Art, photography winners displayed

Art and photography entries from Snyder High School students are now on display in the SHS Library after being judged in an end of school competition.

Parents are invited to view the works during school hours through next Friday.

The works were submitted by students of Ned Moore, art instructor, and Ted Bigham, who teaches photography and art.

Moore named five "best of show" artists, to include Jim Torres, Clay Travis, Patricia Flores, Steven Kellams and Melissa Williams.

In the photography division, Bigham's "best in photography" awards went to Sherri Buchanan and Shelby Hilderbrand. His "best in drawing" award went to Jose Bourgeon.

Individual awards were given also by category.

For Moore's art students, first place ribbons went to work submitted by Robert McCleaf, John Wright, Stacey Logston, Blair Williams, Cynthia Alvarado, Kenny Miller, Steven Kellams, Benny Miller, A.J. Beaver, Alex Gutierrez and Jimmy Realzola.

Art works winning second place ribbons were entered by Alfred Brice, Susan Harrison, Clay Travis, Cory Maffield, Larry Johnson, Stacey Logston, Naomi Butierrez, Carlton Sanders, Jimmy Realzola, A.J. Beaver and Steven Kellams.

Third place ribbons were awarded to works entered by Susan Summer, Jimmy Realzola, Chris Rumpff, A.J. Beaver, Amy Dillard, Angel Cordova, Patricia Flores, Rick Elam and Benny Miller.

In Brief

Visits likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — Persons who have AIDS will be allowed to enter the United States to attend conferences, conduct business or receive medical treatment under new rules being drafted by immigration authorities.

Foreigners infected with AIDS or the HIV virus can apply for 30-day visas provided they do not seek to travel to this country as tourists, the Justice Department said Thursday.

The new regulations, to be issued shortly by the Immigration and Naturalization Service, will allow foreigners infected with AIDS to visit relatives, conduct business, seek medical treatment or attend conferences, said Justice Department spokesman David Runkel.

The regulations were drafted after last month's dispute over a Dutch AIDS patient who was detained by federal authorities in Minneapolis while en route to an AIDS conference in San Francisco, Runkel said.

Buffalo sun

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — At last, Buffalo is getting its day in the sun.

A new report compiled from three decades of weather data is literally putting this much maligned city in a new light.

Buffalo recorded the highest percentage of sunshine — 67 percent — of any major Northeast city from June through August. Buffalo also had the least rain during the period — 8.69 inches — and was the coolest with an average July afternoon temperature of 80 degrees.

"People just can't believe it," Robert Carr, a spokesman for the Greater Buffalo Chamber of Commerce, said Thursday. "They've got this misconception that all we have is snow."

"Sure, we get our snow, but we get our sun, too," Carr added.

Residents have long complained that on the basis of one storm — the Blizzard of 1977 — the city has the reputation of a frozen tundra.

Local

Clarification

In Tuesday's edition, the SDN quoted County Judge Bobby Goodwin as saying the county would condemn, if necessary, land for right-of-way for a state road to connect U.S. 84 to the prison site.

The judge said condemnation is only one option and that no decision has been made by the court.

Martial law declared in Chinese city

Communist leadership shaken by protests

BEIJING (AP) — Premier Li Peng declared martial law in Beijing early Saturday to end more than a month of student demonstrations that have shaken the Communist leadership.

The declaration came after the student campaign for democracy evolved into a nationwide movement and disrupted Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev's visit to China.

Earlier today, Li warned that measures would be taken if thousands of students did not end a hunger strike in central Beijing's Tiananmen Square, and China's Cabinet, the State Council, banned further demonstrations.

The students had decided to end the six-day hunger strike but vowed to continue a pro-democracy sit-in in the square.

At midnight, crowds rushed from the west toward Tiananmen Square, shouting that soldiers were coming, although no troops were visible.

No one in the crowd said they had seen troops, but a Cable News Network reporter said he saw about 50 army trucks more than a mile west of the square. He said people were urging the soldiers not to move in.

The decision to end the hunger strike came after at least 2,400 participants were taken to hospitals. Most returned to Tiananmen Square after being revived, but doctors reported hepatitis and other infectious diseases in their damp and dirty squatter camp.

"We have achieved a great victory," said student leader Zhang Boli. "We will change from 3,000 hunger strikers to a sit-in of tens of thousands. Our struggle ... hasn't ended."

The official Xinhua News Agency called the strike halt temporary, but it did not elaborate. Students did not say the halt was temporary.

The sirens of ambulances taking collapsed fasters to hospitals rang through the city, and marchers and trucks filled with protesters headed for Tiananmen Square, where about 100,000 protest supporters milled.

Student leaders urged their classmates not to respond with force if police or soldiers tried to break up the sit-in. The students said they would stay in the square until the government agreed to their demands, which include a dialogue on political reform, free press, and an end to official corruption.

Earlier, Premier Li Peng said measures would be taken to stop the fast, which began Saturday and government sources said Communist Party chief Zhao Ziyang, who opposed a crackdown, offered to resign.

School set in Snyder Saturday

Classes will begin at the normal time Saturday for Snyder public school students as the second of two bad weather makeup days is scheduled.

Classes will dismiss early, however, at 2:45 p.m.

Gas curtailments area-wide Feb. 6-7 caused the dismissal of classes here.

During that time period, extreme cold weather prompted Lone Star Gas officials to ask Snyder ISD to cutback to 50 percent usage of natural gas.

Texas Education Agency rules require that Texas schools makeup any time missed from classroom instruction, and a request to TEA to waive the bad weather day provision was denied.

Snyder students were in class on a Saturday last April 15 also to makeup for the time lost in February.

QUICK RESPONSE — Firemen spent an hour extinguishing a fire in the 2307 29th St. home of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Beights Thursday afternoon. The blaze was believed to have been caused by a short in an electrical cord. A department spokesman said a quick response likely kept the house from being destroyed by the fire, which was reported around 3:15 p.m. (SDN Staff Photo)

Damages said heavy from blaze

A house in the 2300 Block of 29th St. was heavily damaged in a 3:15 p.m. Thursday fire that kept firemen at the scene for about an hour.

The house, occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Scott Beights and their two children, had fire damage to the southwest bedroom and attic and heat damage to the rest of the structure.

A department spokesman said the fire started when a cord in either a fan or a cassette recorder that were on top of a dresser in the bedroom shorted out.

The fire was venting through a large bedroom window, and one spokesman said it might have been out of control if units had arrived a few minutes later.

In a 5:03 p.m. Thursday fire at the 205 36th St. home of Jennifer Voss, a juvenile boy was identified as a suspect in setting the blaze on an outside wall of the See FIRE, page 9

The student flunked a six-week's grade because a term paper that would have brought him to passing levels won't be figured into his grade until the end of semester.

The student went to court and got back on the team. It was likely as easy as falling into the swimming pool—his mom's a state district judge who filed the suit on her son's behalf. Another state judge issued a restraining order to prevent the school district from booting him off the team.

It has been confirmed recently that onions are good medicine. Many grandmothers have known about onion power for years. Not only were onions good for the stomach, they could prevent colds, soothe earaches, cure laryngitis, treat insect bites, dissolve warts, and when squeezed into juice, put hair on a slick head.

Onion were just one of the pioneer day wonder drugs. Grandmother also knew about chicken soup for colds, oatmeal for breakfast, and about the value of drinking eight glasses of water a day.

Students complain...

'There is no teaching during strike'

LOS ANGELES (AP) — With no end to the walkout that has hobbled education in the nation's second-largest school system this week, substitute teacher Chris Farmer keeps smiling at striking teachers, but "They don't smile back."

And the juniors and seniors who showed up Thursday at his John Marshall High School classroom were a pretty listless bunch.

One girl thumbed through "Bridal Guide" magazine. A youth read "Coma," a paperback thriller. Three students sat with headphones in their ears. Several students answered questions from a stack of "Trivial Pursuit" game cards.

"It's pretty painful, really," Farmer said. "They're a good group of kids. They just want something to do."

The scene was typical of the 600 schools in the Los Angeles Unified School District, where 2,237 substitutes who crossed the picket lines for a special daily wage of $167 are coping with the workload of 22,000 striking teachers.

Student attendance has declined steadily since the strike began Monday. Of the 551,759 students enrolled this quarter, 283,620 were counted Thursday, down from 329,371 on Monday.

The first formal contract talks in months between the striking teachers union and the school district took place Thursday. Both sides agreed not to comment to reporters.

Farmer, tall and gangly with wire-rimmed glasses, is an erstwhile substitute teacher who doubles as a contract worker at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena. With no current contract at the lab, he has worked every day since the strike by the United Teachers-Los Angeles union began.

Farmer was one of 22 substitute teachers supplementing 17 Marshall faculty members who worked Thursday despite the strike. The staff normally includes 139 teachers.

Marshall is an ornate stone building that has been used as a backdrop for countless movies, commercials and television shows, including "Wildcats," "Grease" and "Room 222."

In 1987, a team from the school won the National Academic Decathlon, a point of pride for Principal Donald Hahn.

"One of the things the substitutes like about Marshall is that it's a good school," said Bill Pitkin, a biology teacher who began picketing at 5:30 a.m. Thursday.

His pride in the school was mixed with bitterness about substitutes whom he views as strikebreakers.

"There's one substitute in there who's an exceptional teacher. ... He's taught some of my biology classes. But we won't ever call for him as a substitute again," Pitkin said.

Teachers, who currently earn salaries of $23,440 to $43,319, are seeking a 26 percent pay increase over two years. The district is offering them a 20.5 percent increase over three years.

A little more than half of Marshall's enrollment of 2,780 students was counted in attendance Thursday.

There are no science teachers and few math teachers, the principal said, and many classes are lumped together. Administrators have scheduled three two-hour classes a day instead of the usual six one-hour periods.

The beginning of the strike was chaos, Hahn said, but "the longer it goes, the better it's going to be for us because we're getting more and more teachers each day."

Still, the shortage of teachers has all but brought education to a halt.

"It's kindergarten work," said senior Alexandra Cervantes, 18. The substitute teachers, she said, "are just sitting there, looking pretty and getting paid a hundred-and-sixty-whatever dollars a day."

Specialized programs also are suffering, said Wanda Fuhrmann, a striking special education teacher.

"The blind students are coming to school, and some are doing OK, and some are bouncing off the walls," she said.

Farmer tried to keep the students in his class busy by asking them to write a haiku, a three-line poem of 17 syllables.

One student responded:

Turmoil in the air
One against the other one
Resolution, come.

Authorities probe tritium exposures at Pantex Plant

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — Radioactive tritium leaked during work on a warhead, exposing five Pantex employees to the gas and possibly boosting one worker's exposure above the company's goal for individuals, the U.S. Energy Department said.

Four workers received minimal exposure, but a urinalysis indicates one employee may have a total annual exposure to tritium exceeding 2 rems, DOE spokesman Tom Walton said Thursday.

The plant attempts to limit worker exposure to below 2 rems annually, Walton added. The federal government's standard for maximum exposure is 5 rems annually, but Walton said the unidentified worker's exposure is thought to be lower than that.

Exposure to about 75 rems induces radiation sickness, Walton said.

The Energy Department, which oversees Pantex's plant manager Mason & Hanger-Silas Mason Co. Inc., did not disclose the levels of exposure to the other four workers in the Wednesday incident.

The exposure occurred when the substance leaked from its container during work on a warhead, DOE officials said.

Tritium gas is one of two isotopes used in the fusion process that creates a thermonuclear explosion. It is produced at the DOE's Savannah River Plant in South Carolina and loaded into metal bottles for incorporation into warheads at Pantex.

Located about 18 miles northeast of Amarillo, the Pantex plant is the nation's final assembly point for nuclear warheads.

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is stress and how do you get it? Can it cause heart attacks and other ailments?

DEAR READER: Stress is a state of mind. It isn't something you get, like chicken pox.

In general, people feel stressed if they perceive that they are in danger or under extreme pressure — and are relatively powerless to do anything about it.

Typically, stress produces behavioral changes, such as nervousness, irritability, depression and insomnia. It also causes physical changes: increased heart rate, hypertension, peptic ulcers and bowel disturbances.

Stress can provide an excuse for people to use mind-altering drugs, notably alcohol.

Not all individuals are affected equally by stress; what is stressful for one person may be business-as-usual for another. Although we all have our stress threshold, this threshold varies from person to person.

Since stress is a PERCEPTION — not a disease — researchers have been unable to find a consistent relation between stress and disease. Undoubtedly, emotional tension, by influencing many of the body's internal chemicals, can predispose some susceptible people to ill health.

For example, the untreated, stressed hypertensive patient is probably more likely to develop heart disease or stroke.

Stress is as much a part of our 20th-century existence as is fast food. We need to learn more effective ways of coping with this condition. Remembering that stress is an ATTITUDE may help many of us to put it in proper perspective. In this way, we will not be governed by it but can develop methods of coping with it.

Consider this: if you have to ask what stress is, you are probably blessed by not having it.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My husband is an amputee because of a motorcycle accident. He's in constant pain in spite of repeat surgery without any satisfaction. What about the pain clinics you mention in your column — would they help?

DEAR READER: Pain clinics are available in many teaching hospitals and are staffed by professionals skilled in many disciplines. These clinics can often aid patients who suffer chronic pain.

I do not know whether your husband would be helped by treatments offered by pain clinics. I suggest that you ask his doctor for a referral to such a facility. If the physician is unable to provide the name of one, call the administrator at a university hospital in your state.

For more information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Managing Chronic Pain." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Sino-Soviet summit aired common needs

BELJING (AP) — Mikhail Gorbachev ended his landmark visit to China after restoring sanity to Sino-Soviet relations and gaining new marching mates on the tortuous road to socialist reform.

The first goal was accomplished Tuesday, when the Soviet leader met a smiling Deng Xiaoping, China's supreme leader, to normalize state and party relations after 30 years of hostility.

"A long period of mutual alienation is now behind us," Gorbachev said later in a speech. But the breathtaking scene of 1 million Chinese in the streets clamoring for democratic reforms added an unexpected dimension to the first meeting of Chinese and Soviet leaders in three decades.

More than disrupt the summit schedule, the protests appeared to elicit an empathy among leaders determined to carry out reform but beset by critical social problems.

Gorbachev, while refusing to take sides in China's internal problems, consoled the Chinese by noting the turmoil he faces from unrest among various ethnic groups.

The Soviet leader reasoned that disturbances did not represent a crisis for socialism but were a natural consequence of the reforms undertaken by both China and the Soviet Union.

"Glasnost and the pluralism of views have laid bare problems which were piling up for decades without solution. Popular aspirations often run ahead of the reforms," he said.

"Without democratizing the economy," Gorbachev said, "perestroika (economic reforms) will never succeed."

The Chinese seemed of similar opinion. Premier Li Peng, in words partially meant for domestic consumption, said China will improve its record on freedom, democracy and human rights.

The two sides made it clear that democratic reforms do not mean multiparty rule. If the party is properly supervised, Communist Party General Secretary Zhao Ziyang said, "I believe that the Chinese citizens can enjoy genuine democracy and freedom" under one-party rule.

Need for department said foreseen

AUSTIN (AP) — The chief Senate negotiator working on the state agriculture department "sunset" bill says he believes Gov. Bill Clements "has no ax to grind" against the agency headed by controversial Democrat Jim Hightower.

"I believe he's far-thinking enough to know that we need a department of agriculture," said Sen. Tati Santiesteban, D-El Paso.

"His grandfather, his father and he himself have been in the farming and cattle industry all their lives. He believes from practical experience that a department of agriculture is a necessary thing to have in Texas," the senator said.

Clements, a Republican, has refused to say whether he would veto the bill that must be passed to continue the department's operations. Santiesteban, meanwhile, said Thursday that a compromise between the House and Senate appeared near.

"We have agreed in principle. We have not been able to find the actual verbiage that would allow me to then talk to Commissioner Hightower to see if it's acceptable to him or not," he said. Hightower, a self-described populist, has been at the center of controversy this year. He is under fire from chemical interests over his strict regulation of pesticides and from the Farm Bureau over his efforts to sell hormone-free beef to European countries that demand it.

The Senate easily passed the 12-year sunset review bill to renew Hightower's department.

Some areas flooded, others still parched

LUBBOCK, Texas (AP) — The torrential rains that drenched east and central Texas left some in South and West Texas — where dry conditions persist — high and dry.

Most of the rain that fell this week occurred in the northeast and east, areas that already had adequate moisture, said Zerle L. Carpenter, Texas Agricultural Extension Service. However, the South Plains, Coastal Bend and South Texas still suffer from drought conditions.

"It's just kind of the luck of the draw," National Weather Service forecaster Andy Anderson said Thursday.

North Texas drew as much as 13 inches in some spots, while parts of east Texas were inundated with more than 10 inches.

May has even been wet for the desert city of El Paso. The "Sun City" has had .62 inches of rainfall so far this month, far above the normal .24 inches. Year-to-date rainfall totals also are running ahead of normal, said the NWS.

But parts of South Texas remained in the grip of a drought that has lasted more than a year.

Mary Mahoney of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service described some areas south of San Antonio as "pretty grim."

"A lot of crops are in jeopardy and the cattle ranchers are having a hard time," she said.

On some ranches, "the grass is almost non-existent because it has been dry now for a second year."

In Zapata County on the Mexican border, May's rainfall has been less than one-half inch. Normal rainfall for the month is four to five inches, said Edmundo Martinez, county agricultural extension agent.

"I'd say we're 100 percent under normal over a two-year period," Martinez said.

Rainfall totals in Lubbock, at 2.65 inches for the year, are still far below the average 5.52 inches, and while areas to the north, south and east were drenched, the city got only one-quarter inch all week, said Anderson.

Meanwhile, upstate in the Panhandle, drought conditions have eased somewhat as a result of storms that dumped more than two inches of rain on Gray County and 5 inches at Perryton in Ochiltree County, a county in which the staple wheat crop was almost completely destroyed by drought.

Any thoughts of a drought east of Interstate 35 were washed away this week as heavy rains deluged the Dallas-Fort Worth and Houston areas.

Mansfield, southeast of Fort Worth, received more than 13 inches of rain Wednesday, while Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport recorded a new record rainfall total that day of 2.04 inches.

"If we were in a drought, it must have helped out a lot," said Brad Fujii, a meteorologist at the NWS in Fort Worth.

The normal average May rainfall is 4.28 inches, he said, and the area has gotten 9.62 inches so far this month.

DFW Airport gets more federal funds

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — The nation's fourth busiest airport, Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport, will receive a $16 million federal grant for discretionary use, the transportation secretary said.

Secretary of Transportation Samuel K. Skinner announced the grant during a speech to industry officials and aviation regulators in Dallas Thursday as part of a four-city tour in commemoration of National Transportation Week. Thursday was designated National Aviation Day.

"We are committed to finding ways to build new airports and to expand existing facilities," Skinner said. "Texas and Fort Worth has done well over the years by the federal government in the amount of money (it's received) ... You look at the amount of commitment the federal government has made to airports all over the country, I think you find the Dallas-Fort Worth airport has gotten a very good share."

While Skinner said the grant was not for the airport's proposed expansion, the $16 million grant can be used discretionally.

The new grant comes in addition to $100 million in federal funds pledged to DFW earlier this year, Skinner said.

DFW airport officials are considering building two more runways, but have met with resistance from residents in adjacent communities. American Airlines, which has its primary hub at DFW, is considering building an $800 million terminal on the airport's west side.

The facility is the fourth busiest airport in the world in total passengers and largest in area in the United States.

Skinner, who became transportation secretary in February, is calling for increased safety measures, higher pay for air traffic controllers and deterrents for terrorism during his leadership of the department.

AP analysis

"We might remind ourselves it is the safest way to travel in the world and there are a lot of very talented people at the controls of those airlines," Skinner said.

In addition to improving airports, paying air traffic controllers well also would improve the nation's air travel, Skinner said. "We have to recognize the challenge of the controllers' job. We have to pay them for it," he said.

Significant decisions will be made this year on what to do about aging aircraft.

The Federal Aviation Administration Thursday issued a series of proposed "airworthiness directives" that ordered extensive modifications on older Boeing 727s, 737s and 747s.

"I presume that when something comes to my office from the FAA and it relates to aviation safety that it's correct, it's rebuttable but it's correct," Skinner said. "I don't reinvent the wheel on safety matters that come to me from the FAA. That's a significant departure from where we were before."

Skinner warned the nation cannot take its position of dominance in aircraft manufacturing for granted and said his department would encourage technological advances in the field.

"Airbus is already formidable, they will become more formidable than they have already become before in the manufacturing of airplanes." Airbus Industrie is a European aircraft manufacturer.

Judge ousts Tyler attorney after prosecutor links him to drug probe

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A federal judge has disqualified an attorney representing three drug defendants after federal prosecutors revealed the attorney was part of a federal grand jury investigation into nearly six years of drug trafficking operations in Rains County.

U.S. District Judge Robert M. Parker released attorney Randy Taylor from defending Phillip Ray Land, Ronnie Burns and Jimmy Burchett — three of six people arrested Tuesday on a 26-count narcotics distribution indictment — after prosecutors said Taylor has been implicated in the case.

The federal grand jury named 16 defendants in a sealed indictment May 11, for allegedly participating in an amphetamine manufacturing and distribution network in Rains County between August 1983 and April 1989.

Although Taylor is not named in the indictments, Assistant U.S. Attorney Ron Sievert said the defense attorney is "a target" in the case.

Sievert made the motion to remove Taylor from the case at an initial hearing for his clients Land, Burns and Burchett, who were arrested Tuesday along with three others — Julia Rodrigue, Patty Dowden and Joe Reed.

All six are charged with conspiracy, while actual possession and distribution charges against them vary. If convicted, the defendants could be sentenced to a maximum 20 years in prison and fined up to $1 million on the conspiracy and amphetamine-distribution charges, plus 20 years and $250,000 fines on each of the possession counts.

Making headlines

By James Jacoby

This deal would be dull if declarer had made all the tricks with a simple club finesse. But a crisscross squeeze? That makes headlines. Forget that an opening spade lead would be best for the defense — our West led the diamond six. Even so, declarer took his approach from the defensive signaling.

Declarer played jack from dummy and won East's queen with the ace. He played jack of hearts, finessing, and then a heart to dummy's queen, followed by the ace. East discarded the spade nine and the club nine, apparently showing strength in both suits. Declarer believed him. He cashed the heart 10, came to his hand with the diamond king and played his last heart, throwing away dummy's queen of clubs. He then played three more diamonds, discarding his two small spades. That left South with the spade ace and the J-7 of clubs; dummy had Q-5 of spades and the club ace. And what would you have East hold? If East blanked the spade king, declarer would play to his spade ace and return to dummy's club ace to cash the good spade queen. If East unguarded the club king, declarer would play the club ace and come to his hand with the spade ace for the good club jack.

What if East had simply played low cards in both black suits early? Probably South would simply have taken a club finesse to make only 12 tricks. But note that East might have flagged the club nine without holding the king. That type of deception is part of the game.

Hereford challenges Panthers here tonight

The single-game area playoff between District 1-4A champion Hereford and Fort Stockton is set for 7 p.m. today at Moffett Field here.

Hereford edged Lubbock Estacado for the 1-4A baseball crown while Fort Stockton was one of three teams to tie for the 4-AA title. The Panthers advanced on a coin flip, then settled as the district's runner-up representative after a loss to Andrews last Saturday.

Hereford boasts a 22-2-1 season record. The Whitefaces are hoping they won't be rusty, however, because they haven't played since wrapping up the league title 10 days ago.

Fort Stockton, making its first state baseball playoff appearance, is 14-9.

Hereford is expected to use ace Jason Scott, who is 12-0 with a 1.71 ERA. Fort Stockton will counter with Aaron Ramirez, 7-2 with a 1.65 ERA.

Andrews' best-of-three playoff series with Estacado is also scheduled to resume today with Game 2 set for 5 p.m. at Midland's Angel Field. Estacado leads the series 1-0 after nipping the Mustangs 7-6 on Tuesday. Game 3, if necessary, is to follow Game 2 at approximately 7:30 p.m. Andrews is 19-8; Estacado 20-6.

The Fort Stockton-Hereford winner will advance to play either Brownwood or Everman next week. The Andrews-Estacado victor will go on to meet either Crowley or Leander.

A&M, Texas cop wins in first tourney games

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) - Texas A&M and Texas took different routes to post first-round victories in the Southwest Conference baseball tournament.

In Thursday's first game, Texas used Arthur Butcher's ninth-inning grand slam to hold off Arkansas 8-3. Later, Texas A&M scored early and often in a 15-3 victory over Houston.

Top-ranked Texas A&M and 10th-ranked Texas play at 7 tonight in a winner's bracket game. Fourth-ranked Arkansas was to meet Houston at 1 p.m. today, with the loser ousted from the double-elimination tournament.

Texas, 46-15, was clinging to a 4-3 lead when Butcher unloaded off reliever Phil Stidham. It was the Longhorns' fourth home run of the afternoon; David Tollison, Clay King and Steve Bethea connected for solo home runs earlier.

"Yeah, we're just gonna sit back and go for the three-run dingers now," quipped Texas Coach Cliff Gustafson. "We have a lot of guys who can hit the long ball and we were just lucky enough to hit it just hard enough to get out of the ball park."

Texas ace Kirk Dressendorfer, 14-2, struggled to the victory. Dressendorfer scattered six hits and walked four, but was lifted in the eighth inning after throwing 109 pitches in the 93-degree heat.

"I knew it was going to be a tough day to go all the way," said Dressendorfer, who threw 109 pitches. "Coach had told me before the eighth inning that it would be my last."

Arkansas, 45-12, tied for the regular-season championship with Texas A&M. The Razorbacks pulled to 4-3 with two unearned runs in the bottom of the eighth, but the Longhorns got out of a bases-loaded, no-out situation.

The loss hurt the Razorbacks' chances of securing a No. 1 regional seed.

"I didn't think about the NCAA seeding during the game," said Arkansas coach Norm Debriny said. "I didn't think, 'Oh boy, if we can win it here, we'll get a top seed.'"

Motivation was no problem for Texas A&M, 53-5. Remembering how they had been tested during a regular-season series at Houston, the Aggies scored five runs in the second and led 11-2 after four innings.

Incaviglia lifts Rangers to win

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) - Pete Incaviglia was stuck in a 1-for-17 slump when he stepped to the plate in an all-too-familiar position against the Minnesota Twins.

Incaviglia had struck out in his previous two at-bats but his fortunes changed against reliever German Gonzalez with two outs and the winning run on second base in the 11th inning of Thursday's game. He lined a single to left-center that scored Julio Franco and lifted the Texas Rangers over the Twins, 6-5.

Incaviglia's clutch hit off Gonzalez, 3-2, snapped the Rangers' four-game losing streak and made a winner of Rangers' bullpen ace Jeff Russell, 3-0.

Franco singled with two outs in the 11th and stole second, beating catcher Tim Laudner's throw, to set the stage for Incaviglia's game-winner.

Texas took a 5-4 lead in the eighth on Rafael Palmeiro's two-out single that scored pinch-runner Cecil Espy. Espy had moved from first to third on Scott Fletcher's groundout to shortstop.

But Gary Gaetti tied the game, 5-5, in the ninth with a leadoff homer to left.

"It was a classic example of how not to pitch to a good hitter," said Rangers starter Nolan Ryan. "I got behind, then left a pitch out over the plate. That's exactly what I didn't want to do."

Ryan permitted four earned runs, six hits, struck out 10 and walked three before exiting after nine innings. Ryan, the league leader with 73 strikeouts, had his 186th career game with 10 or more strikeouts.

The Rangers' Jeff Kunkel, with a pair of solo homers, had his first multiple-homer game in his major league career. Kunkel's blasts in the first and fourth were only the eighth and ninth of his big league career.

Kentucky hit with 3-year sentence

LEXINGTON, Ky. (AP) - The University of Kentucky basketball program, the most successful in college history, was put on three years probation today by the NCAA, with sanctions to include no television appearances for a year and a two-year ban on postseason play.

Kentucky may also award only three scholarships in basketball for the coming two years. If any current player leaves the team as a result of the sanctions, that scholarship will be lost.

The university will also have to forfeit all of the money it received from participating in the 1988 NCAA Tournament because of the participation of Eric Manuel, who was found to be academically ineligible.

According to a release from the NCAA made available by the university today, Kentucky avoided more serious penalties by cooperating in the investigation of possible infractions.

Among other mitigating factors were the appointment of a new athletics director and the resignation of the entire basketball coaching staff.

Among the most serious violations alleged by the NCAA were:

-Former assistant coach Dwane Casey sent cash to the father of then-recruit Chris Mills. The discovery of that cash in an opened air-express package in Los Angeles in April 1988 began the investigation that culminated with today's announcement.

-Eric Manuel committed academic fraud by cheating on a college entrance examination.

-Casey demonstrated a "knowing and willful" effort to violate NCAA regulations and provided false information to investigators about his role in rules violations.

The NCAA Committee on Infractions said Kentucky's violations would have justified a ban on regular-season play for the Wildcats.

"While breakdowns occurred in the institution's control over the program, the university's president acted forcefully to uncover all relevant information in the case and to set a proper direction for the future of Kentucky's athletics program," the committee said in its report.

The committee credited these actions and so the penalties, "although severe, do not include any limitation on regular-season competition," the report said. The university may appeal the sanctions, but is not expected to.

Odds changing for Derby

BALTIMORE (AP) - Kentucky Derby winner Sunday Silence

may be an early favorite for the Preakness, but horsemen are beginning to think Easy Goer is the horse to beat, again.

House tentatively okays school finance bill

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas education commissioner says he fears a proposed school finance plan could encourage a state court to take such funding from state control.

The House on Thursday tentatively approved a $488 million funding plan by Rep. Jim Rudd, Appropriations Committee chairman, with an 81-64 vote. The two-year plan was amended to include a $114 monthly teacher pay raise.

In adding it to a school finance bill, the House rejected the equalization proposal of Rep. Ernestine Glossbrenner, D-Alice, head of the Public Education Committee. That proposal would have set out a plan for phasing in educational equity over the next six years.

"Adoption of a six-year plan would demonstrate that the state is committed to strengthening equity and would strengthen our position in the Edgewood case," said Education Commissioner W.N. Kirby, referring to a lawsuit filed against the state by poor school districts.

Anything short of a "long-term plan or commitment to education equity" could be viewed as lawmakers abdicating responsibility, he said.

"If that occurs, I do not believe the Texas Legislature will be at all pleased with the stringent guidelines which are likely to be laid down by the courts if we get an adverse reaction by the Texas Supreme Court," Kirby said.

Rudd, D-Brownfield, said his plan takes into account the need for equity.

"We're addressing equity in a very big way," he said, adding that the court will "do its duty, and we'll do ours."

In the suit, poor districts charged discrimination because they do not have the same ability to raise money to educate students as property-rich districts do. Public education is financed largely through state funds and local property taxes.

A state district judge found the school finance system unconstitutional, but the 3rd Court of Appeals in Austin overturned that decision. The case is pending before the Supreme Court.

cost about $38 million more than approved by the House-Senate conference committee in the state 1990-91 budget. Rudd said adjustments are possible.

His proposal would raise the basic student allotment from $1,350 to $1,589.

The plan also would establish a system to guarantee districts $23 in state and local funds for every one cent of local tax effort. The maximum tax rate to get the guaranteed amount would be 36 cents per $100.

The bill by Ms. Glossbrenner would give more funding to the poorest districts than Rudd's measure, said Rep. Paul Colbert, D-Houston, a Public Education Committee member.

Ms. Glossbrenner's bill was similar to a $500 million equalization plan approved by the Senate. Rudd said Ms. Glossbrenner's bill would require a "tremendous" tax increase next session.

"I believe we have not done what we should do for the children of this state and for the people of this state," Ms. Glossbrenner said after the vote.

"I think there's a very real possibility that our public schools will be in the hands of the state courts."

provides a benchmark for workers to determine how much their claim is worth. Then they can decide whether to settle or dispute the amount.

The Lyon-Harris proposal would establish a two-track system for resolving disputed claims, similar to the Glasgow bill.

Disputes under one track could end up in binding arbitration. The other dispute track could end in a jury trial, but only the record developed in a previous contested case hearing could be used in the trial.

"This is a very dramatic departure from what we have today," Harris said.

Under the current practice of trial de novo, disputed claims can go to a jury trial. The previous ruling by the Industrial Accident Board is not admissible into the record, so the case is tried anew.

Smith's bill would abolish trial de novo. Gov. Bill Clements has said he will veto any workers' comp bill that continues trial de novo.

Both sides call new version unacceptable

AUSTIN (AP) — Two state senators unveiled another version of changes to the workers' compensation system as a compromise, but both sides of the fight said it was unacceptable.

"There is no true reform in the proposal given to the Senate" on Thursday, said Larry Milner, president of the Texas Chamber of Commerce.

David Perry, president of the Texas Trial Lawyers Association, said, "No interest group has signed off on this."

The Senate recessed Thursday without taking any action on the newest wrinkle in the knotty issue of changing the system of compensating workers injured or killed in job-related accidents.

Senators said they would consider the issue again today.

After more than an hour of debate and bickering on the proposal by Sens. Ted Lyon, D-Rockwall, and O.H. "Ike" Harris, R-Dallas, many negotiators remained unsatisfied.

"This is simply a modification of existing law and as such would be unacceptable to the House," said Rep. Richard Smith, a Bryan Republican who wrote the House workers' comp bill.

There hasn't been a compromise reached," said Sen. Bob Glasgow, author of a workers' comp bill that passed out of subcommittee on a 4-3 vote.

But Lyon defended the proposal, saying, "No one is really happy with it. But it is an attempt to solve this dilemma."

Sen. John Montford, D-Lubbock, urged his colleagues to settle their differences, approve a bill and let the House-Senate conference committee hammer out a compromise.

"We're running out of time. I don't care if we have to stay here until midnight, members, let's get a bill," he said.

Shortly afterward, the Senate disbanded as a committee of the whole when it became apparent that copies of the Lyon-Harris bill would not be printed in time for senators to have a copy to study during debate.

Businesses claim their skyrocketing workers' comp insurance premiums are caused by high jury awards to employees, while labor groups and attorneys who represent injured workers blame greedy insurance companies and unsafe working conditions.

The major controversies center on how benefits for injured workers are figured, and how disputed claims between the worker and insurance company are resolved.

Under the Lyon-Harris proposal, partial and permanent disability benefits, such as the loss of a finger, would remain based on lost wage-earning potential.

The bills by Glasgow and Smith would use an impairment schedule that specifies the compensation amount for a specific injury.

Critics of impairment say it is confusing and would reduce benefits to low-paid workers, but supporters of the proposal say it represents about a 10 percent increase in current spending. The House approved a $46.9 billion budget for 1990-91 and the Senate, $46.75 billion.

Of general revenue funds from taxes and state fees, Capitol restoration would be funded at $100 million to $150 million. State employees would get a 5 percent pay raise at a cost of $475 million.

S&L loan fraud defendant linked to Jim Wright

DALLAS (AP) — Pictures of House Speaker Jim Wright shaking hands with savings and loan officials turned up in evidence in the trial of three former thrift executives accused of illegal political fund raising.

In the second day of testimony from John W. Harrell, former chief executive officer of Commodore Savings Association, prosecutors Thursday introduced three photographs of Wright with thrift officials.

Prosecutors are trying to prove Harrell and former colleagues Robert H. Hopkins, former owner of the thrift, and E. Morten Hopkins, former executive, made illegal corporate political donations through Commodore employees who were reimbursed for contributions to a political action committee.

Prosecutors contend the system was used to hide donations of about $135,000 in thrift money to political candidates.

On Thursday, prosecutors cross-examined Harrell introduced pictures of him with Wright aboard the Washington-based yacht, High Spirits, in Oct. 21, 1985. The yacht then was owned by Don Dixon of Vernon Savings. Another picture was of Dixon and Wright. Wright had autographed and dated the photos.

The Dixon photo was mentioned in the House Ethics Committee report on Wright.

Other documents include letters Harrell wrote to other members of the East Texas First Political Action Committee.

Wright's name has come up during testimony from two other witnesses during the two-week trial.

Commodore executives have testified that at the speaker's urging, executives of several Texas thrifts arranged for contributions of $25,000 each to a political action committee.

Harrell has testified that Robert Hopkins told him Wright would help block legislation unfavorable to thrifts in exchange for $250,000 in Texas thrift contributions to East Texas First Political Action Committee.

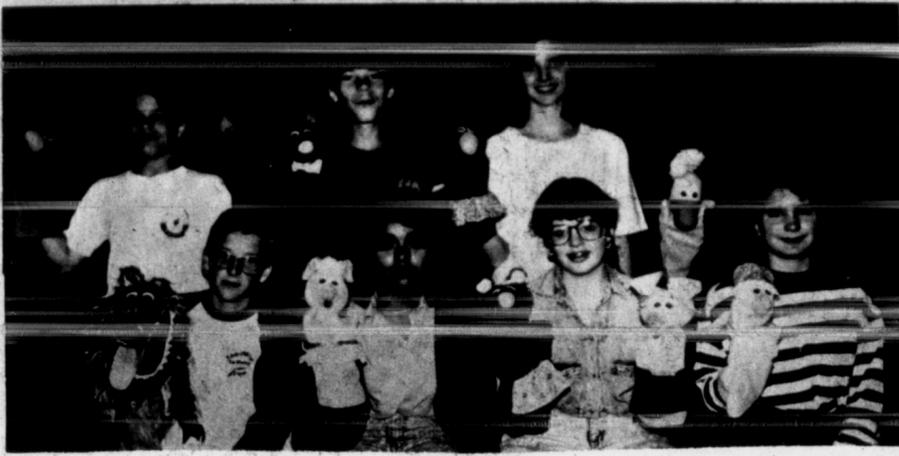

Harrell has downplayed his role as a lobbyist for the PAC, but prosecutors cross-examined him contend his connections to Wright and other politicians was significant.

Bill Gilliland, former executive vice president of Commodore, testified May 4 that he and other thrift officers were asked to make out checks of $1,000 and $2,000 to East Texas First. Gilliland, the third witness in the trial, said he was told the PAC money actually went to Wright.

Another witness, David Farmer, testified May 5 that Harrell mentioned in a conversation with him that certain legislation against thrifts would be blocked by Wright, if he received the donations. Farmer said Wright guaranteed the legislation would be stalled in committee.

The trial was to resume at 9 a.m. today in U.S. District Judge Joe Fish's Dallas courtroom. Prosecutors said testimony could be completed by early afternoon with the case going to the jury by Monday.

Wright seeks quick hearing, hoping to change the tide

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Jim Wright, his support eroding among fellow Democrats, is hoping a long-shot legal move in his fight against ethics charges will rescue his political career.

But even as Wright expressed confidence he could defeat some of the charges against him in televised proceedings scheduled Tuesday, those who elected him speaker were growing more pessimistic about his chances of holding onto the post.

"It's time for a leadership change," said Rep. Philip Sharp, D-Ind., one of the few Democrats willing to say publicly what many were saying in private. Wright, he said, has become too distracted by his ethics struggle to run the House's business.

Another mid-level Democrat, speaking on condition of anonymity, said many have written off Wright's political fortunes and are now focusing on the need for a legal defense to protect him from possible Justice Department action.

Others questioned Wright's strategy of leaning so heavily on a motion to dismiss the two most serious charges against him — that he used bulk sales of his book to evade outside income limits and that he improperly accepted $145,000 in gifts from a business partner with a direct interest in legislation.

Even an ardent supporter said Wright needed some good news.

"It's got to quit raining on the speaker," said Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas. "The constant addition of problems has not been helpful. Some things have got to break extremely favorably."

In asking the ethics committee to dismiss the charges, Wright was essentially demanding that the panel abandon a legal interpretation of House rules that it accepted when it voted to charge him with 69 rules violations.

The speaker's defense is that the panel stretched the rules when it charged him by deeming Fort Worth real estate developer George Mallick to have a direct interest in legislation and by characterizing his book royalty earnings as disguised speaking fees.

But one of Wright's eight lawyers, William C. Oldaker, acknowledged that motions to dismiss charges are routinely denied, and put chances of winning next week at probably less than 50-50.

And ethics committee Chairman Julian Dixon, D-Calif., called the committee's interpretation of the rules "very well founded."

But Wright, appearing briefly before television cameras on Thursday, expressed optimism that he would prevail. "We welcome the opportunity for our case — and we believe it is very, very strong — to be heard before the full public view," he said.

Wright himself will not appear at the hearing. His lawyers will be allowed to argue their case for dismissing the charges, and ethics committee outside counsel Richard Phelan will defend the committee's action. The hearing will be televised on C-SPAN, the cable TV public affairs network.

The full ethics committee, made up of six Democrats and six Republicans, will then decide whether to grant the motion, probably sometime later in the week, Dixon said.

Whatever the outcome, any remaining charges would then become the subject of a trial-like disciplinary hearing before the committee. Members would be asked to decide whether there is clear and convincing evidence of the alleged violations.

Also on Thursday, the ethics committee denied Wright access to advisory opinions on ethical questions which the panel has given other House members, saying that to release them would violate confidentiality the members receiving the opinions expect.

Bridesmaids Learn From Bride That Friendship Has Its Price

By Abigail Van Buren

© Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I just learned that a friend for whom I agreed to be a bridesmaid tried to make a profit on the bridesmaids' dresses. "Betty" told me the dress cost $125. When she delivered it to me, I thought it looked rather cheap and poorly made, but I didn't say anything. I paid the $125 in good faith.

Another bridesmaid, Betty's roommate, called to tell me that she just found a sales slip listing the dress as $54, and she was so disgusted, she pulled out of the wedding party. That gave me the courage to call Betty and tell her I was pulling out, too, and why.

I had also planned a wedding shower for Betty, which I canceled. Betty became very defensive and said the store had made a mistake in marking the dresses, which was untrue. I checked with the store.

Betty is now frantically calling around trying to find other girls to be her bridesmaids. She told one girl the dresses cost $125, but she could have hers for $60.

Money is not the issue here. I told Betty that she was not the kind of person I wanted for my friend. She accused me of "overreacting" and making a big deal out of nothing.

I would like your opinion and so would the other bridesmaids who dropped out.

EX-BRIDESMAIDS IN LONG BEACH

DEAR EX-BRIDESMAIDS: Overreacting? No way. I have heard of petty ripoffs, but I must say that this is a new low. (And people ask me if I make up these letters.)

***

DEAR ABBY: After a recent death in our family, I suddenly realized that I didn't have a will.

I intend to make one as soon as possible, but I need to know if it's possible to write a will myself, or must I use a lawyer?

If I write my own will, is it necessary to have it notarized? Also, is there anything else I should know to make sure it holds up?

ROGER THE DODGER IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR ROGER: Each state has its own laws concerning wills, but in California a "holographic" will — one written in one's own handwriting — is legal, providing: It is written on a plain piece of paper with no other writing on the paper. The writer must show a "donative" intent, stating clearly what he wants left to whom. The will must be signed and dated by the author.

A holographic will requires no witnesses.

DEAR ABBY: I want to comment on a problem I have never seen addressed in your column. I live in Atlanta, and like all large cities, the traffic is heavy and driving is dangerous.

However, in spite of that fact, I see people reading newspapers, business documents, letters and even books while they're driving! How can they read while they're driving, and at the same time concentrate on the traffic?

The first time I noticed this, I thought it was an isolated fluke. But now, rarely a day goes by that I don't see at least one person reading something propped up on the steering wheel.

Abby, why do people engage in such dangerous practices? A MAN FROM SMYRNA, GA.

DEAR MAN: A partial list off the top of my head:

1. Boredom. (A stupid reason.)
2. Wants to finish an article, letter or document.
3. Cramming for a test.
4. Reviewing material he or she must know at the finish of the drive.
5. A death wish.

***

Don't put off writing thank-you notes, letters of sympathy, etc. because you don't know what to say. Get Abby's booklet, "How to Write Letters for All Occasions." Send a check or money order for $2.89 ($3.39 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Letter Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

30th C of C announces new minister

Steve Bond, a native of Arkansas, the new minister at 30th Street Church of Christ, took over his new duties on May 1 of this year.

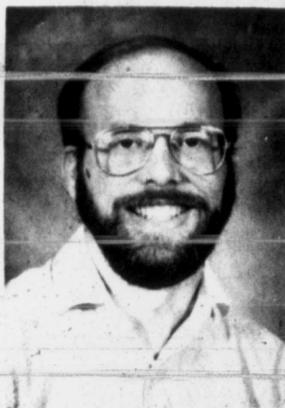

Bond moves to Snyder from Weatherford where he ministered for 2½ years. He has also studied for 3½ years at the Houston Bible Training Work.

Bond recently said that he is very pleased to be in West Texas and hopes to be of assistance to the people of Snyder.

The church is located at the corner of 30th St. and Avenue F. Everyone is invited to attend services which are held at 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. every Sunday.

Professional-looking photographs are easier to come by if you don't pose subjects that look contrived, says Bob Goldblatt, president of K+L Custom PhotoGraphics. "Try to get the spontaneity of the moment and don't ask people to smile," Goldblatt says.

Judge: relief handled fairly

MIDLAND, Texas (AP) — The Red Cross did nothing improper when it disbursed about $200,000 less in the tornado-ravaged town of Saragosa than it collected after the May 1987 disaster, a federal judge says.

Some residents of the small cotton-farming town 35 miles south of Pecos sued the American National Red Cross six months after the tornado leveled most of the town, killed 30 people and injured more than 160. Texas Rural Legal Aid filed the suit on the Saragosans' behalf.

The plaintiffs asked for records of donations the Red Cross collected in the tornado's aftermath, and demanded about $200,000 the private agency raised but put in the bank for future disasters. They said Saragosans should have received all the money the Red Cross collected because of the tornado.

But U.S. District Judge Lucius Buntion ruled Wednesday that the Red Cross had published an accounting of the funds and that the private disaster agency had disbursed the money to Saragosans according to their needs. The Red Cross collected more than $1 million and spent $985,000 in the town, Buntion said.

The decision didn't please some Saragosans.
