Prison staffers now due

Unit's top 3 ready for move

The top three administrators for the Price Daniel Unit will be relocating to Snyder this coming week to begin preparations for the opening of the prison in mid July.

Arriving here with their families will be warden Les Woods, assistant warden Charlie Streetman and the major for the unit, Ed Norman.

Norman's appointment was announced last week by Woods.

The three men have worked together the past two years at the TDC Coffield Unit, Woods as assistant warden, Streetman as a major and Norman as a captain.

With the relocation to Snyder, each will be promoted to the next rank in line.

"Each of the promotions was on an individual basis," Woods noted Friday from his home in Anderson County. "The chances of it happening aren't that great, but it just worked out that way."

He said the fact that the three have worked together will be a great asset with the startup of the local prison.

"They know how I think and what I expect," he said.

Woods, 36, is a 16-year veteran of TDC, beginning his career as a correctional officer in 1972. He is a native of Anderson County.

Streetman, 36, has been with TDC for 14 years and is a native of Palestine.

Norman, 48, first joined TDC in 1981 as a correctional officer. He was promoted to the rank of lieutenant in 1984 and was made a captain in 1986.

He has served at the Beto I Unit, the Pack Unit and the Ramsey III Unit before being transferred to the Coffield Unit in 1987.

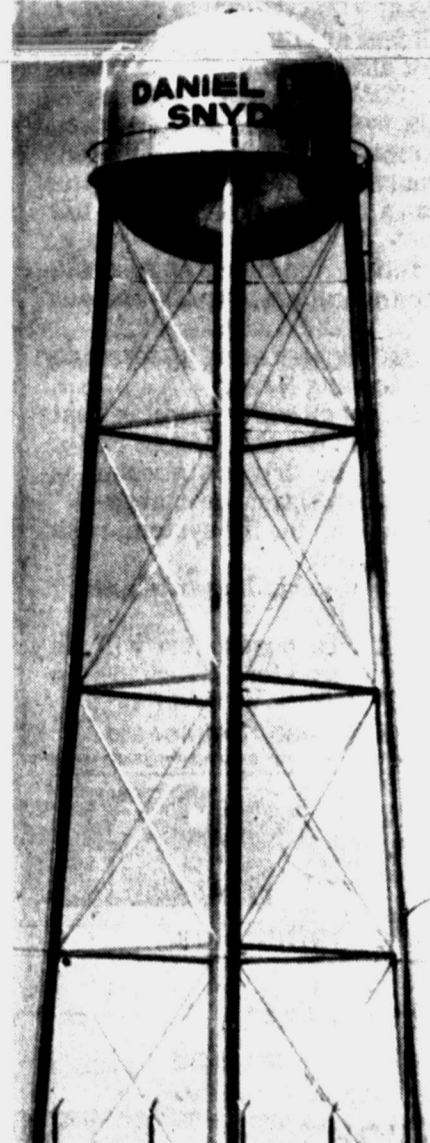

He was raised in Virginia, served with the U.S. Army for three years and worked in the construction field before joining TDC.

His wife's name is Tessie and he has a son and a daughter and two stepsons, all grown.

He is a member of the Ten-See TDC, page 13A

THE DANIEL UNIT — Snyder's new 1,000 man prison has taken shape and is nearing completion east of the city. A guard tower at the northwest corner of the unit stands in front of one of the four 250-man dormitories in the bottom left photograph, and one of the other dormitories is shown from the west side of the compound at top left. The unit's new 161-foot-tall, 150,000-gallon-capacity water tower, at right, has just received a coat of aluminum paint and lettering which identifies it as serving the Price Daniel Unit in Snyder. (SDN Staff Photos)

Carriker forseees work comp solutions

By BOB CAMPBELL
SDN Staff Writer

State Sen. Steven Carriker of Roby said Friday that some pre-special session developments have made him "more optimistic" about the possibility that the House and Senate will agree on a way to reform state workman's compensation laws.

The regular session ended with both houses unable to make their separate bills agree on the subject, and Gov. Bill Clements has ordered a 30-day special session to begin Tuesday.

In Snyder, Carriker said Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby's appointment of Sens. Carl Parker of Port Arthur and John Montford of Lubbock to be the Senate sponsors of a new workman's compensation bill was encouraging because the two were on opposite sides during the regular session, with Montford supporting the House bill.

Carriker said it appears that the legislation might end up taking the form of recent suggestions of House members, including area Rep. David Counts of Knox City, who want jury trials to be a last resort in the process of settling workers' comp claims.

The former House veteran and first-term Democratic senator said requiring administrative mediation and arbitration proceedings before a jury could be sought in a state district court and allowing evidence developed by the state workman's comp board to be heard in a trial, if one were reached, would be useful reforms.

He said also that insurance rates could be lowered if small businesses were allowed to earn experience ratings.

Carriker said he is concerned that the current system has in many cases allowed trial lawyers to force insurance companies to settle many fraudulent claims, and he said he is in favor of instituting criminal penalties for people who make such claims.

The senator received some local criticism during the regular session after meeting a group of about 40 of his constituents in the capital basement coffee shop when they had just attended a rally of several thousand House reform legislation proponents on the capital grounds.

Carriker said a businessman from Roby had called and asked him to meet with a group that he thought was going to be only a few people and that he had planned an informal meeting over coffee.

"Had I known he had such a large group, I would have arranged for a meeting room or something," he said. "It was an inappropriate meeting place. I certainly didn't mean to offend anybody by relegating them to the basement."

The businessmen also criticized Carriker after the 20- to 30-minute discussion for being unenthusiastic about the House bill, which the senator had said did not contain enough workers' safety provisions.

Auxiliary aiding local nurses with RN training costs

As a means of securing registered nurses for the staff at Cogdell Memorial, the hospital auxiliary has implemented a plan to provide scholarships for qualifying LVNs.

Three local nurses are now seeking their Accelerated Associate Degree in Nursing at Howard College in Big Spring thanks to the auxiliary program.

Nancy Messenger, Becky Craig and Linda Briseno received these scholarships. They were recommended by Lana Chambers, director of nurses at Cogdell, and a scholarship committee comprised of auxiliary members.

According to Carol Davis, chairman of the committee, the majority of funds have come from an anonymous donor. The rest have come from funds raised from such auxiliary projects as memorials, hospital TV and telephone rentals, the snackbar and giftshop.

The only request of the auxiliary in return for the RN training is that the nurses remain at Cogdell for at least two years.

Tom Hochwalt, hospital administrator, has been a key supporter in the program, says Davis.

The students now work at Cogdell as LVNs and say their work hours fit their school schedule.

They began school May 31 and plan to graduate in mid-May of next year. They are in a one-year program instead of the usual two-year because of their previous nursing experience.

The three women noted the RN training will allow them more financial and educational opportunities.

Briseno said the definition of a registered nurse is "a leader, decision maker and teacher."

"None of us would be going to school right now if not for the auxiliary...we are all eternally grateful to them for this opportunity. See NURSES, page 13A

Probation is revoked

A 29-year-old Snyder man's two-year probated sentence for DWI was revoked in 132nd District Court because he had appeared in public intoxicated several times in recent months.

Rudolfo A. Perez of 2011 Ave. K was ordered by District Judge Gene Dulaney to begin serving his sentence in the Texas Department of Corrections because he had "appeared in public under the influence of an intoxicating substance" on Feb. 18, April 15 and May 13.

Perez had also failed to pay his fine, court costs and probation fees, court records indicate.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Everybody should have enough education so he doesn't have to look up to anyone, but also enough to not look down on anyone."

They're called a variety of things—Pop, Dad, Father and Daddy. Unlike the pickle who gets honored for the whole week, Dads have just one day a year and it's without the benefit of being off on Monday.

We don't know the source of this item, but it was written especially for a father in 1963:

"Daddys are men. Some are young. Some are middle-aged, but none are ever really old. Some are short and round. Some are tall and lean. Some have soft, wavy hair. Some have bushy, straight hair. And some have no hair at all.

"They are found everywhere—in the office working on someone else's income tax while their's waits on the dining room table; or maybe they are in the fields plowing and planting and then praying for rain; or per chance they are in the oil patch or on board a ship, or in the classroom, or fighting a fire. Yes daddys are everywhere.

"A daddy is strength with his hand on a stubborn jar lid; he is knowledge with the evening paper; he is understanding with the car keys held out to his teen.

"A daddy is a composite. He has the wisdom of a judge, the diplomacy of a statesman, the patience just short of Job, the boldness of a yellow-striped necktie, the gentleness of a summer breeze and the kindness of a husband.

"He likes steaks and potatoes, fishing, old clothes, TV football, afternoon naps, bedtime snacks, and taking his time in the bathroom.

"He is often accused of giving in too easily, of never saying no and meaning it. But daddys are also ideal—sometimes for bringing home candy, sometimes for giving up an afternoon on the fairways for a game on the sandlot. But most of all, daddys are ideal for marrying mothers.

"No one else goes to sleep so quickly, or awakens so slowly. No one else can say so lovingly or ask-your-mother with such determination.

"No one else demands so much attention, requires so much pampering and receives so much love. But then, no one else is a daddy."

In Brief

Berlin crash

BERLIN (AP) — An East German jetliner carrying 113 people veered into a field and caught fire today while trying to take off in East Berlin, killing five people and injuring dozens, the East German state news agency said.

Passengers aboard the Moscow-bound Ilyushin 62 aircraft scrambled out of emergency exits to escape the burning plane, the news agency ADN said.

ADN said that five people died and at least 13 people were seriously injured. It said "many passengers suffered lesser injuries."

The news agency said earlier that only 50 passengers and crew members left the accident site uninjured.

Officials unfazed...

Inauguration nears, but tag sales lag

DALLAS (AP) — Traffic is hardly backing up to purchase the Dallas North Tollway's electronic automatic toll payment card, but officials remain unfazed.

With the inauguration scheduled for 12:01 a.m. Monday, only 2,000 TollTags have been sold, far short of the 15,000 needed to cover the operating costs of the company paying for the program.

"People generally wait to buy almost anything until they can use it," said Jerry Shelton, assistant director of the Texas Turnpike Authority.

Amtech spent more than $5 million to install the computerized readers at every toll gate. The system will begin working Monday at the 28 toll plazas on the north and south ends of the tollway, with the readers expected to be operational at all toll booths by Aug. 1.

David Cook, chairman of the executive committee at Amtech, said interest is high, adding that many callers remain unclear about the concept.

"You wouldn't believe the people calling who don't understand how it works," Cook told The Dallas Morning News.

For $2 a month, a driver is issued a credit card-sized tag that carries a programmed electronic chip. As the chip passes one of the electric readers at the toll booth, the driver's account is charged the amount of the toll — plus a nickel service charge.

Officials say that if enough people sign up for the system, rush hour delays at the toll booths will be reduced.

"In three or four months, it should be like adding two lanes," Shelton said.

Government workers' vehicles and city buses also will be equipped with the cards, eliminating the need for drivers to stop at toll booths and sign vouchers, Shelton said.

The goal is to sell 20,000 cards in the first year, Shelton said.

Mercury astronauts plead to save planet

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP) — Five of the original seven Mercury astronauts marked the 30th anniversary of the launching of the nation's manned space program with a plea to save Earth.

Scott Carpenter said on Friday that the Soviet Union has moved ahead of the United States in space exploration, but added: "Maybe that's OK."

He said the world is being united "by a common foe — the health of this planet. We no longer should think about spending money to go to Mars. We need to make this planet one that will flourish."

That, he said, "has more priority, in my view, than beating the Soviets to Mars."

Wally Schirra suggested that countries work together on a space station and satellites that could observe things such as weather patterns in a project he called "Mission to Planet Earth."

"We've definitely got to get concerned about spaceship Earth," he said. "It's where we live."

"We don't need to go to Mars just yet."

Carpenter and Schirra were joined by Alan Shepard, Gordon Cooper and Donald "Deke" Slayton at a news conference at the University of North Carolina's Morehead Planetarium to celebrate several anniversaries, including next month's 20th anniversary of the first moon landing.

This year also marks the 30th anniversary of their becoming the nation's first astronauts and the start of the U.S. manned space program.

Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, was unable to attend events Friday but was expected to join the group Saturday. Virgil "Gus" Grissom, one of the original seven astronauts, was killed Jan. 27, 1967, in a fire aboard Apollo 1.

The Mercury space program consisted of six flights from 1961 to 1963, including the first U.S. manned flight with Shepard in 1961 and the first U.S. manned orbital flight with Glenn in 1962.

The seven astronauts trained at the planetarium beginning in February 1960.

The astronauts also were having their annual reunion to raise money for the Mercury Seven Foundation, which they founded as a scholarship program for college students interested in careers in scientific or engineering fields.

The training at the planetarium was important, Shepard said, because "no one really knew what to expect in space in those days."

Said Slayton: "In the Mercury program, everything was a total unknown."

Tony Jenzano, then director of the planetarium, recalled the program's start, when officials didn't want more than two astronauts together and didn't want them to congregate in one place.

"But there was a terrible, sporadic snowstorm that trapped them here for five to six days," he recalled.

In all, 65 astronauts trained at the planetarium, ending with Slayton in 1972.

Slayton said interest in the space program has diminished since it moved away from interplanetary flight.

Landing on the moon is "a very tough act to follow. There's only one moon and you can land on it first only once," he said.

Ancient Roman metropolis has been uncovered

BANIYAS, Israeli-annexed Golan Heights (AP) — U.S. and Israeli archaeologists have unearthed a Roman metropolis that in its heyday was the ancient world's equivalent of New York.

Founded in about A.D. 10 by Herod Philip, son of King Herod the Great, ancient Baniyas grew over the next several hundred years "into a huge city," archaeologist Vassilios Tzarferis of the Israel Antiquities Department recently said.

"We can estimate the population in Roman times of up to 15,000 people, which for those days means it was a New York," Tzarferis said.

Traces of ruined villas can be found a mile from the city center, he said.

Herod Philip chose the site near the source waters of the Jordan River and next to a cave where pagans worshipped Pan, the goat-like god of the shepherds. The cave is part of a national park that today is a favorite site for picnics.

He named his city in honor of Emperor Augustus Caesar, but it became known as Caesarea Philippi to distinguish it from the port of Caesarea constructed by his father on the Mediterranean Sea.

American teams working at the site this year have partially uncovered a dozen 30-foot-high arches that formed one side of what appears to be a long shopping mall, said John Wilson, an archaeology professor from Pepperdine College in Southern California.

The arches now are the bottom layer of a wedding cake of history. Wilson said Crusader conquerors 1,000 years later built a citadel on top. In the 13th or 14th century Mameluke raiders from Egypt added a palace.

"On top of it all was a Syrian village," Wilson said. Baniyas was part of Syria until the Golan Heights region was taken by Israel in the 1967 Middle East war and annexed in 1981.

Diggers have uncovered a public gate dating to the 1st century and a 2nd or 3rd century house with mosaic floors, one of which is largely intact.

Wilson said "we are encouraged there may be considerable sections of ancient Baniyas that are preserved." But he estimated it would take up to 10 years with as many as 100 people working each digging season to expose a substantial part of the city.

Historians and archeologists had many clues to the city's location, Wilson said.

Construction workers stage hunger strike

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) — Construction workers have staged a hunger strike for more than a week at the city's Plaza Hidalgo to protest policies of the powerful Confederation of Mexican Workers and its control over organized labor.

Five members of the independent Construction Workers Union, whose Spanish acronym is SITRACE, started the hunger strike June 8 to focus public attention on their three-year battle with the Confederation of Mexican Workers, commonly known as CTM. The CTM, an umbrella organization for numerous Mexican labor unions, often controls which employees businesses may hire.

SITRACE director Juan de Dios Lopez Ibarra said the independent union is demanding the right to work, recognition as an independent union and the right to negotiate contracts without interference from the CTM unions.

The independent union alleges it has been harassed and threatened by CTM members, but the CTM denies the allegations.

"We want out because of the corruption in the present unions, and for us to join would be like taking a step back," Juan de Dios Lopez Ibarra, general secretary for SITRACE, told The Brownsville Herald.

"All we are asking is for the right to work as an independent union," Lopez said. "We're not against the other laborers. We just want to work without being stopped."

Atwater gets GOP vote of confidence

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican National Chairman Lee Atwater has been handed a fresh vote of confidence from party leaders and a challenge from his Democratic counterpart "to move politics in this nation out of the gutter."

Atwater, under fire from Democrats and critics within the GOP for his rough-and-tumble style of politics, was praised in a resolution Friday by the party's national committee.

The committee's resolution said Atwater's aggressive stance has "made him the target of unremitting attacks from Democrats and their surrogates" and he should keep it up.

The resolution neglected to mention the controversy surrounding a GOP memo about the new House Speaker Thomas S. Foley. The memo from Atwater's office compared the voting record of the new House speaker with that of Rep. Barney Frank, a liberal Massachusetts Democrat who has acknowledged being homosexual.

The memo bore the heading, "Tom Foley: Out of the Liberal Closet," a play on the expression for acknowledging one's homosexuality.

The memo led to the resignation last week of an Atwater aide, Mark Goodin, and caused an outcry from Democrats. Atwater said he did not know about the memo until after it was sent out. President Bush said at the time he believed Atwater and praised him for doing a "great job."

It remained to Senate Republican leader Bob Dole to bring Foley's name up from the platform for the first time in one of the closing speeches on Friday.

Dole reviewed the nomination battles in which Supreme Court nominee Robert Bork and Defense Secretary-designate John Tower were defeated, and said, "We don't need any more smears of character."

"That was the problem of Robert Bork, of John Tower and, yes, of Tom Foley," he said.

"I have had my differences with Lee Atwater," Dole told the Republican group, "but the president has spoken and Lee Atwater is staying and he should and he is doing a good job."

House Republican Whip Newt Gingrich of Georgia claimed in his speech that different standards are applied to liberals and conservatives in Washington and that "if you are a whistle blower in the conservative movement and the Republican Party, there are no holds barred in trying to destroy you."

It was Gingrich, not then GOP whip, who first called for the ethics investigation of former Speaker Jim Wright, D-Texas, which led to the elevation of Foley from majority leader.

In Nashville, Tenn., on Friday, Democratic Party chief Ronald Brown, saying "American politics is in trouble," called for Atwater's help in writing a campaign ethics code.

"As chairmen of our respective parties we must resolve to move politics in this nation out of the gutter and up to a higher, more noble, level," Brown said at a meeting of the Association of Democratic Chairs.

Officials surprised by woman's bid

DALLAS (AP) — A bankruptcy judge has approved a mysterious Sri Lankan woman's bid to purchase Bishop College, contingent on her ability to meet a $10 million payment deadline.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Robert C. McGuire also approved Friday a second contract that would sell the property to Faith and Miracle Ministries of Fort Worth if Sri Lankan resident Sujatha Nadarajah cannot make arrangements to pay $10 million more by July 4.

Ms. Nadarajah has posted $75,000 in jewels as a deposit.

"The backup contract is for $12 million — all cash," said Raoul Smyth, an attorney for U.S. bankruptcy trustee Duke Salisbury who is overseeing the liquidation of Bishop College's assets.

"Both purchasers intend to make substantial repairs to the campus," Smyth said. A prior bid had been submitted by Antioch Christian College of Studio, Calif., but was withdrawn from consideration, Smyth said.

According to Salisbury, Ms. Nadarajah wants to open a four-year university for international students at the site of the former religious college, which was closed last August after becoming overloaded with debt.

Ms. Nadarajah was in Sri Lanka and could not be reached for comment, and her attorney, A.W. Clem of Paris, Texas, also was unavailable.

The bid took several Sri Lankan officials by surprise.

A man who answered the telephone at the Washington, D.C., home of Sri Lankan ambassador W. Susanta de Alwis said he could not comment, and deputy chief of mission Tilak Ranaviraja, of Bethesda, Md., said merely: "It's her affair. The embassy has nothing to do with it."

But Sri Lankan attache Edwin Kularatne was incredulous that a resident of his country could come up with the money to buy an American college.

"She can't buy it," he said. "It's a very poor country. To get this much money, no, Sri Lanka wouldn't let her have this much money."

The Dallas Morning News reported in March that records showed Ms. Nadarajah had legal battles with two banks that claimed she owed more than $80,000 in credit card charges and loan payments.

The campus of the former predominantly black college includes 13 acres.

Poindexter will try to force testimony from Bush, Reagan

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prosecutors trying to avoid a clash over national secrets said Friday they will narrow the Iran-Contra indictment against former National Security Adviser John Poindexter, while Poindexter's lawyer said he'll try to force President Bush and former President Reagan to testify.

Defense attorney Richard Beckler said the government's plan to adjust but not drop a broad conspiracy charge "doesn't make any sense," but the judge said it depends on the specifics of the prosecution motion, which won't be submitted until next week.

Beckler said he wants to subpoena Reagan and Bush because Poindexter "had substantial contact with both of these individuals throughout this offense as outlined in the indictment."

Associate independent counsel Christian Mixer told U.S. District Court Judge Harold Greene that after the charges are narrowed "there would be no reason to involve" Bush and Reagan in the trial.

Independent counsel Lawrence Walsh said the prosecution will seek dismissal of theft and wire fraud charges, which deal with the diversion of Iran arms-sale proceeds to the Nicaraguan rebels, and portions of the broad conspiracy charge against Poindexter.

Later in the day, Walsh filed a motion to dismiss the three charges against arms dealer Richard V. Secord, who is scheduled to be tried separately in November.

Second cheap wine makers pulls brand from shelves

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The maker of Richard's Wild Irish Rose announced Friday that it is joining E.&J. Gallo in pulling brands of cheap high-alcohol wine from the city's seedy Tenderloin district.

Gallo, the world's largest winery, announced Wednesday that effective immediately it would stop selling Thunderbird and Night Train Express brands to retailers in the Tenderloin, the Skid Row of San Francisco, for six months.

The action came after area distributor Gallo-Bay Cities, owned by Gallo, met with an activist group, dubbed Safe and Sober Streets, that has asked grocers to stop selling the so-called fortified wines in the neighborhood.

The activists say they are tired of tripping over wine bottles and being menaced by drunks and say they hope to dry up their supply in the neighborhood.

Thunderbird, Night Train Express and Richard's Wild Irish Rose are the three best-selling brands of fortified wines, which are 18 percent alcohol. Regular wine is about 12 percent.

On Friday the Canandaigua Wine Co., maker of Richard's Wild Irish Rose, said the company would no longer sell that brand in the Tenderloin.

"We as a company are willing to cooperate in any reasonable effort toward an effective solution of the problem. Given our company's position and the specifics of this situation, we will participate in this program and discontinue distribution in this area," the statement from the Canandaigua, N.Y.-based company said.

The statement, read by a secretary who would not give her name, did not say how long the program would last.

But the area won't be any safer or more sober because of the manufacturers' actions, drinkers and retailers predicted Friday.

"After I got the news from Gallo, I ordered 250 cases of Wild Irish Rose," said Hatim Nassar, owner of Empire Liquor and Grocery. He was interviewed before Canandaigua announced it was following suit.

Monitoring unorthodox treatment

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a 42-year-old mother of two boys, ages 5 and 8. Since their births I've experienced insomnia, migraines, PMS-related mental confusion and food allergies. I've tried Elavil, Xanax, Inderal and progesterone with limited relief. Recently two MDs recommended thyroid, plus vitamins and herbs. I am now nearly symptom free. However, the thyroid produces a bounding heartbeat that is under control with B-12 and calcium injections. Is this treatment off-the-wall?

DEAR READER: Far be it from me to criticize unorthodox treatment that appears to be effective. However, I must say that the use of thyroid medicine in this situation is unusual. In addition, the use of B-12 and calcium to reduce your "bounding heartbeat" is distinctly unconventional. If the thyroid medicine is the cause of your heart problem — and it could be if you are receiving too high a dose — the amount of drug should be reduced. A simple blood test will determine if you are getting excess thyroid in the medicine.

I won't comment on the issue of vitamins and herbs except to plead for caution; most vitamins, if taken in high doses, will eventually produce severe, toxic reactions.

While your treatment may not be "off-the-wall," I urge you to insist that your doctors carefully monitor your health while you are receiving this therapy.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Please comment on the use of aluminum cookware contributing to Alzheimer's disease.

DEAR READER: There have been no scientific studies linking the use of aluminum cookware to Alzheimer's disease, although some patients with this affliction have been shown to have excessive quantities of aluminum in their brains. I have no proof that environmental aluminum causes brain disorders; however, I do caution my patients not to store or steep food, especially acidic edibles, in aluminum utensils. No one really knows whether the chemical reaction between certain foods and aluminum cookware may cause the release of tiny quantities of the mineral that could be hazardous. I'm simply playing it safe: Cook but don't store in aluminum.

To give you more information regarding Alzheimer's, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Alzheimer's Disease." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My boyfriend smokes pot, and he just learned his company is going to start drug-testing their employees. How long does marijuana stay in your system?

DEAR READER: Some studies have shown that THC, the active ingredient in marijuana, is stored for years in fat-containing tissue, such as brain and testicles. However, I believe that after several days of abstinence, THC would not be detectable in blood samples analyzed by current methods.

I urge my female patients over the age of 45 to have periodic breast X-ray examinations (mammograms) because I believe this test, in conjunction with a physical exam, is valuable in detecting early breast cancer. I've been taught that early detection leads to higher cure-rates and less need for expensive, unpleasant therapy. I suspect that most practicing physicians share this view.

We may be engaging in wishful thinking.

According to Petr Skrabanek, Ph.D., a lecturer in community health at Ireland's University of Dublin, screening mammography may be merely a fantasy of "anti-cancer propagandists." Writing in the June 1988 issue of Diagnostic Imaging, Skrabanek argued that mammography has not influenced patients' survival rates, nor has it led to more successful treatment of breast cancer. He pointed out that mammography screening "is recommended by the majority of doctors despite the absence of evidence for its value. While mammography is an extremely good diagnostic tool (in certain circumstances), its positive predictive value in mass screening programs is about 5 percent."

What is the reason for this astounding unconventional opinion?

Skrabanek asserted that the prognosis of breast cancer does not depend on delayed discovery or the method of treatment. The decisive factor is the type of breast malignancy. Some cancers are simply more vicious than others and will lead to serious consequences, even if discovered early.

In addition, the survival rate of a woman with a breast tumor discovered by routine screening is no different from that of a patient who discovers the cancer by herself. By the time the tumor is identified, it has usually been growing for eight to 12 years and has had ample opportunity to spread (metastasize) if it is going to do so.

Results of two large studies (the New York Health Insurance Plan and the Swedish Two-County Trial) seemed to indicate a 30 percent reduction in breast-cancer mortality in women who had screening mammography. However, meticulous statistical analyses revealed that mammography saved only one or two deaths per 10,000 women per year, a "minuscule benefit" in view of the overall mortality rate of about 75 per 10,000 women per year.

Furthermore, aggressive therapy of small, randomly discovered tumors may lead to too many unnecessary diagnostic procedures, biopsies and mastectomies. For example, since the introduction of widespread breast-screening in the United States, the rates for partial and total mastectomies in women 45 years and older have been twice as high as the rates in England, despite the fact that the incidence of breast cancer in the United States is significantly lower than the incidence in the England.

Given this information, what is one to do? Here is a seemingly uncomplicated issue, which the experts appear eager to complicate. On the one hand, doctors customarily order screening mammograms because it makes sense to find small, early cancers, treat them and expect a good result. On the other hand, the data show that screening mammography may, at best, be a fruitless expenditure of precious health-care dollars; at worst, it may cause unnecessary anxiety, discomfort and disfigurement.

I address this problem because it is typical of the uncertainty of modern medical practice. We doctors make judgments and decisions based on information we believe to be valid and sensible. But there are two sides to every issue. Diagnosis and treatment are far from being as cut-and-dried as the public thinks they are. Guidelines and techniques are constantly changing; the dogma of today often becomes the antiquated folklore of tomorrow. As yet, the definitive word on mammography screening is not in. However, current unreported investigations in Sweden, Scotland and Canada may soon give us the answers we so desperately need to resolve the mammography controversy.

Until the disagreement is unequivocally resolved, I will maintain a conservative position: recommending routine mammography because I believe it is appropriate. While I welcome professional, devil's-advocate opinions, I'll continue to reject them when the health of my patients is at stake and my own experiences tell me that routine mammography is advisable.

Time responds to bid from Paramount

NEW YORK (AP) — Time Inc. rejected a $10.7 billion takeover bid from Paramount Communications Inc. on Friday and got its own $14 billion offer for Warner Communications Inc. under way, further complicating the three-way struggle for Time.

Time had already announced a merger with Warner before Paramount jumped in with its own bid for Time that was launched June 7.

Paramount said it would press ahead with its unsolicited $175-a-share cash offer. Time and Warner had been expected to try to salvage their deal, which would create the world's largest media company.

Time officials said they rejected the Paramount offer because it was not in the best interests of Time, was financially inadequate and highly conditional.

Request forthcoming from FDA

WASHINGTON (AP) — Women who choose against nursing their newborn children may have to get along without hormones and drugs that prevent painful breast engorgement.

The Food and Drug Administration says it will ask drug companies to stop promoting these hormones and drugs for non-nursing mothers because they are no more effective than mild analgesics or breast supports and may do harm.

FDA officials plan to meet soon with drug companies about getting them to agree to stop marketing the medicines for that purpose.

"I'm sure we'll agree to ask the companies to comply with the recommendations of the committee," Philip A. Corfman, executive secretary of the advisory committee and FDA's supervisory medical officer for fertility and maternal health drugs, said Friday.

"The issue is how much further we wish to go in the matter to get them to comply," he said. The FDA could withdraw approval for use of the suppressants for breast engorgement, he said.

Experts confirm fear that Dusky sparrow is extinct

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — The tiny Dusky seaside sparrow has become the nation's first bird to become extinct since the endangered species list was created in 1966, conservationists said Friday.

Along with that sad conclusion, conservationists who spent the past week hiking through miles of chest-high grass and muddy streams said they were virtually certain that three unaccounted-for hybrid descendants of the Dusky have also died.

"They are gone, all of them," said curator-ornithologist Charlie Cook of Walt Disney World's Discovery Island, where the hybrids were bred.

The last known Dusky died in June 1987 in an 8-by-10-foot screened cage at the island, where it had lived in an environment simulating its former marshland habitat around the Kennedy Space Center. But before the bird known as Orange died, it and three other males had mated with cousins known as Scott's seaside sparrows and produced the crossbreeds.

On March 27, a thunderstorm ripped open their cages, and one hybrid was found dead and three others had vanished, Cook said. The fifth hybrid died of natural causes in February.

There is a slim chance the three may still be on the refuge, but wildlife officials believe the birds succumbed to rats or other predators.

Conservationists have believed that Orange and four of his brothers, captured in 1980, were the last full-blooded Dusky, whose only known natural habitat were the Merritt Island and St. Johns wildlife refuge.

Since Orange's death, periodic searches of the refuges failed to yield a trace of the dark-plumed bird, which had a black-and-white belly and yellow patches above the eyes.

Of the two areas, St. Johns is closer to Discovery Island but the distance of about 75 miles is well beyond the birds' several-hundred-yard range.

"Unfortunately, we've confirmed our fears that there's not a suitable area out there anymore," said Michael Bentzien, a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service biologist who on Wednesday supervised the last search for the hybrids.

The Dusky was among the first birds on the federal endangered species list, Bentzien said. Its demise would make it the first bird to become extinct since the Endangered and Threatened Species Act was passed 23 years ago, said Herb Kale of the Florida Audubon Society.

The U.S. Department of Interior must make a formal declaration before the seaside Dusky is "delisted" as officially extinct. That could take 18 months.

But the Dusky has left a legacy: a lingering lesson of man's mindless destruction of nature.

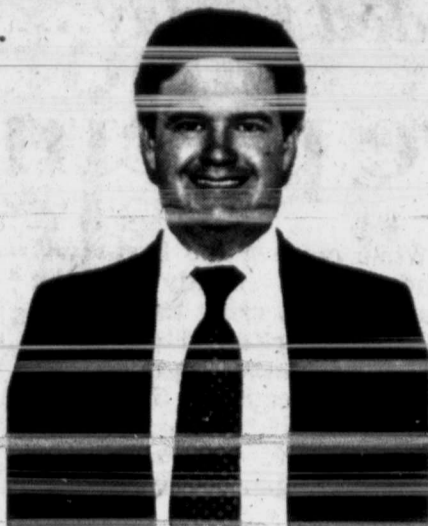

The 1-ounce sparrow whose life expectancy was 12 to 14 years was the victim of the pesticide DDT, land-clearing, road-building and other human encroachments on its refuges.

It once numbered in the thousands in the natural salt marshes along the St. Johns River basin and Cape Canaveral, now home to the nation's spaceport.

During the past week, Bentzien, representatives of the Audubon Society, the Florida game commission, and volunteers conducted their last searches, first by helicopter and then by hiking through the chest-high sandcord grass of the natural salt marshes.

Dodging fire-ant mounds, sloshing through muddy streams, they walked abreast for miles from dawn to midmorning, when the wind picked up. From time to time, biologist Dwight Cooley played the Dusky's tape-recorded three-note mating call.

There was no response amid the chattering of redwing blackbirds, the rustle of wading birds and occasional alligator growl virtually in the shadows of the space shuttle launching pads.

TACB levies its largest fine yet against one oil refinery

VICTORIA, Texas (AP) — The Texas Air Control Board levied a $219,325 fine Friday against an El Paso oil refinery, the largest such penalty ever filed solely by the board, an attorney said.

El Paso Refining Co. Ltd. was fined for allegedly expanding the processing capacity at its crude oil refinery without first getting the necessary permit, TACB attorney Michael Chisum in Austin said.

Although the company denied the alleged expansion and any liability, it did agree to pay the penalty, which Chisum said was the largest levied by the board acting alone.

Larger fines have been issued by the TACB acting with the Environmental Protection Agency, but he did not have those exact amounts.

The refinery allegedly had increased its allowed the refinery capacity of 21,000 barrels a day to 30,000 barrels a day, he said. Several factors were considered in deciding the fine, including the large alleged increase in processing, he said.

In all, the board approved 26 proposed fines during its Friday meeting in Victoria.

Board members also granted a construction permit for a "waste-to-energy" facility in Lubbock that will burn trash as fuel for an electric generation plant.

Clements signs new AIDS bill

AUSTIN (AP) — A compromise AIDS bill that struggled through a sea of controversy to win passage in the last minutes of the regular legislative session was signed into law Friday night by Gov. Bill Clements, a top aide said.

The measure spends $18.4 million to fight the deadly acquired immune deficiency syndrome, a disease that attacks the body's immune system and leaves people who have it susceptible to many cancers and infections.

Passage of the bill came after lawmakers worked to find a common ground between House and Senate versions of the measure. Gay activists had blasted the House bill, which lacked an anti-discrimination provision and would not have spent state money on AIDS education, reserving funds for services to people with the disease.

One group dedicated to fighting AIDS used tactics geared to attract public attention, such as gathering on the stairway outside the House chamber while holding skull masks before their faces.

The compromise measure allows community organizations to pay for education materials and programs with one-third of their state grants.

The measure includes a provision encouraging non-discrimination, but it does not specifically outlaw discrimination on the basis of AIDS.

Among other other provisions, the legislation also establishes a program at the Department of Health to trace an infected person's sexual contacts.

'Stros end losing skid with win over Padres

SAN DIEGO (AP) - Bill Doran and Glenn Davis homered but Gerald Young's sparkling defense was the talk of the Houston Astros.

Young made two outstanding catches in center field as the Astros ended a three-game losing streak by beating the San Diego Padres 9-4 Friday night.

With the Astros leading 3-0, Garry Templeton led off the fifth with a double and Ed Whitson followed with a double off left fielder Terry Puhl's glove, with Templeton stopping at third.

One out later, Roberto Alomar slashed a sinking line drive to center, but Young raced in to make a fine shoetop catch and prevent at least one run, and possibly two, from scoring. He then completed an inning-ending double play by easily cutting down Whitson trying to get back to second.

"This is probably one of the first games where I played well in the outfield here," said Young, who also robbed Templeton of a base hit when he picked off his line drive in the seventh inning.

"Without him making those catches, we lose the ball game and that's that," Astros manager Art Howe said. "He's capable of doing that day in and day out."

"Gerald made two great plays out there," winning pitcher Jim Clancy said. "I've had defense behind me making all the plays."

Clancy, 5-4, allowed five hits and no runs in 6 2-3 innings for his fourth straight victory.

Dave Smith pitched the final inning for his 13th save, finishing a combined six-hitter.

Young was hot on offense, too, as he doubled, singled, walked, scored a run and stole a base.

Young opened the game with a double against Whitson, 9-4, and one out later, Doran homered.

NEW YORK (AP) - Andy Hawkins and Jimmy Jones pitched the Yankees to their second sweep in a week, leading New York past Texas 8-3 and 6-1 Friday night in a rain-delayed doubleheader that lasted nearly nine hours.

In the opener, Hawkins, 7-7, allowed seven hits and no earned runs in eight-plus innings and New York broke a 2-2 tie with four runs in the sixth.

In the second game, delayed three times by rain, Jones gave up three hits in six innings and left after the third delay. Jones, 2-1, struck out three and walked none. Dale Mohorcic and Dave Righetti finished up.

Jesse Barfield, who had three hits, hit a two-run single in the first inning. New York made it 3-0 in the second when Kevin Brown, 5-4, threw a wild pitch with a runner on third.

In the first game, Hawkins, 7-7, lost to Texas 4-1 and 13-2 in May, giving up 12 runs and 18 hits in 10 2-3 innings. This time, he struck out two, walked none and has allowed one earned run in his last 18 1-3 innings.

Lee Guetterman relieved in the ninth with runners on second and third and none out, allowing an RBI groundout by Buddy Bell.

New York chased Bobby Witt, 5-7, in the sixth, sending 10 batters to the plate, six of whom got hits.

Four aces recorded Friday...

Strange pacing U.S. Open

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) - In defense of his U.S. Open title, Curtis Strange would like to say: birdie, birdie, eagle, birdie, birdie, birdie and, oops, bogey.

That just about says it all, even though the oops cost him a share of the U.S. Open scoring record for one round.

While most of the first-round leaders fell silently by the wayside on a rainy day at Oak Hill, Strange charged to the front after two rounds with a 6-under-par 64 that equalled the course record.

Trying to become the first man since Ben Hogan in 1950 and '51 to win consecutive Opens, Strange went to 5-under-par 135 after an opening 71 and led Tom Kite by one stroke going into Saturday's third round.

"I admit I was a lot calmer than I thought I would be defending the Open," Strange said. "But I ain't going to be so calm the rest of the week."

There was one other noisy party Friday morning. The Four Aces - Doug Weaver, Mark Wiebe, Jerry Pate and Nick Price - each put a hole-in-one on his card at the 167-yard, par-3 sixth.

There have never been four aces in one Open, much less four in one round at one hole. And they all came within two hours of each other as the raucous crowd swelled around the sixth green.

Kite was one stroke off the first-round pace after shooting a 67, and he was one back again after a 69 on Friday that included birdies at the 14th and 15th to go 5-under before a bogey at No. 16.

Two of the three first-round co-leaders - Bernhard Langer and Payne Stewart - shot themselves back into the pack. The other, Jay Don Blake, held on to trail by two at 3-under 137 after a 71 on Friday that included a birdie on No. 18.

After a first-round 66, Langer shot 78 to go 4-over for the tournament at 144, just making the cut, which was at 145. Stewart followed his 66 with a 75 and was at 141 along with Nicklaus, who had 74 in the second round.

Baird leads Seniors Classic

JERICHO, N.Y. (AP) - Butch Baird shot a 6-under-par 58 over 16 holes to lead the course-shortened Northville Seniors Classic.

The opening round of the 54-hole tournament was shortened because the ninth and 14th holes of the par-72 Meadow Brook Club course were flooded by week-long rains. One stroke behind Baird at 59 were defending champion Don Bies, Paul Moran, George Lanning, Frank Beard and Orville Moody. Bob Charles was one shot farther back, while Bob Boldt, Mike Hill and Jim Ferree were tied at 61.

WTC inks golfer from Oklahoma

Brandon Benedict, a two-time competitor in the Oklahoma state 5A golf tournament, has signed with Western Texas College.

Benedict, from Bartlesville, Okla., was a member of the 1988 state championship team and the 1989 state runner-up squad. He played golf for four years and football two years at Bartlesville.

His father, Jerry, is the golf pro at Adams Golf Course in Bartlesville.

"Brandon has had a very good high school career, including playing at state the past two years," said Western Texas golf coach Dave Foster. "He's experienced in playing on a lot of tough golf courses. He knows how to win."

"He has a very good golf background. He was highly recruited out of Oklahoma and we're very pleased to have him attend WTC," Foster added.

Benedict plans to major in petroleum engineering.

Western Texas looks sharp; headed into finals of CNFR

BOZEMAN, Mont. — Kenny Taton provided the big punch here Friday night, as Western Texas College prepared to make its assault in the short-go of the College National Finals Rodeo.

KENNY TATON

Taton, a sophomore from Marcus, S.D., scored a 73 Friday to grab third place in the second-go of the saddle bronc event. His combined score of 144 on two head, left him fourth in the average heading into Saturday evening's short-go.

Teammate Clyde Himes missed making Saturday's finals by one-tenth of a second. Himes clocked a 6.5 second run in the steer wrestling Friday night. His average time of 12.5 finished just out of the top 10. Tenth place was a 12.4. Only the top 10 in each event qualified for the finals.

"That was disappointing, especially to Clyde, but we're in pretty good shape going into the finals," said WTC rodeo coach Bob Doty Saturday morning.

Western carried 270 points into the finals. Odessa was leading with 540 points, followed by Montana State with 315, Western with 270 and Blue Mountain, Ore. and Panhandle State, Okla. with 210 each.

In addition to Taton in the saddle bronc, others making the finals for WTC were Ray Brown in the calf roping, Denny McLanahan in the bareback, Jim Blain Kenney and Bryan Davis in the team roping and Russell Merchant in the steer wrestling.

Unfortunately, neither Davis or Merchant are designated team members and points they accumulate cannot go towards the team.

"I'd feel like we'd be the team to beat if we had Russell on the team, but that's the way it goes," said Doty. "Hopefully he'll keep somebody else from scoring as high."

Merchant qualified for the CNFR by placing second in the Southwest Region this season. The freshman from Madisonville made the finals here with two fine runs. He went into the finals as second in the average with 10.6 on two head.

Brown, a sophomore from North Platte, Neb., was fifth in the average of the calf roping with a time of 23.4 going into the finals. Kenney and Davis were eighth in the team roping with a total of 16.8 on two head. Both sophomores, Kenney is from Pecos and Davis from Sterling City. Only half of the points they might tally can be used for the team, since Davis is not a designated team member.

McLanahan finished in a tie for second in the second-go of the bareback with a 77. He headed into Saturday's finals holding down second place in the average with 149 on two head.

Points are awarded for first through fourth place in the short-go and the average. Totals in the short-go are 72 for first, 54 for second, 36 for third and 18 for fourth. Average points are 168, 126, 84 and 42. If a single WTC performer were to win the short-go and average, for instance, it would be worth 240 points.

Because they were both sitting high in the average of their respective events going into the finals and have drawn good stock, McLanahan and Taton were in good shape to come away with some big points - as was Merchant.

"Denny and Kenny both have some real buckers in their riding events," said Doty. "They're the kind that you either ride them and score high or they stick your head in the dirt."

"We're in good shape. We've got somebody back in every event except the bull riding. Of course, Odessa looks real strong and Montana State looks strong, too."

Boosters meet Monday

Western Texas College Booster Club will meet at 7 p.m. Monday, June 19, at the Golden Corral for a Dutch treat supper. The boosters had been meeting at noon on Monday's but decided to try an evening meeting. Anyone interested in WTC athletics is invited to attend.

SHS athletic physicals

Snyder High School students needing an athletic physical should make an appointment with a local designated doctor. The school will pay for physicals taken prior to Aug. 15. Steve Krueger, SHS trainer, urged students to schedule appointments as early as possible.

Those requiring physicals are seventh and ninth grade grade students who plan to participate in athletics and all athletes new to the Snyder school system. Others required to have physicals are students who have not previously participated in athletics, but plan to do so.

Forms are available at the athletic director's office or at the field house. Appointments may be made with Drs. Nelson Brice, Jim Burleson, Bid Cooper, Carl Dillaha, Bill Pierce or Paul Thompson.

Rose's bookmaker gets 2-year sentence

CINCINNATI (AP) — One of Pete Rose's chief accusers is going to jail, and another has been freed.

Ronald Peters, identified as the Cincinnati Reds' bookmaker, was sentenced Friday to two years in jail on charges of cocaine distribution and tax evasion. He'll begin to serve the sentence in 30 days.

Paul Janszen, a bodybuilder who claims to have run Rose's bets to Peters, was freed Friday from a halfway house where he served a six-month sentence for failing to claim income from steroid sales.

And a third former Rose associate, Thomas Gioiosa, suffered a setback in federal court Friday when a judge ruled against his requests to get information from the government in preparation for his trial on drug and tax charges.

Peters, 32, is a central figure for federal investigators and for baseball's inquiry into Rose's gambling. The Reds manager has a hearing June 26 with baseball Commissioner A. Bartlett Giamatti concerning gambling allegations that could get him suspended from the game.

Peters' cooperation with federal prosecutors earned him a major reduction in his sentence Friday from U.S. District Judge S. Arthur Spiegel, who gave him two years on charges that carried a maximum 23-year sentence.

Sun Bowl gets name change

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — In less than a week, the name "Sun Bowl" will describe nothing but the stadium at the University of Texas at El Paso.

The Sun Bowl game will be called something else from now on, and the group that selects the teams and organizes the events surrounding the contest won't be called the Sun Bowl Association.

John Hancock Financial Services, the contest's sponsor, is scheduled Monday to announce the game's new name. Officials declined Friday to say what the game's new moniker will be, but it is expected to be renamed the John Hancock Bowl.

The Sun Bowl Association will now be called the El Paso Sun Carnival Association, Henry Ellis, the group's president, announced Friday. The name is a throwback - the events surrounding the first Sun Bowl game 55 years ago were called the Sun Carnival, and the name stuck for several years.

"This is not an easy task," Sun Carnival Association president Henry Ellis said. "We obviously are very proud of our city and we want to maintain as much of the Sun name as we can."

The Sun Carnival will be the umbrella name for the Thanksgiving parade, coronation, basketball tournament and golf tournament that previously bore the Sun Bowl appellation, Ellis said.

Money is at the root of the change.

The association likely will find corporate sponsors for the parade and golf and basketball tournaments. For that reason, it would not be practical to name those events after the football game's sponsor, Ellis said.

Ellis would not divulge the new name for the bowl game, saying CBS and John Hancock officials had yet to put their John Hancock on the television and sponsorship contract. He said the corporations are expected to come to an agreement on the Dec. 30 game before a news conference scheduled for 2 p.m. MDT Monday in El Paso.

Two witnesses describe murder suspect

CROWN POINT, Ind. (AP) — loving man and as a knife-wielding robber by two Illinois alternately portrayed as a kind, women at his murder trial.

Tina Walgenbach, 22, of Chicago described the 28-year-old defendant as gentle, thoughtful and loving when they dated in September and October of 1987.

Tammy Lair, 23, of Oak Park, Ill., identified Lockhart as the man who threatened to kill her with a knife Oct. 12, 1987, one day before the slaying of Windy Gallagher, 16, of Griffith, Ind.

Lockhart attempted to escape last year from a Texas trial where he was convicted of murdering a Texas policeman and sentenced to death. He also faces the death penalty in the alleged murder of a Florida teenager last year.

Lockhart studied both women from his Lake Superior Court defense table with the aloof air he has maintained during the weeklong trial in the Gallagher slaying.

Walgenbach, who had not seen her former boyfriend since 1987, refused to look him in the eye Thursday.

Lake County Superior Court

Judge James E. Letsinger increased security with two unarmed county jail corrections officers after Lockhart unexpectedly walked up to the judge's bench Wednesday to hand him some handwritten documents.

Walgenbach said she met Lockhart in September 1987, and they lived together on the north side of Chicago.

Public Defender Robert Lewis asked whether she was in love with him. Walgenbach said, "Yeah, I thought I was. I felt for him a lot."

She said Lockhart kept three knives, including a long Bowie knife, but never physically harmed her.

However he periodically left her without explanation for days at a time and finally moved to Florida without her, she said.

Clements oks health bills

AUSTIN (AP) — Legislation to expand health care for rural Texans and prevent closings of small-town hospitals was signed into law Friday by Gov. Bill Clements.

Press secretary Reggie Bashur said Clements signed the measure as one of more than 200 bills he reviewed during the day.

The governor had expressed concern about a provision of the bill that makes the state pay for some malpractice claims.

Under the bill's indemnification plan, the state would cover the first $100,000 of malpractice awards related to obstetrical and emergency care. It would pay for the first $25,000 of such awards for other types of care.

The plan would apply to doctors whose practice is more than 10 percent charity care.

Among other items, the bill also would establish a center for rural health care initiatives and a health professions resource center at the Department of Health. It would address the transfer of patients between hospitals and emphasize rural health care in state medical schools.

Governor Clements okays college expansion bill

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements on Friday signed legislation to create a four-year state university at Killeen, said Mike Toomey, the governor's deputy chief of staff.

The controversial bill was approved by the Legislature over objections of some lawmakers, who had wanted the Higher Education Coordinating Board to approve creation of the new school first. Such approval was stripped out of the bill before it was sent to the governor.

But Toomey told The Associated Press that Clements and Rep. Stan Schlueter, D-Killeen, had agreed that a bill to require the coordinating board's OK would be presented to lawmakers during the special session, which begins next week.

The new university would replace the American Educational Complex, a public junior college, and the American Technological University, a private, upper-level school, sponsors said.

Sen. Temple Dickson, D-Sweetwater, said the new school would serve a population of about 400,000, including Fort Hood, which is the largest U.S. Army armored installation in the world.

When Secretariat was upset in the 1973 Whitney Stakes at Saratoga, some people reportedly cried. The winner was Onion.

Eric Dickerson of Indianapolis and Roger Craig of San Francisco each had 2,036 total yards gained in the 1988 NFL season to tie for the league lead.

Financial Focus

Although Japan has received much attention for its international investments and effect on the global economy is the past two decades, it's not alone in the expanding world economy. Today the gross national product of the United States alone is twice the 1970 GNP of the entire world, and the GNP of the world has increased six-fold in the past 19 years. The pace of GNP growth in other major industrialized countries has been faster than that of our nation. This isn't altogether surprising considering some countries have just recently begun to enter world equity markets.

According to the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, world GNP was $12.4 trillion in 1987, up from $2.1 trillion in 1970. At the same time, the United States' share of world GNP dropped from 47 percent to 36 percent.

This is not intended to suggest that the United States has become a second-rate industrial nation, but it does show that the entire world economy is growing and offering investors more opportunity than ever.

The world equity markets have also expanded with the growing economy and increasing world GNP. Investors who ignore this growing world economy eliminate two-thirds of the world's investment opportunities.

Although international investing presents excellent opportunities, most individual investors lack the expertise to effectively participate in this expanding market. However, more and more individual investors are placing dollars in overseas markets—markets that have been primarily restricted to institutions and professional investors. Even as recently as 10 years ago, U.S. institutional commitment in foreign securities was minimal. Intersec Research Corp. shows only 1.7 billion W.S. institutional dollars invested abroad in 1979. Through 1987 that figure increased to nearly $50 billion, and Pensions and Investment Age, a corporate and institutional investor publication, predicts foreign investment will grow to $1.3 trillion by the year 2000.

International investing is not without risk, but its rewards are quite good. Average annual returns of world equity markets between 1970 and 1987 as measured by Morgan Stanley Capital International, show that 15 of 17 nations in the world market outperformed the American Stock market as measured by Standard & Poor's 500.

A portion of total return on global investments, however, is derived from currency fluctuations. Unlike investing U.S. dollars in U.S. markets, global investing depends both on the market return of the overseas nation and the currency gain or loss. Should both of these be negative, the investment risk could be substantial.

If you're interested in sampling global investing, you can look to a variety of mutual funds. International funds demand particular attention. Not only is the management success of the fund's group in the United States important but their international affiliation and in-house expertise is vital.

As with any mutual fund, a global fund with a record of success will let you rest easier at night.

Clements...

Budget signed but $11 million vetoed

AUSTIN (AP) — A $47.4 billion, two-year state budget was signed into law Friday night by Gov. Bill Clements, who called the no-new-taxes plan "lean and efficient."

Clements said the 1990-91 budget would boost state spending from the major tax funds by a total of 14.7 percent over the next two years. The budget is the largest in state history.

But he said the document shows a commitment to pay-as-you-go government.

"Our state's public servants have an obligation to the people of Texas to ensure that every dollar spent on state government is done so with maximum efficiency and effectiveness," he said.

"Lawmakers should be commended for recognizing that a tax increase at this critical time in our economic recovery would have only stifled continued growth," the governor added.

The budget will allow $560 million in "temporary" taxes enacted in 1987 to expire on Sept. 1.

Clements used his veto power to strip about $11 million in programs out of the budget before he approved it.

Among programs he cut were: — The Texas Aeronautics Commission, a $1.4 million a year agency. Clements said he would re-propose a new Department of Transportation to handle that commission's duties, among others.

— The Department of Agriculture's automated data processing, along with its Family Farm and Ranch Security Loan Program. Clements said its "poor loan record makes it unworthy of any additional funding." Other funds were trimmed from a variety of smaller programs, making the total agriculture agency monies axed $2.2 million.

— The Peace Officer College Loan Program. Clements said it actually is a grant program and "better mechanisms exist for attracting people into law enforcement." The program cost about $2.4 million over two years.

— A total of $100,000 for special studies by the Higher Education Coordinating Board, along with a $1 million utility contingency fund.

Clements also vetoed a provision in the attorney general's budget that would have allowed him to keep and use extra money from such sources as recovery of litigation costs and earned federal funds. Instead, that money will go into the state's main bank account.

Having undergone a major budget battle in 1987, which required a summer special session and a record $5.7 billion tax increase, Clements praised this year's spending process.

"Harmony, cooperation and consensus were key elements in the success of the Texas Legislature this year in developing solutions to some of our state's most challenging problems," the governor said.

"In every major area of government, significant progress was made."

Lawmakers were able to balance the budget through an expected increase in revenue due to an improving economy, tax adjustments and numerous "book-keeping" measures.

The budget — which takes effect Sept. 1 — increases criminal justice spending about 21 percent, or $1.8 billion, to build more prisons and create other programs to relieve crowding in the Texas Department of Corrections. The state prison system is under a federal court restriction on inmate population.

2 Snyder women receive degrees

Two Snyder women recently received their degrees in health education from Texas A&M University.

Shana Diane Hart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hart, and Denise Martine Merritt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D.V. Merritt, Jr., were among 2,257 A&M graduates to receive their diplomas during commencement exercises May 12 and 13.

Four separate ceremonies, one featuring President George Bush as guest speaker, were conducted.

Daughter shaken up

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Elvis Presley's daughter is all shook up about pictures that the National Enquirer claims are of her baby, and a family spokesman says inquiring minds should know they're not.

The supermarket tabloid ran photos of a baby in a bassinet on June 12, claiming it was the 7-pound, 2-ounce Danielle Riley Keough. She was born May 29 in Santa Monica to Presley's daughter, Lisa Marie, 21, and her husband, Danny Keough.

People magazine also ran a cover photograph this week of Ms. Presley holding a swaddled baby whose eyes are closed and is sucking on a pacifier.

"The baby on the cover of the Enquirer is not their baby," said Paul Bloch, the parents' publicist.

A&M announces honor students

Texas A&M University has named its honor students for the spring semester of 1989, recognizing some 2,500 total students for outstanding academic performance.

Among those on the Dean's Honor Roll were four locals.

Denise Martine Merritt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. D.V. Merritt, and Shana Diane Hart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hart, are two seniors on the list. They both majored in health education.

Two juniors on the list are Shawna Chrane, daughter of Mr.

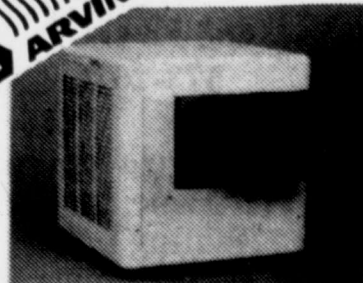

and Mrs. Charlie Chrane, and Kelly Glen Thompson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Glen Thompson who are missionaries in the Philippines at this time. Shawna is majoring in scientific nutrition and Kelly is majoring in nuclear engineering.

The Dean's Honor Roll recognizes students who have maintains at least a 3.75 grade point average out of a possible 4.0 during the most recent grading period while being registered for 15 or more semester credit hours. A total of 909 students were recognized from a total enrollment of more than 39,000.

Expelled reporters leaving...

Chinese court sentences eight men to death

BEIJING (AP) — A court Saturday sentenced eight men to death for beating soldiers and setting fire to vehicles during the military's crackdown on pro-democracy protesters in Beijing. They were the first to be condemned to die for resisting the military in its drive on June 3-4 to sweep pro-democracy students from Tiananmen Square. Earlier this week, three Shanghai men also received the death sentence for leading anti-government riots in that city. Also Saturday, more than 100 Chinese accused of joining the protests surrendered, four Western journalists who were expelled by the government left China, and the government tried to attract foreign investors back to China.

Government-run television reported that the eight men were sentenced to death by the Beijing Intermediate Court for setting fire to public buses and army trucks and beating several soldiers. The television identified the eight as workers, farmers and unemployed youths. Estimates differ on how many died in the Beijing crackdown.

The government variously says 200 to 300 people, mostly soldiers, were killed. Unofficial Chinese and Western intelligence reports say troops fired on unarmed crowds and killed up to 3,000. Beijing radio said 109 people in the capital had turned themselves in since the government started rounding up pro-democracy leaders. The radio also said 16 people gave themselves up in Nanjing, one of the many Chinese cities where protests broke out after the military sweep in Beijing.

Authorities have arrested more than 1,200 people nationwide the last two weeks, including several student leaders.

Two American journalists left China Saturday under government expulsion orders for their reporting on the protests.

John Pomfret of The Associated Press and Alan Pessin of the U.S. government-funded Voice of America were followed by plainclothes police with video cameras as they said goodbye to colleagues at the Beijing airport before boarding a plane for Hong Kong.

The two, accused of violating martial law regulations barring reporters from talking to student leaders, were the first Beijing-based foreign correspondents expelled during the current political upheaval.

Two reporters for the London-based Independent Television News also left China Saturday for Hong Kong after being ordered out for reporting on unrest in the southwestern city of Chengdu without proper press accreditation. They were in China on tourist visas.

The government, meanwhile, intensified its campaign to woo foreign investment back to China.

China's top trade official criticized foreign countries for halting loans and aid to protest the government's suppression of dissent and told foreign governments to "return to the road of cooperation with China."

Thousands of foreign businessmen have fled China. Some are now trickling back, although the U.S. and Japanese governments still advise their citizens to keep away from China because of the turmoil.

In an interview broadcast today on Chinese television, government spokesman Yuan

Mu invited foreign businessmen to return, saying, "I greet those people who left hastily will regret it one day, but it is not too late to come back." Since China opened to the outside world a decade ago, businesses from Japan, Hong Kong, the United States and other countries have invested about $12 billion in Chinese industries and set up nearly 10,000 joint ventures.

Opposition left gains support in Ireland

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Early elections returns indicated today that Prime Minister Charles Haughey failed to capture his coveted parliamentary majority as the left in Ireland made surprising gains.

Initial results from Thursday's election have already prompted talk of a historic realignment of Irish politics.

House break-in has missing cash

Police are investigating a burglary that was reported at 10:30 p.m. Friday in the 2600 Block of Ave. G.

Ignacio G. Andrade of 2609 G told officers that someone had broken into his home and had stolen an undetermined amount of cash.

"One of the disappointing things is that Irish politics may now become polarized between right and left. I think that would be a great pity," said Progressive Democrats leader Desmond O'Malley. He kept his seat.

The gains were made by the Labor Party, the Workers Party, the Democratic Socialists, and the Green Party. The Greens had never before held a seat in the Irish parliament, or Dail.

With 122 of 165 races decided, Fianna Fail had won 55 seats, Fine Gael 38, Labor Party 12, Progressive Democrats 4, Workers Party 7, Democratic Socialist 1, Green Party 1, independent and other groups 4.

RTE, the state television network, projected Fianna Fail would win 77 seats, a loss of three.

It was a sharp setback for Haughey, who called the election hoping to gain his first majority in five tries. During his previous four terms, he governed with support from other parties.

Fine Gael leader Alan Dukes derided Haughey as a "five-time loser." Though he had predicted earlier in the week that his party would win the election, Dukes said today he was "very happy" with his modest gains.

Fianna Fail (Soldiers of Destiny) and Fine Gael (Family of the Irish) are both conservative economically, but Fine Gael tends to be more liberal on social issues. The Progressive Democrats are breakaways from Fianna Fail.

The left, meanwhile, exulted in its victories.

Carriker notes work comp future feature of the current system might not be totally eliminated in the apparently impending reforms, Carriker said, laws could be re-written to require that a settlement resulting from a trial would have to be outside a certain percentage of the state workman's comp board recommendation.

This would mean that lawyers could not force the settlement of an ordinary claim for a larger amount with the threat of a trial, because there would be little likelihood of a trial resulting in a settlement significantly much greater than the board's award.

Carriker said that suggestion of Sen. Bob Glasgow of Stephenville, a former district attorney, might be a feature of the Senate bill.

He said strong feelings on both sides of the issue, represented by Parker and Montford, eliminated much of the negotiating leeway that would usually surround a legislative issue and prevented the passage of an acceptable reform package in the regular session.

Wreck involves parked vehicles

An unattended vehicle struck another in a minor collision reported in the 4000 Block of Eastridge Ave. at 7:44 p.m. Friday.

An officer said a parked 1980 Chevrolet Sierra Classic pickup truck owned by Joe Pruitt of 3717 Highland Dr. was in collision with a parked 1966 Ford pickup owned by Donald P. Anderson of 1708 1/2 Ave. E.

Which vehicle struck the other was not reported.

Three charged

Three young people were arrested on drinking-related charges early Saturday.

A 19-year-old male was taken into custody for being a minor in possession of alcohol at 1:09 a.m. in the 3400 Block of Kerrville Ave.

Thirty-two years late, Soviets admit to big radioactive blast

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union admitted for the first time Friday that a tank of radioactive waste exploded at a nuclear weapons plant nearly 32 years ago, showering particles over nearly 400 square miles and forcing 10,000 people to evacuate.

Before the Chernobyl power plant explosion on April 26, 1986, Western specialists called the disaster in the southern Ural Mountains the world's worst nuclear accident. A secret CIA file made public in 1977 quoted Soviet sources as saying hundreds of people were killed.

The Western accounts said the explosion created a vast radioactive wasteland one-third the land area of Rhode Island, or about 400,000 square miles.

Thirty rural villages vanished from Soviet maps, fishing was banned in lakes, dams were built to contain radioactive waterways and rivers were diverted with canals, according to the Western accounts.

But the official news agency Tass said Friday no casualties had resulted. It quoted Boris Nikipelov, first deputy minister for medium machine-building, as telling a news conference a "chemical explosion" occurred in September 1957 near Kasli, about 870 miles east of Moscow.

A tank of radioactive waste exploded at a military plant where atomic weapons were to be built, "forming a radioactive trail 105 kilometers (65 miles) long and 8 to 9 kilometers (roughly five to 5½ miles) wide," said Nikipelov.

The 1979 accident at Three Mile Island power plant in Pennsylvania released 14 curies, a measure of the amount of radioactivity contained in a material.

Questionable records will be tagged for adults only

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — Recordings with sexually explicit lyrics, graphics or satanic references have been tagged with "18 to purchase" stickers in some Albuquerque record shops.

"Our corporate headquarters said that we must ask for identification that proves that the buyer is 18 years old," Shari Chavez, assistant manager of a Sound Warehouse store, said Thursday.

Joe Malone, the chief operating officer of Dallas-based Sound Warehouse explained that his company's stores are instructed to follow minimum-age specifications set by manufacturers, but that his company does not have any policy restricting sales.

"Manufacturers put stickers on them; we don't sticker them," said Malone, who added that such policies have "been going on for years."

"The reasons manufacturers put stickers on some of their products is that those products are not meant for minors' ears," Malone said. "We're trying to abide by that."

Hastings Music, Books and Video has instructed stores in its chain to place stickers restricting sales on some records, cassettes and compact discs.

Hastings decided to ban sales of some products to minors because of letters from parents in the 13 states where the company has stores, said Walter McNeer, an executive vice president of the company.

"This policy allows us to keep titles on our shelves and still meet the concerns of the communities we serve," he said in a news release.

Court clears way for Texas dirt to be shipped to Alabama

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — Chemical Waste Management Inc. is preparing to haul 47,000 tons of PCB-contaminated waste from Texas to its west Alabama landfill after a federal appeals court refused to halt the controversial shipment.

"We've told them to begin returning to site and start mobilizing on June 26," said Bill Colbert, president of the Texas Water Commission in Austin.

"That doesn't mean that's when the tires will hit the road. They've got to get their trucks reorganized again and get their drivers lined up. ... It will take some time to get it all worked out."

Colbert said Chemical Waste had not set a date to begin shipping the toxic dirt to its hazardous waste landfill in Sumter County near Emelle, Ala. The company has a $16 million contract with the Environmental Protection Agency to dispose of wastes at the Geneva Industries site in Houston.

Roger Meachum, an EPA spokesman in Dallas, said plans would proceed to ship the toxic material to Emelle unless Alabama officials appeal the recent court decision.

Scurry County Folks...

By Shirley A. Gorman

Dr. Jim Palmer, associate professor at Western Texas College and chairman of the Division of Social Sciences, helped start the first Century II Leadership Class in Snyder, but he said recently that he considers himself more of a coordinator than a teacher.

The classes were started in 1981 and each year since then a different class has graduated from the program. The leadership classes are conducted from September through May and get together approximately twice a month.

"I try to give those taking the course a good view of the entire cross section of the community including all political, social and economic aspects," Dr. Palmer said.

Throughout the months during which the class is in session, Dr. Palmer said they have many "off the record" meetings with city, county, college, hospital and tax district officials. In addition, students also meet with representatives from the Snyder Daily News, private industry and law enforcement.

Numerous persons are utilized as teachers throughout the nine month course and each tries to help each student look into Snyder's and Scurry County's future, Dr. Palmer said.

He said he always arranges for the key person in each field to meet with his students because "they should be dealing with the top person." A few of the key people who meet with the students each year include Roy Baze, a retired Exxon executive; John Gayle, city manager; the county commissioners; and Ray Robbins, WTC professor, who gives an overview of law enforcement. Dr. Palmer teaches the segment on economic development.

He said that those taking the course usually do so because they want to serve in some way either at the city and/or county level. Through the course he said he tries to prepare them for future leadership rolls. In a way he said he calls it their "baptism of fire."

Dr. Palmer was drawn into the leadership program seven years ago by Dr. Mary Hood, another WTC professor and co-sponsor of the Phi Beta Kappa Honor Society.

He explained that information pertaining to a leadership course being established came across her desk. When she brought it to Dr. Palmer, he became interested immediately. He then attended a special training session at Ohio State University.

"I was very impressed with the training session and came back all fired up to establish one in Snyder," Dr. Palmer said.

At Ohio State, he said they were each asked to draw up a proposal about how individuals could help stimulate their local economy.

Dr. Palmer said he contacted the late Mort Ewing, then chamber of commerce manager. They shared information and Ewing was asked to speak to the honors economic class at WTC.

During that first meeting, both Dr. Palmer and Ewing discussed the then fledgling leadership program for some three hours or more.

"Ewing knew about others in the area and he saw it as a nucleus for economic development," Dr. Palmer said.

Troy Williamson, then the president of the chamber, Dr. Don Newbury, then president of the college, Dr. Palmer, Ewing and Murray Ann Ray, an active member of the chamber, all visited Midland which had already implemented a similar program.

"We spent one day in Midland and we got the "red carpet" treatment," Dr. Palmer explained. "When we designed our own leadership program, we borrowed from the Midland and Dallas programs."

Dr. Palmer, who is in his 19th year at WTC, was first hired as an associate professor because for the first 1½ years he spent at the college there were no designated divisions. This changed some 18 months later and he was promoted to his present chairman's role.

Dr. Palmer had moved to this area from Norman, Okla. where he had been enrolled in graduate school. He had taken a leave of absence from Sul Ross University where he had taught for two years.

Nineteen years ago, he and his wife, Patti, who teaches first grade at West Elementary, were in Colorado City visiting her parents during a holiday when Palmer and Dr. Robert Clinton, the first president of the college, met for the first time.

"I was so impressed with him and the philosophy he espoused that I decided to take the job at WTC," he said.

Dr. Palmer teaches mainly geography, economics and history courses.

Dr. Palmer was born on the coast at Bay City, but he considers Silver his home. He has a masters degree from West Texas State University and a Ph.D. in geography from the University of Oklahoma.

While a college student, he said he thought about becoming a teacher and he was "really impressed" with the head of the history department who encouraged him to take an interest in history and to get both his masters and Ph.D. degrees.

The Palmers have one son, Josh, who is 16.

CLASS COORDINATOR—Dr. Jim Palmer, chairman of the Division of Social Sciences at Western Texas College, helped organize the Leadership II classes several years ago. He continues to serve as the coordinator, a term he prefers to use, and recently the seventh class has already graduated. (SDN Staff Photo)

Drake customers complain

WAYNE, N.J. (AP) — Among the files for mail received at Drake Bakeries is a category for "displaced Easterners." This file contains letters from former East Coast residents complaining they cannot find their favorite Drake products at West Coast stores.

Because of these letters, company officials say, Drake Bakeries began this year distribution of its products to Los Angeles, San Francisco and Las Vegas. Vons, a major grocery operation on the West Coast, now carries the product.

Chris Christodoulou, president and chief executive officer of Drake Bakeries, which produces 14 snack cakes and pies, says he personally reads all the letters sent to the company.

"It's really incredible," he says. "People have grown up on our products, and when they move out of our distribution area, they really do miss them." A new category has now been added to Drake's filing system: "West Coast Fans."

DIET-HEART CONNECTION

There is a growing perception by many Americans that links diet with heart disease problems.

More people are eating more selectively in an attempt to reduce blood cholesterol levels.

They believe the way to a healthy heart is through the stomach, and are attempting to reduce the risk of heart disease.

The National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute and other related groups are continuing their educational efforts on behalf of healthier hearts.

The institute suggests these tips to lower blood cholesterol and reduce risk of heart disease:

—Less than 30 percent of total daily calories should come from fats, and less than 10 percent of calories should come from saturated fat.

—No more than 10 percent of the 30 percent of calories should come from polyunsaturated fat, and 10 percent or more of the total fat calories should come from monounsaturated fat sources.

—Between 50 and 60 percent of daily calories should come from carbohydrates.

—A daily diet should contain less than 300 milligrams of cholesterol, and calorie intake should be adjusted to achieve or maintain a desirable weight.

—While pure protein or carbohydrates contain 4 calories per gram, pure fat contains 9 calories per gram. Alcohol provides 7 calories per gram.

Food and Drug Administration health and diet surveys conducted in 1986 showed that 43 percent of the people who responded believed that fats and fatty foods caused heart disease and 40 percent said cholesterol caused heart disease. In a 1988 survey, 55 percent said fats and fatty foods caused heart disease and 45 percent indicated cholesterol was a risk factor.

People wanting to have their blood cholesterol checked may have tests prescribed by a physician and performed in a laboratory meeting standards set by Centers for Disease Control.

New, portable cholesterol screening equipment is available at pharmacies, hospitals, health fairs and other locations to make blood cholesterol measurement readily available, rapid and quite affordable.

The Home Economics Committee of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service is conducting a program on "Wellness at the Worksite" which includes cholesterol screening. If interested, call the extension office at 573-5423.

WAGE WAR ON PINE TIP MOTH

The pine tip moth can be a serious pest of young pine trees planted by homeowners on the Rolling Plains. And right now is one of the few times homeowners can effectively fight back.

The larvae of this moth bore into the growing tips of the trees, causing them to turn brown. Severely infested trees develop a bushy appearance over time.

The tip moth passes the winter as a pupa within the injured terminals and twigs of the tree. Moths emerge in late March and early April and begin the first of several generations which will occur during the summer.

Female moths lay eggs on the needles and stems. After hatching, the young larvae bore into the tip and begin feeding. After several weeks of feeding and constructing a tunnel in the tip of the stem, the larvae pupate. The adult moths then emerge from their pupal cases, and a new cycle or generation begins.

Properly timed application of an insecticide is the best way to reduce pine tip moth populations and damage. Since this pest spends most of its life cycle protected inside the pine tip, foliar sprays are most effective when the young larvae are just hatching from the egg.

To properly time these applications, pheromone traps can be used to detect the presence of adult moths and determine when eggs are being laid and new cycles are beginning. Traps have recently begun catching moths of the second generation, indicating it is time to apply an insecticide.

Foliar-applied insecticides recommended for homeowners include Orthene and Dimethoate. Adding a small amount of liquid soap or surfactant to the spray solution will improve control because it helps the insecticide adhere to the treated trees.

Always read and follow label instructions when applying insecticides.

WEDDING SET — Mr. and Mrs. Manuel Dela Rosa announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Dianna, to Jesse Rodriguez Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Rodriguez. The couple plans to exchange vows at 3 p.m. July 31 in the Kingdom Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses. (Private Photo)

Couple announces engagement

Ms. Katherine E. Eaton and Mr. Grover E. Eaton, formerly of Snyder, announce the engagement of their daughter, Alesia Gene Autumn, to Dr. Guido Giordano Spangher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Silvestro Spangher of Nutley, N.J. and Triesta, Italy.

The bride-elect is a graduate of Snyder High School and the University of Texas Health Science Center in San Antonio. She is employed by Arkansas Children's Hospital.

The prospective groom received his M.D. from the University of New Jersey College of Medical Sciences. He is on the medical staff of North Little Rock Veterans Administrative Hospital and is a faculty member at Arkansas University of Medicine.

The wedding is planned Nov. 25 at The Church of the Incarnation of Dallas.

Intimate apparel combines elegance with easy care

NEW YORK (AP) — Weddings are back in fashion, and the trend is toward big, formal affairs with all of the traditional accouterments including the romantic honeymoon and a feminine trousseau.

By the end of this year, the '80s will have seen more weddings than any other decade in American history, averaging well over 2 million annually.

According to Modern Bride, the first-marriage bride is better educated and a bit older — 25 years — than in previous decades. The magazine says 80 percent of its readership have a college degree and 85 percent are pursuing careers.

The average combined annual income of the first-marriage couple is $41,000.

None of this is lost on the makers of intimate apparel, who are appealing to the bride with elegant and sensuous designs in a variety of fabrics, colors and patterns, including florals.

The Hollywood vamp of the 1930s has inspired one new look in lingerie and loungewear — slinky, sexy, ultra-feminine designs fashioned in soft, shimmering fabrics that drape well and flatter the figure. They are geared to a new generation of "cocoons" and homebodies who crave elegance in their personal lives and spend more time relaxing or entertaining at home.

New fibers such as Patina nylon combine the elegance of silks and satins with the easy care of nylon. Fashions in these new fabrics range from sumptuous floor-length gowns that look as though they were made for dancing to elegant peignoir sets and seductive baby dolls and teddies.

Antique lace adorns the necklines, and full sleeves end in cascading ruffles. There are a lot of pleats, embroidery, lattice work, appliques, beading, even rhinestone glitter and clip-on flowers. Unusual collar, neckline and sleeve details echo fashion trends of bygone eras.

Local women may apply for funds

The Deep Creek Chapter of American Business Women's Association will select a recipient for a scholarship award at the July meeting.

The scholarship will apply to the fall semester of 1989 and spring of 1990. Any woman wishing to pursue her educational career is encouraged to apply.

Applications must be received by July 14. Contact Penny Cochran, 573-8055; Dorothy Dorch, 573-0703; or Penni Coffee, 573-8219 for more information.

Lee, Furgerson...

Couple says wedding vows

ABILENE — Teresa Kay Lee became the bride of Lt. James L. Furgerson May 21 at the Logsdon Chapel of Hardin-Simmons University. James L. Furgerson, father of the groom, officiated the double-ring vows.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Terry P. Lee of Kermit and the granddaughter of Mr. Emmett Lee of Snyder. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Furgerson of Chesterfield, Mo.

The altar was decorated with a 29-branch tree candelabrum with paradise candles. It was flanked by smaller candelabra all trimmed in greenery. The unity candle stood in front of the candle tree. The aisle was lighted by branch candelabra.

Ushers were Jon Adams of Dallas, brother-in-law of the bride, and Mark Anderson, also of Dallas.

"Holy Communion" and "The Lord's Prayer" were sung by Cary Tolar of Nederland. "Savior Like a Shepherd Lead Us" was sung by Tolar and Tracy Farrell of Abilene accompanied by Tom Thompson of Abilene.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown of white satin and Schiffli lace. The high neck was decorated with lace and a sheer yoke of bridal illusion. The fitted Basque bodice was overlaid in lace, pearls and sequins and featured a diamond-cut back accented with pearl drops.

The full skirt had a gathered peplum edged in Schiffli lace and ended in a band of lace. A semi-cathedral Palais train was decorated with Schiffli lace cut-work.

A fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a crown of lace embellished with pearls and crystals. The bride carried a cascading bouquet of white roses accented by pink sweetheart roses, baby's-breath and fern.

Flower girls were Cathy and Amy Cone, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Cone of St. Louis, Mo. They wore tea-length dresses of green satin with bodices of white lace overlying Amy bouquets held white roses, pink alstroemeria, lavender statice and fern all tied in white lace ribbon.

Erika Adams of Dallas, sister of the bride, was matron of honor. Bridesmaids were Lisa O'Dell of Dallas, Karen Murph of Lubbock and Amy Bonham of Clovis, N.M. Each wore a tea-length gown of green satin with white lace bodices and peplums. They carried arm bouquets of white roses, pink alstroemeria, lavender statice, white freesia, baby's-breath and fern tied with white lace ribbon.

The groom was attired in Army dress blues and was attended by Ben Hanna of Pettus as best man. Groomsmen were Randy White of Moran, Mike Barris of Irving and Michael Furgerson of Chesterfield, brother of the groom. The attendants wore black tuxedos.

A saber ceremony in the north portico of the chapel followed the wedding vows. The bride and groom walked through an arch of sabers formed by Army ROTC cadre and cadets. A reception followed in the chapel reception room. A three-tiered cake adorned with pink tulips and baby's-breath decorated the bride's table.

Following a wedding trip to Cancun, Mexico, the couple will make their home in Houston. The bride and groom are graduates of Hardin-Simmons University and the groom is currently enrolled in Baylor College of Medicine in Houston.

FEATURED THIS WEEK
THE MOCKING OF THE PRESIDENT. By Gerald C. Gardner.

The issues of a political battle and the personalities of the candidates come into sharp focus when illuminated by the wit of political observers. It is the presidential campaign humor created by America's comedians, humorists, journalists, cartoonists and the candidates themselves who Gerald Gardner celebrates in "The Mocking of the President."

Gardner's campaign-by-campaign review is a delightful reminder that humor is a basic form of communication through which the media, the humorists, and the candidates convey their skepticism, anger, and differences. It is from America's wits and the candidates that Gardner distills that one ingredient that no totalitarian society seems to possess — a sense of humor.

Avoid personal bankruptcy to prevent long-term credit problems

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Nothing can damage your credit rating more than personal bankruptcy.

To a banker it means you don't honor your obligations and it may prevent you from getting future credit. It's a red flag on your credit record for up to 10 years.

Visa, U.S.A., San Francisco, says the best way to avoid facing bankruptcy is to recognize the warning signs. For example, if you're paying off a VCR, a refrigerator and computer as well as Christmas gifts from two years ago, you're probably living beyond your means.

You should have a "rainy day" fund set aside for an emergency — such as a serious illness or job loss — to cover you for six months. But if you think you may be headed for trouble, contact your bank. Explain the situation and ask for help.

WHOLE WHEAT
When milling white flour, the kernel's heart (wheat germ) is discarded - also the bran casing. The germ, only 2.5% by weight, contains 67% of the thiamin and 25% of the riboflavin and vitamin B-6. The bran, 14% by weight, has most of the fiber, contains 3/4 of the B-6, 1/2 the pantothenic acid and riboflavin, and 1/5 the protein. 'Enrichment' restores thiamin, riboflavin, niacin and iron, but many vitamins and minerals are lost in enriched flour, which also lacks fiber. For health, emphasize whole wheat.

Smoke gets in their eyes

The best declarers net good results by creating illusions in the mind of the defender. When a defender feels that he has been hoodwinked, his chagrin can sometimes compound the damage. After the takeout double, East bid one no-trump rather than raise diamonds, because he expected South to bid a major suit and did not wish to encourage a diamond lead. That was well and good — West led a club — but watch what happened after that.

East won the king and continued with the club jack. (A diamond back would have been better.) Declarer won dummy's ace, ruffed a club and led the jack of spades. West played low, anticipating that partner might have the spade queen. Declarer continued with a second spade, and now West was stuck on lead. The ace of diamonds would give South a trick with the king, another club would allow declarer to ruff in dummy while shedding a loser from his hand, and the six of hearts might look like a top-of-nothing lead to East. So, to avoid any possibility of error, West plunked the heart queen on the table. Declarer played the ace of hearts, noting with pleasure the fall of the 10, and came to his hand with the queen of spades. (On the second round of spades he had unblocked the king in dummy.) He played another heart. East could take the king, and the defenders still got two diamond tricks, but declarer had made two spades, thanks to poor defense.

Strawberry shortcake is easy, elegant, delicious

Isaac Walton summed up the way I feel about strawberries: "Doubtless God could have made a better berry, but doubtless God never did." And doubtless shortcake is my favorite way to serve them. Lemon butter adds a fresh new taste to this spring tradition. Be sure to let the berries and sugar stand while you mix and bake the biscuits. This allows the berries to juice out and create a thin syrup.

STRAWBERRY LEMON SHORTCAKE

3 cups sliced fresh strawberries
¼ cup sugar
1 cup all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon sugar
1½ teaspoons baking powder

¾ teaspoon salt
¼ cup margarine or butter
1 beaten egg yolk
¼ cup milk
1½ teaspoons finely shredded lemon peel
2 tablespoons margarine or butter, softened
¼ teaspoon sugar
1 cup whipping cream, well chilled
1 tablespoon sugar

Combine strawberries and ¼ cup sugar; set aside. In a medium bowl stir together flour, 1 tablespoon sugar, baking powder and salt. Using a pastry blender, cut in ¼ cup margarine until mixture resembles coarse crumbs. Combine egg yolk, milk and 1 teaspoon of the shredded lemon peel; add all at once to flour mixture and stir just until moistened.

On lightly floured surface knead dough gently 12 strokes. Pat dough into a circle. Cut dough into 4 pieces. Roll into balls. On an ungreased baking sheet flatten each until ¾-inch thick. Bake in 450-degree F oven 8 to 10 minutes or until golden. Remove from baking sheet and cool slightly on wire rack.

Meanwhile, stir together remaining shredded lemon peel, 2 tablespoons softened margarine and ¼ teaspoon sugar. Split warm biscuits; spread bottom layers with butter mixture. Immediately beat well chilled cream and 1 tablespoon sugar with an electric mixer on low speed until soft peaks form. Fill and top shortcakes with strawberries and whipped cream. Serve immediately. Makes 4 servings.

Let the microwave help to speed up traditional company chicken recipes

By NANCY BYAL
Better Homes and Gardens
Food Editor

When I began living and cooking on my own, chicken cacciatore was one of the first for-company specialties I mastered. It took me an hour to make it. I was delighted when our Test Kitchen came up with a microwave version that takes just 25 minutes to cook and tasted every bit as good as my long-time favorite.

MICROWAVE CHICKEN CACCIATORE
One 2½- to 3-pound broiler-fryer chicken, cut up
1 medium green pepper, seeded and chopped
1 medium onion, sliced and separated into rings
One 16-ounce can tomatoes, cut up
One 6-ounce can tomato paste
½ cup dry red wine
1 tablespoon quick-cooking tapioca
2 bay leaves
2 cloves garlic, minced
½ teaspoon dried basil, crushed
¼ teaspoon fennel seed
¼ teaspoon pepper
Hot cooked spaghetti
Grated Parmesan cheese

CHICKEN TETRAZZINI
2 whole large chicken breasts (about 2 pounds total), skinned, boned and cut into bite-size pieces
½ cup chopped sweet red or green pepper
¼ cup margarine or butter
¼ cup all-purpose flour
2 teaspoons instant chicken bouillon granules
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 cup water
1 cup milk
½ cup shredded Swiss cheese (2 ounces)
8 ounces spaghetti, cooked and drained
One 4-ounce can sliced mushrooms, drained
12 rich round crackers, crushed

In a 2-quart microwave-safe casserole combine chicken and red or green pepper. Cook, covered, on 100 percent power (high) 6 to 8 minutes or until chicken is no longer pink, stirring once. Drain. Cover and set aside.

For sauce, in a 4-cup microwave-safe glass measure cook margarine on high about 45 seconds or until melted. Stir in flour, bouillon granules and pepper. Stir water and milk into flour mixture. Cook on high 5 to 7 minutes or until thickened and bubbly, stirring every minute. Stir in cheese.

In the 2-quart casserole combine chicken mixture, sauce, spaghetti and mushrooms. Sprinkle cracker crumbs on top. Cook, covered, on high 1 to 3 minutes or until heated through. Makes 6 servings.

Remove skin from chicken, if desired. Rinse and pat dry. Arrange chicken pieces in a 3-quart casserole with meaty portions toward edges of dish. Add green pepper and onion. In a small mixing bowl combine undrained tomatoes, tomato paste, wine, tapioca, bay leaves, garlic, basil, fennel seed and pepper. Pour over chicken.

Cover and cook on 100 percent power (high) for 20 to 25 minutes or until chicken and vegetables are done, giving the dish a half-turn and stirring the mixture after 10 minutes. Remove chicken and bay leaves. Skim fat from sauce, if necessary. Serve chicken and sauce over spaghetti; sprinkle with cheese. Makes 6 servings.

By Donny Brown

Most folks depend on secret committees for life's tough nuts. That mysterious bunch, unidentified and unknown, which assimilates information and offers advice while you sleep. We've noticed it time after time in the newspaper business, and would add that most journalists depend on secret committees for life's tough stories.

In this regard, it is a sure enough good deal to work on a paper that goes to press at noon rather than midnight.

To explain the problem, most public boards in smaller communities meet at night. This because the membership is traditionally derived from folks who have real jobs during the day.

We've sat through both type meetings and we have the permanent indentations to prove it.

Daytime meetings tend to follow the clock. About noon and 5 p.m., people start to figure they've had enough.

In the nighttime, though, boards can be a different beast, throwing off the confines of convention.

They also tend to get windy. Thinking that the nighttime is for leisure anyway, meetings can run ungodly long. At least past when sensible folk are thinking about their jammies and warm milk.

SDN Opinion Page

As a result, these turbulent and time consuming night meetings often have more facts than one simple scribe can mentally ingest. That is, if you plan to go back and write about it immediately.

The details seem to swarm around your head like angry bees. And the constraints of time, known as "on deadline" in the trade, can make for a real case of the galloping heebie-jeebies.

On an afternoon daily, though, you're granted the luxury of sleeping on it.

You switch off the bedside lamp and, simultaneously, try to blink out the mental lights as off to sleep you go.

In the morning, normally about the time the sting of the shower plasters your hair around your thinking parts, you'll remark with surprise that the lead paragraph of the previous night's meeting is already written.

It just happens, as simple as that. Somebody has taken care of it while you slept.

So, what's the smart thing to do when real world decisions loom like a spider on its web? If possible, put it in neutral. Give it a rest, go to the house and cool your heels.

In other words, sleep on it.

We use the phrase so often that the concept is lost. We forget what good advice it really is.

At the start, we called this mystifying process the work of some secret committee.

In truth, we don't envision it that way since it conjures up an image of somber-minded fellows sitting around a table, scowling at each other.

We have in mind a combine operator, some little guy putt-putting around, whacking down the tall seedheads of information that are presented facts, past knowledge and future speculations.

In this way, the "chaff" of the stalk and leaves is separated and rattled out the back-end while the front funnel head spits out the kernels. To carry the metaphor to its logical conclusion, mixing these into a fine, brown grain, the essence of the story.

To flower it up a bit, a great winnowing process occurs while we sleep, separating the pertinent facts from the superfluous.

Your thinking meter seems to run constantly and all of us would be wise to get out of its way and give it time to work.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

"Mrs. Mills, I must say I am quite disappointed to see you here, committed to our institution yet one more time. I had thought you were able to bring your addiction to videocassette tape rentals under control. And yet, according to your husband, not only are you still renting two or more movies a week."

"HEY! I call that a maintenance dose."

"—But you seem to have sunk into another addiction almost as damaging."

"Oh yeah? I don't feel damaged."

"But your husband does. He was talking about taking out a bank loan to finance this...this...fixation."

"Well, maybe HE'S the one who needs to be committed. Treat him for CHRONIC MONEY PARANOIA. I never met a husband yet who didn't suffer from it."

"We're not talking about your husband, Mrs. Mills. We're talking about you."

"So get on with it before I bust outta this joint."

"Ahem. According to Mr. Mills, it seems you've gotten just a wee bit out of control with your book club memberships."

"Look, both bookstores in my town closed down in one year. What was I supposed to do?"

"We have a statement from the county librarian. She says you haven't checked out more than a handful of books in a year or more."

"Maybe I read all the ones that interested me. Didja ever think of that?"

"Your husband says there's almost no more wall space for building shelves, and yet you keep buying books. Four at one time from one bookclub."

"Yeah. Four books for one buck. They made me an offer I couldn't refuse."

"And two books from another book club."

"Ever heard of bonus credits? Or don't they have those in dive joints like this?"

"He says you don't have time to read half the books you buy."

"I'm workin' my way through."

"FOURTEEN BOOKS AT ONE TIME?"

"It was a special deal, see. Classic books, books by Emily Bronte, Oscar Wilde, Goethe, Robert Louis Stevenson, Dostoyevsky, Shakespeare...all bound in leather and printed up like the original editions. If you buy them all at once, you get them for less than ten bucks apiece. What else was a former English teacher to do?"

"What about 'The Mind' and Joseph Campbell's 'The Power of Myth?' Those were both PBS television series. Why didn't you watch them or feed your other addiction and tape them?"

"We don't get PBS in the country. I buy the books based on the series I most want to watch. It's better this way. Much better. Every time the house is quiet I read Joseph Campbell. You might say I've found my bliss."

"How about 'The Best of Modern Humor'?"

"I keep it on my bed's bookshelf headboard, right next to my Bible. Read 'em at night before I go to sleep. Keeps my life in perfect balance."

"But there are all those books on law enforcement and criminal investigation."

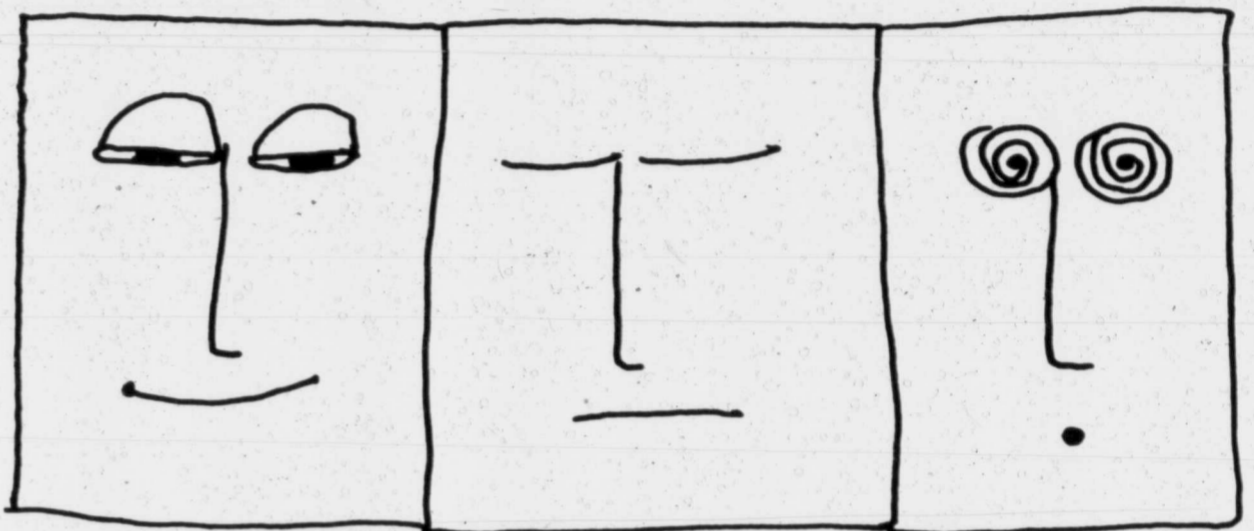

"Research for my novels."

"Books by Mary Higgins Clark, Patricia MacDonald, Robin Cook."

"Top suspense writers. Learn from the competition."

Holmes?"

"What can I say? Start with the master."

"CATWATCHING?"

"For fun."

(Sigh.) "We haven't even discussed all the books you keep buying for your kids. The 'Time-Life' books and the books from National Geographic..."

"Might I point out that we have also failed to discuss MY HUS-BAND'S book club membership and the books on business he's ordered from it? Takes up one whole shelf."

"Mrs. Mills, how are you paying for all these books?"

"Let's just say I do a little creative juggling every month."

"But don't you see? We are not going to be able to help you until you acknowledge that you have a problem!"

"The only problem I have is shelf space, you weinie, and don't forget, I've got a copy of 'One Flew Over the Cuckoo's Nest.' Randle Patrick McMurphy is my hero. You know, Jack Nickolson played the part in the movie. Come to think of it, I haven't seen that movie in a while. Maybe I'll rent it..."

Look Back

By Lilith McArthur

FIVE YEARS AGO

Sue Smylie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Smylie, was chosen to attend Bluebonnet Girls State in Sequin, a yearly workshop in government and citizenship sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary.

The Texas Association for Retarded Citizens honored Ida Mae King as state volunteer of the year and Russell Loyd as employee of the year during annual convention activities in Austin.

Building in Snyder soared past the $6.5 million mark, more than double the building costs recorded the year before.

Janice Mitchell moved to Snyder to assume the duties of Scurry County Librarian following the retirement of Mary Nell Bullard. Previous experience included work in the San Antonio and Fredericksburg libraries.

David Jackson and Angela Franklin were winners in a dance-a-thon sponsored by the Teen Center. The couple danced for nine hours with the last four featuring fast polkas and Cotton Eyed Joe. Coming in for second place trophies were Wayne McClure and Debbie Bruns who managed eight hours and 58 minutes.

Jeff Barrett, son of Gene and Nancy Bowlin, placed fourth in the Congressional Art Contest. Local Rhonda Dusten also placed in the top 10 out of some 500 entries from the district.

10 YEARS AGO

Mike Greenfield and Shari Williams, both 17 years of age, were honored with citizenship awards by the Snyder Rotary Club.

Horace Bostick was honored with a retirement reception following 28 years with the Snyder ISD.

SDN Week in Review

SUNDAY

June 11

The future of the BHP gasoline plant, formerly the Monsanto plant, remains unclear following a visit from company officials in Houston, it was reported Sunday.

A revised estimate for Scurry County tax values released to local entities indicates the county has experienced an estimated 9.5 percent loss in taxable value for this coming tax year, it was reported Sunday.

In dollars, this translates to a loss of just over $90 million from the county's tax base. For the 1989 tax roll, the base is now estimated at almost $857 million.

Assuming Snyder-based taxing entities need the same level of tax dollars this year as compared to last, property owners inside the city can expect to see their combined tax bills increase some 6 percent with the 1989 billing, it was reported Sunday.

MONDAY

A 30-minute discussion on the disposal of surplus county equipment Monday morning ended with county commissioners agreeing that the full court should make the final determination on what is surplus equipment.

Property owners which help fund the operation of Hermleigh ISD could see a tax decrease this fall while those within the boundaries of Ira ISD face a possible increase, it was reported Monday.

Both possibilities are based on "effective tax rate" information provided to the two schools by the Scurry County Appraisal District.

TUESDAY

June 13

Snyder Cablevision is investigating the possibility of providing cable TV to the rural community of Hermleigh, company officials noted Tuesday.

Jim Gemmill, a general partner and vice president for the group which owns Landmark Cable, said his firm has completed an engineering study regarding the addition and is now attempting to gain permitting and licensing.

The Scurry County Appraisal District has mailed some 5,500 notices informing property owners of an increase in value at least $1,000, it was reported Tuesday.

These primarily involve situations where improvements were made or where the owner voluntarily rendered their property with the district.

WEDNESDAY

June 14

Sales tax returns for Snyder, considered an up-to-date economic indicator, continue to run slightly ahead of last year, despite a one month decline for the most recent report, it was noted Wednesday.

For the year-to-date, Snyder has received $378,166 from the 1 percent tax on sales inside the city. This is a 1.9 percent improvement over last year, when $370,829 had been received through the year's first half.

An extensive remodeling project for Eckerd Drugs, the first since the store opened in Varsity Square Shopping Center in January of 1978, was reported Wednesday.

THURSDAY

June 15

The new superintendent for Ira public schools, Ted Bedwell, is now on the job a few weeks prior to the actual start of his contract July 1, it was reported Thursday.

Bedwell comes to Ira after serving one year as the high school principal at Panther Creek, a Class A school in Coleman County.

State Rep. David Counts of Knox City said here Thursday that a complete overhaul of the state's workman's compensation system is needed and said he expects the upcoming special session to change how jury trials fit into the current plan.

He said he expects a compromise in workman's compensation reform legislation to make jury trials a last resort instead of the first.

The city council Thursday night scheduled a June 29 informational public hearing on the city's possible participation in the Texas Capital Fund, which offers loans to start new businesses.

FRIDAY

June 16

Groups interested in preserving Scurry County history have received a $7,500 gift from a Snyder couple to complete the Dermott School renovation project underway on the coliseum grounds, it was reported Friday.

This week, Roy and Geleska Baze presented Exxon Corp. stock certificates to Historic Scurry County Inc. president Bernhard Bartels and Scurry County Historical Commission president Billy Bob McMullan.

This past school year, Snyder ISD students in affected grades scored higher than their peers statewide in 10 out of 14 educational categories on the TEAMS tests, it was reported Friday.

SDN Letters to the Editor

To the editor,

As I sit in the concession stand, looking out over Moffett Field, I wonder if people really know how fortunate Snyder is to have such fine facilities for our baseball/softball programs.

I have a son who started in Little League, went on to Junior Teenage and now is in the Senior Teenage League.

Our senior league boys play all their games in Sweetwater on the high school field—a field that is minus 20 lights (all their games are played after 8:30 p.m.), a scoreboard that is not working (you never know what inning it is), no P.A. system, ruts in the infield and outfield and unwatered grass (that way it does not have to be mowed).

It seems that when the Sweetwater school system regained their baseball program, the county turned over maintenance of the field to the high school. Now that school is out for the summer, the field goes unattended.

I tip my hat to Scurry County and Jimmy Ward and his crew of workers for the excellent job they do in keeping all the ball fields in such great shape.

To the editor,

A few days ago a group of my neighbors got together to form a Neighborhood Watch. It was our pleasure to have Lt. Steve Warren present the various programs the Snyder Police Department offer the community.

We felt that we had taken positive steps to work together with the police department and our neighbors.

MEANWHILE, BACK AT THE WAR ON DRUGS...

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

Honor Your Parents Now; It's Later Than You Think

DEAR ABBY: A number of years ago, a letter that you printed really "struck home" with me and made me realize how blessed I was to have two parents who loved and cared deeply for me. I clipped the letter and placed it in my wallet. Each time I read it, it reminds me about how important it is to drop them a note or give them a call, even if it's just to say "hi."

With Mother's and Father's Day approaching, I thought you may want to reprint the letter in hopes that it will remind others to take time out of their schedules to remember those who caringly raised them.

Please sign me ...
THANKFUL THEY'RE ALIVE, OR GLAD THERE'S STILL TIME

DEAR THANKFUL: Although your letter arrived too late for Mother's Day, it's not too late for Father's Day — coming up tomorrow. And here it is:

DEAR ABBY: I am the most heart-broken person in the world. I could always find the time to go everywhere else, but never time to go visit Mom and Dad. They sat at home and loved me just the same. It's too late now to give them those few hours of happiness I was too selfish and busy to give.

Now when I go to their graves and see the green grass above them, I wonder if God will ever forgive me for the heartaches I must have caused them when they were alive. I pray to God that those who still have their parents to visit do so, and show their love and respect while there is still time, for it's later than you think.

generation cousins, I can understand it, but Abby, we get invitations from second- and third-generation cousins we hardly know, and some we've never even seen.

My husband and I are retired and living on a fixed income. Our medical bills are not completely covered by Medicare, and our supplemental insurance does not cover our expenses. We're having a hard time making ends meet.

How does one go about declining invitations without appearing cheap and getting family members we really care about angry with us?
NO NAME OR TOWN, PLEASE

DEAR NO NAME: If you don't know some of these second- and third-generation cousins, they probably don't know you either, but your name was on the list because you're "family." (They may have been told by other family members that you might feel hurt if you weren't invited.) Simply decline graciously. Send an appropriate card, don't feel guilty, and let it go at that.

DEAR ABBY: Yes, life is hard for the unambiguous who say exactly what they mean.

My dad told me about this ambiguous statement that appeared in our church bulletin: "Following communion services this Easter Sunday, Mrs. Johnson will lay an egg on the altar."

CHRISSY IN ROCHESTER, MINN.

DEAR READERS: For Father's Day I offer the following series of letters from my column in 1975:

DEAR READERS: Some time ago, I published a letter signed "Not Guilty." It was written by a father who was driving home from a father-son fishing trip in a blinding rainstorm when the car skidded into a ditch. The boy was killed and the father walked away with only a small cut on his nose.

The father wrote: "I wasn't going fast, and I wasn't careless. It was just a freak accident. He was only 16 and our only child. My wife blames me for our son's death. We once had a good marriage, but now we are practically strangers. Can you help me?"

I urged the man to get his wife into therapy, and although I never heard from him again, his letter prompted this one from another father, which I think is appropriate for publication on Father's Day:

DEAR ABBY: I read that touching letter from a father, "Not Guilty," who had lost his only son in a car accident while the two of them were returning from a fishing trip. His wife made it clear that she blamed him for the boy's death. Consequently, each is bearing the loss alone.

Five years ago, our 23-year-old son, less than a year out of Harvard, came home to die of cancer. He lived exactly one month from the day he came home. During that last month of his life, I spent practically all my time with him. We parted confident of each other's love.

Abby, when he was growing up, I didn't spend much time with him. (I was too busy.) How I wish I had taken him on a fishing trip now and then, as this dad had done. It seems to me that this dad must have been a good father before the Almighty intervened for reasons of his own. There are worse ways for a father and son to part; in fact, it is difficult to think of a better way than in an atmosphere of love and sharing.

A generation or two ago, when child mortality was higher, married couples seemed much more aware of a fundamental fact: Although we love our children dearly, we lose some through death, some leave us, some displease us, and occasionally one will crown our old age.

But in the end, all parents have each other. Our children are just "loaners." We start out a couple, and we'll most likely end as a couple, finding comfort and fulfillment together in a union ordained by God.

My wife and I felt that ours was a good marriage, but the loss of our son drew us even closer together. I hope "Not Guilty's" wife will realize that the intimacy of shared tears can add a precious new dimension to their marriage.

OHIO DAD

DEAR ABBY: On Mother's Day you ran a beautiful prayer to be recited in memory of deceased mothers. If you have a prayer for deceased fathers, will you please print it on Father's Day?

A LOVING DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: The following is the prayer from the Hebrew Union Prayer Book:

Thy memory, my dear father, fills my soul at this solemn hour. It revives in me thoughts of the love and friendliness which thou didst bestow upon me. The thought of these inspires me to a life of virtue; and when my pilgrimage on earth is ended and I shall arrive at the throne of mercy, may I be worthy of thee in the sight of God and man. May our merciful Father reward thee for the faithfulness and kindness thou has ever shown me; may he grant thee eternal peace. Amen.

DEAR ABBY: I'm sure my problem is not unique, but I need some advice. My husband comes from a very large family, and they are big party-givers. I'm talking about wedding showers, baby showers, confirmations, communions, graduations from high schools and colleges, etc. If it's for brothers and sisters, and first-

High court accused of 'redneck justice'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civil rights activists are accusing the Supreme Court of "redneck justice" and urging Congress to stem what they say is a reactionary tide threatening 35 years of progress for minorities and women.

The court's ruling Thursday on a racial harassment case is one of several new decisions showing that a newly solidified conservative majority on the court is intent on carrying out former President Ronald Reagan's agenda, civil and women's rights groups say.

The court, by a 5-4 vote, barred the use of a key 1866 civil rights law to fight racial harassment. But the justices voted unanimously to uphold use of the law, originally intended to help freed slaves, to sue private individuals for other forms of discrimination.

Molly Yard, president of the National Organization for Women, said conservatives on the court "again revealed themselves to be hostile and insensitive to the progress of the last 20 years. Redneck justice meted out with country club manners is no less painful than the real thing."

John Buchanan of the liberal People for the American Way said, "It's a sad commentary on the state of the court's general outlook on civil rights that today's decision must be greeted with a measure of relief."

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., urged President Bush to join Congress in proposing bills to reverse the high court rulings.

"Taken separately, each of these retreats would be a source of genuine concern," he said. "Together they are a serious threat to the 35 years of progress we have achieved toward a better and fairer society."

Thursday's ruling follows three other significant high court setbacks for those urging more aggressive steps to combat bias.

Last January, the court banned racial quotas in the awarding of public works projects by state and local governments. On June 5, the justices restricted the use of statistical evidence to prove an employer illegally relegates minorities or women to lower-paying jobs.

And just last Monday, the court significantly expanded the power of white men to challenge court-approved affirmative action plans, even years after those plans took effect.

Addressing the latest ruling, Julius Chambers of the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund said it means "employers who do not want blacks on their work force can simply hire blacks and harass them on the job until they quit."

Bruce Fein, a conservative who keeps a close watch on high court rulings, said civil rights groups were exaggerating the significance of the decision.

But he agreed that "there is a conservative five-member majority now changing the evaluation and approach to the civil rights law."

The court acted in the case of Brenda Patterson, a black teller for a credit union in North Carolina. She said her boss harassed her by ordering her to do menial tasks, such as sweeping floors.

The court's ruling bars her from suing her employer for big-money punitive damages for alleged harassment. It does not prohibit her or others with similar complaints from suing under a 1964 federal civil rights law that has less sweeping financial remedies.

Also, the 1964 law applies only to businesses with at least 15 employees, excluding some 15 percent of the American work force. The 1866 law covers all employers.

Sober alcoholics from USSR meet U. S. comrades

WASHINGTON (AP) — Three recovering Soviet alcoholics are returning home from a two-month tour of the United States with best wishes from President Bush's physician and cheers from thousands of American comrades in Alcoholics Anonymous.

About 20,000 AA members they met during their cross-country travels autographed a copy of "Alcoholics Anonymous," the 50-year-old bible of the self-help organization, and they plan to present the book to Soviet President Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

Victor, 42, Sasha, 43, and Volodya, 37, who follow the AA tradition in refusing to use their last names, belong to a fledgling AA group called "Moscow Beginners," which held its first meeting in August 1987.

The 40 members of the group meet every night of the week in the Soviet capital to help each other maintain their newfound sobriety. The three members who have toured the United States since April 10 were astonished to find so many AA members — an estimated 835,500 last year.

But the 12-step AA program of recovery from alcoholism is the same in both countries, they discovered.

"This program treats the spiritual soul of man," Victor, a Moscow cinematographer, told a news conference Thursday at the National Press Club.

"It is a paradox," he said, "but with the recovery of the spirit a person can be healed of the disease."

The Rev. J.W. Canty, an Episcopal priest from New York who helped start the Moscow group, credited Gorbachev's liberal reform policies for allowing AA to flourish in the Soviet Union.

Without Gorbachev, "AA would have to function underground," said Canty, chairman of the non-profit Soviet-U.S. Joint Conference on Alcoholism, Drug Addiction and Peace in Moscow and organizer of the tour.

Altogether, there are fewer than 100 Soviet AA members. "It's very small, but it's a beginning," Canty said. "It's working, slowly but well. If you can save even one life, that's an enormous contribution."

Since they arrived in New York, the three Soviets have attended scores of AA meetings — including one in California that drew 1,100 people — and visited alcoholism treatment centers across the country, from Massachusetts to Texas.

They also met with such celebrities as Betty Ford and Kitty Dukakis, both recovering alcoholics, Nancy Reagan, Lady Bird Johnson and Dr. Burton Lee, the White House physician, who applauded their AA membership.

ASTRO-GRAPH
BERNICE BEDE OSOL

In the year ahead there is a possibility you might be showered with more opportunities than you can comfortably handle. It will be up to you to separate, classify and utilize those which are the most worthwhile.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Guard against being unduly swayed by the opinions of another today. Be sure the know-it-all who is bending your ear knows. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Be extra mindful of sensible health habits today. If there are things you shouldn't eat, drink or do, this is not a time to start bending the rules.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You could be more susceptible to manipulation than usual today, so to be on the safe side, keep your guard up. Beware of people who use flattery for no reason.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Until something is a fait accompli, it's best you don't boast about it in advance. It could be embarrassing later if you do not live up to your expectations.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) The only one who is likely to be impressed by your big schemes today will be yourself. Keep this in mind if you find yourself trying to enthrall a captive audience.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A financial arrangement in which you are presently involved with another appears to be a trifle lopsided. The profit you're anticipating might come from your own pocket.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Partnership arrangements could be more of a hindrance than a help today, especially if you're involved with a person who likes to give orders but doesn't know how to take them.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) It doesn't look like you will receive much help today extricating yourself from complicated situations of your own making. Instead of waiting for aid, begin to unwind things yourself.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Be careful today that you do not find yourself in the middle of a disagreement between two friends of whom you are equally fond. If you say the wrong thing, both might get mad at you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In order to achieve your objectives today you must be motivated and tenacious. You're not likely to accomplish anything worthwhile if you coast.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Try to be as frank and forthright as possible if you are involved with someone today in an important arrangement. Report the facts free from any embellishment.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Guard against inclinations at this time to count your material blessings before they become actualities. Don't make financial commitments until the money is in the bank.

Friendships could take on greater significance in the year ahead. You will be establishing a number of new relationships and each will be important in its own way.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Problems that appear to be unresolvable to others are likely to have obvious solutions as far as you're concerned. Speak up if you think you know the answers. Major changes are ahead for Gemini in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Allow the little flashes of insight and inspiration you get today guide you in your decision-making. They could prove to be very helpful.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Your imagination is your greatest asset today for enabling you to further your ambitions. Don't be afraid to think "What if?" instead of "It can't be done."

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something exciting could develop for you at this time through someone you recently met socially. You'll begin to discover you have lots in common with your new pal.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your focus is likely to be centered on lots of little incidental things that you can do for family members today. You won't be bored and they'll be appreciative.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) There's a possibility you might run into someone today you'd least expect to encounter. It's a person with whom you've been wanting to re-establish contact.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Today looks rather encouraging for you where your material interests are concerned. Be alert at all times, because if something develops that promises personal gain, you'll have to move swiftly.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Even though you have an innate appreciation for that which is traditional, your mind set is likely to be futuristic today. This is good, because you'll be more effective dwelling on what lies ahead.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Things should go well for you today, provided you're as concerned about the interests of others as you are about your own. Slow downs are only likely to occur when you get too self-centered.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Make it a point to keep your schedule as flexible as possible. Today's most fun and exciting developments could be those that aren't planned by you or others.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You should be very effective today if you're required to deal with some type of unconventional project. Let your inventiveness dictate your methods and tactics.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Something unorthodox might occur today that will have a positive effect on broadening your outlook. Your enlightenment may come about in an unusual way.

Senators spend more than $1 million each to reach constituents

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sens. Lloyd Bentsen and Phil Gramm spent more than $1 million each keeping in touch with Texas through mass mailings, but the per-household cost amounts to less than the price of two stamps, according to a Common Cause study.

The public advocacy group's study said Bentsen spent $2.8 million updating Texans on the latest developments in Washington in the two years before his re-election, while Gramm's franked mass mailings cost taxpayers $1.6 million.

Although the two Texans were among 15 senators who spent more than $1 million each for franked mass mailings in 1987 and 1988, the per-household cost amounted to less than 50 cents apiece.

Common Cause said Bentsen's government-paid mass mailings cost 46 cents per Texas household, while Gramm's per-household total was 27 cents.

Sen. Kent Conrad, D-N.D., had the highest cost per household — $1.27 — but his total cost was $315,943, while Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., had the greatest total cost — $3.87 million, but a cost per household of 37 cents.

In total costs, Bentsen, a Democrat re-elected to a fourth term in November, was ranked fourth among all senators, while Gramm, a Republican, ranked eightth. Common Cause said senators in 1987-88 spent $53 million for franked, or postage-free, mass mailings, a practice the group criticized.

"Franked mass mailings are used for campaign purposes by members of Congress and provide incumbents with an unfair and discriminatory advantage over their challengers," said Common Cause President Fred Wertheimer. "The use of the frank for mass mailings should be eliminated or sharply curtailed."

In February, the Senate changed its policy and expanded from three to six the number of franked mass mailings senators can make to every address in their state.

Spokesmen for Gramm and Bentsen said the Texans use franked mass mailings to reach constituents who have written them about specific issues.

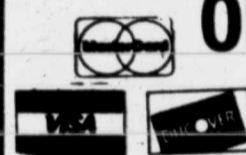

Spokesman Larry Neal said Gramm has never done a statewide mailing addressed simply to "postal patron."

Gramm instead targets his mailings to specific audiences — such as Texans who have written him about the need for a balanced budget amendment — and each letter is addressed to the recipient by name.

Gramm's mass mailings are also sent pre-sorted by carrier route, and go third class, the cheapest way to mail, Neal said.

Interpol joins investigation into missing rare books

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — Interpol has joined an investigation into the disappearance of about 80 rare books from a Galveston medical school library, suggesting that the books may have been sold in other countries, officials said.

"We want to be as thorough as we can, but when you are looking at something that may have happened outside the states, it just takes a little longer," District Attorney Mike Guarino said, adding that the international scope of the case has slowed the probe.

An audit concluded in February revealed that books were missing from the Truman G. Blocker Jr. History of Medicine Collections at UTMB's Moody Medical Library. Officials have refused to identify the missing books, except to say that they are duplicates of others in the collection. Head librarian Emil Frey resigned his $83,389-a-year job on May 18. After his resignation, the locks were changed in the library. UTMB officials have said their investigation is focusing on some individual suspects, but have declined to say whether Frey or other library employees are targets.

Besides the international police organization Interpol, the UTMB police department, FBI and district attorney's office are investigating the case.

The university has declined to place a value on the missing books.

The 12,000-volume Truman G. Blocker collection, named for the late UTMB president, contains books dating from the 14th century. It is the largest collection of rare medical books in the South, officials said.

Police ticket policy probe underway

DALLAS (AP) — School district officials are questioning police involvement in student discipline after it was revealed that more than a thousand citations for misbehavior have been issued at Dallas schools.

The Dallas Independent School District controversy was sparked by a ticket issued to a high school junior for alleged class disruption.

Chris Henry, 17, said he was ticketed for laughing boisterously at a joke in class and later received a letter notifying him an arrest warrant would be issued. He faces a possible fine of $200 for a Class C misdemeanor.

Chad Woolery, DISD assistant superintendent for secondary education, said Thursday that district policy allows for police officers to issue tickets in cases involving violence, drugs, weapons or "major school disruptions."

"The police don't do this on their own — there has to be a complaint filed," Woolery said.

But in the case of Henry, a student at Carter High School, administrators are questioning the policy, Woolery said.

"It was an inappropriate use of a ticket," he said. "We have a discipline procedure that would deal with that."

During the 1988-89 school year, police issued 1,360 tickets to students for misbehavior.

A breakdown of that figure indicates that pupils at John B. Hood Middle School received 114 tickets, the most in the district. The Dallas Morning News reported. Other middle schools where tickets were given were Fred F. Florence, with 50; E.B. Comstock, 55; and L.V. Stockard, 41.

Carter students received the most tickets of all the high schools, with 88 citations. Justin F. Kimball students received 42; North Dallas High School, 44; Franklin D. Roosevelt, 49; and Sunset, 41.

Dozens of citations also were issued at 12 elementary schools, The Morning News said.

Woolery said the policy went into effect during the 1987-88 school year.

"It has a place, but the fine line is when to use it and when it's inappropriate to use it," Woolery said, adding that the policy is in keeping with a legislative push toward more campus security.

A provision of the Texas Education Code allows for police intervention if a person disrupts a classroom.

To the editor:

On behalf of a group of Hockley County 4-H members, I would like to say "Thank You" to several Snyder residents. Our bus broke down near Hermleigh when we were returning from Texas 4-H Roundup which is held on the A&M Campus.

Tracy and Deanna Holladay were kind enough to take us into Snyder and make sure we had someone coming to pick us up. Gary Roberts gave us much-needed advice regarding getting the bus towed and repaired. We were so grateful to the staff at the Snyder McDonald's. They allowed us to put our belongings in one area of the restaurant and stay there until another bus could come from Levelland to pick us up. In fact, they were willing to try to make arrangements for us to spend the night at the restaurant if necessary.

It is so nice to have what could have been a terrible experience become bearable because of the caring people who helped us. We are lucky to live in an area where people are willing to help others.
