LITTLE ABOUT EVERYTHING

NOT MUCH ABOUT ANYTHING

I am informed that Jim Kelly, of The Stanton Reporter, represents the fact that since the News-Times went daily he has been taken off the exchange list. I have contacted the circulation manager and demanded that in spite of the A.B.C. ruling that all subscriptions MUST be paid, Jim is to get his paper from here on out. If it becomes necessary I'll even send Jim my check for $600 for a year's subscription to his sheet and let him return the compliment. I don't want to lose my old friends just because my town got too darn big for the best weekly newspaper in Texas and we were forced to go daily.

To show you what pressure had to be brought to bear to get our name re-inflated into the good graces of Shuffler we had to send our plea by special messenger, our good friends Bill Parker, traveling representative of the Olmsted-Kirk Co., Dallas and Fort Worth. Bill went out our office headed for Odessa "hot under the collar" and a look in his eye that if the News-Times weren't put on the Reporter's exchange list instantaneously, if not sooner, he would have Shuffler up for discriminating for we had the goods on him that he was sending his paper to Paul Baron at Midland, and all we would have to do would be to present the Quack column in the Reporter-Telegram to prove our statement.

Shuffler says if necessary he will send us a check for $600 for a year's subscription to the Reporter, and then we could send it back to him, but the price we would only return him $599.99. We are just that crazy about ourselves.

THERE'S just on way to spell horse and that is HORSE. A leave out of a letter may cause considerable amusement on the part of some, and confuses the minds of others that maybeso "he meant it that way? This column in last week's Reporter set 11 readers agog because of an omission of a letter in the word horse, and we are careful to see that all the letters are in their proper places in this squib this week.

WE may have some regrets over losing our man for governor but we have much to be elated over our victory chalked up in the school bond election Saturday. The only thing left now to soon see the workmen trudging to the campus of the Stanton school to swing hammer and saw and hoist motor and brick is the word "go" from Washington, D. C., where the WPA ap-

Nature of Competition Vastly Changed From Former Days

Development of New Products and Raw Materials Added to Price Rivalry

Washington—Are our "giant" corporations holding down living standards by holding up prices, in an effort to make exorbitant profits? Has competition declined so that the production and distribution of goods needed for higher living standards is being hindered?

A study which has just been completed at the Brookings Institution found that competition is as real as in former days—perhaps more real. But

War have sought to effect economies and promote efficiency, the study found. This is in contrast to the aim of combinations of a generation ago, which was chiefly to control markets, suppress competition and raise prices. Some of these older combinations were able to hold up prices for a time, but eventually such attempts broke down or aroused so much resentment that the combinations were dissolved by governmental actions.

These charts indicate in general how living standards have risen since 1870, during which years there have occurred the greatest development of machine production and the growth of large corporations. The upper chart shows that, although the wholesale prices of manufactured goods were about 9 per cent lower in 1937 than in 1870, the weekly wage had increased more than 150 per cent. The lower chart shows how much a worker could purchase with his weekly wage, assuming that retail prices kept in step with wholesale figures; in 1937 it was nearly three times as much as in 1870. This increase came in spite of the fact that the length of the working week was reduced by approximately one-third during this period.

It operates in a different way. Manufacturers today compete not only in the pricing of their products, but also in the development of new products and new uses for raw materials. The result may be even more useful to the people as a whole than in the days when the prices of nearly all goods were fixed by direct bargaining in the market.

The making of prices over a large part of industry is vastly changed from what it used to be. The producer estimates in advance a price at which an article can be bought by an expanding number of people and then finds a way to turn out a product within that price. Almost everyone is aware that this is the way automobile prices are set, and the study found that the three largest concerns in this industry have set the high water mark of competition thus far.

Today, it is almost impossible for so-called monopolies to keep prices unduly high in order to make big profits. Advances in physics, chemistry, and engineering have been so great in recent years that, whenever a corporation tries to do this, some come along with a satisfactory substitute at a lower price.

Previous studies made at the Brookings Institution indicated that the best method of passing on to the public the benefits of improved productive efficiency is by giving the consumer lower prices.

Policies of Many Corporations Are Examined

In the latest study, entitled "Industrial Price Policies and Economic Progress," specific inquiries were made into the policies of many manufacturing concerns to find out whether they were aimed in this direction. The study was made by Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, director of economic research, and Dr. Horace B. Drury, a member of the staff. It was financed under a grant by the Maurice and Laura Falk Foundation of Pittsburgh.

Big corporations since the World

The study did not find that the percentage of the nation's business done by "giant" corporations has been increasing. Production by such large enterprises comprises about 40 per cent of the total, which is about the same percentage as obtained a generation ago.

Big and Little Companies Work Together

The study shows how big and little companies work together to the advantage of both. Large corporations are generally able to spend more freely to maintain competent technical and management staffs, and these companies have usually been in the front of price reduction.

But smaller concerns also benefit from this large-scale production. With larger concerns purchasing their supplies in large quantities and planning production far in advance, smaller companies which sell their supplies and raw materials are in turn able to plan production on the most economical basis. Many small concerns also find it easier to borrow money from local banks and other sources when they have contracts with large corporations.

Operation of industrial enterprises at their practical capacity is necessary if the nation is to have maximum production of goods, the report of the study says. Forward-looking price policies, constantly aiming toward giving the consumer more for his money, were found to be the most important factor in bringing about capacity operation.

The high level of employment which would come with such capacity operation would have far greater effect in raising living standards than any employment which the government could provide.

Since 1870, while our large corporations have been developing, the amount of manufactured goods which the average worker's weekly wage would buy was multiplied by two and a half. At the same time, the working week was reduced by about one-third.

lication for a $22,000 federal grant has been accepted, this to be supplemented by a sum of $27,500, the amount of the bonds voted at Saturday's election.

If there was a hogwallow that escaped piling up a majority for W. Lee O'Daniel. We have yet to hear of it. The boys around here kept telling us that O'Daniel would sweep the political platter clean as a hound tooth, but we "figgured" they were just kiddin' us because we didn't happen to be for their candidate. The heapin' big vote for the flour king lifted the blind bride from two eyes that almost bulged from their sockets with surprise.

Stanton Golfers Win In Odessa Tournament

Warnr Haynie

Out of seven local golfers that entered the Odessa Tournament five of them came home with a winner or a runner-up prize. T. W. Haynie and G. A. Glaser, who battled each other here the year around landed in the fourth flight and fought their way thru to meet each other in the finals of this flight.

Haynie says he talked Glaser out of the match, which meant the difference between a gold wrist watch and a hand bag.

Houston Woody, one of our junior golfers, fought his way through the fifth flight in four hard battles to finally win. Houston really earned the first prize in this flight as he won the first and second matches 1 up on 18 holes. The third and fourth flight 2 up and 1 to go.

Clint Eidson won the sixth flight consolation after having been put out of the regular flight in his first match. He had an easy time winning his last three matches.

Bryan Henderson in the sixth flight lost his second match when he ran into Luther Neal of Hobbs, New Mexico, shoot par golf.

Lloyd Sprawls lost his first match in the fifth flight and also in the fifth flight consolation. H. A. Poole, our new high school coach waded right through the seventh flight. Mr. Poole had not played golf in four years and we think he pulled quite a stunt in winning his flight.

The Odessa club gave away $700 worth of prizes. There was a gold wrist watch for each flight winner and prizes in proportion to the runner up and consolation winners.

Poole, Woody, and Haynie are sporting new Bulova gold wrist watches and in case they take a notion to travel Eidson and Glaser have a couple of nice overnight bags to carry their extra shirt and tooth brush in.

Big Spring tournament dates are Sept. 3, 4 and 5, and the local golfers are planning to descend on it like a swarm of locusts, (and probably get shelld out before they light long enough to get started).

Well, Big Spring here come!

CANDLEWICK BED SPREAD DISCUSSED AT FLOWER GROVE H. D. CLUB

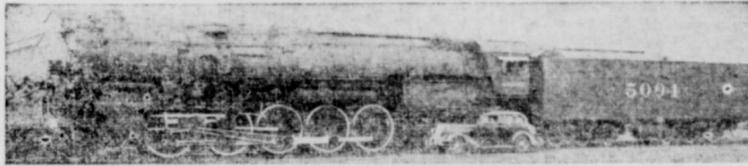

Candlewick bedspreads are especially suitable for a four poster bed or one of Colonial type, or it is often found that they are adapted admirably to rooms with furniture of modern type," Mrs. Lee Castle, council chairman of Martin county told members of the Flower Grove club in their meeting on August 17, with Mrs. E. C. Butcher.

"Unbleached domestic is most frequently used for the bed spreads galtho colored sheetin in pastel shades are also used but are more expensive. The standard size for a double bed being 90x108.

Fifty Years of Locomotive Development

(Above)—Santa Fe Railway's new 5001-class of freight locomotives is illustrated here in contrast to the modern automobile which appears small enough to fit easily into the engine's firebox. Ten of these mammoth power units capable of 70-mile-per-hour speeds are being placed in service. Their tenders carry 20,000 gallons of water and 23 tons of coal or 7,000 gallons of fuel oil. Nickel steel boilers enable these locomotives to carry a steam pressure of 310 pounds. The engine weighs 440 tons.

Fifty years ago, No. 684 was the latest thing in Santa Fe freight power. She served her heyday when freight train speeds averaged 10 miles per hour and 30 cars made a big train. Today, she is the last survivor of her class. At the Topeka shops she puffs mightily as she shoves her modern sisters, as shown above, around the locomotive shop yards. She came from the Baldwin locomotive works in 1888 just 50 years ahead of No. 5004, which represents the latest engineering developments in steam freight engines.

WHO WROTE IT?

"My Melancholy Baby"

By Joseph R. Fliesler
HE was listed as "died in action" on the fields of France and mourned by those who knew him. He left no descendants and royalties were paid to no one. When he reappeared, in the flesh, he had to begin life anew.

Born in Cincinnati, of French-Italian-Hungarian extraction, he was sent abroad by a music-loving father to begin his musical education at five. He was schooled in Milan, Vienna and Berlin, and completed his music at the Conservatory of Charlottenberg.

At seventeen, ambitious to become a concert pianist, he returned to America to find that his parents were dead and he was penniless. He played a round of carnivals, cafes, variety halls, and emerged from the San Francisco disaster of 1906 with only his clothes. Aided by relief workers, he reached Chicago, wrote popular songs for the late publisher, Milton Well, and through Well got work as one of six piano players in "The Pianophiles," an act produced by a young vaudeville impresario, Jesse Lasky. Back in San Francisco, he fell in love, married, lost his vaudeville job. He found work in a Denver cafe, wired his bride to join him. Her train, delayed by fire, was fourteen hours late. While he waited in the Denver station far into the night, he wrote words and music of one of the greatest popular song hits of all time—"My Melancholy Baby." Three publishers rejected it, a fourth took a chance, and sold more than two million copies; then went bankrupt, having paid the composer only one hundred and fifty dollars.

Vaudeville pianist, hotel entertainment director, orchestra leader, he punctuated all his activities with frequent compositions of popular songs, until in 1917 he went to France with the 85th Division. Gassed at Soissons, he apparently recovered, returned to America, and after two years as a factor in the theatrical life of the Panama Canal Zone, suffered a recurrence of lung trouble.

In the decade that followed, he was under treatment in Government hospitals and health resorts. In 1927 in a Chicago hospital, he heard Paul Whiteman announce his famous number, "My Melancholy Baby," for a radio program, adding that the number was being played in memory of its composer who had died on the fields of France. Quickly he wired Whiteman that, like Mark Twain's, the report of his death was greatly exaggerated.

Pronounced cured in 1931, the composer returned to his career in Hollywood and New York he renewed acquaintances with men and women of music who had long mourned him as dead. His old hit meanwhile had taken on new popularity. Its sales were so stimulated that the total to date is nearly four millions, current sales yielding profits to the composer, who is a member of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers and shares thereby in the royalties for its public performance for profit. Within the next two years he will renew copyrights upon approximately one hundred songs. He has just completed a new song, "Cabin in the Carolines," written with Billy Hill of "Last Roundup" fame.

His name is Joseph R. Fliesler.

The Power of Taxation

By RAYMOND PITCAIRN
National Chairman
Sentinels of the Republic

Congress, as this is written, is deep in deliberation over proposed revisions of pending tax measures.

Somewhat, there has been created the impression that these measures affect only that branch of American activity known collectively as business.

But this picture is incomplete. It covers the narrow field.

What Congress decides, whenever it deliberates on taxes, affects profoundly every man, woman and child in our nation. It deals with the welfare of our great army of approximately 130,000,000 consumers.

Tax legislation can determine whether or not men should have jobs, and the amount of purchasing power which those jobs create. It can determine how well American families may live and progress. It can weave its influence through the entire fabric of our national economy.

For taxes, as every one knows, are a constant and inescapable part of our daily existence. Through the higher costs of necessities which unreasonable taxes entail, they intrude into the cost of all necessities.

They slip into the gas tank of every car and tractor; into the cloth of every suit and dress, into the rent or purchase price of every home and farm, into the cost-tag of every piece of home and industrial equipment, into the food basket of every housewife.

They can influence all production, all employment. For when they threaten the enterprise and the production which create employment, they threaten jobs. Our recent record of mounting unemployment bears tragic evidence of this.

Taxation, therefore, should be above all politics.

It is everybody's business, everybody's burden.

That is something of which Congress should be reminded as it deals with this great national problem.
