

SNOOTER NOSE

LITTLE ABOUT EVERYTHING AND NOT MUCH ABOUT ANYTHING

THERE will be no food famine in West Texas this year. We may all go with patches on the caboose of our breeches, (we men folks), we mean, but as long as tow-sacks hold out we will have pants to wear and material to patch our trousers, but so far as having something to eat in sight, West Texas citizens have eedles of it.

From conversing with the farmers and hearing them discuss the matter this scribe was well aware that Martin county farmers had their larders filled with plenty of food to eat, and from information gained by reading the newspapers coming to this office from many other sections of West Texas, those communities, too, had provided themselves with their winter's supply of food through filling their cellars and the pantry shelves with canned food and canned meats grown in their own back yards.

The trip made by this writer last week, up through Northwest Texas and across the Texas line some 40 miles distant into Southwest Oklahoma, it was revealed to him from first hand information, that the entire section over which we traveled had barricaded itself against any possibility of a scarcity of table food for the family and feed for the livestock.

At every county seat from Abilene north to Quanah, we stopped and consulted the best barometers for giving out reliable information—editors of the newspapers. Not only did we want to get some idea of the conditions that prevailed in their counties, but to get acquainted with those valuable members of the Fourth Estate.

At Anson, the next largest city to Stamford, the county seat, of Jones county, Editor L. P. Hensley was out of his office, we suppose recuperating from a feast of Thanksgiving turkey and all the delicacies that go with it, but we met a very intelligent young man connected with the Enterprise, who stated a brisk trade was being enjoyed by the local merchants due to the harvesting of the crop. The price was low, but the farmers were paying with at the time. The merchants provided plenty to eat Foard county people will go through the winter in ship he had some business. Some prominent and substantial merchants have located in Haskell this Fall, taking the places of some good ones that had been unable to weather the depression. Fortunately for Roberts, the new merchants were firm believers in the liberal use of printer's ink, and assisted by some of the old merchants who believe advertising pays, Sam's print shop is enjoying an excellent business. Roberts' statement corresponded with those of the Jones county editors in that his county folk had provided plenty food for the table and plenty for the feed troughs for the livestock. The merchants were enjoying a good trade from revenue derived from a good cotton crop. Though the people would go through the year with little money, they would have plenty to eat.

Munday, the largest town in Knox county, provides well for its newspaper, The Munday Times, of which J. A. Kennedy and Mrs. Kennedy, are the editors and owners. Mr. Kennedy has owned the Times since 1906. According to his statement Knox county will gin 40,000 bales of cotton. The oil mill was running full blast but owing to the low price offered for meal and cake, the mill was renting every available space for storage and was storing it Benjamin, is the county seat of Knox county, a small, but a progressive community, the section depending mostly on the business from the ranches. Here we failed to meet the editor of the Benjamin Post, but procured a copy of his paper as well as that of the Abilene Reporter, and skid Crowell, the county seat of Foard county, is one of the towns of Northwest Texas, supplying one of the best weekly newspapers in that section. T. B. Kler, is its editor, and Mike Boswell, assistant editor. When we arrived in Crowell the sun was sinking rapidly in the west, and not being used to being out after lamp lighting time, we "snailed" through the Business section to avoid a tie-up in the traffic for the boys and girls were certainly there in numbers shopping on the eve before Thanksgiving. We have been keeping in close touch with Crowell through the News, and knew before hand that the merchants had been receiving a good business during the Fall, a good feed crop, a bumper cotton crop, and plenty of feed had been raised, pantries filled with food from home gardens, and fresh meat stored away, and as for having plenty to eat Foard county people will go through the winter in ship

Utilities Companies Are the Friends of Country Weeklies

They Advertise Liberally and Constantly When Others Fail

Joe Chambers, district manager of the Texas Electric Service Co., who has his headquarters in Midland, was a visitor to this office Monday, being greeted with a very hearty welcome and a warm handshake by the office force. Joe is always a welcome visitor to this office, but on this occasion his welcome appeared to be more pronounced than usual, and if the reader will glance on another page in this week's issue, he will find the secret of all the bowing and scraping the office force did before Chambers. It is a large advertisement for the company announcing "Useful Gifts for the Whole Family," then goes on to enumerate the gifts, displaying them in pictures, followed by the price of each. No use for us to go on about what the company says in their ad., read it for yourself.

Joe is a fellow of rather stout and portly, good looking with it, and for him and the package he had stowed under his arm, it was rather a tight squeeze to get through the door at the same time, despite the fact the office door is of the regulation dimensions. We surmised the package one of his excellent electric cook stoves advertised in this week's advertisement, that he was delivering to a Stanton customer. Imagine our surprise when Joe extended us the package with the remark "here's a Christmas present for you from the company. Unwrapping the package it revealed the large advertisement the reader will find in this week's Reporter.

We have been following the newspaper game all our life, (we now past 60, believe it or not), and in that time have rode the waves of "ups and downs" of the game, (mostly the downs), and when the season was a hard rub for the newspaper to make the grade, advertising almost nil in its columns, the utilities company could always be depended upon to carry an advertisement in the paper. There were times when the country editor received his news print by the C. O. D. route, and the only "harbor of rescue" the editor had to get his paper and print the week's issue was the check paid for advertising by the utilities company.

The utilities companies show no partiality in the distribution of advertising among the various sections of the

LOEN GOODMAN TO FEED 6,000 HEAD OF HEARST CATTLE

FORMERLY CATTLE FROM THE 900,000-ACRE HEARST RANCH IN OLD MEXICO HAS BEEN FED IN CALIFORNIA.

Frank Reeves, in his "Chuck Wagon Gossip," in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, has the following to say about the feeding of several thousand head of the William Randolph Hearst's cattle by Leon Goodman, a prominent Midland county ranchman: Arrangements are being made near Brownfield to feed between 5,000 and 6,000 yearlings from the William Randolph Hearst ranch in Mexico. J. M. Barbee, manager of the 900,000-acre Hearst ranch at Madera, Chihuahua, Mexico, has arranged with Leon Goodman, Midland, to supervise the feeding.

A 20-acre tract has been leased from A. R. Brownfield and work on the pens has started. Purchase of a hammer mill that will grind from seven to ten tons per hour has been made. Corn and hogari grown in Terry county will be the principal feeds used in fattening these calves and yearlings.

If the feeding is a success, it is thought permanent pens will be erected and arrangements made to feed cattle there each year. Several sites were considered before Brownfield was chosen. Deciding factors that caused selection of Brownfield was an abundance of feed and a disposition on the part of the farmers to co-operate in the feeding experiment.

For years Goodman has advocated a feeding program for West Texas where corn and grain sorghums yield abundantly and a crop can be depended upon practically every year. Based on many feeding tests around Midland and other sections of West Texas, he contends that much of the good land will produce as much feed on one acre as several acres will in native grass. Climatic conditions in West Texas are much more favorable for feeding cattle than in the North, he says.

An initial purchase of 20,000 tons of grain sorghums and corn for the feeding was made, and additional supplies will be purchased as needed.

BUYS PROPERTY KNOWN AS FLANAGAN HOTEL TRACT

Odius Blackerby has purchased the property on which the old City Hotel now stands, facing the T&P railroad on the new route the highway will take. The purchase was made from Dr. Joe E. Brandon of Gorman, and the property consists of seven lots. The old building that was the prominent hostelry in Stanton 30 years ago, still stands and was operated as a hotel up to a year ago. On the back lot stood a shed that had weathered the seasons of some forty years, it was torn down last week by Mr. Blackerby and moved away. It was a part of a wagon yard that occupied the ground where the Guitar buildings now stand, facing the present route of the Bankhead highway. Across the street where the Eiland Motor Co., is, and on the corner where the Church of Christ now stands, were located wagon yards, or more politely known as livery stables. In 1912, Odius Blackerby worked on his first automobile in a building connected with the livery stable that occupied the site on which is the Church of Christ. Odius Blackerby and a brother are the Ford mechanics at the Eiland Motor Co.

TERRY ELKINS HOME BURNS DOWN SUNDAY

The following news item appeared in the Monday issue of the Midland Reporter-Telegram:

The home of Terry Elkin, northwest of Midland and out of the city limits, was burned to the ground about 11 o'clock Sunday morning while the family was at church.

Much of the furniture was saved by a crowd that was attracted by the smoke and flames.

Elkin said today he didn't know how the fire started and that the property was almost a total loss, little insurance having been held. He does not plan to build back at the same place, he said.

Mr. Elkin is a brother of Mrs. Chas. Ebberson, who formerly lived in Stanton and operated a mercantile business.

Holds Reco Killi

During the past week, Mr. Sproul, local ranch hunter, has come into the hands of Ripley's "Believe It or Not" almost all the daily news of Texas and some weeklies. Mr. Sproul has been on some of the most adventurous hunts ever to take place in the Davis Mountains. He has killed 115 panthers, 135 black bear, enumerable coyotes, wildcats, black tail deer, and other such animals. He can ride in the saddle and trail a bear track in this manner when other men can't see them until they are on their knees after they have been pointed out to them.

Mr. Sproul came to Fort Davis when he was about a year old. Most of his life has been out of doors, climbing mountains, working cattle. He is now forty-eight years old and is head man at the Sproul ranch. The ranch is a little more than a city block, it takes in 35 sections and is stocked with cattle. During the present hunting season Mr. Sproul has entertained a large number of hunters at the ranch. Most of the hunters got their deer and several bears were killed.—Fort Davis Dispatch.

We have always contended there was no kind of a sport that there wasn't some danger of an accident attached. Playing poker the jack might hit you one in the eye, or the queen

game we least expected an accident would arise, is playing golf. One might walk himself to death but that would be his own fault, hence no ac-

bounced back breaking her eyeglasses
from which she suffered a severe cut

ARE YOU READY FOR THE FUTURE?

It is a well known fact that since the depression the enrollment in business training has greatly fallen off.
The reason has been two fold. First,
young people were apprehensive that they could not find positions; and,
second, they did not have the funds to attend college.

This, of course, means that there will be a shortage of trained young people for the many positions that are bound to be available as soon as we recover from this depression.

When will the depression end is the question upon the lips of many millions of people. No one pretends to forecast an immediate return to normalcy, but with the presidential election out of the way, and the country feeling at ease politically for the next four years, together with the many other agencies striving to bring the country back, surely would indicate that the country WILL come back.
It always has and it surely will again.

Many economists predict that the bottom was reached last July. The stock market and other like signs would indicate that statement to be true. Therefore, if their predictions are true, there should be a decided upturn in business after the first of 1933.

Young people taking a business training now would naturally be prepared and ready for the forward march that awaits them. Don't wait until the aggressive youngster gets ahead of you.

The Tyler Commercial College and School of Business Administration has maintained and still maintains a strong, capable faculty. They have strengthened their courses wherever they thought there was need to meet the changing requirements of business, and are, therefore, in a better position to give a more up-to-the-minute training than in their history.

Write for their catalog, "Achieving Success in Business," using the cou-

The shoulder fantasie in frocks worn at evening is the most pronounced feature of evening fashions seen at smart events during the first weeks of the new season. There was a white velvet frock with slashed skirt which had bands of white ermine, completed by tiny tails, forming the shoulder straps. Another was a ruby red velvet with strands of fabric forming shoulder straps and loose decorations.

The illustrated style in evening frock shown above is correct in all detail. It is a velvet frock and can be worn in black or in as gay color as desired. The shoulder bands with their overlapped bows attain the shoulder fantasie so much to be desired. The back drape is correct, although some high ones are being worn. When high, the back is slit.

It is impossible to estimate the value of the community at large and to individuals of the work which the National Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis has done and

Most people recover without help, but there is a very high percentage who, unless the course of the disease is checked, are certain to die at an early age.

The prevention and stamping out of tuberculosis is largely a matter of education. We know a great deal more about this disease than our parents did. Curing it is not a matter of climate so much as it is a matter of rest, quiet rest, ample nourishment and exposure to the sunshine. The cure of the disease, if taken in its early stages, is said to be reasonably assured. Its prevention is easy when everybody who may be exposed to it understands the elementary principles of sanitation.

This education is the work of the Association for Prevention of Tuberculosis, which is supported by the pennies paid by millions of Americans every year for the Christmas seals with which to decorate Christmas letters and packages. Anything from one cent up is an acceptable contribution. There is no better evidence of the spirit of helpfulness than to put these Christmas seals on the envelopes of all your Christmas cards and packages.

4-H CLUB NEWS

Karl and His Calf

Karl H. Kainz, a 14-year farm boy, got a start in 4-H club work with a $16 Holstein calf which recently landed him the title of Iowa champion dairy calf club member. Now he is 20 years old and his 4-H training has raised him to the rank of one of the most capable young farmers and citizens in his community.

The story of Karl's experience should make any farm boy ashamed of himself who thinks he has no chance in the world. Karl had no more than a fair start in life. His grandparents gave him that. It was to take over the running of an 80-acre farm, or mortgage the farm and use the proceeds to get an education. Karl figured how he could save the money and also get the education he needed. That was by going in for a heavy 4-H program. It was the way he got the $16 calf.

The boy went in for all the dairy projects he could—raising and fitting a calf, showing it, maturing it as a milk cow, and so on. In six years of perherving work he knew more about dairying and farming than it might have taken him a lifetime otherwise. And he had a barrel of fun with it, to say nothing of all the interesting experiences of going to the shows and camps and all that.

Today, Karl has a herd of seven milk cows and the young stock which he has sold. He proudly exhibits

Gain Physical Vigor — Youthfulness
With Clear Skin and Vivacious Eyes
That Sparkle With Glorious Health

Here's the recipe that banishes fat
and brings into blossom all the natural
