CHICAGO, ILL.—End of the war will find farmers with another kind of savings becides eash, which will prove helpful in the nation's long-time program of community and prosperity building. This is the "farm bank" of soil saving; the "compound interest" accumulated over neveral decades of soil and water conservation to save the rich top soil from washing and blowing away. So declared George L. Gillette, President of the Farm Equipment Institute here today.

"While soil building through contour farming, terracing and crop rotations in the United States goes back to Thomas Jefferson's work in Virginia well over a century ago," said Gillette, "comparatively little was done in an organized manner until the United States Department of Agriculture in the Twenties set up erosion-control experiment stations and instituted an intensive study of soil erosion."

From the very beginning of the conservation program, the farm equipment industry has cooperated with the United States Government helping the farmer solve his land problems, Gillette points out. Through personal effort, through advertisements, these companies and their representatives have made helpful suggestions to the farmer on how to improve soil fertility, increase water-holding capacity and prevent the loss of soils by erosion. Implement dealers also played a very substantial part in this program, explaining to the farmers have they might make torraces build dams and do contour for each of the content of the program. prevent the loss of soils by erosion. Implement dealers also played a very substantial part in this program, explaining to the farmers how they might make terraces, build dams and do contour farming with the equipment already on their farms. The above picture is an example of contour farming.

"This backlog of knowledge gained by the American farmers in soil conservation over the past years has paid big dividends in World War II, and now with the ending of the European War," says Gillette, "the farmer is ready as never before to help build a prosperous community through his increased activity and accelerated interest in soil munity through his increased activity and accelerated interest in soil

In March of 1943, the Texan made his prediction, and wrote it in a book in a London service club. More than 2,000 other soldiers wrote their predictions, butMcIver was the only one to ring the bell.

And another Texan has predicted that the war with the Japs will not end until the fall of 1946. He is a man who knows a lot about the Nips, too, for he spent three years in a Philippine prison camp before being freed after the American liberation on

Capt, Jerry Steward, USNR, whose home is Fairfield, Texas, also holds the distinction of being one of the most deccorated men in service, holding the Navy Cross, Purple Heart with three gold stars, the Army Distinguished Unit Badge with oak leaf cluster, American Defense Service Medal, Asiatic-Pacific Campaign Medal, Philippine Defense Ribbon with star, the Mexican Service Medal, the Victory Medal and the Navy Good Conduct medal with star.

He predicts that the Japs will fight to the last soldier and last civilian, and does not expect final victory before the fall of News that the little yellow men now are bombing the United States with balloon-carried bombs was another recent reminder that we still have a long hard war to fight in the Pacific. The Nips are overlooking nothing in their vicious fight Their tenacity and fanaticism should be a warning to all Americans for only by watching the efforts of the enemy can we hope for speedy victory.

This means all-out support of all home-front programs. It means generous contributions to the National War Fund and spirited support of local war chest drives by thousands of volunteer workers. Such solid efforts on the home front can help shorten the war and save lives of American boys abroad. See your county war chest chairman now, and volunteer to help with the October campaign, "For Our Own and For Our Kimbro, a quiet farm lad, brav ed strong enemy fire to plant mines that would stop the German advance. Despite wounds, he continued at the job and held up Naxi tanks long enough to allow an important American evacuation and save the lives of hundreds of his buddies.

His bravery was recognized this week when the nation's highest medal the Congress ional Medal of Honor presented his mother, Mrs. Marjorie Kimbro, who now lives in Texans at home aren't called on to make the supreme sacrifice, as Kimbro did. But they can honor his memory and also help save Americaan lives by supporting the National War Fund, which serves all American service men on fronts around the world.

OF SCHLEICHER COUNTY

A letter from Mrs. A. Emmet Pittman, wife of Lt. (j.g) A. E. Pittman, and residents of Stanton up to the time Lt. Pittman entered Navy training, addressed to the Reporter, states: "I'm now working as Home Demonstration Agent of Schleicher County, (of which Eldorado is the county seat), and plan to stay here until Emmet returns. I am enjoying the work very much and I have found the people to be very friendly and the women most interested in their work.

Mrs. Pittman said Emmet gets pretty lonesome and anxious for news from home where he is. He very seldom gets into port and most of his entertainment is letters from home and other reading matter he gets. In a letter I had from him last week he said the longer he was away from Stanton the more he realized what a nice town it was, C. V. CATAMOUNT TAVERN

The Second Continental Congress The Second Continental Congress met at Philadelphia on May 10, 1775. That day Ethan Allen and his Green Mountain boys demanded the sur-render of Fort Ticonderoga, N. Y. They were not going to let any over-seas dictators tax or rule them, and seas dictators tax or rule them, and neither are Americans today. That is one reason why we buy War Bonds. The preparations for that drive against the Lake Champlain stronghold were made secretly at a night meeting at little old Catamount Tavern at Bennington, Vt. The catamount monument shown above now stands on the site.

49TH ORDNANCE MEDIUM MAINTENANCE COMPANY

This company participated in three amphibious operations in New Guinea from 22 April to 31 August 1944 Detachments of the organization accompanied the assault troops ashore in each case. The organization was responsible for the maintenance and supply of all Ordnance equipment of the Task Force. Due to ceaseless efforts the deadline of vehicles was kept to a minimum thus facilitating the unloading of supplies and equipment, and construction of air strips. The unit proved itself exceptionally adapt at improvising repairs especially in the case of tanks for which there were no replacement parts available. During an operation one tank dropped in salt water on the initial day of the operation was comstrips. The unit proved itself exday of the operation was completely overhauled, the wiring dried in the oven of the field range, an air filter improvised from a dehydrated potato can, and the idler straightened, in 12 arrived after his death.
