

For attempted murder...

31-year-old local gets life sentence

A 31-year-old Snyder man was given a life sentence Friday in 132nd District Court after being found guilty of attempted murder.

The seven-man, five-woman jury deliberated from 2:15 to 3:20 p.m. to recommend its sentence in the case against David V.

Medrano of 306 20th St., who was accused of shooting 19-year-old Oscar Garza Jr. in the chest on Aug. 5 in the 300 Block of 20th.

Attempted murder is a second-degree felony, but the offense was enhanced to first degree on the basis of Medrano's 1978 convictions for burglary of a vehicle and aggravated assault with a deadly weapon.

District Attorney Ernie B. Armstrong presented evidence during the punishment phase of the trial that Medrano served a five-year sentence in the Texas Department of Criminal Justice for burglary of a vehicle here on April 22, 1978, and for shooting a man in the leg with a shotgun on Feb. 26, 1978.

Medrano was found guilty at 11:50 p.m. Thursday after the jury had deliberated for more than 12 hours.

He was represented by Lubbock attorney David Martinez.

Young girl fatally injured in accident

A 6-year-old Snyder girl was fatally injured when she was hit by a car at 5:07 p.m. Friday in the 800 Block of 23rd St.

Melisa Kenner of 2301 Ave. H was crossing the street when she was struck by a 1976 Oldsmobile driven by Tammy L. Cordova, 23, of 513 32nd St., police said.

Suffering head injuries and a broken right leg, she was taken by Snyder EMS Ambulance Service to Cogdell Memorial Hospital, where she was treated until being flown by helicopter at 7:20 p.m. to Lubbock General Hospital.

She died at 3 a.m. Saturday, a spokesman for the Lubbock hospital said.

Police said Melisa, a first-grader at Central Elementary School, was running south across the street and the car was west-bound on 23rd St. when the accident occurred.

The car was towed from the scene, they said, so that it could be examined by a mechanic.

The investigation into the accident had not been completed, officers said.

Melisa was the daughter of Jerry and Wanda Kenner of 2301 H and was in teacher Roseann Martin's first grade class at Central.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home.

Exit level TEAMS test to be given this week

The exit level Texas Educational Assessment of Minimum Skills (TEAMS) test will be administered at Snyder High School on Wednesday and Thursday.

The test will be given to all junior class students and those seniors who have not passed one or more sections.

Parents are encouraged to be sure their child is at school on these two important dates, since no make-up sessions are permitted, according to the school. Students who miss the test, or who do not pass one or both sections of the test, will be tested in May.

Test dates are Wednesday for the mathematics section and Thursday for the English Language Arts portion.

Texas state law mandates that students must pass both sections of the TEAMS exit test by the end of the 12th grade in order to receive a high school diploma.

Parents with questions should call high school counselors John Short or Janet Wesson at 573-0132 or Janice Brown, director of curriculum and testing, at 573-9364.

Clements refuses to consider issue of abortion for agenda

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Abortion legislation is best saved for a regular session of the Legislature, Gov. Bill Clements said as he stunned abortion foes by refusing to place the issue on the agenda of the two upcoming special sessions.

After the Supreme Court's July ruling gave states greater power to enact abortion legislation, Clements said Texans "can bet on" his calling a special legislative session to deal with the issue.

"I'm glad I didn't put any money on it," said Bill Price, president of Texans United for Life.

Clements Friday said abortion wouldn't be on the agenda of either the November special session on workers' compensation or the spring session on school financing. But his press secretary, Rossanna Salazar, said, "Whether it (abortion) is the subject of a future special session, anything is possible."

But Price said, "I consider it to be a betrayal. He's playing political football with the lives of unborn children."

Clements, a Republican who is not seeking re-election, will be out of office by the time the next regular session begins in January 1991. The governor calls and sets the agenda for special legislative sessions.

Ms. Salazar said Clements hasn't changed his anti-abortion beliefs. The governor is against abortions except in the cases of rape, incest, or if the life of the mother is in danger, she said.

"We're not going to cloud the issue of the special session on

County board to study order for outside audit

Discussion of an order by District Judge Gene Dulaney for an independent special audit of county records will highlight a 10 a.m. meeting Monday of the Scurry County commissioners court.

County Judge Bobby Goodwin said Dulaney, who presides over the 132nd judicial district, has been invited to discuss the matter. Goodwin said the court will consider its options in hopes of avoiding what could be a costly duplication of work already done.

In ordering the audit, Dulaney cited sections of the Texas Local Government Code, calling it an "independent special audit of the books, records and accounts of Scurry County."

In an Oct. 12 letter to the commissioners court, Dulaney further described the audit as operational in nature to see if changes are needed in methods and controls. Dulaney, who has selected the Lubbock accounting firm of Coopers and Lybrand, said the firm has agreed to do the initial survey at no cost. If the operational review indicates a more extensive audit is needed, the county will be billed at standard hourly rates.

In a letter to the editor in this edition of the Snyder Daily News, Dulaney stated that he is not duplicating a financial audit recently done since he is calling for an operational audit.

Dulaney further stated that he ordered the audit, and only notified the commissioners court as a courtesy. He further stated in the letter that the commissioners court has no avenue of appeal to his order.

Earlier Judge Goodwin had said only three reasons existed for calling a special audit, and that none of the three reasons apply in the case of Scurry County. Judge Dulaney said these three reasons apply only in the instance of a special audit called by the commissioners court, not the district court.

Dulaney also stressed that the (see AUDIT, page 15A)

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Things are changing so fast that even nostalgia isn't what it used to be."

An item came across our desk that shows that on Sept. 30, the total national debt of the United States exceeded $2.7 trillion.

Written $2.7 trillion doesn't look that bad, but put the correct numbers of zeros, and it can cause an anxiety attack. Try it—$2,700,000,000,000.

This size national debt causes the government to spend more than 20 percent of the entire budget on interest payments to service the national debt, about $200 billion.

In order to understand how much debt is involved, imagine an expensive home that sells for $500,000. The amount of money needed to pay just this year's interest on the national debt would equal the purchase price of 472,000 half-million dollar homes. In order to pay the national debt, the U.S. would have to raise enough money to buy 270,000 hotels priced at ten million each.

The late Sen. Everett Dirksen of Illinois made famous a statement that relates to government spending.

Once, during a senate debate on appropriations, Dirksen tried to come to grips with the mind-boggling amounts being proposed in a colleague's amendment.

In frustration, Dirksen reminded his fellow senator of the danger of adding unbudgeted amounts to a bill with his classic remark:

"We must be very careful of these spending amendments. If you add a billion here and a billion there, the first thing you know, you're talking about real money."

Some earthquake victims died swiftly

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — When the earth split and buildings crumbled, Diane Laufer and Paul Harris died holding hands after the rubble of their apartment rained down on them.

Donald McGlinchy, a high school teacher racing to perform an act of mercy, survived the quake but died of injuries received when he fell down a dark stairwell while trying to rescue an invalid cousin.

These are stories of some of the 54 confirmed dead in Tuesday's earthquake:

—Diane Laufer, 40, and Paul Harris, 48, San Francisco.

"The couple died hand in hand with his hand on hers as if he were trying to protect her," said paramedic Joe DelliGatti, who found the trapped couple still alive in the moonlit rubble. "She died first. He said a few more words and then died."

Rescuers were unable to free them before they died. Their bodies were still in the rubble Wednesday when health-conscious runners jogged in the morning sun through the affluent Marina district with its view of the Golden Gate Bridge.

—Donald McGlinchy, 59, San Francisco.

McGlinchy, a Galileo High School English teacher, lived through the quake but hurried to help his ailing cousin, Mary McDevitt, at her darkened apartment on Clay Street.

"He came by after the quake and all the lights were out. He left to walk down three stories but he had no flashlight," said McDevitt. McGlinchy's nephew found him one hour later lying in the darkened stairwell. Bloodied and dying, he told the nephew, "I hurt."

McGlinchy, a father of three who was about to retire, died of internal injuries at San Francisco General.

"He was a wonderful person. I'm an invalid; ever since I've been sick he called or visited at least three times a week," said McDevitt, through tears.

—Gary Watson, 54, Napa.

Watson, a retired Naval shipyard worker and wine connoisseur, was working the part-time job he loved trucking wine from San Leandro to Napa. His truck was crushed when a section of Interstate 880 buckled, trapping dozens of hapless motorists under slabs of concrete.

"I had no idea he was down there. When I noticed he didn't come home by 1 a.m. I went in the family room and I saw my mom crying. She was on the phone to the coroner," said Debbie Watson, one of Watson's four daughters.

Authorities couldn't find Watson's wallet. His wife identified him on the phone by the spark-let cut wedding band she had just bought him for their 21st wedding anniversary.

—Jeffrey Choi, 41, San Francisco.

A native of Hong Kong, Choi was working as a thimble cutter to support his wife and three teen-age children.

Choi was in his car headed home along his usual route near the Bluxome Outlet where he worked south of Market Street.

He was buried in his car by bricks cascading off a facade of a building that collapsed on motorists, killing five.

"We had been having a hard time in America," said Choi's 15-year-old Monita Choi, from the family's home.

"He was trying to work as hard as he could to raise us so we could go to college. They wanted us to get a better education," the teenager said.

FLYING FOR UNITED WAY — Dr. Jim Burleson, president of Scurry County Pilots Association, presented United Way President Barbara Figuredo a check for $1,520 last week. The money was donated from proceeds of the association's Fly-In during which 304 people paid $5 each for airplane rides. The pilots expressed their appreciation to West Texas State Bank, Snyder National Bank, American State Bank, McDonald's, Everybody's and Bell Cypert Seale for their donations to the fly-in breakfast which enabled the club to donate all of the proceeds to United Way. Pops Concert slated on Tuesday evening

The annual fall Pops Concert of the Western Texas College music department will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday in the Fine Arts Theatre on campus.

Admission is free and the public is invited to attend. Donations to the music department's scholarship fund will be accepted at the concert.

Appearing on the program for the first time will be the newly organized Collegiate Singers. Also performing will be the WTC mixed choir as well as Women's Ensemble and flute ensemble. The groups will be combined for the finale, "Edelweiss."

The performing groups are under the direction of Brent Hardegree and Jane Womack.

Members of the choir are Barbara Ashby, Shanna Byrd, Barbara, Chapman, Shelley Gibson, Blaine Irons, Todd Perry, Robert Lane, John Howard, Roddy Oaks, David Stewart, and Francois Pointeau of Snyder; Gena Grammer of Colorado City; Charemon Peery and Rozlyn Peery of Abilene, Lesa Miller of Aberrathy, Konnie Adams of Dallas, Sandra Elias of Stamford, Joe Gloria of Sweetwater and Lance Rasch of Brownwood. Making up the Collegiate Singers are Byrd, Chapman, Perry, Howard, Pointeau, Elias and Grammer.

Members of the Women's Ensemble are Pat Faver, Sherry Jenkins, Chiva Pitner, Earline Stroud, Judy McLarty, Charlotte Smith, Kim Fritz, Linda Mize, Nita Brown, Barbara Burney, Doris Spikes, and Elaine Githens.

Performing the flute ensemble are Andrea Garner, Debbie Walter and Triesta Lily along with Hardegree.

Police standoff

AUSTIN (AP) — A former Travis County sheriff's deputy barricaded himself in a portable building for three hours and threatened to commit suicide, before being taken from the building by police.

Dana Clark Bingham, 37, was removed from the building on U.S. 290 West in Oak Hill Friday after police negotiators saw he was not armed, said Lt. Gary Barrington of the Austin police special missions team.

He was taken to Brackenridge Hospital for evaluation by Travis County mental health and mental retardation workers.

The standoff began at 11:30 a.m., when Bingham called relatives, who notified police.

PHILIP S. CARTER

Scholarship presented to Philip Carter

Philip S. Carter is the recipient of a $500 scholarship awarded by the Texas Society of Range Management at its annual meeting in Wichita Falls Oct. 6. Selection of recipients is based upon scholarship and participation in activities related to range management.

Carter is a senior range and wildlife management major at Texas Tech University. He has been on the Dean's List every semester and has served on the livestock, meats, and range-plant identification judging teams. He is a member of the Range and Wildlife Club, Block and Bride, and Phi Theta Kappa. He has been a student trainee with the Soil Conservation Service (SCS) since the summer of 1988.

Following graduation in May, Carter will be employed by the SCS as a range conservationist.

ACB criticized for rubber plant case

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Members of the Texas Air Control Board criticized the way their top administrators handled a pollution investigation at a West Texas plant, but they balked at a request by several environmentalists for an outside review of the case.

Dick Whittington, air control board chairman, on Friday ordered reinstatement of six pollution violation reports prepared by investigator Neil Carman against Dynagen Inc., a General Tire subsidiary in Odessa.

The Austin American-Statesman earlier this month reported the air control board removed Carman — whose work provided the backbone for $83,000 in fines against Dynagen during the past year — because Dynagen contended Carman was biased.

Air control board members have asked their staff to prepare a policy to help prevent a repeat of the fouled Dynagen investigation.

The case "reflected sloppy handling of the situation from our own management," said board member Mary Anne Wyatt of Victoria.

Whittington agreed, "It's clear that mistakes were made. It's clear that we have learned some things."

Whittington said Friday during a meeting of the board he wanted Carman's reports "seriously considered for inclusion in any subsequent enforcement action."

Several speakers, including Ken Kramer, state director for the Lone Star Chapter of the Sierra Club, urged the board to ask an outside agency such as the Texas Attorney General's Office to investigate the Dynagen case.

"It would help restore public confidence in the way this agency conducts its investigations," Kramer said.

Mark Warren, an Austin engineer, told the board that he and others are circulating petitions in Austin and Odessa asking for an independent investigation of the air board's policies and practices.

The Dynagen plant uses butadiene and styrene to make synthetic rubber for General Tire's seven tire-manufacturing plants.

In the process, state officials say, Dynagen releases into the air each year hundreds of tons of styrene and butadiene, both considered suspected carcinogens by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency.

The company also burns 2 million pounds of waste rubber a year in an incinerator and maintains several waste ponds.

Carman handled many of the complaints and his reports provided the backbone for air board penalties against Dynagen — $40,000 in 1988 and $43,000 in June this year.

Planners need addresses of ex-Westbrook residents

Westbrook Community's homecoming has been set for Friday and Saturday, June 15 and 16, at Westbrook High School.

Various activities are being planned such as a noon meal on Saturday, class parties, and a special program.

Event organizers say they need help in contacting anyone who might be interested in attending the two-day function. Anyone having addresses of former residents of the Westbrook community are asked to relay them to planning committee members.

The invitation committee will be sending out letters regarding the upcoming homecoming. Those interested in attending but who have not received a letter by November 1 or if anyone has the addresses of ex-residents they are asked to contact Wilma Jean McKenney at 728-2783, Lucille Stone, 728-8792, or Westbrook School office, 644-2311.

Garbage-laden RR cars turned back

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Five railroad cars full of rotting refuse were on their way back to Philadelphia Saturday after state officials won a court order blocking a plan to dump the garbage in Indiana.

The state Department of Environmental Management said the four companies involved in carting the trash lacked a permit allowing garbage to be transferred from railroad cars to dump trucks.

The cars headed back Friday after the state obtained a restraining order against the dumping and threatened to fine the trash haulers $25,000 for each day the garbage was parked at a Terre Haute rail yard.

The household trash originally was destined for the Center Point Landfill near Brazil, about 60 miles west of Indianapolis near Terre Haute.

Friday's action "is really intended to send a message to anybody that if they're going to bring their trash into Indiana, they're going to have to do it legally," Environmental Management Commissioner Kathy Prosser said in a telephone interview.

Susan Shadley, an attorney representing the four companies, didn't respond to a telephone request for comment.

"It's not surprising to see boxes of garbage being shipped across the country," Prosser said. "This really symbolizes a bigger problem this nation has. A lot of states have never addressed how they're going to manage their solid waste."

The disposal dispute recalled the saga of a freighter — also from Philadelphia — that sailed the seas for two years searching for a place to dump 14,000 tons of ash from burned garbage. It was rejected by 11 countries before turning up empty in Singapore late in 1988, after changing names and owners.

The garbage-laden rail cars, emitting a foul smell and with steam rising from their cargo in the cold air, left a Conrail yard about 10:30 a.m. headed east, officials said.

The Conrail train was to have left the state early Saturday, heading back to Pennsylvania through Ohio, Prosser said.

She said the train's progress was being monitored and that Ohio and Pennsylvania officials would be alerted it was heading their way.

Mayor Pete Chalos of Terre Haute learned Thursday that the garbage cars were in his city and organized a hunt to locate them. Prosser then sent investigators to the rail yard late Thursday.

The cars had been in Indiana since late last week.

A U.S. Supreme Court ruling prohibits Indiana from stopping solid waste from entering the state in railroad cars. However, state solid-waste rules forbid trash from being unloaded from railroad cars onto trucks that would take it to landfills.

Hearing-impaired students...

Special bicycle program set at West next Thursday

Midland police officer Ron Sartor will present a special bicycle safety program for hearing impaired students at 10 a.m. Thursday in the deaf education room at West Elementary.

Presently, Snyder has a small deaf education class. The four students are all either four or five years old and two live in Colorado City and two live here. Sharon Crozier is their teacher.

According to an article which was published in the Sept. 19 issue of the Midland Reporter-Telegram, Sartor wanted to do something to help hearing impaired children in the Permian Basin.

After seeing an international hearing impaired symbol on a telephone at Midland International Airport, he created a flag which bears that same symbol.

While developing his program, Sartor visited with representatives of Southwest Collegiate Institute for the Deaf in Big Spring. The article stated that their feedback was "totally positive."

Sartor's design is believed to be the first of its kind in the country.

Recently, Sartor met with the Texas Commission on the Deaf in an attempt to convince them that the symbol should also be used in school zones. They were receptive, the article said, and would like to see the program promoted at a statewide level.

Sartor would eventually like to see the program expanded to include hearing-impaired senior citizens, who sometimes travel in electric carts.

Texas Ranger accidentally shoots himself

AUSTIN (AP) — A Texas Ranger accidentally shot himself in the thigh while strapping on a handgun, as he prepared to help arrest a robbery suspect.

Ron Stewart, 44, was in fair condition at Brackenridge Hospital after Friday's accidental shooting in the parking lot of a hamburger restaurant, said Mike Cox, spokesman for the Texas Department of Public Safety.

Stewart has been a Texas Ranger since 1981.

The accident occurred about 6:50 a.m., when DPS officers and the Austin police special missions team gathered in the parking lot. They were preparing to go to an apartment to arrest a man accused of aggravated robbery in Harris County.

Financial Focus

Balanced funds are among the most conservative funds you can own. As the name suggests, they are "balanced" between stocks and bonds.

At one time, the balance or proportion of a fund that a portfolio manager was allowed to place in either stocks or bonds was restricted. For example, a fund's prospectus might limit the fund's assets in equities to 60 percent. Regardless of the current status of the stock and bond markets, the portfolio manager couldn't exceed the fund's limits.

Today, most funds are more liberal with their balances. A portfolio might have a mix of securities that closely resembles a growth-and-income fund.

Generally, however, 20 percent to 40 percent of a balanced fund's assets are in bonds or preferred stocks. The remaining portfolio consists primarily of common stock in well capitalized, established companies.

Before investing in a balanced fund, it's particularly important that you read the prospectus. Conservative investors, who usually find balanced funds more appealing, may want to determine just how conservative the fund is.

Some funds still limit bond or equity investments in the portfolio. Others allow the portfolio manager a wider selection. For example, one balanced fund states that its investments must constitute "the complete investment program of the prudent investor." In other words, portfolios must be diversified and balanced. However, limitations aren't placed or defined to the extent of the diversification. That decision is left to the discretion of the fund manager.

Although the objectives and limitations stated in a prospectus are often general, they aren't misleading. To see how successfully funds accomplish their stated objectives, study the fund's historical performance. Remember, balanced funds tend to underperform all-equity and all-stock funds in good markets and offer an edge of market protection in bad markets.

Next week, we'll look at one way to evaluate balanced funds.

Students walk out of class

HOUSTON (AP) — About a thousand students from Houston's Stephen F. Austin High School have walked out of classes and refused to return until a chaotic learning environment stretching into the seventh week of school is brought to order.

"We came here to learn, but nobody is learning anything and our TEAMS tests are next week. Everybody has been switched around so much that I don't see how they'll pass," said Daniel Ellis, a ninth grader, one of many students who walked out and said they were being denied an education.

Students on Friday left school and described a scheduling nightmare that has left hundreds in the wrong classes. Some said they were being forced to switch classes up to eight times. One boy told of being assigned to a class in the girl's bathroom, while teachers were mistakenly assigned to broom closets.

Houston Independent School District Superintendent Joan Raymond said she and her staff will meet through the weekend to analyze concerns raised by the students and teachers.

Student leaders said the high school principal, Utilia Urbina, blamed the scheduling fiasco on the lack of computers such as those that are used in Bellaire and other schools. "They had to manually do thousands of changes," said senior class president Juanita Rodriguez.

Teachers complained Urbina — who was hired last spring — does not have the background to run a high school.

"You can't take an elementary principal who has been out of education for a number of years and put them back in charge of a high school. She had been working in hospital administration somewhere," said Debbie Whitehair, a business teacher at Austin.

"Computers have nothing to do with the scheduling troubles. The principal had no experience in writing high school schedules, nor did anybody around here."

Family may receive millions

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — The family of a man who died from burns sustained in a 1987 tanker truck explosion at an Austin service station could receive up to $4.5 million under a lawsuit settlement approved by a state district judge in Austin, officials said.

The family of Lester Ingram and three defendants in the case settled out of court for $1.75 million just before the case was to go to trial two months ago. Details were made public this week when the settlement was approved by District Judge Paul Davis.

The settlement requires that a portion of the $1.75 million be placed in an annuity fund that will pay the wife, two sons and parents of Lester Ingram monthly benefits that could yield approximately $4.5 million during their lifetimes, said David Walter, attorney for the family.

The family filed a wrongful death suit against Ryder Truck Rental Inc., Austin Fleet Maintenance Inc. and Roper Pump Co. in August 1988.

According to the lawsuit, Ryder had leased the truck to Ingram's employer, Calhoun-Smith Distributing Co.

The truck, a 1985 International, had a Roper gasoline transfer pump that had been installed by ding to the suit.

The lawsuit alleged that Ingram's death was caused by a defect in the pump's design that allowed it to be installed incorrectly. The installation did not allow the pressure relief valve on the pump to function properly, the lawsuit said.

Ingram was transferring gasoline from his tanker truck to a storage tank at a Texaco station on U.S. 290 West when the truck burst into flames.

He suffered second- and third-degree burns over 91 percent of his body in the Nov. 10, 1987, explosion, and died 33 days later at Brooke Army Medical Center in San Antonio.

Geologists warned of hazards

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Geologists warned a governor's panel in 1982 that soil beneath the section of Oakland freeway that collapsed, killing dozens, would probably turn to liquid in a big earthquake.

In addition, two structural engineers said Friday that the elevated portion of Interstate 880 probably would not have fallen had its columns been reinforced with steel and concrete.

They also debunked as "nonsense" a reported assertion by engineer J. David Rogers that expansion joints padded with brown building felt on top of the columns had ripped apart and caused the collapse.

Expansion joints are placed on horizontal decking, where vehicles drive, not on vertical columns, said one of the engineers, Loring Wyllie.

The 1982 report by the state Department of Mines and Geology said, in part: "The elevated section through downtown Oakland is expected to be extensively damaged. Liquefaction and related ground failures will occur" in a quake with a magnitude of 8.3 on the Richter scale of ground motion.

Tuesday's earthquake registered at 6.9 and killed scores of people, injured almost 3,000 and caused more than $4 billion in damage, according to initial estimates.

"The hydraulic fills used to construct miles of freeway along the east shore of (San Francisco Bay) in Alameda County may liquefy during heavy shaking, with long sections becoming totally impassable," said the report to the Governor's Emergency Task Force on Earthquake Preparedness.

State transportation officials have long been aware of poor soil conditions in the area, but there may have been "unusual subsurface conditions that we didn't know about," when the freeway was built 32 years ago, said Transportation Director Robert Best. Late Friday, Best said the wreck of I-880 was "a derelict hulk" that would be pulled down from end to end. "There's no question of repairing it."

"I don't know if our people ever saw that particular report," said chief transportation spokesman Jim Drago. "One thing I can tell you is we're assembling all soil studies and everything else that might help us understand what happened."

"Of course, the soils had a lot to do with the collapse," said John Kariotis, the second engineer offering criticism Friday. "Go back and look at pictures of Oakland in 1916. It was all marsh that was filled in."

Kariotis, a South Pasadena, Calif., expert in earthquake effects, and Wyllie, in San Francisco, said nevertheless that if I-880's columns had been girded in steel and additional concrete, the elevated section probably would not have collapsed.

President Bush to honor Liberty youth for bravery

LIBERTY, Texas (AP) — Joshua Patton is a GI Joe Real American Hero, a distinction he earned by dropping his little brother off a railroad bridge.

If he hadn't, he and the 4-year-old would have been hit by a train.

"I don't talk about it much, but everyone asks me questions," Joshua says about the rescue seven months ago that gained the attention of President Bush.

The 9-year-old boy will be one of 10 people from across the country chosen for the award, which Bush will present at a Washington luncheon. Joshua also was Junior Marshal in a recent Liberty parade and the Liberty mayor named a day in his honor.

The boys, their father, Billy

Patton, their grandfather and two uncles were camping between Crockett and Grapeland March 18. The men began fishing at a creek and the children were playing on a wooden trestle about 15 feet overhead when a train came.

"We heard the train, and it sounded like it was far away and going on different tracks," Joshua told the Beaumont Enterprise. "Us bigger boys started running."

They reached the end of the trestle when the train's screeching brakes caused Joshua to turn around.

"I looked back and saw B.J. just standing there frozen. I ran back as fast as I could. For a while, B.J. wanted to run away, and I yelled 'Stop!'" Joshua said.

Wardrobe classes slated at WTC

Tips on coordinating wardrobes for men and women will be given in classes scheduled in November at Western Texas College.

Margaret Drum will direct the women's wardrobe class on Nov. 2 and Jim Rambo will direct the men's wardrobe class on Nov. 20. Rambo's class will be of special interest to women who purchase clothing for their husbands and sons.

Mrs. Drum's class will meet from 6:30-8:30 p.m. and Rambo's class will meet from 7-9 p.m.

Fees for either class are $10 per person.

Basic coordinating of wardrobe items will be discussed in both classes. What to wear when and mixing and matching will also be discussed. Mrs. Drum will also talk about scarves, belts, bags, and other accessories.

Nuns' chickens are killed by government officials

DAVENTRY, England (AP) — Ministry of Agriculture officials Friday began slaughtering 5,000 salmonella-infected chickens owned by a group of nuns who previously had locked themselves in their coop to protect their flock.

The 13 nuns offered no resistance when the officials arrived at the Our Lady of Passion Monastery 70 miles north of London to carry out a task they tried to start two weeks ago.

The ministry officials, accompanied by a government-appointed veterinarian, were led into the hen house by grim-faced nuns. The hens' necks were wrung and the carcasses were put in cardboard boxes that were loaded onto trucks for delivery to a dumpsite.

During the slaughter, about six animal rights protesters demonstrated outside the convent, holding a banner that said: "5,000 killed today, 45 million killed every year — Don't support factory farming."

The nuns, led by a Kentucky-born mother superior, Sister Catherine, had gone to court seeking to overturn the ministry's ruling that their eggs were a serious health risk, but did not succeed.

Two weeks ago, they locked themselves in the henhouse for three hours to prevent the slaughter from being carried out.

The nuns were to receive some compensation from the government but it was likely to be only a fraction of the $95,400 they say they need to finance a new venture, making luxury chocolates.

Lawsuit settlement sought

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The state water commission's top official warned Friday a lawsuit seeking to have the Edwards Aquifer declared an underground stream could throw the region into chaos if the suit is successful and urged an out-of-court settlement as the only workable solution.

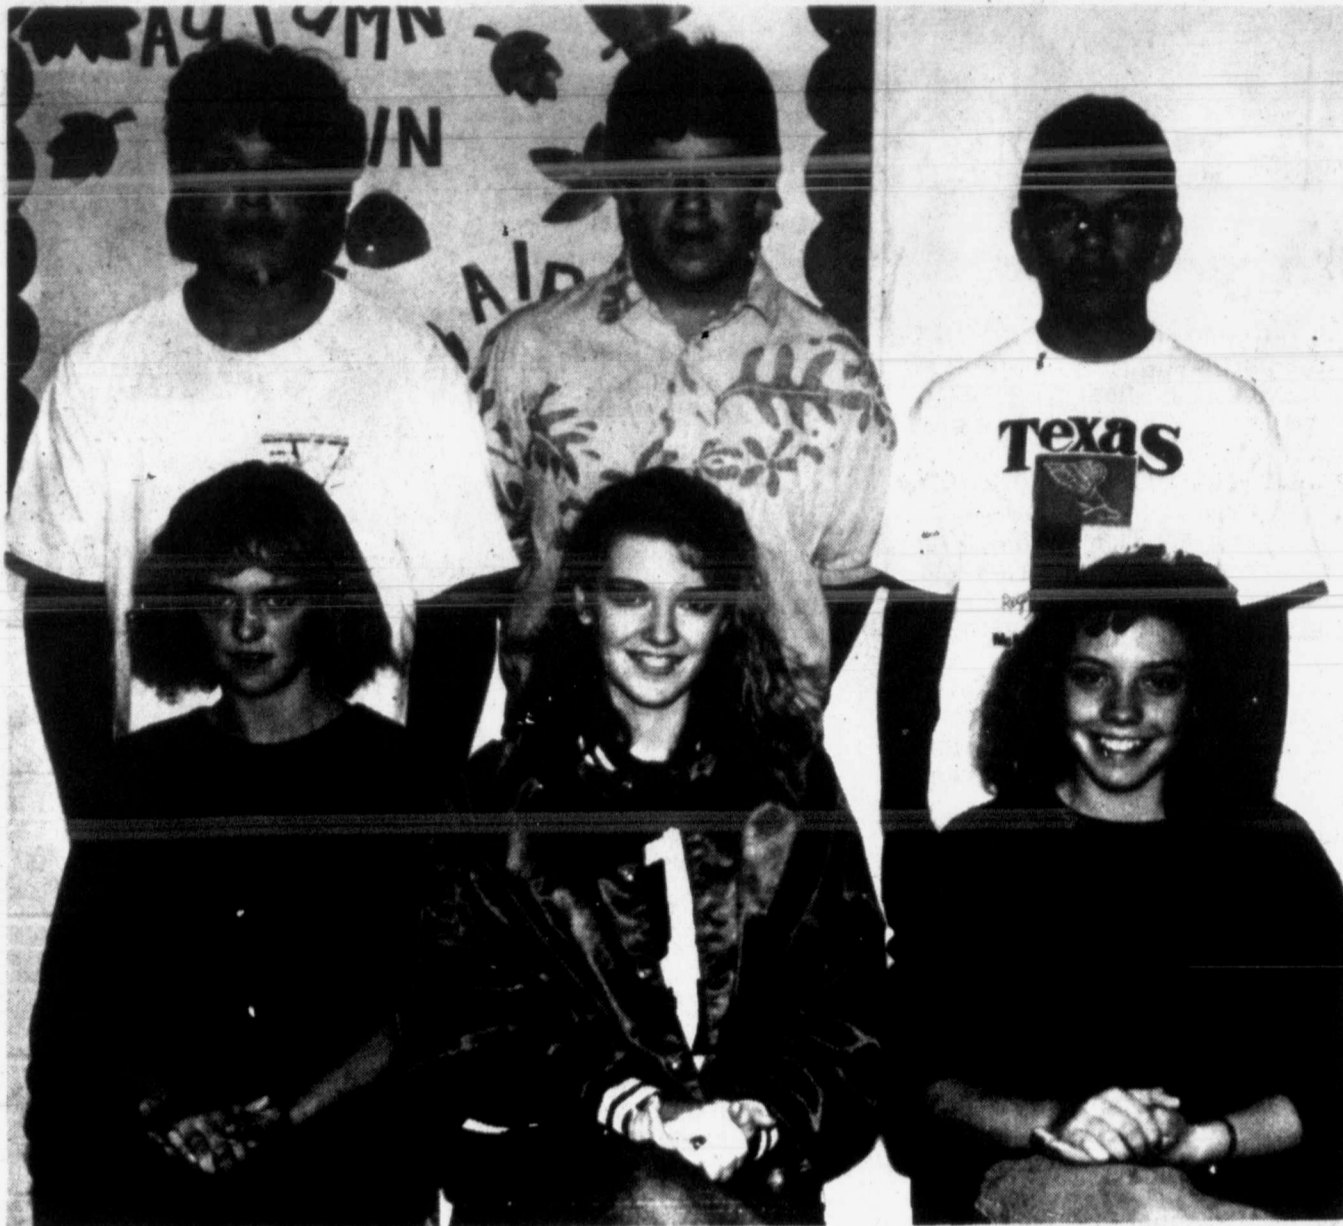

Buck Wynne III, chairman of the Texas Water Commission who is reportedly preparing his own proposed settlement to the suit, said interested parties inclined closer to agreement during a private meeting Friday at the Edwards Underground Water District office.

Although Wynne neither would confirm nor deny that the water commission is working on a settlement, others attending the meeting said he probably would present a draft at the next closed-door session, scheduled for Nov. 1.

"Buck Wynne is working to draft a proposal that he and other members of the water commission think would have some merit," said state Sen. Cyndi Taylor Krier, who attended Friday's meeting. "He hopes to have it available within the next couple of weeks."

The state has the legal authority to regulate the use of water from flowing streams, while withdrawal of water from aquifers in Texas is open to anyone who drills into underground reservoirs.

Athens wins recycling plant

ATHENS, Texas (AP) — Athens has beat two other East Texas cities in a month-long competition for a $12 million metals recycling plant expected to employ 180 people.

San Diego-based Recontek chose the town after a month of town meetings, lobbying, and intensive talks between city and company officials.

Mineola and Corsicana were the other finalists for the 66,000-square-foot plant, and other cities in contention included Tyler, Kilgore and Marshall.

"Any of the three considered would have been excellent choices, but frankly, Athens just fulfilled our siting criteria," said Wayne Rosenbaum, Recontek executive vice president.

Officials said work will begin immediately on securing state and federal regulatory approval and selecting one of nine proposed Athens sites.

The Athens plant, expected to have a $3.5 million annual payroll, is tentatively scheduled to open by mid-1991, Rosenbaum told the Tyler Telegraph.

Neil Hunter, president of the Athens Industrial Foundation, said the plant represents one of the "biggest economic booms" for the city since the 1950s.

Rosenbaum said northeast Texas was attractive as a plant site because other manufacturers of electronics, printed circuit boards, aircraft, chemical mills and integrated circuits are located there.

"What we were looking for was a community with infrastructure and at the same time a community we could integrate as to who we are, what we do and how we do it," Rosenbaum said.

"If a community gets too big, it's tough to do business and community development," he said.

Recontek is scheduled to open its first recycling facility in Newman, Ill., in mid-1990 and has two other sites in Butler, Ind., and Gila Bend, Ariz., under license. The three cities are comparable in size to Athens.

Creative crafts class slated for moms, girls

Creative crafts for mother and daughter, a new continuing education course at Western Texas College, is designed to give mothers and daughters projects to do together.

The class will meet from 6:30-9:30 p.m. on Oct. 25 with Charlotte Greene as instructor. Members of the class will complete a church doll and a pin cushion copied from an antique. Both projects would be excellent gifts for daughters to complete for Christmas gifts, Mrs. Greene said.

Fees for the course will be $30 for a mother and daughter and all supplies will be furnished. Call 573-8511, ext. 240, to pre-register.

October 12, 1989

Honorable Bobby Goodwin, County Judge
Scurry County Commissioner's Court

Gentlemen:

In accordance with the authority vested in me by Art 115.042, Sec. b, of the Texas Local Government Code, I have this day ordered an independent operational audit of the finances of Scurry County. This audit will be conducted by Coopers and Lybrand, a national accounting firm, with offices in Lubbock.

The audit will be conducted in two parts by accountants who specialize in governmental accounting. The first part will be an operational review lasting one week or less and will be done at no cost to the county. This first survey will tell them which departments, if any, need more intensive audits. The fee for the intensive audits will be billed to the county at the firm's standard hourly rates and will be paid out of the county's general fund, in accordance with Texas law.

It is anticipated that these more intensive departmental audits, if needed, will result in operational efficiencies which then will result in savings to the county over and above the cost of the audits.

Although Scurry County has had an auditor since the 1960s and outside financial audits have been made by local accountants, an independent operational audit has never, to my knowledge, been made.

It is my belief that this is an opportune time for such an audit to be made. I further believe that the taxpayers of Scurry County will welcome such an audit and that it will help them better understand the workings of their county government. This procedure will certainly increase the efficiency of all departments of Scurry County government.

I am sure that you and all county departments will give your complete cooperation to the accountants of this outstanding firm.

Very truly yours,

Gene L. Dulaney

cc: Coopers and Lybrand

ORDER

In accordance with Chapter 115, Section 115.042 (b) of the Texas Local Government Code, I hereby order an independent special audit of the books, records and accounts of Scurry County, Texas to be made by accountants of the firm of Coopers and Lybrand of Lubbock, Texas.

Such audit shall begin as soon as possible and shall be paid for out of the county's general fund at the end of such audit upon receipt of such firm's statement based upon their standard hourly rates. Such statement shall be approved by this Court before being paid.

I find that such audit will best serve the public interest.

Signed and entered this 12th day of October, 1989.

Goodwin throws for three TD's, Lane gets three sacks

By PHIL RIDDLE
SDN Sports Editor

Snyder captured its second grid victory, 34-8, in Ft. Stockton Friday night on the strength of a 5 for 9 passing performance from Toby Goodwin and a Black and Gold defense that held the Panthers to 61 total yards for the game.

Goodwin's tosses, including three for touchdowns, accounted for 80 offensive yards for the Tigers.

The other heroes of the contest were not even listed on the Snyder roster or the game program as last year's SHS quarterback Randy Morris caught a pair of TD passes and linebacker Tommy Lane sacked the Ft. Stockton signal caller three times and recovered two fumbles to spoil Ft. Stockton's homecoming.

Snyder's defensive unit was ahead of Ft. Stockton at the half as the Panthers had minus 33 yards of total offense at intermission.

The contest started out as each team was feeling for weaknesses and punts were traded on each of the squads' first three possessions before the Tigers got something going.

With just over a minute left in the opening quarter, Goodwin tossed a scoring strike to new wide receiver Morris.

The throw covered 20 yards and combined with Bert Merritt's extra point, gave the Tigers a 7-0 lead.

The Goodwin to Morris combination worked again following a fumble recovery by the Snyder defense that gave the ball back to the offensive team at Ft. Stockton's 20 yard stripe.

Goodwin threw the same pass to the same man with the same result. Merritt again added the PAT and Snyder's cushion had grown to 14-0 in less than a minute.

The Panthers had the ball just one play following the kick-off before Lane burst through the line, hit the quarterback, causing a fumble, and claimed the errant ball for Snyder.

The Tigers tried to establish their running game during their next drive.

Jayson Presley carried the pigskin twice to start things off, gaining seven yards.

first down with a seven yard rumble on third and three from the Panthers' 27.

Garcia carried for four more on the next play setting up second and six.

DeWayne Cato got one followed by a pair of incomplete aeriels that gave the ball back to Ft. Stockton on downs.

Lane was again the problem for Ft. Stockton as he broke free on third and four and threw Panther QB Shannon Beeles for a 14 yard loss.

He also recovered another fumble with just over a minute left in the first half.

It didn't take Lane long to take the game over defensively in the second half, as a sack early in the third period cost Ft. Stockton another six yards and forced a punt to Snyder.

On first down Goodwin found Jayson Presley streaking down the left sideline with a beautifully thrown ball that the flanker carried to the Ft. Stockton one.

After Presley's 31-yard reception, tailback Paul Anderson hopped into the end zone giving Snyder a 20-0 lead with 8:53 left in the stanza.

The crowd jumped to its collective feet on the Tigers' next possession as Goodwin connected with fullback Cato for a gain of 31.

The reception was negated, however, as Snyder was flagged by the referees for holding.

Cato pounced a quick-kick that rolled all the way down to the FHS seven before being whistled dead.

Three plays later the Panther offense jogged off the field, wondering what it would take to move the Tigers out of the way.

A short punt and a return of 11 yards by Lane gave the Tigers the football at Ft. Stockton's 21, where Goodwin and Company took over.

First, a pass to Carlton Sanders netted them 15 yards and then, with 2:38 left in quarter number three, a pass to Presley in the corner of the end zone and the Merritt kick gave SHS a 27-0 lead amidst howls of delight from the fans and shouts of "shut-out" from the players.

Ft. Stockton's next drive lasted 15 plays but failed to produce any points for the Blue and White.

Jody Iglehart tossed Beeles for a six yard loss on first down from the Snyder 39. The Panthers attempted a fake punt on fourth, but the Tigers weren't buying and Snyder had the ball at their own 36.

They held the football for a mere three plays before Cato was separated from it on a bruising tackle by the Panthers' Francisco Ramirez.

Ft. Stockton punted to Snyder after three plays, who in turn punted back to Ft. Stockton after three plays.

On first and ten from Snyder's 37, the Panthers' Beeles tried the middle of the Tiger line, gaining four. Next he gained one on a QB draw.

He passed incomplete on third setting up a fourth and five situation.

Beeles then found split end Augie Velasquez for a 34 yard score to avoid the goose-egg.

Beeles and Velasquez combined again for the two-point conversion, slimming the SHS lead to 27-8.

Junior QB Ed Rios came in to guide the final drive downfield for the Tigers.

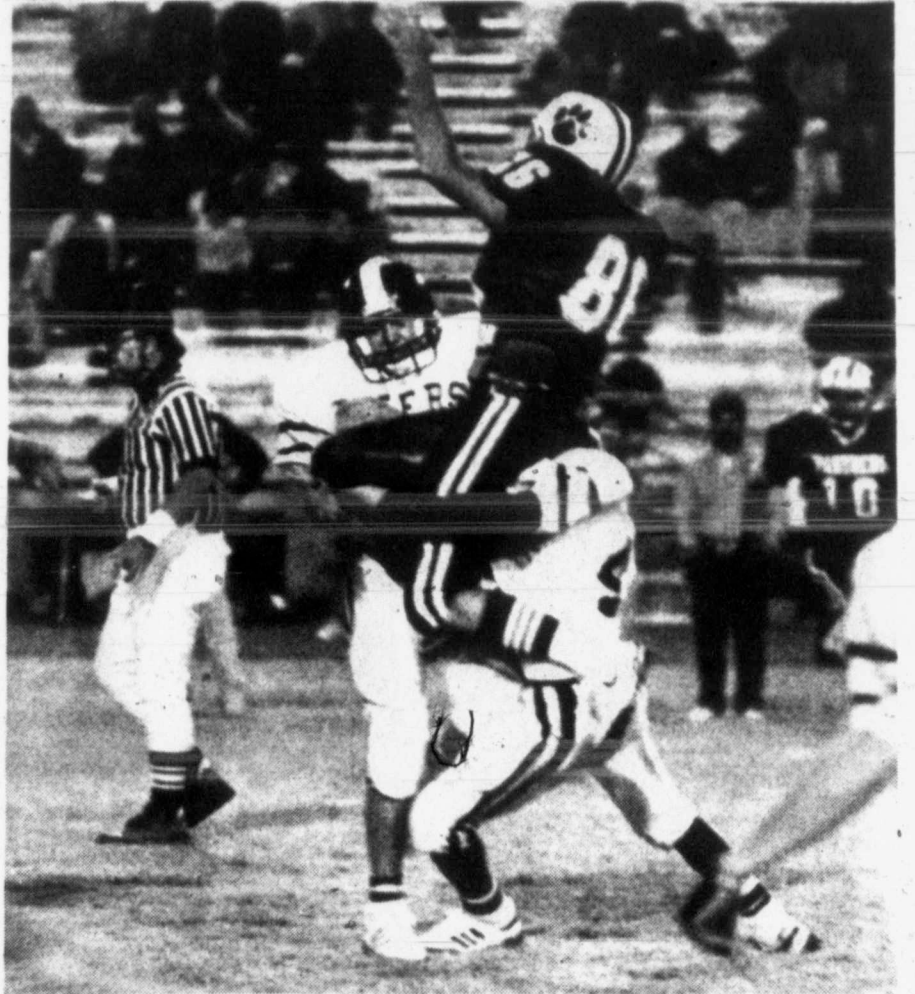

Rios handed off to Mark King four times in the game's final seven plays picking up 25 yards and hitting paydirt from a yard away with just four seconds left in the game.

Merritt was accurate on the extra point and Snyder walked away with a 34-8 District 4-4A win.

The Tigers record stands at 2-4 on the year and 2-1 in loop play.

In other games Friday night, Sweetwater pounded Pecos 44-8, Big Spring trounced San Angelo Lake View, 50-14, and Monahans came back against Andrews from a 20-14 third quarter deficit, to win 38-20.

Snyder prepares to play Sweetwater in Tiger Stadium next week.

Chiefs to entertain Dallas in NFL tilt

By The Associated Press

The last bunch of Cowboys to visit Kansas City was the roo'tin', tootin' 1970 gang that made Dallas' first appearance in the Super Bowl.

The Cowboys who will play the Chiefs at Arrowhead Stadium on Sunday haven't been able to circle the wagons all season. They're the NFL's only winless team. They're expected to stay that way.

In two other games Sunday, the Denver Broncos will try to win at Seattle for the first time since 1985, and for the first time in four years, the San Francisco 49ers will play a home game while not being at home.

Dallas, which has only nine of 22 starters remaining from 1988, put up a big effort against San Francisco last Sunday before crashing to its sixth straight defeat of the season, 31-14.

The Cowboys will have to stop Christian Okoye, the AFC's leading rusher, with 539 yards on 121 carries. Steve DeBerg, 62 of 98 passing for 707 yards and three touchdowns, will start for Kansas City in place of Ron Jaworski, who sprained a knee in a 20-14 loss to the Los Angeles Raiders last Sunday.

Denver (5-1) will take the NFL's No. 1 rushing defense (an average yield of 81 yards per game) into the Kingdome against Seattle (3-3). The Broncos held Eric Dickerson to 35 yards on 13 carries in a 14-3 win over Indianapolis last Sunday. However, in a Seahawks' 42-14 win against the Broncos last season, when Seattle swept both games against Denver, Curt Warner ran for 126 yards and John L. Williams for 109.

San Francisco will play a home game against New England at Stanford Stadium in Palo Alto while Candlestick Park is being readied for the resumption of the World Series in the wake of the earthquake.

Ira thumped by Loraine

Ira thumped by Loraine

The Ira Bulldogs went to Loraine to play their Bulldogs in 7-A six-man grid action Friday with Loraine ending up on the long side of a 36-14 score.

Ira's Brian Martinez threw a touchdown pass to James Sturdivant for 60 yards and Shane Bearden threw a pass to Jason Withers who pitched a lateral to Greg Box for a 20 yard score.

It wasn't enough, however, as running backs Shawn Finley and Rudy Sanchez of Loraine combined for 334 yards of rushing offense.

Each rusher scored twice, Finley from one and four yards out and Sanchez on scampers of 19 and two yards.

"It was a super effort by our entire defense," said Ira coach Don Jones.

"We want to be sure and thank the fans in Ira for all their support," he added.

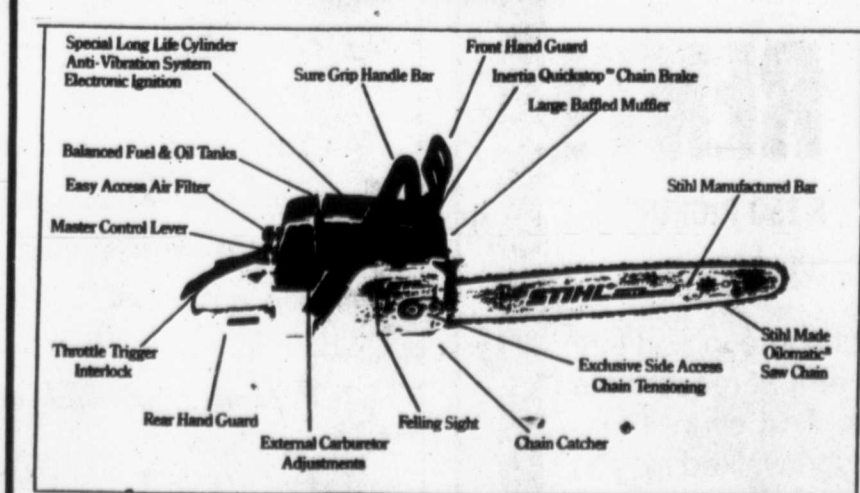

Loraine went to 2-0 in district play and 6-1 overall, while Ira is 1-1 in their circuit and 2-5 in all games.

Ira continues district play next week, hosting Hermleigh.

Robinson scores 27 as Spurs leave Mavs 0-4 in preseason

DALLAS (AP) — Rookie center David Robinson scored 27 points, including the final go-ahead basket with 6:10 to play, leading San Antonio over Dallas 108-106 in an NBA exhibition game Friday night.

Robinson's eight-foot jump shot sent the Spurs to a 90-88 lead and triggered a 12-2 run.

Dallas rallied to pull to within 100-97 with 1:14 to play but Robinson made a pair of free throws and came up with a key steal to ice San Antonio's second exhibition victory in three tries.

Dallas is winless in four preseason games.

Terry Cummings added 22 points for the Spurs.

Back-to-back layups by first-round draft pick Randy White, the second with 8:34 remaining in the game, lifted Dallas into a brief 86-84 lead. White led the Mavericks with 21 points.

Dallas held a 66-58 lead early in the third quarter before San Antonio went on a 16-2 run behind Robinson's six points for a 74-68 advantage.

Rain may hamper repairs... Oakland, S.F. set for Series

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Candlestick Park was up to its old tricks Friday as rain headed toward the Bay area, bringing the possibility of more problems for the troubled World Series.

The National Weather Service forecast showers all weekend and predicted the storm might last into early next week. Game 3 is still tentatively set for Tuesday, following a week delay because of a devastating earthquake.

Hammond ties leader with 65 at PGA event

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Donnie Hammond, seeking his second consecutive victory, overcame blustery weather Friday to shoot a 65 and tie Tim Simpson for the lead after three rounds of the Disney Classic.

Hammond, who had the low round of the day by two strokes, was Simpson, the second-round leader, at 14-under-par 202.

Simpson, who had a two-stroke lead when the round began, shot a 70.

Fred Couples and Bob Gilder were tied for third at 204 after shooting 69s. Four more players were at 206.

Whenever the series resumes, Dave Stewart will start again for Oakland and Mike Moore will follow. They won the first two games, helping hold San Francisco to one run on nine hits.

"We always try to keep guys regular. It makes more sense than to adjust four guys," Athletics manager Tony La Russa said, announcing his plans. "Bob Welch will be ready to pitch Thursday, but I'm not looking beyond the games we know we have to play."

Don Robinson is scheduled to start Game 3 for the Giants and Scott Garrelts will be next.

Both teams tried to focus as much as possible on baseball Friday. Each team held workouts at its ballpark, and the sessions were a little more lively than those a day earlier, the first time they came back to the field after Tuesday's earthquake.

Rickey Henderson returned to the Athletics after missing Thursday's practice, saying he didn't know about it.

"They tried to get in touch with me and I tried to get in touch with them. We just missed," he said.

La Russa said there would be no fine.

"The man didn't blow off the workout. He just didn't get the message," he said.

At Candlestick, after almost two weeks of clear skies and calm conditions, wind swirled the infield dirt. Clouds and cooler temperatures made it more uncomfortable.

"How in the world are we ever going to get ready at this rate?" Will Clark asked during a tame round of batting practice.

Even with bad weather moving in, both teams said they would stay in the area, rather going to Arizona to train. Immediately after their workout, the Giants went to visit one of San Francisco's shelters, still full in the aftermath of the area's worst earthquake since 1906.

Most players left the San Francisco clubhouse loaded with autographed pictures, pennants, balls and bats.

"It's a way of trying to put something back into the community," pitcher Kelly Downs said. "We're all trying to do our part to help."

Before both teams practice, they met with Don Fehr, head of the Major League Baseball Players' Association. He updated them on the construction at Candlestick Park and the precautions being taken.

While the Giants practiced, several workers in hard hats climbed on scaffolding to the overhang. That was in Section 53 in the upper deck in right-center field, where the quake caused a six-inch crack in the concrete.

It will not be certain until Monday whether Candlestick will definitely be ready. That's when city officials will decide whether to certify the stadium as safe, although it is expected to get approval.

Outside Candlestick, several fans who had tickets last Tuesday asked for and got refunds.

"I'm not sitting in the upper deck again. I vowed I wouldn't sit up there anymore," said Michael Casdia, 30, of El Sobrante, Calif.

Golfers share top spot in senior tourney

NAPA, Calif. (AP) — Dick Hendrickson and Charles Coody shot 5-under-par 67s Friday to share the first-round lead in the Transamerica Senior Golf Championship.

WTC cagers take opener

Western Texas College men's basketball team started their season on a positive note, pounding Southwest Christian Friday, 118-81, in a game played in Dallas' Reunion Arena prior to the tip-off of the Spurs-Mavericks NBA game.

Allen Smith, a 5-10 freshman guard, led the Westerners in scoring with 24 points.

Dominick Byrd tossed in 21 to aid the WTC cause. Byrd, a 6-4 forward, led the Blue and Green with a dozen boards in the outing against Southwest Christian.

Other scorers in double figures for WTC include Alfredo Porter with 14, Cedric Mason with 12 and Jeff Shelley and David Smith, with 10 apiece.

WTC is in action again Nov. 7 as the Westerners host Ranger Junior College.

Rodeo team take honors

WTC's rodeo team has five men and one woman in line for today's final performance of the Texas Tech collegiate rodeo.

Denny McClanahan is currently tied for first place with a score of 70 in bareback riding.

WTC teammates Buddy Reed and Darrin Cook are sitting in second and third place, respectively, in bull riding.

Reed earned a 71 and Cook a 69. Shane Gildbransen is holding onto third position in saddle bronc riding with his score of 67 points.

Ray Brown's 11.8 second time in calf roping places him in fourth place in that event.

Jackie Smith is the lone Western Texas cowgirl with a shot at the short go, with slack and a preliminary round to go, she owns fifth in breakaway roping with a time of 4.0 seconds.

The top ten finishers in each event will advance to the final round.

MEET THE DUSTERS — Tracy Rome is a 6-0 product of LaGrange High School where she was listed with Who's Who Among High School Athletes, as well as being named All-Conference in basketball. The 19 year-old WTC student says her favorite athlete is Dominique Wilkins of the Atlanta Hawks and cites her reason for coming to WTC as, "their reputation for developing not only great basketball players, but reliable adults." CHS boosters slate tourney

The Coahoma Athletic Booster Club is sponsoring an outsiders basketball tournament Nov. 4.

The event, to be held at the CHS gym, costs $100 per team to enter, with a limit of 10 men per team.

Deadline for registering is Oct. 31.

For more information contact Charlotte Williams at 267-2574 or 394-4448.

LGA briefs

Three ladies golf teams from Snyder travelled to the four-person scramble at Abilene Country Club, Thursday, Oct. 19, and all the local women came back winners.

Finnie Seale, Carolyn Greene, Martha Fagin, Suzie Reed, Kaye Cypert, Juanita Hester, Jo Sterling, Melinda Seale, Margie Briggs and Lou Meadows participated.

Also competing were Donna Stehley, Becky Knipe and Esther Guelker.

Clearly Affordable

Put the crisp clean sound of Motorola technology to work for you with the Radius P100 Portable 2-way radio at a price that will put more communicating power where you need it the most. Indoors or out, on city streets or rugged trails, on construction sites or farms, the field-proven quality of the P100 can help make sure that you are clearly understood. And the P100 is backed by a 2 Year Limited Warranty.

- Synthesized 2 or 6 channel operation.
- Variable power models available.
- Touch-Code encoding for telephone-type operation.
- Programmable to add or change frequencies/squelch codes.
- "Quik-Call II" combines the benefits of a portable and a pager.

Build a communications system around your P100 portables by adding other quality Radius models including the P50 and P10 portables and the M100/M206/M214 mobile units.

Call us today to learn how to put the clearly affordable Radius P100 to work for you.

Coyotes whip Coogs, 30-20

Brian Bond scored three touchdowns for Borden County as the Coyotes beat loop adversary Klondike, 30-20, Friday night in Gail.

Bond hit paydirt from 33, five and 31 yards out to pace the Coyotes.

The score was tied at zero in the first period when Jeff Lewis fell on a blocked punt in the Klondike end zone. Bond's kick gave Borden County a lead of 8-0 which they held until the third period.

Each squad scored in quarter number three leaving the Coyotes ahead 16-8 heading into the final quarter.

The Cougars scored again in the early part of the fourth stanza to close the gap to 16-14 before the Coyotes pulled away, scoring twice in the last period for the win.

The victory sets the Borden County slate at 5-1-1 on the year and 2-0 in District 6A.

Klondike slipped to 4-3 in '89 and 1-1 in loop play.

GE Mobile Communications

Use it as a mobile telephone or a two-way radio, or both. The decision is yours.

GE designed the TMX 8712 radio with built-in programming flexibility to be what you want it to be. You can use the TMX 8712 radio strictly as a mobile telephone or strictly as a radio. Or, if you need a mobile telephone and a two-way radio, you've got both. Your GE representative can easily program the radio to function as one or the other. That means you won't have to select radio or telephone call by call. If your communications needs change, your local GE representative simply uses a PC to re-program your TMX 8712 radio.

Mobile telephone features:
 Full-duplex capability lets it operate just like your home telephone. Backlit keypad and numeric LCD are easy to read. Autodialer stores and recalls up to 10 frequently used numbers, of up to 15 digits each. Last number redial saves time and effort. Sleek handset design complements today's vehicle interiors.

Arguments swirl around school sex investigation

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Police officers investigating reports that a teacher had sex with a 17-year-old student interrupted a school board meeting, thumbing through hundreds of files and even examining trash.

The search Oct. 3 at school district headquarters, and another one three days later at Bartlett High School, prompted the Anchorage School District to sue the police and touched off a furor over privacy rights, police use of search warrants and the responsibility of school officials to deal with allegations of misconduct among staff members.

Heightening interest in the dispute is the fact that onetime English and journalism teacher Gordon "Satch" Carlson, who resigned in August after school officials confronted him with the allegations of misconduct, was also a columnist for the Anchorage Daily News.

The 44-year-old Carlson, who won a national Ernest Hemingway parody contest in 1988, quit writing the column, which commented humorously on local politics and other topics, in late August. The newspaper didn't say why he left.

Carlson has said only that he committed no crime and that "some of the personalities involved are in hot pursuit simply because of who I am."

"There have been no charges filed, and I don't know if charges will be filed," said Jeff Feldman, an attorney for Carlson.

"I'm not aware that there have been any allegations made that constitute violations of Alaska law."

The dispute surrounding Carlson did not become public until Oct. 3, when police, led by Chief Kevin O'Leary, interrupted a meeting at school district headquarters and searched through files and garbage for evidence of sexual misconduct. With another warrant, officers entered Bartlett High School on Oct. 6 to look for samples of semen and hair in a music room.

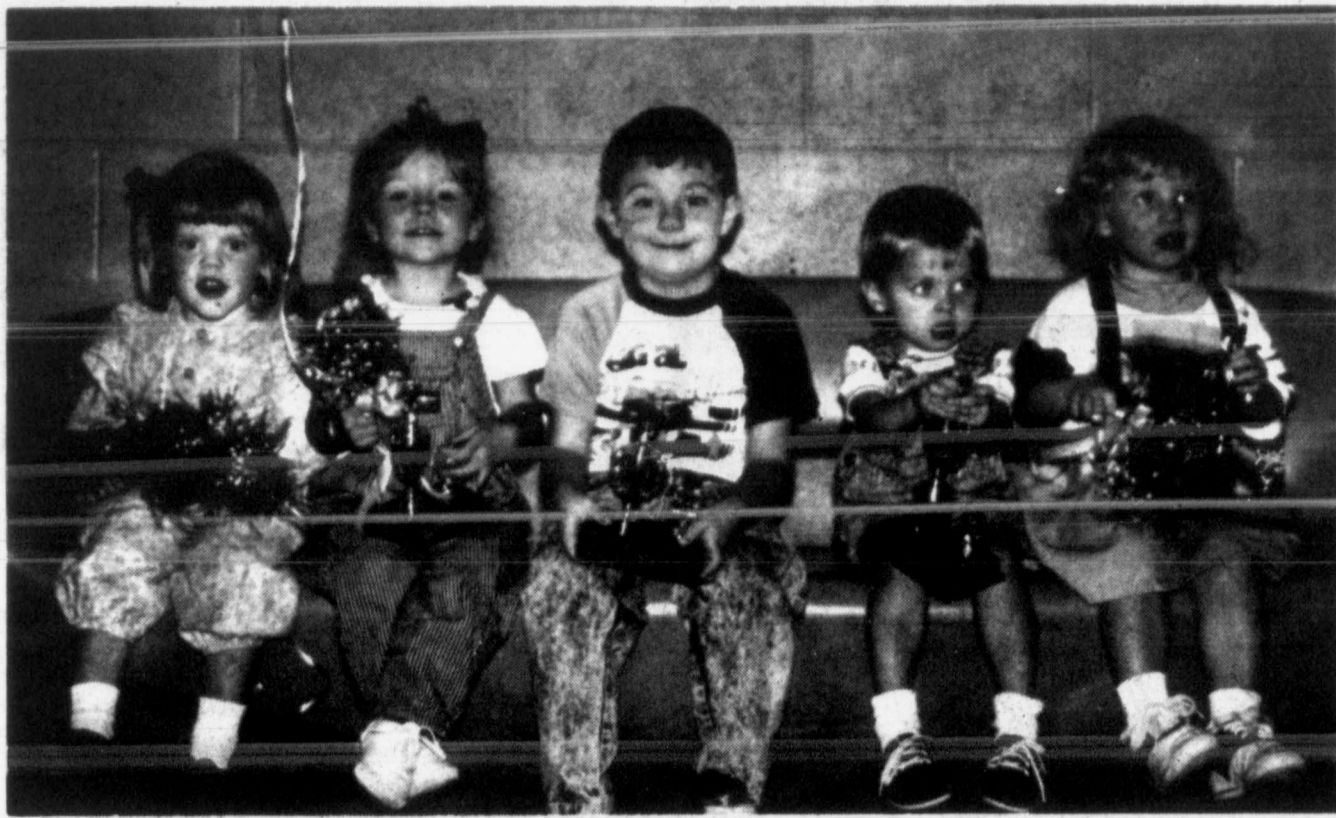

School administrators say the wide-ranging search violated the privacy of personnel, students and parents, and went beyond what was authorized by the court. An angry Superintendent William Coats said officers could have gotten the information they wanted simply by asking.

The girl at the center of the investigation — court transcripts made public this week suggest a second may have been involved — was older than 16, the age of consent in Alaska. But a separate state law cited in the search warrants bans sexual contact between adults in a position of trust and children under the age of 18. The law, however, doesn't specify whether teaching is such a position of trust.

For the public, questions about Carlson's activities appear to have been outdistanced by questions of school district and police ethics.

School officials acknowledge that they first heard of the allegations last May, when a student claimed that another student had an affair with Carlson. Both he and the girl denied it, school officials say, and the matter was not pursued until the girl's family repeated the allegation this summer and Carlson was confronted and resigned.

School district spokesman Michael Malone said appropriate reports were filed through the state youth services agency. The agency contacted police after learning of the allegations.

Soldiers charged in mishap

FORT SILL, Okla. (AP) — An artillery accident that killed three soldiers has been blamed on the use of too much powder, and two soldiers have been charged with negligent homicide and dereliction of duty, the Army said Friday.

The howitzer round strayed off target, and exploded behind a group of about 80 soldiers, who were standing in formation to leave a rifle range Sept. 27. Four of the 24 injured soldiers remained hospitalized Friday. Sgt. Edward C. Tyler, 26, of Washington, D.C., and Spec. Nickoles W. Holly, 24, of Canton, Ohio, were charged in military court, said Fort Sill spokeswoman Sheila Samples.

Tyler, a howitzer battery section chief, and Holly, a No. 2 cannoner, are accused of using too much powder, which the Army said caused the 105mm howitzer round to land outside the designated impact area.

Ms. Samples said the amount of powder was not being released.

The stray round created a 2-foot wide, 1-foot deep crater behind the soldiers, who were in the seventh week of an eight-week training program at the sprawling Field Artillery Center in southwest Oklahoma.

Tyler and Holly were not in confinement Friday and were performing their duties, but they were not firing cannons, Ms. Samples said.

The charges were read to the men by their battery commander Wednesday. The case will be referred to Maj. Gen. Raphael J. Hallada.

Scannicchio earns promotion

FORT WORTH—Jeff T. Scannicchio, son of Dr. and Mrs. Tom Scannicchio of Snyder, has been elected a mortgage servicing officer on the Texas staff of Empire of America Federal Savings Bank.

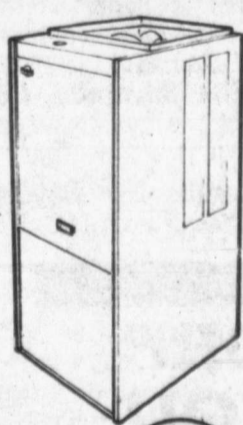

Scannicchio, who joined the Buffalo, N. Y.-based financial institution in 1985 as an indirect mortgage servicer, advanced through a series of promotions in the loan administration and commercial mortgage servicing departments, serving most recently as a loan workout assistant. Before joining Empire of America, he was a loan officer with Brokers Mortgage Service, Inc. in Arlington.

A resident of Bedford, Scannicchio graduated from Texas Tech University in 1983 with a bachelor of administration degree in general business.

In 1981, a pair of walkways above the lobby of Kansas City's Hyatt Regency Hotel collapsed, killing 114 people and injuring 200 others.

Obituaries

Melisa Kenner

Services are pending at Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home for Melisa Ann Kenner, 6, daughter of Jerry and Wanda Kenner of Snyder.

She died at 3:23 a.m. Saturday at Lubbock Methodist Hospital from injuries sustained after being struck by a car.

She was born Jan. 17, 1983.

She is survived by one brother, Jason.

Curtis McGlouthin

Services for Curtis McGlouthin, 76, of 3205 Avenue K are set for 2 p.m. Sunday at Bell-Cypert-Seale Chapel with the Rev. Hubert Urby officiating. Burial will follow at Snyder Cemetery.

He died Friday at Cogdell Memorial Hospital. He was born April 7, 1913 in Shreveport, La. He moved to Snyder from Big Spring in 1972 and was a retired maintenance worker at Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

He is survived by one son, Marcus McGlouthin of Snyder; and one granddaughter.

Ketha Pickering

Services for Ketha Lee Pickering, 71, of 2705 34th St. are pending at Bell-Cypert-Seale Funeral Home.

She died at 11:50 a.m. Friday at Baylor Hospital in Dallas. She was born Sept. 18, 1918 in Pleasant Hill, La. She was a homemaker, had lived in Snyder since 1950 and was married to John Pickering April 29, 1939, in Eldorado, Ark. He survives.

She is survived by three daughters, Julia Jones of San Antonio, Susan Coats of Oklahoma City, Okla., and Cindy Bissett of Denver, Colo.; five grandsons; six granddaughters; three sisters, Velma Caldwell of Baton Rouge, La., Betty Norris of Comanche, Iowa, and Dorothy Jerry of Junction City, La.; and two brothers, Volley Bauldree of El Dorado, Ark., and Travis Bauldree of Haynesville, La.

She was preceded in death by one son, John Jr.

Friends are contributing to Baylor University Medical Center Foundation, 3500 Gaston Ave., Dallas, Tex. 75246.

Weldon Squyers

CUPTERINO, Calif.—Services are pending for Weldon Squyers who died Wednesday evening in Maldanillo, Mexico.

Born in Snyder on Nov. 9, 1924, he was a graduate of Fluvanna High School in 1940. He attended Texas Tech University before joining the U.S. Air Force during World War II as a radio operator and tail gunner. He was shot down over Germany and held prisoner of war for 18 months.

After being released, he reentered Texas Tech and met

Nickie Whaley, who later became his wife. He was employed with Apex Corporation in San Antonio and Dallas before moving to California in 1962. His work took him on worldwide travels as he spent two years in Brazil.

He was preceded in death by a sister, Wanda Green.

Survivors include his wife, Nickie, of the home; a daughter, Margaret of San Luis Obispo, Calif.; four sons, Drew of San Luis Obispo, Lee of Hayward, Calif., Paul of Berkeley, Calif., and Brian of Lowrey Field in Denver, Colo.; his parents, Tom and Velma Squyers of Lubbock; a brother, Leslie of Albuquerque, N.M.; two aunts, Alpha Jean Pylant of Fluvanna and Dale Sellars of Snyder; five grandchildren; and several cousins in Scurry County.

E.A. Austin

LAMESA—Services for E.A. Austin, 90, were scheduled for 4 p.m. Saturday at Crestview Baptist Church. Burial was to follow in Lamesa Memorial Park, with Rev. David Bugg and Rev. Doran Kinard officiating.

Mr. Austin died at 3:50 p.m. Thursday at Medical Arts Hospital.

Born Feb. 16, 1899, in Cross Plains, he moved to Dawson County in 1915.

He was the father of Barbara White of Ira.

Also surviving are two other daughters, Faye Walls of Lamesa and Paula Wall of Seminole; four step-daughters, Lorene Davis of Mineral Wells, Olivene Johnstone of the Woodlands, Jackie Beard of Liberty Hill, and Martha Beatty of Lamesa; a sister, Lela Webb of Houston; a brother, Carl Austin of Wolf City; 18 grandchildren; 20 great-grandchildren; and one great-great-grandchild.

Millard Malett

FLOYDADA—Services are set for 2 p.m. Monday at Moore-Ross-White Funeral Home Chapel for Millard Ray Malett, 69, who died Friday in a Floydada nursing home. Burial will follow in the Plainview Memorial Park.

Born in Scurry County, he had been a resident of Floydada since 1974. He was a truck driver and a veteran of World War II.

Survivors include three sisters, Merle Hudson of Mayfield, Ky., and Audie Lawrence and Runez Kelly, both of Nash; three brothers, James Malett of Floydada, Earl Malett of Mayfield, Ky., and Grady Malett of Amarillo.

Fire controlled

Firemen were occupied with extinguishing a grass fire in a ditch seven miles northwest of Snyder from 12:30 to 1:45 p.m. Friday.

Weather may hamper rescue efforts

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Rain, winds and colder temperatures were expected to fill shelters for the homeless, slow rescue efforts and possibly even touch off further landslides this weekend across earthquake-shaken Northern California.

"Right now, we're gearing up for a large influx of people," said Matt McLaughlin, a relief coordinator in Santa Cruz County south of here, where an estimated 10,000 residents have been displaced and some have been sleeping outside.

At the fallen stretch of double-deck Interstate 880 in Oakland, the massive dig to recover bodies was suspended Friday night after workers felt the roadway shake. High winds were a contributing factor, a spokesman said.

Work to shore up I-880 was to continue through the night — unless nature inflicts further hardship on the area.

"It depends on how hard the rain is. If it's not too hard we hope to be able to work through it," said Bob Jacobs, deputy district director of California Department of Transportation.

On Friday, state officials raised the estimate of damage from Tuesday's killer quake to $5.5 billion, and coroners reported 54 bodies had been recovered as workers dug more than a dozen victims from under tons of freeway concrete in Oakland.

So far, 33 bodies have been uncovered in the freeway rubble.

Building supply stores rushed to fill orders for glass, plywood, cement, flashlights, power generators — and tarpaulins to shield from the rain.

Rain also raised the threat of additional landslides in the mountains north of Santa Cruz, where 60 homes already have been destroyed in Boulder Creek, a town of 6,800.

"It's a dangerous area, but all my stuff is here. My dogs are here. I figured you go down with the ship. Where do you go?" said Todd Viele, 27, who decided to stay.

County spokeswoman Dinah Phillips said not enough rain was expected to cause widespread land problems.

National Weather Service forecaster Doug Atkinson said the storm would probably produce only one-quarter inch of rain.

More than 1,500 aftershocks have hit since Tuesday.

A moderate aftershock measuring 4.0 on the Richter scale struck near Santa Cruz at 5:50 p.m. PDT, according to the Seismograph Station at the University of California at Berkeley. There were no immediate reports of damage.

At 1:13 a.m. Friday, an aftershock of magnitude 3.9 was centered about seven miles southwest of Los Gatos, Berkeley seismologists said. It caused additional landslides in that shaky area south of San Francisco, and was felt north and south of the city.

President Bush was struck by what he saw as he toured ravaged areas to offer sympathy, aid and a pledge of no bureaucratic red-tape.

"I am deeply moved by this, saddened in some ways, yet very stimulated by this team effort," the president said.

Bush walked over chunks of concrete beside the 1/4-mile crumpled stretch of I-880, where scores of people were feared entombed, and talked with rescue workers. He had said he hoped to offer encouragement.

Ironworker Joe Carter said the president asked him how his rescue crew felt.

"I told him... we're beat, we're tired, but we're still going at it," Carter said. Bush "let me know the eyes of the world are on us right now."

Relief aid continued to stream into the area Friday. But the most urgent requirement was for money to help relocate homeless families from shelters to temporary living quarters such as hotels, a Red Cross official said.

About 5,000 people have been housed in 30 shelters in the region affected by Tuesday's quake, the Red Cross said.

Members of the San Francisco Giants, participants in baseball's suspended World Series, visited a downtown shelter Friday to hand out souvenir balls, caps and T-shirts to families left homeless by the quake.

Scientists roaming through mountains southeast of San Francisco pinpointed the epicenter of Tuesday's 5:04 p.m. killer quake in the northeast corner of the Nisene Marks State Park, near the top of Aptos Creek, said Joseph Cotton with the U.S. Geological Survey in Menlo Park.

That's about 57 miles from San Francisco atop the San Andreas Fault, and just 14 miles northeast of Santa Cruz.

Estimates for reopening the main lifeline between San Francisco and Oakland, the Bay Bridge, slipped to at least a month.

Engineers hoped to use a floating crane to lift the fallen 200-ton, 50-foot-long five-lane highway span onto a barge this weekend and begin repairs, the transportation department said.

In San Francisco's Marina district, an upscale neighborhood where lifestyles crumbled along with stucco condominiums and posh apartments, residents stuffed clothes, artwork, furniture and knickknacks into cars, toy wagons and even laundry bags.

The neighborhood was the worst hit in the city because its homes were built on landfill, not bedrock. As many as 60 homes either collapsed or will be torn down.

Astronauts conserve energy in case mission extended

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Space shuttle flight controllers today considered bringing the Atlantis home three hours early because of predicted high winds Monday afternoon at the California landing site.

The astronauts were told to shut down some equipment Friday to conserve power in case NASA is forced to extend the flight a day or two to wait for calmer weather.

The forecast is for gusts up to 35 mph at Edwards Air Force Base at the planned 12:38 p.m. PDT landing time on Monday. Because winds at the Mojave Desert base normally are lighter in the morning, flight director Bob Castle said today that controllers were studying whether to cut the mission by two orbits, about 90 minutes each.

"We're looking at that option, but, depending on the weather Monday, we're also prepared to stay up a day or two longer," he said.

He said Atlantis "is humming right along. It's a very clean vehicle."

The space travelers plunged into a fourth day of experiments after being awakened today by a rock song, "Bohemian Rhapsody," by the band Queen. It includes the words, "lightning, lightning, very frightening, Galileo, Galileo, Galileo."

Mission Control reported the song was a tribute to the Galileo spacecraft that the space travelers dispatched on a six-year, 2.4-billion-mile trip toward Jupiter on Wednesday, their first day in space. The center said the $1.5 billion probe continued to operate well today.

Controllers also sent the crew The New York Times' Friday crossword puzzle by teleprinter, and radioed up scores from some Texas high school football games.

The possibility of a one- to two-day delay in landing arose Friday when a weather front, trailing high winds, moved across Edwards.

Should bad weather persist at Edwards, the shuttle has two alternative sites. The Northrup Strip at White Sands Missile Range, N.M., would be the first choice, and Kennedy Space Center in Florida the second, Dittmore said.

Atlantis has enough fuel, oxygen, power and other supplies to remain in orbit two days beyond the planned five-day mission without any conservation efforts, said Mission Control commentator Brian Welch.

But to be conservative, Welch said, the crew was told Friday to save some power to enable the shuttle to stay aloft even longer. Welch said Mission Control wanted to save about 600 watts of power.

The astronauts' conservation efforts included dimming or turning off unneeded lights on the shuttle and shutting down one of three computer displays on the flight deck and one of three general purpose computers generally left on while the shuttle is in orbit.

But the astronauts' in-orbit schedule remained the same. The crew consists of commander Don Williams, pilot Mike McCulley, and mission specialists Franklin Chang-Diaz, Shannon Lucid and Ellen Baker.

Today, the astronauts planned to use a powerful IMAX camera to film various parts of the world for a documentary film. They also hoped to photograph lightning systems for a weather experiment.

The day includes a special event for Chang-Diaz, who was born in San Jose, Costa Rica, and has been a hero there since his first trip to space in 1986. At about 6 p.m. EDT, Chang-Diaz plans to speak from orbit with Costa Rican President Oscar Arias, the 1987 Nobel Peace Prize winner.

A solar flare erupted on Thursday, and radiation from the burst may disrupt Galileo's computer memory. The computer should correct itself as designed, but if not, a correction can be made by ground controllers, NASA spokesman Charles Redmond said.

Since the radiation dose from the sun would be greater than what the spacecraft will encounter at Jupiter, it will be a good test of the vehicle, he said.

"This will give Galileo the smart robot a chance to prove how smart it is," he said.

On Thursday, two of the crew members spent part of the day demonstrating simple medical procedures that can be done aboard the shuttle.

As Ms. Lucid — the "patient" — floated upside down, Ms. Baker, a physician, took her temperature and examined her throat and ears. The session was taped earlier in the day by the astronauts and later aired on NASA satellite television.

The shuttle's first-aid kit "carries pretty much what any doctor's black bag would carry," Ms. Baker said. It includes a stethoscope, bandages, adhesive, aspirin and other common medications.

Hastings plans to run for governor's post

MIAMI (AP) — Rejected by judicial colleagues and removed from the bench by Congress, Alcee L. Hastings will take his case to Florida voters.

Within minutes of the announcement Friday of his impeachment conviction in the Senate, the 53-year-old veteran civil rights activist said he would seek the Democratic nomination for the 1990 governor's race.

"Not only can I be elected, I think I will," Hastings said in Washington. "Floridians are tired of ordinariness, and if there's nothing else I bring to an experience, it is not ordinariness."

Hastings is the sixth federal judge removed and the first impeached after acquittal by a jury. "I'm not disgraced. The Constitution is disgraced," Hastings said. "Life goes on, and there will be joy in the morning."

He held a party for friends in Washington late Friday, declaring, "We was robbed."

Hastings' last foray into politics was a lopsided defeat in the 1970 U.S. Senate Democratic primary in Florida.

Jon Peck, a spokesman for Republican Gov. Bob Martinez, belittled the former judge's chances in the political arena.

"Based on that track record, he's going to run for governor?" Peck asked. "Anybody who wants to is welcome to run for governor. They'll have to take on an incumbent who is going to get re-elected."

The governor, who was on a glass-bottom boat in the Florida Keys with Interior Secretary Manuel Lujan, laughed when told of Hastings' announcement for governor.

Audit

audit is not an "efficiency audit," but an audit that may result in efficiencies and long-term savings. County officials said a certified audit can cost as much as $20,000.

Dulaney also took exception to a statement that his decision for an audit had widened a "rift" between courthouse officials. He further said that his decision had nothing to do with a lawsuit filed against him and Scurry County and that it did not have connections to a tax roll-back election. Dulaney also said his decision should not be construed as criticism of county officials.

The lawsuit against Dulaney was filed April 7 after the county auditor was not reappointed for failure to terminate a deputy auditor who supported Dulaney's opponent, Democrat Pete Greene, in the November general election. The county was added as a defendant on Oct. 3.

Persons seeking a roll back of the 1990 county tax rate from 39.80 cents to 34.75 cents last week presented a petition containing more than 1,200 names seeking a roll-back election. Names on the petition are now being validated.

Also published as a paid advertisement in this edition of the SDN is a copy of the order and the Oct. 12 letter written to the commissioners court.

In other business, commissioners will also vote on an appraisal district board member and request to advertise for bids on emulsion for all paved county roads.

Glenn McCathern is also on the agenda to propose converting a tennis court to a volleyball court to accommodate a church league.

Amendment

state law on parole and good conduct. This provision was declared unconstitutional by the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals. The court ruled that the executive branch, through the Board of Pardons and Paroles, has exclusive authority over parole. The proposed amendment would establish the constitutional basis for legislative efforts to provide courts with a jury charge regarding conduct time and parole.

FOR: The proposed amendment will lead to more rational sentences because jurors will be given precise information about the effect of parole and good conduct time laws. The overall effect on the institutional division would not be significant because the judge rather than the jury sets punishment in most cases.

AGAINST: The instructions will do nothing but confuse juries, leading to more hung juries or to efforts to impose longer sentences and contribute to prison overcrowding.

Dr. Gott

Peter Gott, M.D.

Cluster headache resembles migraine

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've suffered from cluster headaches for 10 years, despite taking various medications and having surgery on the nerve in my face. Recently, I discovered that breathing oxygen from a tank for about five minutes gives me relief if I use it as soon as I feel a headache coming on.

My niece, who has cluster headaches, found a cure in Chinese herbs called Nan-Lien Chuifong Toukuwan. Another family member with these headaches was helped by taking prednisone. I think your readers should learn of these cures.

DEAR READER: Cluster headaches are severe paroxysms of head pain, usually confined to one side of the skull. They are often associated with dilation of the facial blood vessels on the same side, as well as excess mucous secretions from the nose and increased tearing from the eye. No one knows the cause of cluster headaches; however, they seem to be related to circulatory imbalances affecting the cranial arteries. In this respect, they resemble migraine.

Traditional treatment has included pain medicine, drugs (such as methysergide) to stabilize cranial circulation and psychological counseling to reduce stress. Prednisone, a form of cortisone, benefits some patients but has dangerous side effects, such as diabetes and susceptibility to infection. Oxygen constricts arteries, so — in theory — it could help reverse the arterial dilation that characterizes cluster headaches. However, it has not benefited enough patients in clinical studies to warrant a general recommendation.

I am not familiar with the herbs you mentioned, nonetheless, if they are free of dangerous side effects, I see no reason why they could not be used, providing the patient's doctor agrees.

As a general rule, patients with cluster headaches will be helped most by a neurologist or specialists in a headache clinic. Before resorting to untested treatments, I urge patients to explore more customary therapy, under their doctors' supervision.

Cluster headaches are often difficult to treat because patients differ in their responses to therapy. Therefore, I am passing on your advice without further medical comment.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Headaches." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: Animal dung from horses, cows, dogs, etc. has been used as fertilizer for years, but how safe is it? Can disease be transmitted to man via air, handling of the dung or products grown in the substance?

DEAR READER: Animal waste is good fertilizer; it is organic, biodegradable, widely available and inexpensive. In some parts of the world, dung is burned as fuel, used to build houses and made into poultices to treat skin conditions.

By and large, the handling of animal waste is harmless to humans. Problems arise when the animals have intestinal parasites or infections; these conditions can, in unusual instances, be passed to humans. For example, psittacosis is a form of avian pneumonia that can be spread to humans who inhale dust from infected bird droppings. Tapeworm and roundworm eggs can be transmitted from animal feces to humans by contamination of hands, food and other objects.

Food products fertilized with dung are not affected by infection or parasites in the waste. Plants use phosphorus, nitrogen and nutrients; the other components are returned to the soil.

DEAR DR. GOTT: My son, in his early 20s, has ulcerative colitis. He's cynical about seeing a gastroenterologist because treatment is still indicative of the dark ages. After much treatment, he's been self-treating with prednisone, vitamins, iron, potassium and calcium. Is there a better means of control?

DEAR READER: Yours is a complicated question involving three components: your son's cynicism, his self-treatment and the therapy for ulcerative colitis.

First, the cynicism. Mankind is cursed with many diseases — such as cancer, AIDS, coronary arteriosclerosis and ulcerative colitis — for which no clear-cut cure is available. Thanks to modern medicine, however, huge numbers of afflictions, which were once worldwide scourges, are now curable or treatable.

Reflect on the diseases of the pre-scientific era: for example, blood poisoning, diabetes, smallpox, the black plague, polio, syphilis and almost any serious infection. In the past, these conditions killed and maimed millions of people, virtually wiping out entire populations. Today, these illnesses have been brought under control or eradicated.

In my opinion, this is remarkable. Yes, we are trying to deal with current scourges and much work needs to be done. Nonetheless, I cannot endorse your son's cynicism: There is simply too much evidence that modern scientists are making giant breakthroughs in understanding and treating human ills. Your son needs to remember this.

In the second place, I believe he is making a serious mistake to self-treat. It's been said that the doctor who treats himself has a fool for a patient. Conversely, the patient who self-medicates for a serious condition is not only depriving himself of newer, objective treatment, but also is running a risk of disastrous side effects from drugs.

For instance, prednisone (purified cortisone) is extremely beneficial for certain diseases when used under medical supervision. Unfortunately, the drug has major side effects if used over a long period of time — such as diabetes, cataracts, bone softening and impairment of immunity — that must be carefully weighed against its benefits. In my view, your son is placing himself unnecessarily at risk.

Third, ulcerative colitis — a chronic inflammatory bowel disease of unknown cause — is often controllable with present methods. Anti-spasmotics (to alleviate violent diarrhea), sulfasalazine (an antibiotic that seems to reduce the severity of the colitis), prednisone (carefully administered in the smallest effective dose) and surgery (to remove badly diseased portions of bowel) are the traditional methods of treatment. Cortisone enemas have recently shown promise in reducing symptoms. Some studies indicate that the anti-cancer drugs azathioprine and 6-mercaptopurine may benefit patients with severe ulcerative colitis.

Your son should be alert to the most severe complications of ulcerative colitis: swelling of the bowel (toxic megacolon), perforation of the bowel wall, strictures (bowel narrowing) and cancer (a deadly complication with a risk as high as 30 percent in chronic colitis).

I believe your son could obtain more appropriate treatment from a gastroenterologist, and, I urge him to place himself under the care of such a specialist. Judging from your comments, I conclude that your son quite naturally wants to retain some control over his treatment. Therefore, he may have to search out a gastroenterologist with whom he can work as a team. Also, in dealing with the anger and frustration of having a chronic disease, your son might be helped by counseling.

To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Choosing a Physician." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

Scurry County Folks...

By Shirley A. Gorman

As a child Wynelle Redman "just wanted to paint, draw and color." As an adult she can't keep her hands still because when she gets an idea she just "has to start painting."

Her art is often described as "unique, versatile and distinctive in style." She is largely self-taught, but has had five years of private lessons as well as lessons from well-known artists in Taos, N. M. She has been an artist for 21 years.

Mrs. Redman said her work combines impressionistic and realistic styles. Her paintings can be found in many private and public collections.

Since 1979, over 900 paintings and thousands of prints of her work have been distributed nationally. Over 2,000 of her paintings have been sold in the U.S. and Canada since 1984.

Her works include Indian portraits, oil wells, windmills, wildlife, florals and westerns. Landscapes are her favorite, and even though she will do portraits, she admits that they "involve more pressure" because the painting has to be "exactly like the picture."

She was born in Alexander City, Ala., and lived in Post for a number of years where she owned and operated two galleries. She recently completed two years of art shows in New Mexico and she and her husband, John, have been living in Snyder for about 18 months. She now manages the Pal-O-Mar Motel.

Mrs. Redman is currently not painting as much as she has in the past, but she still maintains her interest in art and she recently said that she and her husband would like to go back to the art show circuit someday.

From 1979-81, she participated in the Interior Duck Stamp Contest, exhibited her work in two shows for muscular dystrophy, and a show for Bob Wills Day. She received a personal invitation in 1984 to exhibit her art works at the Exhibit of the Salon des Nations in Paris, France. But she was unable to accept.

Her biography can be found in the 1981 edition of "American Artists of Renown." She is a former member of the Texas Women Western Artists.

The book which lists biographies of approximately 2,500 working artists, makes available a quick, easy-to-read guide for the serious collector or to the novice who would be interested in buying art for the first time.

The book contains the artists' background in study, media, style, honors and important exhibits and collections.

Mrs. Redman began to paint seriously 21 years ago. She has had paintings displayed in South Plains Mall and other shows and has entered several contests all over the United States.

In 1982, she attended the third annual Texas Women's Western show in Cresson and signed a contract with that group which enabled her to show wherever they exhibit.

A few years ago, she was also entered in the Texas Artist Registry for Texas Professional Artists. The appointment is made by the Texas Commission of the Arts in Austin.

Other honors include being nominated to be a national associate member of the Smithsonian Institute of Washington, D.C., and the president and trustees of the National Trust for Historic Preservation nominating her for membership. Her name is recorded in the National Trust Roster.

Mrs. Redman paints "off and on" now, but at one time it was not unusual for her to paint the backgrounds on 15-20 pictures, let them dry overnight and then add the details the next day. She also sometimes returns to paintings years later and adds more details. For instance, her husband recently suggested that she add a wagon train to a painting that she had completed in 1973 and that is what she did.

Holmes, Martini repeat vows in double-ring ceremony

Michelle Rene' Holmes became the bride of Michael Dean Martini Aug. 5, at 2 p.m. in a double-ring ceremony at First Baptist Church of Ira. Rev. Clayton Pennington of Klondike officiated the ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Dean Holmes of Ira, and the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Stansell of Fluvanna and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Holmes of Ravenswood, W.Va. The groom is the son of Sue Martini of Snyder.

Lynn Bethel played "The Bridal Chorus" and "The Traditional Wedding March" as the bride and groom entered. She accompanied Beverly Stansell, breath, tea roses, gardenias and burgundy velvet roses. Silk leaves, pearl hearts and satin ribbon streamers in burgundy and gray accented the fans.

The groom was attired in a white tuxedo with tails, accented by a rose boutonniere. Brent Withers served as best man. Groomsmen were Brent Bearden and Jason Withers. They were attired in silver gray tuxedos accented with single burgundy velvet roses, baby's breath and silk leaves.

Candles were lit before the ceremony by Dave Holmes, brother of the bride, and Mark Stansell, cousin of the bride. They also served as ushers. Tabitha Lee of May was the flower girl. She wore a gray dress and a wrist corsage of a single burgundy velvet rose, accented with white silk tea roses. She carried a white wicker basket of burgundy rose petals tied with burgundy satin and white lace ribbon bows.

Bradley Bawcum, cousin of the bride, served as ring bearer. He wore a gray suit and carried a white lace heart-shaped pillow.

The bride presented a long-stemmed red rose to her mother and the groom's mother during the ceremony. A reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church immediately following the ceremony.

The bride's table was covered with a floor-length white, gathered skirt and a white lace overlay. The three-tiered cake was on a free-form cake stand concealed by an arrangement of silk English ivy, white tea roses and burgundy velvet roses, accented by baby's breath. Burgundy, gray and white satin streamers cascaded from the top tier of the stand onto the table. The cake was topped with two doves nestled on a heart-shaped pedestal, surrounded by white silk lily-of-the-valley. The cake was designed and created by Reta Graham. Carla Denson and Cindy Stewart served the confection.

The groom's table was covered with a floor-length burgundy cloth, overlaid in white lace. A silver coffee service accented the groom's table which held a double horseshoe chocolate cake, icing in chocolate chiffon frosting. It was created and designed by the groom's mother, Cynthia Stansell, cousin of the bride, and Laura Blagg served at the groom's table.

The bride's aunt, Carolyn Stansell of Fluvanna, designed and created the floral arrangements, and Gwen Herring made the burgundy rose rice bags.

MR. AND MRS. MICHAEL DEAN MARTINI (Ted Bigham Photography)

Local artist says that she enjoys painting

Mrs. Redman has a keen eye for detail and is able to remember scenes so that when an idea "comes into her head" she said she is able to paint it from memory. She would rather do that than make a copy of someone else's picture. She loves to paint landscapes and wildlife, especially bluebonnets and birds. For her wildlife paintings she uses a photo of a bird or animal so that she gets the coloring and markings right, but she always creates her own pose and expression.

She has also designed and created her own coloring book which she someday hopes to publish and she is interested in branching out into designing Christmas cards.

After living in Post for several years, Mrs. Redman said they decided to go out on the art show circuit almost four years ago. They chose New Mexico because she has always been "enchanted by that state and its Indian culture."

But living on the road isn't as easy and glamorous as it sounds, and after living in numerous hotels and apartments for two years, she said she was glad to re-locate and have a permanent home again.

They spent a great deal of time in Albuquerque, but Mrs. Redman said they didn't like that city because of the high crime rate. They also traveled in southern New Mexico.

She said they chose Snyder as their new home about 18 months ago because they both have family in the area and wanted to be closer to them. Mrs. Redman's daughter and family, Charity, Cy and Justin Wilson, live in Snyder, and a son, Michael Smith, lives in Atlanta, Ga. Redman's three children, Jeff, Heath and Jamae, all live in Plainview. He also has other family members who live in Post.

Mrs. Redman continued to pursue her interest in art as a child even though her family never encouraged her to develop her talent. Today she uses various instruments in painting. She likes a palette knife and she uses sponges for watercolors. She likes to achieve different textures.

She tries to use pen, pencil and watercolors today rather than acrylics. That way, she said, she can "redo the picture before it dries" if she wants to.

She doesn't like an audience when she paints so she said when she was painting before onlookers at the mall in Lubbock she often stopped and talked to the people rather than to continue working. However, she said she always likes art shows because of all the "wonderful people and artists" she meets.

"My art keeps me happy. And time sure passes fast when I'm painting," she explained.

She also paints on every type of surface imaginable such as glass, mirrors, canvas and a piece of cardboard from a pizza restaurant which earned her a fair award. She has also painted small rocks.

For years, Mrs. Redman said that she just gave her paintings away and then she started to sell them. Her first sale of $40 just "broke even" but it was great and exhilarating to her anyway.

Mrs. Redman is an artist first, but she also likes to sew, decorate and arrange flowers.

She has unfinished paintings stacked in her closet but she said she will be able to return to them someday and "pick up where she left off" or else make changes if she prefers.

She said she has been asked to teach, but declines because she prefers to "just paint."

Couple united in evening ceremony

BROWNWOOD—Merisha Gail Ferguson became the bride of Gregory Scott Glass at 7:30 p.m. Sept. 30, at Central United Methodist Church. Rev. Paul Doerschuk, step-father of the bride, officiated the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Rev. Paul and Gail Doerschuk of Liberty, and Tommy and Betty Ferguson of Kingsland. The groom is the son of Rex and Juanita Glass of Hermleigh.

Vows were exchanged before an altar with spiral candelabra on each side of an arch candelabrum. Large palms stood on either side of the candelabra, and a lily arrangement stood on the podium. Ivory candles adorned the windows.

Johnny Ferguson of Irving, uncle of the bride, and Shawn Rhodes of West Columbia served as candlelighters.

Vocalist David Harrison performed "The Lord's Prayer" and "The Rose," accompanied by Dorothy McIntosh on the organ and Mary Catherine Adams on the piano.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose an ivory gown of satin and lace, featuring a cathedral-length train covered in seed pearls. The puff-sleeved dress featured seed pearls descending from the elbows. The back of the dress featured a deep V, with a large bustle. Insets of lace and tulle accented the train.

Floral patterns of tulle and lace adorned the front of the full skirt, leading to a scalloped hemline. A beaded headpiece with a pouf veil of tulle completed the bride's attire.

Dee Dee Driskell of Brownwood served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Marie Ferguson of Liberty, Vicki Farney of Perryton and Tiffany Fowler of Snyder. They were attired in forest green tafetta, tea-length dresses. Large bows accented the backless dresses at the waist.

Melissa Peterson of Midlothian, niece of the groom, was the flower girl. Ring bearers were Marc Galloway of Beaumont, cousin of the bride, and Joe Peterson of Midlothian, nephew of the groom.

Jimmy Fowler of Dallas served as best man. Groomsmen were Andy Haynes of Vivian, La., Daniel Chasteen of San Angelo, Mike Risenhoover of Lubbock and Mike Smith of Brownwood.

Ushers were Johnny Ferguson of Irving, uncle of the bride, and Shawn Rhodes of West Columbia.

The groom was attired in a black tuxedo with tails, while the other male attendants wore black tuxedos with ivory shirts.

Christi Gladden of Hermleigh, niece of the groom, registered guests at a table covered in ivory lace. Two brass candlesticks with ivory candles complemented the table, along with a floral arrangement.

A reception followed the ceremony in the Family Life Center of the church.

The bride's table was covered in ivory satin, and held a crystal punch bowl. Hand-made green and ivory mints and mixed nuts graced the table in silver platters. A lily floral arrangement and a candle displaying a wedding invitation completed the table.

The two-tiered cake was all ivory with a fountain in the bottom tier surrounded by fresh flowers. A heart-shaped crystal ornament topped with wedding bells was featured atop the cake.

An ivory lace cloth, belonging to the groom's grandmother, covered a forest green skirting on the groom's table. Brass theatre masks with forest green ribbons were used to accent a three-layer chocolate ganache cake topped with light and dark chocolate curls.

An antique brass coffee service, brass candlesticks and gold flatware, together with brass comedy/tragedy masks were incorporated into the setting of a theatre theme.

Gail Peterson of Midlothian and Jan Gladden of Hermleigh, both sisters of the groom, presided at the groom's table.

Following a honeymoon trip to California, the couple is making their home in Pasadena, Calif.

The bride attended Howard Payne University and is currently a sales associate for The Broadway of California.

The groom, a Hermleigh native, graduated from Snyder High School in 1987, and attended Steven F. Austin State University in Nacogdoches and Howard Payne University in Brownwood. He also attended The American Academy of Dramatic Arts in Pasadena, Calif.

French revolutionary writer in his bath in 1793 by Charlotte Jean-Paul Marat was murdered Corday.

Dancers host festival

The Sparkle City Square Dance Club will sponsor the 18th annual Square and Round Dance Festival Oct. 28, at Scurry County Coliseum. Workshops will be held from 1 to 5 p.m. and the Festival Dance will begin at 7 p.m., with request rounds until 8 p.m. and square dancing from 8 to 11 p.m.

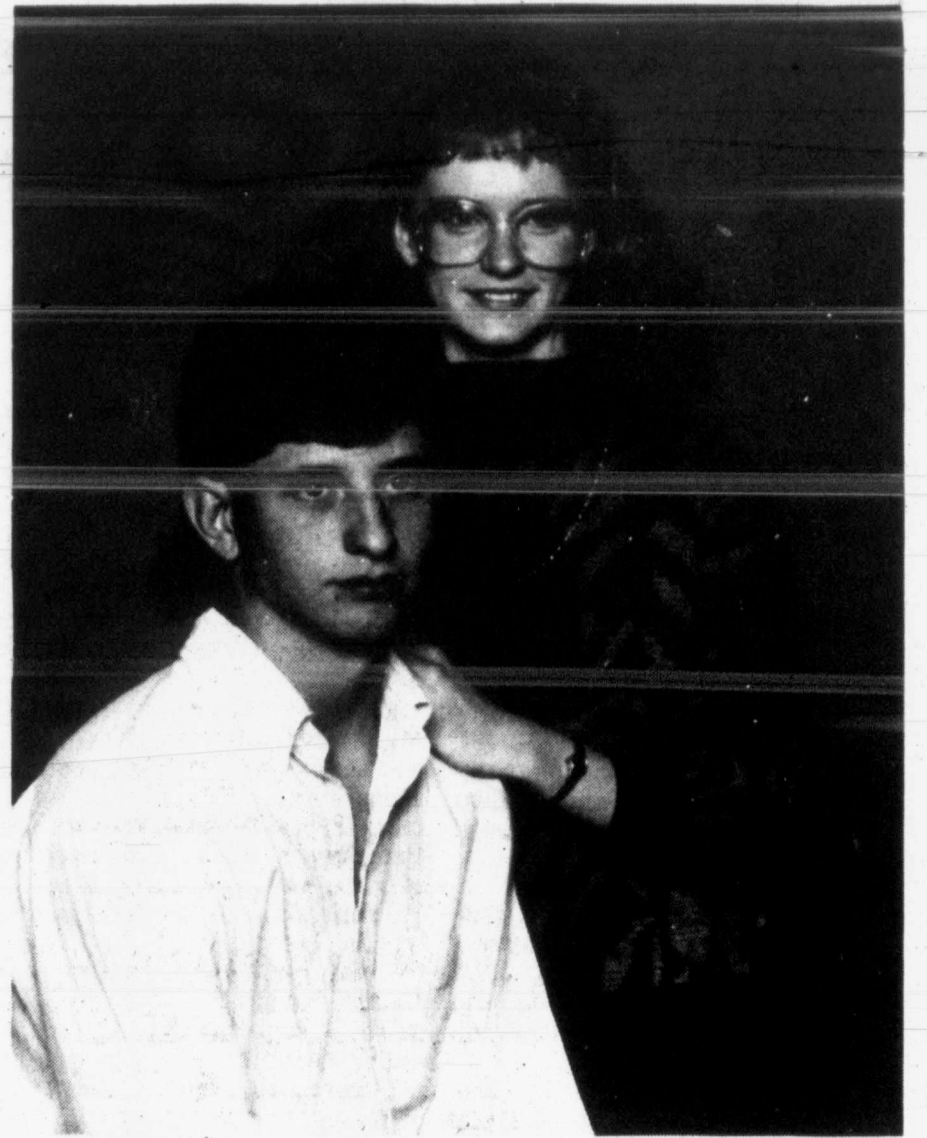

The featured caller for the Festival this year will be Wayne Baldwin of Fairview, just outside McKinney. A native Texan, besides his life as a square dance caller, he works for Terry Oilfield Supply Company as their sales representative for the Dallas-Fort Worth area.

He is well known all over the United States, including Alaska, and has called in Europe and the Middle East. He began calling in 1967, and currently calls for four clubs in the Dallas area. He records on Circle D Records. Dave and Nita Smith of Lubbock will cue the round dancing. The Smiths are well known in the round dancing field and have been the featured callers for many of the preceding festivals.

An additional feature this year will be the first public appearance of the newly organized clogging group in Snyder. Using the name "Deep Creek Cloggers," this group was formed this past summer. Their instructor is Helen Cassidy of Denver City.

All area square dancers are invited to the Festival and spectators are welcome free of charge. The current officers of the Sparkle City Club are president George and Mary Kiker; vice president, Joe and Beverly Copeland; and treasurer, Harold and Genell Buchanan.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT — Mr. and Mrs. Michael Graham of Hermleigh announce the engagement of their daughter, Rebecca Sue, to Christopher Allan McKay, son of Mrs. Dorothy McKay of Princeton and the late Chester McKay. The couple plans to exchange vows Sunday in the Towle Park entrance. (Private Photo)

TURKEYS, OTHER MEATS BEST BUYS OF MONTH
Food shoppers will find best October buys at meat counters.

Poultry will lead the way, since shorter beef supplies mean that beef prices will begin to rise.

Turkeys will be on sale throughout October, since food retailers have received their Thanksgiving supplies.

Private label turkey hens will be priced from 79 to 89 cents a pound, while toms and popular name brand birds will be slightly higher.

Whole chicken will be on sale at 45 to 95 cents per pound, and other cuts will be correspondingly priced with the thigh-leg cut falling back in the 29-cent range.

Pork prices also will be coming down with across-the-board reductions. Getting attention will be pork roasts, chops and sausage.

Look for seafood specials on shrimp, red snapper, salmon, oreo dory and ocean perch. Oysters will be a late-month feature.

Specials on coffee should continue, since growing nations have not yet agreed on production quotas and supplies remain plentiful.

October food ads also will relate to cooler weather as canned soups, chili, corned beef hash, oatmeal and other breakfast cereals and hot chocolate are featured.

In produce ads, apples will be a major attention getter, along with pumpkins.

The 1989 apple crop is larger than last year's and will approach the all-time record set in 1987. Availability of pumpkins also will be much better than last year, since weather was excellent in the growing regions.

For those buying a jack-o'-lantern-to-be early, store it in a cool, dry spot until carving begins.

October also is the beginning of early orange and grapefruit marketings, with supplies mostly adequate.

Halloween costumes, candies and party supplies were being merchandised the first week of October. German-origin products such as cheeses, wines and beers will also be featured as some food retailers observe Oktoberfest.

Newman misses film

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Actor Paul Newman stood up his studio and a crowd of reporters, passing up a screening of the movie "Fat Man and Little Boy" to work on his latest project.

Paramount brought dozens of television reporters to Kansas City for Saturday's screening, a rare event for the city arranged especially to make it easier for Newman to meet the press. Newman is in town filming "Mr. and Mrs. Bridge."

However, the reporters had to make do with Newman's "Fat Man" co-stars, John Cusack and Dwight Schultz, as well as producer Tony Garnett. The film is about the making of the atomic bomb and takes its title from the nicknames of the bombs dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Newman's latest movie, about a Kansas City family in the 1920s and '30s, is based on the novels "Mrs. Bridge" and "Mr. Bridge" by Evan S. Connell.

queen of spades for a sure trick and had already set up a club trick for the defense. What now?

Often the secret of succeeding in seemingly impossible contracts is for declarer to make certain assumptions — that a particular distribution of cards exists that will allow him to make the contract. Such is the case here. After the king of clubs lead, when the queen of spades does not fall, declarer has but one chance. He has to hope that West holds four diamonds. Declarer wins the day by playing a diamond to dummy's ace and then a heart back to his ace. Next the eight of diamonds is played. When West plays low, declarer also plays low from dummy. It is true that declarer risks going down three tricks if East wins the 10 of diamonds (club to West's jack, queen of spades, and then another club winner for West). But that extra loss is more than compensated for by the gain when the needed lie of the cards exists. When East shows out on the second diamond trick, another diamond is played to the jack in dummy, and then the ace and king of diamonds allow declarer to discard his losing clubs and make the slam.

Was this such a bad slam? Without a club lead, even with West having a trump trick, all that would be needed is a diamond split with the queen held by West. However, the club opening lead created a serious problem. If the queen of spades had come down, the contract would depend only upon favorable diamonds. But West held the

4 players reminisce about runner-up victory

By Shirley A. Gorman
SDN News Editor

Eight of the 10 members of the Hermleigh girls basketball team which was state runner-up in 1945 are expected to attend Saturday's biennial reunion. Part of the afternoon festivities will include special recognition of this team.

On Thursday afternoon, three team members gathered at the home of fellow teammate Jacquelyn Chorn Sealy of Snyder for a brief reunion. They included Joy Clements Keller of Snyder, who was named the most outstanding guard in the state that year; Nell Bowlin Bludworth of Galway, Ireland, and Joyce Chambers McDowell of Odessa.

Sealy, Keller and Bludworth were all seniors and McDowell was a junior.

McDowell and Keller served as guards; Sealy was a substitute guard and Bludworth was a substitute forward.

Each agreed, though, that even though some of the team played first string while others substituted, everyone played as "one big team."

"We were all friends," Bludworth said. "We respected our coach, A. C. Bishop (now deceased), and he respected us."

In order to advance to the state tournament, Hermleigh won both district and bi-district competition that year, winning 34 of 37 games.

In 1945, those 10 Hermleigh players surprised the state because they were not expected to win any tournament games much less be the runners-up.

"China, another small town in Texas, was favored to win the tournament and since we had to play them first everyone thought we would lose the first game," McDowell explained.

The Hermleigh girls were considered to be "underdogs" not only because of who their first opponents were to be but also because they were, as Bludworth put it, "smaller and gentler" than the other teams' players.

"We thought we were tall until we got to the tournament and saw some of the other players," Keller said.

Bludworth remembers that they were a bit apprehensive that first game because China "played rough" and one player in particular was noted for her tendency to "drop kick another player when the referee wasn't looking."

McDowell remembers that they defeated China by two points and then went on to defeat another team by two points and a third team by one point before losing to Aquilla by five points in the final championship match.

Prior to China's defeat, they had not lost a game in 99 outings.

But they were so excited about winning that being in second place didn't bother them, Bludworth said. In fact, she said she doubted that they would have been more excited if they had finished first.

They placed winning stickers on their cars for the return trip and even stopped in Sweetwater for a team picture to be made. They returned to Hermleigh with horns honking and while they drove around the community yelling and screaming, they explained to everyone they were runners-up rather than champions; Bludworth said they liked that term better than second place.

All four players credit Coach Bishop with being a deciding factor in their victory. Not only had he taught them zone defense techniques which were new to their opponents but he also had a good eye for observing the other players and could always point were still in effect in 1945, so Hermleigh could not use school funds or buses to transport the team to Hillsboro where the tournament was to be played.

Bill Rea helped raise $100 in expense money and Coach Bishop and G. E. Chorn, father of Mrs. Sealy, drove the team to Hillsboro in two vehicles. To save on expenses, they stayed with for many of the players, they said they were all well behaved and afraid to venture very far from their sponsors.

They didn't pull any "stunts," but the "worst" thing they did was to go into a restaurant with their playing suits on. They hadn't wanted to go back to the room and had covered themselves with their coats, but who had received two basketballs, had them both stolen off of the lapel of her jacket.

"Coach Bishop found me some replacements but they were not exactly like the ones which had been stolen," she explained.

All four women emphasized how much they respected and still miss their coach. Tennis shoes were hard to come by because of the war, but prior to the tournament Keller said he brought in a box of tennis shoes and told them to find matching pairs if they needed any.

They always remember him as being an excellent coach, teacher and administrator. Besides the zone defense in basketball, they said he introduced them to spiking and setting up the ball.

They also remember that when the school burned in 1941, it was Bishop who entered the burning building to try and save as many school records as he could. He succeeded in dropping a file cabinet from the second story of the building.

Because no building materials were available due to WWII, they said Hermleigh could not then replace the lost school. Classes were conducted in the new gym and on the bleachers, and the basketball court was used as a study hall.

Since the gym was unheated, Bludworth said they had to start playing before they could warm up, but she said they never felt deprived and they never stopped having fun.

She also has another fond memory of her former coach and friend. Due to a bad knee, she said she never played much basketball until her senior year, but even though she was a substitute, she said Bishop always let her play enough so that she could earn her lettered sweater that year.

Hermleigh girls were very athletic and when they weren't playing basketball they were usually engaged in either volleyball or softball. Bludworth preferred volleyball because she was a first string player, but the other three enjoyed basketball the most.

Bludworth has been living in Ireland for the past four years where she and her husband have a chiropractic clinic.

Other team members included Mary Cotton Bayless, Louise Rea Boren, Janie Peterson Stevenson, Illepe Turner Hairston, Elsie Vernon Ammons, and Izora Williams Browning, who was named all state guard that year.

Hairston's brother, "Bulldog" Turner, played center for the Chicago Bears years ago.

REUNION—These four Hermleigh graduates all played on the 1945 basketball team which was state runner-up that year. Some eight of the 10 players were expected to attend Hermleigh's bi-annual reunion slated today. out their weaknesses.

Keller's job in the final game was to guard a player on the Aquilla team who was noted for scoring some 30-plus points a game. "Her actions always followed the same pattern so all I usually had to do was just reach up and knock the ball away," she said. "I really don't think I did anything more than the other players did, but they gave me the state trophy that year."

Restrictions placed on school systems because of World War II

Chorn's aunt in Fort Worth on the return trip. And since they had a little bit of expense money left, Bludworth said the coach allowed them to attend the Fort Worth Livestock Show.

While in Hillsboro, they said the 10 of them shared two rooms while the two sponsors were in a third. Each room had two beds and one cot in it and each night the girls took turns sleeping on the cot.

Since this was a "first time to be away from home" experience

Bishop didn't like that and told them not to let it happen again because they were representatives of their school and community and he did not consider that proper attire for public outings.

Each of the players received a miniature basketball as a memento of the tournament. McDowell said they very carelessly used to leave all their belongings in the dressing room and it wasn't long before Keller,

Air traffic hampered at DFW

GRAPEVINE, Texas (AP) — The head of the air traffic controllers union at Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport said a computer failure that disrupted tower operations for at least 12 hours yesterday leaves controllers with a "real problem with confidence."

Air traffic at the nation's second busiest airport was disrupted for the second time in a week Thursday when a 1950s-style computer failed to operate properly, Federal Aviation Administration officials said.

The failure forced officials to limit the number of planes in and out of the airport each hour and to call in veteran controllers to help with backup.

The computer was restored to full service at about 2:30 a.m. Friday, said Larry Parrent, assistant air traffic manager at D-FW.

It was the second outage in a week. Last Saturday, a flood of air traffic into the area for the Texas-Oklahoma football game overloaded computers for 19 minutes and left controllers without a true picture of air traffic over the airport.

FAA officials said Thursday's breakdown happened when one of four data processors on the computer failed to restart after routine maintenance. The processors feed specific information about each plane from the radar to the controllers' screens.

Parrent said the airport normally handles 90 incoming flights per hour. That was reduced to 84 until the evening rush hour, when controllers handled only 72 flights per hour, Parrent said.

Officials also took steps to shut off everything considered unessential. The Grand Prairie antenna was shut off to keep data from the antenna from overloading the computer. That, in turn, diminished the area that controllers could see on radar by 20 miles.

Officials said that the inoperative processor meant that instead of overloading when 200 airplanes were on the radar screen, the computer began to have problems at 180 planes.

Last Saturday's outage was traced to a technician who mistakenly tried to program a radar computer from the wrong terminal.

The resulting loss in data kept controllers guessing for 19 minutes about the true location of airplanes in the area.

"There is a real problem with confidence in the system," Milton Sherotter, president of D-FW's controllers union, told The Fort Worth Star Telegram. "You come in here from day to day and you never know when something is going to happen."

New equipment is not expected for another three to five years, officials said.

"It's not really aggravating but it's frustrating when you can't get new equipment in at a timely fashion."

Halloween is a religious holiday.
Bunk.
Oh sure, I know that Halloween comes from Hallow's Eve, when ghosts supposedly floated around and witches congregated to worship the devil before All Saint's Day.
But in Harlingen, they've got some lady trying to get the school board to ban Halloween because it's a "satanic holy day."
Hallow's Eve? Maybe. Halloween? It's absurd.
Hysterical nonsense.
What Halloween is, if you'll recall, is kids dressing up like any number of spooky characters and running around up and down the streets, laughing and collecting candy from adults. The adults laugh back, comment on the way the kid is dressed up — "Boy, you sure scared me. Look at this little Dracula, Emmie!" — and are more than eager to dole out the treats.
This is satanism?
Look, Halloween has already been brought to its knees. Parents feel it's necessary to forage through the treats to make sure some degenerate hasn't decided to turn what looks like a treat into a cruel trick.

Because of this, a lot of kids nowadays never experience Halloween the way you and I did. Most communities down-play door-to-door trick-or-treating and advocate parties instead.
It's understandable, but sad.

I don't mean to sound like a nut for Halloween. But it just seems a shame, you know, when we begin to censor ourselves out of traditions.
"Kids have always looked on it as a fun time and a spoof rather than anything serious like this," the Harlingen school superintendent was quoted as saying.

The controversy is over whether or not the Harlingen school should allow Halloween decorations on the walls. The lady from Harlingen wants us to believe that these promote satanic rituals. Since Christianity can't be taught in schools, she says, neither should Halloween, again because it is a "satanic holy day."

I'm certainly not a learned man in the field of religion or education, but I'm going to guess that although Christianity may not be taught in schools, Christmas is celebrated — at least on a non-religious basis — in the form of "Merry Christmas" posters on the walls.

Ironically, what the lady from Harlingen wants to do would be to take education out of the school. She wants to hide Halloween somewhere — pretend it doesn't exist — other than use it as an opportunity to educate children. It might be an excellent time to teach children the difference between satanism and Halloween the holiday, or at least satanic and Halloween symbols.

Education, not hysterical screaming into the wind, is what we need.
And with the tough times we see on a daily basis — taxes, disasters, drought in some areas and war in others — a smile from a child dressed up like Casper is more than welcome at my house.

Country Life

By Deanie Francis Mills

One of the exciting things about my work is that it opens up all sorts of fascinating doors which most people who work nine-to-five never get the opportunity to see. (Of course, they also collect regular paychecks that I never get the opportunity to see!) I meet people from all walks of life who open up their hearts to share their lives with me for a brief time.

Last week I took a research trip to Dallas, laying preparatory groundwork for a new novel, as yet untitled. I spent several of the most interesting days of my life following around Chief Assistant District Attorney Jerri Sims and her hardworking staff through a murder trial in the 196th District Court under Judge Joe Kendall.

Everyone in business knows the meaning of the word "contacts," and I can say upfront in all honesty that I don't believe anyone at the courthouse would have been as open and available to me if I had not been given a strong recommendation by my dear friend, former Chief Assistant D.A. Ken Carden. Most people in highly visible, political positions, don't trust anyone remotely resembling "press," especially those involved in the criminal field, and MOST especially the Dallas prosecutors, who have been under a great deal of media pressure lately.

Because of Ken, they knew I was not doing some sort of undercover investigative "expose all" piece, that I was just there to absorb everything and to learn. They knew they could trust me, which I always consider a great honor in the law enforcement business. Consequently, I was privileged to be in on all aspects of the criminal justice system. (A couple of years ago, I rode patrol for three nights with an inner-city Dallas cop, so I'd already seen that aspect of it.) I watched the judge go through the "Jail Chain," advising defendants of their rights under the law and imposing sentences, many of which involved compulsory attendance at Narcotics Anonymous.

Back in the prosecutor's incredibly crowded, busy office, I observed the plea bargaining process, sat in a corner and listened to them interview witnesses for the upcoming trial, watched as they dispatched investigators to track down and subpoena hostile or reluctant witnesses, saw the chase taking shape. Over lunch and long after official office hours ended, I listened to them brainstorm in the case — and was privileged to be asked my opinion from time to time. During one day, they might settle with defense lawyers by plea bargain half a dozen cases, set trial dates for half a dozen more, interview half a dozen witnesses for the ongoing trial, and set up preliminary files for three or four more. And there are 15 offices under the auspices of the Dallas District Attorney.

Last year Dallas had 366 murders. One for every day of the year.

I wandered the hallways and listened to the long-suffering, dutiful jurors waiting to be chosen or sent home. Always, it seemed, waiting. I watched family members of the victim, anxious and in their best clothes, come to testify, and I heard the sympathy in the prosecutor's voices. And I was there when the sad-faced defense attorney pulled out all the stops for his client.

I interviewed the young, ex-cop judge in chambers. "One thing I never forget for a moment," he told me, "is that every decision we make on a case, either in plea or in court, affects PEOPLE. It affects the defendant...but it also affects his mother, and his wife, and his kids. I never forget that, and I try to give him every chance to straighten out his life. Sometimes he does, and I never see him again. That's the reward (see Country Life, page 10B)

SDN Letters to the Editor

To the editor,
The residents and staff at Snyder Nursing Center would like to express their thanks to the Shriners and their wives for providing transportation, snacks, and for the loving care given. Our residents will long remember this fun time that was provided for them through the Shriners.

We give special thanks to other volunteers that assisted: Novilla Johnson, Billy Johnson, Sam Floyd and Terry Greene.
Juanita Land, Administrator
Audine McCann, Acitivity Director

To the editor,
When I read the letters written by Bobby Nolan and his friends, it makes me proud that I had no part, and was against, creating the creatures that have been created in Scurry County in my lifetime.

The worse creature of them all was D.M. Cogdell Hospital. They admitted my wife and 21-year-old married son to the hospital. Two hours after admitting them, I was informed that he owed them a bill, and the bill would be paid or there would be no doctoring.
When I would not yield to this blackmail and threats, and tried to leave the hospital, they refused to let me take my wife. They took her by force and shipped her to a training center as a welfare patient, where they used her as a guinea pig and offered to get Medicaid to pay the bill.

This is when we realized we were "welfare patients." When we informed them we had insurance and could pay our bills, they were shocked. Somebody in Snyder had messed up. This is when I got introduced to the Dirty Dozen. You now know them as the Quiet Dozen.
I love it. I love it.
Henry Treat

To the Snyder Daily News and the citizens of Scurry County:

Elsewhere in this newspaper I have had printed, at my own expense, an exact copy of the letter sent by me to the Scurry County Commissioner's Court in reference to the operational audit of the financial affairs of the county which I recently ordered. I also have had printed a copy of the order which I filed with the county and district clerks.

An Oct. 18 article in the Snyder Daily News states that I have ordered the Commissioner's Court to conduct an "outside audit of county records." This is not true. As stated in my letter, I myself ordered the audit and simply notified the commissioners of my action, as a courtesy to them.

The article also states that my action adds "fuel to a simmering courthouse rift." This "rift," as far as I am concerned, does not exist. I am acting solely in the interests of Scurry County. My action is not to be construed as criticism of county officials, but as an attempt to uncover some of the mysteries of county government for the people.

I wish to take this opportunity to state, one more time, publicly, that this audit will not be simply a duplication of the recent financial audit done by Mr. Vestal. Nor is it by any means an efficiency study. The audit I have ordered is an operational one. It is a review of budgeting controls and will probably include an examination of accounting methods.

I fail to see how this could possibly cause a "rift." If my experts find nothing wrong, as they may not, the operational review will not cost the county a cent. If, on the other hand, they find a need for more intensive audits in some departments, the money will be well spent if more economical procedures result, thus saving the county money in the long run.

As for the commissioner's complaints about the cost of the audit, I do not find them valid. County business is big business and it should be run as efficiently as big business. There should be a thorough study of its operations done and I am having it done by experts in governmental accounting.

Judge Goodwin is correct in his understanding that the law provides only three reasons for such an audit, but they apply only if an audit is called for by a commissioner's court, not if ordered by a district judge or a grand jury.

Pete Greene is not correct in his opinion that there is an avenue of appeal through the federal courts. Neither is he correct when he misquotes from my letter to the commissioner's court that I have ordered an "operational efficiency audit." To my knowledge, there is not such a thing. Never have I used the phrase "operational efficiency audit." What I did say was that the audit I have ordered would result in operational efficiencies.

The State of Texas, in its wisdom, to promote a system of checks and balances, has designated certain areas of control to different officeholders.

Calling for a special audit is within the authority of the district judge. I have done so. I find that such audit will best serve the public interest.

To all the taxpayers and voters who filled out, brought by or mailed our opinion poll published in the Snyder Daily News, my husband and I would like to report on events following the public meeting at Snyder Jr. High on Sept. 12.

The State Highway Department gave us 10 days after the meeting to send in written comments to Abilene. Before the meeting, we had received about a dozen. In the 10 days after the meeting, we received around 300.

Hot-Tempered Mom Needs To Take Time to Chill Out

DEAR ABBY: I am the mother of five (three boys and two girls) whose ages run 2, 5, 8, 9 and 10. I am their nurse, teacher, recreational director and cook—but sometimes I feel like I'm their slave and their warden. This morning I lost my temper and slapped my 8-year-old daughter so hard I left my handprint on her face. (I had just mopped my kitchen floor when she came running through the kitchen with muddy shoes.)

I am so ashamed. I never thought I could lose control like that. Am I losing touch with reality? Please help me.

ASHAMED

DEAR ASHAMED: I doubt if there is a mother alive who has not done or said something in anger. (One need not lift a hand to hurt a child. Words can cut as sharply as a knife.)

The next time everyday pressures build up to such a pitch that you feel like lashing out, stop! And try any of these simple alternatives suggested by the National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse. Remember, take time out. Don't take "it" out on your child.

1. Put your hands over your mouth. Count to 10. Or, better yet, 20.
2. Stop in your tracks. Press your lips together and breathe deeply.
3. Phone a friend.
4. Phone the weather.
5. Recite the alphabet out loud.
6. If someone can watch the children, go outside and take a short walk.
7. Take a hot bath, or splash cold water on your face.
8. Pick up a pencil and write down your thoughts.
9. Close your eyes and imagine you're hearing what your child hears.

10. Turn on the radio or TV.
11. Hug a pillow.
12. For further information on raising a family, preventing child abuse and for the location of a support group in your state, write: The National Committee for Prevention of Child Abuse, P.O. Box 2866, Chicago, Ill. 60690. (It is a non-profit organization, but donations are gratefully accepted—include a dollar or two with your request. The money will be well spent.)

DEAR ABBY: I work as a receptionist for a large company and I love my job. I am always in a good mood and smiling comes easily to me. Would you please tell me what to say to people who say things like, "I hate people who are always cheerful in the morning—you make me sick!"

I once had a woman say to me, "You must be either very stupid or incredibly lucky, because nobody can be that happy all the time."

Abby, just once I would like to have some kind of comeback that would shut them up or put them in their place. Thank you.

HAPPY AND SHOWS IT

DEAR HAPPY: The most effective response to a rude comment is no reaction whatsoever. As my sainted grandfather used to say, "Never get into a wrestling match with a skunk."

Dear Abby's Cookbooklet is a collection of favorite recipes—all tested, tried and terrific! To order, send your name and address, plus check or money order for $3.50 ($4 in Canada) to: Abby's Cookbooklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

DEAR ABBY: How important is it for a teen-ager to keep her room clean? We have a teen-age daughter who is a slob, but otherwise she's a good kid. The condition of her room is the only thing my husband and I ever fight about.

I say her room is her business, and if the way she keeps it bothers him, he should stay out of there. He says, "As long as she's living in 'our' house, we have a right to insist on a clean room."

What is your opinion?
A DISAGREEMENT IN DULUTH

DEAR DISAGREEMENT: First, let's define our terms. What do you mean by "clean"? Free of dirt and pollution? Or simply a reasonably neat and orderly room?

I do not advocate a daily white glove inspection; neither would I tolerate apple cores, banana peels and empty soft drink cans setting around waiting for ants (or worse) to schedule a national convention.

Even though it's her room, it's in your house, and you have a right to insist on reasonable standards of orderliness and sanitation.

P.S. It's all well and good to say, "Let her live in the nest she has fouled," but when the nest is in your tree, that's a bird of another feather.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 33-year-old male, 6 feet tall, weight 190. I am in excellent physical condition, and I'm told that I am very good-looking. I am gay—but that's not my problem.

My problem is what to tell people (obviously people who don't know me very well) when I'm asked, "How come an attractive man like you isn't married?"

If I say (which I have), "I guess maybe I just haven't met the right person yet," they say, "Oh, have I got a girl for you!"

Obviously, I am not interested in meeting the girl they have in mind, and I don't want to go through that routine of taking a phone number, or giving anybody mine.

Any suggestions? I'm not a very good liar.

GARY (NOT MY REAL NAME)

DEAR GARY: Since you're basically a truthful person—how about this: "I appreciate your interest, but I'm gay." They will probably think you're kidding—even though there's a 10 percent chance that you're kidding on the square.

DEAR ABBY: You said it was improper for a person to pencil in "and guest" on the response card accompanying a wedding invitation. This really hit home with me and many of my co-workers. One of the girls at work is getting married soon, and a lot of hard feelings have been incurred by just such a situation.

The married co-workers may bring their spouses, but we single ones have not been given the privilege of inviting a guest. This is very unfair.

Most of us are single or divorced, and it's no fun going alone when couples are present. We singles have to sit together in a little group hoping some man will be brave enough—or feel sorry enough for us—to ask us to dance. Meanwhile, all our married co-workers are dancing every dance and having a ball. Waiting to be "picked up" isn't any fun either.

We hope you will see our point and print this. Sign us ...

THE SINGLE ONES

DEAR SINGLE ONES: I do. And I did.

Baylor student disciplined for appearing in magazine

WACO, Texas (AP) — A Baylor University student who was disciplined for appearing in Playgirl magazine clad only in a bathing suit says he regrets posing for the photographs.

Rob Winter, a senior marketing student, said Thursday he just wants to put the whole matter behind him.

"Oh no; oh no; I definitely would not pose if I had it to do all over again," Winter said. "As far as the magazine's content, that's not my character."

"I have a very strong relationship with Jesus Christ. It was very poor judgment on my part."

Neither Winter nor Baylor officials would disclose what disciplinary action was taken against Winter.

"I guess I'm on sort of probation," Winter said. "It was definitely handled fairly. I thought I was going to be gone."

Winter, 22, appeared in a pictorial featuring college students in the October issue of Playgirl. He wore only a red bikini-style swimsuit.

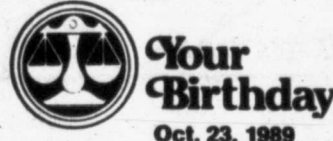

A free-lance photographer in Los Angeles, near Winter's home in Laguna Beach, Calif., took the three pictures of Winter that appeared in the magazine.

Disciplinary action against Winter "was handled in the same manner" as that of a female student who appeared in Playboy magazine in 1980, Baylor University President Herbert H. Reynolds said.

Three female Baylor students appeared in Playboy that year.

Your Birthday
Oct. 23, 1989

In the year ahead you may undertake several new and unique interests that will be offered you by chance. The aspects indicate they should turn out quite well.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Desirable results can be attained in your business dealings today if you use an indirect approach. Don't show your trump cards too early. Major changes are ahead for Libra in the coming year. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions today. Mail $1 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) In an activity that involves several friends and yourself, it's going to be up to you to get everything properly organized. Don't wait to be asked, assume control on your own.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Do not procrastinate at this time in going after objectives that are important to you. Conditions are extremely favorable, but they might be of short duration.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Today you could have an opportunity to rectify an arrangement with a close friend that got off to a bad start. Smooth it over while both are in a forgiving mood.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) Your best bet for completing critical assignments today is not to deal with underlings. Bypass people who lack clout and go to the top guy.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) By today you should have had enough time to study all of the aspects of a major decision you must make. Act in accordance with the ways you've reasoned it out.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) You can do things in an effective manner today that will serve to captivate people you're eager to impress. Give free rein to your resourcefulness.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Two situations in which you're presently involved that appear to be unrelated will begin to mesh neatly together. Today you should be able to spot ways to link them up.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Things are beginning to trend in your favor now pertaining to a matter that has caused you a degree of concern. It looks like it will be finalized to your satisfaction.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Quick thinking will help you develop advantages for yourself today while your associates merely look on. Speed is essential, so don't let any grass grow under your feet.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You should be more astute in commercial matters today than you were most of last week. This is the time to make adjustments to improve your position if it hasn't lived up to expectations lately.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Something beneficial can come out of your social involvements over the next few days, so be your most-ingratiating self and put your best foot forward. What ensues could be very worthwhile.

FISH OIL

"If you want fish oil for heart health, eat fish-it will give you calcium, selenium, trace elements, plus fish oil," says Dr. Walter Mertz, director, U.S. Agriculture Research Center. "Our bodies need calcium, phosphate, silicon, manganese, copper, zinc and many other nutrients. To pop a pill for one single nutrient is not the answer. For good health, Mother Nature has given us all the nutrients we need in a balanced diet of natural foods."

Auxiliary to help in campaign

The Ladies Auxiliary to VFW Post 8231 will be assisting Classmates in Action (CIA), during the Texas Red Ribbon Campaign Oct. 22-29.

The campaign ribbon is a visible sign that the wearer is pledging to be drug free. The ribbons will be sold for 50 cents each, with all proceeds going to CIA. Ribbons will be available at the high school and several local businesses.

For those who don't purchase ribbons, there are other ways to participate. Some suggestions from the auxiliary include placing red ribbons on homes, offices, car antennas, trees, mailboxes, bicycles, pets, spouses, bosses, friends, employees, light posts, and fingers, to remind people to demonstrate to others that they are committed to a drug-free lifestyle.

Auxiliary members urge the public to help by purchasing, wearing and placing ribbons in a visible place for the entire week, rather than just a day or two. Members emphasize turning Snyder red to promote a drug-free Snyder, Texas, and America.

of the job." And a good prosecutor, I learned, does not forget the victim. "They've been traumatized enough already," Ms. Sims told me. "I do everything I can to keep them from being assaulted by the system. I spend hours just talking to them, getting them to trust me. Most of them are so unprepared for what is going to happen to them. I try my best to prepare them, and in court, you can see in their eyes, they're clinging to a lifeline."

One evening I attended a fundraiser for one judge's reelection campaign at Dallas' trendy West End. I shook hands and exchanged business cards with a crowd of glossy, polished, well-dressed men and women of the profession. One of them, a handsome, gray-haired gentleman who walked with a cane, defended big-time drug dealers. With a wry smile and a twinkle in his eye, he told me, "They're entrepreneurs who believe in the American way and have just been misunderstood." You couldn't help but like the guy. (I didn't say "respect." I said "like.") It's a dirty job, but in this country, somebody DOES have to do it, or we wouldn't have a democracy.

So what did I learn from my little adventure? I'm happy to report that, from what I could see anyway, the American criminal justice system WORKS. Is it flawed? Yes. A creaking bureaucracy? Of course. But there are 12 people in every trial of the land every single day—the you's and me's out there, who MAKE it work. People who take the bothersome task of "jury duty" seriously enough to sacrifice job time and family to fulfill our responsibility and FIND THE TRUTH.

Are there bad judges? Crummy lawyers? Absolutely. But I'd wager that for every bad one, there are six who work their butts off, who care about people, and who revere the law and the Constitution upon which it was based.

Are there people who are mistreated by the system? Certainly. But ask the majority of them — even those in prison if they are truthful with you (good luck) — and they'll tell you they got pretty much what they deserved.

As far as I'm concerned, there's no other criminal justice system in the world upon which I'd be willing to wager my life.

SDN Letters to the Editor

The efforts of these many citizens only serves to convince us we are in the right on the question of widening 37th Street.

On Sept. 22, 1989, the last day, we drove to Abilene and turned them into the highway department. We requested to see the file on 37th Street, but we were told it was not completed and could come back Oct. 9 for an interview and see the complete file.

When we returned for this interview, we were shown the entire file where we saw that they had received by mail easily as many signatures and letters as we had delivered. Hurriedly flipping through, we were shown four or five letters that were sent in favor of the project.

A total of 170 people were at the hearing on Sept. 12 when Bill Line asked all who were against the widening of 37th Street to stand. A great majority stood, then Mr. Bunch asked all in favor of the project to stand. About 20 people, including the city council, stood. But Mr. Burnett, the state highway department head in Abilene, said that this was not a vote because he was in charge of the meeting and he did not call for a vote.

All Mr. Burnett is including in his report is that Bill Line asked the people to stand and there is no indication of how many people responded.

Mr. Burnett explained to us that the meeting was only a gathering of information, that the state highway department will value the opinions of one engineer over 10 other people. He also said that he does not make the laws by which the department chooses their projects, and that this $800,000 of tax money is in his budget and will be spent somewhere.

Mr. Burnett reminded us that state highway department rules and laws are made by our state and national representatives and senators, and if we do not agree with them, our option is to go to the polls next election and defeat these legislators.

To anyone who did not attend the meeting, I would like to report that only one representative of a state or national office was in attendance. He was Mr. George Harrell, legislative aide to State Rep. David Counts of Knox City. Mr. Harrell reported that Rep. Counts is in favor of the project, even though they don't know much about it!!!

We want to thank all of the voters who helped us in opposing the widening of 37th Street and designating it as a federal highway, thereby lowering the value of our homes and property. We sincerely hope that your efforts and ours will not be completely ignored.

In closing, Mr. Burnett said that he did not know just when he would send his report to Austin, but that the decision would be made on his report and probably would be announced around Feb. 1, 1990.

Thanks to all,
Mrs. Bill Line

Democratic ideals suffer during decade, says O'Neill

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Former House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill says the Democrats in Congress who surrendered their ideals to Ronald Reagan's popularity are the same ones who pushed for a get-tough policy in Panama.

O'Neill said Democratic ideals have suffered this decade, adding: "I had so many Democrats run away from me, their promises and policies, mostly because they were frightened of Reagan's popularity."

He said he disagreed with those same Democrats who are criticizing President Bush for failing to intervene in the failed coup attempt against the Panamanian leader, Gen. Manuel Antonio Noriega.

"I just think that Noriega is going to fall on himself. I'm glad we didn't send any troops in there," O'Neill said.

O'Neill, who left the U.S. House of Representatives in 1987, invited reporters to his hotel room late Wednesday after speaking before the Pennsylvania Institute of Certified Public Accountants' Pittsburgh chapter.
