MEANINGLESS TAX CUTS

Every tax reduction, of any kind, is greeted with hosannas. The public, the story runs, now will have more money it can call its own, spending will be given a new shot in the arm, and the whole economy will benefit.

So far so good. But there is another side to the story. And it is found in tax increases, which generally are given much less publicity than the reductions.

Take, for instance, the social security tax. Its rate, which is shared equally by employers and employees, has increased more than 262 per cent since 1949. And that isn't all. If medicare becomes law, and its costs are added in, the increase could be as great as 435 per cent by 1973. And there is always the possibility that the projections will prove too low and that still larger increases will be found necessary.

This is not all. State and local taxing bodies of every kind have been increasing their take in the form of higher levies for schools, roads, welfare and various other purposes.

It should be obvious that a tax cut which is largely or wholly offset by a tax increase is meaningless. It just puts money in one pocket while taking it out of another.

TIME TO KICK THE HABIT

Washington columnist Lyle Wilson draws an unusual, and ominous, parallel: "To reduce taxes repeatedly while spending borrowed money probably is like the use of morphine . . . comforting and good under controlled conditions, but disastrously habit forming. The user becomes hooked. Since 1933 the United States has been hooked by deficit spending.

"The time and symptoms of withdrawal are terrible to anticipate. So terrible that politicians and people may never face up to government economy and debt retirement."

There is certainly every reason for Mr. Wilson's pessimism. At the same time, painful as withdrawal might be, the agony that will result if deficit financing goes on long enough is certain to be far worse. The dollar will become less and less valuable, and the standard of living of millions will go steadily down. Many, such as those who live on pensions and other fixed incomes, will be impoverished.

As with morphine addiction, the time to kick the deficit habit is now. The longer we wait, the tougher it becomes.

UNIQUE MOBIL SEATING CUTS MAINTENANCE COSTS

To the traditional "three R's" of responsibility for school administrators has been added a fourth that perhaps carries them the most "rationing revenues." Administrators and school boards are continually casting about for money-saving equipment and methods that will help keep school taxes from spiraling even higher.

A real boon to already burdened taxpayers and education officials alike is modern equipment that permits rooms to be used for a variety of purposes while greatly reducing expensive maintenance costs.

An excellent example of such time and tax-saving equipment is a line of portable table-seating units produced by Sico, Inc., Minneapolis, a pioneer manufacturer of table-seating, staging and portable dance floor equipment. Sico's versatile seating equipment is specifically designed to help school rooms serve the multiplicity of uses that justify their costs.

Comprising a single unit, Sico table and seating equipment rests on noiseless rubber wheels in a closed position, making it possible to roll the equipment quickly and quietly to another area for use. When not in use, the table can be jack-knifed in a center fold for simple, compact storage in a fraction of its normal space.

This means, for example, that a cafeteria can be converted into a gymnasium in a matter of minutes, simply by folding the tables, which seat up to 16 students and rolling them away. It is easy to see that a conversion of this type would take far more time and effort if some 300 or 400 separate chairs and 50 or 60 lunch tables had to be moved.

The fact that these portable tables, with their attached individual stool type seats provide "fixed dimensional seating," also appeal to those concerned with school costs. Since students who get up to leave, do not have to pull their chairs away from the table, aisles can be narrower. The result is that aisles are always clear and unobstructed and up to one-third more students can be seated in a given area.

While these seating space costs are one important saving from mobile-folding tables, the resulting custodial economy is almost as impressive. Room cleaning time can be cut to a fraction, as many industries, as well as schools, have discovered.

For example, a leading Buffalo, N. Y., automobile plant cut its factory cafeteria cleaning staff substantially after purchasing 44 8-ft. Sico portable tables and 30 10-ft. portable tables. It formerly took two men an entire day to wipe the tables, move the chairs, sweep the floor and mop one-fourth

TAX MAN SAM SEZ:

The Automatic Data Processing of tax returns has captured the imagination of the American taxpayer. Internal Revenue reports that millions of dollars have been paid by taxpayers who conveniently forgot to file a tax return until they got scared that the machine was going to get them. Most of us can take this modern life—including the data processing machines—in our stride. Of course we would likely tell Internal Revenue that we were perturbed if the machine made a mistake and sent us a bill for a million or so. This sort of thing can and will happen, but most of us can cope with the machine simply by putting our correct social security number on our tax return at 11:00 p. m. on April 15.

Werner Couple Active In Volunteer Work At Denton Hospital

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article appeared recently in the Denton Record Chronicle, about Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Griffith, former members of the First Methodist Church in Denton, who have been active in volunteer work at the hospital.

Later Griffith managed the hospital through the 1920s, through the first part of the 1930s, and were members of the Methodist Church in Denton, who have been active in volunteer work at the hospital.

"I find it very rewarding to devote my time to a worthwhile project which benefits others," says Mrs. Griffith.

Her husband points out that satisfaction comes not only from a feeling of helping the hospital personnel, but also from giving comfort to visitors of patients and to the patients themselves.

"I've always felt that if there is anyone who needs and deserves help, it is a sick person," Griffith says.

"Yes, and the visitors appreciate even the smallest things," Mrs. Griffith agrees. "They are grateful for information concerning motels and restaurants. We try to help them also by watching children of parents who have come to visit with patients."

The Griffiths say they never know just what they may need to do to meet situations which arise. "One thing is for sure," says Griffith, "there is never a dull moment."

However, Mr. and Mrs. Griffith explain that when caring for patients they must remember that they are qualified only to help in certain areas.

Volunteers are trained through an orientation process at Flow.

The Griffiths explain that it is important for volunteer workers to realize the boundaries of their authority. "Even though we might actually be capable of performing a certain duty," Mrs. Griffith says, "sometimes we cannot, because it would not be ethical."

Mr. and Mrs. Griffith feel that much of the importance of their service lies in the fact that the time they devote to handling records and other office work, releases qualified personnel to help the patients in areas where volunteer workers are not suited.

"Of course, orientation is really only the beginning of our learning," Mrs. Griffith says. "As it is with any job, we learn something new each day."

Griffith says the duty which one feels toward volunteer work is just as strongly felt as that in any job. "You begin to want to stay until you feel your job is done. You don't quit simply because you have put in a certain amount of time."

Both Mr. and Mrs. Griffith long ago passed the 250 hours of service for which the auxiliary pays tribute to members. "Ernest has almost become a fixture at the hospital," Mrs. Griffith laughs.

During the time that the Griffiths are working at the desk, both are never gone at the same time. By working together, one can take a magazine to a patient or leave for some other duty while the other stays at the desk, which must always be occupied during the hospital's visiting hours.

Each patient admitted to the hospital must be taken to his room in a wheel chair unless he is directed to the emergency room. Griffith usually wheels the patient while Mrs. Griffith remains at the desk.

"Some people are a little reluctant to use the wheel chair," Mrs. Griffith says, "but then we just have to handle different situations which occur in the best way for that situation."

She explains that there are also positions which volunteers fill that don't require dealing with people. "The auxiliary provides opportunity for service to people with all kinds of personalities," she says.

The Griffiths admit that their work does require a great deal of time, but feel that they are in a position to give it. Griffith is semi-retired, working in the office of J. L. Ginnings, contractor, and the Griffiths' one son, Dr. E. Clay Griffith, lives in Dallas with his wife and young son. He is on the staff of the Timberlawn Sanatorium in Dallas.

"I don't find working at night unpleasant," says Griffith. "I feel that devoting spare time to serving others is just as beneficial as reading or watching television."

Mrs. Griffith doesn't regret the time which her volunteer work requires either. "I have been in the hospital myself, and I know how much I appreciated every little bit of extra attention," she says. "I enjoy trying to cheer the patients. A person who is ill deserves a little extra attention."

Wallace D. Goff To Assist With Dist. Convention

Wallace D. Goff, Circuit Supervisor of Jehovah's Witnesses in the Haskell area and surrounding communities, has just been called to Lubbock to take charge of cafeteria preparations for a regional district convention convening at Fair Park Coliseum, July 22-25.

Goff's duties will include general oversight of a mass cafeteria and the feeding of some 6,000 delegates expected to attend. Already over 1,200 requests have come from 20 states as well as Canada and British Honduras.

Under Goff's supervision will be approximately 200 volunteer workers staffing the department in order to care for the large feeding operation during the four-day convention. The assignment will not be a new experience for Goff in view of his handling thousands last year at Austin's Municipal Auditorium convention.

Goff serves the Haskell area and 13 nearby congregations in West Central Texas. "Many in attendance will include delegates from here," stated Goff, and when questioned as to the number, disclosed about 200 from this circuit would be attending the July "Word of Truth" convention.

Active as a minister of Jehovah's Witnesses for many years, Goff has served as circuit supervisor for the past two years since coming to West Central Texas. He was one of the speakers at the Austin convention last year and will be featured on the Lubbock assembly program this year.

Following the convention, Goff will return to the Haskell area to resume his circuit ministerial duties.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Bledsoe Back From Eventful Trip To Alaska

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article was written by H. M. Bledsoe about his and his wife's recent trip to Alaska.

"On June 16th, we boarded a plane at 7:00 o'clock in Abilene, flew to Dallas and left 'Big D' at 8:40. We arrived in Denver, Colo., at 11:05. We left Denver at 12:35 and winged our way to Seattle, Wash., leaving there at 6:25, and landed in Anchorage, Alaska, three hours later. The plane flew at 31,000 to 39,000 feet altitude at 605 miles per hour.

"Anchorage is the largest seaplane base in the world. More private planes for sea landing than any other place in the nation. Anchorage is about 100,000 population and covers a huge amount of space, and is building more than any other city we saw on our trip. They have cleaned-up and rebuilt following the earthquake. It is hard to tell where the damages were from the quake.

"The climate is wonderful—about 50 to 65 degrees and the sun sets at 11:30 and rises at about 2:00 a. m., but never gets dark. It is the most beautiful scenery to be seen anywhere. The people are real friendly and nice, makes you feel as if you had lived there all of your life.

"For sports there is fishing and hunting, rainbow trout, salmon and grayling, caribou moose and deer.

"Our first trip out was at Palmer which is about 47 miles northeast in the Mantauska Valley, the most beautiful farming country I have ever seen. Principal crops are potatoes and cabbage. The cabbage will weigh 30 to 40 pounds in 30 days after planting. The valley is a large dairy center.

"Wasilla is a small village and U.S.D.A. farm equipment station, where they have produced a potato for this climate, which is almost the same as the Idaho Russett. On our way back to Anchorage, we passed several lakes... the most beautiful places to camp and the rainbow trout are plentiful.

"The Mantauska Valley was settled in the early 30's when President Roosevelt sent several families to settle it, and now they have some of the most

Time To Face Facts

Under Texas' so-called "right to work" law, the incomes of Texas people have fallen way behind the rest of the nation. Because most Texans have not had the right to bargain collectively for better wages, we have always been behind other states but things have actually gotten much worse since 1947 when the so-called right to work law was passed. Texas is one of the few states to have enacted this unfortunate harmful law.

Thanks to the leadership of our Texan President, Lyndon Johnson, we now have a chance to put the family wage program of Texas back on an even basis with people throughout the nation. President Johnson has asked Congress to approve new labor legislation repealing the section of the Hartley law that has done so much to lower the average incomes of millions of Texans. This section is called 14-B. President Johnson know that Texans stand behind him in his program to help the wage earners of Texas. Write your Congressman today and ask him to support the President by voting to repeal section 14-B of Taft-Hartley. You'll be helping the economy of Texas and helping your children grow up in a state with greater opportunity for all in the future.

Adolescents Need More Realistic Education for "Ever-Day" Living

Today's family life educators have an obligation to place real life source material before adolescents and help them interpret it.

Patsy Reynolds, Extension family life education specialist at Texas A&M University, said this theme was emphasized by leading speakers at the recent meeting of the American Home Economics Association in Atlantic City, N. J.

Key speakers set the convention's pace with discussions on "Sex and Social Responsibility," "Living in a New Kind of World," "Horizon for Today's Girls," and "Expanding Options for Women."

The changing habits of a woman's life — which reflect our complex and changing society — will receive a lot of attention from professional home economists during the coming year, Miss Reynolds predicted.

MRS. B. F. COBB

Jessie Seets and I visited Mrs. J. D. Ballard's yard this week.

First thing to catch our eye was a tree with white blossoms springing from the trunk. Seven red roses and white ones turned the yard into a thing of beauty.

Camellias, coleus and coppe-riants vie with each other in front beds.

The view affords beauty and a well landscaped yard.

Four o'clock bor-dered of orange and yellow striped canna's. The yellow and red striped flowers foliage marked with a brown band.

Japanese and Chinese chestnut tree adds an oriental look to the backyard. An althea with single purple blossoms has foliage so luxuriant and green. Truly the Ballards must be good gardeners.

Four o'clock, Mexican dah-lia's, geranium, ageratum, pam-pas plumes and copper plants grow in beds at the back and down a long cyclone fence. Roses climb on opposite fence.

Mrs. Ballard served us Cokes on her cool, shady patio, screened from the rest of the yard by honeysuckle vines.

White urns and flower boxes filled with purple jew, coleus, redbird plant and begonia ring the patio. Hanging baskets of fern complete the picture.

A china squirrel and baby climb up the fruitless mulberry tree just off the patio. Mimosa, fruitless mulberry and cotton-wood turn the back yard into a shady retreat.

Thanks for your hospitality, Mrs. Ballard.

Mrs. Jessie Seets is growing a clematis. They should do well in this county as this vine prefer an alkali soil.

A few things to remember when buying clematis are: first, buy 2-year self-root plants. Plant either spring or fall. Fall planted roots must be well mulched. As clematis start their growth early in the spring, they should be put into the soil as quick as possible.

Consider these things when preparing a bed for clematis: good drainage, no standing water, four or five hours of sun-shine a day, keep the soil cool and moist around the base of the plant at all times. This can be done by applying a mulch. Plant in rich loam mixed with well rotted manure. Dig a hole at least 18 inches deep and fill with this mixture before setting out clematis.

Plant's eye should be about three inches below the soil's surface. Tamp dirt around roots and water well, but do not over water.

Modest-Income Families To Get Housing Break

Families too rich to get into public housing and too poor to afford privately-built homes soon will get some new help from Congress.

The Senate banking commit-tee okayed 3% interest loans for housing co-ops for moder-ate-income families June 24. The House previously approved them.

The co-ops now pay the gov-ernment's cost of borrowing money, which is running nearly 4%. Private lenders would charge even more. Housing co-op officials expect the 3% rate to stimulate the program, au-thorized under section 221-d-3 of the Federal Housing Act.

The Senate's big battle will come on rent supplements when senators debate the committee's report.

The Cooperative League, AFL-CIO, National Housing Conference, and other groups succeeded in getting the House to expand the categories of families' eligibility for rent supplements. The Senate commit-tee balked.

President Johnson wants these for families in housing owned by private non-profit or limited dividend corporations or co-ops.

The House went beyond this. It agreed to include any family that can't get privately-owned housing with one-fourth of its income and that has been dis-placed by federal highways or slum clearance, is elderly or physically handicapped, or now lives in sub-standard housing.

NEW CHART RELEASED

Study Of Fruiting Habit Of Cotton Plant Cited As Valuable Aid To Cotton Farmer

A new, easy-to-understand chart showing the fruiting habits of the typical cotton plant has been released in this area. The chart is a simplified form of a continuing study by leading cotton research men, on fruiting of the typical cotton plant, under average weather conditions, if unhampered by insects. The chart is divided into seven weeks of cotton blooming and demonstrates that the greatest volume of mature cotton results from the early blooms. More than half of the total bolls and 64% of mature cotton results from the first two weeks' blooms. And 88% of the total mature cotton is picked from the blooms of the first three weeks. For example, in the first week only 8% of the blooms occur, but they develop into 21% of the mature cotton. By contrast, the fifth week has 9% of the total blooms, which results in less than 3% of the total cotton.

This fruiting pattern clearly demonstrates the importance of keeping insect infestations to a minimum. It is essential that squares be protected, and cotton experts agree, that a systematic planned program

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SERVICES FOR JULY 11
 The record of Jesus' last supper and his meetings with the disciples after his resurrection will be reviewed in the Bible Lesson—Sermon to be heard in all Christian Science churches this Sunday, July 11.
 The subject is "Sacrament," and the Golden Text is from I Corinthians: "Let us keep the feast, not with old leaven, neither with the leaven of malice and wickedness; but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth."
 One of the related passages to be read from the Christian Science textbook will include these lines: "In the quiet sanctuary of earnest longings, we must deny sin and plead God's allness. We must resolve to take up the cross, and go forth with honest hearts to work and watch for wisdom, Truth and Love" (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy, p. 15).

Prattle

By AL HINDS

Don't know whether or not (Drive-In Grocery) Bob Dulaney is running FOR or FROM something... but anyway, Tuesday morning he gave Sam Crume a big, sweet-smelling cigar, out at Sam's Cafe. Ol' Sam was downtown making the rounds shortly afterwards puffing away like a steam locomotive on the "stogie."

FLASH: Caught Wallace Cox, Jr., working Tuesday morning. Junior had a long-handled hoe in his hand and was going full-steam ahead chopping grass from alongside Jones Cox & Co. Believe it or not, Wallace was really swinging a wicked hoe-handle. With that sort of follow-through swing, and keeping his head down, Junior should be an under-par golfer.

Met (Miller Creek) Wallace Cox, Sr., on the way from the bank Tuesday a. m., with a wide grin. He must have deposited a million or two. Mr. Cox jokingly remarked: "It looks like a run on the bank this morning." Long lines were formed at the bank windows... but it was only because of the long week-end holiday.

This scribe had a very pleasant visit with Claude McClellan, of Vernon, Friday morning. McClellan is in Haskell as a relief agent for the Fort Worth and Denver Railroad, while the agent, Gene Shackelford, is vacationing for a 4-week's period. Claude, formerly of Paducah, whom I had not seen in some 15 years, walked into my office, and had to introduce himself to me. He was only a youngster when he and his parents moved from Paducah, and "ole Prattle" just failed to recognize him. McClellan, back in his younger days, was a Paducah Post newsboy, and sold papers for Prattle while I was publisher of the Paducah Post.

I run across this little poem entitled, "Don't Quit," and it has a lot of truth:

 "When things go wrong as they sometimes will
 When the road you're treading seems all up hill,
 When the funds are low and the debts are high,
 And you want to smile, but you have to sigh,
 When care is pressing you down a bit,
 Rest if you must, but don't you quit.
 Life is queer with its twists and turns,
 As every one of us sometimes learns,
 And many a fellow turns about
 When he might have won had he stuck it out,
 Don't give up, though the pace seems slow,
 You may succeed with another blow."

Often the goal is nearer than it seems to a faint and faltering man;
 Often the struggler has given up,
 When he might have captured the victor's cup,
 And he learned too late when the night came down,
 How close he was to the golden crown.
 Success is failure turned inside out -
 The silver tint of the clouds of doubt,
 And you never can tell how close you are;
 It may be near when it seems far,
 So stick to the fight when you are hardest hit,
 It's when things seem worst that you must not quit."

The man who misses all the fun is he who says, "It can't be done."
 In solemn pride he stands aloof
 And greets each venture with reproof.
 Had he the power he'd efface
 The history of the human race;
 We'd have no radio, T-V, or motor cars.
 No streets lit by electric stars;
 No telegraph nor telephone,
 We'd linger in the age of stone.
 The world would sleep if things were run
 By men who say, "It can't be done."

Quote: The best rose bush, after all, is not that which has the fewest thorns, but that which bears the finest roses.—Henry Van Dyke.

Best crack of the week: A minister asked a little boy what he thought of his first church service. "The music was nice," said the small lad, "but the commercial was too long."

All men are born equal, but what they're equal to later on is what really counts.

Presidio, "Hottest" Town In The Nation; Home of 1,000 Happy People

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following article is from The Electric Times, monthly publication of West Texas Utilities Company.

When a Texan leaves the Lone Star State and travels north, east or west, he can be spotted as a Texan... not by his attire, not by his physical features, but usually his talk.

Residents of other states seem to like that "Texas drawl," as they call it, and will engage the visitor in conversation just to hear him talk... and brag.

Most of them have heard of Dallas, Fort Worth, Houston, San Antonio and Austin. Some have heard of some of the smaller cities, but a lot of them have heard of Presidio.

Dallas is the site of the State Fair of Texas, the largest state fair in the nation. Houston is the largest city in the South... the Alamo is located in San Antonio... and Austin is the home of the Texas Longhorns, 1963 national football champs.

But why should a resident of New York, New Jersey or Pennsylvania know anything about Presidio? When asked, the reply is, "That is the hottest place in the nation."

On weathercasts across the nation during summer months, Presidio many times has the "honor" of having the highest temperature... 107, 110, 113... and that is hot in any locality. What they do not know is that the humidity seldom reaches the 35 per cent mark and usually ranges from 10 to 15 per cent. It may be 113 degrees, but step over in the shade, and you are cool and comfortable.

The official weather observer in Presidio is Oliver Harper, who owns and operates the Harper Hardware Co. The Harpers have been residents of Presidio since 1929, and he has served as weather observer since 1943. The weather instruments are located in his office in the rear of the store.

Yes, it was hot in Presidio during the summer of 1964. It was on June 4 that the temperature passed the 100-degree mark. From June 4 through June 22, the official reading exceeded the 100-degree mark daily, reaching 109 on June 7, and on June 9. On June 27 it reached 100 degrees again and was above that mark during the remainder of the month.

During July the temperature was 100 degrees or more during the first 21 days, reaching the high of 113 degrees on July 21. The temperature was below the 100-degree mark for six days and then jumped to 104 on July 27.

During August, the temperature was above the century mark during the first 19 days except for a few days, and reached 107 on August 10.

Where is Presidio? It is located in Presidio County near the confluence of the Rio Conchos of Mexico and the Rio Grande. To pin-point its location, as the crow flies, it is about 200 miles southeast of El Paso; about 520 miles southwest of Dallas; and 850 miles west of Houston.

Presidio has a population of 1,062 and is located 60 miles south of Marfa. During this 60-mile drive there is a drop of 2,094 feet in altitude—from 4,688 feet at Marfa to 2,594 feet at Presidio.

There are mountains to the north, mountains to the east, mountains to the west; and, yes, mountains to the south in Mexico. Through these the lazy Rio Grande winds its way through the canyons of Santa Elena, Mariscal and Boquillas toward the Coastal Plains and the Gulf of Mexico.

Completed two years ago was the El Camino del Rio, a river road from Presidio to Lajitas that follows the Rio Grande by way of Redford to the Big Bend National Park. It is one of the nation's most beautiful highways and provides tourists with another scenic route to the park.

There is always water in the Rio Grande at Presidio. Here the waters of the Rio Conchos from the mountains of Mexico empty into the Rio Grande. This provides water for the irrigation of thousands of acres of land along the river in both Texas and Mexico.

The weathercast says nothing about the cotton, cantaloupes, onions, lettuce and other truck crops that are produced each year in the irrigated valleys along the Rio Grande. The average cotton yield in the Presidio Valley is about 5,000 bales. In 1963, a total of 4,331 bales was ginned.

In 1964, truck farmers produced 38,000 crates of cantaloupes; 54,000 fifty-pound sacks of onions; and 25,000 bags of cabbage.

from Presidio to Chihuahua City and Topolobampo on the Pacific Coast.

Presidio has the distinction of having one of the few "hand-set" newspapers in the United States. The Presidio Voice is published six times each year and has subscribers in many of the 50 states. Juan Rivera Sr. is editor and publisher. It was established in 1917 as the International, then changed a few years ago.

Rivera is an editor of the "old school" of journalism and is very outspoken in his opinions as to Americanism and the American way of life. He never hesitates to speak up and voice his opinion.

The motto of the Voice is: Work for Progress and Prosperity; Work for Unity and World Peace.

Appearing on the front page of each issue is this slogan: "Harsh words make enemies—kind words make friends."

Tradition and recorded history reveal that about 43 years after the discovery of America, Nunez Cabeza de Vaca and three companions, survivors of an unfortunate exploration of the northern coast of the Gulf of Mexico, wandered northwestward to stay for a time at the confluence of the Rio Conchos and the Rio Grande near the present site of Presidio. Here they found the first permanent houses built by the Jumanos Indians.

The three explorers returned to Mexico in 1536 and related stories told to them by the Indians about the fabulous cities of gold. Fifty-five years later, an escort of soldiers arrived at the confluence on an expedition to seek the cities and convert the Indians to the Christian belief.

In 1683-84, nine missions were established in the vicinity of Presidio by the Franciscan missionaries, and the place was named La Junta. In 1715, a mission was established at the present site of Ojinaga. In 1773, the confluence of the two rivers was named Presidio del Norte when a Spanish military unit was stationed at the junction. In 1847, Major Ben Leaton purchased the building and adjacent farmlands and became the first Anglo-American farmer to settle in the Presidio Valley.

From 1852 until 1882, Presidio was the principal port of entry for the shipment of mineral products and merchandise between Chihuahua City and San Antonio. Long wagon trains crossed the Rio Grande at Presidio and followed the Chihuahua Trail to San Antonio.

In 1922, the first ferry was started to transport motor vehicles across the river. The first cotton gin was constructed in 1921 and in 1926, the first power and light plant constructed by a private company was placed in operation. The first international bridge across the Rio Grande between Presidio and Ojinaga was built in 1927. It is a privately owned toll bridge.

In 1929 the Santa Fe Railroad purchased the American branch of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient Railroad and began construction of a roadbed to close the gap between Alpine and Presidio. The Texas branch had been completed since 1915. The first train arrived in Presidio on Nov. 2, 1930.

The final stretch of pavement of Highway 67 between Marfa and Presidio was completed in 1932.

Following the close of World War II, large scale production of cantaloupes and lettuce was started. Japanese farmers, skilled in the methods of truck farming, were brought into the Presidio Valley. The production of cantaloupes, lettuce and onions adds much to the economy of the area. New permanent packing sheds were constructed this year in Presidio to take care of the increased production of onions.

Although Presidio is frequently billed as the "hottest" town in the nation, it is one of the oldest inhabited places in the nation and is the home of more than 1,000 people who are happy to call it home. For centuries its fertile valley and the waters of the Rio Grande have provided a livelihood for many. As long as the Rio Grande flows, there will be a Presidio.

TOUR TEXAS

(Series No. 2)

If your sightseeing tastes run to deer, wild turkey, great blue heron, collared peccary, caracara—or several hundred other types of wildlife—then the Aransas Wildlife Refuge should be on your list of Texas places to visit this year.

This National Wildlife Refuge covers 47,261 acres on Blackjack Peninsula, about 75 miles north and slightly east of Corpus Christi off State Highway 35. The Refuge was established in 1937 for the protection and production of all forms of wildlife. It is administered by the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife under the U. S. Department of Interior.

Visitors are asked to register at Refuge headquarters, located eight miles southeast of Austwell, Texas (Refugio County).

Summer visitors are encouraged to plan visits for late afternoon when more wildlife can be observed from the Refuge's 25 miles of shell-surfaced roads. Visiting hours are from 8:00 a. m. to sunset, daily.

Occupants of vehicles bearing a Land and Water Conservation Fund sticker are admitted free. For all other persons over 16 years of age, there is a 25c fee, effective about June 1, 1965. Picnic areas are available in the Refuge.

For complete information on the area, you may write to Refuge Manager, Aransas National Wildlife Refuge, Austwell, Texas 77950, or Director, Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife, Washington, D. C. 20240.

Q—Is the additional $35 per month "household benefit" available to all veterans receiving a non-service connected pension assuming that they meet other requirements of the law?

A—This payment is available only to the veteran receiving pension under the "new law."

Q—I am receiving pension under the old law. I received a card from the VA with my December 1964 check to be completed and returned to the VA if I desired to change to the new law. This card showed it had to be completed and returned prior to May 1, 1965, to receive the increased pension from Jan. 1, 1965. I did not get the card to the VA before May 1, 1965; can I still change to the new law after that date?

A—You may send in your election card anytime, however, if the card was not received by the VA before May 1, 1965, no retroactive payment can be made and the new rate payable would be effective only from the date the VA received the election card.

Q—I have lost my discharge papers. Can VA furnish me with a copy?

A—No. It can be obtained from your individual branch of service. These addresses may be obtained from any VA regional office.
