can expect these senses to return?

DEAR READER: After an upper respiratory infection, the sense of smell should return within a few weeks. During the time you are congested, food may taste flat because much of what we ordinarily consider to be "taste" is actually smell. If your taste/smell-loss lasts more than a month, you should return to the ear-nose-and-throat specialist to make sure something else, such as continuing infection or allergic congestion, is not the cause of your symptoms.

Liza Minnelli pays fine for bringing dog into Sweden

PARIS (AP) — Singer Liza Minnelli is doggedly denying reports that she had attempted to smuggle Lilly, her beloved Cairn terrier, into Sweden.

"We were given the wrong information, weren't we Lilly?" said Ms. Minnelli during an interview in her dressing room at the Paris Opera where she performed a benefit concert Tuesday night with Frank Sinatra and Sammy Davis Jr.

At the time of the incident April 9, Swedish authorities said they suspected the American singing star had attempted to slip the dog into the rabies-free country to circumvent a law requiring a four-month quarantine. But Ms. Minnelli said they were barking up the wrong tree.

She said she traveled by private bus to Sweden because of an ear infection, and when they got to the border they were waved through.

The next thing Ms. Minnelli knew, two Swedish customs officials were knocking at the hotel door, demanding that Lilly be quarantined or face deportation.

Listeners support antennas

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The City Council killed a Christian radio station's zoning application to erect three 124-foot antennas in a residential area, but listeners have persuaded Council members to resurrect the petition.

The 300 or so supporters of KELP-AM packed Council chambers Tuesday to pressure the politicians into reversing last week's zoning decision, and they got what they wanted — Council's promise to reconsider the issue as soon as it can, May 9.

The radio station had been whipping up interest in the issue since last week by broadcasting a series of editorials reminding listeners of a May 6 election and urging them to call Council members and protest the zoning permit denial.

About 300 KELP listeners attended Tuesday's Council meeting, and another 100 stood outside the packed chambers. None were allowed to speak because the antenna issue was not on this week's agenda.

"It was still a victory for us, because last week they said we couldn't come back (for reconsideration) for another year," KELP owner Arnie McClatchie said Tuesday afternoon.

Kentucky's legislature has passed a bill upgrading desecration of a burial site from a misdemeanor to a felony.

Guess Who's 40 Today? Give Up? B.J.C.

By James Jacoby

Wife didn't want to leave

NEW YORK (AP) — The wife of the late Shah of Iran says she was reluctant to leave her homeland when her husband was deposed in 1979, and offered to stay behind as a symbol of hope for his supporters.

"I said to my husband, 'If you think you should go because it would calm things, then let me stay.' Not that I would have interfered politically, but if I had stayed, people would have seen his representative, and it might have given hope to our supporters," said deposed Empress Farah Diba in an interview in the June-July issue of Memories magazine.

Farah said she's not sure the Islamic revolution that forced her husband from his Peacock Throne could have been avoided.

"Progress caused so many changes and brought with it so many problems," she said. "We were trying, in one generation, to jump from feudal and semi-feudal conditions to the 20th century and beyond."

Farah has homes in the United States and France.

During novelist and Nobel laureate William Faulkner's brief enrollment at the University of Mississippi, he made a D in English, and one of the school's literary societies refused him membership, says National Geographic.

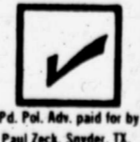

Despite his worthless doubleton in spades, South rebid one no-trump to show his minimum hand. It would have been better to raise hearts immediately than to bid no-trump without the shadow of a spade stopper. As for North's quantitative raise to four no-trump, inviting slam, that was wishful and foolish thinking. Since South would have opened one no-trump with 15-17 points, the partnership could not have enough high cards to provide a sound play for 12 tricks. Furthermore, South might have trouble making even 10 tricks in four-no-trump. That was the case today, but declarer did manage to eke out his contract.

South won the spade lead in dummy, came to his hand with the ace of clubs and ran the jack of hearts. East won the queen of hearts and returned the jack of spades (just in case declarer had started with 10-x of spades). South then cashed dummy's queen of clubs and led a club back to his king, leaving West with the good jack of clubs. Now South played the 10 of hearts, hoping that the heart honors were split, but East won the king of hearts and played a heart back to dummy. That left declarer with only nine tricks, with a chance that the end position would create the 10th trick. Sure enough, South had no choice but to cash the remaining hearts and high spade, and play the losing spade from dummy. East won that trick and had to lead away from the king of diamonds, allowing declarer to make a trick with the queen in dummy.

James Jacoby's books "Jacoby on Bridge" and "Jacoby on Card Games" (written with his father, the late Oswald Jacoby) are now available at bookstores. Both are published by Pharos Books.

Death penalty for child slayers ok'd

AUSTIN (AP) — After members denounce cases of child abuse and the slaying of children, the Senate approved a bill that would make murder of a child 14 or younger a death penalty offense.

"I think the pulse of the Senate is getting to be rather intolerant about these very terrible crimes," said Sen. John Montford, a former prosecutor. The original bill by Sen. J.E. "Buster" Brown would have extended Texas' capital punishment law to those who murder a child under the age of 6.

"The question has been asked, 'Why the age of 6 versus 7, or 8, or another age?' There is no magic to that number except that is the age at which young children at least leave the home and are exposed to other adults" besides their guardians or parents, said Brown, R-Lake Jackson.

"They do have the protection of the school personnel, the bus driver, the other people they come in contact with. But that child under the age of 6 is totally dependent on someone for their life," he said.

Montford, D-Lubbock, won approval Tuesday of an amendment to raise the age to 14 in keeping with other provisions of the Penal Code regarding children.

Sen. Bob Glasgow, D-Stephenville, said he thought Brown's bill was more important than the law providing capital punishment for the murder of a police officer. "Those police officers are big and they can defend themselves, and they have bulletproof vests, and they got big of guns. But these little kids are totally defenseless," he said.

"I have no sympathy for someone who kills kids," said Glasgow, also a former prosecutor.

Sen. Ted Lyon, D-Rockwall, had offered an amendment to raise the age in the bill from 6 to 10. The former police officer said he had witnessed scenes that "just make you sick."

more protected in our society than a young child," Lyon said.

The Senate, however, adopted Montford's substitute amendment, and sent the bill to the House on voice vote.

Senators refused to debate a proposal that would require school boards or trustees to consult with teachers in developing educational policies and programs, when requested by a majority of teachers in the district or a representative of an organization representing a majority of teachers in the district.

The vote was 18-11. Two senators would have had to switch their votes to suspend Senate rules for debate.

Senators also refused to consider a measure that would extend the life of the Texas Animal Health Commission. The vote was 19-11, with two-thirds required.

In other action Tuesday, senators approved and sent to the House bills that would:

— Impose fees of $500 to $1,000 against sex offenders, with the money going for school-based counseling programs for abused children in at least 16 rural and urban school districts.

— Make it a criminal offense to charge more than normally would be charged for a good or service that a person knows will be reimbursed by insurance proceeds.

— Establish a state center for collecting and analyzing educational and employment trends for health professions in Texas.

— Permit a mentally ill defendant to be committed to any facility designated by the Texas Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation.

— Require state agencies to maintain comprehensive files on all of their licensees, with the files tailored for easier public access.

— Regulate the installation of underground storage tanks.

Deaf, nearly blind girl reunited with parents recently

HOUSTON (AP) — Thao Phan pressed against the plate glass window as the navy blue jet pulled to the airport gate.

Clutching a bouquet of red roses and a red, white and blue Texas flag, the 16-year-old girl wiped away tears that welled up in her eyes.

The last time she saw her parents was when her father, in the middle of the night, lowered her into the false bottom of a boat, hoping it would take her to Thailand and then the United States.

That was nine years ago. On Tuesday, she got to hug them again, fulfilling a dream that she could see them at least once more before an incurable ailment that already had left her deaf would soon take her sight.

After seven years in America, she now speaks English by sign language. Her parents and three brothers and sisters who also arrived from Vietnam speak only Vietnamese.

Their embraces and tears at Houston Intercontinental Airport did not require language. "I have never been so tired," said Geri Konigsberg, the Houston woman who first met Thao two years ago when she was asked to find someone to donate clothes for the girl.

"I asked her what else she wanted. And she said she wanted her mother," said Ms. Konigsberg, who has been trying to accomplish that since then.

Thao had spent two years in a refugee camp in Thailand before coming to America to live with one of two brothers who emigrated earlier to Houston. She suffers from Usher's Syndrome, a congenital nerve disease that took away her hearing and soon will leave her blind. She now has a sight range of only 15 inches and has no peripheral vision.

Ms. Konigsberg said Thao's father took the extreme measure with his daughter because handicapped people in Vietnam are considered worthless. "He did it out of love," she said, saying he hoped American doctors could help.

Thao should lead a healthy life, although she is deaf and her loss of sight will eventually be complete, Ms. Konigsberg said.

Her father, Lac Van Phan, 58, and mother, Mo Thi Nguyen, 55; a sister, Hong, 17, and two brothers, Sohn, 10 and Ngoc, 7, lived in Vung Tau, a fishing and farming village about 60 miles from Ho Chi Minh City.

She said the Phan family was terrified at Heathrow Airport in London when they boarded an elevator for the first time ever, but loved the inflight movie — "Who Framed Roger Rabbit" — which played during their 24 hours in the air.

Ms. Konigsberg, a public relations spokeswoman for Houston Lighting & Power Co., tried persistently but unsuccessfully to expedite the release of the Phan family from Vietnam.

"Dealing with the American government is unbelievable," she said. "Dealing with the Vietnamese government is unbelievable. There's a man in the U.S. State Department who is going to say, 'Thank God she's not going to call me any more.'"

Finally, she leaned on U.S. Rep. Mickey Leland, D-Texas. She hoped the Houston Congressman could trim the red tape that usually stymies for years the issuing of exit visas that allow Vietnamese to come to the United States, which has no diplomatic relations with Vietnam.

Leland, who visited Hanoi last fall, told the Vietnamese foreign minister about the Phan family. He mentioned the family again to the diplomat during a visit to New York later in the year.

In November, Leland's office was notified the Phan family would be allowed to leave. British Airways agreed to cover the cost of bringing the family to Houston.

On Tuesday, U.S. Customs officers made special arrangements to clear the family's entry into the country while they were still aboard the plane.

The family, who appeared somewhat overwhelmed at the presence of cameras and reporters, has legal resident status.

"It's the start of a new life for them," Ms. Konigsberg said.

NOTICE OF SETTLEMENT MODIFICATION

In November of 1986, two classes, the first defined as all Mexican-Americans eligible to presently or in the future vote in elections for trustees to the Snyder Independent School District, and the second defined as all blacks eligible to presently or in the future vote in the elections for trustees to the Snyder Independent School District, were certified by the court in Malone, et al v. Snyder Independent School District, et al, Civil Action No. Ca-5-85-259, pending in the United States District Court for the Northern District of Texas, Lubbock Division. After lengthy negotiation, the parties to the above referenced lawsuit reached a settlement which was approved by the Court on October 15, 1987.

Under the agreement, a new method of electing trustees to the Snyder Independent School District was adopted. Four of the seven trustees were to be elected from single-member districts and the remaining three were to be elected at-large. Subsequently, and in accordance with the terms of the settlement agreement, a fifth single-member district was created to replace one of the at-large spots. By doing this, the trustee, Mr. Ygnacio Benitez, Jr., who was originally elected to single-member district one was placed in single-member district four. At his request, and believing that he should be allowed to represent those who elected him, the school board for the Snyder Independent School District voted to change the boundaries of the new single-member district one to include this trustee's residence as well as other surrounding property. No other changes were made.

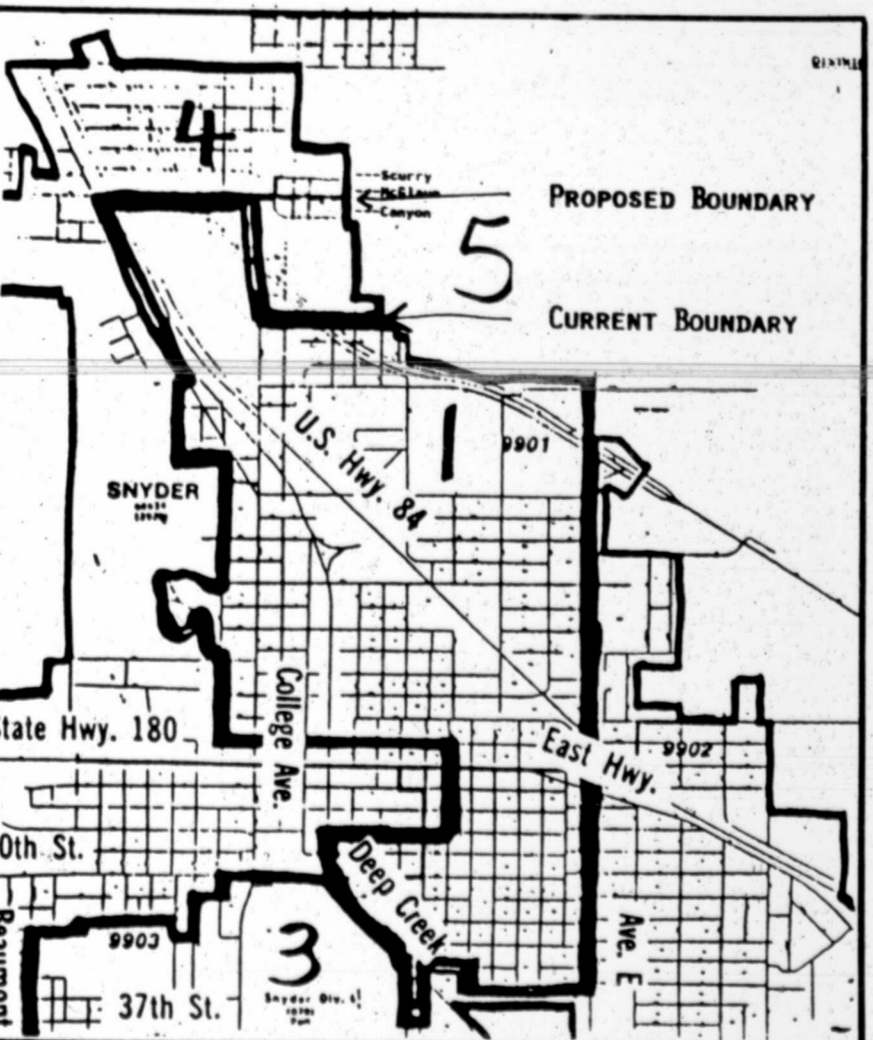

Because the court was required to approve the original settlement agreement, it must also review proposed amendments to that agreement. A hearing will be held on the 24th day of May, 1989, in the United States District Courtroom for the Northern District of Texas, Lubbock Division, at 1:30 o'clock p.m. at which time the court will consider the amendment. Members of the above definied classes will be given opportunity to object to the change. Their objections must be written and filed with the Honorable Halbert O. Woodward, Judge, United States District Court, Room C-210, Federal Building, 1205 Texas Avenue, Lubbock, Texas 79401, Mr. Rolando L. Rios, Attorney for the Classes, 201 N. St. Mary's Street, Suite 521, San Antonio, Texas 78205, and Mr. Brian P. Quinn, Attorney for the Snyder Independent School District, 1722 Broadway, Lubbock, Texas 79401. All objections must be received by the court, Mr. Rios, and Mr. Quinn no later than the 17th day of May, 1989.

Since the court may wish to hold a hearing on any objection, anyone filing one must appear at the Federal Courthouse in Lubbock on May 24, 1989, at 1:30 p.m. and be prepared to present his contentions in open court. If he does not, the objection will be waived.

Despite objections, Reynolds will probably be approved

AUSTIN (AP) — Despite objections from the Texas Lesbian-Gay Lobby, State Board of Insurance appointee Richard F. Reynolds will probably be confirmed, according to the chairman of the Senate Nominations Committee.

In testimony Tuesday before the Nominations panel, a former employee said Reynolds fired him after discovering the employee had tested positive for the AIDS virus.

Reynolds, 61, a former state legislator from Flower Mound who was appointed to the Insurance Board by Gov. Bill Clements, denied the charge.

The former employee, Leonard Ingram, 36, of Dallas, has filed a lawsuit against Reynolds that is pending in district court.

Sen. Chet Edwards, chairman of the Nominations panel, said the charges by Ingram must be settled in court before the Senate can consider them.

"I don't know what the outcome of this court case will be, but I don't think the Senate can judge him on allegations," Edwards, D-Duncanville, said.

In addition, lawmakers are anxious to fill the vacancies on the three-member Insurance Board because of the controversy swirling around the panel, Edwards said.

"The (board) has had so many problems, it's time to move forward," he said.

Edwards said he expects the committee to vote for Reynolds next week. Reynolds' confirmation will then be placed before the full Senate.

"I think if the vote were held today, he would be confirmed," Edwards said.

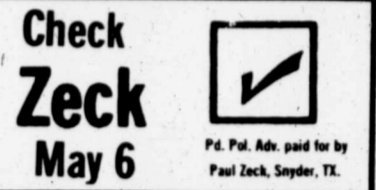

Ingram said he worked for Ben Griffin Tractor Co. for seven years. Reynolds fired him in 1988 after Ingram confided with him that he tested positive for AIDS, Ingram said. After his dismissal, Ingram also lost his health insurance benefits when the company switched insurers, he said.

Glen Maxey, of the Texas Lesbian-Gay Lobby, said the Insurance Board has been insensitive to the plight of persons with AIDS who have had their insurance canceled.

But Reynolds told reporters his dismissal of Ingram as vice president of his Dallas tractor dealership was part of an overall staff reduction.

"The facts are he was employed about nine months after I found out he had AIDS. If I wanted to terminate an individual because he had the AIDS virus, I would've done it at the time I found out," Reynolds said.

Homicide ruling said 'doubtful'

BASTROP, Texas (AP) — A ruling of homicide has been made in the death of rare-book dealer John Jenkins, but Bastrop County Sheriff Con Keirse says he is convinced that Jenkins waded into the Colorado River and shot himself in the back of the head.

Bastrop County Justice of the Peace Bill Henderson ruled Tuesday that Jenkins' death was a homicide. He said he based his ruling on his analysis of the path of the bullet that killed Jenkins and the fact that authorities have not found the weapon.

Jenkins, 49, was found floating in the river west of Bastrop on April 16. His Rolex watch, hundreds of dollars in cash and his credit cards were missing, and his gold Mercedes Benz had been abandoned near the water's edge.

Law enforcement officers, including Keirse, still stand by the suicide theory, saying Jenkins had discussed several possible scenarios in which a person could kill himself and make it appear like murder.

They also reiterated that Jenkins had numerous debts and faced additional questioning about a 1987 arson that destroyed his book warehouse.

"I am not convinced that the path of the bullet could have been done by the man (Jenkins)," Henderson said.

"I wanted to conduct a very thorough investigation before I ruled anything, and I did," Henderson said. "I wanted to check out all the angles. I believe we are looking for a killer, and I am very comfortable in that ruling."

But Keirse said Tuesday night he still has no doubt that Jenkins took his own life. He said Jenkins died of a gunshot that was fired into the right side of his head and exited through the left side. He said the gun was placed against Jenkins' head before the trigger was pulled.

"I don't think he (Henderson) studied the facts," Keirse said. "The angle of the bullet is completely compatible with suicide. We know the trajectory of the bullet. It's measurable. It's physics."

Randy Travis wins award

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Randy Travis, voted favorite entertainer at the Viewers' Choice Awards by The Nashville Network cable channel, says he hasn't tired of winning awards during his short four-year professional career.

"You can always find room for another one," said Travis, who has dominated country music awards for the past three years.

Travis also won Best Album for "Old 8 X 10" at the second annual Viewers' Choice Awards presented Tuesday at the Grand Ole Opry House.

Ricky Van Shelton won favorite male vocalist, No. 1 video and favorite song, both for "I'll Leave This World Loving You," in voting by country music fans. Reba McEntire beat out rising star K.T. Oslin for favorite female vocalist.
