Few are rushing to 'jump the date' on cotton planting

By BOB CAMPBELL
SDN Staff Writer

For many cotton farmers this spring, it is a choice of "dry-plant or no-plant" as the Uniform Delayed Planting Date approaches this Friday, May 19.

"People just don't seem to be getting excited about planting right now," said Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service executive director Joe Hefner. "I'm not too worried about people jumping the date because it is real dry."

Hefner said the spottiness of winter moisture has put some areas of the county, around Hermleigh, for example, in relatively good shape while others, like Fluvanna, are hurting.

"In some places, the last moisture was that hurricane rain in September," he said. "There is no underground moisture — just another West Texas drought."

Hefner and Scurry County Producers Association secretary-treasurer Michael Head of Arah

Rt. noted that the county has had about 60,000 acres in cotton the past two years and that a change in the federally required acreage reduction from 12.5 percent last year to 25 percent this year will reduce the total some.

Cotton prices have stabilized in recent months at around 55 or 56 cents a pound.

Head said many producers will wait until after the Uniform Delayed Planting Date, hoping for rain.

"I think just about everybody will hold off, since we have these drought conditions," he said. "I will dry-plant a little bit if it doesn't rain in the next two or three days."

"It looks like it'll be dry-plant or no-plant," he added, noting that farmers will be required to have all of their cotton planted by June 20 in order to qualify for ASCS programs.

He said the Dunn area has also been relatively fortunate in garnering rainfall this year.

Watcher program proposed at Ira to combat crime

Concern about what appears to be a growing trend in rural crime has prompted Ira residents to seek assistance through the Scurry County Sheriff's office to establish a "Neighborhood Watch" program.

Such programs mobilize the members of the community to be the "eyes" of law enforcement, alert to any suspicious activity which might indicate a crime is taking place.

In addition, signs are displayed which warn would-be thieves and vandals that they are being "watched."

"It's not just at Ira," commented Deputy Charlie Reynolds, who doubles as the crime prevention officer for the sheriff's department.

"We've had it everywhere," he said. The latest incident at Ira was a May 3 burglary at the First Baptist Church, which prompted the arrest of three suspects last weekend.

"Every time we make an arrest, we think it's going to end," Reynolds said.

Ira resident and independent business contractor Tommy Huddleston is an organizer for Thursday's Neighborhood Watch meeting. It will be at 8 p.m. at the Ira Community Center.

"I think the thieves have just discovered us. They think a little community out in the country will be easy pickin's," Huddleston said.

Reynolds noted the program is "basically, neighbors watching out for neighbors."

"It's keeping an eye on each other's place and reporting immediately (to the sheriff's office) any suspicious activities and vehicles."

Kidnap case here has 2nd new trial

A defendant convicted of aggravated kidnapping here in March of 1988, one of three men tried separately and ultimately sentenced to prison in connection with the same incident, has been granted a new trial by the 11th Court of Appeals in Eastland.

Grady Allen Davis, age 25 when sentenced by the local jury to a 25-year term, now becomes the second of the three suspects granted a new trial.

Davis was found guilty of aggravated kidnapping by a local jury on March 28, 1988.

In its decision, the appellate court ruled that the trial jury might have been swayed by "hearsay" testimony read into the record at Davis' trial.

This testimony was from a second defendant who had refused to testify against Davis, Larry Dan Beard. Beard's trial for aggravated kidnapping had been conducted in January of 1988, approximately two months before Davis'.

Testimony from Beard during his own trial indicated Davis was the individual who first brandished a gun, forcing a local 24-year-old black man to accompany Davis, Beard and a third defen-

TDC health care plan updated

The Texas Department of Corrections has given its verbal approval of a health care contract with Cogdell Memorial Hospital and will send written confirmation of the $1 million-plus agreement soon, Cogdell administrator Tom Hochwalt told the hospital board of managers Friday.

Hochwalt said he was pleased to learn early last week that the TDC would approve his proposed rate of $1,224 annually for medical services to a minimum of 950 inmates at the Price Daniel Unit here.

He said the agency has now set July 24 as the first day for inmates to be housed at the unit.

Other business in the noon meeting included a report on efforts to add two physicians to the Cogdell staff and the approval of

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Going to church doesn't make one a saint anymore than going to a garage sale makes one a car."

If you think Mother's Day is just another commercial event dreamed up by merchants to stimulate business—it's not so.

The observance was conceived by Anna Jarvis of West Virginia who in 1907 persuaded her minister to have a special service to honor her deceased mother. The daughter then worked for years to have the day proclaimed by congress, and it was approved in 1914.

At first, the services were primarily for deceased mothers, but the observance grew to honor all mothers. The custom arose to have white carnations presented to those without mothers and red to those who have living mothers.

For the majority, Mother's Day is one of gladness and pride.

Ask Us

Q. — If you are picked for jury duty, is your employer supposed to pay for days you're on jury duty?

A. — There is no provision in the law which requires an employer to pay for this time. The law does direct, however, that an employee cannot be fired because of missed work due to jury duty.

Makeup day

Next Saturday, May 20, will be the second makeup day for Snyder school children. Classes will meet from 8 a.m. until 2:45 p.m.

Parents are urged to insure that their child is in class, school officials note.

The class will be a makeup for a day missed due to gas curtailments.

To aid Noah

The Noah Project is now seeking donations of turniture and resaleable itmes to be used for a garage sale fund raiser next Saturday.

Items—no clothes please—should be brought to the Noah Project at 2707 College. For more information, call 573-1822.

For teachers

Two Snyder teachers who will be retiring this school year will be honored with a retirement party next Thursday.

The faculties at West and Stanfield Elementaries will be honoring Troy and Mary Lou Scott. The event will be from 4 until 5 p.m. at the First Baptist Church Garden Room.

Former students, friends and colleagues are invited.

Pops Tuesday

The annual Snyder High School Pops Concert, featuring members of both the choir and drama departments at SHS, will be Tuesday.

It will be in Worsham Auditorium at 7:30 p.m.

AARP meet

The local chapter for AARP will meet Monday at 1 p.m. at the Senior Citizens Center. Guest speaker will be Johnnie Harper of Odessa, who will discuss health insurance for senior citizens.

Weather

Snyder Temperatures: High Friday, 86 degrees; low, 60 degrees; reading at 7 a.m. Saturday, 62 degrees; .02 precipitation; total precipitation for 1989 to date, 3.61 inches.

Snyder Area Forecast: Mostly clear Far West and Big Bend through Sunday. Widely scattered late afternoon and evening thunderstorms Sunday. Otherwise fair to partly cloudy skies will prevail.

Trooper demoted

AUSTIN (AP) — A state trooper accused of exaggerating on drunken driving arrest reports has been demoted to driver's license examiner and stripped of his Department of Public Safety officer's commission.

Jimmy Lee Holmes, a nearly nine-year veteran of the department, also saw his annual salary slashed by more than $6,000 in the disciplinary action announced Friday by DPS Col. Joe Milner.

Holmes, 31, could not be reached for comment, the Austin American-Statesman reported.

The Travis County district attorney's office said it does not plan to pursue criminal charges against Holmes unless additional evidence is found.

Assistant County Attorney Mike Denton, whose office has jurisdiction in misdemeanor cases, said about 100 DWI cases involving Holmes have been dismissed. He said about 200 cases could be jeopardized.

"We are continuing to review any other case in which trooper Holmes is the only witness," he said.

Holmes made more DWI arrests in Travis County in 1988 than any other law officer. But defense attorneys in 1987 began questioning his credibility, saying his offense reports had too many similarities.

4-H judging teams compete

The Scurry County 4-H judging teams competed at district on April 22 at Texas Tech University in Lubbock. In the 4-H Horse judging contest, Scurry County had the first place junior team and the second place senior team. The senior team qualified for state competition with their second place finish. Senior team members include Shawn Hays, Terry Stephens, Cade Walton, and Debbie Schwarz. Shawn was also named 2nd high individual in performance classes and 2nd high point individual of the overall contest. Terry Stephens was 2nd high individual in performance classes.

The junior team members include Michael Hess, Dell Blackwell, Darla Blackwell and Shawn Purcell. Michael was named high point individual in halter and performance classes and was named high point individual for the junior contest.

In the 4-H Livestock judging contest, Scurry County competed with a junior and a senior team. The junior team placed ninth in the contest and members included Mandy Breuer, Raymond House, Jenise Judah and Clark Church.

Also judging in the junior contest was John Busby, Jeremy House and Angie Breuer.

The senior team placed seventh and the team members were Rana Eicke, Tammy Voss, Brett Merritt and Charlie Busby.

All Scurry County 4-Hers competed well and the senior 4-H Horse Judging team will compete at state on June 6-8 at Texas A&M University.

Runaway train slams into neighborhood

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP) — Authorities searching through tons of debris found a 24-year-old man alive more than 14 hours after a runaway freight train jumped its tracks at 90 mph and slammed into a row of houses. Three people, including two children, were killed and the train's brakeman is missing.

Chris Shaw was half-asleep in his home Friday when the out-of-control train catapulted off a curve. Locomotives and freight cars loaded with unprocessed potash were sent crashing into 11 houses, including his. He was conscious when found and told rescuers he had pain in his chest and shoulder.

The Southern Pacific freight apparently lost its brakes near the top of the 4,190-foot Cajon Pass and careened down the flank of the San Bernardino Mountains, said Southern Pacific spokesman Jim Loveland.

During their desperate plunge, the five-man crew radioed that they were out of control. Then the train, two-thirds of a mile long, plowed into a modest neighborhood of single-story homes about 7:40 a.m. in San Bernardino, about 60 miles east of Los Angeles.

Killed were conductor Everett S. Crown, 36, and Jason Thompson, 9, and Tyson White, 7, stepbrothers whose home was flattened by cars of the 3,470-foot-long train.

Nancy Fricks said her grandson, Daniel Sweeney, 9, who lives with her, watched as the body of a little boy, a school chum of Daniel's, was carried away. "He saw them taking the body out under a blanket and he started crying," Ms. Fricks said.

Dogs used to search for victims of the 1985 Mexico City earthquake were flown in from northern California to search for brakeman Alan R. Reiss, 44. Mobile spotlights were set up as the search continued through the night.

Scores of rescuers worked to free Shaw. His house was shattered and he was buried under debris and tons of the sandlike potash.

Maryann Shaw said her son had been drowsy and was lying in bed in a front bedroom. "I knocked on the door and told him to remember to shut everything off because he has a habit of leaving the iron on," she said.

After the crash, she stared at a 25-foot tower of wreckage covering the house. Only the mailbox was still standing.

Commodities to be distributed next Wednesday

Commodity distribution will be Wednesday, May 17, from 9 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and from 1-4 p.m. at the Scurry County Senior Center, 2603 Avenue M.

Eligibility guidelines for citizens of Scurry County are posted at the Senior Center. All individuals are asked to enter through the north door of the building and to bring paper sacks or boxes to transport the commodities.

Bowlin named to honor roll

Jury rejects claim for punitive damages

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A jury sent a strong message to the medical community with its $13.6 million award to a Fort Worth man in his malpractice suit against a hospital and its staff, an attorney says.

The message was a simple one, said attorney Darrell Keith: "The jury told the Fort Worth Osteopathic Medical Center and the medical community that if they don't police themselves, the courts and juries will do it for them."

Rounsaville, a 48-year-old former contract estimator at General Dynamics-Fort Worth, was left brain damaged and confined to a wheel chair during routine back surgery at the hospital four years ago.

Friday, two days after awarding Rounsaville $13.6 million in actual damages, the jury voted 10-2 against assessing exemplary or punitive damages. Rounsaville had asked for $20 million in exemplary damages.

In its Wednesday finding, the jury found the medical center, anesthetist Dr. Garry Winn and former hospital chief of staff Dr. Thomas Trese grossly negligent for Rounsaville's injuries.

The jury found Winn incompetently administered an anesthetic to Rounsaville during the surgery.

The jury also held that, while the hospital administration and Trese had no direct contact with Rounsaville during the surgery, they were grossly negligent because they made no effort to purge Winn from the hospital staff despite complaints from other staff members about his competency and his history of alcoholism coupled with declining mental powers from a 1982 stroke.

Keith said the case was the first in Tarrant County to ask jurors to decide if a hospital and its medical staff had properly policed itself when it had an incompetent physician on staff.

"This is a landmark verdict in a landmark case. This jury did the right thing. It apparently believed that the $13.6 million award — the largest in the history of this county — not only will serve to compensate John Rounsaville Jr. and his family, but it will also sound a loud and clear message to Fort Worth Osteopathic Hospital and other hospitals and medical staffs that this type of gross negligence in this case will not be tolerated," he said.

Presiding Juror Becky Ann Renfro said the majority of the jurors believed they had sent a message to the hospital and doctors without having to award punitive damages.

The jury held Winn and the hospital each accountable for 33 percent of Rounsaville's damage and ruled Trese was responsible for 25 percent.

Winn did not appear at the trial, nor offer any testimony in his defense.

Keith said Winn is working as a general practitioner in Brownwood.

Winn filed for bankruptcy on Feb. 6 — the day the marathon 14-week trial began.

Trese testified Thursday a recent divorce, $45,000 a year in child support payments and an IRS demand for more than $100,000 in back taxes on some Florida land ventures has left him bankrupt.

Since the jury found Winn and Trese were acting as agents of the hospital, the hospital could wind up paying all of the award.

Pioneer dies at 81

DALLAS (AP) — Joe Valdez Caballero, who developed and popularized Tex-Mex cuisine throughout the Southwest, is dead at the age of 81.

Funeral services will be Monday for Caballero, who frequently is credited with creating the "Monterrey" combination plate and with introducing the idea — considered radical at the time — of covering chicken enchiladas with sour cream sauce. Caballero died Friday.

During a 37-year career at El Chico Restaurant in Dallas, Caballero helped open many of the chain's more than 100 restaurants in 12 states.

Many employees knew Caballero simply as "Mr. Joe," said John Cuellar, vice president of El Chico Corp.

Financial FOCUS

It's estimated that two of every three people who select a particular mutual fund do so because of the family of funds to which it belongs.

Investing in a family of funds vs. an individual fund allows you to switch to other funds within the family at little or no cost.

Having the bulk of your mutual-fund investment in a family that has a number of funds with different objectives makes sense. The key, however, is to select a group with a long record of consistent money-management results.

Financial World, a respected financial publication, recently helped identify top mutual-fund groups. This publication provides ratings on roughly 1,050 relatively large mutual funds. According to the publication's publisher, Douglas McIntyre, they took all mutual-fund families with six or more funds and averaged the rankings of their individual funds.

For example, if the first fund had six funds that ranked 2, 180, 625, 480, and 571 out of the total 1,050 funds, these numbers were totaled and divided by six to equal 429.6.

According to McIntyre, any fund that ranked higher than 625 was labeled unacceptable. Those families of funds ranking within 50 points of the midpoint of the 1,050 funds, 475 to 575, qualified as mediocre. Families labeled as good performers scored 425 to 475, and those families that scored less than 425 were labeled extraordinary performers.

The results of the study showed that only six of the 51 fund families rated extraordinary. Six rated good. Sixteen rated mediocre; six rated poor, and 17 were unacceptable.

As McIntyre concluded, "The largest and most advertised mutual-fund companies aren't necessarily the best."

The study offered one disadvantage for the average investor. It rated the performance of all the funds within the family. Most investors would not consider exchanging among a large number of funds, such as the 63 offered by the largest family of funds.

To make this personally meaningful, the comparison of only those mutual funds with investment objectives similar to yours should be included in your study.

The purpose of the exercise is to select the mutual fund family with the best-performing individual fund within your objective and risk parameters.

A little homework and a pocket calculator could make and save you precious investment dollars when selecting a mutual fund.

Factions battling over Ruby's gun

DALLAS (AP) — The notorious gun that Jack Ruby used to kill Lee Harvey Oswald has pitted Ruby's survivors against executors of his estate in a court battle over who has the right to sell the weapon.

The executor, Jules F. Mayer, says proceeds from the sale of the .38-caliber Colt Cobra are needed to pay Ruby's debts, while Ruby's brother, Earl Ruby, said Mayer is trying to make money he has not earned.

Ruby shot Oswald the day after Oswald was arrested for the Nov. 1963 assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Mayer, 80, said he keeps the gun in a safe-deposit box in a North Dallas bank and that "the fellows who trade in historical value say it's worth about a quarter of a million dollars."

Attorneys for the family and Mayer met Friday with Dallas County Probate Judge Robert E. Price and decided to postpone a trial scheduled to start next week because more legal preparation is needed.

Mayer and Earl Ruby — who also have litigated the legitimacy of Jack Ruby's will — say the other is trying to sell the gun for purely personal reasons.

Mayer said that as independent executor he is responsible for making sure the estate's debts are paid — debts that have steadily mounted since the federal and state governments filed tax claims against Ruby's estate after he died on Jan. 3, 1967.

The Internal Revenue Service filed a claim for $46,181.81, while the state of Texas filed one for $1,226.57, according to court records.

Mayer estimated that with interest, the tax bill approaches $100,000.

Also, the Texas comptroller's office this week submitted a claim against Mr. Ruby's estate for an "unknown sum" of state inheritance taxes, according to court records.

Marvin L. Levin, a Dallas attorney who represented Mayer when he was named executor, said when Ruby died his only assets were the gun and a few other things, including the suit, hat, and some jewelry he was wearing the day he shot Oswald. Levin said Ruby spent most of his money on legal fees.

A jury in 1964 convicted Ruby of murder and sentenced him to death in the electric chair. But the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals overturned the conviction, citing reasons that included failure to move the trial from Dallas.

Earl Ruby, 74, lives in Florida. He said Mayer never visited Jack Ruby while he was in jail and is only interested in collecting a $100,000 fee.

"All he did was go to the probate court once or twice. That's $100,000?" Ruby said. "I want to sell the gun, pay off Jack's bills, if he has any, and get rid of Mayer. I want the estate closed."

Mayer said there is no way to estimate his expenses, although a court document submitted by his attorneys in February said administration expenses were probably "not less than $60,000."

James M. Simons, who is representing the Ruby family, said the trial on the gun will be delayed so he can include other potential heirs in the lawsuit.

Simons said he and the other attorneys also would begin negotiating a possible settlement.

"We're going to discuss what we could do with the gun to accommodate everybody's interests — probably sell the gun," Simons said. "I'm not saying that's been agreed to by anybody. We're just going to discuss it."

Browning moved to local hospital

Stacy Browning, son of Billy Ray and Pam Browning, was transferred to Cogdell Memorial Hospital on May 6. He is in room 181 of the local hospital's long-term care wing.

Browning had been hospitalized in Lubbock's St. Mary's Hospital for four years and some three months. On Feb. 8, 1985 he suffered severe head and brain stem injuries when a freak accident occurred at Pengo Well Service (now defunct). Although no one was actually sure how Stacy was injured, his parents surmised that he must have heard a hissing noise and when he went to investigate the air compressor line exploded, severely injuring him.

Mrs. Browning said that her son still cannot walk or talk but she described him as "physically strong as an ox." She also said he can respond to some commands. She also said that they had decided to move Stacy to Cogdell because it was time "for him to come home."

Ready for trouble...

U.S. troops head for Panama

TRAVIS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — The warriors with painted faces who flew south to reinforce U.S. troops in Panama said they weren't looking for trouble but were ready if it came.

One soldier in the 7th Infantry Division from Fort Ord, getting aboard cargo jets Friday at this base in Fairfield, 35 miles northeast of San Francisco, had been angered by what he knew of recent events in the troubled Latin American nation.

"I watched the beating of that man (a Panamanian opposition candidate) on television," said Greg Reith, a 24-year-old private in the light infantry division's field artillery unit. "It just didn't seem right to me. I'd like to get my hand in there and see if I couldn't do something about it."

Reith's personal message to Panamanian military leader Manuel Noriega would be:

"Look out, because there's some light fighters coming to town. He better keep his eyes open."

President George Bush ordered nearly 1,000 Fort Ord troops and about 1,000 from other bases, mobilized to help protect U.S. citizens in Panama. The 7th Infantry Division is designed to travel light so that it can be deployed swiftly anywhere in the world.

The troops, in combat gear and their faces splashed with green camouflage paint, departed aboard C-5 and C-141 cargo jets that screamed skyward throughout the day.

Many of the division's soldiers refused to comment, saying they had been instructed not to talk with the media.

Among the handful who talked with reporters, most said they were prepared to go, that this would be a good test of their training, and that they were just doing their job.

Hill marks 10th year with Amoco

Brian Mark Hill celebrated his 10th anniversary with Amoco Pipeline Co. on April 6. On that date in 1979, he began working for Amoco as a reliefman at the Slaughter Station, near Sundown.

On April 7, 1981 he transferred to the pipeline maintenance crew in Levelland and later moved into the tech department.

Hill worked as a technician in Levelland until November, 1983 at which time he transferred to Snyder on a temporary tech job.

In June, 1984 he transferred to a gauging position in Snyder and then back into the tech department in June, 1985 where he is presently classed as Tech I.

degree in general studies, with an emphasis on psychology and sociology, after completing her undergraduate coursework at Gonzaga University with a 4.0 grade point average.

Federal grants and a tuition discount helped finance her undergraduate studies. But for her next course of study, Ms. Liebhaber was awarded a full merit scholarship. She'll attend the Gonzaga law school come fall.

She is one of a handful of law students selected as recipients of Thomas More scholarships, based on outstanding promise for intellectual achievement and community service.

"I'd like to go into public service, dealing with family and domestic law as an advocate for women and children," said Ms. Liebhaber, 38.

After an "abusive" marriage that ended in divorce, she "stayed home and devoted my time and effort to raising my children, because we were all wounded from the trauma of the divorce."

She said she's never had a job outside the home, and makes ends meet with child support and food stamps. Her ex-husband, who's in the military, has paid regular child support.

8-9 YEAR OLD LEAGUE Giants 13, Mets 12

Trevor Thompson banded two doubles and two singles and Eric Rodriguez slashed three singles to help the Giants defeat the Mets on Friday.

The Giants also got a double and a single from Wesley Wilson, two singles each from Jacob Smith and D.J. Garcia, and one single apiece from Reid Johnson, T.J. Whetsel and Nicholas Means.

James Wesley pounded a home run and a single for the Mets. Eric Gard rapped two triples and a single and Courtney Hobgood smacked two doubles and a single. Others hitting were Jason Bawcum, a double and a single; Brian Hall, a double; Justin McNair, two singles; and James Wesley, Josh Hudgins, Pete Oliverez and Jason Grant, one single apiece.

GIRL'S SOFTBALL

American State Bank Diamonds 10, Key Brothers Angels 9

Winning pitcher Erin Maytubby slapped a double and two singles and Erin McDonald added a double and one single as the Diamonds got eight fifth-inning runs to nip the Angels.

Rachel Garcia added a single for the Diamonds, now 1-0. Pitcher Melanie Kidd rapped a home run and a single in a losing cause for the Angels, 0-1. Jamie Burleson rapped two singles and Leigh Ann Fowler added a double.

Olney Savings Powder Puffs 6, Grimmett Brothers Pink Flamingoes 4

Veronica Hermsillo slammed a home run and picked up WP honors as the Powder Puffs upended the Flamingoes on Friday.

Aubri Sisson, April Fletcher and Christina Dunham added a single each.

Haley Brown led the Flamingoes bats with a triple and a single. Sheila Garza rapped a double and Stephanie Rocha, April Baker, Sabrina Davidson and Rebecca Digby added one single apiece. It was the first game of the season for both teams.

Ward Butane Thunderbolts 20, The Water Shop Green Machine 11

Heather Ward cracked three triples and two doubles and Gennifer Vantine powered one triple and a pair of singles to help the Thunderbolts past the Green Machine on Friday.

Also hitting for the 'Bolts were winning pitcher Jodi White, Robyn Key and Jamie Duncan, three singles apiece; Carrie Ferris and Shawn Purcell, two singles each; and Jennifer Zerrazas, Lindsay Duhon, Rebecca Bennett and Connie Payne, one single apiece.

Hitting for the Green Machine were Shawndalyn Callaway, a double; Christi Whitney and Stephanie Hernandez, two singles each; and Samantha Boyd and Sarah Pierce, one single each.

The game was the first of the season for both teams.

Snyder bows out in 11-0 defeat

Tiger playoff hopes dashed

LUBBOCK -- Snyder's Tigers will have to settle for the not-so-small feat of being District 4-4A baseball tri-champions. Their hopes for the playoffs were dashed somewhat brutally in an 11-0 shutout by previously-ranked Andrews here Friday night.

Andrews went into the contest unranked, but had been rated as high as fourth in the state at the start of the season, and was eighth when Snyder knocked them out of the rankings with a 3-2 victory in late March. The Mustangs, who rallied to win 10 straight district games after the loss, looked like more like their preseason forecast Friday at Lubbock Christian University, though. Behind the three-hit pitching of Jesse Armendariz, Andrews rolled to its 11th consecutive victory this one via the 10-run rule.

The Mustangs looked only slightly shaky early, when Jason West tagged Armendariz for a first-inning double and Tommy Lane and John Wright touched the left hander for a pair of singles in the second. The theme for the game may have been set, though, when both West and Lane were thrown out on the basepaths. West was caught off second base and put out in a run-down; Lane tried to make it to third on Wright's single, and was also gunned down.

Those three and Toby Goodwin - who reached on an error - were the only baserunners for Snyder. Armendariz didn't allow a walk, and got the team three-up, three-down in the first, third, fourth and fifth innings.

The Mustangs got all the runs they needed in the second inning and set them down in order in the first. Otto struck out designated hitter Sidney Micheoby to start the second inning, but walked Clay Guidney and gave up a double to Ricky Morris. Next-up Teddy Jennings hit into a fly out that scored Guidney. Morris also scored on the first of three Tiger errors, giving Andrews a 2-0 lead.

The Mustangs got six runs in the fourth, started by a Morris walk, a Jennings bunt single over the Otto's head, and an RBI single from Armendariz. That spelled the end for Otto, who left the mound for short stop, Lee Fletcher took over on the hill.

Fletcher walked Randy Mathews to lead the home run, struck out David Emiliano. The bottom fell out, however, when Brent Leffingwell singled and Jason Graham tripled, giving the Mustangs a 7-0 advantage. Graham also scored on a routine ground out before the inning was over.

Andrews' final runs came in the fifth. Morris walked, moved to third on a double from Jennings and scored on a combination suicide squeeze and passed ball. Emiliano followed with a two-out single that brought Jennings home. Emiliano later scored on an error.

Kevin Dollins came on to get the final out of the inning for Snyder.

Armendariz, the ace of the Mustang staff, threw just 56 pitches unofficially, while the trio of Snyder hurlers combined for 111. They walked five, struck out five and gave up 11 hits.

Andrews, 18-7, was to advance and meet Fort Stockton at 2 p.m. Saturday in Monahans to settle the district's first- and second-place representation rights. The loser will go on to play 1-4A champion Hereford while the winner will be matched up with Lubbock Estacado in the state playoffs.

Snyder finishes the season with an 18-9 mark.

Snyder tennis players exit state tourney in first round

AUSTIN -- Snyder High School's boys doubles team of Kevin Winter and Michael Rodriguez were defeated in first-round action of the Class 4A State Tennis Tournament, held at Penick-Allen Tennis Center here Friday morning.

Todd Spencer and Daniel Napal of Denison defeated the Tiger duo 6-2, 6-0.

Winter and Rodriguez had placed second in the District 4-4A Tournament and advanced to state by storming through the Region 1-4A Tournament.

The pair lost to one of the top 4A doubles teams at the state tournament. Napal and Spencer went on to defeat Bushong and Giles of Kerrville Tivy 7-5, 7-6 in the semifinals. They were to play Maebius and Simpson of Alamo Heights in the finals Saturday morning.

"Kevin and Michael had a real good year and an excellent regional tournament," said Coach Charlie Chrane. "They played well to get to state. I didn't think they played as well (at state) as they did at regionals but sometimes the atmosphere and air of excitement prevents a lot of kids from playing their best. And, the team they played was a real good team."

Maebius and Simpson defeated Corsicana's John Nelson and James Lee in the semis, 6-3, 6-7. Nelson and Lee had earlier downed West Texas' other doubles team, Reagan Wynn and Todd Holcomb of Levelland, 6-3, 6-2.

In results involving other area 4A competitors, Sweetwater's Sulynn Hughes and Beth Bartlett were defeated in the semifinals of girls doubles, 7-5, 7-5, by Holly Hensley and Sara McCamish of Alamo Heights; Monahans' Bishop and Byrch were ousted 6-3, 6-1 in the first round by Reid and Vowel of Bay City; and Big Spring's Binky Tubb went out in the semis of the boys singles, 6-4, 7-5, to Chike Obianwu of Austin McCallum.

"Getting to state is a major accomplishment in itself," added Chrane. "The competition here is very tough."

Andrews girls capture state golf championship

AUSTIN -- Andrews' Lady Tigers captured the Class 4A state golf championship here Friday, holding off Belton to grab their second title in three years.

The Mustangs shot a two-day 675 to edge Belton by two strokes. Belton, down by five strokes after the first round, made a strong charge with a 332 on Friday. Boerne placed a distant third with a 706, followed by Uvalde at 748. Four other teams competed.

Nikki Martin led the Lady Mustangs with a fine 77 on her final round.

Medalist honors went to Kim Self of Dallas Hillcrest, who put together scores of 73 and 77 for a 150. Silsbee's Caren Felphs shot 152.

Andrews' boys finished sixth in their division with a 634. The tournament was won by Highland Park, which shot 307 and 302 for a 609. Bastrop was 13 strokes back at 622. Silsbee took third with a 629.

Allan Bratton of A&M Consolidated tied for medalist honors with Trip Kuehne during regulation play, then defeated the Highland Park athlete on the first playoff hole. Both had shot 145.

Snyder Heating & Air Solution Simple: Stop Sizzle To Soothe Squabblers!

By DONALD C. McMILLON

Normally, tempers can become a little strained when the heat becomes almost unbearable and the humidity reaches above the 80% mark. Take the case of this family and compare your experiences with theirs. The man of the house sauntered in the front door of his happy little home and nearly tripped over the family dog laying in the doorway with his tongue hanging out and eyes pleading for even the slightest breeze. In the living room, the three-year-old was throwing a temper tantrum because Mom wouldn't give him another drink of water.

Mom, cleverly and conveniently attired in the briefest apparel, was finishing up the evening meal in the kitchen. Her temper by this time as approaching the danger point, what with a kitchen full of steam, heat, and cooking odors, and a humidity reading so high that even the cactus plant on the window sill was dripping moisture.

Father's cheery hello did not even cause her to raise an eyebrow, and she indicated, when he asked what they were having for supper, that he could just sit down and wait and find out. So father, now experiencing a little of the heat himself, sat down and waited...and waited...and waited.

The family squabble that followed was something the neighbors will remember for years. The argument started when the frying pan flew out the front door and landed in the street, and ended when Father, coat over his shoulder, was seen heading toward the nearest air conditioned restaurant.

This temper situation in hot weather is not a problem is a LENNOX centrally air conditioned home. When the temperature and humidity are under control, so are family dispositions.

air conditioned home, and husbands reported the very same thing about their wives. Little wonder, when everyone sleeps better, works better, and eats better. Why you even feel like doing things and entertaining friends when you have LENNOX central air conditioning.

But remember, even LENNOX must be designed, sized and installed properly to operate efficiently, economically. So call Snyder Heating and Air Conditioning experts and find out how inexpensive it will be to centrally air condition with LENNOX.

Class 4A state meet in Austin...

Hillcrest, Corsicana win track titles

AUSTIN (AP) - Dallas Hillcrest didn't win a race at the University Interscholastic League state track and field championships but it still went home as champions.

The Panthers won the Class 4A team championship Friday night with second place finishes by Corey Dixon in the 100- and 200-meter races and a second place finish in the 400-meter relay.

Mount Pleasant's Tony Miller almost got the title with his victory in the 400 meters and an outstanding anchor leg in the winning 1600-meter relay team.

Dixon finished second to Denison's Junior Dade in both the 100 and 200 meters and Mike Miller placed second in the 800 meters, giving Denison third place.

Corsicana won the girl's Class 4A crown that included a victory in the 400-meter relay and second place finishes in the 800- and 1600-meter relays.

Brenham and Dallas Highland finished tied for second with 30 points and Houston King was fourth with 34 points.

Justin McLemore placed fourth in the high jump and won the 110- and 300-meter hurdles, scoring 24 points for Waxahachie, good enough for a fifth place team finish.

Palestine's James Shelton, who has the best high jump in the nation this year at 7-2, captured his third straight Class 4A state title with a leap of 7-0, winning on fewer misses.

Ted Wilson of Crosby, who has the nation's fastest schoolboy time of 1:51.75 in the 800 meters, captured his specialty in 1:54.04. He won the event last year in 1:51.0.

Stacey Clack won the 5A 100 and 200 for Austin Anderson last year before the school dropped to 4A.

She beat defending 4A 100 meters champion Cynthia Jackson of Houston King with an 11.78 time. Jackson finished second 12.14.

Clack returned to repeat the double victory in 4A with a 24.27 in the 200 meters. Highland Park's Jennifer Lapp also was a double winner in the 3200- and 1600-meter runs.

Jennifer Myers of Yoakum broke the first record of the meet with an 11:12.35 time in the girls' Class 3A 3200-meter run.

She broke the 3A record of 11:22.20 set last year by Elgin's Erin Irbeck.

In the next race, Pearsall's Kenneth Gonzalez set a 3A boy's record with a 9:20.2 time, breaking the record of 9:20.8 by Gladewater's Shannon Pate in 1988.

Champions in Classes A, 2A, 3A and 5A were to be decided Saturday night.

SHS sports banquet set

The Snyder High School Booster Club All-Sports Banquet is scheduled for 7 p.m. May 20 at Scurry County Coliseum.

A steak dinner will be catered by Reta's Cake Shop and Barbecue.

Tickets are $6 per plate and may be purchased from booster club members, at Suits Us or the high school athletic department.

Photos will be taken at 6 p.m. and a dance for the students in attendance will start about 9:30 p.m.

Tennis banquet slated

The Snyder Women's Tennis Association will hold its first annual spring awards banquet, 6:30 p.m. May 20 at Golden Corral.

Debbie Dorff, organizer of the association, will present trophies to the top three finishers.

"The scores are really tight for the top contenders," said Dorff. Tickets are $6 per person and include a steak dinner and door prizes.

Lakers freebies sink Seattle

by The Associated Press
While Seattle SuperSonics coach Bernie Bickerstaff fumed about the officiating, the Los Angeles Lakers moved within a victory of ending Seattle's season.

"They (the Lakers) can talk that crap about great defense all they want, but when you (the Sonics) get 23 offensive rebounds something's happening under the boards," Bickerstaff said following the Lakers' 91-86 victory over the Sonics on Friday night.

Although the Lakers didn't get a field goal in the final 7½ minutes and scored only three baskets in the fourth quarter, they were deadly at the free throw line in the final 3:19 and took a 3-0 lead over the Sonics in the Western Conference semifinals.

stronger Sunday, but when the opportunity presents itself, you want to get as much rest as you can in the playoffs," Scott said. "We want to sweep it Sunday."

In the Pistons-Bucks game, the shorthanded Bucks appeared tired.

The Bucks, who led the Pistons by as many as 13 points in Game 1 before losing by five, played without injured Terry Cummings and Paul Mokeski to a stomach and knee ailment during warmups.

That left the Bucks with nine players, two of whom - Jack Sikma and Tony Brown - fouled out in the fourth quarter.

"I wouldn't agree with all the fouls called," Sikma said. "I'm disappointed; but it doesn't pay to comment on the referee's job."

With Milwaukee running on empty, the Pistons:

-Shot 50.6 percent while holding the Bucks to 40.8 percent.

-Had a 61-38 edge in bench scoring, 32-7 in the fourth quarter.

-Tied an NBA playoff record with only five turnovers for the game.

"Our guys did a good job of holding together in the first half," Milwaukee coach Del Harris said. "But, in the end, we weren't able to withstand the foul problems."

Zoeller leads Memorial tourney

DUBLIN, Ohio (AP) - Fuzzy Zoeller likes long drives on a golf course, but not when he's traveling.

Still, a decision he made while making the long drive from his home in New Albany, Ind., to the Muirfield Village Golf Club has gone a long way toward giving him a five-stroke lead halfway through the Memorial tournament.

"I was driving my van up here Monday evening. Sitting there for four hours, it's kind of boring watching people pass you going 90 miles an hour. So I started thinking to myself that there was something I was doing with my putting that wasn't right," said Zoeller, who followed an opening 3-under-par 69 with a 66 Friday for a 9-under-par 135 total.

Ray Floyd, who won the 1982 Memorial, had a 67 that left him at 4-under 140. He was joined by Bob Tway, who shot a 69, and Mark Calcavecchia, who had a 68.

Seven shots back at 2 under were Fred Couples and Donnie Hammond on the 7,104-yard, par-72 Jack Nicklaus-designed course.

Bruce Lietzke, Greg Norman, Mark O'Meara and Payne Stewart were at 1-under 143.

On his drive here, Zoeller decided to change the putter that had won him 10 tournaments in the last 17 years, including the 1984 U.S. Open and the 1979 Masters.

He had gotten his new putter in the mail last November. It sat in the back of his van until he practiced Tuesday.

American Airlines...

Computer system's failure puzzles technicians

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — American Airlines technicians planned to use the weekend studying what caused the company's computerized reservation system to fail for nearly 12 hours, hindering flight scheduling for its passengers around the world.

"It was not a personnel problem. It had something to do with a problem in our Tulsa office," said John Hotard, a spokesman for the airline based in Fort Worth, Texas. "If we know the reason, we are speculating and we're not saying at this point."

The Sabre II computer reservation network went down shortly after midnight Thursday and was reactivated just before noon Friday, Hotard said.

The computer network, based in an underground bunker in Tulsa, drives the American Airlines computerized reservations worldwide and provides services to more than 14,000 other agencies, including car rental companies, hotels and a third of all U.S. travel agencies.

"A lot of people suffered frustrations," said Eric Munro, chapter president in San Diego of the American Society of Travel Agents. "In the day of computers, we just have nothing to do when this happens. It's a way of life for us. What can you do?"

The failure forced reservations for the airline to be written manually and confirmed later during boarding, and left travel agents nationwide helpless as they tried to serve thousands of customers.

But many agents spend much of their time Friday confirming already scheduled business flights for corporate clients traveling the following week, said William Cooper, president of Adventure Travels in Pompano Beach, Fla.

"Especially on a Friday, this isn't the best time for this to happen to us," Cooper said.

Without the network, agents cannot confirm reservations on American and are unable to gain access to much of the airline's flight information through reservation channels.

"We've had incredible problems," said David Perelman of DMS Travel in New York. "We just about went out of our minds."

Travel agents and American Airline reservationists took flight schedules from passengers by hand and were forced to confirm the information later during flight boarding or after the computer went back on line, Hotard said.

"We just stacked the papers one on top of the other and got to them when you could, and go crazy when the system comes back up," Perelman said.

There was no indication that American suffered flight delays because of the computer failure, Hotard said.

"It didn't really affect domestic operations until about 7 a.m., when the flights started," Hotard said. "We just went to a manual system."

For example, rather than computerized check-ins, passengers reported directly to gates where they were given a sticker with seat assignments, he said.

Ray Greely of the American Society of Travel Agents in Alexandria, Va., said reaction to the computer problems from member agents was minimal considering the circumstances.

The Sabre network, the most-used airline reservation system in the world, consists of computerized links between travel agents, airline reservations clerks and airport ticket counters worldwide.

About 300 major air carriers' reservation data also are included in the system, Hotard said.

Watcher program proposed at Ira

Reynolds said his office has already helped implement a Neighborhood Watch program in the Dunn area and that residents of Lake J.B. Thomas have begun their own independent of the SO.

"Professional burglars will go on to something better when they see the watch signs," Reynolds said.

Persons interested in the Neighborhood Watch program at Ira may contact him at the sheriff's office, 573-3551; or Huddleston in Ira at 573-5181.

"It's going to take getting the majority of people involved for it to be effective," Huddleston said.

Monday to be cutoff for prison staff posts

Monday is the deadline to apply for a list of staff vacancies which the Texas Department of Corrections is now trying to fill.

Individuals should apply in person at the Texas Employment Commission, 2501 "B" College Ave.

Two of the staff categories have more than one post open. TDC indicates it is in need of five food service manager Level I posts; and four individuals to be employed as Level II correctional counselors.

Other job openings include:

- Industrial supervisor III, assistant plant manager for the prison's warehouse facilities.
- Laundry manger, a Level III

post.

- Maintenance supervisor, a Level III post.
- A maintenance mechanic Level V specializing in carpentry and painting.
- An electrical and air-conditioning mechanic Level III, specializing in electrical wiring.
- An electrical and air-conditioning mechanic Level III, specializing in heating, air-conditioning and refrigeration.
- A unit safety officer.

WTC changes

Offices at Western Texas College will begin a summer schedule Monday. Until June 2, the offices will be open from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. Monday through Thursday and until noon on Friday.

From June 5-July 27, offices will be open Monday through Thursday each week.

Wreck causes minor injury

A Hermleigh woman was treated and released at Cogdell Memorial Hospital Friday after she was injured in a two-vehicle collision at 3:39 p.m. in the 1000 Block of the East Hwy.

Police said a 1978 Lincoln driven by Beverly T. Allen of Rt. 2, Hermleigh, was in collision with a 1984 Ford Diamond Motorhome driven by Earl Seffert of Parson, Kan.

Both vehicles had to be towed from the scene.

At 11:51 a.m. Friday at Snyder High School, a 1978 Chevrolet pickup driven by Michael J. Avila of 2601 47th St. was in collision with a 1988 Ford driven by Elizabeth A. Alvis of Rt. 3.

Marijuana arrest reported by DPS

A San Antonio couple was arrested for possession of marijuana at 9:30 p.m. Friday at U.S. 84 and Ave. F by state highway patrolmen.

The 23-year-old man and 18-year-old woman were taken into custody on the misdemeanor drug charges, and the woman was also charged with failure to identify herself by giving officers a false name.

Failure to identify oneself to police upon request is a misdemeanor offense.

A 16-year-old boy was arrested by city police for evading arrest at 2:12 a.m. Saturday at 27th St. and Ave. F, and a 15-year-old boy was taken into custody at the same time for evading arrest and public intoxication.

A 19-year-old man was arrested for PI at 12:21 a.m. Saturday in the 2500 Block of Ave. I.

several proposed capital expenditures.

Hochwalt said a family practice physician in Dallas, after giving strong indications that he might move to Snyder, last week decided to stay in Dallas and continue his practice of "academic medicine" instead.

Hochwalt reported on recent talks with general surgeons in two area cities and said securing a family practice doctor will probably be harder than finding a surgeon.

He said he will hire a physicians' recruitment company to help if the medical staff replacements are not made sometime within the next few weeks.

The board okayed spending $11,960 to paint and otherwise renovate the Medical Arts Building and Doctors Clinic in the Cogdell complex and an estimated $26,000 to re-carpet those buildings.

Hochwalt also outlined plans to take bids for the renovation of the shower area of the hospital's extended care unit.

The hour-long meeting was attended by board chairman Dan Cotton and members Jim Palmer, G.A. Parks, Jackie Smith and Roy McQueen. Janet Hall was absent.

Salas is a 26-year-old El Paso native who worked in personnel and payroll for clothing and hardware companies in her hometown before her husband, Ruben, accepted a technician's job with the Exxon Corp. and they moved to Snyder early this year. She worked for two Snyder furniture companies and joined the Snyder Police Department last week. The Salases have two children, 7-year-old Stevie Jo and 2-year-old Ruben. (SDN Staff Photo)

Ex-Interpol chief linked to drug cult

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The woman companion of a drug cult leader testified she tried to escape after he admitted killing people on a ranch near the Rio Grande and said the former head of Interpol in Mexico was the leader's "godson."

Sara Aldrete Villarreal, 24, and two other cult members were arraigned Friday on murder charges in the killing of their leader, Adolfo de Jesus Constanzo, and his closest associate.

Although she was one of the most-wanted suspects in the deaths of 15 people, many of whom were mutilated near the border city of Matamoros, she has not been charged in those crimes.

Another five people were arrested in Matamoros last month in connection with the killings.

Dressed in a beige prison uniform and standing behind bars in a chamber off the courtroom, Ms. Aldrete denied she was involved in Constanzo's death. While she testified, six uniformed officers with automatic rifles stood guard at the rear of the courtroom.

Looking surprised, she vigorously shook her head "No," when an official of the 58th Federal District Court, reading from a transcript of her statements during interrogation, said she urged Alvaro de Leon Valdez to obey when Constanzo, 26, ordered himself and Martin Quintana killed to avoid capture.

"Everyone was yelling" when police closed in, she said. "I was extremely nervous. What I yelled to Alvaro de Leon was that they stop shooting, that they (the police) were going to kill all of us."

"I never gave orders to kill Adolfo," she said.

She was arraigned on charges of murder in the two deaths, criminal association and resisting arrest. Also arraigned on murder and other charges were de Leon Valdez and Omar Francisco Orea, who has said he was a member of the cult and Constanzo's lover but was never on the ranch.

At the end of the proceedings, Ms. Aldrete's lawyer, Horacio Moyar Quintanilla, told the court there was no evidence to support the first two charges. He did not comment on the third.

He was allowed to speak with her only after she responded to the transcript, correcting some statements and adding others she said were left out.

One she said omitted reference to Florentino Ventura, a veteran police officer who authorities said killed his wife and another woman, then shot himself during an argument Sept. 17, 1988. He had been Interpol chief in Mexico since early 1985.

Interpol is a Paris-based organization that coordinates police actions against international criminals. Its full name is International Criminal Police Organization.

"Something that is not there is that also Florentino Ventura was a 'godson' of Adolfo, according to what Adolfo told me," Ms. Aldrete told the court. She did not elaborate.

She has said Constanzo also was her godfather in the sect.

Other testimony said Ventura had been initiated into the cult.

Ms. Aldrete has specified that she practiced "Christian Santeria," which she said did not include human sacrifices.

However, she described rituals involving sacrificial killings of animals. At one, in which she was blindfolded, she said she could hear chickens and the cries of a goat being killed.

"The way I found out about the deaths and everything that happened (at the ranch) was when the bodies were shown on television," she said. She said it was then that Constanzo told her how they were killed.

Officials have said cult members cut off body parts and boiled organs as part of the rituals.

She said four victims, including Texas college student Mark Kilroy, were human sacrifices. The others, she said, were killed over drugs, money or other disputes.

She said she suspected Constanzo was involved in drug trafficking "because of all the money that he carried and because of the frequent visits he made to Matamoros."

One victim had been her fiance and was killed because he owed Constanzo money, according to the transcript.

She said she was Constanzo's girlfriend for about a month in September 1987.

"When he commented to me about relations he had with Martin Quintana and Omar Orea I broke relations with him. We continued only as friends," she said.

She said after the bodies were found and the group fled to Mexico City, moving every few days, she wanted to leave, but Constanzo told her: "You won't leave here any way but dead since you are a loose cannon."

Once, when she was out alone, she returned only because she feared her family would be harmed if she didn't, according to the transcript.

She said she threw a note to a boy on the street below the fourth-floor apartment asking someone to call police and saying a woman was being held hostage. Prosecutors have the note.

As she talked briefly with the lawyer, she began to cry at the mention of her father, Israel Aldrete de Matamoros, who had brought her a blanket and personal items.

"I want to see my father," she said.

Judge Bernardo Tirado Gutierrez has until Monday to rule there is sufficient evidence to presume guilt or drop the charges. The three are not eligible for bond. If he orders them held, he then has a year in which to sentence them or find them innocent.

Charles Lindbergh died at his home in Hawaii in 1974. He was 72. Lindbergh was the first man to fly solo, non-stop across the Atlantic.

Church condemns Noriega's rule

PANAMA CITY, Panama (AP) — The Roman Catholic Church, highly influential in Panama, has condemned strongman leader Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega and called on his soldiers to quit terrorizing residents.

The church, in an unusually stern statement Friday, assailed last Sunday's elections as fraud-ridden and appealed to the Noriega supporters who beat the opposition candidates with pipes, sticks and rubber whips to act with moral restraint.

Latin American leaders also intensified efforts to negotiate an end to the crisis as hundreds of U.S. troops ordered in by President Bush to protect Americans in Panama or working at the Panama Canal arrived at U.S. bases. Nearly 1,900 U.S. soldiers are expected to arrive over the next week.

Meanwhile, Noriega and acting President Manuel Solis Palma remain out of sight. Neither has been seen in public or made a statement in a week.

The government, blaming the United States in part for interfering in internal affairs, nullified an election in which international observers said opposition candidate Guillermo Endara was beating Noriega's handpicked candidate, Carlos Duque, 3-to-1. No new elections have been scheduled.

Venezuela, a leader in the regional democratic effort and a vocal opponent of Noriega, recalled its ambassador Friday, following similar moves by the United States and Mexico.

The Washington Post reported in Saturday's editions that Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez, during an interview, offered Noriega asylum in Venezuela. The paper provided no further details on the offer.

The United States has sought to oust Noriega from power since he was indicted on drug-trafficking charges last year in Miami and Tampa, Fla. Noriega, head of the 15,000-member Defense Forces, denies the charges.

Bookkeeping class offered for beginners

Beginning bookkeeping will be taught at Western Texas College in a summer class meeting Monday through Thursday mornings.

Joann Snider will be the instructor for the course, listed on the schedule as BUS 235 (Automated Accounting I). Classes will meet from 9:45-11:25 a.m. Students will arrange additional lab time with the instructor.

Day classes will run six weeks, ending on July 7.

The principles of bookkeeping and accounting will be taught in this course. Some work will be done at the computer but a lot will be done by hand. Students are not required to have had previous bookkeeping or accounting courses.

Registration for summer classes will be held on May 30 and day and evening classes will begin May 31.

Bush calls for 'open sky' surveillance pact

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — President Bush on Friday revived an Eisenhower-era "open skies" proposal for mutual East-West surveillance flights, as he exhorted the Soviet Union to begin a friendship "that knows no season of suspicion, no chill of distrust."

He praised Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's political reforms and new policies of openness, but urged Gorbachev not to stop now.

To show there is nothing to hide, he suggested, other members of the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact and of NATO should join the superpowers in allowing unarmed aerial intelligence-gathering flights over their territories.

"Such surveillance flights, complementing satellites, would provide regular scrutiny for both sides," Bush said. "The very Soviet willingness to embrace such a concept would reveal their commitment to change."

The president commented in a speech to graduating seniors at Texas A&M University. He received an honorary doctoral degree and quipped to the students, "Your last day of college had to end with another presidential address."

Bush, announcing the completion of his administration's 3½-month review of U.S.-Soviet relations, also said he would work with Congress to ease a 15-year-old denial of trade credits in recognition of Moscow's liberalizing of emigration for Soviet Jews.

His speech was one of a series of foreign-policy addresses planned by the president.

It came a day after Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev told Secretary of State James A. Baker III that the Soviets would withdraw 500 short-range nuclear weapons in Eastern Europe.

For his part, Bush did not respond directly to that gesture, though he called on the Soviet Union to make deeper cuts in conventional forces in Europe.

However, National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft told reporters aboard Air Force One that Gorbachev's announcement was "a ploy" that he said "is designed principally to create problems within the (NATO) alliance."

The administration has opposed East-West talks on eliminating NATO's tactical nuclear weapons, a stance that has caused a rift with West Germany and several other NATO allies.

Bush mixed new overtures to ease East-West barriers with a dose of the kind of skepticism he has expressed before, urging Gorbachev to match the U.S. with a new openness with deeds.

The Soviet Union has promised a more cooperative relationship before, only to reverse course and return to militarism. Soviet foreign policy has been almost seasonal — warmth before cold, thaw before freeze," Bush said.

He called on the Soviets to permit the distribution of banned newspapers and books, to disavow links with terrorist nations such as Libya, to tolerate more political dissent within its borders and to free Eastern Europe from its grip.

"One day, it should be possible to drive from Moscow to Munich without seeing a single guard tower or strand of barbed wire," he said.

"In short, tear down the curtain," Bush said.

Bush praised recent moves toward political and economic reform, saying "a new breeze is blowing" in the Soviet Union — echoing the phrase he used in his inauguration speech.

"We are impressed by limited but freely contested elections. We are impressed by a greater toleration of dissent. We are impressed by a new frankness about the Stalin era."

"Mr. Gorbachev, don't stop now," he added.

Bush's idea for surveillance flights was an effort to breathe new life into a proposal first made by President Dwight Eisenhower in 1955.

Eisenhower's "open skies" proposal, rejected by the Soviets at the time, called for both the Soviets and the United States to send surveillance flights over each other's territory to check on military installations.

Bush aides said NATO allies had been consulted on the new proposal, and while some, especially Canada, had welcomed it, others had reserved judgment.

Gorbachev tries to seize initiative in Europe

MOSCOW (AP) — With NATO trying to settle a sharp internal dispute and his trip to West Germany a month away, Mikhail S. Gorbachev is trying to seize the initiative in Europe by offering a unilateral cut in tactical nuclear weapons.

The Soviet president made his move as the Bush administration emerged from a 3½-month foreign policy review that has delayed superpower arms talks.

U.S. officials said Gorbachev's plan to cut 500 warheads this year was not surprising and insufficient to make up for an overwhelming Warsaw Pact superiority in tactical weapons. And they said his plans to cut conventional weapons and forces follow some North Atlantic Treaty Organization proposals.

But the timing and the content of his proposal was plainly cast to put Gorbachev, already popular in Europe, in the role of an initiator of new ideas in what he calls "our common European home" as NATO squabbles over its policies.

On Friday, Secretary of State James A. Baker III met with NATO allies seeking to smooth differences over plans to modernize its tactical missiles.

Such modernization "is a matter of special concern not only for the Soviet Union, not only for Eastern Europe, but also for Europe as a whole, for it applies to a huge part of Europe and justifiably concerns the public, all Europeans," Gorbachev told Baker in talks Thursday. "Modernization calls in question the U.S. intentions."

A senior U.S. official said, "This is an emotional political issue in the West. They know that, and in part they are playing on that. It's an issue in Germany and Gorbachev is going to Germany next month."

Gorbachev's move followed a series of arms control proposals he put forward in the last two years that made him appear more dynamic than President Reagan. In London last month, Gorbachev tried to keep that momentum by announcing Soviet cuts in the production of radioactive materials for nuclear weapons.

But Western officials said the Soviets already had a sufficient stockpile of weapons-grade uranium.

The unilateral cut of 284 short-range missiles, 166 nuclear bombs and 50 nuclear artillery shells was announced only after Baker had held a news conference and left Moscow without referring to it.

But the U.S. official in Moscow, who spoke on condition he not further be identified, bristled at a suggestion the United States had been caught off guard by Gorbachev's proposal and did not know how to react.

"We were quite aware we could expect further unilateral moves," he said.

He said officials did not know whether the offer would occur Baker's visit or during Gorbachev's trip to West Germany June 12-15.

Most of the NATO force of Lance missiles is in West Germany, making it the linchpin in the dispute over tactical weapons. Chancellor Helmut Kohl has called for immediate negotiations on tactical weapons, which the Bush administration opposes until the Soviet Union reduces its estimated 12-1 superiority.

After leaving Moscow, Baker described Gorbachev's offer as a "good step, but a small step." The move affects about 5 percent of an estimated 10,000 battlefield nuclear weapons.

Gorbachev called for a ceiling of 1.35 million soldiers for both the Warsaw Pact and NATO to be met by 1996-97, and for limits on combat aircraft, tanks, and armored vehicles.

He proposed that both sides' nuclear arsenals in Europe be eliminated entirely by 1991.

The United States says nuclear weapons are essential to keeping the peace in Europe.

EDITOR'S NOTE — Mark J. Porubcankys has been an Associated Press correspondent in Moscow since February 1987.

Between 1983 and 1987, total U.S. imports from Latin America rose modestly, from $43.2 billion to $48.9 billion, but the share of manufacturers now represents 46.4 percent of the total, according to the Inter-American Development Bank.

Relative urges escapees: contact me or warden

BALCH SPRINGS, Texas (AP) — A man who escaped from the Texas Department of Corrections seemed confused when he stopped at his brother's home in this Dallas suburb, the brother says.

"I saw a very pitiful, mixed up man there," said Ronnie Roach of his brother Stephen, who appeared on his doorstep Thursday night with another male escapee and a female prison employee. "He seemed very confused."

Authorities continued the search early today for Stephen Roach, 43, and his companion, Ricky Don Shelton, 36, who escaped from the TDC's Ellis I unit near Huntsville Thursday.

The police and prison officials are unsure whether the woman is a hostage or traveling with the men willingly.

Ronnie Roach told the Dallas Times Herald he wants his brother to get in touch with him or his TDC warden.

"If he wants to stop what he's doing, I want him to know there's a way we can get it done right," the brother said.

Stephen Roach, 43, and Shelton, 36, were working as clerks in the farm shop when they fled in a car belonging to the prison employee Jean Watts, a 27-year old accounting clerk, officials said.

When John Johnson wants to relax and get away from it all, he indulges his passion for flying without ever leaving the ground.

At 20, the Snyder man had already earned his pilot's license and was flying the big planes, but, as he tells it, "when you have children it's difficult to justify the time and expense of flying the full size planes."

Now, his hobby is flying radio controlled model airplanes.

"Model airplanes are safer to fly than the real ones and they are a form of relaxation," he said.

At present, he has two which he flies, but in past years he has had as many as 10. While devoting much of his life to airplanes in various sizes and capabilities, Johnson first got into flying model planes in 1980, and has gotten more involved the past four years.

He was instrumental in establishing the Snyder Area Model Airplane Club three years ago. He said that he taught two others to fly and the three of them formed the club. Mainly, he explained, because they wanted to secure their own flying field.

Johnson said that they now have 25 people on their mailing list and he characterizes from 12-15 as "active" and about four to five as "very active." While the club is "small right now" he said it is on the "border of blossoming out."

Dues are $20 per year per member and membership in the club entitles the person to fly on the club's field.

The local club also offers junior memberships to age 18. Newcomers who join also have to join the Academy of Model Aeronautics (AMA) and that entitles them to fly on any AMA field.

Johnson said that newcomers are always welcome and he said that three members are willing to train others for free to help the club grow.

Johnson is the current president of the club and it meets on the first Thursday of each month at 7 p.m. at the TU Electric Crew Room on Avenue M.

When the club was formed three years ago, the first field used was located at Northeast Elementary School. Johnson said they eventually moved to the area behind the industrial building now owned by TDC. Club members used that field for a year but due to too many towers and lines in the area, Johnson said, they moved to their present location on land owned by Jess Everett.

The current airfield has been flattened and maintained and some small buildings have been erected there.

Johnson said that club members work hard to keep their flying field in tip top shape, especially after a rainstorm has passed through the area.

The club held its first fly-in recently and about 100 persons attended.

The next fly-in is slated for the 15th-18th in Odessa. Planes will only be allowed to compete if they have a wingspan of 80 inches or more. Various prizes will also be given away.

The Snyder Area Model Airplane Club has a "safety officer" who checks out all the airplanes to make sure they are safe. When a newcomer joins, Johnson said, members inspect the plane to make sure it is flyable and give tips on how to make it fly better.

Model airplanes can be expensive, but Johnson said a good way to break into the sport is to purchase a plane from someone else.

Hobby shops in Abilene, Odessa, and Lubbock sell the model airplanes in this area. Johnson said model planes can be bought "ARF" which means they are "almost ready to fly." He said they can be completed in six to eight hours. Planes built totally by hand may take from 50-150 hours to complete.

One of the model airplanes that Johnson likes to fly was built by his father, who has built around 50 planes altogether. Jerry Johnson lives in Colorado Springs, Colo. and started working with planes when he was just a kid. He has his license to fly and was an aviator in the U.S. Army.

Johnson loves to fly but said that some of the reasons he likes to fly model airplanes since you can make them do loops and other maneuvers not possible in the bigger planes.

Johnson said that it was harder for him to learn to fly the model airplanes because basically he taught himself how to do. He started on gliders when he was living in Oklahoma and then graduated to power planes. By then he was living in Lubbock and "had to learn how to fly the model planes all over again."

"Because I had flown the big planes I thought I could just walk right in and start flying the model airplanes, but that was not the case at all."

Each plane has a radio control which guide the plane. For instance, pushing the stick forward makes the plane dive.

Johnson said that beginners should start out on the slower planes and then gradually move up to the newer, faster models. Based on the concept that "money buys power," Johnson said he is looking to expand into jets. He has a particular eye on the model of an F16 Thunderbird.

Another interest he has is model helicopters. However, Johnson said it was hard for him to relax while he is flying the helicopter. But, he added that some enthusiasts get very good with them.

Model airplanes come in three styles, "pylons," which are the

UP, UP, AND AWAY--John Johnson of Snyder began flying model airplanes about nine years ago. The one in the photo has a wing span of 85 inches and weighs 15½ pounds. Johnson has built and flown many model airplanes over the years, but this particular plane was made by his father, Jerry Johnson, who lives in Colorado Springs, Colo.

Even though his father is both a licensed pilot and model airplane enthusiast, Johnson ended up getting into the sport on his own and he taught himself how to fly. He also became a licensed pilot at 20, but prefers to fly the models instead. He is the president of the Snyder Area Model Airplane Club. (SDN Staff Photo)

MICROWAVE Caramel-Apple Bake
Two 20-ounce cans sliced apples
16 vanilla caramels
1 tablespoon lemon juice

Topping: 1/2 cup all-purpose flour, 1/4 cup sugar, 1/4 teaspoon ground cinnamon, 2 tablespoons margarine or butter

Ice cream or frozen whipped dessert topping, thawed (optional)

Drain apples, reserving 1/4 cup liquid. Cut up large pieces of apple. Set aside. In a microwave-safe 1 1/2-quart casserole combine reserved apple liquid and caramels. Cook, uncovered, on 100 percent power (high) 2 to 3 minutes or until caramels are soft enough to stir smooth, stirring twice during cooking. Add apples and lemon juice. Toss to coat.

For topping, in a small mixing bowl combine flour, sugar and cinnamon. Cut in margarine until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Sprinkle topping evenly over apple mixture. Cook, uncovered, on high 7 to 9 minutes or until heated through. Serve warm with ice cream or whipped dessert topping, if desired. Makes 8 servings.

AMERICANS SEEKING HEALTHIER LIFESTYLES

Up to 80 percent of cancers may be related to the way people live, rather than hereditary causes.

A recent report from the National Cancer Institute (NCI) indicates that lifestyles have a vital role in an individual's cancer risk.

NCI has suggested that each individual consider seven areas of cancer risk in relation to lifestyles, including use of tobacco, diet, alcohol, radiation, work place, estrogens and viruses.

Whether we smoke and what we eat, for example, may have a lot more impact on cancer risk than forces beyond our control, such as heredity.

Offering the greatest potential for reducing cancer risk, according to the NCI report, are avoiding use of tobacco and eating right.

The report indicated that about 30 percent of cancer deaths are attributable to tobacco use and about 35 percent may be associated with diet.

The percentage of cancer deaths associated with the other five risk factors ranged from one to five percent each, according to the report.

Several surveys show that people are trying to stop smoking and cut their fat intake, the report indicated. Smoking among men 20 years and older dropped 10 percent between 1977 and 1983, but the percentage of women who smoke grew during that period.

People are beginning to take positive steps related to diet and alcohol consumption, but these changes are more modest.

A survey by NCI and the Food and Drug Administration found some improvements in public knowledge, attitudes and practices in the areas of tobacco use, diet and alcohol consumption.

Compared with respondents in a 1983 survey, more of those who were surveyed in 1985 said that avoiding, reducing or stopping smoking can reduce cancer risk, and reported they had taken action to improve or maintain health. Others mentioned that eating too much fat and not eating food with enough vitamins or fiber may be a health risk.

The report concluded that much educational work remains to be done to increase public knowledge about prevention of cancer.

SUMMER WEDDING — Mr. and Mrs. Wade Warren announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Leslie Ann, to Raferd "Rafe" Stanley Hargrove Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Raferd Hargrove of Rotan. North was cue-bidding, in this instance not to show a control but simply to tell partner that he should choose where to play the deal at the five-level. East's double gave South an extra round of bidding. He could pass to show an unexciting hand, but the five-diamond bid now carried implications of sound values, enough so that North bid six.

Alas, declarer's play did not match his bidding. He ruffed the opening lead, drew trumps and played A-K of clubs. When the queen did not drop, he played another club. At the end of the deal he lost to the queen of hearts and was one away.

Declarer has a better play, requiring only that diamonds and clubs split 3-2. He should ruff the opening spade, play a club to the king, ruff another spade, play a club to the ace, and ruff a third spade with a high trump. Now he can concede a club. He still has a high trump left to ruff another spade, and he can draw the opposing trumps with diamonds in the dummy, while throwing away his potential heart loser. Then the rest of the tricks can be taken with the high hearts and remaining good clubs.

Johnson said that electric model airplanes are becoming more popular all the time because they make very little noise.

He said some planes also get very sophisticated and can "drop bombs" while others have flight

The Johnsons moved to Snyder five years ago from Lubbock. He is the director of clinical services at Cogdell Memorial Hospital and Mrs. Johnson is a pharmacist at Snyder Drug.

LOVING TRUST. By Robert A. Esperti.

"Loving Trust: the right way to provide for yourself and guarantee the future of your loved ones" explains in clear, straightforward layman's language all the reasons for avoiding the high costs and often devastating results of the probate process, as well as the dangers inherent in conventional will substitutes.

pensive, easy to execute and truly caring alternative that is viable and virtually risk-free for everyone: married, divorced, single, wealthy or not. Bad things do happen to good people. Wills and conventional will substitutes can, unfortunately, make matters worse.

Having a loving trust can make all the difference, and this valuable book, once used, will make a lot of Americans feel good about themselves and more secure about the future of their loved ones.

Gallstone surgery

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although it is the second most frequently performed surgery, gallbladder removal is a frightening prospect for some patients.

Patients who resist surgery, along with those at high risk for this or any surgery, represent a challenge for doctors treating patients with gallstones.

"Patients having gallbladder removal surgery face a lengthy hospital stay, almost eight days on average, post-operative discomfort and several weeks of recuperation at home," says Dr. Hans Fromm of the George Washington University Medical Center. "There is also a significant mortality rate, with some 6,000 to 8,000 deaths reported each year. In my practice, I look at other options such as drug therapy, before recommending surgery to my patients."

Pizza smells good!

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Mom's homemade apple pie apparently has lost its emotional appeal.

Given a choice of what one thing they could smell for the rest of their lives, kids chose pizza.

At least that was the most popular answer in an essay contest — sponsored by a pharmaceutical company, not a pizzeria — for school children in grades one through six.

And what one sight would they like to add to a desert island? Their families — not necessarily including siblings — and their homes.

The contest was sponsored by Fisons Corporation, makers of Nasalacrom and Opticrom prescription allergy medication, to help children become aware of how important sight and smell are to their well-being.

More than 12,000 students answered.

"According to entrants, the powers of pizza are almost limitless," says contest director Beth Dauley. "It seems that the way to a youngster's heart is the nearest pizzeria."

Fabrics for all seasons

NEW YORK (AP) — Many winter clothes, such as those made of fur and mohair, are "season specific" and should be packed away as soon as the threat of frost has passed. But clothes of many other fabrics easily carry over from winter to spring, indeed can be worn year-round.

Jean Gilbert, senior vice president of fashion merchandising at AnnTaylor, says fashions of wool crepe and silk are good investments because they are transitional.

"Wool crepe is a good basic fabric that is lightweight and crisp," she says. "Suits made of this material carry over nicely, especially in basic colors such as ivory, black and taupe."

Other clothes and fabrics that work well in winter as well as spring:

— Skirts, short jackets and pants in silk, such as silk dupioni, can be worn in December as well as April and even carry over into the summer months. Colors such as red, black, navy or dark background prints can also work year-round. This fabric travels well and looks great for day or evening.

— A wardrobe "must" is a silk crepe de Chine blouse, for day or evening. How fussy or tailored it is is up to you.

— Cotton novelty sweaters have become year-round wardrobe staples, whether they are florals, patterns, polka dots, stripes, geometrics, plain.

— Merino wool sweaters in bright colors with gold buttons are fashionable, lightweight and versatile.

— Finer gauge cotton-knit cardigans or pullovers are ideal for layering. They can be worn under suits or with pants and skirts throughout the year.

With today's fabric selection, a woman's wardrobe can be less seasonal and more versatile.

Bibliophobics won't like book

NEW YORK (AP) — If you're reading this you might have logomania, but it's a safe bet you don't have optophobia.

Logomania (an abnormal love of words) and optophobia (fear of opening one's eyes) are among 360 phobias and manias defined in Ed Lucaire's book "Phobophobia" (a fear of fear itself).

A phobia, says the book's introduction, is a "morbid or excessive fear of" something, while a mania is "excessive or unreasonable enthusiasm about" something.

The idea for the book began with a letter Lucaire wrote to Johnny Carson.

"I had come across the word 'parthenophobia' — the fear of virgins or young women," says Lucaire, a New York advertising executive and student of words. "I found eight or 10 others, equally odd, but bona fide."

He put them in a letter to Carson, who turned them into a comedy routine on the "Tonight" show. It was the type of skit, says Lucaire, "that Carson normally would do on a book."

Inspired, Lucaire compiled a book defining all the genuine phobias and manias he could find. As a result, his list ranges from acarophobia to zoophobia — or, from the fear of skin infestation by mites and ticks to the fear of animals.

According to the book, Napoleon, Mussolini, Julius Caesar, Alexander the Great and Genghis Khan, besides being powerful leaders, shared another trait — gatophobia, a fear of cats.

Some phobias are not what they appear to be. For example, autophobia may sound like an aversion to automobiles, but it's really a fear of being oneself; similarly, xylophobia is a fear of the forest, not of xylophones.

Readers may discover that some of the phobias Lucaire found, such as a fear of heights (acrophobia) and a fear of crowds (demophobia) are easier to relate to than others, such as hedonophobia (fear of pleasure) and euphobia (fear of good news).

Lucaire, a psychology major at Amherst, assembled his book from many sources. "I researched books such as medical texts and psychiatric dictionaries," he says, adding that he was unable to find a single volume with all known phobias in it.

Although the paperback is presented in a light vein and illustrated with cartoons, the author sees its serious side.

"My book became more than just a comedy routine," he says. "It became a mission to take all the phobias I could find and authenticate and put them into one book."

Lucaire says he sees a potentially large audience for the book, including psychiatrists, students — and neurotic Americans.

It's likely, though, that none of those readers will have bibliophobia — a fear of books.

"Phobophobia" is published by Perigee Books.

Hearing loss easy to deny

NEW YORK (AP) — Hearing loss is three times as prevalent as vision problems among adults over 45, according to the National Center for Health Statistics, yet that same group is twice as likely to wear eyeglasses as hearing aids.

In fact, less than one-third of the estimated 16 million Americans who could benefit from hearing aids actually use them because they can control much of the volume around them — and thus ignore or hide a hearing loss for a long time.

"In many cases, people will seek help only at the urging of another family member," says John Megale, an audiologist and hearing instrument specialist in Winchester, Va. "For a while, they will try to deny having a hearing loss. But eventually, they grow tired of being told they talk or play the TV too loud and their friends are tired of being told they mumble, or of getting nonsensical answers to their questions."

According to Megale, those are some of the warning signs of hearing loss. Others include hearing but not understanding and difficulty understanding in a large group or when not facing the speaker.

Once you recognize these warning signs, the next step is to take a hearing test.

"Education about hearing help is the key to increasing awareness and acceptance," says Carole Rogin, executive director of the Hearing Industries Association. For example, she says after President Reagan's first hearing aid was highly publicized in 1983, industry sales jumped 20 percent.

"The big news in hearing instruments is how small they have become," says Lawrence Posen, president of Beltone Electronics Corporation, manufacturer of hearing instruments.

Like Reagan's canal instruments, he says, new models are form fitted to an individual's ear contours. Once in place, these finger-tip size devices virtually disappear. According to Posen, even today's smallest models pack a lot of sophisticated equipment.

They have amplifiers customized to the amount of hearing loss by adjusting the shape of the frequency response curve. Some have automatic noise filters that can adjust for annoying background noise such as that at a restaurant or cocktail party.

"Hearing starts its gradual deterioration at the age of 30, but a sudden shock, illness or some medications may speed up the process," says Dr. Allan H. Bruckheim, a specialist in family medicine and vice chairman of the National Council of Patient Information and Education.

"Anyone over 50 should have an annual hearing test," he says.

If your doctor doesn't test hearing as part of your regular physical, ask him to do so or go to a hearing specialist.

For information on protecting your hearing, a list of the 10 warning signs of hearing loss and an explanation of the hearing test and types of hearing help available, write "The Better Hearing Book," Dept. 77766, 4201 W. Victoria St., Chicago, IL 60646.

Fake the bronze look without sun

NEW YORK (AP) — If you want the look of a tan without broiling at the beach or in a tanning booth, try creams or lotions that mimic a tan, says Dr. Daphne Roe, dermatologist and professor of nutrition at Cornell University.

These can be either long lasting or temporary cosmetics that wash off, she says, and both are generally assumed to be safe.

Roe recommends avoiding bronzing pills because they contain a compound that can build up in the eye, possibly causing damage.

"One of the oldest and possibly safest remedies for winter-pale skin is walnut juice," she says, "which can be rubbed on as a skin stain."

Winter wheat...

Drought, cold produce smallest harvest

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's winter wheat harvest may be the smallest since 1978 because of lingering drought and severe freeze damage in some major producing areas.

As a result, the thriving U.S. export trade may slacken and some additional upward pressure will be put on consumer food prices, says the Agriculture Department. One bright spot for the lucky farmers: wheat market prices probably will rise further.

The USDA said Thursday in its major crop estimate of the new season that winter wheat production may be about 1.43 billion bushels, down 8 percent from last year's 1.56 billion bushels — despite a boost in planted acreage.

Officials said the average yield, based on indications as of May 1, was estimated at 34.9 bushels per harvested acre, compared with last year's 39.2 bushels per acre.

Farmers are expected to have about 41 million acres for harvest this year, up 3 percent from 39.8 million in 1988, said the department's Agricultural Statistics Board. But there has been widespread abandonment by growers.

Initially, plantings totaled 54.7 million acres, meaning that only 75 percent of the acreage planted is good enough to harvest this year. The report said that is the lowest since 1951.

Reggie Wyckoff, president of the National Association of Wheat Growers, said drought in the central Great Plains and freeze damage in the Pacific Northwest have ravaged crops.

"As a result, farmers in these areas deserve to receive federal assistance similar to that offered last year" when drought devastated the northern plains and the Corn Belt, he said.

Last year Congress approved a $3.9 billion emergency aid package to help relieve some of the drought damage. Many have urged USDA to extend the major drought relief program to growers who have had similar losses, but the administration says it is up to Congress.

The new estimates provide "solid evidence of this season's losses, and conditions will probably get worse rather than better," Wyckoff said in a statement issued here.

"Conditions point to lower yields than last season in the central and southern plains, the Southeast and along the Pacific Coast states," the report said.

The Kansas wheat crop was estimated at 202.4 million bushels, less than two-thirds of the state's 1988 production of 323 million bushels. Washington's harvest showed a comparable decline, with output estimated at 68.9 million bushels against 108.5 million last year.

Despite the sharp losses in the winter wheat areas, USDA economist Ralph Parlett said the effect will be mild on grocery shoppers.

"It's going to be small, but it will have an effect," he said in a telephone interview.

Parlett said a $1 loaf of bread has about seven cents worth of wheat in it. Theoretically, he said, if the cost of wheat doubled the loaf would still cost only $1.07. But he emphasized again that was a theoretical example.

Winter wheat is planted in the fall and harvested the following summer. It makes up about three-fourths of total U.S. wheat production. The remainder is planted in the spring.

Inmate sentenced in escape 28 years ago

LONDON, Ohio (AP) — An inmate who surrendered after escaping from the London Correctional Institution 28 years ago has been sentenced to an additional six months in prison.

Sylvan Carter, 61, was sentenced Thursday after pleading guilty in Madison County Common Pleas Court. By pleading guilty, he waived the right to indictment by a grand jury.

Carter was sentenced in April 1961 to one to five years in prison after pleading guilty in Hamilton County to a charge of possession of burglary tools. He escaped four months later by boarding a bus leaving the prison for Cincinnati.

In the next 28 years, he spent most of the time in Houston, where he raised a family and worked as an iron worker while living under his father's name, Willie Edward Carter.

Carter surprised prison authorities and attracted national attention when he turned himself in to Cincinnati authorities in March.

Carter's attorney, Ohio Public Defender Randall Dana, said investigations by the FBI, State Highway Patrol and Hamilton County authorities revealed no other criminal charges while he was at large.

Dana said that during those years, Carter was a productive citizen, was active on a state level with the Fraternal Order of Eagles and helped with charitable community activities.

Carter appeared to become emotional during his sentencing, wiping his eyes with a handkerchief, when Dana read a petition signed by 47 Houston residents asking for a full pardon.

Carter apologized to the state for any inconvenience his escape may have caused.

"I hope the court and the state of Ohio understand why I did what I did and accepts my apology," he said.

Dana said he will ask that Gov. Richard Celeste pardon Carter on both the original charge and the escape.

Supreme Court blocks execution

BOISE, Idaho (AP) — The U.S. Supreme Court issued an order Thursday blocking the scheduled Monday execution of an Idaho slayer.

Idaho officials were notified by telephone Friday that the Supreme Court approved a stay of execution for Bryan Lankford, while it considers his appeal.

Lankford, 28, originally from Conroe, Texas, has been sentenced to death for the July, 1983, murders of U.S. Marine Corps Capt. Robert Bravence and his wife Cheryl, both of El Paso, Texas.

He was resented to death May 1 by District Judge George Reinhardt. The next day, the Idaho Supreme Court refused to block the May 15 execution at the Idaho State Penitentiary south of Boise.

Lankford attorney Joan Fisher, Moscow, then filed a petition with Supreme Court Justice

Sandra Day O'Connor.

On Thursday, Idaho Solicitor General Lynn Thomas said he received notice that a stay of execution was granted, "pending the timely filing and disposition by this court of a petition for a writ of certiorari (asking the U.S. Supreme Court to review lower court action)."

If the petition is denied, the court said its stay would terminate automatically. If it granted, the stay will remain in effect until the appeal is decided.

It's the second trip to the U.S. Supreme Court for Lankford. The court earlier vacated a death sentence and ordered the Idaho Supreme Court to review the Lankford case to see if a Texas death penalty decision had any application. The Idaho court reaffirmed its earlier decision upholding the conviction and death penalty ordered for Lankford.

By Donny Brown

The first rule for umpiring kid league baseball is, never-ever wear a funny hat.

This kind of goof will only give the fans a reason to dislike you. And, as any kid league ump knows, simple dislike can progress to madder than hell on the turn of a single call.

We have worked out our kid league umpire rules in the school of hard knocks. In this town, if your kid plays in the 8 to 9 year-old league, expect to be called up for umpiring duty.

This means the dads are "umping" at first and third. If you're unlucky enough to be the visiting team that day, you'll likely get stuck at first.

That means you'll be in front of the opposing teams' dugout and bleacher-full of fans.

On any given day, expect to have a minimum of one close call on the pitch out to first and quite possibly more. There are a lot of hits in kid league baseball.

Which brings me to the safety rules for unpaid, unheralded, unsolicited and generally unloved umpires.

We mentioned the hat. Wear only the standard-issue gimme cap, preferably one with some neutral slogan across the front. In this league, an oil field company logo is your best bet.

SDN Opinion Page

Columns-Cartoons-Look Back-Letters-Quotables

Avoid hats which say things like "I'd Rather Be Fishing." There is nothing wrong with the sentiment, but the less personal information your bleacher-full of fans has, the better off you will be if things go from testy to hot.

In particular, avoid the previously mentioned funny hat. Broad-brimmed straw hats only encourage comments. The same with cloth hats with the brim turned down and those "Jungle Jim" helmets favored by some golfers.

Also, wear a hat which can be firmly planted on top of your head. A hat that has the potential to be blown off is a hat which has the potential to cause you merciless ridicule.

No one has sympathy for an umpire in any case, particularly one dumb enough to wear a funny hat that blows off at work.

We would also recommend against wearing shorts. This is West Texas, and the wearing of shorts in public by men is still a relatively new concept, only 15 to 20 years old.

It has gained in popularity, no doubt, but some attitudes in these parts still change a might slow.

In general, kid league umpires should dress "down," keeping it as simple as possible. In no circumstance should they attempt to dress "like" an umpire, that is, black pants, black shirt and, in most particular, that funny little short-brimmed black hat.

Dressing in this way will indicate to the bleacher-full of fans that you think you know what you're doing and perhaps even enjoy it.

The only argument you have for a really stinking call is, "Hey, I didn't ask for this abuse," or, "If you can do any better, be my guest!"

As a final recommendation, we suggest dark sun glasses to go with your standard issue gimme cap. This is a "just in case" precaution, following the assumption that things might turn really ugly. If this happens, you'll need an exit plan from the park.

Assuming the bleacher-full of fans takes the notion to enter the field of play, the well dressed kid league umpire should immediately pitch the hat and glasses—fashion items which tend to make you look like any other guy wearing hat and glasses.

With this final small subterfuge, and assuming you dressed correctly to begin with, you may still be able to blend into the angry crowd.

If you are successful in this, we recommend acting exactly as they do. The expression you will be repeating is, "Kill the umpire! Kill the umpire!"

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

I don't know what it is about mothers and daughters. Books have been written by people much smarter than me and it seems that those authors haven't been able to figure it out, either.

I do know that when my woman friends and I get together for our infamous mother-daughter slumber parties to watch movies and eat fattening things and gab all night, we always wind up discussing our mothers at some point. We always laugh as we do so, a laughter mixed with nervousness, love and a little guilt.

Sometimes we tell "crazy mother" stories, like the time one of us related her mother's habit of sending huge "care packages" to her which consisted of a big box of worn-out old things she found lying around the house that she no longer wanted and so shipped off to her daughter. Things like old panty hose, pencil stubs, and rubber bands. (Habits spawned, no doubt, by the Depression—something the "me generation" will never comprehend.)

Mostly we throw up our hands at how different we are from our mothers, how unable our mothers are to understand us, how our life-choices don't resemble anything about the way we grew up. Strong statements about our individuality. Then we go home and think things like, "You know, she'd die if she knew just how much like her mother she really is."

Most women, if you ask them, will deny being anything at all like their mothers. They feel very strongly about this. Indeed, the idea of being just like one's mother is actually frightening to most women. It has nothing to do with love. It has everything to do with identity.

And yet, observe how we women raise our children and see, just see, if we don't do it in almost exactly the same way we ourselves were raised. Granted, each of us makes enough changes to correct whichever mistakes we think our mothers made with us, but generally speaking, our households are more alike than different.

Strange that fathers and sons don't seem to have this emotional confusion. Nor do fathers and daughters or mothers and sons. And the cataclysmic changes that society has seen in the past two generations has only exaggerated that emotional confusion.

The mothers of us baby boomers grew up in a world of blacks and whites, right and wrong, nice girls don't and bad girls do. Period. Their lives were prescribed for them from birth. And yet their daughters—in the span of a decade—passed from the world of Andy and Mayberry to a world of "if it feels good, do it," "sexual revolution," and "women's liberation." Our mothers found themselves caught in a trap between generations and had no idea how to get out.

Now we are raising our daughters in a world so different from the world in which we spent our childhoods, that world of safety and innocence and boundaries and clear expectations—it's gone. We have to teach our little girls about drugs and AIDS and child-snatchers. They cry in their beds from fear of the future and we don't know how to comfort them because we are afraid of it. We wish we could bind them to us forever and protect them from all of life's harms. We pray.

And all along, we struggle with choices and freedoms that our mothers never knew. They envy us for that. Sometimes they fail to realize how overwhelming freedom can be. How tough it is to make decisions that were not available to them to make.

What's best for the marriage? What's best for the children? What's best for US?

It seems that, all the while, our daughters are watching, even scrutinizing, every choice we make; remembering, storing, maybe even emulating. Did we watch our mothers in just this way? Did we make a conscious choice to be "different"? And if so, why?

All I know is that when I look at my son, I know that he will be protected from the power of my love because he is already "different." He will be a man someday. But my daughter...there are times I look at her and she is ME; I think that somehow I should know her better. I excuse behavior from her that I otherwise wouldn't because I identify so strongly with it. Yes, I think...that's just the way I was when I was a girl.

Then, when I least expect it, she becomes secretive, private, even hostile, hoarding her own precious sense of self. She flares up at me, as if to prove just how different we really are. It's confusing, and sometimes it hurts. When my son is angry, it is just anger. When my daughter is angry...it's a betrayal.

And yet, I celebrate her dif-

CAUTION: AVOID FOUR-LETTER WORDS ON MOTHER'S DAY.

ferentness. If she didn't have it, who knows? She might be consumed by my overwhelming love. Suffocated in the folds of my embrace. This way she is free to soar, a kite still connected by love's string. As Ryder Brady wrote in the May 9 issue of "Woman's Day": "Now I look up to you, another kite, flying high above me, caught by the wind...I look down and see Mummy's face below, raised to watch and wonder at my flight, just as mine is lifted to watch yours. Just as you will look skyward and hold on tight, when your daughter catches the updraft and glides toward the sun."

SDN Week in Review

SUNDAY

May 7

Snyder High School's 21st appearance at the state UIL one-act play contest garnered a second place win in Austin, it was reported Sunday.

Snyder's "Blood Wedding" was chosen first runner-up and Coy Berryman was chosen best actor and Kristi Mize was named best actress.

A new manager for the local office of Lone Star Natural Gas has been named and is due to report here May 15, it was reported Sunday.

Snyder's new manager will be Phillip Cockrell, currently the Lone Star manager in Cisco.

MONDAY

May 8

Mayor Troy Williamson has been elected to his second two-year term, as has incumbent council member Paul Zeck, it was reported Monday.

The council gained one new member as Mike Thornton was elected from a field of four candidates seeking the two at-large council posts.

Incumbent Luann Burleson was returned for a second term and Sam Robertson was elected for his first to the Snyder school board, it was reported Monday.

Burleson received 546; Robertson, 501; incumbent Ken Branam, who had withdrawn from the race, 129; and Mark Zeck, 281.

Four Snyder High School students placed among the Top 10 at their respective events in state competition, it was reported Monday.

Ken Gartman was third in the typing contest; Corey McDaniel finished third in poetry interpretation and Kristi Mize was fifth in the same event; and Darrell Dolliver was seventh in the science events.

Snyder ISD is facing an estimated $1 million loss in tax-related income next school year, but school officials said Monday they hope to offset this by a combination of increased state-provided monies and a "dip" into the district's reserve funds.

The "good news" offered trustees Monday was that proposed legislation at the state level—already passed by the Senate and now under consideration by the House—would see Snyder ISD receive an estimated $400,000 increase from state sources.

School trustees for Snyder ISD directed administrators to reinstate $400 per year supplemental payments to a handful of local teachers who received their masters degree prior to a change in district policy implemented almost three years ago.

Snyder EMS, which provides ambulance service to Snyder and Scurry County, has upgraded its level of "pre-hospital" care to advanced life support status.

Such medical treatment must be offered under the guidance of a physician, and the medical staff at Cogdell Memorial gave Snyder EMS staffers the go-ahead for these procedures effective May 5.

City council members Monday night passed on first reading an exotic animals ordinance that spawned protests last month from a Snyder family that is keeping a Bengal tiger.

TUESDAY

May 9

Snyder High School senior Kevin Winter was announced as the valedictorian of the 1989 graduating class Tuesday and classmate Jeff Franklin was named salutatorian in awards day ceremonies held at the campus.

WEDNESDAY

May 10

A time-frame for the next round of Texas prison construction and verbal approval of Cogdell Hospital's proposal to provide medical services at the Price Daniel unit have been obtained, it was reported Wednesday. The Texas Department of Corrections board in Austin will request proposals from interested communities on May 19. These must be submitted by 5 p.m. on June 30.

A 132nd District Court jury denied Wednesday a Snyder woman's claims that a revival preacher was legally liable for "uneven flooring," specifically a carpet laid across bare ground, which caused her to fall and break her ankle at a meeting here on Oct. 15, 1985.

THURSDAY

May 11

A reorganization of the Snyder school board Thursday turned out to be no reorganization at all.

By unanimous vote, trustees opted to retain Billy Bob McMullan for his second term as board president and Luann Burleson for her second term as vice president.

FRIDAY

May 12

Thirty-nine of the 118 Western Texas College students receiving diplomas Friday night graduated with honors.

SDN Letters to the Editor

To the editor,

Thank you, Scurry County, for so generously supporting May Day 1989. Your caring and giving attitude allowed the Scurry County Senior Center to raise a gross amount of $24,667.79. $18,675 of that total was from the auction. Without YOU, whether you were donor, bidder or buyer, this would not have been possible.

The center serves a special part of our society, those 60 years of age or more. Participation in the center continues to rise. Center programs offer valuable support and companionship for those served. It is vital that we be able to continue these programs and once again, Scurry County folks, you have made it possible.

May we say "Thank You" again for your support of our annual fund raiser, May Day 1989. We look forward to seeing you on May 5, 1990 at May Day '90.

Scurry County Senior Center Advisory Council

To the editor,

The Special Olympics track team has been in practice sessions since February. Twenty-three of the athletes participated in the Area 14 meet in Abilene, April 21. Eighteen of the team have been selected to take part in the state games in San Marcos, May 23-26. This allotted quota for Snyder was given from the state office in Austin.

We have not entered the state games for the past three years. See LETTERS, page 9B

FIVE YEARS AGO

Guy Staton was valedictorian and Susan Brim was salutatorian of the SHS Class of '84.

Howard "Rue" Gambol was honored by the Texas Parks and Wildlife Commission and local law enforcement officers with the Shikar Safari Award for Texas Conservation Officer of the Year. The award came in conjunction with his retirement following 16 years of service as game warden.

Ken Holt, manager of Everybody's Thriftway, was named Boss of the Year by the Scurry Charter Chapter of American Business Women's Association.

David Rockefeller, representing the Rockefeller Foundation, visited Snyder to present a $10,000 arts award to Snyder High School.

Lilith McArthur was the only '84 WTC graduate earning a 4.00 grade average.

Jessie Price with Union Oil was honored for 20 years of service with a luncheon at the Snyder Country Club and a 20-yr. pin.

Lisa Allen was the Ira valedictorian and Aaren Middlebrooks was named salutatorian.

Honor students in Hermleigh were Candy Shoemaker, valedictorian, and Alicia Guzman, salutatorian.

Advice to help a spleen problem

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I was diagnosed as having autoimmune hemolytic anemia last summer. I've been on prednisone since then in varying degrees of strength and still have side effects from it. My doctor now thinks the problem may be my spleen. I don't want to stay on the prednisone but can't afford a splenectomy. Is surgery the only answer for me?

DEAR READER: Anemia is caused by four factors: insufficient production of red blood cells (from vitamin or iron deficiency), hemolysis (hemorrhage), improper formation of red corpuscles (as in thalassemia and sickle cell disease) or destruction of adult red blood cells.

You evidently have this last type of anemia, in which your body has mistakenly instructed your immune system to destroy the blood cells. Auto-immune means "self-allergy"; hemolytic refers to bursting of your normal red corpuscles from this allergy. Anemia (too few red blood cells) results. Many medicines, including antibiotics, can trigger hemolytic anemia. The condition can result from incompatible blood transfusions.

Also, certain diseases, such as infections and cancer, are associated with hemolytic anemia. In some patients, no obvious cause can be discovered.

In treating autoimmune hemolytic anemia, doctors attempt to interfere with the immune system's aggressive destruction of red corpuscles. Prednisone, a type of cortisone, is useful for this purpose and will often "turn off" the body's immune response and prevent anemia.

However, as you've discovered, there is a trade-off. Prednisone has unpleasant side effects, including osteoporosis, cataracts, diabetes, changes in facial characteristics and susceptibility to infection.

Since the spleen is usually an important factor in aggravating hemolytic anemia, its removal often cures this affliction. Therefore, in patients who do not respond to chronic prednisone therapy — or who cannot tolerate it because of side effects — splenectomy (removal of the spleen) should be considered. Because the spleen is not a vital organ, you may be better off in the long run without it.

You should obtain a second opinion from a hematologist, a specialist in blood diseases, who will review your care and determine if splenectomy — or other treatment — would be advisable.

Perot warns of economic calamity

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Billionaire entrepreneur H. Ross Perot said the United States faces an economic calamity unless the U.S. government and its citizens change their extravagant spending habits.

If he had the authority, Perot said, he would go to Washington, D.C., and say: "Guys, I don't care about what George Bush knew or didn't know (about Iran-contra). I don't care that Jim Wright's wife got a Cadillac or any other of the (minutiae) that dominate our lives."

Instead, he said he would tell the leaders to stop spending, to go on a severe fiscal diet and set a positive example for U.S. citizens.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm 17 and have very short hair. It's been this way for two years now. My mom suggests vitamins but they haven't helped. What can I do?

DEAR READER: Short hair can reflect a nutritional deficiency, a scalp disorder (such as seborrhea) or a tendency for the hair shafts, if they are too dry, to break.

I suggest you see a dermatologist because you may have an easily treatable cause for your short hair.

I sometimes think I am practicing medicine in a time-warp. That is, I am adhering to an ethical standard that was popular at mid-century.

Along with other practitioners in my rural community, I treat the sick and, when necessary, admit them to our local hospital or nursing home. This simple arrangement is traditional; it was the accepted way of doing things in the 1960s when I hung out my shingle.

In certain parts of the country, however, my simple system has been superseded by a more sophisticated scheme called "physician practice enhancement." In a word: kickbacks. Obviously, my colleagues and I are no longer on the cutting edge of first-class medicine.

According to Walt Bagdanich and Michael Waldholz, writing in The Wall Street Journal of Feb. 27, 1989, hospitals and doctors are combining in an unholy alliance to market patients as income-producers, rather than viewing sick people as folks in need of care. Patients are being bought by hospital chains. And physicians are selling.

In Philadelphia last year, 400 physicians were charged with taking kickbacks because, for a fee, they sent patients to a single medical testing laboratory.

A Houston healer has alleged that American Medical International, a hospital chain, recently paid $1 million to subsidize a group of physicians in return for their pledge to send patients to Twelve Oaks Hospital. American Medical is also being sued in California for paying $1.2 million in kickbacks to the Hawthorne Medical Group.

Shortly before it was closed last year, the Northeastern Ohio General Hospital paid $75,000 to a group of six physicians who were core members of the Madison Clinic. This special "loan" didn't have to be repaid; all the MDs had to do was admit "not less than 75 percent" of their patients to the hospital.

In 1986, in the same community, two other physicians asked for, and received, forgiveness loans for $30,000 apiece.

Some small health facilities, like Sheridan Park Hospital near Buffalo, N.Y., merely offered undisguised incentives to staff physicians; any doctor who admitted at least 10 patients a month could choose a dinner for two or a round of golf at the local country club.

Finally, Methodist Hospital in Minneapolis could not be prosecuted for paying $2.5 million in bounties to a physicians' group because ineffective state laws did not prohibit the buying and selling of private patients who are not Medicare or Medicaid recipients.

These are the unsavory ways that some unscrupulous hospitals try to stay alive by filling beds. Because they feel vulnerable, they turn to a variety of rackets which encourage practitioners to admit patients to one hospital in preference to another, equally competent but competitive facility.

Fortunately, these unethical marketing tricks are by no means universal. Most hospitals try to give the best care they can and that's that — no forgiven loans, financial inducements, "physician bonding," fancy dinners or country club memberships.

However, a lack of enough sick people is making these practices increasingly more widespread. Lucrative kickbacks to physicians may become commonplace in the next few years.

I hope I'll be retired by then. I've never been offered an incentive such as this, and I hope I never will be. I'm comfortable operating under a moral ethical system that forbids kickbacks. The old system worked and I'm happy with it. Patient bounties keep health costs up and encourage unnecessary medical services.

"Patients shouldn't be swapped for financial considerations," says the Wall Street Journal article, and I agree.

Regrettably, patients seldom know about these secret deals. Sick people need to trust their doctors, to believe that their practitioners will behave in the patients' best interests. This fundamental aspect of medical care appears to be undergoing an inexorable process of erosion, as doctors and hospitals become increasingly obsessed with corporate, for-profit, bottom-line considerations. Perhaps this is one of the reasons why the public objects to health care that is metamorphosing from a service profession into an industry.

Next, let's talk about the ethics of physician-owned laboratories.

Texas judicial system feels backlash of Adams incident

DALLAS (AP) — The widely publicized vindication of former death row inmate Randall Dale Adams has created public mistrust of Texas prosecutors and is forcing them to think about fair play, local attorneys say.

The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals capital murder conviction March 1 and he walked from prison March 22 after an appeals process that stemmed from a documentary film saying Adams had been unfairly convicted.

Since then, a prosecutor involved in the case has been fired, two others have resigned, a former Dallas detective has been investigated — and cleared — on perjury allegations, and the State Bar of Texas has begun a review of claims that a former prosecutor suppressed evidence in Adams' 1977 trial.

In April, 17 potential jurors had to be stricken from a Dallas murder case panel after saying they distrusted prosecutors.

One said he could not believe anything presented by Assistant District Attorney Winfield Scott, who led a last-minute rally to keep Adams behind bars.

Scott since has been fired. "I think it's too early to tell whether anything positive will come out of this," said Adams' attorney, Randy Schaffer of Houston. "They terminated Winfield Scott — that's a start."

"This case might have brought don't play fair — in a real dramatic way," said Leslie McFarlane, who represented the state when Adams was arguing for a new trial, then resigned shortly after the case was dropped.

"It might have cost the district attorney a credibility price in the short term, but I don't think so, in the long run."

Ms. McFarlane said she believes it was right to drop the charge.

due to the lack of volunteers to assist the athletes. This year we are very fortunate to have more volunteers and are very thankful for them and all of the hard work they have done.

Our special athletes are athletes in every sense of the word. The motto for Special Olympics is, "Let me win, but if I cannot win, let me be brave in the attempt." This simply means that each one who enters is putting forth his best effort according to his capability. All who enter are winners just by being able to compete.

We have had a number of businesses, organizations and individuals who have donated to make it possible for the team to go to San Marcos and to help buy new team shirts. To all of these people, the athletes and the volunteers say, "Thank you."

I also want to take this opportunity to thank all of the volunteers. Without them our program could not continue. We are very proud of the Snyder Special Olympians.

Astro-Graph By Bernice Bede Osol

Your Birthday

May 14, 1989

There will be a definite market in the year ahead for special know-how or knowledge you possess. Don't sell yourself short, because what you have to offer will have real value.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You have a commanding presence about you again today, but it is not one that companions will find offensive. In fact, your conduct will serve to enhance your image. Taurus, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You're not likely to be overly concerned today as to who or whom gets credit for doing this or that. Getting the job done right will be more important than taking bows.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Your influence over your intimate circle of friends is very pronounced today. Use it in ways that will do the greatest good for the largest number.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your material prospects continue to look encouraging and it appears as though there is a valuable opportunity you haven't developed to its fullest potential yet. Make your breaks count.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Listen attentively today to information passed on to you by profound thinkers. Someone may say something that could have a beneficial effect on your life.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A joint venture could turn out to be very advantageous for you today, especially if it's one where another has already done the spade work and you play a supporting role.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Although you are likely to feel independent today, you'll find that the situations which offers you the greatest benefits will be those where you work closely with a partner.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Do not put limitations on what you hope to achieve today if you are working within your capabilities and talents. The aspects indicate you could surprise yourself as well as others.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You could be rather lucky today in involvements that have obvious elements of chance. However, be sure you take a gamble only for the right reasons.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Your progress is likely to be slow but steady most of the day. By evening you should be able to look back with a pleasant sense of accomplishment.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) People who have to deal with you on a one-to-one basis today will find you extremely agreeable. Your attitude will encourage others to treat you very graciously.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Larger than usual rewards for personal achievement are a possibility at this time. This should be especially true in situations where you are performing services for another.

Your Birthday

May 15, 1989

In the year ahead you may become involved in an enterprise or venture that will be both original and unique. It will have good possibilities and could be a turning point in your life.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Strive to be methodical and orderly where your work is concerned today. If your procedures are faulty, the end results are apt to be undesirable. Major changes are ahead for Taurus in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Wishful thinking mustn't be allowed to replace reality today or else you may visualize something that is yet to happen as though it is already a foregone conclusion.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You could disrupt domestic tranquility today if you begin to make changes that affect the entire family without first talking them out.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be careful at this time that you don't get all excited about or involved in trying to promote something the world doesn't want or need. What you have to offer must make sense.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) It won't take much to arouse your extravagant inclinations today, so try to keep this in mind if you go out shopping. To be safe, leave your credit cards at home.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Family affairs aren't apt to run like a well-oiled machine today. If you're prepared to deal with the unexpected, you'll not get too flustered if a mishap occurs.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Your hunches and insights could be misleading today, so guard against reacting impulsively. Take ample time to think important moves through.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Be careful in dealings with friends today if money is involved. There's a possibility a misunderstanding may arise over something rather strange.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Where your career is concerned today, don't give anyone with whom you'll have dealings reasons to believe you are erratic or inconsistent. It could hurt your image.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Have someone go behind you and check over any mental work you do today, or else a serious mistake might slip through that won't surface until a later date.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't let someone off the hook today who is obligated to you just because you're too embarrassed to broach the subject. This person might try to use your sensitivity.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today you may be saddled with an un dependable ally who did not produce as promised in a previous involvement. Don't bank too heavily on this person.

Sub disaster, shuttle explosion compared

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet submarine accident off Norway last month was a product of the Cold War and a scientific tragedy reminiscent of the Challenger space shuttle disaster, Pravda said Friday.

The official Communist Party newspaper said the accident, which left 42 dead, showed once again that "The Cold War, carried down into the ocean's depths, devours not only billions of dollars, rubles, pounds and francs, but thousands of seamen's lives, too."

In a separate report, the defense ministry newspaper Red Star said a group of ships has been dispatched to the site where the submarine sank to locate and inspect it. The Soviets say they have not decided whether to raise the nuclear-powered ship, which was carrying nuclear-tipped torpedoes.

Soviet officials say the radiation level in the water surrounding the site remains normal.

Pravda devoted a full page today to the fate of the experimental submarine Komsomolets, which sank April 7 after a fire broke out on board.

"I would dare to say that the loss of this boat for our country means the same thing as the loss of the shuttle Challenger for the United States," wrote correspondent Nikolai Cherkashin.

"The Komsomolets was the first hydro-cosmic orbital station, so to speak. It carried torpedoes only because there was no getting away from the ongoing naval confrontation," Pravda said, adding that "the Komsomolets could have been a prototype of a new kind of sea transport. Its crew were actually experimenters."

Western defense experts said soon after the submarine sank that top scientists probably were on board because of its experimental nature.

Pravda did not specify what the submarine was working on.

The newspaper said some of the money that will be saved with Soviet defense cutbacks should go toward perfecting rescue systems for sailors.

The Pravda article, which gave a minute-by-minute account of the accident, described how many of the sailors ended up in fatally frigid water without protective gear because they did not believe the submarine would sink.

It described how the fire spread from one section of the submarine to another, and how the crew, having emerged to the surface of the boat, "could not believe they would end up in the icy water."

"They all knew that the solid body of their submarine was the most solid in the world," it said. "They all knew that nowhere and never do 'burned' submarines sink in a few hours."

But the body of the submarine was shaken by explosions and soon sank, Pravda said.

The fire probably began with a short circuit, the government newspaper Izvestia said soon afterward.

NEW YORK (AP) — Exxon Corp. has recommended naming an environmentalist to its board, but one of the nation's top wildlife advocates emerged from a meeting with the company's chairman saying Exxon was shirking its duties.

"They simply are looking at a short-term fix," National Wildlife Federation President Jay D. Hair told reporters Thursday after meeting with Exxon Chairman Lawrence G. Rawl and other company officials.

INS investigates insurance sales

HOUSTON (AP) — Immigration and Naturalization Service officials say they will investigate at least two teachers in a federally paid English language course who are accused of selling life insurance to Spanish-speaking students whose legal residency depends on the teachers' approval.

INS spokeswoman Mariela Melero said the efforts to sell students anything in the classroom at the Sacred Heart Co-Cathedral in downtown Houston would take advantage of a common fear that they must please their teachers to pass the course.

"This is a very sensitive, very ignorant, very needy population," Ms. Melero said Thursday. "It's just very unfair."

The INS pays for the English classes for students, most of whom are low-income and poorly educated immigrants from Mexico and Central America.

About 30,000 students are enrolled with 55 organizations conducting the classes, which are a required part of the process in which immigrants who obtained amnesty under the 1986 immigration law become permanent legal U.S. residents.

Ms. Melero and an official with Catholic Charities, which sponsors the Sacred Heart classes, told the Houston Chronicle they were appalled to learn the classrooms were being used to pitch insurance from American Exchange Life Insurance Co. and bank accounts at NCNB Texas.

One of the program teachers is a registered agent for American Exchange Life.

"We have an advisory board that makes policy for curriculum," Sylvia Quinones, assistant director of Catholic Charities' immigration ministry, said. "That has not been approved."

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Careful Fiscal Cultivation Bears Fruit Later in Life

DEAR ABBY: Here is a rebuttal for the younger generation who envy the senior citizens who have good incomes and/or discounts and Social Security payments coming in every month:

DEAR KIDS: I know you would like to have right now what I took your parents 20 or 30 years of scrimping and saving to achieve. People envy those who have more than they do while they are going through their lean years. But try to remember that when we were young and raising families, our incomes were a lot lower proportionately than yours; we raised you kids on a shoestring, doing without so that you would be fed and clothed. If there was any extra money left (if one of you kids didn't get sick and use it up on doctor bills), we socked it into the bank so we could save enough for a down payment on a house in which to raise you. We did it all on one salary, and when you kids were ready for college, in many cases, your mothers went to work so you could get a college education that would enable you to earn a heck of a lot more than your parents did.

At last, you were raised and out of the house — and now your parents could think about themselves. Many of us continued working, socking our money away so that when we retired we could live comfortably on the earnings from our savings and the Social Security payments we made all through our working lives. We planned this for our old age so that our children would not have to spend a good part of their incomes supporting their impoverished parents — which is what used to happen before the days of Social Security.

It took us many years to accumulate the luxuries that young people want immediately, such as eating out several times a week, buying stereos, computers, fancy sports cars and expensive vacation trips, all paid for with credit for which you pay an enormous amount of interest. We paid cash for everything we bought and didn't make any purchase unless we had the money in hand. (Think of all the money we saved on interest!) We also cooked from scratch instead of buying frozen and prepared food. In other words, we have managed our money a lot better than you do, and so have gotten a lot more value for what we spend.

You envy us our buying power. This senior buying power, in case you didn't know it, is what keeps the country's economy from going down the tubes during periods of recession. When the economy is in a slump, the seniors keep on spending money and pumping it into the economy. Without our spending power, every recession that hits would hit twice as hard.

So, kids, give us a break! You don't know how lucky you are. Your earning power, in many cases, is 10 times what your elders' earning power was at the same age. You have progressed financially twice as fast as your parents and grandparents did — thanks in part to our help in educating you better than we were educated. Most important, because we are what you call "rich," you will not have to spend a large part of your income supporting us! So, don't begrudge us the prosperity that we have earned with our hard work and thrift. Be thankful that we have made it and are not a burden on our children!

GRANDMA IN SKOKIE, ILL.

DEAR ABBY: When little Joey died, three months before his eighth-grade graduation, I cannot tell you how good I felt when his classmates mentioned him in their graduation exercises.

Please advise all reunion committees to send flowers, or in some way acknowledge the memory of those classmates who have passed on. It means so much to their families.

G.L. AIRHART, MAPLE VALLEY, WASH.

DEAR READERS: The following Mother's Day column has been requested for an annual rerun. I think it's worth repeating and hope you agree.

DEAR ABBY: I am a longtime reader but have never written before. I am enclosing a part of your column that I have kept in my Bible for years. As you can see, it is yellowed and shredded, and half of it is missing. I don't know how many hundreds of times I have read it. It gave me such a feeling of peace and comfort. It was titled "A Prayer for Mama."

Will you please print it again? I would love to have another copy. Thank you.

DOROTHY L.

DEAR DOROTHY: With pleasure.

DEAR ABBY: My beloved mother passed away recently, so I called the minister and asked him for the wording of a prayer I could say for my mother. He said, "I'm too busy — and a lot of good prayer will do her now!" You see, Mama went to church long ago, but my father never liked to go, so Mama finally quit going. Abby, I can't believe that heaven is open only to church members.

I've called all the bookstores in town, and they say there aren't any prayers for the dead in any of the prayer books they have. I've heard there are places where you send a few dollars and they pray for the dead, but I don't know their addresses.

Abby, I'd be so grateful if you would print a short prayer I could say for my mother before I go to sleep. Any faith is acceptable. I can't let you send it to my home because my father looks over the mail first and I'm sure I'd never get it. Please don't turn down my odd request. It means the world to me. Thank you, and God bless you, Abby.

A PRAYER FOR MAMA

DEAR READER: I found this prayer in my Union Prayer Book. It is the one Jews recite on Yom Kippur (the Day of Atonement) to honor the memory of a deceased mother:

IN MEMORY OF A MOTHER

"I remember thee in this solemn hour, my dear mother. I remember the days when thou didst dwell on Earth, and thy tender love watched over me like a guardian angel. Thou hast gone from me, but the bond which unites our souls can never be severed; thine image lives within my heart. May the merciful Father reward thee for the faithfulness and kindness thou has ever shown me; may he lift up the light of his countenance upon thee, and grant thee eternal peace! Amen."

DEAR ABBY: I can't believe it's Mother's Day again. With every passing year, the holidays seem to come closer together.

Abby, I wish you'd find space in your column to remind young married women to remember their mothers-in-law — even if it's only a card. There were so many years when I should have remembered my mother-in-law on Mother's Day, but I never did.

This year I sent her flowers — to the cemetery, bitterly regretting that I had never sent flowers while she was able to enjoy them.

I should have been more attentive to her, and written her more about her grandchildren whom she loved so much. And most of all, I should have let her know how much I had grown to love her.

I hope others will not commit the same sins of omission as I, Abby, please print this. Next year might be too late for some.

REGRETTING IN CALIFORNIA

CONFIDENTIAL TO ANYONE FOR WHOM IT IS NOT YET TOO LATE: The gestation period of a mother's advice is anywhere from one week to 50 years. Losing one's mother before having thanked her for the many precious things she taught you is one of life's greatest tragedies.
